

SPEAKING OF PEOPLE

Shakespeare Classic Opens Sunday

Because of the complexity of the antiquated style in which Shakespeare's plays are written, playgoers may wish to review

As the play opens, Macbeth, a man obsessed with obtaining power, encounters three witches who prophesy that he will become king of Scotland. Aided by his ambitious wife, Macbeth decides to insure the prophecy by murdering Duncan.

Macbeth is subsequently crowned king, but fearful of losing that position, he arranges for the death of his friend Banquo, who according to the witches is "the father of future kings," and for the deaths of the wife and children of Macduff, a noble warrior and a suspicious enemy.

Plagued with guilt, Macbeth begins to see ghosts and to reassure himself, again visits the three weird sisters.

The trio promise that his position is secure as long as "Birnam Wood does not come to Dunsinane Hill" and they assure him that he cannot be killed by "anyone born of woman."

Macbeth is reassured, but Lady Macbeth, suffering from guilt, takes her own life. Macbeth's lords desert him to support Duncan's son, Malcolm, who is the rightful heir to the throne, and Macbeth, now alone, prepares for battle.

Macbeth believes himself invulnerable, but as Malcolm's soldiers camouflage themselves with tree branches and advance toward the castle, the first part of the witches' prophecy comes true. Birnam Wood moves toward Dunsinane Hill.

And in a battle between Macduff and Macbeth, Macduff reveals that his birth had been caesarean, and thus, he was "not of woman born." This is the finish for Macbeth who is beheaded by Macduff.

The story concludes with the acknowledgement of Malcolm as true King of Scotland and "Macbeth," although written centuries ago, deals with the ageless problems of greed, power, ambition, and is especially interesting because of the influence of the occult and supernatural, topics which are gaining new interest today.

Several school groups plan to attend the performance and reservations have been received so far from Tilden, Pender, Genoa, Pierce, Emerson, Hubbard, Columbus, Scotus, Colteridge, Bancroft, Allen and Elkhorn Valley High at Tilden.

Performances are scheduled for 2 p.m., Sunday; 8 p.m., Monday; 1 p.m., Tuesday, and 8 p.m., Wednesday. Reservations may be obtained by calling—the college box office.

T-H Matmen Win Husker Loop; Wayne, Wakefield Tie for Sixth

Wayne and Wakefield wrestlers battled to a tie for sixth place during the Husker Conference wrestling tournament at Wayne State's Rice Auditorium Saturday.

The area clubs came up with 44 points each after loop-favorite Takamah-Herman ran away with first, scoring 113 1/2 points. The closest rival was Wisner-Pilger with 68 points, four better than third-place North Bend.

Other finishers in the 13-team meet were Oakland-Craig, 62 1/2; West Point, 53 1/2; Columbus Lakeview, 39 1/2; Hooper-Logan View, 27 1/2; Scribner, 25; Pender, 20; Stanton, 16; and Lyons, 4.

The Wakefield team had the only area first-place finisher as undefeated Steve Sorensen claimed win No. 24 to set up the 138-pound division. The senior veteran of four years won his weight class with a pin and a pair of decisions, including a 4-0 score over Brian Lierman of West Point to take the title.

Besides a first, Wakefield coach Lyle Trullinger had wrestlers take second, third and fourth. Roger Gustafson (155) took second when Bill Parkinson of West Point defeated him in the final round, 4-0. The Wakefield senior won two matches on a pin and decision in earlier competition. Two other seniors, Ken Dolph (119) and Pat Nicholson (155), finished third and fourth respectively.

Wayne's strongest finishers were heavyweight Charlie Brockman, who came in second when he lost a 7-2 decision to Alan Koski of Pender, and 167-pound Gordon Cook, who took second on a 7-0 loss to Mike Blanc of Oakland-Craig. Brockman started out with a bye before pinning his next two opponents en route to taking second. Cook gained two pins and a decision.

Wayne's 105-pound Ken Daniels probably had one of the longest days in attaining his fourth-place finish. The sophomore first beat Roger Jacobs of Oakland-Craig, 7-0, before being pinned by the eventual division winner, Hynek of North Bend. In the wrestlebacks, the Blue Devil pinned Fadchild of Columbus Lakeview, decisioned Magi of Scribner and beat Kurb of Stanton. Daniels then lost to Schram of West Point in the battle for third.

SWIMMING
College: WSC at Mankato State.

By now most high school wrestlers have either trimmed down or added a few pounds in preparation for Saturday's district tournaments around the state.

According to the three area coaches, most of the changes have come in the lower weights, with the majority of matmen shaving off pounds to drop to a lower weight. The reasons for that is to avoid a wrestler they have had trouble with during the year and give them a better chance against opponents in lighter weights.

As of Monday each coach labeled what he thought would be his grapplers going to districts. Of course, the final decision won't be made until each team has wrestle-offs in each weight to determine who has the right to compete in the district tournaments.

Some of the changes expected to take place on the Wayne High team: Ken Daniels, down from 112 to 105 pounds; Scott Brummond, down from 119 to 112; Alan Ekberg, down from 126 to 119. Fitting Ekberg's spot at 126 will be Les Thomsen.

Otherwise the coach expects the remainder of the team to stay the same: Randy Surber at 98, Barry Ruback at 132, Steve Meyer at 138, Kevin Heithold at 145, Tom Frahm at 155, Gordon Cook at 167, Mike Dunklau at 185 and Charlie Brockman at heavyweight.

For Winside, the changes include: Monte Pfeiffer, from 112 to 105; Lynn Langenberg, from 126 to 112; Gregg Lage, from 132 to 126; Doug Lage, from 138 to 132.

Expected to compete at their same weights: Bob Bowers 98, Bert Schwedhelm at 138, Keith Barge at 145, Neil Wagner at 155, Dwight Niemann at 167, Dan Bowers at 185, Mike Anderson at heavyweight.

At Wakefield several switches are expected: Terry Borg and Brian Newton will trade weights, with Borg normally a 105-pounder, switching to 98 and Newton going to 105. John Polen will go up from 119 to 126, leaving the 119 spot to Carl Domsch. Steve Sorensen will go from 145 to 138, leaving Roger Gustafson at 145.

Otherwise Kurt Dolph will be at 132, Pat Nicholson at 155, Steve Greve at 167, Dave Gustafson at 185 and Merrill Hale at heavyweight.

Coach Don Koenig's Class B Blue Devil team may be facing the toughest tournament of the three area teams Saturday when the club heads into a near-repeat of last Saturday's Husker Conference meet.

Beside, loop teams such as Columbus Lakeview and Wisner-Pilger, the Devils will be up against members from always-strong Albion and Randolph. Other schools in the meet are Creighton and Schuyler. Starting time is 9 a.m. at Albion.

Both Winside and Wakefield grapplers will compete in Class C district action beginning at 1 p.m. in Winside.

Both area teams plus Plainview and West Point could win the tournament, pointed out Winside coach Doug Barclay. "This will be one of the toughest tournaments in the Northeast Nebraska area because you'll have two to three champs vying for one weight," he said.

Other schools at the meet will be Norfolk Catholic, Osmond, Pender and Stanton.

We take it for granted. And yet it sparks our whole modern way of life. . . work, production, recreation, leisure, even protection. Flick a switch and lights go on. . . a miracle in itself. Think of all the other marvels we enjoy. Wheels that turn. Wires that hum. Magic machines that take the drudgery from our days: washers, dryers, heaters, coolers, toasters, ranges, broilers, freezers, cleaners, polishers, television. And all the music-makers. . . from stereo record players to organs and guitars. The benefits are endless. So are the possibilities. We're looking forward to exploring and expanding them further. . . to make life brighter and better yet for you and for your family. For the whole community. Electricity is for people. We keep that in mind — and we're proud to serve you, proud to have a part in bigger and better dreams.

Council of Governments Aims at Problem Solving

The main goal of the Mid-Elkhorn Valley Council of Government is problem solving. According to Steve Martin, Mid-Elkhorn Valley COG manager, the goal may be simple, but achieving it is a difficult job. "It's a lot of work," he told Wayne Kiwanians Monday. The COG tries to help municipal and county governments find ways of solving legal problems, such as acquiring federal money for governmental improvement, he said. It also helps communities try to stop the abandonment of railroad lines running through the northeast section of the state, he added. Martin emphasized that joining COG is strictly voluntary, and there are no legal rules making COG a governmental body as such. In 1954 the first COG was started in Detroit. Since then the program has grown to include more than 250 COG's across the nation. In 1966 SIMPCO (Siouxland Interstate Metropolitan Planning Council) was the first such organization started in Nebraska. Omaha followed two years later with MAPA, which covers both Omaha and Council Bluffs. For Wayne County and four other counties the program was implemented last year under the name of the Mid-Elkhorn Valley Council of Government. Communities included in the council are Wayne, Winslow, Hoskins, Osmond, Pilger, Stanton, Neligh, Orchard and Elgin. The COG is funded by membership fees, which cover about one-third of the cost of running the council. The other two-thirds comes from the federal government, Martin said. Kiwanis board members voted to donate $200 to the hospital fund. Taken under advisement was a suggested donation to the local American Legion to help pay for new baseball uniforms. The board okayed leaves of absence for Jim Hummel and Wayne Wessel while accepting permanent leaves for Loren Park, Orvid Owens and Dennis Boehme. Mike Jacobson was accepted as a new member.

Thought for Today
By Rowan Wiltse

"There are three faithful friends: An old wife, an old dog and ready money."
Benjamin Franklin

We won't argue the validity of Franklin's three choices, though we do feel that whether faithful friends can be counted in three or a thousand and three categories is largely a reflection of one's worthiness in meriting friendship.

True friendship is not a one-way street; it is difficult... it is impossible... to cultivate and hold faithful friends unless one has the capacity within himself to be a faithful friend.

Families we have served tell us that our consideration for them was like that of an old and trusted friend. Nothing pleases us more, because this is our prime objective... to be your friend when you need your friends. We serve families of all faiths and creeds with dignity and good taste.

Winside High To Implement Driver's Ed

Winside High School will offer a driver education program this summer, according to superintendent Don Leighton.

The program, available for students who can work it into their schedule, will be a first for the school, he added.

Monday night the school board voted to implement the program during the regular monthly session after accepting the resignation of elementary teacher Sharon Scott of Wayne.

Mrs. Scott, who has taught math, reading and physical education for three years at Winside, notified the board of her resignation after the members voted to verify her teaching experience for renewal of her teaching certificate.

In other business, the members agreed to have the trade and industries class build a garage for Dennis Bowers of Winside beginning this spring.

The board also: Voted to accept the proposed 1974-75 school calendar, with school to start Aug. 22 and end May 21.

Discussed but took no formal action on teacher salary negotiations. The board and the teachers' committee, headed by Carter Peterson, are slated to meet next week for further talks on salaries for the coming school year.

Survey's Slated In Area Next Week

The Bureau of the Census will conduct its regular monthly survey in the Wayne area on employment and unemployment during the week of Feb. 18-22, according to Walter A. Freeman, Jr., director of the Bureau's data collection center in Denver.

Local households in the survey are among the 50,000 nationwide that have been scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all households.

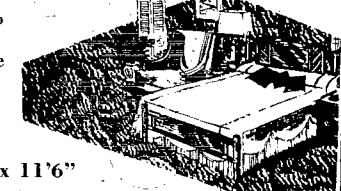

The survey is taken for the U.S. Department of Labor which publishes results each month. Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is confidential by law and results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Tests Show: Whole Shelled Corn Proves An Equal to Rolled Corn

Whole shelled corn was equal to the same corn if it was rolled before feeding with alfalfa haylage to growing calves in experiments during the last two early winters at the Northeast Station at Concord.

"The only problem with the dry whole shelled corn was that it settled to the bottom of the bunk when mixed with real dry haylage, and the cattle pushed out and wasted some feed hunting for the grain," district beef specialist Walt Tolman said. Grain was fed in these tests at the rate of four pounds per head per day with a full feed of haylage. Daily gains averaged almost 1 1/4 pounds last year on this ration, but less than 1 1/2 pounds this year due to the extremely cold weather in late December and early January.

Tolman feels that some grain or other high energy feed should be fed with alfalfa hay or haylage to fully utilize its high protein and mineral content. The grain ration usually ranges from two to 10 pounds per head per day depending on the rate of gain wanted, the feeding program followed and the relative cost of the two feeds, he said. Lower grain allowances are made for breeding stock and other calves which will go to pasture; higher allowances are made for cattle to be moved onto a full grain feed for early marketing.

In the same two experiments, a commercial preservative improved the keeping quality of haylage after the pile was opened for feeding and reduced the feed dry matter required to produce a pound of gain by about 10 per cent on the average. Tolman noted. Rate of gain was not improved by the additive in these tests, he said. The Northeast Station has had very satisfactory results with alfalfa haylage stored at from 40 to 60 per cent dry matter in sealed upright silos, in carefully packed plastic covered piles or in plastic covered bunkers, according to Tolman. A fine chop, good packing and careful covering are more important to keeping and feeding quality than is the storage structure, Tolman believes.

Harvesting alfalfa at an early stage, saving all the leaves and avoiding exposure to wet weather are important in producing a feed high in protein, he concluded.

Tax Deadline May Be Near For Farmers

Farmers may have to file their federal income tax return and pay that tax by March 1. Michael Bilgere, acting district director of Internal Revenue for Nebraska, said that farmers who did not file a declaration of estimated federal individual tax by Jan. 15 should file their 1973 tax return and pay all tax due by March 1 to avoid a penalty.

Farmers are defined as those persons who earned at least two-thirds of their 1973 gross income from farming. IRS Publications 225, "Farmers Tax Guide," and 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax," provide additional information and are available free at all Nebraska IRS offices.

Toll free telephone numbers for Nebraska are listed on page 2 of the instructions with the 1040 tax package and page 7 of the 1040A tax package. Local numbers are also listed in some instances.

"This service allows taxpayers anywhere in the state the opportunity of obtaining tax information without long distance charges," Bilgere said.

Three Wayne area Cooper dealers earned plaques for 1973 sales performance during the second annual dealer recognition and awards banquet at Lincoln recently.

Receiving awards were Bob's Farm Service of Wayne, Bressler's Service of Dixon and Winside Produce of Winside. They were among 96 dealers honored by the O. A. Cooper Co. of Humboldt, manufacturers of livestock and poultry feeds.

The awards ceremony highlighted a three-day dealer meeting.

No Reseal Program For 1973 Grain, Soybeans - - - USDA

There will be no reseal program for 1973 crops of grain and soybeans and 1973-crop cotton will not be carried in a past due status, reports the Wayne County ASCS office.

This means there will be no extension of loans for any of these crops past the original maturity date, officials said.

Strong domestic and export demand and market prices well above government program loan levels for these commodities eliminate the need for loan extension, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The actions are in keeping with department policy of removing farm commodities from government control and either back into the hands of producers or into the marketplace.

USDA officials emphasized that there was no reseal program in effect during 1973 for any 1972 crop, that it had called in all 1972 or earlier crops under resale and on Jan. 15 it called in 1973 crop wheat under government loan. Only small quantities of wheat and feed grains remain undelivered, principally in the upper midwest where a shortage of transportation complicates moving the commodities out of storage, says the USDA.

The group, open to anyone interested in joining, will meet again following the annual banquet of the Nebraska Polled Hereford Association at Kearney on March 8. Father of the two Wakefield youths is LeRoy Sievers.

TGE Becoming Problem in State

Transmissible gastroenteritis (TGE) is affecting many swine in Nebraska this winter, with high death losses among affected baby pigs, reports Dr. Alex Hogg, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension veterinarian.

"We've been getting many calls from Nebraska veterinarians and pork producers which indicate many cases of TGE in Nebraska," Dr. Hogg says. He pointed out that although the virus disease is a problem for swine producers, it is not an epidemic.

Swine producers in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Missouri have also reported their herds being affected with TGE and with high death losses among baby pigs.

According to Dr. Hogg, in many cases of TGE there was a recent purchase of apparently healthy feeder pigs that were brought to the farm where a farrowing operation was being conducted. These feeder pigs had recently recovered from TGE but were carriers of the virus for 38 days or more.

As precautions against TGE, Hogg recommends that feeder pigs not be brought onto the premises during farrowing. Also, do not visit other swine producing facilities during farrowing. Likewise, keep visitors away from your farrowing area and all other pigs. "Any age pig is susceptible to TGE and can establish infection on the farm," he warns.

He also recommends the two-boot system. "Wear a different pair of rubber boots to town where TGE could be picked up in cafes, elevators and other places where farmers congregate. Wear a different pair of boots at home when doing pig chores," he advises.

Clothes, feed sacks and starlings are also capable of spreading the disease. Starlings should be controlled, feed sacks properly disposed of and clothes properly cared for, he said.

As soon as any indications of TGE are noticed, diarrhea, vomiting, rapid dehydration, failure to respond to drugs — a veterinarian should be contacted. Veterinarians can diagnose the disease by examining the digestive tract. Although there is no cure for TGE at present, pigs may be suffering from a curable disease of the digestive tract with many of the same symptoms as TGE.

There is a vaccine on the market that doesn't completely protect against TGE, but results have been favorable, Dr. Hogg notes. The vaccine produces protective antibodies in the sow's milk and baby pigs receive the antibodies against TGE by nursing, he explains. A veterinarian should be consulted on the use of vaccine.

When pigs die of TGE, burn the carcasses immediately if facilities are available. Otherwise, take them away from the farrowing premises in a plastic sack to an area where other animals won't be in contact with them, then have a rendering truck remove them from the property.

Winter Class Project

DARRELL ALLVIN put in a lot of hours and spent most of the first semester making this wood splitter, just the thing for the person who has a fireplace in his home. Allvin, a junior at Wayne High, made the project by working from a picture in a magazine rather than from detailed plans, according to shop instructor Bill Wilson. The wood splitter works off the hydraulic system of a tractor. Allvin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Allvin of rural Wayne.

What size small car?

Your Ford Team can help you make the right decision.

You'll find one of America's largest selections of small cars at your Ford Team. There are ten models in all. Including wagons. You won't find such variety at most other dealers.

For small-car luxury, the Mustang II is in a class by itself. It's small, so it's economical. But there's more luxury than you'd expect. At less than you'd expect to pay, Ford's Motor Trend Magazine just named Mustang II "Car of the Year."

Or how about a family-size compact? Then take a close look at the '74 Maverick. It's a dependable compact with plenty of room for a family of five to relax in.

Then, there's the Ford Pinto. It's the economical subcompact that's been helping people get "back to basics" for years. Pinto gives you a lot of miles on every tank full. And on regular gas, too like all the '74 Fords.

A small-size car from your Ford Team is one of many things that can help improve your car's gas mileage. There are other ways, too.

You'll get the facts from your Ford Team on how things like radial tires, speed control options and different engine sizes can help improve your car's gas mileage.

Your Ford Team wants to help you make the right decision about what small car is right for you. See them today.

An abandoned farmhouse

by Richard Rumppe

It's predicted that by 1980 only 8.8 per cent of Wisconsin's total population will be farmers. This is difficult to realize when we think of Wisconsin's traditional agricultural reputation.

It's not known why this home was abandoned. The possibilities are many. A crop failure many years ago may have caused the farmer to pack up and leave. He might have been too old to do the hard work required by the farming profession. Whatever the reason, the people that lived here picked up and left, taking only their personal possessions.

We get the feeling that the former owners had a modest elaborateness about them. This is suggested by the design in the old door handle.

One's imagination can run wild while walking through the house. Why did the lady of the house not take the mop with her when she left? It seems good enough to use yet.

Why was the frying pan left? Was it worn out? Or was it just forgotten? We wonder if the man of the house hated to give up the old shoe when worn, knowing it was just becoming comfortable.

The people who lived here probably homesteaded this farm after coming over from the old country as this is how most of the farms in western Wisconsin were settled. It is likely that the wood cut, while clearing the land, was used to build the house. Yes, there are many questions I would like to ask the old farmhouse, if it could only talk. But it can't so I'll never know the answers to my questions.

It's sad to see Wisconsin's small farms failing. But I think I see one of the overlooked reasons for it. The cities have better careers to offer the farm-raised young people. After all, farm work has long hours, hard work and poor pay.

The counties of Dane, Milwaukee, and Racine have all gained population in recent years, while basically farming counties such as Richland and Monroe have lost people. This seems to point to the fact that the young people are leaving the farm and moving to the urban areas.

I see myself as an example of this. Even if a young person wants to start farming, if he wasn't raised on a farm, he can't afford to get started. The money needed to buy the modern machinery needed for present day agricultural methods is too much for a young person to lay his hands on.

The only hope the small farm system has in the State of Wisconsin is in the farm-raised youth who choose to stay on the farms their fathers and grandfathers have already established.

It's economical!

2 teaspoons dry mustard

3 drops Tabasco sauce

Speare a meat cube on toothpick or small skewer. Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper. Place meat in a shallow pan in Measure bacon fat, and return two tablespoons to skillet. Add onions, and cook slowly until soft but not brown. Beat eggs lightly with salt, nutmeg, white pepper and cayenne pepper. Add cream, onion, cheese, walnuts and bacon. Spoon mixture into shallow unbaked tart shells. Place on baking sheet. Bake at 425 degrees about 15 minutes, just until filling is set and pastry is browned. Serve warm. Makes about 3 dozen three-inch tarts.

Our Sunbeam Cook 'n' Clean Cradle.

We put it underneath for one of the reasons we put Teflon II inside.

You know how Teflon II keeps food and grease from sticking when you cook on it. So it washes clean and fast, easily.

But what about the underside of your frypan? It's not protected at all. So the grease and food spatter gets baked-on. More and more every time you use it.

That's why Sunbeam has introduced the Cook 'n' Clean Cradle. A metal shield that helps keep the grease from baking on, because it's enamel coated. So your frypan washes clean and fast, even in the dishwasher.

Test fry the Sunbeam Frypan. In overall Avocado, Harvest Gold or Red porcelain finish. All with Teflon II inside and the Cook 'n' Clean Cradle underneath. Only Sunbeam has it.

Sunday Suppers

by Sherry Onken

Great Grandmother's heavy iron soup pot atop her black wood-fired stove meant there'd be a fine kettle of soup for supper. On fall and wintry days what could be more welcome!

Don't underestimate the compatibility of a "Souper" Sunday Supper featuring a meal-in-one soup accompanied by flakey, crisp crackers or hot breads. Soup and hot breads are still the happiest partners in creation. And, a hearty feast like this means a partial kitchen holiday for the chief cook and bottle washer.

Soup, a natural show-off, is as elegant as its service—and ladled from a handsome tureen, it provides the spark for Sunday suppers. Paired with crackers and hot breads, this supper requires only a simple salad and dessert to entice the entire family.

Winter Ice

By Wally E. Schulz

Carol Jacobsen of Lake Geneva and Bill Ehrhardt, Jr., of Elkhorn, Wisconsin are both certified instructors in the sport of scuba diving. They enjoy diving through the ice during the long, cold winter months, too.

In fact, they have found it exciting and rewarding in locating lost snowmobiles, cars, boats, motors and other treasures from the depths of the ice covered lakes in the area.

"We wear neoprene suits with thermal underwear beneath which gives us the same weight as a suit of clothes," said Carol. "But we feel more restricted in them. We wear weights on a waist belt of from four to 15 pounds. There is also a buoyancy safety vest which allows a person to float on the surface should he run out of air."

Diving equipment usually costs $125, but can reach $600 easily for those who use an underwater sled. Strapped to a diver's back are 35 pound cylinders of compressed air which last between 15 and 20 minutes, depending upon how hard a person is working in the water.

In descents in area lakes, especially during the winter, anchor lines are used between the point of entry and the bottom. Attached to it are the safety lines connected to the divers.

"It becomes very dark and even with a waterproof auto headlight on a 150 foot cord, the illumination is only some six or seven feet ahead."

In trying to locate an object, full circles are made at 10 foot intervals until a radius of 100 feet has been investigated. Hand signals are used to communicate between divers.

All the divers admitted that it's dark and eerie down in the water, and it's no place for anyone easily frightened. They say the fish seem to adopt them in the water and often swim nearby apparently unafraid. They become magnified down in the water and look larger than they are.

On bright summer days the visibility is much better in the water and they can enjoy the fish and the beauty of the lake bottom to better advantage.

Wayne Byars of Elkhorn is in charge of the sheriff's department recovery team and he often dives with Miss Jacobsen and the Ehrhardts through the ice in winter. He helped to recover six bodies from lakes in the county last year.

"I'll never forget one dead man I located trapped in his car," said Byars. "I had been diving for him and then suddenly in the dark, eerie water my light fell upon the dark object of the car. As I played the light toward the driver's seat, there he sat. His hands were gripping the steering wheel and his head cocked toward me and still in place upon his nose were his glasses."

The sight was one this veteran diver couldn't seem to forget. For three nights he dreamed about that diving operation.

"The water is always dark and eerie when you're searching for a body," said Byars. "It's another world at a time like that."

One winter day they were asked to recover a lost snowmobile in Lake Geneva. The machine went down in one of the deep parts of the lake referred to as "The Narrow." Folks fear that spot and a shroud of mystery clouds it. Some bodies never were recovered from the area.

"We had to make two separate dives to locate it," said Carol. "We finally found it in 85 feet of water. We all experienced trouble with our diving gear icing up."

When the divers come out of the water, the water often freezes to their suits and they have to scrape off the ice. It won't melt when they get into the water again. They have to be careful of breathing in little particles of ice which can cause frost bite of the lungs and put them in a hospital for three weeks.

"Each time we cut a hole in the ice and make a dive we put our flag up to indicate there are diving operations in progress," said Carol. "In summer we have many boaters come dangerously close to us at times. They could easily kill a diver in the water nearby. Wisconsin law says they must stay 50 feet away from a diving boat of divers."

The diving flag is red in color with a wide, white diagonal stripe that cuts across it. Many people are unfamiliar with its appearance.

A snowmobile owned by one of the diving members comes in real handy in pulling the sleds laden with diving equipment to the diving area on the lake

Diving

Lake Geneva is the second deepest lake in the State of Wisconsin and the Department of National Resources puts out maps of the lakes which reveal how deep they are at all spots.

An interesting fact that Wisconsin divers learn is that lost articles in the lake are not their legal property.

"The open water statute of limitations says the legal ownership goes back to the original owner," said Ehrhardt. "We can charge salvage diving operations, however, which makes our job worthwhile. Diving for lost items through the ice is a thrilling experience."

More than once they've become so chilled in the icy depths of the lake that they've had to return to the heated van to warm up.

Carol Jacobsen and Bill Ehrhardt, Jr. both attended the Loyola Academy of Chicago to become certified instructors. Carol said she had always loved to swim and was a water safety instructor at the UW-River Falls while attending classes. She also worked at the Elkhorn municipal pool and helped coach a city team.

Ehrhardt said his father is a scuba enthusiast and often dives with him in the lakes around the county. He holds a master and certified rating. His young brother Dale, 12, also is a scuba diver with more than 50 dives to his credit.

"Divers from warm climates would find it an exciting experience to dive through the ice covered lakes of the area," said Carol. "Folks look at us mystified in our diving suits as they stand with their teeth chattering. They're dressed in warm snowsuits and they're still cold. They don't see how we can stand the cold winter temperatures in our diving suits. I'll admit, sometimes we get pretty cold, but it's an exciting winter sport, too."

The following notice on a church bulletin board was reported by The Eclipse-News-Review of Parkersburg, Iowa: "Pray for good crops, but keep on hoeing."

"A politician," says the Janesville (Minn.) Argus, "is someone who never met a tax he didn't hike."

Success is when you have your name in everything except the telephone book, says the Democrat-Tribune of Mineral Point, Wis.

The Sibley (Iowa) Gazette says, "If you see good in everybody you may be an optimist . . . then again you may be nuts."

The following is from The Houston (Mo.) Herald:
A mother asked her little daughter what they did at the party. The child replied that they had sung the "refrigerator song."

Puzzled, the mother asked how the song went. Replied the youngster, "Oh, you know, Mother . . . 'Freeze a jolly good fellow!'"

According to The Manning (Iowa) Monitor it isn't the good old days a bachelor fears he'll miss if he marries—it's the good old nights.

There was a $3 bill!

by Grover Brinkman

Howard Mayes, a curator at the Docker Historical Museum at Old Shawneetown, Illinois, is holding up a reproduction of several of the old bills distributed by the bank.

As phony as a three dollar bill?

You've heard the expression many times. This writer admits to being guilty of using this old cliché as well, dramatizing some bit of action in a story.

This is his solemn promise that it will never happen again!

There was a three dollar bill! A very legitimate one, too!

This odd-denomination currency was issued in southern Illinois, at the First Territorial Bank of Old Shawneetown. Some of the old bills are still in existence, as well. The crumbling building is a ruin near the Ohio River levee, awaiting restoration as a historic landmark.

There was also a four dollar bill, a six, seven, eight and nine dollar bill, unbelievable as it sounds today.

Even our recently-withdrawn two dollar bill is a collectors' item, but how would you like to paw through a billfold containing the above mentioned odd currency in paying a bill at the supermarket or garage?

The forefathers of our present currency system evidently had a far different viewpoint relative to this old-time paper money.

Whenever the question of finances arises in any discussion today, someone is always ready to point out that we have a constantly shrinking dollar, which is true, presenting a problem to the man who brings home his paycheck each fortnight. But this problem recedes quickly when posed against some of the early money problems in pioneer Illinois.

These problems were brought about by several factors, particularly by the absence of "hard money" on the frontier. Silver and gold coins were so hard to come by in these early days that Spanish milled dollars, called Pieces of Eight, were legal tender in many Illinois frontier banks.

As one historian reminds, a southern Illinois bank, lucky enough to obtain two silver dollars during a day of hectic banking, put them on display as curiosities. So rare was the event.

To provide a medium of exchange, for trade or barter, banks had to issue their own currency such as the odd-denomination notes from the bank at Old Shawneetown, mentioned here.

These "shin-plasters" were issued in many denominations no longer in use today. The notes were supposed to be backed by "hard" money, silver or gold, but frequently they were not. Many of these early banks issued as many as four and five times as many notes as they could redeem in hard currency. Some of these beautifully engraved bills also were issued on banks that never even existed, an out-and-out fraud. Today, these "counterfeits" are highly prized by numismatists all over the globe.

Merchants of course were those hardest hit by this type of money. When offered in trade, they could never be sure whether it was the real thing or fictitious. Even some of the legitimate notes had to be discounted.

So bitter became the competition among early banks that one bank would gather all the currency it could on some other nearby bank, then present it in a bundle, in an attempt to "break" the competing institution.

The bank at Old Shawneetown survived several of these "runs" on its currency by one of its rivals, the Bank of Edwardsville, about a hundred miles distant. Later the two banks patched up their differences and began sending each other's notes as far away as possible, in an attempt to stabilize their own economy.

The U. S. Government finally ended this wildcat currency by issuing a federal bank note, which was slow in being accepted, viewed with suspicion by many, but finally able to stand on its own merits.

In frontier days, the First Territorial Bank of Old Shawneetown issued three, four, six, seven, eight and nine dollar bills. Notice how souvenir hunters have pulled bricks from the walls in the lower right corner of the picture.

"Sure, a water softener saves you money."

Ask a Lindsay Lady...

Joyce Siefening, Home Economist - Homemaker Schools

"I've made this demonstration to homemakers at least 100 times. Try it yourself. Just take a jar of soft water and one of hard water. Add 10 drops of liquid soap to each. Shake and look at the difference! There are absolutely no suds in the jar of hard water. Depending on water hardness, it can take 3 to 9 times more soap to equal the suds in the soft water. Think of the savings on soap alone plus the time it takes to clean soap scum from pans and dishes!"

This is the handsome, modern Imperial model. Softens water completely automatic. No tanks to be replaced by a service man.

Ask a Lindsay Lady for more information on how you save cleaning time, save on detergents and household cleansers and save salt - ask one of the hundreds of thousands of Lindsay Ladies now using a Lindsay softener. Or ask the Lindsay Lady, your water conditioning counselor, at your dealer. Look for him in the Yellow Pages.

Additional economy. Your Lindsay dealer will fine tune the Salt Saver control to minimize salt consumption.
