BOGART, a two year old St. Bernard at Allen, probably mirrors area residents' feelings about the hot, dry weather that has had a hold on the state for some time now. He found some relief, however, by snuggling up against a cool brick wall out of the hot sun. Bogart, unruffled by a sweaty photographer, belongs to the Keith Hill family.

Old Course, New Twist: Val Peterson on Politics

An old course, international politics, which Wayne State has offered for years, will have new dimension this fall with former ambassador Val Peterson in structing. The class will meet Monday nights.

President Lyle Seymour said Peterson will bring broad experience in foreign diplomacy to his teaching of international politics. He served as U.S. ambassador to Finland four years before retirement about a year ago. Previously he has been ambassador to Denmark in the Eisenhower administration.

During World War II Peterson was an Air Force officer, serving in the China-Burma-India Theater, and later on Gen. Curtis LeMay's Strategic Air Command staff, doing various assignments in Asia and Africa.

Even his federal civil defense director duties had an international facet as Peterson attended NATO meetings in Paris, on occasions when they dealt with overall civil defense matters.

Now on the Wayne State faculty as distinguished professor of political science, Peterson said he plans to relate the international politics course to daily events and put them into perspective of history.

A graduate of Wayne, he later earned a master's at the University of Nebraska and finished most of the studies for a doctorate.

The course is open not only to regular college students, but citizens of the area interested in international politics.

Manley Takes Allen HS Post

The Allen school board has hired Robert Manley Jr. as assistant career education director for the 1974-75 school year.

Manley, who taught fifth grade at Morris Hickman last year, also will assist in special education. He is replacing Miss Kathy Erishman who resigned this year after teaching at Allen for the last two years, said principal Bruce O'Callaghan.

During last Monday's board meeting, members accepted the resignation of part time elementary music teacher Mrs. Susan VonMinden of Martinsburg. A replacement has not been named.

Also, the board increased free high tuition from $1,700 to $1,900 for the coming year.

Chamber Group Suggests Hours For 'Dog Days'

A Chamber of Commerce committee is suggesting that stores open at 7 a.m. and close at 4 p.m. on Saturday, July 27, the date for the annual city wide Dog Days promotion.

The Chamber's retail committee, which is sponsoring the event, suggested the hours during a meeting Wednesday morning.

The early opening will permit in-town and area residents to come into town and do their shopping during the cool hours in the morning. Committee members felt stores put much merchandise on tables outside their stores during the annual promotion, offering special buys on a variety of items.

Heading up this year's promotion are Roger Nelson and Germaine Kaup.

The retail committee voted during last week's meeting not to close early on the day of the free barbecue at the Wayne County Fair.

Being investigated by the committee is some type of retail promotion to be into the three day all sports event scheduled for Aug. 16-18. Already planned for Aug. 15-17 is the city's annual back to school promotion.

Change Made in WSC's Middle East Conference

A change was announced Friday in the United States representative who will address Wayne State College's Conference on the Middle East Tuesday and Wednesday.

Prof. Allen O'Donnell, conference director, received news from the State Department in Washington that Edward Padelldorf will replace Stephen Ward on the program. He will speak at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Birch Room.

Padelldorf is deputy political and military affairs advisor, Bureau of Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs for the Department of State. He has visited Lebanon, Syria, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Jordan, Israel, Turkey and Cyprus. He has degrees from Georgetown and American Universities and is a colonel in the U.S. Air Force Reserves.

Padelldorf will make the final conference address on "United States Policy in the Middle East."

Also on the program are talks by diplomats from Iran, Israel and the Soviet Union, and a representative of the Arab Information Center.

The public is invited to all events, free of charge, at 10 a.m. each day in Ramsey Theatre of the Fine Arts Center, at noon and 7 p.m. each day in the Student Center.

4-H'ers Get $216 From Slave Sale

Four H members from Wayne County raised $216 during Thursday night's slave auction at the city auditorium in Wayne, boosting to nearly $490 the amount they have raised in recent weeks to help furnish the new livestock show ring being built at the fairgrounds.

Janel Spittiger brought the most money in the sale, a total of $24 from First National Bank. Bringing $20 each were Rhonda Wilson, purchased by Melvin Wilson, and Les Thomsen, purchased by Alan Thomsen.

Youngsters were scheduled to put in a full eight-hour day on Saturday.

The money raised in the sale will be added to the approximately $270 earned from two bake sales held recently.

Sponsoring Thursday's sale and the bake sales was the Teen Supremes, junior leader organization in the county.

Serving as auctioneer during the evening was Stanley Baier of rural Wayne.

Other youths sold Thursday night and their buyers, Connie Gemelke, Mrs. Don Schultz, Janelle Anderson, Stanley Baier, Marvin Hansen, Don Spitzler, Steve Gramlich, Allen Spittiger, Kent Wittler, Harold Wittler, Kurt Wittler, Harold Wittler, Mike Gnirk, Harold Wittler, Gloria Hansen, Gert rade Utecht, Megan Owens, Bonnie Owens, Gloria Spittiger, Baier and Baier farm Dwight Anderson, Wallace Anderson.

Board to Look At Out-of-State Tuition Charges

The board of trustees of Nebraska state colleges voted to retain the present tuition rates at the four state colleges for the 1974-75 school year during its monthly meeting in Omaha Friday, but decided to probe the possibilities of reducing out-of-state tuition at a later date.

The board voted 4-2 to leave the tuition at $15.50 per hour for Nebraskans and $27.50 for non-residents. It had been proposed to lower the rates 50 cents an hour for both groups. The vote was taken after the college presidents said the reduction would probably not increase enrollment for 1974-75 at this late date.

The proposal to lower non-resident tuition to the same level of the resident rates was made by trustee J. Alan Cramer of Wayne, who had succeeded in getting the idea included in the Nebraska Republican party platform earlier. The proposal, if adopted, could be a landmark, for no other state has such a plan, as far as is known.

Cramer pointed out that the Department of Economic Development and the Nebraska Game Commission spends large amounts of money trying to lure outsiders to Nebraska, but non-residents are penalized when they wish to come to the state to study. He said the non-resident students spends a considerable amount of money while attending a Nebraska college and often remains in the state as a productive, tax paying citizen following graduation.

As Cramer explained his plan, the reduced tuition would remain in effect only as long as the anticipated increase in students could be accommodated in "usable, existing facilities."

License Books Ready

The 1974 Wayne County license books are now available from local and area businesses at no charge to their customers.

The books include the latest listing of vehicle owners by license numbers and numerous coupons which offer car and truck operators an opportunity to save money in servicing their vehicles.

An advertisement on page three of this issue of The Wayne Herald tells where the books may be picked up.

Chamber's Farm Tour Is Tuesday

Wayne businessmen will tour three farm operations in a special bus tour Tuesday afternoon, the first time in recent years there has been an organized effort to make businessmen aware of some of the agricultural developments in the area.

Businessmen are asked to be at the Chamber of Commerce office at 1:30 p.m. to board the bus. Stops will be made at the Jack Langemeier dairy operation southwest of Wayne, the new pig cooperative southwest of town and the Marvin Dunklau cattle operation west of town. The bus will be back in Wayne about 4:30 in the afternoon.

Chamber manager Howard Witt said the tour should be a good chance for businessmen to see what is going on in the rural area around Wayne and to see that farmers and feeders have large financial investments in their operations.

Fire Damage Totals $500

Faulty wiring apparently started a tractor fire at the Wayne County Fairgrounds about noon Friday.

Wayne Volunteer firemen extinguished the blaze after the tractor sustained about $500 damage, said Gary Pick of Logan Valley Implement Co. which owns the tractor.

Crewmen were working on the new livestock show ring when the fire broke out.

Monthly Coffee Slated Today

Business owners and employees are invited to the Chamber of Commerce's monthly coffee this morning (Monday).

Hosting the coffee from 9:30 to 11 will be the Senior Citizens Center at 316 Main St.

Coffee and homemade cookies will be served during the coffee, said Chamber manager Howard Witt, and those stopping in will be able to find out more about the activities and projects available to elderly residents of the community.

Fall Injures Worker

Robert Bodensedt of Wayne suffered a possible concussion when he fell several feet and landed on his back on concrete at the Nebraska Department of Roads complex just east of Wayne Friday afternoon.

A roads department employee, Bodensedt, 45, remained hospitalized Saturday, according to his doctor.

'Crops Hurting Daily' As Dry Weather Ticks Toward New Record

By NORVIN HANSEN

The Wayne area is in the midst of the driest growing season in the past 10 years, according to statistics supplied by the community's official weather observer, Pat Gross.

There has been just 7.93 inches of moisture recorded in Wayne since the start of April, those statistics show, and the April-June period this year was the second driest in the past decade. A total of 7.76 inches of moisture fell during those three months, the driest spring since 1966 when 6.80 inches fell those same three months.

And the dry, hot, windy weather is daily taking its toll on area crops.

"It's hurting more every day," commented Ray Butts, director of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"Another week of this hot weather and the farmers are just not going to have much crop left," Butts said Friday.

Butts noted that the earlier planted crops are doing much better than those planted later in the spring, "possibly because they got rooted down better."

Don Spitzler, county agricultural agent, made similar comments Friday.

"Every day of this kind of weather is hurting us bad on both corn and beans. Our early oats, wheat and barley did real good, and the first crop of hay was excellent. But the late oats is going to be hurting, there's no question about it."

Spitzler said the corn fields have been holding up exceptionally well but are being damaged daily as the dry weather persists.

"The corn and beans are holding out surprisingly good but See News Record, page 9"

Old Settlers Place to Be This Week

The 74th annual Old Settlers Reunion at Winside is expected to continue its tradition of breaking attendance records when the two-day festivities start Wednesday.

A new addition that is expected to be a crowd pleaser is the tractor pulling contest. The Thursday afternoon event, slated for 3 p.m., features seven regular divisions — 5,000, 7,000, 9,000, 12,000 and 14,000 pounds — and two divisions in the hot rod class — 5,000 and 7,000. Prizes will be awarded the three top finishers in each division.

"This will be the first time in quite a few years since we've had a tractor pull contest," said Dale Miller, in charge of advertising for the annual reunion.

Activities officially start Wednesday evening with youth night. Bicycle races start at 7 p.m., followed by penny scramble for youngsters five years and under at 7:30. A three-legged race for fathers, sons and mothers daughters gets underway at 7:45 p.m. with a tug of war for youngsters 12 and under slated for 8 o'clock.

A donkey ball game, scheduled for 8:30 that evening, has been cancelled, but reunion officials think the Steelman Brothers Carnival will make up for it.

Girls softball fans can see See Old Settlers, page 10.

DALE MILLER, right, and Dave Warnemunde go over some of the events scheduled during Winside's annual Old Settlers Reunion, slated to start Wednesday. Both Miller and Warnemunde work on the advertising committee.

Study: City Needs A Remodeling Effort in Shopping Area

(Editor's Note: Because of the potential impact of the study on downtown beautification in Wayne, we felt the report by the Omaha architectural firm deserves as much publicity as possible. Nearly the complete report is being published with that end in mind.)

Wayne has so few problems, compared to most towns this size, and so much potential that it is difficult to sympathize too much with what seems to be an awful lot of complaining.

The people we have talked to say things like, "When John Deere pulls out, our congestion will be relieved, and when Safeway leaves, on street parking will be better, and when the railroad takes out its tracks we can make a parking lot, and when Corvett Chevrolet relocates, we can buy their lot for parking, and if Bill's Market Basket moves, we will have more space, etc." What this leads up to is that there is no parking problem when there are no customers. The congestion they have is indicative of a fairly healthy situation.

The problem with the Wayne downtown area is that the businesses, although fairly prosperous, have been holding off on repairs or paint up, clean up programs of their own. Many of them are willing to see what their neighbors are doing, but all of them seem vaguely disturbed and feel a need to coordinate their efforts to counter what may be a fairly large exodus to the shopping center area east of the downtown area that has interested many of the downtown residents. At this point, the downtown area has been fairly prosperous and has been the place to shop. In the future, this may not be the case, unless a plan of action is agreed upon, and the city takes an active part in its implementation.

'City's problems are few compared to other towns'

After reviewing the Wayne comprehensive plan, we interviewed some 55 store owners and proprietors along either side of the three block study area. From this "input" we learned much about individual operations, but more importantly, we could gauge the businessman's opinion on the broad subject of betterment. We attempted in our interviews to get precise answers to several questions relating to each of the stores.

Because the consumer category businesses are comparatively low (14.6 per cent), we suspect the development of evening use could be increased. Downtown in the evening could become an attractive place if the street lighting was more humane. When lighting levels in the street are high, no one really notices good show window decorations. The conclusion that high lighting levels must be maintained to discourage criminal activity and increase traffic safety has been overused. We recommended the high output lighting you presently have to be replaced with incandescent low level lighting that will create a "pedestrian atmosphere." Night-time entertainment and even the seemingly forgotten pass time of the "evening walk" and "window shopping" could be encouraged by pedestrian emphasis and the development of a more humane atmosphere.

Traffic Flow

85.5 per cent of the businesses have all of their customers enter by the front or street side only. The remaining 14.5 per cent have entrances at the back (alley) and the front (street) but of these most have only 10 per cent to 15 per cent of their trade on the back.

21.8 per cent of the businesses receive all their stock from the back (alley). 36.4 per cent of the businesses receive their stock from both the front and the back.

41.8 per cent of the businesses receive all their stock from the front (street).

These percentages dramatize the importance of the street front. It also dramatizes the inadequacy of the alley facilities for what are normally considered rear services. Most customer parking from the rear and improvement of alley for deliveries should be stressed.

Attitude Toward Betterment

Although these specific responses were not mentioned in our interviews, we have attempted to paraphrase attitudes:

44 per cent indicated, "I like the way everything is now."

18 per cent indicated, "My store is fine, but my neighbor's needs improvement."

38 per cent indicated, "We all need to improve to maintain our attractiveness."

The majority felt that improvement is needed. The remainder were suspicious of the ramifications of the alternative, namely, "This is going to cost money, maybe mine."

General Property Condition

Generally speaking, one per cent to two per cent of the property value should be spent on its maintenance each year to keep it in good condition. This will vary from construction system to construction system and from use to use, but the aim is to not let the property deteriorate. If this guideline were to be followed, it means that from Jan. 1, 1970 to July 1, 1974, each owner should have spent almost seven per cent of the value of his property on its maintenance.

The last substantial repair or renovation tion on 76 per cent of the businesses was before Jan. 1, 1970. Some money was probably spent for minor repair during the last four and one half years, but no seven per cent of the property value. The 1970 date was chosen because during the 1968 to the 1970 period there seemed to have been a great deal of improvement and interest in civic betterment was at a high. During the 70's a slump seemed to set in that we hope will end in 1974.

Attitude Toward Investment for Betterment

Although these specific responsibilities were not mentioned in our interview, we have attempted to paraphrase attitudes. Many people expressed more than one response so the percentages do not total: 42 per cent indicated, "I don't want to spend anything."

20 per cent indicated, "I would invest enough to clean up, paint up."

4 per cent indicated, "I would consider a major investment for renovation."

31 per cent indicated, "The city should foot the bill for improvement."

18 per cent indicated, "I don't own the See Remodeling, page 10"

A look at what the city could look like with a little effort, cooperation

THESE TWO architect's drawings probably show more vividly than some others what the downtown business district in Wayne could look like if the proposed plan for development unveiled last week were followed. The drawings show several things suggested by the Omaha firm which drew up the preliminary plan — pleasant walkways to replace harsh alleys, such as next to Dale's Jewelry, and simple yet effective remodeling of business fronts, such as at the Vet's Club. They also show other suggestions: more pleasing lights to replace the tall gooseneck ones presently used, trees spaced throughout the shopping area, planters to make store fronts softer and more human, simple signs to replace the hodgepodge which now exists. Other suggestions include putting benches and drinking fountains in the area, painting and cleaning up store fronts, accentuating upstairs windows with bright awnings, emphasizing the texture and arc of some of the brick fronts and the like. Also suggested: removal of all parking on Main Street between First and Fourth. Overall goal of the suggestions is to make the area a more pleasant one which will attract local and area residents because it is a nice place to stroll through while shopping. The committee which initiated the study of the business district and the resulting plan will hold another meeting on the suggestions within the next few days.

OBSERVATIONS

Steps or stumbling blocks?

As expected, the Omaha architectural firm's suggestions on how the downtown shopping area in Wayne could be improved are being criticized.

Reason for much of the criticism is the suggestion that parking be done away with on Main Street from First to Fourth. That, say some, is impossible, won't work and is enough reason to reject the total plan developed by the firm.

Also being criticized is the suggestion that the alleys be turned into walkways leading to parking off main street. That is impossible to do because the alleys are used by several businesses for daily or weekly deliveries, according to the critics.

Prompting a few raised eyebrows are some of the other suggestions made in the study, such as planting trees and shrubbery along Main Street and putting park benches in the downtown area for shoppers to take advantage of while they are going from store to store.

But it seems wrong to start picking at the study, weeding out individual suggestions as being impossible and focusing attention on those parts of the whole.

What we should be doing is deciding whether or not there should be something done to improve the appearance of the downtown area. Once we address ourselves to that question and come up with an answer, then we can get down to individual ways to achieve that end.

If we don't ask — and answer — that basic question, we will never get beyond taking this study and finding suggestions or comments which we don't think will work or which we don't agree with. And that holds true for any future studies made by this or any other firm. We will end up reading individual lines in the report rather than standing back and looking at the report as a whole.

It's not going to be easy for the business owners and operators to reach some consensus as to whether the shopping area needs to be improved. But that has to happen before we can get down to specific ways on how that can be achieved.

And if that happens, if we decide that the community's business face does need improving, we can work together on the specifics. Those specifics then become steps toward a more important end instead of stumbling blocks along the way.

—Norvin Hansen

A step toward being fair

Those who have a mind to will now be able to go downtown in Wayne and buy a beer or two on Sunday, the result of the city council's approval last week of Sunday beer sales in bars and taverns.

We don't anticipate any sudden lowering of moral standards in the community once that law goes into effect, but it is likely to make the streets a bit less deserted after the noon exodus to the local cafe for Sunday diners.

The move seems a step in the right direction toward making bottle clubs and taverns equal in their ability to compete for the business which pays their light bills, property taxes and employees' paychecks. Few would disagree that there is something wrong with a setup which permits two or three businesses the right to sell liquor by the drink or beer on Sunday while prohibiting others from doing the same if they wish. As pointed out by one of the individuals who has been urging adoption of an ordinance to permit Sunday beer sales, that amounts to arbitrary treatment of liquor and beer businesses by the local governing body. In his simpler and plainer terms, that's discrimination.

We are not certain whether bars and the like should be allowed to remain open on Sunday. There are good arguments on both sides of the coin.

But we are fairly certain that local government should not be unfairly restricting a businessman from keeping the doors of his business open. If those doors can remain open six days a week, it doesn't seem quite right to tell him to lock them on the seventh. Especially not when a grocery or hardware store across the street can open its doors in an attempt to show a profit. —Norvin Hansen

Thoughts on ambulance service

We hope the city of Wayne and Wayne County are able to work out an agreement whereby they share the cost of providing ambulance service once the new hospital in Wayne opens.

There are legal hurdles to such an agreement at the present time, but those legal hurdles can be cleared if the two can agree that an ambulance service benefits both this community as well as the surrounding rural area and communities.

The county commissioners are reportedly unenthusiastic about working out an agreement when the one currently in effect expires at the first of the year. Their argument is apparently something to the effect that several surrounding communities have rescue units and therefore do not need to have an ambulance available to them.

It is true that rescue units are being operated by several surrounding communities, but we wonder if those units are taking the place of an ambulance equipped and staffed as it should be.

Legal questions aside, we wonder why an ambulance agreement which includes the city and the county will no longer be necessary come the first of the year when it apparently has been agreeable to both during the past several years.

A study of the trips made by the local ambulance will show that it does make trips outside Wayne and to surrounding communities when necessary. We doubt if this service will suddenly cease once the new hospital in Wayne is completed. Since an ambulance service is an expensive service to offer, one which probably seldom pays its own way, we think everybody benefiting from it should help provide it. In this case, that includes the community of Wayne as well as Wayne County.

'People have right to sign petitions'

Wakefield

Dear Editor:

I have read letters in your paper in regard to fluoridation, and I am glad you print both sides of the question.

May I express an opinion? Did not we fight the wars this country was involved in to preserve our freedoms? And among those freedoms was not the right to settle important issues by referendum one of the most important?

Among us are those who by using their influence would deny us that right. I am speaking of those who advise their fellow citizens not to sign a petition to put an important and controversial issue on the ballot, the fluoridation of the city water supply.

What could be more selfish, un-American and dictatorial than to deny other qualified voters the right to decide the answer to the question for themselves? — C. V. Agler.

MERLIN REINHARDT south of town got some quick action on getting the county roads in a little better shape.

He had a set-to with the three Wayne County commissioners, Floyd Burj to be more specific, on Tuesday, and on Wednesday there was a patrol working the roads where Reinhardt says there hasn't been one in weeks.

I think Merlin was putting me on a little when he called up and said I should get a picture of the patrol because it's been so long since there has been one around that part of the county that "it's news."

Reinhardt says driving a new car down one of the roads in Brenna Precinct at 50 mph would ruin it in little time at all. Mean to get out there and see if the roads are really that bad.

DEADLINE VICTIMS: Farms around Laurel, Randolph, Pierce, Hartington, Fordyce and Crofton were included in the Nebraska Shorthorn-Pollled Shorthorn Association's annual four Tuesday and Wednesday. Those farms include "some of Nebraska's best commercial herds," says association president Darold Schlegel of Culbertson. That fire behind the Dan Robinson home at 814 Pearl

Tuesday afternoon destroyed a shed worth about $100 and wiring worth about $150, says volunteer fire chief Cliff Pinkelman. Quite a loss for a couple kids playing with matches. Dr. Wayne Wessel, local dentist, spoke about fluoridation at the Senior Citizens Center on Wednesday afternoon, and Mrs. Gerald Otte will speak this coming Wednesday. They hold opposite views about the value of fluoridation.

MORE MEANDERING down Main: Bill Kaup at Kaup's TV Service brightened up the downtown several degrees with that white coat of primer on the north side of his building. His wife, Germaine, says they haven't decided what color to paint The wall. Jack March's Gay Theatre has a couple nice shows for youngsters coming on the heels of "Huckleberry Finn." Now showing is "Digby, The Biggest Dog in the World," and scheduled for July 18-25 are two Walt Disney productions, "Snowball Express" and "The World's Greatest Athlete." Colored drawings showing how the city might look are on display at First National Bank, State National Bank and Peoples Natural Gas. They're pretty interesting to look at. Shelly Hoops and Jo Carlson no more than got to the end of the trek up and down Main in their squeaky little wagon on that hot Wednesday afternoon when the wheel fell off. The two are promoting their backyard carnival Thursday. Ed Sommerfeld is listed as head of "public relations" and brother Jim as "peon" in connection with their new bar, The Clock Bar, in Seward. Both originally from Wayne, they had a grand opening Saturday. And The Wayne Herald got some nice compliments in the little news magazine printed by the Norfolk-Madison County Civil Defense people. "Press coverage both before and after the (practice tornado disaster) exercise was outstanding! There were front page stories in both cases, plus fine editorials." They even re-printed the editorial suggesting a uniform tornado signal should be adopted across the state.

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

PLANNING is underway for the Wisner Chamber of Commerce's annual summer carnival, slated for July 19-20.

Present will be a children's carnival from Beatrice, and local merchants and organizations will set up booths for the downtown event. Businesses will hold a sidewalk sale the final day of the carnival.

Schnell graduated from Dakota State College in 1969 and earned his master's degree from South Dakota State University at Brookings after a two-year hitch in the Army and two years teaching in South Dakota. Miss Klanderud graduated from Wayne State in 1971 and has been librarian at St. Edward the past two years.

Wayne State Joins 'Wise Owl' Club

The newest chapter of the internationally known Wise Owl Club of American now is organized at Wayne State College. Acceptance of a charter from the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness sponsor of the Wise Owl eye safety incentive program, was announced Thursday by Anton Netherda, associate professor of safety education.

Membership in the Wise Owl Club is restricted to persons who have saved their sight by use of eye-protective devices at work or in school labs and shops. As of late June, the club had 55,670 members from some 7,520 firms and schools. The national society noted that this membership represents incalculable savings in eyesight and more than $272 million in workmen's compensation.

Netherda, who has taught industrial arts at Wayne State since 1948, said there never has been an eye injury in shop classes during that time — because of strict safety rules.

The battle against blindness. Continuing growth in membership gives proof that this battle can be won.

Town Team's Loss Opens Gate for First-Place Tie

The gate is open for a first-place tie in the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League. Wayne, undefeated in 13 starts, suffered its first loss of the year Thursday night to open the way for second-place Homer (2-2), and possibly third-place Newcastle (11-3), to share the NENBL title. Homer has the best shot at tying Wayne when it hosts the locals in the last game of the season, July 28.

Newcastle unlocked the door with a 4-2 clipping while capitalizing on four Wayne miscues in the locals' home contest. The visitors took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when winning pitcher John Ege scored on a steal. Ege nudged and went to third on an error by Wayne shortstop Terry Luff when Newcastle's first baseman John Wortman stole second and that's when Egeaced home. Both throws were late.

Newcastle's score started the back-and-forth scoring battle, with Wayne retaliating the next frame. Left fielder Mike Creighton knifed the game, taking

2 Eagles Pave Way to Record

Ron Bunkers of Stanton fired a pair of eagles on his way to a record 32 for the back nine holes during Wednesday's Wayne Country Club men's golf league. Bunkers' eagles came on the par five 517-yard 13th and 473-yard 16th holes.

first on a single and scoring on Luff's two-bagger. The visitor's answered back in the top of the sixth when Wortman doubled to score second baseman Gary White. Wayne first baseman Whitey Mumm fled the game in the bottom half when he scored on Dan Hedrick's fly to left. Wayne coughed up two possible outs on errors in the seventh to set up Newcastle's winning runs. Starter Randy Benish overthrew Mumm for the first error, then Mumm bobbled a catch when Newcastle's second man at the plate slapped a hit. Newcastle's White singled in one run for a 3-2 lead before Ege scored the final run on a fielder's choice.

Benish was the losing pitcher, going six and a third frames before manager Hank Overlin brought in Bob Weisenberg from center field. Benish struck out 10 while Ege, who went all the way, fanned 14. Homer blew Decatur off the field, 27-3, Thursday night to maintain its hold on second. "Elsewhere around the league Thursday, Allen n Marlinsburg dropped a close 4-1 game to South Sioux City. Second baseman Kevin Hill blasted a home run in the sixth inning for Allen's only score. Both clubs went scoreless four innings before South Sioux took a 2-0 lead. Then winning pitcher Kim Stahle hit a two-run homer.

Allen had its best chance of scoring in the fourth with two men on. Catcher Lee Schipool and pitcher Jim Miller were on third and second, but Stahle fanned three straight Allen batters to retire the side. Allen's record now is 4-10 in league play. Other scores: Wakefield 14, Ponca 4 and Dakota City 11, Pender 5.

Hefli Takes Trophy Dash

Wayne's Roger Hefli continued his winning form in late model racing last week, winning the trophy dash at South Sioux City on Sunday. Prior to his trophy win, Hefli won the South Sioux mid-season championship July 4 by winning the B feature. Dennis Crippen of Wakefield and Gerald Bruggeman of Hoskins also won their mid-season titles during July 4th competition at Norfolk. Bruggeman, a steady veteran of the modified circuit, won the A while Crippen powered his way to first in the late model division. In other modified racing last week, Harold Brudigan, another top modified driver from Hoskins, took the first heat at Norfolk. Brother Gene continued the two-man dominance in the second heat by capturing the No. 1 spot, and Gerald's son Larry, came on strong to win the B feature.

Other results last week:
NORFOLK
Second Heat—3 G. Bruggeman, C Feature—3 Harold Brudigan, Hoskins. A Feature—2 G. Bruggeman, 5 G. Brudigan. First Heat (late model)—2 Crippen. Feature—2 Crippen.

Also suffering heavily are alfalfa fields, which are beginning to burn up after the first cutting. The older fields of alfalfa, especially those three or four years old, are hurting the most because "they've just used up all the reserve moisture in the ground," Spitze noted.

Robert Walker of Kearney and William Colwell of Chadron were appointed by board president Ward Reesman of Falls City to investigate the proposal.
In other matters, the board rejected full implementation of the state personnel plan, which would have increased the sick leave and vacation time for non-professional staff members at the four colleges.
The plan has been partially implemented and many of the guidelines have been used by the four colleges during the past year, a board spokesman said.

New Loop Undecided

The question of whether Wayne State College will form a new conference with four other colleges remains unanswered. Athletic director LeRoy Simpson said Northern State at Aberdeen did not show up for Thursday's meeting at Winner, S.D. As a result, Wayne may not join Chadron State, Black Hills State and South Dakota Tech at Rapid City in forming a new conference, he said.
