

Drouth Painting Bleak Picture Over NE Nebraska

BY NORVIN HANSEN
The dryland corn crop across Northeast Nebraska is daily approaching complete loss, officials here are warning. Irrigators are finding it harder and harder to keep a step ahead of the scorching drouth.
That is what government officials and farmers from across this part of the state told state and federal officials during a meeting at Wayne Wednesday afternoon.
Close to 400 people turned out for the meeting, the largest crowd to attend any of the six meetings called around the state by Governor J. J. Exon.
Here's a rundown about what area officials and farmers said about conditions in their counties as of the middle of last week:
Cedar County — Farmers had "a good crop. Beans look pretty good if we get a rain by this weekend."

Dixon County — There has been "an increase" in grasshoppers, "inch bugs."
Dakota County — "Possibly upper one-third of the county could still salvage some grain with a rain. Lower two-thirds is just shot. Hay is getting short, and we anticipate liquidation of cow herd."
Thurston County — "Have had excellent yields on small-grain. Real good first alfalfa crop. If rain comes right away, may get 25 per cent grain crop."
Wayne County — "As of Tuesday, could have had 25 per cent yield on corn, but today (Wednesday) could cut that back to 15 per cent. Quite a few more grass hoppers showing up in last week to 10 days."

Antelope County — Dryland corn will yield "20 to zero" per cent; range land is "very poor" and there is "some cutting down on herds."
Holl County — Irrigators are "getting to the point where they are pumping air in shallow wells. Dryland corn is barely holding on. Irrigators are starting to worry that their expense is becoming job great to continue irrigation."
Boyd County — There has been "no livestock liquidation, but if it keeps up, we'll see some. Dams are starting to dry up and there is getting to be no livestock water."
Madison County — "Crops are deteriorating rapidly. Dryland corn would yield 10 per cent if there were rain today."

Stanton County — "It's almost impossible to buy corn. It's costing over $3 a bushel and you can't even find it."
Boone County — Close to "75 per cent of dryland corn is no good. Irrigated corn yield will be down 20 per cent."
Platte County — Crops are "staying green; but you wonder if it's going to make any difference if they're green or brown if they don't produce any grain. No pasture left. Some farmers are greenchopping corn to feed livestock."
George Rehm, agronomist at the Northeast Station near Concord, told the crowd that an aerial tour he took over Northeast Nebraska was the "most disappointing tour I've ever had."
That tour and soil probings done later led him to conclude that there is "not much hope for any kind of grain harvest for any of Northeast Nebraska's dryland corn," he said.

Soil probings showed no moisture except at depths below 36 inches, he noted, but that moisture is not doing the corn any good because the roots "aren't down there."
Rehm said "90 to 95 per cent of the dryland pasture" is no longer usable.
He held out some hope for farmers who have soybeans, however, noting there could be a crop if it rains one or two inches by the first of August. But the "days are running out" for soybeans, he added.

Council to Hear Ideas On Remodeling City

A resolution drawn up following Wednesday's meeting on improving the downtown business district in Wayne will be presented to the city council Tuesday night.
The resolution was drawn up by local businessmen Darrell Fuchter, Clarence Kuhn and Wayne Marsh following Wednesday's luncheon at which the recently unveiled plan for remodeling the business district was discussed.
The approximate 20 persons who turned out for that meeting reached some agreement concerning the proposal in the plan calling for removal of all parking on Main Street between First and Fourth Streets. Marsh said they would not like to see all parking removed, and a few said they would like to go back to diagonal parking if it were permitted by the state.
"I don't think we'll get people to walk four blocks (to stop)," said Marsh, one of those who said he favored diagonal parking on Main.

Several others noted that the customers who have said they disliked coming away with parking might come to favor it after the "shock" wore off.
Mayor Freeman Decker said that removing parking might be a goal to have in mind while doing other improvements. He noted that it might be worth while to investigate the possibility of building large urns for plants and bushes rather than planting trees to beautify the area.
Mern Mordhorst suggested the possibility of hanging urns in the main business area, removing them in the winter when the shrubbery would have little greenery.
Several persons noted that a great deal could be done to improve the business area without businessmen spending large sums of money.
The meeting followed by about two weeks the unveiling of a plan containing suggestions about how the business district could be improved. That plan developed by an Omaha architectural firm included suggestions for unifying and removing signs, planting trees and shrubbery, turning alleys into walk ways, and the like.
Also Tuesday night the council will discuss an employee class. See Council, page 2.

Concord Site of Tractor Contest

Four 4-H youths from a five-county area in Northeast Nebraska will be competing in a tractor driving contest at Concord Aug. 9.
The contest, which starts at 9 a.m., involves driving and written examinations before winners are named for Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Dakota and Thurston Counties, said Dixon County agent Roy Slohler.
The winner will advance to the state 4-H contest at the University of Nebraska East campus in Lincoln Aug. 31.

'Livestock Numbers Up For Fair'

There will be a "good sized increase" in the total numbers of livestock which will be exhibited in both 4-H and open divisions at the Wayne County Fair later this week, reports county agent Don Spitzke.
Spitzke said Friday that the total will be up while a few individual categories may be smaller than a year ago, leaving fair officials wondering how they are going to house all the animals.
"We were pretty full last year, and this year both dairy and beef numbers are up," he noted.
The number of 4-H horses which will be shown will be "up slightly" while market beef will be lower than the 1973 fair, noted Spitzke. There will be a "considerable increase" in the number of breeding heifers which 4-H'ers will exhibit, he said, while the 4-H dairy animals will be about the same as a year ago. The number in the dairy division is expected to be greater than last year.
There also will be a large increase in open beef if all exhibitors show up who have indicated they would, he noted.
Sheep numbers should be up in both the 4-H and open division, while the numbers in the swine division will be down from a year ago. Spitzke said the hog division is the only one where there is a real drop from last year.
Spitzke noted that the new steel show ring will be completed by the time the fair opens on Thursday. It will be used for exhibiting dairy and beef animal and possibly for showing some horses, he said.

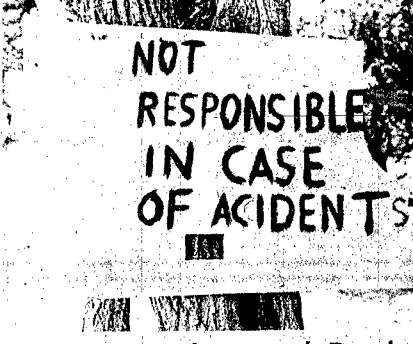

Drouth of '68 Proving Useful, Says Official

The drouth conditions in 1968 in Northeast Nebraska have contributed valuable information to help understand the effects of the current drouth enveloping the state, says the director of the Northeast Station at Concord.
Cal Ward has compiled information on the effects of maturity on nitrate content of drouth-stressed corn based on 1968 tests. Ward explained that livestock producers are concerned over possible toxicity to livestock of the drouth-stressed corn plants because of abnormally high nitrate content.
Ward detailed: "It is well known that nitrate content in the corn plant is related to the stage of maturity. There were questions, however, on the changes that would occur over a period of time under these drouth conditions. To obtain additional information, three fields on the Northeast Station were studied (in 1968) to observe the changes in nitrate content throughout the period when the corn might be harvested as green-chop or ensilage."
The tests revealed that the amount of decrease in per cent nitrate on these three fields. See Drouth, page 2.

tested was related to the development of the grain, Ward said. Those which produced some grain showed a greater decrease than the field which produced little grain. Further evidence of the relation of grain production to nitrate content showed samples of stalks with no ear development were higher in nitrate content than random samples from the same field.

Further details about the Northeast Station's field observations are available from county agents, said Ward.

'Swine Raisers Should Consider Other Feeds'

With estimated yields for corn and milo dropping weekly, swine producers might well consider alternate source of feedgrains, particularly barley, advises University of Nebraska Lincoln animal science professor E. R. Peo Jr.

While the drouth has hurt corn and milo — the "normal" feedgrains for swine — the barley crop in South Dakota is reportedly good this year, Peo says. Nebraska also produces about 856,000 bushels of barley a year.

"We've received calls from swine producers who can buy barley relatively cheaply, but aren't sure about its feed value," he notes.

According to the UN-L swine nutritionists, "Barley is considered to have about 90-95 per cent of the feed value of corn for growing-finishing swine. We recommend substituting barley pound for pound for corn in the ration."

However, Peo cautions producers who formulate rations on a per cent protein basis. When substituting barley for corn on a protein basis, 12 and 14 per cent protein rations may need some supplemental lysine at the rate of about two pounds per ton.

Considering the feed value of barley and differences in weight per bushel, a swine producer could afford to pay up to $2.42 a bushel for barley if corn is priced at $3.01 or milo at $2.86 a bushel. When corn is worth $2.82 a bushel or milo $2.68, barley is a bargain at up to $2.27. With corn at $2.63 or milo at $2.50, buy barley for $2.12 or less.

Oats, too, are good feed for swine and can be used for up to 25 per cent of the grain in the ration, Peo adds.

JC Tennis Meet Is Expanded

The third annual Wayne County Jaycees tennis tournament will feature four new divisions when the three-day meet opens Aug. 15 at Wayne State tennis court.

New to the meet are men's doubles over age 30, women's singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles.

Tournament manager Tom Roberts pointed out that there has to be at least four entries in all divisions. Roberts explained that the cost of trophy prohibits opening events to less than four entries.

The meet will run Aug. 15-17, with a rain date set for Aug. 18th.

All together there will be six categories in men's single, with trophies awarded to the top two singles - 14 and under, 15-18, 19-24, 25 and over, doubles - 30 and under, 30 and over.

Another first this year will be a consolation bracket for the 19-24 age bracket since most players will be in this bracket, Roberts said. The consolation rounds gives players eliminated in the first round a chance to win a consolation trophy.

Boundaries for this year's tournament have been expanded to players living in Northeast Nebraska from Highway 201 east to the Nebraska Iowa border and south from the Nebraska South Dakota border to Highway 30 are eligible to enter.

"The area is about three times as large as last year," Roberts said.

Those intending to play should have their entry fees mailed to Tom Roberts, 512 Valley Dr., Wayne 68707 by Aug 9 Fees: singles, $1 per person per event for Wayne County residents, $2.50 outside the county, doubles $2 per team for county residents, $4 outside the county. Checks should be made payable to the Wayne County Jaycees.

Each singles participant is required to bring two Optic Yellow Wilson Championship tennis balls, Roberts pointed. "We'll use this type only in order that every player will have the same type," he added.

Players will be able to enter only two events since the JCs are expecting a large turnout, according to Roberts.

Wakefield Advances In Legion Play

Wakefield's Legion ripped apart Fremont, 8-1, in the first round of the Class A district tournament at Columbus Friday with a six run seventh inning.

Chuck Lindstrom's base hit up the middle set up Wakefield's late game scoring. Doug Fischer, who twice bunted good, made his third bunt good "when he laid down a beauty" to put runners at first and second, said coach Paul Eaton.

But the bunts didn't stop there. Mike Soderberg's sacrifice bunt advanced the runners, setting up Dale Bell's two run line drive over second for a 4-0 lead. "They (Fremont) started to bring their infield in so that allowed both runners to score on Bell's shot," Eaton added.

Doug Soderberg knocked in the fifth run, doubling in Bell, before Scott Miller drove in Soderberg for a 5-0 lead.

Winning pitcher Neil Blohm singled to score Miller. Blohm stole second then scored on Keith Siebrandt's base hit.

The team looked sharp defensively. Eaton pointed out Blohm did a good job on the mound, throwing mostly curves "since his last ball really wasn't working," the coach added. Blohm struck out four for the game.

Coleridge Halts Laurel, 7-0

Coleridge dashed Laurel's hopes of playing Wayne's Legion in the district finals when the hosts blanked the area club, 7-0, in the second night of the district tournament Friday at Coleridge.

Coleridge scored four times in the fourth before punting in the game away with two runs in the sixth.

Scott Thompson was the losing pitcher, giving up eight hits. Center fielder Gregg Anderson led Laurel batters with a double. Laurel finishes the season with a 1-11 record.

Laurel won the right to meet Coleridge after nipping Wynot, 1-0, in the seventh inning Wednesday night.

VAQ&A

Q. I was honorable discharged last week after two years in the military service. If I go to school, will the Veterans Administration pay for my books and tuition?

A. Books and tuition are provided under VA's vocational rehabilitation program for veterans with a 30 per cent service-connected disability; or less, if the disability is a pronounced employment handicap. Veterans without a disability who enroll in school under the GI Bill receive monthly education assistance allowances to offset school expenses.

Q. I am a disabled veteran. My wheelchair, provided by the Veterans Administration, does not permit me to participate in some sports events. Can I have my chair modified at VA expense?

A. A "sports-model" wheelchair is available from the VA when it is medically prescribed and the veteran's sports activity warrants the wheelchair for his physical rehabilitation.

Q. Now that the Veterans Administration is responsible for the National Cemetery System, who can be buried in national cemeteries?

A. Burial is available to deceased veterans of wartime or peacetime service (other than for training) who were discharged under conditions other than dishonorable at all national cemeteries with grave space except Arlington. Reservists who die on active duty for training are also eligible. Burial is available, too, to the eligible veteran's wife, husband, widow, widower, minor children and, under certain conditions, to unmarried adult children.

Next time you see someone polluting, point it out.

It's litter in the streets. It's air that smells. It's a river where fish can't breathe. You know what pollution is. But not everyone does. So the next time you see pollution, don't close your eyes to it. Write a letter. Make a call. Point it out to someone who can do something about it.

Road Work Coming

THE SIX MILE stretch of gravelled road between Highway 9 and the Northeast Station, finally is closed to the public for work on grading, widening and graveling. Actual construction will take place in a few days. For some farmers, like LeRoy Koch, road widening means tearing down old fences. Koch says he doesn't mind because taking out the old fence will be worth getting a new road. Koch and his son, Mark were busy Thursday morning taking down fences.

Circus Is Coming To Wayne

Clowns, elephants, trained animals and pretty performers will be featured in the King Brothers Circus when it appears in Wayne on Wednesday, Aug. 14.

Allen Teachers May Appeal Salary Case

The Allen Education Association may take its case to the Nebraska State Education Association review committee to settle a dispute on the pay scale for the 1974-75 school year if the school board doesn't stick with the fact finding committee's decision," said Noelyn Isom, chairman of the teachers' negotiations committee.

Isom said a fact finding committee agreed that the eighth step in the pay scale would be four per cent of the base pay added onto the seventh step, or $8,768. However, the board reads the fact finding committee's report to mean four per cent of last year's salary, or $8,656, he said.

The $112 difference would effect three full-time teachers as well as a part-time instructor, according to Isom.

If the review committee rules in favor of the association, the matter could go to the state court of industrial relations for settlement, Isom said.

performances under the big top at 4 and 8 p.m.

Bringing the circus to Wayne to raise funds for local projects is the American Legion.

Attending the performances will be area youths whose tickets were purchased by local businessmen and professional people so that children will have an opportunity to attend.

The fleet of more than 30 motorized units will arrive in town before dawn to erect tents at the Wayne County Fair grounds. Elephants will be used to unload and help erect center poles and raise the canvas big top into position.

There will be English, European and American performers, clowns, acrobats, aerialists, jugglers, wire-walkers and trained dogs and horses. Highlighting the two performances will be performing elephants.

Marvel Plans Stop at Fair

State senator Richard Marvel, Republican candidate for governor, will be attending the Wayne County Fair on Friday, one of the 50 fairs he will be attending during the month of August.

"Our mission during this tour, as it has been throughout our campaign, is two-fold," Marvel said. "First of all, we are trying to make ourselves as available as possible to the people of Nebraska. We do this so that the voters of the state can meet us and know who we are," stated Marvel.

"More importantly, however,

Party Slated for Japanese Youths

The Teen Supremes of Wayne County will give a welcome party for the Japanese youths who will be living in the county for the next three weeks.

The 10 youths and their sponsors, who will be staying with 4-H families throughout Wayne County under the Nebraska-Japan Exchange Program, arrived in Wayne over the weekend.

The potluck picnic, open to sponsoring families, will be held at Ta-Ha Zouka Park in Norfolk on Tuesday evening starting at 7:30. Families are requested to bring their own table service, a picnic supper and softball equipment.

More than five million non-supervisory government employees came under the coverage of the Fair Labor Standards Act May 1, 1974, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.

Most Nitrates In Lower Part Of Corn Stalk

The drought has brought on questions on the effect of the height of cutting on the nitrate content of drought-stressed corn, so the University of Nebraska Northeast District extension director has released information to help answer these questions.

Cal Ward explained, "Literature concerning nitrate content in greenchop or ensilage agrees that a high proportion of the total nitrate in the plant is located in the lower third of the plant. Some tests and rough calculations were made, to provide local information on the effect on nitrate content and on yield of forage by cutting drought-damaged corn at different heights."

After collecting three 10 stalk samples from drought-damaged fields in 1968, the pertinent data revealed specific results, according to Ward.

"These observations indicated that cutting this field of 48-50 inch tall corn 12 inches high reduced yield by one fourth and reduced the nitrate content by more than one half, compared to cutting four inches above the ground," Ward said.

Getting Together

THERE was plenty of good food ready for the eating at the Wayne Newcomers picnic Monday night at Bressler Park. Willing to jump right in and start eating was two-year-old Darci Lynn Wilde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilde of 702 Logan, but she had to wait for dad to cut the meat. Her sister, Leslie Marie (left photo), became a little upset when it came time to take her picture.

WINNERS of gifts given away for women wearing the oldest and most unique aprons during the Farm Ladies Appreciation Luncheon Friday afternoon were, from left, Mrs. Robert Benthack, Wayne; Mrs. Marlow Gustafson, Wakefield; Mrs. Ron Doring, Wayne; and Mrs. Fred Gildersleeve, Wayne. Not present for the picture was Mrs. George Stevens of rural Randolph, who traveled the greatest distance. The luncheon was attended by just over 400 women, making it more successful than organizers had first anticipated.

'More homework needed?'

Hoskins
Dear Editor:
I read with interest and concern an article by Norvin Hansen in the July 15th issue of The Wayne Herald regarding ambulance service. First, I wonder how many people in the west half of the county are aware of the fact that the county commissioners are at the present time subsidizing the ambulance service at Wayne? Secondly, why?
The article states that the county commissioners are reluctant to renew their present agreement with the Wayne ambulance service, which expires December 1974, because other towns in the county have rescue services without any county subsidy. Mr. Hansen admits to being aware of these services but wonders about their equipment and staffing. Mr. Hansen, you should have done some homework before you wrote that article.

I am speaking for Hoskins. We have a rescue unit, or ambulance if you prefer, one and one-half years old with equipment meeting state specifications and 14 volunteer squad members holding EMT certificates which require 80 hours of training. Over half of the squad have had many more hours in Red Cross training, highway rescue, etc. We service 86 rural sections in which are located Nucor Steel Plant, Woodland Park, Country Village Trailer Court and, of course, Hoskins. This is done with a unit purchased by the Hoskins community without any outside help.
I do not know about the equipment of Carroll and Winslow, but I do know they have qualified squads of EMT's. I just want to tell things as they are. I am sure every community needs an ambulance, but it would seem to me to be a community problem — not a county problem. — Herman Opfer.

'Altona has no problem'

Wichita, Kan.
Dear Editor:
Beautiful Wayne? How?
Wayne missed a good deal when Chicago Northwestern right-of-way was sold going west. This should have been bought and made into a bypass from Highway 15 to Highway 35 going west. So, buy the railroad right-of-way going east when the railroad goes out so you can make a bypass around the town to Highway 35.
Your signals at Seventh and Main are to be laughed at for out-of-state traffic. You sit and wonder what those yellow markers mean on the pavement.

As to beauty, Wayne's paint shops have a lot of old paint that old Noah should have used to paint his so-called Ark. Buy this and let the young folks paint sidewalks different designs and colors each spring.
Some Kansas towns block off a couple of streets in the main business district, but that did not help out. Another way would be to have no highway through Wayne like Altona. They don't have any problems now. — Max Ash.

We also would like to thank our instructor, Verne Mills. He's a great guy and we'll always be thankful that

A closer look. . .

By Norvin Hansen

THE CRACKS in my backyard are so big that my little dog has been lost for over a week now. I let him out one morning, he fell into one and haven't seen him since.

Oh, I heard him barking real faintly one day when I was smoking a cigarette on the front porch and watching the ants fighting off the birds for the water in our birdbath, but never was able to find him. Think he's still running around down there hunting for a way to get out.

Why even heard that the water turned around and went back upstream in the Logan Creek when it got close to Wayne because it was so dry around here.

Farmers up north of here said they got some hail the other afternoon, but it wasn't so bad because it turned to slush by the time it got to the ground.

Somebody said a few of the salesmen who visit farmers are going to ask their companies for more money because they've been ruining fires going over the cracks in the roads. A couple haven't been able to call on some customers because they can't find a road that's passable.

Heard that a farmer up around Dixon put a couple bulls out to pasture, but they got chased out by the coyotes.

One guy in Wayne accidentally left his hose running in the front yard one night. When he got up the next day the hose was dried out.

A farmer southeast of town burned the devil out of his rear end when he got up on his tractor one afternoon. He told the hospital people it didn't matter much, considering he had lost about everything else this year.

POTSHOTS: Dr. Ray Kelton, music prof at Wayne State, was euphonium soloist at Sunday's concert by the Sioux City Municipal Band. Music ranged from his "Willow Echoes" to Dixieland. That must have been one of the biggest harvesting stacking bees around in a long time the other day at Mrs. Marvin Isom's place on the edge of Carroll. If our list was complete, 64 men and 20 women pooled talents. Asgrow Seed Co. has published a manual on how to prevent seven serious corn diseases. The diseases range from stalk rot to bacterial wilt. It's free by writing to: Corn Disease Manual, Asgrow Seed Co., Dept. CN, Box 2010, Des Moines, Ia 50310. "The Splendid Wayfaring" is the theme for this year's Neihardt Day scheduled Aug. 4 at Bancroft. Activities will include a 3 p.m. ground breaking ceremony for the new Neihardt Center. Tom Alan, Omaha World-Herald roving reporter and good friend of Neihardt, will be MC. Area residents can receive kits with seeds from four historical trees — Eastern white pine, common apple, Douglas fir and Loblolly pine — under a program sponsored by the American Forest Institute and the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. Included with the kit is a 72 page illustrated booklet telling about the role of wood in the development of the nation. Price is $1.25 a kit, but minimum order is 24. For more information and an order blank, write: American Forest Institute, 1619 Massachusetts Ave. N. W., Washington, D. C. 20036.

MEANDERING DOWN MAIN: Mike Manning of Norfolk is about halfway through a summer internship at Sav-Mor Drug. Manning, 22, will be a senior in NU's school of pharmacy this fall. And Mrs. Clara Sullivan at Sav-Mor talked to a group of Wayne State students on Tuesday about the use of cosmetics. Ken Olds, Dorothy Ley and Henry Ley are listed as members of the Governor's Club in the state Democratic party. That means they contributed at least $500 to the party. Twenty-six youngsters learned how to make everything from pizza holidays to baked bananas during a cooking school Tuesday through Friday at Peoples Natural Gas Co. Joan Tinley of Omaha, consumer consultant for Peoples, conducted the morning and afternoon classes.

CLETE SHARER, Charles Denesia and their wives were hobnobbing with some pretty big folk in Lions International when they took in the organization's international convention in San Francisco early this month. Sharer was installed as district governor, Denesia as his cabinet secretary-treasurer. More than 62,000 Lions from some 147 countries attended. Among them was former professional wrestler and world light heavyweight champion (1947-49) Johnny Balbo of Oak Brook, Ill. He was elected president of the organization. Also present: Gov. Ronald Reagan, Art Linkletter, Danny Kaye, San Francisco mayor Joseph Aiello.

BAD NEWS: The Washington Post says the U. S. Postal Service is ending its third fiscal year with a deficit — a record one of $385 million. One Postal Service official says the deficit will exceed $500 million the coming fiscal year. The old Post Office Department ran a deficit its last year of operation, but it amounted to "only" $204 million. Some would say the rates are up, service down and deficit blossoming.

MARRIED just three days, Marcia Iddings, 19, drowned Tuesday afternoon while swimming with three companions in the Missouri River near Ponca State Park. A former Omaha resident, she married Charles Iddings of Ponca on Saturday.

Dixon County sheriff Dean Chase said Mrs. Iddings was swimming near the old boat dock at the state park when she cried out for help. Her body was recovered about an hour later.

"Both expert study and casual observation suggest that most of us drive so as to use more gas than we need to. Quick getaways, revving up to roar around the car ahead, rushing up to red lights only to wait for the green — anything in short, that involves a heavy foot on the gas pedal wastes fuel. A lot of other common practices let gas dribble away. Allowing the motor to idle while you're chitchatting, for example. Using the car's electrical appliances sparingly saves gas because the engine recharges the electrical system. Flooring the pedal to get up to the speed limit in a hurry uses more fuel than building up speed gradually; as one expert reminds us, 'It takes more gasoline to get going than to stay going.' With a little care, a tankful of gas can be made to last a good deal longer than if otherwise would."

OBSERVATIONS

Guest commentary: 'Rural voice is needed'

Prospective candidates for positions on the state's 24 Natural Resources District boards have only until 5 p.m. Aug. 9 to get their petitions circulated, signed and filed with the Natural Resources Commission office in Lincoln in order to be on the November general election ballot.
At last report there were only 40 petitions out in the state for the 370 Natural Resources District director positions. This means that people in the rural areas are going to have to get busy if they are to be well represented on such important local matters as pollution control, flood control, soil conservation, ground and surface water utilization, sanitary drainage, water supplies, wildlife habitat and all the related environmental problems assigned to the districts.
Petitions and circulating instructions are available at the county clerk's or election commissioner's office in each county, each NRD office and the Natural Resources Commission office in Lincoln. Potential candidates must obtain the signatures of 25 registered voters who are residents of the subdistrict in which they live. At large candidates may obtain signatures from registered voters anywhere in the district.
The subdistricts are set up in each NRD for the purpose of nominating candidates and exist only to determine the particular seat on the board of directors for which each candidate runs. The election itself is at large and all voters within a given NRD may vote for candidates in each subdistrict. In 21 of the districts, including the Lower Elk-horn NRD, two directors will be elected from each subdistrict and one will be chosen at large. The candidate receiving the most votes in each subdistrict will serve a four-year term and the second highest vote getter will serve two years.

Statewide, all directors elected at large will serve four years. The new directors will take office Jan. 9.
The number of directors per district varies from nine to 21 dependent on the population area. The Natural Resources District Act was written so that determination of subdistrict boundaries would take into consideration not only population but extent to which improvements are to be made, valuations and the wishes of the people. For example, in the Lower Platte South District, there are 10 subdistricts, five of which are in Lincoln which constitutes 80 per cent of the population total of the district. It is hoped that there will be at least two persons nominated in each subdistrict.
There have been fears that urban interests might dominate some districts. It is reported that in the Papio Resources District, the only real interest shown so far in the election has been by people in the urban areas of the district.
This year's general election and the choice of people to represent all parts of the district is the big test in how well the NRD program gets going. Since July 1972, the NRDs have been governed by 1,058 board members who were either members of the 154 conservation districts which were merged into the NRDs or were appointed to represent urban and groundwater interests.
Rural people should be making sure that they are well represented and the time to do that is right now in their choice of good nominees. — M. M. Van Kirk, director of information for Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

So they said . . .

"It is clear that after the nation's economy adjusts to more economical uses of energy, the demands for all forms of energy — and, particularly, for electricity and natural gas — will continue to grow. Thus, . . . (utility companies) must continue building new facilities in order to meet the needs . . . in the years ahead."
— A. H. Aymond, board chairman and president, Consumers Power Co.

"Too many Americans seem willing and eager to seek solutions to our problems from those wonderful people on the banks of the Potomac River who are responsible for managing the Post Office, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and the District of Columbia itself, including their new subway system which has been under construction for years."
— John T. McCarthy, assistant to Chancellor of Pepperdine University.

Tech's Student-Patient to Graduate

Practical Nursing students at Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College are required to spend a lot of time at hospitals to graduate from the program.

However, one student spent some time there that would have prevented most students from graduating with their class, according to Mrs. Anita Brennenman, director of the NNCTC practical nursing program.

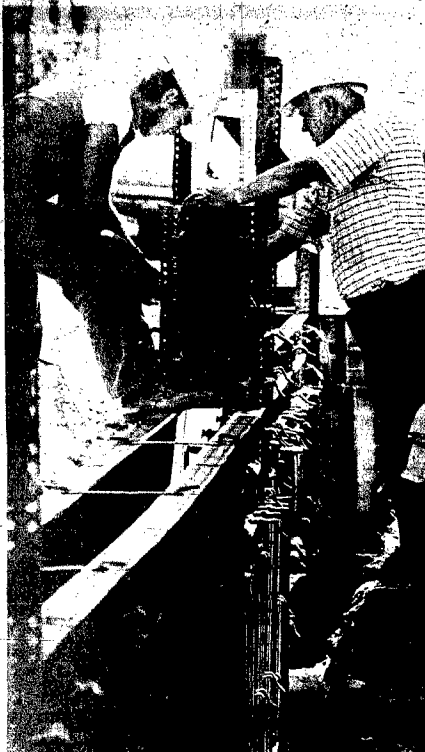

The student is Jill Froehlich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin "Bud" Froehlich of Wayne. Jill was recently presented a $250 scholarship from the National Licensed Practical Nurses Education Foundation, Inc. to complete her training at NNCTC.

The scholarship was presented to Jill at the college by Mrs. Beatrice Vollmer of North Platte, state president of the Licensed Practical Nurses Association of Nebraska.

Mrs. Brennenman explained that Jill was severely injured in a car accident Feb. 4. She was released from a Lincoln Hospital Feb. 21 and was back in school Feb. 22.

"After much determination and studying, she was able to complete all missed classroom work and will graduate with her class this fall, Mrs. Brennenman said.

Improved Feed Efficiency
Liqua-Base Cattle Supplements are rich in natural protein, vitamin A, D, E, Phosphorus, Trace Minerals and energy. No salt or water is added. Cooper tests showed faster gains, better feed conversion and lower feed costs per pound of gain in comparison to high urea liquid supplements.
