Board Hires WH Principal

Donald Zeiss Jr. of Tecumseh will be principal at Wayne High School for the 1974-75 school year.

Zeiss, a graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was hired for the post by the Wayne-Carroll school board during the board's regular meeting Monday night.

He will fill the position left vacant by the resignation of Deryl Lawrence, who resigned earlier this summer to take a position with Wayne State College. Lawrence had held the job since the fall of 1970.

Married and the father of three school-age children, Zeiss was secondary principal the past two years at Tecumseh. He held a similar position the previous two years at Weeping Water, and before that he taught junior high science, driver education, physical education and athletics for four years at Wilber. He also taught one year at Adams and one year at Alliance.

A 1956 graduate of Crete High School, Zeiss received his bachelor of science degree, master's degree and six year certificate from NU.

Zeiss will receive $16,750 for his 10 and one-half month contract at the school, the same salary which Lawrence would have received.

The hiring of Zeiss nearly fills all vacancies in the Wayne-Carroll staff for the coming year, according to superintendent Francis Haun.

Haun told the board Monday night that the positions of school nurse and several teacher aides have yet to be filled.

Also Monday night, the school board approved having tele-tuition sets for use in the middle school and high school.

Haun said he would probably attempt to purchase six sets, bringing to 13 the total in the three schools in Wayne. Already available for use are three color sets in the elementary school and four black and white sets in the high school and middle school.

County Budget Hearing Is Slated

Wayne County commissioners will hold a public hearing Friday morning at 10 o'clock on a proposed budget calling for levying the same number of mills on county taxpayers as during the past fiscal year.

The levy required to finance the $1,711,742 budget is 10.54 mills based on an anticipated property valuation in the county of $47,929,335.

Although the proposed total budget is up from the $1,603,409 budget for the past fiscal year, the mill levy should stay the same because of the fairly large increase in valuation of taxable property, according to county clerk Norris Weible. The evaluation has increased nearly $3 million, he said.

ing amounts, with the totals for the past year in parentheses.

$194,667 for the general fund ($124,256), $193,863 for roads and bridges ($186,116), $17,723 for relief ($68,947), $2,175 for soldiers and sailors relief ($2,007), $20,825 for county fair ($19,675), $10,407 for noxious weed control ($11,732) and $10,730 for the sinking fund which is building up funds for possible use in constructing a new courthouse ($10,038).

Mill levies required to finance those activities, with the present levies in parentheses: 4.54 for general fund (3.10), 4.56 for roads and bridges (4.63), 4.1 for relief (1.72), .05 for soldiers and sailors relief (.05), .49 for county fair (.49), .24 for noxious weed control (.30) and .25 for sinking fund (.25).

Weible said the county anticipates on receiving $131,883 in federal revenue sharing funds during the 1974-75 fiscal year, which began on July 1. That compares with $175,846 which the county received the previous 12 months, he said.

The anticipated levy of 10.54 mills is several mills under the legal limit of 14.285 set by state law, according to Weible.

It compares with the 12.57 levy in 1972-73, 11.72 in 1971-72, 9.56 in 1970-71 and 9.15 in 1969-70.

The anticipated hike in the valuation of taxable property in the county is the largest one on record, according to Weible. The previous largest jump in valuation was last year when the total went from $37,849,480 to $40,111,560.

Total to be raised through local taxation to help finance the budget is $489,835, up from the $427,771 required during the past fiscal year.

That total includes the follow-

Tots Invited To Annual Safety Class

Youngsters entering kindergarten in Wayne this fall are being invited to attend the police department's annual traffic safety school scheduled for Tuesday, reports chief Vern Fairchild.

The school, under the direction of assistant chief E. L. "Pat" Hatley, will include instructions in how to properly cross through streets, streets with stop signs and streets with traffic signals. To be used during the school is "Sally," a traffic signal which talks to the youngsters.

Sessions will last about one and a half hours, with youths attending according to which letter their last names begin with. The session for letters A through G is slated for 8:30 to 10 a.m., the session for H through M is set for 10:30 to noon and the session for N through Z is set for 1:30 to 3 p.m.

Sessions will be held in the meeting room of the fire hall next to the police station.

The school will be the last one to be conducted by Hatley, who will retire from the police force on Aug. 16 after nearly 17 years on the force. He has conducted the schools for the past five years.

Winside Girl Included in 'Who's Who'

Connie Cleveland, a 1974 graduate of Winside High School, was recently notified that she is being featured in the eighth annual edition of "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

In the publication, students from over 20,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service.

Connie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cleveland of Winside. During her senior year she was active in band, choir, annual staff, high school plays and 4-H. She is presently attending Norfolk Beauty College.

Dixon Levy To Stay Same

Dixon's mill levy for the coming fiscal year will be the same as the past fiscal year, the village board voted Monday night.

The levy will remain at 30 mills, according to village clerk Donna Nelson. The total budget for the 1974-75 year will be about $11,000, she said.

13,000 Attend Four-Day Fair

Approximately 13,000 persons attended the four-day Wayne County Fair which drew to a close Sunday night, reports Marilyn Koch of Wayne, secretary manager of the county fair and agricultural association.

Koch said the attendance, the "largest in several years," helped boost gate receipts by 15 per cent over last year, the first time there was a four-day fair.

A total of approximately 1,500 persons attended the first day of the fair, about 4,500 people turned out the second day, some 4,000 turned out the third day and about 3,000 attended the final day, he said.

Koch said that entries in almost every department at the fair — from 4-H and open livestock to domestic products — were larger than a year ago, helping make the fair an attractive event for area residents.

Koch noted that all the people who helped and worked during the fair deserve a thank you because they are the ones who help make a fair possible. "It isn't just one person or a group of individuals who make a fair possible," he said. "It's all the people working toward a common goal."

Kathy Gustafson of Wakefield placed first in both the live singles and pen of three competition in the open class market hog show Saturday during the Wayne County Fair.

Dick Sorenson, one of the superintendents of the swine competition at the fair, said results of the carcass competition will be released within the next few days.

No purchases are necessary to take part in the weekly drawings, but a person must be present in one of the participating firms in order to collect the prize.

Plenty of Buttons

LAWRENCE "SWEDE" LINDAHL of Allen doesn't actually wear this pair of coveralls all the time. It would be pretty hard if the Allen resident did. The overalls, covered from top to pant legs with buttons, weigh a total of 25 pounds. According to Lindahl, he only wears them on special occasions, like the annual stream threshing show near Allen, scheduled for this weekend. Lindahl picked up the pair of overalls in 1966 when he was visiting the Key clothing plant in Ft. Scott, Kan. "They didn't want the pair any longer because no one could clean them," Lindahl quipped.

A Vanishing Specimen?

A local humorist plopped down an ear of corn on the counter of Bill's Cafe the other day. The following tag was attached:

For the Nebraska Historical Society Exhibit "A" Called "Corn" — Formerly found in Eastern parts of Nebraska. Some survivors can be occasionally seen in remote parts of Iowa & Illinois.

This remarkable plant was used inside boxes marked "Post Toasties" for kids who sent for the toys on the box but never ate the contents. It was also used by sleers, bulls, cows, hogs, pigs, and "farmers."

Donated by Wayne County. Plant stolen from a field located 7 miles north of Laurel State in Cedar County.

Winside Budget Up, But Levy Same

Winside residents will not be feeling the pinch of the extra $30,000 in the town's 1974-75 budget after board members estimated that miscellaneous revenues will help make up for the increase in the new budget. Monday night the board okayed an $87,437.56 budget, about $30,000 higher than last year, with the mill levy staying at 23.6, according to village chairman Dallas Puls.

The biggest share of the budget, about $37,000, will go toward street improvements. Members agreed to have a Lincoln firm do the surveying work for the paving districts approved during a special board meeting two weeks ago. Once the work is completed, bids will be released for paving and gutter work. Puls said.

During Monday's meeting, the board hired Jerry Malcolm of Wayne to audit the town books.

Commissioners Okay Selling

Lots in Sholes
Wayne County commissioners Tuesday passed a resolution which will permit the county to sell two lots in Sholes to a California couple who will move there to retire.

Purchase price on the two lots is $50, according to clerk Norris Weible. He said the lots will be sold to Donald and Donna Laubsch of Indio, Calif.

Also Tuesday, the commissioners told the Rev. Paul Gottberg, minister at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Winside, that they will take under consideration his request for an access road to a farmstead in the east part of the county. The Rev. Gottberg, guardian for Mrs. Henry Von Seggren of Wayne Care Centre, said the road is necessary to get to a farm two miles east and one-half south of Wakefield.

The road to the farm has been closed for several years because a bridge is out, according to Weible. He said the county will consider leasing a strip of land so access to the farm can be assured.

Knepper, 29, began his career as a truck driver groundman with the Kearney construction crew advancing to lineman. He transferred to Ogallala in 1967 and accepted his present position at Allen in 1971.

Legion Downs Wahoo for Trip to State

By BOB BARTLETT
If there's a mass migration from Wayne this weekend, don't blame the vacationing season. That has nothing to do with it.

It's Wayne Legion, which will go to a central Nebraska town in search of a little bit of gold — this year's Class B State Legion championship.

Wayne won the right to meet Holdrege in the first round of the four-team double-elimination meet at Aurora starting at 6 p.m. Friday after scoring eight runs in three innings to squish Wahoo, 8-3. Tuesday night in the area tournament finals at Wayne.

At first glance in the second inning it looked like Wahoo might have a chance to stretch the tournament one more night, taking a 1-0 lead when center fielder Lou Maly scored on catcher Scott Houfek's single.

But in the fourth inning the tournament's most valuable player, pitcher Earle Overin, blasted a two-run double to put Wayne in front to stay. Overin's hit went to deep right center, scoring center fielder Gordie Cook and first baseman Bill Schwartz after the pair had singled. Then right fielder Randy Workman singled to make the score 3-1.

But Wayne didn't stop there. In the top of the fifth, the locals chalked up three more runs again with Overin driving in two. Schwartz doubled before catcher Mike Meyer advanced to first on a walk. Then second baseman Charlie Roland singled to tally the fourth run before Overin's single made the score 6-1.

Wayne added its final runs in the sixth on Schwartz's single to score shortstop Kim Baker before he stole home.

Wahoo rallied for two runs in the bottom of the last frame when starting hurler Rick Wagner slapped the ball through Roland's hands. However, with one away Overin halted the game with a pair of strikeouts, his 11th and 12th of the night.

Wayne had nine hits for the night, with Schwartz's two singles and a double leading the way. Overin was next in line with a double and single, with Workman collecting two singles. Wayne again connected for nine hits in bombing Arlington, 11-1, in five innings Sunday night to advance to the finals.

Wayne spotted Arlington one run in the top of the second on an error before going to work in the second half to score eight runs on seven hits.

Cook's single knocked in two runs to spark the team, but it wasn't the single that did the most damage. Nifty bunting helped destroy Arlington's chances of winning.

With bases loaded and the score tied at 1-1, Workman's bunt went up the middle to score one run. Then Hansen bunted to score two runs with the aid of a wild throw. Hansen later was safe at home on an error.

With two on Cook delivered his single before scoring on Schwartz's one-bagger.

Wayne tallied three more runs in the bottom of the fourth with Schwartz again leading in hits — his second single of the night to score another run. He finished with three hits in three at bats.

Wakefield Eliminated From Class A Meet

Wakefield's Legion team couldn't tell its pitching and fielding in the Class A Legion tournament at Hastings over the weekend.

The area club was knocked out of the double elimination tournament Sunday afternoon, losing their second contest to Lincoln Aamcos, 6-0.

Wakefield had a chance to get back in Sunday's game in the fifth frame after loading the bases. Catcher Keith Straband hit a line shot down the left field line only to have it go foul by inches. Eaton said "If it would have been in fair territory, we would have scored two runs and been in the ball game," he said. Aamco held Wakefield scoreless and then went on to score three more runs in the eighth. With two away and two on base, Aamco hit a blooper to load the sack's before shortstop Doug Soderberg missed a grounder to score one run and center fielder Doug Soderberg dropped a fly to score two runs.

"One thing about Class A, you don't see any poor hitters," Eaton noted after the second loss. "The No. 9 hitter can hit as well as No. 1."

Eaton's team discovered that in the first outing Saturday afternoon when the South Omaha Eagles ripped the club, 11-2. Neil Blomh started on the mound before his pitches went wild, giving up two runs in the bottom of the second. Scott Miller took over and did a good job. Eaton said, but fielding errors hurt Wakefield's chances of staying in the game.

Omaha scored seven more runs in the third and fourth frames to take a 9-1 command, forcing Eaton to turn the pitching reins over to Dale Bell and Sam Utecht in a strategy to save the team for the second game.

"We compare to the other (seven) teams in the tournament, but we picked a poor time to play poorly," Eaton confessed. "They were about what we expected — experienced and good at every position. But the pitching wasn't overpowering."

Wakefield ends the season with a respectable 33-13 record.

West Point Midgets Win Trip to State

Ken Wuesterwald, voted the most valuable player in the area Midget tournament, Monday night blasted a home run and struck out 11 Wahoo Gold players to lead West Point Midgets to a 4-2 win and a trip to the state tournament at Aurora.

Wuesterwald's homer in the top of the third easily cleared the 375 foot center field fence to his club, ahead, 2-1, in the finals at Wayne.

Wahoo had a 1-0 lead in the first frame when Wuesterwald's wild pitch scored the team's first run. West Point came back in the second to tie the match after Wahoo's hurler, Mike Nelson, loaded the bases on two walks and a single before walking center fielder Steve Smidt.

Both teams scored in the fifth. West Point pushing across two runs to one for the losers.

West Point and Wahoo advanced to the finals Saturday night when Wahoo ripped Wakefield and Gretna forfeited to West Point after several Gretna players were injured in an accident.

Wakefield bowed out 14-1, in what first appeared to be an evenly matched game.

Both clubs were tied at 3-3 going into the top of the sixth, but Wahoo scored 11 runs with the aid of two errors.

Wakefield's starting hurler, Steve Bell, ran into a jam in the sixth, forcing coach Bob Weisenberg to bring in shortstop Gary Munter in relief. Wahoo had seven of their nine hits that frame, including three doubles that scored four runs.

Wakefield mustered its runs in the first and fourth innings, taking a 1-0 lead in the first on an error. Munter and Doug Starzl scored the other runs on walks in the fourth.

Allen Wins NE Playoffs

Allen Midgets climaxed their season with the Northeast Nebraska Little League playoff championship by knocking off Ponca, 5-2, last week.

Jeff Creamer and Paul Snyder combined for the win as Creamer, who started, whiffed seven and Snyder fanned six to finish the team record at 12-2. Snyder, however, gets the win since Creamer didn't complete four full innings.

With two away in the fourth, Snyder took over after Ponca scored two runs off an error to cut Allen's lead to 5-2.

Allen scored all its runs in the first two innings.

Shortstop Charlie Peters walked and Snyder took first after being hit with a pitch. Then catcher Don Kliver singled to drive in Peters for a 1-0 lead in the first. Snyder later scored on a walk.

In the second frame, second baseman Brent Chase, Snyder and Creamer each singled to score the remaining runs. Both right fielder Dave Dunn and Peters walked, then advanced on passed balls before coming home during the hitting barrage.

Wayne Closer to NE Playoff Title

Wayne and Homer are one game closer to squaring off again, this time for the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League's playoff title.

Both clubs got past their opponents in the first of a best-of-three game series Sunday night to set up the second round of NEN playoff hits tonight (Thursday). Wayne hosts Dakota City and Homer travels to Newcastle.

Wayne dropped Dakota City, 9-3, at Dakota City while Homer bombed Newcastle, 18-1, at Homer. Wayne was forced to open the series at Dakota City because the area Legion/Midget tournament being played at the city ball park.

Winning pitcher Randy Benish, who struck out 18 — two every inning — all but sealed the win for the locals, blasting a two-run triple in the top of the eighth to give Wayne an 8-3 lead. Benish unloaded the three-bagger to score first baseman Whitey Mumm and shortstop Terry Luft, who advanced on a walk and fielder's choice, respectively. Benish scored on second baseman Bruce Lange's single.

Wayne held a 6-0 lead after six innings on a two-run single, two catches, a walk and a sacrifice. Catcher Denny Paul rapped the single to score Benish and second baseman Rany Helgren in the fifth to boost the town team's lead to 4-0. In the second, both Paul and right fielder Mic Daehnek crossed the plate on third baseman Roger Saul's slap to the shortstop, who errored, and center fielder Bob Weisenberg's sacrifice to center.

With bases loaded in the sixth left fielder Mike Creighton scored on first baseman Dave Schulte's walk to take a 5-0 command. Creighton, who led the team with three hits in five at bats, hit his second of three singles to set up the score. Saul walked and scored the sixth run when Luft knocked the ball to the shortstop, who again errored.

Dakota City scored three times in the seventh — two off a two-run single, the second of which two hits Benish allowed.

In the Homer Newcastle contest, the league's leading hitter, Merlin Berkenpas of Homer, and teammate Roger Thompson each rapped a double and two singles while another teammate, Russ Auen, slammed a homer and single to lead the Hawk's 18-hit attack off two Newcastle hurlers.

If Wayne and Homer win tonight, both clubs will meet here for the first of another best-of-three game series to decide the playoff championship.

Barclay Repeats As Club Champ

Ann Barclay failed to duplicate the hole-in-one she shot at the Wayne Country Club several weeks ago, but she did duplicate her winning the annual women's club tournament Tuesday.

For the second year in a row Mrs. Barclay carded the winning score in the championship flight, this time a 145 for 27 holes.

Mrs. Barclay had a 112.9 after subtracting the handicap to beat out Marion Evans, who shot a 117.6 minus the handicap.

Only three strokes separated the women after Barclay fired a 47 while Evans shot a 50 for the first nine. Then Barclay added rounds of 48 and 50 while Evans had 57 and 55.

A total of 33 women competed in the club tournament. Pauline Nuernberger won the first flight, tying Jo Rately with a 105 after 18.

However, handicap gave Nuernberger the win.

The same story applies to Glennis Swift's winning the third flight. She had 104, four higher than Adeline Kienast, but her handicap gave her the win.

Other flight winners were Peggy Luft with a 130 in the fourth flight and Mylet McGath with a 106 in the second.

THERE'S QUITE a writeup about Wayne's Mike Dunklau in a publicity pamphlet put out for the 16th annual Shrine Bowl football game Aug. 17 in Lincoln.

Mike, as many know, will be one of several players on the North all star team. The 6.1, 200 pound former West Husker all conference player will be wearing No. 72 when he enters the University of Nebraska Memorial Stadium as a tackle.

Dunklau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Dunklau of rural Wayne, hopes to teach, but as yet he isn't sure where he will attend college. He's wavering between NU and Wayne State.

Mike already is at the North camp at Midland College in Fremont, working out under coach Keith Staehr of Kimball High School. The 33 man team started Monday and will work through Saturday before flying to Minneapolis for a visit to the Twin Cities unit of the Shriners hospitals for crippled children.

FOR THE fifth time on statewide television, Nebraskans will be able to see the top 24 high school basketball players in the state compete in the sixth annual state high school all star basketball game. The Nebraska ETV Network will broadcast complete game coverage Aug. 17, at 7:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Nebraska Coaches Association, the game takes place Aug. 16 at Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln.

The North team will be coached by Al Bahe, formerly of Wayne and now Fremont High coach, assisted by Jay Muma of Schuyler. The South team will be coached by Wally McNaught, Lincoln Southeast, assisted by Jim Martin, Omaha Central.

The annual event drew over 5,300 basketball fans last year. A record 6,000 seats are available this year.

IT'S A bit early to be talking about bowling for some folks, but not for league secretaries and other officials.

Monday and Tuesday women and men keepers will be having their annual league meeting to review league rulings for the 1974-75 season.

Monday night the gals will meet at Melodee Lanes at 7 p.m., according to Vicky Skokan, of the Women's Bowling Association. The men will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the lanes.

Meetings are not just for league officials, and all city keepers are welcomed, said Jim Maly of the men's association.

Might add that the lanes will be officially open for bowling Aug. 20. Right after league competition finished in May, owner Val Kienast and crew went to work refinishing lanes and making some major changes in the lounge. Everything should be in shape when bowling starts early in September.

Note: As last year, we'll be running results of the top individual scores and series. Hope league secretaries keep the information coming after each league night so we can list the top scores.

WANDERINGS: Horse show fans can see more action and help crippled children at the same time by entering the Wayne County Hombres charity horse show at Hoskins Saturday at 6 p.m. Trophies will be awarded top riders in both junior and senior divisions.

For the first time in quite a while, Wakelield will not have cross country this fall, reports coach Lyte Trullinger. The Trojan athletic director points out that no one will be returning from last year's squad, and he doubts whether anyone will try out.

The Central Flyway Waterfowl Council has recommended a 51 day hunting season for ducks, cool and mergansers and 72 days for geese. Recommendations go to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service for approval to control hunting in the Central Flyway states, which include Nebraska.

Nebraska Daily Bag Limit: five ducks, including no more than four mallards, one of which could be a female, two wood ducks and one canvasback or redhead. Ten would be the possession limit.

A special recommendation for Nebraska would end the season for Canada geese on Dec. 15 instead of Jan. 19. It starts Sept. 28. The daily bag limit would be one whitetail and one Canada east of Highway 183. West of 183 the daily bag limit of Canada would be reduced to one beginning Nov. 25. Possession limit would be two Canadas or one whitetail and one Canada.

West Point Racer Emerges With Demolition Derby Prize

West Point's Eugene Watson won top money in Sunday night's demolition derby at the Wayne County Fair.

Watson's entry in the event lasted through his heat, then held up longer than any other entry in the final race of the night. His prize: $250 in cash.

Taking runner-up prize of $100 was Glenn Ott of Beemer, who lasted slightly longer than Butch Hamilton of Dixon, winner of the $75 third-place prize.

Winning $25 each for getting into the feature race were Dennis Urbanos and David Swanson, both of Wayne; Bill Cohee and LeRoy Liermann, both of Beemer; Tony Knefl, Newcastle; Terry Nicholson, Wakefield, and Bill Moore, Dixon.

Winning $50 each in the consolation race — open to any cars which would run after being eliminated in the heat races — were Wayne's Dave Sievers and West Point's Glen Greve.

About 10 cars entered the demolition derby, which drew a packed crowd into the grand stand. Sponsoring the event again this year were the Wayne County Jaycees.

SUNDAY NIGHT'S demolition derby at the Wayne County Fair proved to be a popular event, attracting a full house at the grandstand as well as lining people up around the Ince. Action from one of the heat races shows how contestants tried to use the rear of their cars to put others out of commission.

Records —

ably more than the previous record of 34.3 million pumped during July of 1972.

Those production records are proof that Wayne residents were using air conditioners at close to peak production and pumping huge amounts of water on their driving lawns during the past month.

The monthly electricity bills and the quarterly water bills sent out by the city recently prompted several residents to complain that they are too high, said clerk-treasurer Dan Sherry.

Sherry noted that July was one of the hottest months on record in this part of the state and probably resulted in air conditioning units being run much of the month.

He also noted that the water bill covers the three hottest months this year — May, June and July — when very little rain fell in Wayne.

Although the final impact of the original and subsequent GI Bills has not yet been evaluated, it has already gone down in history as one of the most enlightened programs ever provided those who served any nation.

Suit against grocery chains gains momentum

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN Another senator and maybe another state will join the federal lawsuit charging two huge grocery chains with conspiring to manipulate the meat market.

Senator Walter Epke of York announced last week he is joining as a plaintiff in the suit filed by Senator Lorán Schmit of Bellwood, with yet another senator, John DeCamp of Neligh, serving as one of the attorneys.

Schmit is chairman of the Legislature's Agriculture Committee and Epke is a member. Epke said he didn't join the suit immediately because he and Schmit felt that would make it look as if committee action were involved, when, in fact, the senators are acting as individuals.

They met last week with Gary Swanson, an assistant attorney general in Iowa, who was interested in the details of the case against Safeway and A & P.

Swanson said Iowa officials have been receiving complaints that large grocery chains had been responsible for fixing the price paid for live cattle.

The Safeway and A & P have denied that they have conspired to control livestock prices.

The two senators said they have evidence to show a conspiracy has taken place, but they decline to reveal any of their proof until the case is argued in court.

The papers Schmit filed with the court claim Nebraska livestock feeders have been damaged by $5 million and the senator's suit asked that treble damages be awarded. That means the suit has a potential of $1.5 billion.

Freight Hike Sought
The Nebraska Public Service Commission is expected to decide in about a month whether to grant a 10 per cent rate increase for freight hauled within Nebraska by the five primary railroads serving the state.

The railroads say they need to take in more money so they can maintain lines and provide necessary equipment.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, a federal agency, has granted a 10 per cent hike on shipments which cross state lines.

The increase doesn't involve the 3.3 per cent surcharge railroads are allowed to levy in recognition of higher fuel costs.

The five roads bringing the request to the NPSIC are the Burlington Northern, Chicago & North Western, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific and Union Pacific. They say the 10 per cent boost would raise them about $843,000 in additional revenues annually.

Protests against the increase have been led by Archer Daniels-Midland of Decatur, Illinois; Nebco, Inc., Lincoln; Ash Grove Cement Co., Kansas City, Missouri; and the Great Western Sugar Co., Denver.

Drouth Aid Requested
The Nebraska offices of the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) are busy processing information which will be needed if the state is to be declared a drouth disaster area.

If the destination is granted by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz or President Nixon, the farmers in the area involved would be eligible for five per cent loans.

Loans could be made up to the extent of a farmer's actual loss. The pay-back time would be five years.

Buffalo Wanted
A young Spokane Indian, whose tribe doesn't have any buffalo, believes his people would be better able to re-establish their traditional values and life patterns if they had a buffalo herd.

There is a young artist who has been working at the Spokane world's fair, Expo '74, who decided to help the young Indian fulfill his dream.

And there are some Nebraskans who also are getting in on the act.

The young man is Ernest Castillo, who met Emilee Touraine at the fair. Miss Touraine specializes in painting buffalo and many of her works are hanging at the U. S. pavilion at the fair.

During a dinner last June honoring Nebraska officials at the Nebraska Day at Expo, Miss Touraine told of her plan to trade paintings of buffalo for live buffalo to start a herd for Castillo's tribe.

The Nebraskans, including a couple of newspapermen, said their state ought to help. It has buffalo, an Indian tradition and is the home of John Neihardt, whose epic poetry has been an inspiration for Miss Touraine.

She will appear Aug. 8-10 at a Western art show in North Platte and visit Lincoln Aug. 11-14, possibly visiting Omaha Aug. 15-16.

So they said . . .

"Keeping an extra gallon or two of gasoline in the trunk of your car . . . can be anything but smart! According to Hans Grigo, the National Safety Council's technical consultant, 'The explosive power of one gallon of gasoline has been compared to the explosive force of 14 sticks of dynamite. Gasoline vapors expand to fill the available space they are confined in,' he said. 'The expansion can split the seams of an unvented can or plastic container and can cause vapor leakage from a vented 'safety' can. Sparks from the light switch, electrical appliance, car ignition or short in tail light or brake light circuits can then trigger an explosion.'"

HIGHWAY SAFETY PROGRAM

NEBRASKA

'It will be a stark campaign'

Death is running rampant on Nebraska's rural roads as well as at railroad crossings, according to Tom Ryan, chief of the state's accident records bureau. The governor's state traffic safety committee launched a massive statewide campaign of accelerated enforcement and education to stop the drastically rising death toll which plagued Nebraska in July, one of the worst killer months in the state's history. The "Live A Little" crusade will run from August 1st through September 15th. Nebraska's director of motor vehicles, John L. Sullivan, said "Drivers are being encouraged to drive with lights on, and to honk at speeders who are violating the 55 mph limit on the state and interstate system." Sullivan noted that the "Give A Toot" part of the campaign is one of the ways that conscientious Nebraska drivers can remind those sharing the roadways that carelessness and disrespect for the law causes accidents. "The theme of the 'Live A Little' campaign is going to be stark, telling the bloody truth about auto accidents," said Sullivan.

OBSERVATIONS

A major loss

Designation of all of Nebraska as a drouth disaster area to qualify it for special federal government agricultural assistance measures, particularly financial, is timely and in no way premature.

The full extent of the situation of course will not be known until the end of this season. But as of the last week in July, the dryland corn crop which represents 53 per cent of the state's total corn acreage was for all practical purposes written off so far as grain production is concerned. Major crops which at that stage were still in position to be helped by rains enough to have some potential left for a partial crop were grain sorghums and soybeans, but about all that could be said for them was that there was still hope.

For the individual dryland corn farmer in the major producing areas of eastern, northeastern and southeastern Nebraska, his loss is truly a disaster situation. All he can do is salvage a little of the crop as poor siller, lighten his belt and hope for better things next year. His situation is complicated by the fact that expenses on this year's farming have been at a record inflated level — for fuel, seed, fertilizer, chemicals, equipment and virtually every production item. It is especially drastic for those farmers who fed their 1973 grain crop to cattle and took extreme market losses. In effect, some have lost returns from two crop years in succession.

The effects of this year's drouth will strike heavily at the state's overall economy, and recovery will not come in a single year. It will be reflected in lower bank deposits and less money for loan, and in reduced sales and income tax revenues. Undoubtedly, there will be an upsurge in delinquent property tax rolls as farmers and ranchers defer their real and personal property tax payments.

Relieving the overall picture in comparison to some of the worst years of the 1930's however, it is the fact that 47 per cent of Nebraska's corn acreage this year is irrigated. Although the extreme heat may cut yields even on irrigated corn, and some areas are experiencing pumping problems, the state's more than five million irrigated acres insure that all is not lost as it was in the 1930's when irrigation amounted to a few hundred thousand acres in the Platte Valley.

As of January 1, 1974, there were 41,628 wells registered in the state. Total acres available for irrigation were placed at 4,783,000, and wells added since then probably boost the total to more than 5 million acres served by wells and stored supplies. The record of irrigated acreage by districts at the beginning of the year was: Northwest (11 counties of Panhandle), 568,000 acres; North (Sandhills, 16 counties), 288,200 acres; Northeast (13 counties), 254,900 acres; Central (18 counties including Dawson and Buffalo), 920,700 acres; East (16 counties including York and Hamilton), 1,014,900 acres; Southwest (9 counties, mostly Republican Valley), 559,200 acres; South (8 counties, mostly under Tri County project), 649,400 acres; and Southeast (12 counties) 527,700 acres.

Some clues to what the present situation means can be gained from 1973 statistics. Last year, the state's corn production totaled 544,050,000 bushels. There were 6,375,000 acres of corn harvested. Of this, 2,740,000 were irrigated acres which averaged 113 bushels per acre to produce 309,620,000 bushels. There were 3,110,000 acres of non-irrigated corn last year which averaged 75.4 bushels per acre and produced 234,430,000 bushels. Thus in 1973, irrigated acres produced 57 per cent of the state's corn. There were 495,000 acres harvested for silage, averaging 14.5 tons per acre for 7,178,000 tons. The total value of last year's crop for grain, figured at $2.25 per bushel, was estimated at $1.2 billion. Nebraska's corn crop harvested for grain in 1973 ranked No. 3 in the nation, while in silage it ranked No. 5. Thus loss of the state's dryland corn crop represents a very sizable chunk out of U. S. expectations for a record feed grain production year to meet both domestic and export demands. — From the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

'Volunteer firemen are unselfish men'

By Mayor Freeman Decker
My salute today goes not to an individual, but to a group of dedicated individuals who voluntarily give their time to make up our volunteer fire department. All of us should offer a silent prayer every time we hear the fire whistle, knowing that these unselfish men are quickly gathering to hasten to the scene of a fire.

Have you ever noticed how soon after the fire sirens sound that you hear the siren on the fire trucks on their way?

Serving without pay, they come from all walks of life — businessmen, laborers, professional people, farmers, all can be depended on to answer the call for help.

I suppose that all of us at some time in our lives have had a desire to be a fireman or a policeman. I don't know why these men have chosen to be volunteer firemen, but I do know that we owe them a deep sense of gratitude for their unselfish service. We can be justly proud of these men, and today I give, on behalf of the citizens of Wayne and the surrounding area, a big "thank you" and a well deserved salute.

Thoughts for the day

THURSDAY — Do little things as if they were great. Colossians 3:17 — "Whatever ye do, do it all in the name of the Lord Jesus."

FRIDAY — He who is willing to take the lowest place will always find sitting room. Luke 14:10 — "Go and sit down in the lowest room."

SATURDAY — True wisdom lies in putting the matter into the Lord's hand. John 2:15 — His matter saith unto the servants, whatsoever He saith unto you, do it.

SUNDAY — If you find yourself beginning to love any pleasure better than your prayers, any book better than your Bible, any house better than God's, any table better than the Lord's, a present indulgence better than the hope of Heaven — take alarm. Exodus 20:3 — Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

MONDAY — Let us think of God Himself becoming our song. Psalms 118:14 — The Lord is my song.

TUESDAY — As the currency stands for gold, so does the Christian stand for Christ, representing His good and acceptable will. Joshua 22:11 — Take good heed therefore unto your souls.

WEDNESDAY — What a source. "God" — What a standard. "His riches in glory." — What a channel. "Christ Jesus." — Philippians 4:19 — My God shall supply all your needs according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus.

YOU AND YOUR CAR

By the Automotive Information Council

From Technician's Perspective
Industry critics often, simply automotive service as a "take out the old part and put in the new one" business. Unfortunately, it isn't that simple, so the next time you are frustrated by an auto repair problem, consider the complex situation facing the service technician.

A general technician must be able to service thousands of different car models dating back 10 and 15 years, with about 400 variations of just the internal combustion engine. Add to that alternators versus generators, mechanical versus electronic ignition, torsion bars versus spring suspension and you can see the huge number of potential service combinations.

Next, mix in the complexity of each individual operating system and related systems, like wheel alignment, for example. For the car to steer properly, hold a straight line down the road, and provide good fire life, alignment angles must be correctly adjusted.

But adjusting alignment geometry will not restore good handling if other problems are present, such as loose or bent steering linkage components, worn wheel bearings or a sagging suspension system. As vehicle sophistication has increased, so has specialized knowledge needed by service technicians. For a single technician to service your entire car, he would have to be electrician, glass cutter, welder, air conditioning technician and radio repairman. In addition to basic mechanical ability, he would require a knowledge of physics, chemistry, mathematics and hydraulics, and would have to be adept at using precision measuring tools to locate, diagnose and apply correct technical information to problem solving.

As an example of the enormous body of knowledge required by today's service technicians, the following list of instructional materials was produced by only one manufacturer to aid technicians in servicing just its 1973 model cars and trucks: an 1,800-page general car repair manual, a 2,000-page general truck repair manual, eight programmed instruction courses, four instructional video tapes, 30 technical service bulletins, a 269-page emission control system manual, a 352-page vehicle diagnosis guide, a 92-page vehicle specification guide and a 169-page vehicle wiring diagram guide.

FAIR
It's over — almost! Actually there is a great deal of work still to be done in the 4-H department after the fair.

Results and premium money of over 1,200 different exhibits must be tabulated and distributed, a tractor driving contest is planned Friday at the Northeast Station, 500 record books have to be judged, we have to prepare for a livestock sale and 4-H livestock banquet later this month, state fair judging teams need to be trained and on and on.

TRENDS
I noted several trends in 4-H projects this year. One is that 4-H beef heifers are becoming a popular project. This is a trend I welcome because I'd like to see young boys and girls establish a beef breeding herd. It's likely we will never again see the large amount of market beef at fairs that we had a few years ago.

Many of the 4-H'ers that formerly exhibited market beef are now exhibiting breeding beef instead.

Another trend is the increasing popularity of sheep as a 4-H project. This project has particular merit for a beginning 4-H'ers since sheep are easier to handle and cost only a fraction of what market steers would cost.

Dairy will never be the largest livestock exhibit, but I believe it will continue to grow in size and quality.

Do you want to enrich your personal and family life? Improve your homemaking skills? If the answer is yes, why not join a Home Extension Club. The opportunity is right at your fingertips. For more information, call or write your local County Extension Office or the University of Nebraska, Northeast Station, Concord, NE 68728.

Livestock is not the only place where projects are changing. In future fairs we will see more of such projects as rockets, small gas engines and the like. This will be increasingly apparent as more boys and girls from town join 4-H.

MORE CHANGES
The reason for fairs in Nebraska is to provide educational opportunities for both adults and young people. I've already mentioned the change in 4-H livestock that I'm sure will also have an effect on livestock production in Wayne County.

Bob Boeckenhauer judged the 4-H wool class — a new 4-H project exhibit this year — and said he hoped we could have an open class wool show at the fair next year.

Dick Sorensen, one of the superintendents of the open class hog show was quite enthused over the size of the open class market hog show and hoped that next year neighboring county farmer's would bring their market hogs to be exhibited.

NEW ARENA
Excellent use was made of the new show arena at the fairgrounds, and it really made a difference. Many, many more people watched various livestock judging events because it was a lot more pleasant. Hopefully next year the hogs and sheep can also be shown in the arena, but first a new building must be built adjacent to the arena. I believe this building will do a great deal to encourage livestock to be shown at the Fair. The county fair board is to be congratulated on having the foresight to construct such a building.

Safety Display

RANDY STAGE of Laurel studies one of the many educational displays at the recent 73rd annual Tractor Power and Safety Day at the University of Nebraska Field Lab near Mead. The event featured new ideas in farm equipment and safety. Stage is inspecting various equipment shields that could save a farmer a costly accident.

'Shallow Wells Are First To Go Dry During Drouth'

Shallow wells are usually the first to go dry during an extended drouth because these wells are very dependent on recent rainfall, explained Dean Axthelm, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension agricultural engineer.

All groundwater supplies in Nebraska are dependent on precipitation for replenishment either directly or indirectly, he said. Precipitation that replenishes shallow wells in fine textured soil first infiltrates through the soil until it reaches an impervious or semi-impervious formation such as heavy clay or shale. The water for all practical purposes goes into storage in the formation, although it may slowly move laterally down the slope to points of discharge.

"A shallow well receives the water from storage, and as long as there is free water in the materials around the well, the well will continue to yield," he said. "The movement of water becomes less and less toward the well as drouth progresses. Finally, the water movement ceases, and the well yields so little that for practical purposes it is dry."

Axthelm recommended that landowners may wish to hire a well driller to drill test holes to determine if any water-bearing materials lie deeper than the shallow well.

Cautioned Axthelm, "Dry wells can be expected to stay dry for some period of time even after rains occur. The soil during drouths is so dry that when rains do come, free water may not be available to percolate toward the well. The time lag between precipitation and water reaching the well is dependent on the amount and rate of precipitation and the local geologic conditions."

The extension specialist noted that on the other hand, severe soil cracks due to drouth could rapidly conduct large amounts of water to some depth into the soils or directly into the well.

"But runoff water like this may bear bacteria since cracks may act as direct conduits from the surface," he noted. If such cracking does occur near the well, it would be advisable to have the water tested before use and to seek another safe source of drinking water or to boil or chlorinate water for human consumption."

Further recommendations and illustrations for reconstructing a dug well are contained in "Minimum Standards for a Private Water Well in Nebraska, 1972," available at your county extension offices, said Axthelm.

Drouth Putting Emphasis On Preserving Roughage

The current drouth conditions emphasize the importance of preserving roughage supplies for cattle, agree two University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension engineers.

Say Norm Teter and Del Lane, "Cattle can be maintained for several months with little gain in weight by feeding rations consisting of good quality roughage. Roughages that maintain cattle include corn stover, good prairie hay, alfalfa hay, prime sudan grasses and sorghums and combine fallings. Straw, old prairie hay, over mature sudan type grass and mature milo stubble will need to be supplemented with a little protein and some higher energy feed such as grain or molasses."

The specialists recommend farmers to salvage roughage by either ensiling it or by putting it up as hay. The choice depends largely upon the crop, machinery, storage and transportation available.

"If you have a silo and chopping machinery, corn stover, sudan and sudan crosses, sorghum, alfalfa and most other greenchop makes good silage," according to the two specialists. In drouth times, direct chop green forage often has proper moisture for ensiling at 60-70 per cent moisture. Attempts to put it up at moisture contents of 50-60 per cent usually result in poor fermentation and silage loss in very dry weather because of packing difficulty.

Teter and Lane warned, "Avoid storing forage products at moistures between 35-55 per cent. They are neither hay nor silage and as a result chances of spoilage are great."

In dry weather, the leaf may seem quite dry while the stem retains considerable moisture. The true moisture content of a crop is difficult to judge under this abnormal condition; therefore, moisture testing is important, they stressed. Other factors include harvesting at opti-

Roberts Wins Driving Contest

Verneal Roberts of Allen will represent the Allen Future Farmers of America at the district tractor driving contest at Scribner Thursday, Aug. 15.

Roberts won the right to represent Allen Sunday afternoon during the chapter's tractor driving contest at Allen. Roberts was one of six competing at the chapter's family picnic, held at the town's park.

The redear sunfish is sometimes called the "shellcracker" because it feeds on freshwater clams and snails.

'Storage for Drouth Crops Is Inexpensive'

Many Nebraska farmers have large fields of drouth-damaged crops that will be used for silage, but no place to store the silage after it has been cut. University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension specialists have offered recommendations for construction of a temporary or emergency silo at a relatively small cost.

The experts are talking about a snow-fencing or cribbing silo that consists of a series of rings of fencing, one above the other, lined with a heavy, waterproof paper.

This type of silo is more quickly built than a trench silo and it is particularly adaptable where soil conditions make trench silos impractical, they say. Only a small outlay of cash is necessary for materials for the cribbing silo, and farmers may have some of the materials on hand.

More care must be used in packing this silo because the weight must be evenly distributed to prevent the silo from leaning or falling over, they say. Also, weakness in the fencing may result in considerable spoilage.

A level place for construction should be selected convenient to the feedlots. It is essential to build the silo on a leveled spot to avoid the danger of toppling after it has been filled.

Complete instructions for building a cribbing silo are available at county extension offices by asking for Drouth Fact Sheet No. 21, "Fence Silos."

How's Your Hearing?

Electronic hearing tests will be given at Morrison Hotel, Wayne, Nebraska, August 9 from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. by Nile A. Newburn, Belfone Hearing Aid Specialist. These tests will be offered as part of the Better Hearing Workshop program now being conducted nationwide.

Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding is welcome to come in for a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine his or her particular degree of hearing loss. Diagrams showing how the ear works and some of the causes of hearing loss will be available. Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told an aid won't help should have a hearing test and find out about the very latest kinds of hearing correction.

The free hearing tests will be held at Morrison Hotel, Wayne, Nebraska August 9 from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. If you can't get there on that day call 375-3300 and arrange for an appointment at another time.

VA Q & A

Q. How many Vietnam-era veterans employed by the Veterans Administration are women?

A. A recent count revealed more than 1,200; almost 7 percent of the Vietnamera veterans working for the VA, were women.

Q. I was honorably discharged from military service last month and plan to buy a home with a GI loan from the Veterans Administration. Will my wife's income help me qualify for the loan?

A. Yes. The VA since 1973 has been giving full recognition to income of both veteran and spouse in determining ability to repay loans.

Colorful and Nutritious
Tomatoes can be a colorful and nutritious asset to any meal, and right now your garden might luckily have some of these bright fruits hanging on their vines.

Tomatoes are best in flavor if ripened on the vine. Those picked green are less juicy and less flavorful. Store green tomatoes at room temperature so they will continue to ripen. Refrigerate ripe and nearly ripe tomatoes.

When selecting tomatoes look for those that have a good color for their variety. They should be firm, rounded and free from blemishes. Choose tomatoes that are heavy for their size.

Firm, ripe tomatoes can be frozen very simply for use in cooked dishes or las seasoning. Wash, core and peel. Leave whole or quarter, and pack in jars, freezer containers or plastic bags. Leave one inch headspace if containers are used. Tomatoes frozen in this way will be mushy when thawed so they should be used in soups, salads, vegetable dishes or sauces, not as slicers.

FAIR

It's over — almost! Actually there is a great deal of work still to be done in the 4-H department after the fair.

Results and premium money of over 1,200 different exhibits must be tabulated and distributed, a tractor driving contest is planned Friday at the Northeast Station, 500 record books have to be judged, we have to prepare for a livestock sale and 4-H livestock banquet later this month, state fair judging teams need to be trained and on and on.

TRENDS

I noted several trends in 4-H projects this year. One is that 4-H beef heifers are becoming a popular project. This is a trend I welcome because I'd like to see young boys and girls establish a beef breeding herd. It's likely we will never again see the large amount of market beef at fairs that we had a few years ago.

Many of the 4-H'ers that formerly exhibited market beef are now exhibiting breeding beef instead.

Another trend is the increasing popularity of sheep as a 4-H project. This project has particular merit for a beginning 4-H'ers since sheep are easier to handle and cost only a fraction of what market steers would cost.

Dairy will never be the largest livestock exhibit, but I believe it will continue to grow in size and quality.

Do you want to enrich your personal and family life? Improve your homemaking skills? If the answer is yes, why not join Home Extension Club? The opportunity is right at your fingertips. For more information, call or write your local County Extension Office or the University of Nebraska, North-east Station, Concord, NE 68728.

Livestock is not the only place where projects are changing. In future fairs we will see more of such projects as rockets, small gas engines and the like. This will be increasingly apparent as more boys and girls from town join 4-H.

MORE CHANGES

The reason for fairs in Nebraska is to provide educational opportunities for both adults and young people. I've already mentioned the change in 4-H livestock that I'm sure will also have an effect on livestock production in Wayne County.

Bob Boeckenhauer judged the 4-H wool class — a new 4-H project exhibit this year — and said he hoped we could have an open class wool show at the fair next year.

Dick Sorensen, one of the superintendents of the open class hog show was quite enthused over the size of the open class market hog show and hoped that next year neighboring county farmers would bring their market hogs to be exhibited.

These are just a few examples of what a fair can and should do to encourage more and better livestock production in Wayne County.

NEW ARENA

Excellent use was made of the new show arena at the fairgrounds, and it really made a difference. Many, many more people watched various livestock judging events because it was a lot more pleasant. Hopefully next year the hogs and sheep can also be shown in the arena, but first a new building must be built adjacent to the arena. I believe this building will do a great deal to encourage livestock to be shown at the Fair. The county fair board is to be congratulated on having the foresight to construct such a building.

EXPANDED META

Safety Display

RANDY STAGE of Laurel studies one of the many educational displays at the recent 23rd annual Tractor Power and Safety Day at the University of Nebraska Field Lab near Mead. The event featured new ideas in farm equipment and safety. Stage is inspecting various equipment shields that could save a farmer a costly accident.

'Shallow Wells Are First To Go Dry During Drouth'

Shallow wells are usually the first to go dry during an extended drouth because these wells are very dependent on recent rainfall, explained Dean Axthelm, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, extension agricultural engineer.

All groundwater supplies in Nebraska are dependent on precipitation for replenishment either directly or indirectly, he said. Precipitation that repletes shallow wells in fine textured soil first infiltrates through the soil until it reaches an impervious or semi-impervious formation such as heavy clay or shale. The water for all practical purposes goes into storage in the formation, although it may slowly move laterally down the slope to points of discharge.

"A shallow well receives the water from storage, and as long as there is free water in the materials around the well, the well will continue to yield," he said. "The movement of water becomes less and less toward the well as drouth progresses. Finally, the water movement ceases, and the well yields so little that for practical purposes it is dry."

Axthelm recommended that landowners may wish to hire a well driller to drill test holes to determine if any water-bearing materials lie deeper than the shallow well.

Cautioned Axthelm, "Dry wells can be expected to stay dry for some period of time, even after rains occur. The soil during drouths is so dry that when rains do come, free water may not be available to percolate toward the well. The time lag between precipitation and water reaching the well is dependent on the amount and rate of precipitation and the local geologic conditions."

The extension specialist noted that on the other hand, severe soil cracks due to drouth could rapidly conduct large amounts of water to some depth into the soils or directly into the well.

"But runoff water like this may bear bacteria since cracks may act as direct conduits from the surface," he noted. If such cracking does occur near the well, it would be advisable to have the water tested before use and to seek another safe source of drinking water or to boil or chlorinate water for human consumption.

Further recommendations and illustrations for reconstructing a dug well are contained in "Minimum Standards for a Private Water Well in Nebraska, 1972," available at your county extension offices, said Axthelm.

Drouth Putting Emphasis On Preserving Roughage

The current drouth conditions emphasize the importance of preserving roughage supplies for cattle, agree two University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension ag engineers.

Say Norm Teter and Del Lane, "Cattle can be maintained for several months with little gain in weight by feeding rations consisting of good quality roughage. Roughages that maintain cattle include corn stover, good prairie hay, alfalfa hay, prime sudan grasses and sorghums and combine tailings. Wheat straw, old prairie hay, over mature sudan type grass and mature milo stubble will need to be supplemented with a little protein and some higher energy feed such as grain or molasses."

The specialists recommend farmers to salvage roughage by either ensiling it or by putting it up as hay. The choice depends largely upon the crop, machinery, storage and transportation available.

"If you have a silo and chopping machinery, corn stover, sudan and sudan crosses, sorghum, alfalfa and most other greenchop makes good silage," according to the two specialists. In drouth times, direct chop green forage often has proper moisture for ensiling at 60-70 per cent moisture. Attempts to put it up at moisture contents of 50-60 per cent usually result in poor fermentation and silage loss in very dry weather because of packing difficulty.

Teter and Lane warned, "Avoid storing forage products at moistures between 35-55 per cent. They are neither hay nor silage and as a result chances of spoilage are great."

In dry weather, the leaf may seem quite dry while the stem retains considerable moisture. The true moisture content of a crop is difficult to judge under this abnormal condition; therefore, moisture testing is important, they stressed. Other factors include harvesting at optimum maturity — not over-mature but just coming into the prime of development; proper chopping — a chop of about two inches is good for most packing, and proper storage — packed for silage and well stacked for hay.

Teter and Lane list harvest alternatives as: chop for silage at 60-70 per cent moisture; windrow, chop and pile as hay at 22 per cent moisture; windrow-bale as large round at 24 per cent or small at 26 per cent moisture; windrow-stack at 35 per cent moisture. Large round balers will bale corn stover, milo stubble and wheat straw. Coarse roughages are heavy to handle and require extra care and maintenance of normal haying machinery. The storage method selected depends largely on the transportation anticipated.

Further information on dry weather care of forage is available from county extension agents and Drouth Fact Sheet No. 8.

NU Specialist Says Don't Cut, Chop Soybeans

Don't cut soybeans or chop them for silage now, warns extension agronomist W. J. Moline of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Moline says the plant still has a chance to bloom, set seed and produce a small crop. "I am recommending that you wait to harvest any soybeans for hay until about Oct. 1, so you can tell the full story on potential crop."

At that time if no beans are present, Moline says to cut the crop for hay. He adds that if three or four pods per plant have set seed, combine and save the stubble for rough feed.

Roberts Wins Driving Contest

Verneal Roberts of Allen will represent the Allen High Future Farmers of America at the district tractor driving contest at Scribner Thursday, Aug. 15.

Roberts won the right to represent Allen Sunday after noon during the chapter's tractor driving contest at Allen. Roberts was one of six competing at the chapter's family picnic, held at the town's park.

The red sunfish is sometimes called the "shellcracker" because it feeds on freshwater clams and snails.

'Storage for Drouth Crops Is Inexpensive'

Many Nebraska farmers have large fields of drouth damaged crops that will be used for silage, but no place to store the silage after it has been cut. University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension specialists have offered recommendations for construction of a temporary or emergency silo at a relatively small cost.

The experts are talking about a snow-fencing or cribbing silo that consists of a series of rings of fencing, one above the other, lined with a heavy, waterproof paper.

This type of silo is more quickly built than a trench silo and it is particularly adaptable where soil conditions make trench silos impractical, they say. Only a small outlay of cash is necessary for materials for the cribbing silo, and farmers may have some of the materials on hand.

More care must be used in packing this silo because the weight must be evenly distributed to prevent the silo from leaning or falling over, they say. Also, weakness in the fencing may result in considerable spoilage.

A level place for construction should be selected convenient to the feedlot. It is essential to build the silo on a leveled spot to avoid the danger of lopping after it has been filled.

Complete instructions for building a cribbing silo are available at county extension offices by asking for Drouth Fact Sheet No. 21, "Fence Silos."

VA Q & A

Q. How many Vietnam-era veterans employed by the Veterans Administration are women?
A. A recent count revealed more than 1,200; almost 7 per cent of the Vietnam-era veterans working for the VA, were women.
Q. I was honorably discharged from military service last month and plan to buy a home with a GI loan from the Veterans Administration. Will my wife's income help me qualify for the loan?
A. Yes. The VA since 1973 has been giving full recognition to income of both veteran and spouse in determining ability to repay loans.

Colorful and Nutritious
Tomatoes can be a colorful and nutritious asset to any meal, and right now your garden might luckily have some of these bright fruits hanging on their vines. Tomatoes are best in flavor if ripened on the vine. Those picked green are less juicy and less flavorful. Store green tomatoes at room temperature so they will continue to ripen. Refrigerate ripe and nearly ripe tomatoes. When selecting tomatoes look for those that have a good color for their variety. They should be firm, rounded and free from blemishes. Choose tomatoes that are heavy for their size. Firm, ripe tomatoes can be frozen very simply for use in cooked dishes or as seasoning. Wash, core and peel. Leave whole or quarter, and pack in jars, freezer-containers or plastic bags. Leave one inch headspace if containers are used. Tomatoes frozen in this way will be mushy when thawed so they should be used in soups, salads, vegetable dishes or sauces, not as slicers.

VA Q & A

Q. I was honorably discharged about 20 years ago after four years of military service. Am I still eligible for a GI loan?

A. Yes. The Veterans Housing Act of 1970 removed deadlines for using GI loan entitlement for veterans of World War II and later periods.

Q. I am a veteran with a 40 per cent service-connected disability. Will the Veterans Administration pay me additional compensation for my son who was born two months ago?

A. Yes, provided you file a claim within one year of your son's birth.

Q. I was honorably discharged last month after three years of military service, and I would like to use the GI Bill to go to school in France next year. Is this possible, and do many veterans study outside the U.S.?

A. Yes, to both questions. Eligible persons may study abroad where courses approved by the Veterans Administration lead to college degrees. During fiscal year 1974, a total of 65,000 veterans, servicemen, dependents and survivors studied outside the U.S.
