

Smart Housewife Can Keep That Last Rose of Summer

"You don't know what you've got till it's gone." These words of a popular Joni Mitchell song probably ring true for nearly everyone.

With fall close at hand, that last rose of summer won't be seen much longer, but the wealth of beauty in fields and gardens can be preserved so they will be enjoyed much past their lifetime.

A long walk in the pasture might reap pods, stalks and blooms which can be dried and made into beautiful arrangements.

According to Magdalene Pfister, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension specialist in home furnishings, the trial and error method of drying nearly all kinds of flowers can be very rewarding.

One of the oldest and easiest ways to dry flowers is the air-drying method. Attach about half a dozen flowers with a rubber band upside down on a clothes hanger. Hang them in an empty room which is dry, dark and warm so the flowers dry evenly. Since the flowers will shed, newspapers should be placed below them.

Always pick a flower just before its fullest bloom, leaving a long stem, and dry it shortly after cutting.

Some grasses and small plants can be shaped before they are dried. Other plants look best dried in an upright position.

Drying agents or desiccants preserve the shape, color and texture of flowers but rob them of their flexibility. Skill and patience are needed to carefully cover the flower and petals with preservatives.

Miss Pfister said that centuries ago the Egyptians and Indians buried flowers in sand to absorb their moisture. She said that Oolitic sand, such as that found in Salt Lake, is usually better than silica sand. But silica sand can be improved if baked at 350 degrees Fahrenheit until thoroughly heated and melted paraffin added. The wax prevents the sharp edges of sand from piercing the flower petals.

When cool, equal portions of soda and silica gel should be added.

Silica gel is available under several commercial names. It is expensive, but can be reused many times. Most crystals are white, but some are blue and turn pink when they absorb moisture. The blue color can be restored by placing the crystals in a shallow pan in a 250 degree Fahrenheit oven.

Other possible drying agents are borax-cornmeal mixture, kitty litter and perlite aggregate which can be purchased in building supply centers.

Flowers such as roses, carnation buds and jonquils are best when dried head up. Zinnias, daisies and calendulas are dried heads down in the drying agent.

Nuts and cones can be oven dried in a moderate oven for several hours. Leaves may be pressed with a warm iron over wax paper. Flowers can also be pressed and made into pictures.

More flowers which dry well are cockscombs, strawflowers, honesty, baby's breath and miniature hydrangea. Miss Pfister said she has not been able to dry lilies successfully. Wild flowers for drying include daisies, Queen Anne's lace, mulleins, sea lavender, Joe-Pye Weed and Nebraska's flower, goldenrod. All grasses dry well.

Experimenting with hair sprays and other adhesives can bring rewards to the nature lover. With patience and skill, flowers can be enjoyed year-round.

For more detailed information about drying and arranging flowers, write to the Extension Service, University of Nebraska-Lincoln for Miss Pfister's bulletin, "Winter Bouquets and Other Dried Arrangements" (EC 73-202).

Fenske-Bartlett Exchange Vows

Mary Fenske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fenske of Hoskins, and Brad Bartlett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bartlett of Norfolk, exchanged wedding vows Saturday at First Congregational Church in Norfolk. Bouquets of white roses and blue carnations decorated the church for the 4:30 p.m. ceremony.

Guests were ushered into the church by Phil Fuchs of Belden, Dan Backer of Randolph, Jim Rechterman of Norfolk, Carl Ma, and John Fenske of Omaha, brother of the bride. Candles were lighted by Jim Rechterman of New Cambria, Mo., and Phil Fuchs of Belden. Flower-girls were Barbara and Beverly Buelter of St. Louis, Mo., and Lori Fenske of Omaha.

The Rev. Louis J. Schweppe of Norfolk officiated at the double ring rites and Mrs. Melvin Meierhenry sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "We've Only Just Begun," accompanied by Mrs. Earl Mitchell.

Linda Walker of Norfolk was maid of honor and Mrs. John Fenske was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathy Daily of Norfolk and Cherie Geneski of Osmond. Best man was Ed W. Schuman of Norfolk and groomsmen were Stuart Bauer, Rick Bussey and Frank Jensen, all of Norfolk.

MR. AND MRS. BRAD BARTLETT

The bride appeared at her father's side in a toe length gown of organza and chantilly lace, accented with a high lace neckline touched with seeded pearls, an empire bodice, bishop sleeves, wide cuffed with tiny buttons and a slightly full skirt trimmed with scalloped chantilly lace also on the hemline extending into the attached chapel train. She wore a mantilla veil and carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, blue tint carnations and white daisies complemented with blue piquet streamers.

The bride's attendants wore blue print toe length gowns with an empire waist, Juliet sleeves and tiered skirt trimmed with ribbon and lace. They carried and arm bouquet of white roses and blue daisies with white satin streamers and wore a full circle daisy floral tiara.

The groom and his attendants wore black tuxedos with blue ruffled shirts.

For the couple's wedding Mrs. Fenske wore a floor length pink dress, and Mrs. Bartlett chose a floor length blue dress. Their corsages were of white roses with blue trim.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bright of Norfolk served as hosts to the reception for 225 guests held at the Fellowship Hall following the ceremony. Guests were registered by Mrs. Randy Bussey and Mrs. Stuart Bauer. Arranging gifts were Mrs. Ot Buelter, Mrs. Rick Bussey, Sandra Bartlett and Rhonda Richards.

Mrs. Harold Wittler and Mrs. Darwin Franzen cut and served the cake and Mrs. Edna Taylor and Christine Lueker poured. Mrs. Emanuel Buelter and Mrs. Julius Rechterman served punch. Waitresses were Susan Schweppe, Theresa Ryan, Marjorie Maurer, Ann Dreger, Pam Vynildai, Connie Boden, Kari Wittler, Alice Wells, Rita Ambroz and Joni Langenberg.

The couple took a wedding trip to Colorado and are making their home near Hoskins. The bride, graduate of Norfolk High School, completed the nurses aid course at Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College. The bridegroom, a Norfolk High graduate, completed the plumbing course at NE Tech and is employed in Pierce as a plumber.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Anna Marie Kreifels

Wool: Easy-Care Comfort Wool is a natural fiber offering excellent insulation and resiliency, the ability to return to original shape after being stretched. Wool is wear, static, and wrinkle-resistant, and elasticity and moisture absorption make wool comfortable to wear.

Modern technology has improved wool and added other desirable characteristics to its natural qualities. Among the developments are permanent creasing, shrink-proof wools, featherweight wools, bonded wools and machine washable wools. New developments have also provided greater color quality, variety in patterns and resistance to staining.

profit wool promotion and research organization, tests samples of wool for strength, color fastness and level of workmanship. The Woolmark labels assure consumers that products have met standards of quality required by the Bureau. Three types of labeling are available to date.

The "Pure Wool" mark which appears as a permanent label on approved goods, certifies that the product is 100 per cent wool. Predominantly wool garments, mixed with part synthetic or natural fibers, carry a "Wool Blend" label.

A third labeling by the Wool Bureau is the "Superwash" mark. This certifies that the garment is made of 100 per cent pure wool and that it can be machine washed and dried without shrinkage. "Superwash" may be found in men's and women's sweaters, shirts and hosiery, women's dresses and fabrics for home sewing and hand knitting yarns.

A-Teen Extension Club Picks Officers

Mrs. James Robinson was named president, Mrs. Duane Krueger was named vice president and Mrs. Guy Anderson was named secretary-treasurer of the A-Teen Extension Club during a meeting included Mrs. George Ehlers, safety; Mrs. William Thoendel, health; Mrs. Elmer Koepke, social; Mrs. Walter Fler Jr., education; and Mrs. Leon Weich, music. Mrs. Guy Anderson was named to the flower committee, and Mrs. Clarence Schroeder was named news reporter.

A total of 11 members of the club were present for the meeting. Guests were Mrs. Nancy Bethune, Mrs. Steve Hokamp and Mrs. Galen Anderson.

Mrs. William Thoendel, president, presided at the business meeting, opening it with a flag salute. Roll call was answered by giving good suggestions on "Support Senior Citizens," "County Fair" and "Retarded Children."

Mrs. Elmer Koepke, safety leader, reminded members of the 55-mile per hour speed limit still in effect across the nation, and Mrs. Earl Anderson, citizenship leader, reported on the possibility of the state doing away with studded tires in the winter.

The birthday song was sung for five members and the anniversary song was sung for eight members who celebrated those events during the summer months. Members reported on their visit to senior citizens homes in the neighborhood with a carry-in meal or lunch. A motion, made by Mrs. Thoendel and seconded by Mrs. Schroeder, was passed to have fair workers be chosen from their club groups.

Achievement Day at Carroll on Oct. 4 was discussed and plans were made.

Mrs. Clarence Schroeder reported on the county council officers training session she attended at the Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College in Norfolk on Sept. 10. The State meeting in 1975 will be held in York.

Mrs. Elmer Koepke received the hostess gift, and ten point pitch prizes were awarded to Mrs. Elmer Koepke, high; Mrs. Leon Weich, low; and Mrs. James Robinson, traveling. Guest high went to Mrs. Bethune.

The Oct. 9 hostess will be Mrs. Irving Anderson.

Mayor Seeks Support for Fund Drive

Wayne mayor Freeman Decker has proclaimed the period from Sept. 30 through Oct. 15 as United Fund Days in Wayne.

In his proclamation, mayor Decker called on the businessmen and citizens of Wayne "to give their support to this worthwhile activity."

Wayne will kick off its annual Community Chest fund drive, which is affiliated with the national United Fund, on Monday following a 7 a.m. breakfast at Wayne State's Student Union.

The breakfast is for all workers who have been asked to help with the drive.

Goal for this year's drive in Wayne is $11,450, slightly under the $12,000 goal of a year ago.

Funds from the drive will go to nine different agencies—the local recreation program, the local Senior Citizens Center, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Salvation Army, Arthritis Foundation, Florence Grifflent Home in Sioux City and National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

Chairman of this year's drive is Ernie Thayer. He is being assisted by Bill Workman.

24 HS Bands To March on WS Band Day

The annual festival of music called Band Day at Wayne State College will bring 24 high school bands to campus Saturday, Oct. 5.

They will march in a 3:15 parade, competing for four scholarships, and perform at halftime of the evening football game matching Wayne State and Dakota State College.

Wayne State band director Jay O'Leary reported bands coming from these high schools:

Creighton, Howells, Bette, Pender, Wymol, Spencer, Niobrara, Bancroft, Verdigre, O'Neill, Underwood, J., Randolph, Elgin, Mead, Ponca, Wausa, Homer, Keya Paha, Ashland-Greenwood, Allen, Stuart, Laurel, Coleridge and Wayne.

The Wayne State band also will march in the parade, starting at 3:15 from the campus and proceeding south on Main Street.

For the high school bands, four prizes are at stake in the parade: two scholarships for bands from schools of 225 or more students and two for schools with fewer than 225. The scholarships of $30 and $20 in each class will go to winning bands, for award to students of their choice to attend the Wayne State Summer Music Camp. Judging for the prizes covers marching, playing and appearance.

The Wayne Chamber of Commerce, with Roger Nelson in charge, is providing the scholarships and sharing in the after-parade meal for bandsmen. The City of Wayne and the Wayne State Foundation also are helping with the project.

bring sack lunches. Students from Wayne High School, Wayne Middle School and Osmond High School have expressed the most interest in the hike, the hike chairman said. Last week several sorority members visited other area high schools in hopes of getting more hikers.

To help raise more funds, the sorority five per cent of the funds collected will be sent to the USS HOPE to help pay for medical services in foreign lands. The remainder will go to the national Phi Mu chapter.

To help raise more funds, the sorority is planning dances at the Black Knight-Bar tonight (Thursday) and Saturday; Admission price will be 25 cents.

G.I. Man 'Okay' After Pickup

Strikes Building

A 21-year-old Grand Island man was arrested early Wednesday morning for driving while under the influence of alcohol after the pickup he was driving struck a building near an alley on the 100 block of East Third.

David Lorenzen, a student at Wayne State, was taken to the Wayne Hospital after he suffered a severe cut over his eye about 1:15, according to police reports. He was treated and released. He was not jailed by local police.

Lorenzen was headed east on Third Street when he attempted to turn, and struck the steps in front of a building owned by John Addison.

of persons in Wayne County who were receiving pension payments in the past year was 1,340.

The increase in the number enrolled in social security has been accompanied by frequent hikes in the amounts paid out in benefits, as well as in the payroll taxes that go to pay for them.

The figures show that more than $2,100,000 is now entering the county annually via the social security route. In 1971, by way of contrast, it was $1,632,000.

With the changes that have been made, social security has expanded to huge proportions. It involves the collection and payout of over $51 billion annually, which is nearly a fourth of all other federal receipts.

Council Tables Proposals Affecting City Employees

Two proposed ordinances which would affect the pocket-books of city employees will be taken up by the city council at a later date after being tabled during Tuesday night's meeting. The council tabled on an 8:0 vote the pension plan being considered for all eligible city employees.

Both councilman Ted Bahe of the third ward and city administrator Fred Brink recommended that the council take no action on the pension proposal until effects of new federal legislation concerning pension plans are more clear.

Federal legislation passed by Congress earlier this year currently affects private industry but could affect municipalities in months or years to come, according to Bahe.

The council, which recently approved a plan for several older employees, has been working for months in trying to draw up one which would cover other employees.

Also tabled, but only after mayor Freeman Decker broke a tie, was an ordinance concerning the utility benefits city employees receive monthly.

Those benefits amount to approximately $12 a month for electricity and $1 a month for sewer use, according to city officials.

The council, which is considering doing away with those benefits, learned from the city administrator that it would be more expensive to the city to abolish the benefits and add the approximate $13 to the employees' wages.

Brink said boosting the wages by that amount would cost the city about $4,900 more each year than the city is paying to provide the utility benefits. He told the council that the city is "coming out money ahead" the way the benefits are being handled at the present time.

Voting against tabling the proposed ordinance were Darrel Fuetberth, Carolyn Fitter, Vernon Russell and Ted Bahe. Councilmen Jimmy Thomas, John Vakec, Leo Hansen and Ivan Beeks voted to keep the issue before the council, forcing mayor Decker to cast a vote for tabling.

Also Tuesday night, the council:

—Approved installing four-way stop signs at Sixth and Dearborn and removing one or two parking stalls at the corner of First and Pearl to make those intersections less dangerous.

—Approved taking bids for a new automobile for the police department. The vehicle which will be replaced will be used by the fire department.

—Approved spending approximately $37,000 for rebuilding the 3,500 kilowatt generating engine at the municipal power plant; approved spending $350 for repairs at the municipal airport.

—Passed a resolution commending power plant superintendent Norbert Brugger for his many years of service to the city. Brugger will retire on Monday after more than 28 years of employment in the city's electrical department. A separate story on Brugger appears on page four of the second section of this issue of The Wayne Herald.

—Approved letting the city planning commission study the need for sidewalks throughout the city and recommend to the council some type of comprehensive plan for installing sidewalks in coming years.

—Approved paying for flu shots for city employees who wish to have them.

—Approved mayor Decker's appointment of Mrs. Wayne Nissen to the city's recreation board to fill the post left vacant by the resignation recently of Norma Ehlers. Mrs. Ehlers served on the board for about 12 years.

—Approved an ordinance which would require future employees of the city to either take the health insurance provided by the city or receive no cash payments. Current employees who are taking cash payments in place of the insurance may continue receiving cash.

For 'Magazine'

Sandra Breittkreutz, former society editor of The Wayne Herald, is author of an article titled "Recipe: Lots of Love" which appeared in Sunday's Magazine of the Midlands, weekly supplement to the Omaha World-Herald.

The article explained the workings of the Children's Development Center for mentally retarded children which is housed in Pile Hall on Wayne State's campus.

The center is the only one of the state offering residential services—in conjunction with a program to shape the behavior of retarded children, according to the article.

Funded partly by the State Office of Mental Retardation and the state welfare department, the center opened in January with three children and added one child a month until its full capacity of six was reached.

Director of the center is Mrs. Elynn Walters, a December graduate of Morningside College. She is assisted by a program planner, five fulltime aides, two parttime aides, a physical therapist and a physical therapy aide.

'Social Security Isn't Just for Retired People'

According to Dale Branch, manager of the social security office in Norfolk, many people think of social security as strictly a program for the retired people. Actually, it covers dependent survivors, disabled persons and their dependents, and also hospital and medical benefits for the disabled and for those over age 65; he notes.

Social security provides monthly payments to disabled workers and their dependents, regardless of the age of a worker. However, the worker must be disabled and he must have worked sufficiently in recent year social security, says Branch. To be disabled, the worker must have a physical or mental condition which prevents him from doing any substantial gainful work, and medical evidence must show that the condition is expected to last at least one year.

There is a five-month waiting period for which no payment is made.

To receive benefits, the disabled person must have worked under social security a full five years of the 10-year period before he became disabled. There is an exception for workers under age 31. He or she must have worked in covered employment one-half the time after age 21 up to the onset of the disability. Workers age 74 or under must have worked at least one and one-half years. There is also a special, more liberal rule for blind persons.

More detailed information is available from the Norfolk social security office.

Business notes...

Darrel May, salesman for Corvair Auto Co. in Wayne, placed first in a contest held during a district meeting of salesmen and dealers at Norfolk last week.

May won a deluxe oven broiler as his prize for beating out the other salesmen and dealers at the meeting. A total of 19 dealers and 27 salesmen attended the meeting, which included the quiz on the 1975 Chevrolests and Oldsmobiles.

Consumer credit shaping up as big issue for state senators

CAPITOL NEWS
LINCOLN — It looks as if one of the big topics during next year's legislative session will be credit — how much it should cost, who should get it and in what quantities it should be available. Those subjects are being examined from a variety of angles this interim by legislative study committees. The big topic is the usury limit. Currently, it's nine per cent and many lenders are claiming that's too low in today's inflationary money market. The Legislative Council's Executive Board appointed a committee headed by senator Glenn Goodrich of Omaha to look into the controversy. A couple of hearings have been held, attracting lenders who have differing views on how the nine per cent limit should be changed. But senator Fred Carstens of Beatrice, chairman of the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee, figured usury was a fit subject for his committee to look at and he has scheduled meetings for today (Thursday) and Friday in Lincoln. Carstens said he's a long way from being convinced there's any reason to tamper with the usury rate. He contends there is pressure being exerted to soften up the public for higher interest rates. For one thing, Carstens says, it is being contended that unemployment in the homebuilding industry is due to the difficulty of Nebraska lenders to get mortgage money cheaply enough to make a profit on nine per cent loans. Not so, says Carstens. He says home building is sluggish in states which have higher usury limits or none at all. Also under study are the conditions for what are known as "small loans," or installment loans. Nebraska's statutes now consider loans up to $3,000 in that category. Spokesmen for the small loan industry (finance companies) say that limit is too low because inflation has made many things which used to cost $3,000 cost a whole lot more. The effect of the statutory limit, they say, is to squeeze some persons out of getting installment credit for items they used to buy that way. A proposal placed before the legislators would hike the ceiling to $10,000 and stretch the light payment period from three years to 10 years. Small loan officials also are asking that the interest rates ceiling be boosted. The legislators are going to take a look at those requests. There haven't been any promises made. Also in the credit field this interim period has been a study of possible discrimination against women. Single women have complained that they aren't able to get loans and married women say their income isn't considered equally with their husbands' by lenders. Road Inefficiency Claimed A legislative fiscal staff member who has studied State Department of Roads operations say the maintenance program is operating at less than 60 per cent efficiency. Joe Lang delivered that report to the Legislature's Budget Committee at a recent hearing. State engineer Thomas Doyle said he didn't agree with the findings, which Doyle said were based on judgments and isolated cases. But Lang said his survey of the maintenance program convinced him that road crews don't have systematic plans for getting their work done, are overstuffed and are undertrained. He estimated that it is costing the state as much as $6.4 million more than necessary for its road maintenance. Measurements Sought A commission appointed by Governor J. J. Exon is collecting data from Nebraska's Big Eight neighbors to see how the state ranks comparatively in financing its university system. The 13-member commission is headed by the former state administrative services director, Gus Lieske. It is preparing a report to show the relative expenditures for the universities and some of their major components. Medical and agricultural education, for example, are to receive special attention.

WAY BACK WHEN

30 YEARS AGO
 September 21, 1944: Miss Doris Nelson has resigned her position as 5th grade teacher in Wayne city school. Laverne K. Grosc and James W. Hansen, Wakefield, and Kenneth F. Finn, Randolph, are alternates nominated by Congressman-Karl Stefan for appointment to West Point and Annapolis academies. The marvelous work of evangelizing and healing among the depressed Telugu lepers of India and the immediate vital needs for segregating and ministering to outcast and refugee lepers in the Burma road area or free China will be told by Rev. Harold C. Etter, general director of the international Christian Leper Mission at First Presbyterian Church here Monday, Sept. 25 at 7:30.

25 YEARS AGO
 September 22, 1949: Seventy Republicans from 10 northwest Nebraska counties attended a district meeting in Wayne Friday. Gene Perry, Wayne, showed the grand champion Hereford steer at the Ak Sar Ben Livestock show in Omaha. The goodwill organization, "The Lincoln Showers," Lincoln, came into Wayne in two buses Tuesday evening. They dotted Main Street with their red hats and ties. They filled the kids' pockets with suckers, later retired to the hotel for dinner and a program and then were on their way.

20 YEARS AGO
 September 23, 1954: About 300 persons attended the opening of Wayne State's historical museum Thursday night at the courthouse. Guest speaker of the evening was Dr. James C. Olson, Lincoln, superintendent of the Nebraska State Historical Society. Large crowds turned out Thursday night for Wayne's annual fall opening. Feature attraction of the event was live models displaying the latest fall fashions. Joe Sublet, WSTC freshman, won The Wayne Herald's first football contest last week. He correctly named winners in 18 of the 21 games.

15 YEARS AGO
 September 24, 1959: Dr. Walter Ben-thack, Wayne, was elected chief of staff at a meeting of the Wayne hospital medical staff Tuesday night at Hotel Morrison. A 50-year membership pin was presented to Mrs. Ruth Claycomb last week by the Wayne Eastern Star chapter. Wayne State has received another allocation of $20,010 for student loans from the National Defense Education act, Dean of Students Donald Merriman said today. Wayne merchants will unveil the newest look in fall merchandise and area children will compete for $75 in prizes tonight as Wayne holds its annual Fall opening.

10 YEARS AGO
 September 24, 1964: The trimester schedule at Wayne State College has moved out of the experimental stage to the permanent. About 400 FFA and 4-H members will come to Wayne Sept. 29 to participate in the area land judging contest. High winds and cold temperatures slimmed the crowd somewhat for the parade of bands at Wayne State College's Band Day festival Saturday. Wayne State College enrollment mounted to 1,978

Wednesday, and additional registrations this week are expected to push the total close to 2,000. Wayne Ministerial Association met last Monday morning at Grace Lutheran Church and elected Rev. Frank Pedersen, pastor of First Baptist Church, president, and Rev. John W. Voth, pastor of United Presbyterian Church, secretary-treasurer.

School officials deserve a thanks for giving passes

Wayne

Dear Editor: Permit me to speak in behalf of all the Senior Citizens (65 years of age and older) who have been issued free lifetime passes to all events in the Wayne-Carroll school system. A special thanks to superintendent Francis Haun and whoever else may be responsible for this most generous and thoughtful consideration. We want you to know how deeply appreciative we are. — A Grateful Senior Citizen.

OBSERVATIONS

Still on the back burner?

Wayne has been kicking around the idea of buying a minibus for use by older residents of the city for some time now. Bellevue has had one in use for the past month. The bus at Bellevue services 50 to 60 elderly people who can't run errands or make social calls without help with transportation. It has expanded its hours from three to five a day, with a retired mailman serving as the driver. The bus, according to the driver, is in constant use from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Some other things about the service at Bellevue are interesting. Only persons 60 years or older are qualified to use the bus. Users have to call the city offices 24 to 48 hours in advance of the time they need transportation so clerks have time to figure out the best route and timetable for the bus each day. The bus is built higher than normal ones in order to permit passengers to walk upright as they enter. It is equipped with a special lift to help those unable to climb steps. Cost of the vehicle was $7,400, and the total cost of service for the first year will be about $14,500, according to city officials. We don't know what happened to that idea to provide a minibus for the elderly people in Wayne, but we think it got shoved to the back burner. Maybe it's time to get it off there and start thinking of some way to provide the needed transportation to a segment of our population which has contributed a great, great deal to making this community what it is today. — Norvin Hansen.

Caution is in order

Early one morning last week somebody entered a rural home near Wayne and switched on the light, alarming the farm couple who had not locked the doors of their home before they went to bed that night. The intruder was scared away from the home because the wife, who was not completely asleep when the light came on, called out and awakened her husband. Whoever entered the home ran down the lane, jumped in a car and sped off, leaving the man and wife wondering what would have prompted him to silently enter their home at such an odd hour. They were also left wondering what might have happened had the wife not been awake enough to realize that some-

YOU AND YOUR CAR

By the Automotive Information Council

It Would Help

Before the government-mandated interlock seat belt system was introduced on 1974 model cars, only 20 to 25 per cent of U. S. motorists buckled up regularly. That figure has climbed to from 50 to 55 per cent usage among motorists having the interlocks, but the latest surveys indicate that even that number of seat belt wearers is starting to decline as more people attempt to "beat" the interlock system. It's human nature for a person to believe he will not be involved in an automobile accident, but the fact remains that motor vehicle accidents are the fifth-ranking cause of death among all ages and the leading cause of death among people age 24 and under. The estimated cost of automobile accidents in 1972 in terms of insurance premiums, maintaining medical services, etc., was $50 billion. According to the Automotive Information Council, the first priority still should be increased efforts to reduce the number of accidents by removing the human and mechanical causes such as driving while intoxicated, driving too fast for conditions, or failure to maintain vehicles in good mechanical repair. A mandatory seat belt law under which motorists would be fined if they were not buckled up in a moving car equipped with seat belts has been introduced in 30 states, but is currently in effect only in one city in Ohio and in Puerto Rico. In Victoria, Australia, a seat belt use law cut traffic fatalities the first year by 20 per cent — the first decline in traffic fatalities there in 38 years — and greatly reduced the severity of accident injuries. Eye injuries, for example, showed a decline of 300 per cent. A mandatory seat belt use law is an alternative to such auto occupant protection as the current interlock system, which adds about $80 to the cost of the car, and the proposed air bags that automatically inflate on frontal impact, which adds about $300 to the cost of the car plus another $70 to maintain the system even if it never deploys. Air bags, furthermore, do not inflate on side impact accidents, so vehicle occupants would still need to wear seat belts for maximum protection.

body had entered their home. The Wayne County sheriff's office, which investigated the incident, is recommending that all farm families make sure they lock their doors in the evenings. Farm families should be especially careful about doing this because those homes are often isolated and alone, located a considerable distance from their neighbors and friends. We echo the warnings of the sheriff's office. There have been too many stories in the newspapers in recent years about rural farm families being molested and harmed by intruders to think that it can only happen somewhere else. It could happen right in this county, and it only makes sense to take steps to make it less likely. — Norvin Hansen.

GRANDPA'S BOY

By BRAD ANDERSON

GRASSROOTS OPINION

Winchendon, Mass., Courier

"What has happened to such things as common decency and good manners? You'll have to pardon us if we're a bit uptight, but it seems to us that far too many people have no respect for much of anything anymore. Why can't people show respect and keep their mouths shut when a clergyman is offering a prayer...? Why can't they shut up when a fine young man is reciting the Gettysburg Address? Why can't they keep quiet when the guest speaker is giving a talk? Small children, if they have not been properly trained, don't know any better. But adults should. It's about time they set a better example for the younger generation."

By Lt. Col. Edward King, USA (Ret.)
 Director, Coalition on National Priorities and Military Policy

The annual Administration and Congressional shell game on keeping U. S. troops in Europe is over. And once again our European allies are the winners while the U. S. taxpayers lose more billions. That makes the score Allies 23 — U. S. taxpayers 0, because for 23 years now the taxpayers have been shelling out billions and keeping over 300,000 of their sons and daughters as permanent hostages in Europe to help "allies" who over the years refused to pay their full share or put up the needed number of conventional ground combat troops they are really capable of providing.

But again this year the Nixon Administration was joined by the Congressional cold warriors, the old-guard U. S. Atlantic Alliance establishment and the national press to defeat Senator Mansfield's attempt to reduce the 700,000 U. S. military personnel and dependents stationed at overseas bases around the world. For the most part the Administration's cold war rhetoric and standardized list of rationalizations on how our courageous "allies" would desert us in panic if we removed a single one of our hostage sons from the drug dens in Europe, sounded more like the "sky is falling" reasoning of Chicken Little than the logic of rational diplomatic and military thinking. However, there were a few new twists added to this year's NATO shell game. For example, Senator "Scoop" Jackson argued that U. S. troops in Europe should not be reduced because it would "heighten the concern of the People's Republic of China and have an adverse impact on Sino-American relations." So now we must keep U. S. troops permanently in Europe not only to save our European "allies," some of whom are busily killing American soldiers 30 years ago, but also to help the Communist Chinese forces that 20 years ago were killing thousands of U. S. soldiers in Korea — defend themselves from the Russians! Next year we may well be told that we must keep U. S. troops in Europe facing the Russians in order to help those same Russian troops defend themselves from the Chinese. But no matter what spurious reasoning and vested interest is used next year by your government to keep too many U. S. troops in Europe, you can be sure of one thing, it will be your sons that will be over there as hostage bargaining chips and your money — 19 billion dollars worth — that will pay for continuation of this, the granddaddy of all U. S. military bondoggles.

Guest Commentary

Sorry about that, Joe

Our story involves an ordinary guy. Let's call him Joe. He looks like a lot of other Joes.

You would think that Joe was a lucky man. For the last 10 years he has had pay increases to match every increase in the cost of living. But Joe is still unhappy. His paycheck does not go as far as it used to.

Economists of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States can explain the chagrin of ordinary U. S. citizen Joe. They tell his story this way.

In 1964 Joe went to work at a pay of $10,000 a year. That year:

- His income tax was $1,200.
- His social security tax was $174.
- His take-home pay was $8,626.
- His taxes took 13.7 per cent of his gross earnings.

Now, 10 years later, with a long string of cost-of-living pay increases added to his paycheck, Joe earns $15,400 a year.

— His income tax will be $1,908.

— His Social Security tax will be $373.

— His take-home will be $12,755.

— His taxes will take 17.3 per cent of his gross earnings.

Meanwhile, inflation has eroded the value of the U. S. dollar — by 60 per cent since the end of World War II and by approximately 10 per cent in the last year alone.

The $12,755 Joe will take home in 1974 really is worth $529 less than the $8,626 he took home 10 years ago.

So take it from Joe. In 20 years, if inflation keeps rising at the 10 per cent rate, Joe will need to earn $115,000 a year to keep pace. Meanwhile, he will be paying out half his earnings in taxes.

And his take home pay of $57,300 will really be worth only $7,800 of today's dollars.

Sorry Joe. — From the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Kill Those Thistles

Musk and plumelless thistles can be controlled effectively in the fall as well as in the spring. The thistle seedlings and rosettes present now will flower and produce seed next summer, but a fall treatment with 2,4-D when daytime temperatures are 60 degrees or above will kill the plants and prevent seed production next summer. Normally plants that germinate next spring and summer will not flower and produce seed until the following summer. This means if you spray this fall you will not have to spray next spring.

Fall treatments are most likely to be successful when made in late September and October in areas not densely covered with vegetation. Late treatment is necessary as plants germinating after treatment would escape and produce seed next year. In areas of heavy vegetative cover, it is difficult to get good coverage of the small seedlings.

Under this situation a spring treatment is likely to be more effective as much of the old plant residue will be knocked down during the winter. For fall spraying use 1.5 to 2.0 (active ingredient), 2,4-D per acre. This would be 1 1/2 to 2 quarts of 4 lb. gallon material or 1 to 1-1/3 quarts of 6 lb. gallon material. Lower rates will not give good control.

Fall Treatment of Weeds
Fall is a good time to treat difficult-to-control perennial weeds such as Canada thistle, leaty spurge and field bindweed. The best program for controlling these weeds is to treat twice a year with 2,4-D at 1.5 lb. per acre once in the spring just before flowering and again in the fall before cold weather sets in.

These weeds are somewhat resistant to 2,4-D so repeated treatments are necessary. It is important to treat twice a year. One treatment per year holds the weed in check but does little to reduce the problem. Persistent is necessary to control Canada thistle, leaty spurge and field bindweed.

'Check Fields

For Borers Before Harvest'

Before the harvest season is here, farmers should check corn fields for second generation corn borers, recommends University of Nebraska Lincoln extension entomologist David Keith.

Says Keith, "Fields with high borer populations should be harvested first, provided, of course, that the crop has matured. Delaying harvest of borer-infested fields will increase losses from breakage and lodging."

Corn borer larvae have brown heads and gray bodies with rows of dark spots down the back. Borers tunnel through corn stalks, ear shanks and often feed on the developing and maturing grain. Borer excrement is often pushed outside the tunnels and is readily visible clinging to corn stalks. Tunnels often break over, making it difficult or impossible for the combine header to pick up the ear. Infested ear shanks will break and ears will fall to the ground. The extension entomologist fears that losses can be considerably reduced by early harvest.

Thought for Today

By Rowan Wiltse

"Wise men learn more from fools than fools learn from the wise."

Cato, the Elder

This is as true now as it doubtless was during the early Roman days. The foolish element in our population today provides many lessons in how not to solve a problem or how not to handle a crisis. This is a somewhat negative but effective approach to learning. The wise learn much from observing the intellectual and inept department of the foolish element which is always with us. That the fools do not learn something in turn is the very reason that they are and will remain fools. Whenever our help is requested, we provide it with the compassion, promptness and dependability that has always characterized our organization. Families of any faith or creed, from anywhere in this area, may call upon us with confidence.

Historical Markers In Wayne County Featured in Book

The two historical markers which appear in Wayne County — one on the east edge of Wayne and one on Wayne State's campus — are featured in a new book titled "Brevet's Nebraska Historical Markers and Sites."

Included along with the complete text from both historical markers are two pictures. One is a photograph of Professor James Madison Pile, who founded Nebraska Normal College in Wayne in 1891. The other is an aerial photograph taken of the college before construction of such facilities as Rice Auditorium, Memorial Stadium, Terrace Hall and Berry Hall.

More than 160 metal historical markers dot Nebraska prairie hillsides. They, along with 12 historical sites, are featured in the book. The complete text of each historical marker is accompanied by an illustration, directions on how to reach it and a map showing its location in the state. The 12 historic sites are each featured in special four-page displays of illustrations and information.

The markers and the pictures tell the story of the common people who pushed handcarts, herded cattle and fought prairie fires, along with the famous men who hunted buffalo, blazed trails and founded a state. Most of the markers are cast on five by six foot sheets of aluminum and mounted between heavy posts.

The markers telling about the Ionia "volcano" on the east edge of Newcastle, the Sage brothers of Niobrara and the Tonwanton Indian village just north of Homer also are featured in the book.

Marking of significant historic sites in Nebraska began as early as 1909 when granite markers were laid along the Oregon Trail. Over 160 markers have been erected since 1963.

"Nebraska people have a rich historical legacy. This book about the historical markers of the state will help them learn more about the origins of Nebraska and will assist them in developing a finer appreciation of their Nebraska heritage," said Donald Mackintosh, publisher of Brevet Press, which produced the book.

The 220-page book, published in both softcover and hardcover, should be an ideal guide for a trip through Nebraska, according to the publisher. It is available at bookstores.

Ancient Chinese rainmaking consisted of building a rain dragon and carrying it in procession. If that didn't work, they ripped it to pieces.

Rendering Plant Plans Expansion 'Pioneers' Honored by Ak-Sar-Ben

Prospects for building new facilities at Wayne Rendering Co. are good, according to new owner and manager Wayne Bates.

Bates, speaking to Wayne Kiwanians Monday, said plans have been approved by the federal government to build at the site just north of the present plant location on the east edge of Wayne. The 10-acre lot will include facilities for processing dead animals into pet food.

Hopes were to have the plant completed by now, said Bates, but an uneasy economy forced him to wait. Bates now plans to start construction next spring.

A national company has agreed to let Bates use one of its labels with the title of the product to be "Wayne's" cat or dog food, distinguishing it from another brand with a similar name.

Since Bates took over the plant from Walter Wood about a year ago business has expanded, and presently the plant is processing about 50,000 pounds of dead animals every two weeks. That means the four cookers are in use almost every day.

Bates said that because of the high protein content of animal leftovers there is a good market to process the remains for pig and chicken feed. Besides tankage, as it is referred to, and cowhides, the plant also markets grease. Bates, formerly a compliance officer for the state of Nebraska in Lincoln, said Nebraska only has one pet food plant right now. That one is located in Crete. Before Bates' talk, club president Harland Pankratz announced that Monday the club's new officers for the 1974-75 year will be installed. They are Gene Bigelow, president; Dan Sherry, president elect, and Vern Fairchild, secretary-treasurer.

The Veterans Administration, through its 170 hospitals, plays an important role each year in providing training for about half the nation's more than 9,000 new physicians.

Pioneer farm families from Dixon and Cedar Counties were among 119 Nebraska pioneer farm families honored Monday during the Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show and Rodeo in Omaha.

The families were recognized for owning land for 100 years or more during a special dinner Monday evening before the rodeo performance.

Dixon County farm families honored included Martin C. Koch of Newcastle and Mrs. Catherine Wiedenfeld of Hartington. Cedar County families honored included Mrs. Margaret Hahn, Hartington; Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard J. Arens Kleinschmit, Hartington; William and Melba Kremer & Sons, Crofton; Ed H. Pinkelman, Hartington, and Joe W. and Irma Willingbring Schieffer, Crofton.

The pioneer farm families were selected by Ak-Sar-Ben and the Nebraska Association of County Fair Managers.

VA Q&A

Q — How many veterans and servicemen have received education benefits under the three GI Bills?

A — Nearly 15 million have trained, beginning with the enactment of the World War I original GI Bill. The cost of all three GI Bills through April 1974 was $29.6 billion.

Q — I am a veteran who sold a home purchased with a GI home loan from the Veterans Administration. Can VA restore my loan entitlement?

A — Only if the property was disposed of for compelling reasons such as job transfer, destruction by fire, condemnation proceedings, etc. Before VA can restore entitlement, however, the loan must have been repaid in full, and the VA released from liability for the loan.

Youth Group Plans Meeting on Saturday

The next meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Rural-Urban Youth will be on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Northeast Station near Concord.

All youths over 17 years of age in the area are invited to the meeting of the group, which last met earlier in September for a night at the movies in Sioux City and a pizza party afterwards. The group is currently making plans for their annual "Good Neighbor Party" to be held Oct. 26.

Garden Tips

1. When wilt occurs in the tomato patch, is it best to fumigate?

Do not treat, but set up a rotation plan and go with the resistant varieties. Treatment changes the life of the soil drastically.

2. How can you tell when a honey dew melon is ripe? Watch around the stem end; it is similar to the cantelope or the muskmelon. Pick it a bit on the green side.

3. When spraying for ground ivy, is it best to fertilize before spraying or after?

It really makes no difference. Fertilizing and then spraying two or three weeks later might bring better results.

Monarch Ghia. For '75 Mercury introduces a new precision size luxury car. The Monarch 4-door is over one foot shorter than last year's average mid-size car. Yet it has more headroom, front and rear, and just 1.5 inches less legroom. The idea behind the new precision size Monarch is simple: design a moderately priced car trim enough to get good gas mileage. Yet roomy enough to seat 5 adults in comfort.
