

Carroll Voters Dump Fluoridation, 73-3

Carroll became the second Wayne County community to turn down fluoridation within recent weeks, soundly defeating the proposal in Wednesday's special election, 73-3.

The voter turnout was exactly half of the registered voters in the community, according to village clerk Alice Rohde. There were no absentee or disabled ballots issued for the election, she said.

Hoskins voters in the Nov. 5th general election defeated fluoridation nearly as soundly, 59-29.

Wayne is the only community in the county to approve fluoridation, giving the issue 699-691 approval in the general election. However, opponents of fluoridation are expected to ask for a re-count.

Windside voters will decide in a special election on Tuesday, Dec. 10, whether they wish to boost the level of fluoride in their water supply.

Nothing official has been decided as far as an election is concerned in Sholes; the only other community in the county which is affected by the state law which will require communities to increase the level of fluoride in their water supplies beginning the first of the year.

Sholes, Carroll and Windside were late in asking that their fluoridation elections be included in the general election ballot, forcing them to hold special elections before the first of the year.

The state law passed by the 1973 legislature requires all communities in the state to increase the level of fluoride in their water supplies if it falls below a minimum level stipulated in the law. However, communities have been turning down fluoridation issues in overwhelming numbers in elections during the past several months. Only Wayne and Lauret have approved fluoridation in this area, while Hoskins, Carroll, Wakefield, Concord, Dixon and several other towns have turned it down.

Minibus Is Topic For Council

Tuesday night's city council meeting in Wayne will include a public hearing on the subject of the city purchasing a minibus for public transportation.

The hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m., half an hour after the council meeting begins in the council chambers at the city auditorium.

City councilmen have been considering purchasing a small bus to use throughout the city, but they have held off making any decision on the issue until after citizens have been given an opportunity to voice their opinions at a public hearing.

Also scheduled for Tuesday night's meeting is a report by city administrator Fred Brink on the estimated cost of fluoridation equipment necessary to inject fluoride into the city's water supplies.

The council is not expected to make any decision on purchasing that equipment, according to mayor Freeman Decker, because of the re-count of the Nov. 5th voting in Wayne which See COUNCIL, page 5

Hoskins Left Without Water By Vandalism

Hoskins' water supply ran down the drain after somebody opened five water hydrants and let the water gush out sometime late Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, according to the Wayne County sheriff's office.

About 30,000 gallons of water was lost and the community was left for several hours without water pressure until pumps replaced the water which drained away, sheriff Don Weible said.

If a fire had broken out during that time, volunteer firemen would have been unable to put it out, he noted.

An automobile belonging to Hoskins volunteer fire chief Herman Opler had the windshield and door window on one side broken about the same time as the hydrants were opened, possibly by the same person or persons, the sheriff's office said. In addition, a telephone wire was ripped off in a telephone booth in the community.

The vandalism was discovered about 3 a.m. Wednesday by a woman returning home. She called village policeman Arvon Kruger.

Wiltse: We Need Surveys

ROWAN WILTSE plots out sections of the city for Chamber of Commerce manager Howard Witt, left, and Kiwanian Dan Sherry to cover during Wednesday's efforts to pick up the community-wide surveys distributed in Wayne on Honey Sunday.

Wayne residents are going to have to cooperate if the recent community attitude survey is to be a success.

Rowan Wiltse, one of the local residents active in getting the survey drawn up, said many of the surveys have not been picked up and are needed to get a good sampling of opinion from throughout the community.

"If people will just call the Chamber of Commerce, somebody will come out and pick the surveys up," said Wiltse, who will take over as Chamber president at the end of this year.

He also urged local residents who still have surveys to drop them off at the Chamber office, Sav-Mor Drugs or either the First National Bank or State National Bank.

"The survey isn't going to be worth anything if we don't get almost all of the surveys back," he warned.

Approximately 1,100 of the questionnaires were distributed to homes in the community on Honey Sunday, but only slightly more than 400 were collected by local Kiwanians, Lions and other volunteers on Wednesday and Thursday when they attempted to canvass the community.

In addition, all students in the 108 member senior class and between 100 and 150 farm families in the area will receive the questionnaires this week so they can fill them out to get a better sampling of what young people and rural families think about the community.

Volunteers who distributed the surveys on Honey Sunday missed some homes and were unable to leave the surveys at those, according to Wiltse. Those who were missed are welcome to fill out the survey, he noted, and all they have to do is call the Chamber office and ask for one or stop at the office and pick one up.

The questionnaire is several pages long but can be completed in a few minutes.

It asks a variety of questions about such subjects as employment, housing, industry and the like.

If enough of the questionnaires are returned, they will be given to officials in the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, which worked with Wiltse and others in preparing the surveys. State officials will feed information from the surveys into computers and put the results into a small See SURVEYS, page 5

Fluoridation Re-Count Now Assured

All votes cast in Wayne's recent fluoridation election will be re-counted to see if the final vote tally is correct.

Wes Plueger and the Committee Against Fluoridation in Wayne filed an application in Wayne County district court on Thursday asking for the re-count.

County clerk Norris Weible set the re-count for 9 a.m. Friday. It will probably take three hours or less to go through all 1,390 votes cast in the Nov. 5th election, he said.

Wayne voters gave approval to fluoridation by a slim 699-691 margin. The application filed in district court contends that "illegal votes were received and illegal votes were rejected" in sufficient numbers to change the result of the election. It also contends there were "errors in the proceedings of the board of canvassers" which counted the votes.

Weible said he will have to count the votes, something he thought the canvassing board would have to do until he checked a state law covering re-counts.

It will be the first re-count Weible has conducted in his eight years as county clerk.

Expected to be present for the actual counting of the ballots are Plueger, Wayne attorney John Addison, who is representing the people asking for the re-count, and city attorney Budd Bornhoff. Others may be selected to be present by those seeking the re-count, Weible noted.

Court action could possibly be taken by those opposed to fluoridating Wayne's water supplies if the re-count doesn't change the result of the recent election, according to Weible.

Unless the re-count changes things, Wayne is one of several dozen communities in the state which will add fluoride to their water supplies beginning next year as required by a state law passed by the 1973 legislature. The great majority of the communities which have voted on fluoridation in recent months have rejected it, however. The state law provides that communities which vote against fluoridation do not have to add fluoride to their water.

"Most communities in the state have some natural fluoride in their water, but those which have less than stipulated in the state law have to boost their fluoride levels unless voters say otherwise."

The two other Wayne County communities voting on fluoridation recently rejected it, Carroll by a 73-3 margin Wednesday and Hoskins by a 59-29 margin Nov. 5. Windside will vote on fluoridation Tuesday, Dec. 10.

Vacation Is Close

Students in the Wayne-Carroll school system will get a two-day Thanksgiving vacation this week.

All students in the Wayne and Carroll schools will be dismissed at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon, according to superintendent Francis Haun. Buses will begin their afternoon runs at that time, he added. Classes will resume Monday morning.

2 Escaped Prisoners Caught in Wayne County

Two prisoners who escaped from the Thurston County jail in Pender Thursday night were arrested in Wayne County shortly after 5 p.m. Friday.

Thurston County sheriff Clyde Storie said Wakefield policeman Charles Olesen arrested the two on Highway 14 about four and a half miles south of Wakefield after they were spotted by three Pender youths, Brian Kai, Dennis Baker and Randy Bird.

The three youths went to the Dean Greve farm home and called the Wakefield police department after spotting the two while driving on the highway.

Back in jail are Guillermo Santanna, 26, and Lindsey Lowry, 21, both of Sioux City.

They were being held on charges of armed robbery and kidnapping after holding up a store in West Point on Oct. 25. The store owner was kidnapped and later shot during attempts to capture the two.

Two other individuals involved in that armed robbery and kidnapping had been held in the Wayne County jail but were released several days ago.

Santanna and Lowry armed themselves with two 357 magnum revolvers after they overpowered a Thurston County deputy sheriff as he was moving them from a dayroom to a cell for the night about 10 p.m. Thursday. The deputy, unharmed, was locked in a cell by the two.

Another prisoner in the jail was able to get out of his cell after the two broke out of jail and called Storie.

Storie, county sheriff since January of 1968, said he had excellent help from surrounding county sheriffs, city policemen and state patrolmen in attempts to apprehend the two. Among those helping out were the Wayne and Dixon County sheriffs offices and Bill Watson, state patrol man stationed in Wayne.

Storie said roadblocks were put up on all highways and county roads leading out of Pender within hours after the jail break. Also, almost every family in Pender was notified that evening by telephone or in person that the two men had broken out of jail, armed themselves and were considered very dangerous.

He said the roadblocks and other efforts at apprehending the two could have been made without the excellent help from surrounding law enforcement officials.

Searching for the two continued throughout Thursday night and Friday, even to the point of bringing search dogs from Douglas County, said Storie.

The dogs were able to pick up the scent of the escaped prisoners and gave law officials the general direction the prisoners were headed, he said.

Storie said he and those helping with the search were fairly certain the two had not escaped from the Pender area because the dogs indicated they were on foot and because of the roadblocks.

Storie and one of his deputies searched for the escaped prisoners in airplanes Friday but were unable to spot them.

Storie said Wakefield policeman Olesen was assisted in arresting the two by an area farmer, Lloyd Hugel, man, and special deputy Larry McQuistan. Olesen was holding the escaped prisoners at gun point when they arrived, Storie said.

One of the two had thrown his gun away but the other one had his gun in his belt under a coat when they were arrested by Olesen, said Storie. The one who still had his gun may have tried to use it when Olesen made the arrest, he added.

Storie said this was the first major jail break at the Thurston County jail in the past two or three years. There have been several prisoners who have escaped from the jail in the past six years, but only these two and one other prisoner escaped by overpowering somebody at the jail, he said.

A close circuit television system has put an end to prisoners digging through the wall in the jail, he said, and a two-man system used with prisoners considered dangerous has prevented prisoners from overpowering the jailers. The deputy who was moved, Santanna and Lowry Thursday night made the mistake of not waiting for another lawman to help in moving them from the dayroom area to their cells, Storie said.

The jail is in the courthouse, a former schoolhouse built in 1896 and converted to jail use in 1925.

The two broke into a cabinet in the sheriff's office and armed themselves with revolvers after locking up a deputy in a cell, according to Storie. Then they broke out of the building and ran away on foot.

In the Oct. 25th incident, Santanna and Lowry, Janelle Roubideaux and Allen DeCora reportedly held up a West Point liquor store, abducted store employee Carl Petel and fled from the scene.

DeCora, 18, of Sioux City, and Roubideaux, 18, of Yankton, were arrested shortly after the robbery in Cumming County. Santanna and Lowry were arrested later in the same day in a field near Scribner after a shoot-out. Petel had been left in the car with a gun wound in the neck.

OBSERVATIONS

A courtesy to the losers

Nebraska law apparently stipulates that losers in an election re-count have to pay for the salaries of officials necessary to conduct the re-count.

We think our state senators should consider passing a law which makes the governmental unit which is involved — state, county, city or the like — responsible for picking up that tab in extremely close elections. North Dakota has such a law, and it will come into play if former governor William Guzy asks for a re-count in his race with Milton Young for Young's seat in the United States Senate.

We ask our state senators to consider such a law because we feel the minority in any very close election — such as the one in Wayne on fluoridation — should have a right to ask their governmental officials to double check their figures to make sure no errors were made. We don't feel that the losers in close elections should have to foot the bill for that re-count, for they are only asking that the officials prove to them that the results of the election are what they say they are. That seems little more than an extension of the original election, which is, of course, paid for by the governmental unit involved.

The winners in those close elections should be willing to help pay for a re-count as a courtesy to the losers and in an attempt to make sure there are no doubts about who won the election.

The major problem we can see with such a law is that re-counts would be called for in almost every election. The law could avoid such a problem by including in it a stipulation that it applies only when, for example, the margin between the winners and losers is one per cent or less of the total vote. In the case of Wayne, such a law would come into play because there was a difference of eight votes in total vote of nearly 1,400. That's slightly over one-half of one per cent. And that's an awful slim margin of victory. — Norvin Hansen.

A double standard

The President promulgates. "Bite the bullet." Congress retorts that Ford is only offering tough turkey. With the economy headed for a recession, it seems that college students have already had enough tough turkey while the government wastes the entire meager living allowance or below the defined poverty level and the government is draining its citizens of tax money needed in the name of "democracy." Are we paying for democracy, or allowing someone else to superfluously squander our very lives?

Mr. Nixon's salary was $200,000 a year while he only paid $278 in taxes in 1971. To operate the White House, we pay $70 million a year. Only the very rich are able to hire any type of domestic service, while Nixon had a staff of 548 persons with a payroll of $9.1 million not counting carpenters, plumbers, electricians, flower arrangers, housekeepers, butlers, and cooks at 1.1 million dollars a year. Other outdoor workers cost $200,000 a year. Yes, biting the bullet.

"Americans, don't waste fuel with those big luxurious Chevys, and travel only when you absolutely have to." Sticking to our governmental double set standards, Nixon traveled with six jets, the newest costing 10 million dollars. Nixon, in his trip to Romania, air-lifted not only State Department china, White House crystal and vermeil flower bowls for the luncheon he gave, but also five butlers, 26 stewards, and an all American menu ranging from Florida crab mousse to New Jersey blueberries.

When Spiro Agnew traveled around the world, he took 14 persons on four 707's. A fifth cargo plane carried two bullet proof limosines. The total cost, about $1.2 million. For one trip, that's tough turkey. The White House squanders only a fraction of the amount we use for our national defense. With Russia threatening the world, I can see why the Air Force wants $11 billion to build the new B-1 bomber. Imagine, with that bomber we would have four times the amount of nuclear power needed to destroy Russia and China. If we were to get into a nuclear war we could only destroy all those people once. Does four times enough power make us safer than three times. No.

Defense contractors seem barely able to beat out ordinary costs. The Morris Industries, Inc. of Los Angeles was caught cheating the government and was forced to return $2 million. They still ended 1973 with a 71 per cent profit. Of the 131 defense firms, 94 made profits exceeding 50 per cent of their net worth, 49 made profits exceeding 100 per cent, 22 made over 200 per cent, and 4 made over 500 per cent profit.

This editorial comment appeared in last Monday's issue of the Wayne State, weekly publication by students at Wayne State College. It was written by Kirk Hutton, a sophomore from Plainview.

In a study for the Center for Defense Information, General Dynamics was paid over $128,000 per each standard missile built in 1966. The next year General Dynamics had to face competitive bidding to get the contract. The price fell to almost $54,000 per missile. We blew almost $74,000 for each missile made in 1966 alone.

Governmental misuse of tax money is an age old problem. "It's gone on for years," he took 14 persons on four 707's. A fifth cargo plane carried two bullet proof limosines. The total cost, about $1.2 million. For one trip, that's tough turkey. The White House squanders only a fraction of the amount we use for our national defense. With Russia threatening the world, I can see why the Air Force

ONE OF the ladies taking the first aid course being offered every Thursday night at the Northeast Station east of Concord came up with a great one-liner last week.

Instructor Roy Stohler of Concord was talking about the different things that can be used to make splints for people who have suffered broken bones. A wife of one of the men taking the course had used a narrow cardboard box as a splint for the lower arm, prompting Stohler to remark, "We've got Quaker boxes up and ready to ship."

The wife quickly added, "No return ticket!"

She was kidding, of course, for the two have been married for quite a few years. Pictures taken of those first aid students in action last week will be printed in Thursday's issue of the newspaper.

For some reason, it's one heckuva difficult job to come up with some good pictures of that project.

Pierce-Hoogner Vows Spoken

The Northeast Patio of the Holiday Inn in Lincoln was the scene of the wedding Nov. 9 uniting in marriage Carroll Pierce of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens of Lincoln, to Joedy Hoogner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoogner of Wayne.

The Rev. James A. Freeman officiated of the double ring ceremony and Kay Hikes and Jim Butler sang "Color My World," "If," "Anne Song" and "Wedding Song." Pianist was Patrick Bryant. All are of Lincoln.

The bride appeared at her father's side in a full-length off-white gown. The neckline and butterfly sleeves of the long flowing gown were hand embroidered with pink flowers and the waist a wreath of pink pompons and similax in her hair. Her bouquet of similax greenery hung to the floor and was accented with pompons.

Maid of honor was Connie Sullivan of Omaha and bridesmaids were Vicki Heggen of Lincoln and Marcia Hansen, sister of the bride, also of Lincoln. They wore green floral print acrylic knit gowns fashioned with a halter neckline and palazzo pant with matching jackets. They each carried a nosegay with a single large pink mum.

Best man was Ted Armbruster of Lincoln, and groomsmen were Dave Sukup of Verdigris and Joel Piper of Omaha. Ushers were Jim Homam of Lincoln, Dave Tietgen of Chicago and Larry Magnuson of Des Moines, Ia.

The men wore dark green tuxedos with velvet trim. Marcy and Maggi Hansen of Lincoln, nieces of the bride, and Susan Sorensen of Wayne were flower girls.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length mint green polyester knit with border print and Mrs. Hoogner wore a floor-length dress in mint green crepe. Both wore a corsage of white mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stevens of Kansas City, Kan. greeted the 150 guests who attended the reception held at the Holiday Inn, following the ceremony. Guests were registered by Becky Bond and Jean Simmons, both of Modesto, Calif.

Gifts were arranged by Leslie Nelson and Susan Burns, both of Omaha. Jackie Burns and Patsy Nelson cut and served the cake and Josephine McDonald poured. Punch was served by Bernice Francis. All are of Omaha.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Lincoln Northeast High School. The bridegroom graduated from Wayne High School in 1969 and from the University of Nebraska in 1974. He is presently employed with Black and Veatch of Kansas City, Mo.

The couple are at home at 8928 Bluejacket, Apt. 1110, Overland Park, Kan. 66214.

The committee will hold their next meeting Dec. 16 at the LeRoy Simpsons. Daniel Silva, this year's foreign exchange student from Brazil, will show slides. Families who are interested in housing an exchange student are invited to attend.

Daniel will be available to speak to groups after Jan. 1. Clubs or organizations who would like to hear him should contact Mrs. Larry Schultz of Wayne.

Mrs. Hendrickson Discusses Antiques At Monday Mrs.

At a meeting of the Monday Mrs. Extension Club held in the home of Mrs. Gary Pick Monday evening, Mrs. Dennis Baier and Mrs. Terry Bartling introduced Mrs. Max Hendrickson who presented a program on antiques.

Mrs. Hendrickson showed samples of carnival glass, pressed glass, cut glass and heisey glassware, and gave helpful hints on purchasing antique items at auctions.

Each member of the club brought an antique of their own, including linens, pictures, old boxes and an El Grasso boat. Mrs. Baier and Mrs. Bartling showed members how to turn inexpensive antiques into attractive accent pieces for the home.

There were 16 members attending and Mrs. Robert Jordan was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Richard Ditman was elected citizenship leader for 1975.

The club will meet at 7 p.m. Dec. 16 in the home of Mrs. Terry Janke for a Christmas party and $1.50 gift exchange.

Height, Speed Part of Winside's New Look

There's going to be some new additions to Winside High's basketball team this year, starting with some height and some speed.

The height comes in the form of a Scott Glemeyer, a junior transfer from Wayne High.

"He's got the height we want," pointed out second year head coach Korlin Luff, "but Scott needs confidence and competition to improve."

The speed will come from returning guards Tyler Frevert and Bryan Denkiau. Both juniors will break for the quick shot when the opportunity comes. Luff said, "Otherwise, we'll stick with last year's philosophy - set up for the good shot."

Besides returning veterans Frevert and Denkiau, the coach will have veterans, Terry Luff, the only senior, and Bob Hoffman, a junior. Hoffman, the only starter from last year's 3-15 squad, combined with Frevert to lead the club in scoring last LUFF year, averaging 30 points per game. GLEMEYER and HOFFMAN Asmus and another improving player, 6-1 Brad Brockman, could be instrumental under the boards.

Luff is hoping 5-9 Keith Willis, also a junior, will provide some of the speed and quickness needed to get the ball down the court for the big plays.

Winside's schedule: December 13 at Ponca, 4 Wakefield, 13 Wynot, 17 at Osmond, 20 at Hartington; January 4 to 10 at Coleridge tourney, 17 at Coleridge, 18 Wausa, 24 at Wynot, 25 Hartington, 28 Osmond, 31 Coleridge; February 4 at Wausa, 8 at Beemer, 14 Newcastle, 20 Emerson-Hubbard.

Luff expects the pair to be among scoring leaders again this year, but he is hoping for help from his predominantly junior club.

Of the 25 players out, there are 10 juniors. Kevin Marotz and Dave Asmus are 6-2 and have "improved over last year," Luff added. Marotz is a good jumper as well as having good size, the head man said, adding that

L-C Conference

Undecided About Girls Basketball

The majority of Lewis and Clark Conference schools will wait until next year to decide if the schools will compete in girls basketball.

During a conference meeting Thursday night at Laurel, members decided to keep girls basketball on the intramural level, said Jim Winch of Winside.

Despite three of the 12 conference teams sporting girls teams this year, the teams are Allen Winnebago and Homer.

In other business, the members voted to remain a 12-member league, rejecting membership bids from Beemer and Bancroft. Wakefield withdrew its application after the West Husker realigned its eight-team division, Winch said.

Concerning high school track, members voted to award first, second and third-place medals rather than a first-place only.

The conference voted setting up a wrestling championship since only four schools - Winside, Osmond, Hartington and Wynot - have wrestling teams.

Outdoor Study Being Offered

A new outdoor environmental education program open to public school systems and other educational organizations is being sponsored by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, according to Gary Gabelhouse, the commission's conservation education coordinator.

Patterned after the Outward Bound program and other learning experiences, the one-week program will be based at Chadron State Park.

"Basically, an outdoor encounter is an expedition-like educational session, utilizing the outdoors as a learning environment. Outdoor skills like backpacking, cross country skiing and personal reliance will be stressed to build confidence and environmental awareness," according to Gabelhouse.

The program is aimed at all types of educational groups, from high school students to teachers. Several winter and spring sessions are planned, with expanded scheduling as the program gets underway.

Schools and education organizations interested in participating in the outdoor encounter program or obtaining more information should contact Gabelhouse.

Allen High 'Starting From Scratch'

Allen High basketball coach Robert Moore will be starting from scratch when his Eagles open their season.

One of eight of last year's 10 lettermen, leaving the third-year head man with two veterans and a host of relatively inexperienced players. Seniors Don Kliver and Paul Snyder will likely guide this year's team, Moore pointed out, but neither has very much varsity experience.

Both started as forwards in only four ball games during last year's 7-12 campaign. According to Moore, the lack of experience will shift a lot of the workload to the rest of the team.

Moore has 29 players out for the year, including eight seniors, seven juniors, four sophomores and 10 freshmen. The head men will be looking to his seniors to help fill the other three slots. They include 6-1 Dave Dunn, 6-0 Brian Hirschert and 5-11 Loren Book, who played a lot of junior varsity ball last year.

Two juniors who may play a strong part on Moore's team are sidelined with injuries suffered during football season. Rick Chase may not report for two weeks after sustaining shoulder injury during the latter part of the season, and Jeff Creamer may not see any action unless he recovers from severe chest injuries. "They were our only real guards," Moore added.

Moore hopes to have his team out more this year if his club can stay healthy, otherwise, he might have to look toward freshmen for help. Two freshmen players that might figure in the starting five later in the season are Brent Chase and Brian Lubbert. Both have "good cracks" as starting guards if they improve in junior varsity ball, the head coach pointed out.

"We want to play credible ball and improve before tournament play and districts," Moore noted. "During the season we'll work on the fundamentals. If we do good in that department, then we should be competitive."

Behind Snyder—in punts were Steve Shortl, kicking 17 times for a 22.0 average, and Doug Kliver, kicking seven times for a 19.6 average.

The college will have staff members on hand to discuss all aspects of the college, answer questions and provide information about what college is like. Parents and students are strongly urged to attend, said Carlson. Since the cost of financing higher education is rising, it is becoming increasingly important for parents of high school seniors to apply for financial assistance and scholarship aid, Carlson explained.

Two forms must be completed before the college or technical school can consider students for scholarship-financial aid assistance—an institutional form designated by the college or technical school and a parents' confidential statement. The former is a brief statement of financial assets and liabilities of parents and the student, the latter a more detailed financial asset and liability form, usually resembling questions found on federal income tax forms.

The people who have been working on conducting the survey feel that some community problems can be solved if they can find out what residents of the city think about certain subjects.

They hope to learn, for example, whether tax money should be used to help attract industry to Wayne, whether there are enough job opportunities available to people who want to work, whether more emphasis should be placed on cultural activities, how well the service organizations are fulfilling their roles. Whether we need to improve such services as law enforcement and the like.

Health Tips

Parents can help prevent a child from ever being involved in narcotic tragedies, according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

The individual must accept and act upon his full responsibility as a parent, including laying down rules to guide the youngster and exercising discipline when necessary.

The parent must establish controls such as curfews and know where the young person is and what his activities are. The parent must also be concerned with his child's friends and acquaintances. Responsibilities of a parent are unique and the relationship he establishes with his child is of utmost importance, the association says. He must show there are better ways to experience the richness of life than that of resorting to mind-altering drugs.

VA Q&A

Q. Do Veterans Administration hospitals and clinics treat reservists injured while reporting to, or returning from military training?

THANKSGIVING

The Tradition of Freedom... Our Cherished Legacy

Freedom is a tradition in our great nation. From the earliest beginnings, the courage of our Pilgrim forefathers made it possible. The will and faith of our people have kept it alive. It will remain ours with vigilance and dedication. So—the past, the present and the future are inextricably woven together. Through freedom. Today we give thanks for this precious legacy. We remember and cherish our tradition. We pray that freedom will become the inalienable right of all nations.

Turning Into Elves

ART STUDENTS in Mrs. Shirley Fleer's class at Winside High School quickly are turning into elves as the students continue forming, cleaning and painting their ceramic art pieces for family Christmas gifts. About seven students from Mrs. Fleer's advanced class spend extra time, both during study periods and after school, working on the gifts. According to Mrs. Fleer, the students spend most of their time carefully dabbing on paints for the right color blend. Mrs. Fleer, who has taught the course for the past two years, said the students purchase the ceramics already casted from a mold. After cleaning the piece with a knife the mold is fired to harder before painting. On the left Mrs. Fleer examines the statue (center) being worked on by Nancy Morris. On the right, Pam Hoemann carefully adds a touch of paint.

Penalty Possible For Not Reporting Changes

People who don't report changes in circumstances that affect their supplemental security income payments may have a penalty deducted from future payments, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over, blind or disabled. Eligibility for payments and payment amounts can be affected by changes in income, place of residence, marital status, and other circumstances.

"People have 30 days to report such changes to any social security office," he said. "Under the law, failure to report changes or delay in reporting changes can mean reductions in supplemental security income payments."

The penalty is $25 for the first failure or delay, $50 for the second, and $100 for each subsequent failure to report.

The penalty isn't applied if people couldn't help reporting late or weren't at fault for not reporting changes in their circumstances," Branch said.

Also, people who make a false statement that causes them to get money not rightfully due may be prosecuted for fraud, he added.

People getting supplemental security income payments can get information about reporting changes in their circumstances by calling or writing any social security office.

The supplemental security income program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Wayne Farmers At NFO Meeting

Floyd Glassmeyer, Wayne County NFO president, and Steve Glassmeyer, county NFO vice chairman, attended the livestock producers meeting held in South Sioux City last Monday. Both are from Wayne.

The meeting was held to discuss and present ideas to help livestock producers fight present problems created by such things as rising cattle imports, and too many lightweight cattle being marketed. It was pointed out that organization is the key factor in fighting these problems.

The meeting was attended by 600 farmers from Nebraska and surrounding states.

There were 21 Nebraska veterans on Veterans Day. Registration, employment rolls in August, and 100% double the average for other federal agencies.

Olsen: Today's Farms Are 'Big Business'

By Dr. Duane Olsen
UN-L Extension Economist

Through the 1960's had a direct influence upon the economy of rural towns. Farm City Weeks in that period featured articles and speakers emphasizing the key role of agriculture as a basic industry whose exports bring new money to the economy of a community, including main street. The multiplier effect of agriculture upon increasing income and employment levels of the entire community has been presented in many "success stories."

But that's not the whole message, for those multipliers also reflect the interdependence bet ween the farm and city sectors. The modern farmer makes extensive use of off-farm inputs for both production and marketing. For the period 1950 to 1973, the USDA's Economic Research Service reports dramatic increases in the quantity of farm inputs while farm productivity per unit of input rose by 53 percent.

Today's complex agriculture in which farm enterprises are big business in terms of investment and operational capital are a far cry from the frontier farm—a relatively self-sufficient unit with a very small income and employment multiplier.

The food supply for the U.S. and world both today and tomorrow will require a productive agriculture utilizing both farm and city resources efficiently.

Emphasis on these direct economic relationships has caused some oversight of secondary effects upon schools, churches and local governments, which serve farm and city residents alike.

In a recent issue of the American Journal of Agricultural Economics, an Iowa State University researcher has attempted to examine the interdependence between the welfare of rural communities and the number and size of farms.

Three alternate size farms—small (less than $10,000 annual sales), medium and large (more than $40,000)—were described for 150 agricultural areas across the U.S.

The results emphasize the tradeoff between variables:

The small farms required more labor and capital than the large farms, but small farms brought more total income to rural communities with a relatively modest cost to the consumer in higher food costs.

The researcher recommends farms of medium size to provide adequate incomes for farm families, for non-farm rural incomes and reasonable consumer food costs.
