

Baby Pigs Need Iron

Pigs are born deficient in iron, says a Northeast Station swine specialist, and their survival is in jeopardy without supplemental iron.

Bob Fritsch, swine expert at the Station near Concord, notes that the small pigs are in danger of dying because the sow's milk is nearly devoid of iron.

Pigs deficient in iron often develop diarrhea, one of the major killers of baby pigs, he points out.

Several management decisions are important regarding administering supplemental iron to the pig, according to Fritsch.

The timing is important, and the first injection should be given somewhere between 24 and 48 hours after birth. Reports indicate that iron source or type are important since the pig cannot use all sources equally. For example, it is reported that iron dextran is utilized much better by the pig that is iron-dextrin. The difference is due to the chemical makeup of the two sources of iron and the pig's ability to break them down.

While iron dextran usually costs slightly more than dextrin, the results frequently justify the difference, Fritsch says.

Some producers routinely give a second injection when the pigs are about three weeks old. See PIGS, page 6.

State Suggests Sophomores Get Booster Shots

Mrs. Barbara Dinges, nurse for the Wayne-Carroll school system, has announced that the state health department is recommending that all high school sophomores receive their DPT (diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus) and polio booster shots before the end of the 1974-75 school year.

Parents with students in the 10th grade will be receiving sheets which they are to sign and return to the school after their child has been immunized.

Mrs. Dinges also said that for the first time at Wayne, physical examinations will be given to all students in kindergarten through 12th grades. The examinations, mainly to check the student's eyes, teeth and blood pressure, will be given in the upper grades first, said the nurse, who hopes to be able to examine all students before the school year ends.

Only youngsters in kindergarten through fifth grade received physical examinations in previous years.

4-H Is Subject Of Meetings in Dixon County

Six meetings have been scheduled throughout Dixon County during February and March to explain the 4-H program and to explore the possibility of organizing new clubs and enrolling more boys and girls in existing clubs.

The meetings, all of which will begin at 7:30 in the evening, are slated for the Northeast Station near Concord on Feb. 17, the Legion Hall in Ponca on Feb. 20, the Wakefield elementary school on March 3, the Legion Hall in Newcastle on March 4, the fire department meeting room in Emerson on March 6 and the Legion Hall in Allen on March 11.

Opportunities in 4-H are good now than ever before, Joycel Smith, area home economist, said in announcing the meeting dates and sites.

Over 100 projects from animal science to photography, from entomology to sewing and from nutrition to model rocketry can open new avenues for hobbies, careers, community service, personal growth and fun, she noted.

Regardless of the project, she pointed out, the chief aim of 4-H is to develop character, citizenship and leadership by working with others.

Four-H is open to youths between the ages of eight and 19 as of Jan. 1, 1975, she said.

Youths interested in learning more about 4-H and how to join should attend one of the meetings or contact the Dixon County extension office at the Northeast Station, she noted.

'Sales of '75 License Tags Running Slow'

Owners of vehicles in Wayne County who have not purchased their 1975 license tags had better get that job done before too many more weeks, warns county treasurer Leon Meyer.

Meyer said Friday that sales of the license tags is running behind sales of a year ago. Some 2,330 tags had been purchased by Friday this year, more than 200 fewer than the 2,559 which had been purchased on the same date a year ago, he said.

New license tags have to be on all motor vehicles by March 1 or drivers run the danger of being ticketed for driving with expired tags, according to Meyer.

He said vehicle owners should come to his office as soon as possible because the month of February is already running out and because the courthouse will be closed two days this month for holidays. Those holidays are Lincoln's Birthday on Feb. 12 and Washington's Birthday on Feb. 17.

Vehicle owners should bring the tax slip they received from the county assessor's office, their vehicle registration and their tax payment when they come to his office to pick up their 1975 license tags, said Meyer.

Automobile license tags cost $15.50 while tags for truck licenses begin at 18.50, Meyer noted.

Meyer also advised persons who have to renew their driving licenses to do so as soon as possible. Lincoln's Birthday falls on a Wednesday and will result in no driving examinations being given at the courthouse that day.

Driving license examiners are at the courthouse each Wednesday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Drivers have to renew their license each year their age is divisible by four, Meyer noted. They have 90 days before their birthday to renew their license, he added.

Parents with children in the vocal or instrumental music programs at Wayne High School and Wayne Middle School are invited to attend the Wayne-Carroll Music Booster meeting scheduled for the high school lecture hall tonight (Monday).

The meeting will get underway at 8 p.m.

Co-chairmen of the refreshment committee are Mrs. Dale Johansen and Mrs. William Kugler.

Extra Cash Awaits Some War Vets in Wayne County

Residents of Wayne County who are veterans of World War I, World War II or the Korean Conflict will be on the receiving end of some extra cash this year.

The money, approximately $13,000, will go to some 120 veterans in the local area who have kept their GI insurance policies in force.

It represents their share of a $33.6 million distribution of dividends that will be made to policyholders by the Veterans Administration.

The total is $31.8 million more than was paid out last year. The record amount is attributed principally to the fact insurance trust funds have been earning more because of higher interest rates and therefore have more money available for dividends.

In Wayne County, where the latest count shows a total of 820 World War and Korean veterans, only about 21 per cent of them will be getting checks, the figures indicate. They are the ones who held onto their policies.

Vietnam vets, because of the kind of insurance they have, are not eligible at this time.

The bulk of the money, over $307 million of it, will go to the 3,720,000 World War II veterans who hold National Service Life Insurance policies. Another $22 million will be divided among 13,000 World War I veterans. The remainder will go to 566,000 who were in the Korean war and have Veterans Special Life Insurance. See WAR VETS, page 6.

'Atomic World' Scheduled for Wayne High

A demonstration lecture on atomic energy and its uses, operated by Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD), will be presented at Wayne High School on Wednesday, Feb. 17.

The program, "This Atomic World," is designed to acquaint students with basic principles of nuclear energy, its sources and its role in agriculture, industry, medicine and research.

Jim Douglass, NPPD information specialist, will present the assembly program explaining in student terms the structure of atoms and the operation of nuclear reactors as well as such concepts as radiation, fission and fusion.

Douglass has completed extensive training at Oak Ridge Associated Universities in Oak Ridge, Tenn. and holds a B. A. in social science and business from Kearney State College.

Specially designed electronic equipment is used during the 40-minute program to demonstrate sources of radiation, how nuclear energy is harnessed to furnish electric power for cities, and the use of radioisotopes to aid in diagnosis and treatment of diseases and to learn more about life processes.

SUN Officials to Meet In City Tuesday Night

Officials of the State University of Nebraska (SUN) will visit Wayne Tuesday evening to report on the pilot offering of two multimedia college-at-home courses and to announce plans for offerings of four courses to begin in early March.

The meeting, scheduled for the city library basement meeting room at 7 p.m., is one of nearly 50 scheduled around the state this week by SUN officials.

Tuesday's meeting is open to community representatives, civic leaders, businessmen, education leaders and anybody else interested in the program.

SUN is a university program designed for the person who wants to continue his or her education but who cannot take advantage of college-level opportunities on existing campuses.

Educational television, news paper and other forms of media are used in the program.

Milton Hassel, director of SUN operations in Nebraska, said the visits to communities around the state have been planned to give Nebraska a first-hand report on SUN's experience thus far and on its plans for the future.

SUN began operations in Nebraska last fall with pilot offerings of two courses: Accounting I and Introductory Psychology. Soon, it will repeat offerings of the first two courses and begin new offerings of two others.

Since there are no registration requirements, anyone may enroll in SUN courses. Costs are comparable to those for courses on campuses of other public colleges and universities, according to SUN officials.

Council, Hospital Board Work Out Ambulance 'Problem'

By NORVIN HANSEN

Members of Wayne's city council and hospital board Thursday afternoon worked out their differences—if there were any—concerning operation of the ambulance for the next several months.

The hospital board assured the council that the ambulance would continue running until the new hospital is opened about six months from now, and the council assured the hospital board that the city would pick up the monthly loss if that becomes necessary.

The meeting was called after city administrator Fred Brink informed the council Tuesday night that hospital administrator Mrs. Jim Thomas told him the hospital would not continue financing the ambulance at a loss without financial help from the city.

Mrs. Thomas said during Thursday's meeting, however, that she did not tell Brink the hospital would not continue operating the ambulance.

She noted that the hospital has operated the ambulance for nearly eight years and will continue doing so until the new hospital opens on the northeast edge of the community later this year. She pointed out, however, that she considers it a city responsibility to help finance the ambulance now that the county has dropped out of the three-party ambulance agreement, causing a monthly loss somewhere in the neighborhood of $400 to $500.

Wayne County ceased being a party in the ambulance agreement the first of this year. Prior to then the county had contributed about $100 a week toward its operation, according to Mrs. Thomas.

The agreement, which dated back to 1967, stipulated that the county would contribute $115 a week toward operation of the ambulance.

Mrs. Thomas said the county did not contribute that much money, averaging something close to $100 a week because revenue from ambulance trips helped reduce the county's share.

Over the nearly eight years the three-party ambulance agreement was in force, the county contributed about $40,900 toward operating the ambulance. During the same time, patient revenue amounted to about $26,900, she noted.

She pointed out that the hospital, along with actually operating the ambulance, has been responsible for a variety of other tasks, such as staffing the ambulance, keeping records, providing clerical services and the like.

The hospital has operated the ambulance in the "most economical way possible," Mrs. Thomas said, but it has received "nothing but criticism" from the public.

During those nearly eight years, a patient has never died on an ambulance trip, and the hospital and ambulance operators have never been sued, something which speaks well for the way the ambulance has been operated, Mrs. Thomas pointed out.

Councilwoman Mrs. Carolyn Fitterer agreed with Mrs. Thomas: "I'm satisfied we have a very good service."

Mrs. Fitterer noted, however, that a change in rates charged those who use the ambulance may be in order now that the county is not contributing toward its operation. People living outside the city of Wayne who use the ambulance should possibly pay more than those living inside the city because the city is making the ambulance possible, she said.

Others agreed with her, but several pointed out that the current problem is a temporary one and raising rates for persons living outside the city may cause more hard feelings than the added revenue is worth.

Councilman Vernon Russell said the county was acting "hard-nosed" and "not in the best interests of the county as a whole" in dropping out of the agreement between the county, city and hospital for operation of the ambulance.

Several councilmen agreed that the city would subsidize the ambulance equal to the amount of its monthly operating loss if that is necessary.

But at least two councilmen, Ted Bahs and John Yakoc, left the door open for the hospital picking up that deficit rather than the city.

The two questioned whether the hospital's assets are greater now than they were about two years ago when the city agreed to turn over all hospital assets to the Benedictine Sisters of Norfolk upon completion of the new hospital in Wayne.

If those assets are greater now, they agreed, the hospital should be able to operate the ambulance at a loss for the next several months without depleting the assets.

Some young people are getting into the news business these days with the idea that "objective" reporting went out with the five-cent phone call. Baloney.

A good reporter works hard at being fair. The word "fair" probably is better than the word "objective." The latter has an air of clinical purity about it, and that is impossible to achieve.

Let's say a reporter covers a council meeting. During the evening he may acquire 50 facts. He can list them. Of the 50 he may have space to write 25. He makes a "subjective" selection. From the 25 facts he decides one fact should go into the lead—the first paragraph of the story.

By its prominence it is more important and that's a subjective judgment. Then a news editor decides whether the story goes on Page one or Page 26. That's another human judgment and it influences how much attention the story will get.

Another non-objective decision is how big a headline to put on the story. Still another person will write that headline and it may or may not be a complete and proper reflection of the story itself. Those are subjective judgments. Since they are made every day in a newspaper it may be said no story is totally objective.

But the reporter has been "fair" if he attempts to balance both sides of a controversial issue. If Jones calls Smith a "political hack," the reporter must give Smith a turn at bat. And if Smith can't be reached, or won't comment, the reporter should say so. The reporter may privately agree that Smith is a bum. But lawyers can and do make a defense for a client they personally have doubts about. So do good reporters.

But recently there is on the scene the new breed—thoughtful idealists.

Here is a quote credited to a Tennessee newspaper reporter: "If I can't work for social change through journalism, I'll get out of journalism. Objectivity is moral cowardice by the reporter and his newspaper."

Double baloney: A newsman should report social change, not sponsor it. His value is as a dispassionate observer. Grady Gallant, the BANNER'S chief political writer, was recalling the other day events surrounding integration of Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas, in 1957. The difference between most reporters and the NEW YORK TIMES man, he said, was that most reporters wrote what they saw and heard. The TIMES man got involved, was making speeches participating in demonstrations. That sort of thing is totally improper for a reporter.

Even when an action is innocent, some section of the public will choose to misunderstand. A federal court reporter here in Nashville was criticized because the reporter brought a cup of coffee to an attorney on one side of a case. The evil was in the eye of the beholder. The reporter should have brought two cups.

None of this should preclude interpretive writing. As daily life becomes more complicated it is imperative that a reporter bring significance to facts. If Governor Dun submits a budget of $700 million the reporter must state whether it is bigger or smaller than last year, find those who applaud and those who object to the budget, and determine whether others think it will cause new taxes or provide surpluses.

Total objectivity may be unattainable. But pursuit of fairness in news columns is a process.

Edgerton, Minn., Enterprise

"There are certain truths which are true no matter how much the world may question or deny them. In the economic realm, for instance, you cannot legislate the poor into freedom by legislating the wealthy out of it. You cannot multiply wealth by dividing it. Governments cannot give to people what they do not first take away from people. And that which one man receives without working for, another man must work for without receiving it. And nothing can kill the initiative of a people quicker than for half to get the idea they need not work because the other half will feed them, and for the other half to get the idea it does no good to work since someone else receives the rewards."

Objective reporting may be impossible, but fair reporting certainly isn't!

OBSERVATIONS

Guest editorials welcome

As the article by fourth ward councilman John Vakoc made clear last Monday, we are happy to run guest editorials and guest comments on this page.

When those guest articles disagree with things we have said editorially, it is all the better, for then the public is being offered differing opinions on a subject which is likely of considerable interest to them.

We will continue offering space on this page to people who feel they have something to say which the public should be given a chance to read. Of course, the outlet provided by the letters to the editor column continues to be there for those who would rather write letters than special editorials or articles. — Norvin Hansen.

Survey makes a point

I hope you read the article on the front page of the last issue of The Wayne Herald dealing with the Omaha television station's survey of food prices in large cities and small towns.

If you did, it probably surprised you, for it certainly surprised me as well as the local grocer whose store was selected by the TV station in an attempt to find out if housewives in small towns have to pay more for the groceries they buy week in and week out.

The survey showed that a week's supply of groceries in a typical privately owned store in a small town would cost a housewife $35.64. Those same items purchased in a typical privately owned store in a large city such as Omaha would cost $36.60. A difference of four cents.

That same survey showed that those groceries would cost $33.81 when purchased in a chain store in Omaha and $34.47 when purchased in a chain store in a typical small community—such as Wahoo. A difference of 66 cents.

Nobody is trying to put a stamp of scientific approval on the survey, but it does seem to emphasize something I have said several times before and which local businessmen have said countless other times: It pays to shop at home.

Even when items are several cents higher at local stores than they are at stores 30 or 60 or 100 miles away, it just doesn't make sense to travel elsewhere to make those purchases. When you consider the extra time, the wear and tear on your car, the money for gasoline, the hassle of shopping in a big city and all the other things that enter into it, you pay more when you shop out of town than you do when you shop at home.

And, although you don't have to consider it, you should remember that those dollars you spend in another community, another county or another state don't do a bit of good in helping support your local city government, school system or county government. They do, of course, help that other community, county or state. But who do you rely on to clean your streets in the winter, educate your children or keep those bridges on county roads from falling to pieces?

Even without considering those things, I would opt for buying my groceries—and other things—at home whenever possible. Who's going to drive 40 or 50 miles back to that other store when they get home and find out the dozen eggs they bought are rotten? — Norvin Hansen.

'True, the book is fine reading'

Dear Editor: I just read your column, "A Closer Look," in Monday's Wayne Herald. I agree with you the book "Alive" is very good reading. But for those not wanting to read the complete book, it was carried in condensed form in the August 1974 Readers Digest.

'Rural zoning comes with its own fertilizer'

Wakfield

Dear Editor: In regard to the proposed county zoning issue, I would like to say that I moved to this area from another state and lived 28 years in a county which has now had rural zoning for several years with all the trimmings. This was procured by the popular "foot in the door" method.

The present propaganda wording means nothing.

A few monotonous clicks of the type writer and an opinion from a high court can, it seems, destroy any present law and put in force any theoretical mish mash to replace it.

If you don't agree, look back just a little.

The Unicameral passed a law making it mandatory that all public water in the state be fluoridated to their specifications. The voters were not consulted. The county I speak of now has a rural zoning planning commission, HEW harassment, anti-pollution, ecology—you name it, they've got it.

Also shot the sheriff and now have a single unit law enforcement set up for all the towns and county.

This county is also the home of a state university.

A plan like this has its own built-in fertilization unit and you wouldn't believe how it can grow.

Every new phase requires more political hacks to man its offices, controls and enforcement.

This nation became great under sound sense, hard work, honesty and individual freedom.

Under the leadership of "the father knows best" intelligentsia, we've about hit bottom.

We have an overabundance of self-styled "peers" in our school system now, so let's not infest the farmer with any more.

So, farmers, please hold on to what freedom is left.

Sure would make me feel real bad if I had to see you go into the proper office in Wayne to get permission to build a hogshed or a haystack—George E. Frederick.

So they said

"The evidence is that even hard-core environmentalists would feel more comfortable with a safe and clean nuclear plant than with a safe and fairly dirty fossil fuel power producer. There also seems to be growing public recognition that the energy crisis will get worse and that it cannot be solved by turning off the electric toothbrushes." — Portland, Ore., Oregonian.

A closer look...

By Norvin Hansen

WHAT do you write about when you don't have anything to write about?

Well you could mention The Wayne Herald's fantastic one point victory over a bunch of upstarts who represented the Wisner News Chronicle in a basketball game at the city auditorium a few days back.

That was the game in which our back shop foreman, Ray Murray, came off the bench at halftime and casually sank a 20 footer to rally our team. Of course, he didn't make another shot during the game, but his contribution was appreciated by a bedraggled bunch of guys who think about 10 years younger than they feel. After the game, however, they fell about 10 years older than they are.

If it hadn't been for Dave Diederker, the Herald might have lost that game, the latest in a somewhat annual clash on the court between the two newspapers. That would have been tough to justify, for our players were talking about winning that game more than a week in advance.

Although nobody kept track, Diederker must have had about half our points, which isn't unusual considering he's about half the age of some of the other guys who were masqueraded as basketball players for about an hour.

We had to give the Wisner team one of our players, since only about three guys showed up from Wisner for the game. We gave them Al Pippitt, but we're not sure if he helped or hurt our cause by doing so. I don't think he ever got called for traveling, even though he had a beautiful three step shuffle he displayed every time he shot.

Of course, we had Diamond Jim Marsh on our team. He skipped in just as the game began, and then tried to skip out after he learned he would be the fifth man on our team. He thought he was going to be a substitute, which he probably wished he had been the next day.

Although we won the game, we aren't going to reveal any of our offensive or defensive secrets. We're going to keep those to ourselves and challenge any team in the area. We actually believe we can't be whipped.

AREA RESIDENTS worried about what we are doing to the environment are invited to an organizational meeting of the Sierra Club at Norfolk Friday night.

Bears Close In on NENAC Leader O'Neill

Laurel High edged closer to tying O'Neill for first in the Northeast Nebraska Activities Conference Friday night with a 72-65 win at O'Neill.

The Bears, 3-2 in loop play and 12-5 for the season, handed the Eagles their first conference loss despite trailing in both shooting percentage and rebounding.

O'Neill shot 53 times, making 25 for 47 per cent, while Laurel hit 28 of 60 shots for 46 per cent. In rebounding, O'Neill grabbed 37, Laurel 34.

The turning point in the game had to be the second quarter, said Laurel coach Joe Parks after his team held a 21-20 lead after the first period.

Using a man-to-man press, the Bears stole the ball several times and enlarged their one-point lead to 14 with about two minutes left in the half.

Senior Scott Thompson scored five points coming off the bench.

J. ERWIN

PIPPITT

The second period to lead the Bear's balanced scoring that period. Senior Sterling Stolpe, high with 22, had four that stanza.

"It wasn't our scoring so much that gave us the lead (in the second period)," Parks confessed, "but our defense just tightened up when we put the press on them."

Stolpe tied Greg Pipitt for rebounding with nine. Sterling is a good rebounder. He's strong and because of this strength he's able to score most of his points on (offensive) rebounds."

Parks said Pipitt Parks' "unsung hero," doesn't score a lot, he went on, but he's always on the boards.

Laurel's freshmen and junior high cagers posted victories over Plainville Wednesday.

Led by Mike Martin's 23 points and Dave Lindgren's 20, the freshmen downed the hosts, 52-34. To top their record to 1-1 going into Saturday's game at Wakefield.

Also scoring for the winners were Toby Cunningham and Roger Stage with four each and Bob Dahlquist with one.

Plainville led 13-7 after the first period and 22-18 at intermission before the Laurel club rallied for the win.

In the junior high game, Don Dalton missed in 18 points and Rusty Gade added 10 to lead Laurel to a 55-28 victory.

Laurel moved into a comfortable 29-15 halftime lead after taking a 9-6 edge in the first quarter.

Alvin scoring for Laurel were Rin Gadenek with seven, Mark McCorkindale with six, Brad Rath with five, Paul Guern with three, and Don Casey, Marly Callahan and Lon Swanson with two each.

The junior high club was 2-3 going into Saturday's game at Wakefield today (Monday) the club hosts Pierce.

Pierce gave up the ball 22 times, most in the first half, while Wayne turned the ball over 16 times. Pierce's turnovers resulted when the Devils switched from a man-to-man press to a zone press and back again.

Another strong point in the Devils' carving out their ninth win in 12 games was rebounding. Wayne pulled down 43 rebounds to 38 for Pierce, with the Devils in front offensively, 19-10.

Senior Jack Froehlich had 16 rebounds while Keating finished with nine.

Again Wayne was strong at the free throw line. Rob Mitchell garnered half his 12 points when he was six for six to lead Wayne.

Three players in double figures led Wayne's reserves to their sixth win against three defeats. Monte Lowe hit 14, Mike Sharer 13 and Tim Koll 12 to beat Pierce, 47-25.

Another option that producers may consider is orally administered iron rather than a second iron injection. Oral iron is available from most feed companies in a palatable form.

Studies also have shown that as a second treatment beginning at one week of age, clean soil is a highly effective source of supplemental iron.

The often quoted phrase "Show me a pig with diarrhea, and I'll show you an anemic pig" is more than half accurate and has a management message that is basic to the number of pigs a person may wean, according to Fritsch.

'Grant Available At Wayne State'

Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) applications for the 1975-76 school year are now available at the Wayne State College Financial Aids Office.

Doug Barry, director of financial aids, reminds students and parents that just because a student has been declared ineligible for one of these grants doesn't necessarily mean he remains ineligible.

Circumstances which might change a student's eligibility include loss of a parent this year or last year, the parents' separation or divorce, loss of income by parent for at least 10 weeks or parents' inability to conduct normal income-producing activities for a period of 10 weeks from disability or disaster, he said.

Students who feel they may be eligible for additional benefits due to one of these conditions should contact the financial aids office.

War Vets

Of the 170 in the local area who will be getting dividend checks, the amounts they receive will depend upon the type of insurance carried, the size of the policy, the time it has been in force and the age of the insured.

On the average, the VA states, veterans of the first World War will get $169, those who served in the second World War, $83, and Korean vets, $11.

Distribution of the $13,000 that will be going to Wayne County veterans will be made throughout the year on the anniversary dates of individual policies.

Payments will be made automatically, without application. There is no need to contact the VA regarding them.

Herbicide Meeting Set for Thursday

A meeting on herbicide usage and crop alternatives will be held Thursday at 1:30 p.m. at the Northeast Station.

District extension agronomist Russell Moomaw and Dixon County agent Ray Stohler will conduct the program, which is open to the public.

Topics will include: Production and potential net returns per acre for corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, alfalfa, oats, barley, and spring and winter wheat; crop injury from herbicides; why herbicides do or don't work; herbicide recommendations, and problem weeds in Northeast Nebraska.

3 New Varieties of Certified Crop List

Three new varieties are on the 1975 list of certified crop varieties suggested for Nebraska.

The list is contained in a circular (CC 178) compiled by University of Nebraska Lincoln agricultural specialists and is available at county extension offices.

A. F. Drier, NU extension agronomist, said new seed varieties of various crops are analyzed and discussed by committees which include agronomists, plant pathologists and entomologists. The committees evaluate performance, seed supplies and other data.

"Certification of a variety does not imply any recommendations," he said. "It assures genetic identity of the seed and the seed's ability to meet germination and purity standards."

Privately developed varieties currently on the market are not listed, Dreier said, because their increasing number makes it practically impossible to test them all.

The list is revised annually, and older varieties are removed when performance indicates they should be replaced, the agronomist said. In some cases, lack of seed production warrants removal from the list.

Information on supplies of these new varieties appears in the Growers Directory for 1975, also available at county extension offices.

A description of new varieties:

Oats—Olee, an early variety developed in Illinois and similar to Jaycee. Improved straw strength late in the season is main advantage.

Soybeans—Wodworth, from same cross as Williams and similar in plant appearance. Higher yield and lodging and shattering resistance than Wayne or Calland. Earlier maturity than Williams.

Crested wheatgrass—Ruff, for areas of low rainfall. Good for early spring grazing; complementing grazing of summer grasses or rangeland.

The circular also includes existing certified crop varieties considered to be among the best available for production this year. They are recommended where applicable for irrigated or non-irrigated land and by cropping district and corn maturity zones.

A SLOPE behind Wayne West Elementary School provided the perfect setting for about 150 fifth and sixth grade physical education students to test their skiing skills Thursday afternoon.
