CB'ers: Radios Needed for Busses

Two members of Wayne's citizen band radio club urged the Wayne-Carroll school board Monday night to install citizen band radios in the district's school busses.

The two members of the Wayne CB'ers, Ray Butts and president Ron Wriedt, told the board that the radios have proven very popular with other school districts that have installed them.

They emphasized that the radios save school districts money because drivers sometimes are saved driving to homes where children are safe or have already been taken to school by their parents and save parents from worrying about whether their children are safe or stuck in a snowdrift during a storm.

Wriedt pointed out that the school district could expect "excellent participation" from people in the school district who own similar radios. Radio owners would call bus drivers to warn them of blocked roads, tell them to take a different route or advise them that certain children weren't planning to ride the bus, said Wriedt, who drove a bus equipped with a citizens band radio in Iowa for several years before moving back to Wayne last year.

"We feel our school busses need some kind of communication in them," he told the board members, noting that those installed recently in Laurel's school busses have already proven worthwhile.

The two spoke to the board several months after a representative of a radio manufacturer advised the board to consider installing high frequency radios rather than low frequency citizen band radios.

That representative said there would be too much interference.

Too many other radio owners using those frequencies and too small coverage if citizen band radios were installed.

Wriedt and Butts admitted there would be interference and coverage over short distances with citizen band radios, but they said the interference would not prohibit their use and the number of other radio operators using the same frequency would be an advantage rather than a disadvantage.

Rather than being forced to call the school in times of emergency, bus drivers could use their citizen band radios and get in touch with numerous persons within a radius of five, 10 or 15 miles, they said. Help would be on the way in a short time, they noted, and the word would quickly spread to parents as to what had happened to the bus their children were riding on.

The two radio operators noted that citizen band radios are much cheaper than high-frequency radios, costing about $150 per bus and about $350 for the base station, considerably under the approximate $4,100 it would cost for the high frequency radio setup.

They also noted that members of the local radio club have volunteered to install citizen band radios in the school busses at no cost if the board decides to do so.

purchase them. They added that the local police department has agreed to monitor the busses while they are out to make sure somebody is listening if the radios are ever used.

Board president Irvin Brandt told the two that the board would consider their comments, adding that they brought up several points which the board had not considered previously.

Superintendent Francis Haun noted, however, that there is no money in the present budget for purchasing radios for the school busses.

In other action Monday evening, the board voted 4-1 to give Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Glassmeyer of rural Winside another month in which to arrange for paying the school district $450 which the board says the couple owes for keeping children in the Wayne-Carroll schools after moving into the Winside school district last year.

Board member Wilbur Giesse objected to the one month extension, saying that the board agreed last month before to hand the matter over to an attorney for collection if the bill were not paid by the board's February meeting.

Also Monday night the board heard reports on the possibility of changing graduation requirements and the results of a survey of girls on the subject of athletics for girls. High school principal Donald Zeiss reported on both subjects. The survey, which Zeiss said was not completely reliable, showed that girls favor basketball, swimming, softball, tennis and track in that order. Of less interest to the girls are gymnastics, golf and cross country. The board will likely take up those two subjects at its March meeting.

Agreed to have dinner at the middle school on Feb. 12 so board members could see what has been done with the art room there and tour the building if they wish.

Approved Haun's attending the national meeting of the National School Board's Association in Miami April 19-22.

Adopted a policy reaffirming the school district's willingness to educate all children in the district regardless of their handicaps.

All Wrapped Up in A Story

A COUPLE DOZEN youngsters are all eyes and ears as Wayne State student Francie Lawson of Spencer, Ia., reads to them during Saturday's story hour at the public library in Wayne. The session was the fourth of 11 scheduled during the winter. They are held from 2 to 3 p.m. each Saturday for youngsters three to seven years of age. There is no charge.

'Pork Production College' Is On Tap at Wayne State

A three-day Pork Production College for Young Producers is scheduled for early next month at Wayne State College.

The course, slated for March 5-7, will cover such subjects as diets for growing finishing pigs and genetic programs for consumer fat production.

Being sponsored by the University of Nebraska Lincoln extension service and the Nebraska Bankers Association, it is open to pork producers 10 years of age and under. It will be limited to the first 40 who register.

Wayne area producers who wish to take part in the course may contact Wayne County agricultural agent Don Spitze for more information.

Cost of the course will be $75, which will cover meals, rooms and materials all three days.

Among those who will be helping teach the course will be Bob Frith, extension district extension agent, specialist at the Northeast Station near Concord; Keith Gilsler, extension livestock specialist; Bill Ahlstrom, extension swine specialist; Alex Hoag, extension veterinarian; Donald Ferguson, NU associate professor of veterinary sciences; Larry Bihney, extension agricultural economist; and Richard Adams, president of Osmond State Bank.

Also serving as resource people for the course will be Ernie Thayer, president of First National Bank in Wayne; Richard Sorenson, swine producer northwest of Wayne; and Jim Wilkerson, manager of Humpty Dumpty Mill at Wakarusa.

Among activities on the agenda for those taking part in the course is a trip to four swine production facilities at the Northeast Station. Also planned is a tour of the Humpty Dumpty Feed Mill at Wakarusa, which will include an evening pork barbecue.

A sample of the topics which will be covered during the course: "Planning and Management Requirements for Growing Finishing Pigs," "Using Research Facilities to Solve Production Problems," and "Wearing Facilities," "Swine Diseases" and "Controlling Parasites of Pigs."

Date for 'Coke Feed' At Winside Changed

Winside's Community Club has changed the date of its annual pancake feed from Feb. 14 to Feb. 13, according to club president Don Leighton.

The reason for the change, Leighton said, are conflicts with the district wrestling tournament at Oakland Craig and the home basketball game against Newcastle, both Feb. 14.

The feed will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. at the village auditorium.

Thone Seeks HS Seniors As Interns

High school seniors in the Wayne area are being given an opportunity to spend the week of April 13-19 in the Washington office of Cong. Charles Thone.

Five boys and five girls will be chosen to participate in the work of Thone's office, attend House and Senate sessions and committee meetings, and visit with leaders of the legislative, executive and judicial branches, he noted.

Those chosen will have an unusual opportunity to learn firsthand how our federal government operates," Thone said.

Interns will be selected from public and private schools in the First Congressional District on the basis of grades, extra curricular achievements and evidence of interest in government.

Thone, explained, judging will be done by Anne Campbell, education commissioner for Nebraska; Richard Brommer, superintendent of the Tecumseh school system; and Miriam Matousek, Dodge County school superintendent.

Application blanks have been sent to the office of each high school in the district. Thone See INTERNS, page 5

Allen School Board Ready for Pay Talks

The Allen school board Monday night agreed to recognize the Allen Education Association as the bargaining party for faculty pay negotiations for the 1975-76 school year.

In addition, members agreed to discuss salary schedule, pay schedule, extra curricular activities, grievance procedures, health and accident insurance, sick leave, personal leave and professional leave.

Representing the board during salary talks are William Clough, LeRoy Koch and Martin Blohm. On the association's committee are Steve McManigal, Pat Von Minden and Darryl McGhee.

Commissioners Postpone Vote On Rural Zoning

Wayne County commissioners Tuesday postponed making a decision on whether to go ahead with rural zoning on a county wide scale.

However, the commissioners are to meet today (Thursday) to discuss with a Norfolk firm the cost of zoning the county.

The commissioners, Merlin Beiermann, Floyd Burt and Ken Eddie, want to find out if it would be cheaper to hire a private firm to conduct the zoning rather than applying for federal funds and working through state officials in zoning the county, according to county clerk Norris Weible.

State officials have estimated it will cost approximately $15,000 to conduct the necessary steps to zone all rural land in the county. Two-thirds of that cost could be financed with a federal grant, they have said.

Appearing at Tuesday's meeting were two men, one favoring zoning and one opposing it.

Speaking in favor of zoning was Ward Gilliland of rural Wayne, representing the Wayne County Farm Bureau, which has gone on record in support of rural zoning. Frederick Mann, a farmer near Wayne, voiced his objections to rural zoning.

The commissioners have been toying with the idea of going ahead with rural zoning for the past several months. They held a public meeting on the subject several weeks ago, attracting about 50 people. Most of those attending that meeting favored going ahead with rural zoning.

Also Tuesday, the board named Wayne County deputy sheriff S. C. "Scotty" Thompson of Wayne to the county SEAP Committee, the group interested in making traffic conditions safer for both drivers and pedestrians. He replaces former county roads superintendent Bob Nissen.

The board also received another application for Nissen's job, which Nissen resigned late last year.

Seeking that job is Dick Dion of Wayne, who presently works for the state roads department.

Also applying for that posts has been Bill Smith of Sholes. Commissioners expect to interview Dion personally. They have already talked to Smith.

Wh Band Instructor To Help With Clinic

Ron Dalton, instrumental instructor at Wayne High School, has been asked by the Nebraska State Band Masters Association to help conduct a clinic at their annual convention in Lincoln, March 14-15.

Dalton and Jim Johnson of Wisner-Pilger High School will conduct a clinic on how to prepare a band for the annual state marching contest. Two instructors were selected on the basis of the outstanding records their bands have had in the contest.

Dalton has been instrumental in directing Wayne High School's band since September of 1968. Before that he taught band at Wayne Middle School.

Winside Gets Policeman

The Winside town board hired a full-time policeman during its meeting Monday night.

He is Clarence Feasel, who began work earlier this week, according to chairman Dallas Puls.

Feasel, who lives near Winside, worked in law enforcement in California, Puls pointed out. Feasel's salary will be $600 a month.

Feasel replaces part-time policeman Keith Reed of Wayne. Reed will assist Feasel when needed, Puls said.

Espinosa, who has performed professionally since age 15, has toured Europe and the Near East in solo concert and as an accompanist for various flamenco dance companies. In the United States he has appeared with such featured dancers as Jose Greco.

Senior Espinosa has made numerous international records and recently was awarded the Grand Prix du Disque of France, equivalent of our "gold record."

Pre-Schoolers Are Focus of Class at Wayne State College

Three year-olds at Wayne State College? Sure!

Pre School Experience, another facet of learning at WSC, gets underway this month with benefits for both pre-schoolers and WSC students.

Students enrolled in a recently developed child development class have been studying children's motor development, their physical development and their emotional development. They have learned about their social development, speech development and birth defects, and they have listened to lectures on working with, playing with and relating to children.

Now they will be given the opportunity to put what they have learned into action.

Pre School Experience, open to area three and four-year-olds, will run from 2 to 4 p.m. each Wednesday and Friday afternoon from Feb. 12 through April 11.

Pre-school will be held in a specially designed room of the new Bentback Hall of Applied Science. A one-way mirror and audio equipment will enable 50 WSC students to observe while others are involved with youngsters.

Although this observation room will prove important to instructors and to parents who may also wish to take advantage of it, the child development lab is also equipped with features which appeal more to the youngsters themselves — things such as pint-size easels, small tables and chairs, brightly colored games and toys, scaled-down restroom facilities and all the paraphernalia that stimulates the imagination of a child.

The pre-schoolers will spend afternoons playing with clay, listening to stories, building with blocks, finger painting, drawing, story telling and at rhythm

Snow Halts SUN Meet; Now Slated for Today

Inclement weather forced rescheduling of Tuesday night's public meeting with officials of the State University of Nebraska (SUN) in Wayne.

The meeting has now been set for 8:30 a.m. today (Thursday) in the basement of the public library.

It is one of about 50 public meetings scheduled around the state this week by SUN officials to give them an opportunity to report on the pilot offering of two multimedia college-at-home courses and to announce plans for offerings of four courses to begin in early March.

SUN is a university program designed for the persons who want to continue his education, but who cannot take advantage of college-level opportunities on existing campuses.

Local Woman Nearly Wins $925 Prize

If Roberta Oswald's birthday was on Sept. 14, 1912 rather than five days earlier, she would have won $925 instead of $25 in last week's Birthday Bucks drawing in Wayne.

The Wayne woman was at McDonald's when the winning date was announced in all participating stores, and since she was the shopper whose birthday was closest to the winning date, she earned the consolation prize.

As a result, this week's grand prize climbs to $950, with that amount being awarded the person whose birthday matches the winning date and who is present in one of the participating businesses when this week's winning date is announced at 8:15 tonight (Thursday).

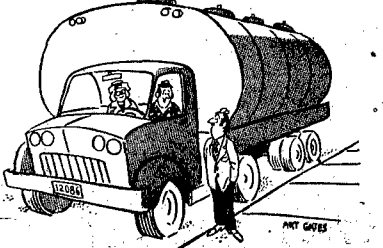

If the grand prize goes unclaimed once again, another $25 prize will be awarded and next week's grand prize will be worth $975.

The board of directors of the Wayne Retail Association, which sponsors the weekly drawings, last week voted to put a $1,000 limit on the grand prize if it is not claimed this week or next week.

However, after the current grand prize is given away, a $500 ceiling will be placed on the grand prize in future drawings. The amount will start at $300 and $25 consolation drawings will be given each week the grand prize goes unclaimed, as in the past.

The Birthday Bucks awarded in the weekly drawings are coupons—which may be spent just like cash in participating businesses. Shoppers may take part in all weekly drawings and there is no limit on the number of times a person may win. No registration or purchase is required, but a person must be present in one of the participating firms when the winning date is announced to win either the grand prize or the consolation prize.

A good fishing spot was held in almost sacred awe by Eskimo ice fishermen of northern Canada, notes the National Geographic Society's new book, "The World of the American Indian." To ensure continued luck, a fisherman placed his catch about him in a large circle, heads pointed toward the hole in the ice. Doing so, he believed, enabled the fish's spirit to return to the water and speak favorably of the man who had dealt honorably with him.

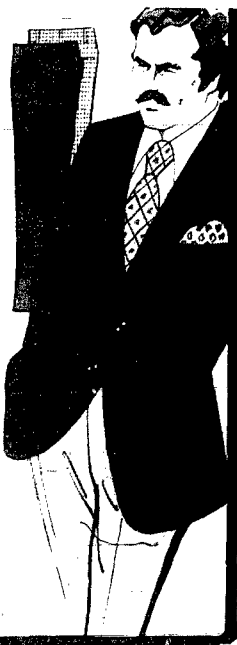

"We bought it for our trip."

By Bob Bartlett

JIM BRASCH stands 6-4. He's a freshman at Wayne State College. He's working out for the college track team.

But the former Wayne High graduate has a problem—he's too tall to train inside.

During winter, members of the track team practice underneath the college's football stadium. That's where Brasch's problem comes in.

Brasch has to dodge concrete rafters in order to complete the 20 laps, which approximate a mile. That's tough to do and still have a good workout.

"There's not much we can do about it," said athletic director Len Ray Simpson during last week's Second Guesses meeting. Some athletes have tried to workout in Rice, but with so many other sports going on at the same time, it's pretty hard to do, Simpson admitted.

Although Simpson doesn't have an answer to the dilemma, he is eyeing the 4th building at the Wayne County fairgrounds as one possible solution. If the fair board gives Simpson the okay to work out there, the next step the AD would have to take care of is heating. "It has to be at least 30 degrees inside to work out."

MEANWHILE, Simpson is hoping plans for the all-weather track to replace the present dirt oval materialize this year. According to the AD, the track is sixth on a priority list for Nebraska small colleges' building projects. Simpson believes the $60,000 project may even move to the top of the list since it is one of the smallest expenditures.

If the college gets an all-weather track, Simpson believes Wayne State could enhance its track program by attracting top prepsters.

One high school senior the coaching staff is anxious to have enroll at WS is Gregg Lage, a Winside High product who is among the top Class C distance runners in the state.

Right now, though, Doane College of Crete appears to have an inside track on Lage, since it has one of the best track programs in the state and possibly in the Midwest for small colleges. Doane representatives have been making regular visits to Lage, Simpson explained, adding that Kearney State also is interested.

What about the University of Nebraska Lincoln and other big schools? Most are taking a wait and see attitude to find out what Lage will do this season, according to Simpson.

DID YOU KNOW: Both Tom Kropp's father, Bill, and uncle, Pete, are Winside natives. Both are former WSC graduates, and Pete coached football at Wayne and Winside High Schools.

As you may recall, Tom was drafted by the Pittsburgh Steelers as a professional football player last year. Presently, he is attending Kearney State College.

Only eight 200 games were rolled during the women's bowling tournament in Wayne over the weekend. According to tournament secretary Vicky Skokan, the number is lower than last year. Highlight of the 200 games were a pair of 200's by Carol Larkas, 206 215, and Ione Roebber, 200 216. Others rolling 200's: Jo Oslander, 200. Gerrisa Janssen 205 (That's her first 200 she has a 114 average). Diane Wurdinger 204, Mary Gerken 217.

PERSONS who took part in last weekend's winter retreat for mentally retarded persons at Rawhide Valley Camp in Sioux City were treated to everything from an old-fashioned sleigh ride to tobogganing down the hills. Driving the sleigh is Lowell Stevenson, who lives near where the retreat was held.

Devils Have 'Best Game' Against Schuyler

"This is the best ball game the team has played both offensively and defensively this year," said Wayne High coach Bill Sharpe after his club's 79-10 victory over visiting Schuyler Saturday night.

The reason for Sharpe's comments were four seniors scoring in double figures and out-standing offensive and defensive rebounding.

Earle Overin, displaying consistent shooting, riddled off 10 points each half to lead the Blue Devils with 20 points. Marty Hansen, Jack Froehlich and Bob Keating had 18, 16 and 12 points, respectively.

Wayne put the game away with a 26 point fourth quarter as Hansen hit five of seven free throws and one basket and Froehlich reeled off six points. Because of foul trouble, Keating didn't play much of the fourth period. Sharpe pointed out that the team also played good ball control, turning the ball over only eight times compared to 11 for Schuyler.

Following the West Husker Conference tournament at Wakefield this week, the 10-3 Devils resume regular season action Tuesday night at Randolph.

The junior varsity took advantage of numerous free throws to post their seventh win in 10 games, 87-78.

Wayne hit 37 charity tosses in the foul-laden contest that saw Wayne commit 29 fouls to 41 for Schuyler. The teams attempted a total 101 free throws.

Monte Lowe led the reserves with 20 points while Mike Sharer and Dave Hix each had 16.

Area's Retarded Citizens 'Do Their Own Thing' at First Winter Retreat

Snowmobile, bobbed and to bogan rides, handicrafts, checkers and bingo were some of the activities taking place at Rawhide Valley Camp in Sioux City last Sunday when about 100 mentally retarded adults and youngsters from Wayne, Dixon, Dakota and Thurston Counties participated in the first winter retreat sponsored by the Northeast Association for Retarded Citizens.

A similar retreat was held in September.

Those taking part in the retreat arrived Saturday evening and camped over that night. The group was treated to a breakfast of hot and eggs Sunday morning before attending a church service.

The Rev. John Epperson, pastor of the Wakefield Christian Church, arranged for a group representing the Norfolk Christian College to provide special music at the worship service.

According to Mrs. Ken Sitzer of Wayne, an advisor for the Youth Association for Retarded Citizens, participants "did their own thing" in the afternoon and a lunch of home-made chicken noodle soup, hot dogs and potato chips was served before the retreat concluded.

"Next time let's have it (the retreat) a week instead of a day," was one boy's comment before leaving for home Sunday.

Mrs. Sitzer said the Association hopes to be able to sponsor a similar retreat again next year around Christmas time.

Making this year's weekend retreat possible was a donation totaling about $1,000 by employees of Iowa Beef Processors in Dakota City.

WS Track Team Fourth at Mankato

Wayne State's track team ran into strong competition Saturday and finished fourth in a four-team meet at Mankato State, but the Wildcats came up with more places than in their debut a week earlier.

Don Rinehart gained a fifth again in the 300-yard dash, same as he did at Doane. Al Wallon claimed a fourth in the 176-yard intermediate hurdles. Stan Simpson a fifth in the 60-yard highs. The Cats also took fourth in the four-lap relay.

Mankato won first, followed by the University of South Dakota, Augustana and Wayne.

Next on the schedule is a meet at Midland Feb. 15.

Espinosa's Wayne appearance will emphasize the flamenco and folkloric facets of his repertoire, featuring tangos, rumbos, bulerias, jotas, alegrias and zapateados for the duration of the two-hour performance.

Thought for Today
By Brian McBride

"Every human mind is a great slumbering power until awakened by keen desire and by a definite resolution to achieve."
Edgar F. Roberts

Perhaps the greatest waste in the world today is the undeveloped potential of "slumbering" human minds. Even the most mentally active among us use but a fraction of our mind's potential.

Granted that not everyone could match the accomplishments of an Einstein or an Edison, we can all aspire to greater things if we recognize that we are not achieving to our full potential. It all starts with "keen desire and definite resolution."

We have no "standard" service. Every funeral is unique for the family involved and our efforts are tailored to match the need.

The scholarship is being sponsored by the Cornhusker Kennel Club of Lincoln. The club's purpose is to promote the breeding and showing of purebred dogs.

College Tankers Down Kearney

Wayne State swimmers tagged Kearney State with a 62-51 loss Monday at Kearney in a contest of undermanned teams.

The Wildcats squad numbers only six or seven, and Kearney reported being crippled by illness and injury. The most recent being diver Craig Fullerton, who suffered a gashed head on a three meter dive. He competed for Wayne last year before transferring to Kearney.

Wayne's victory was the third in dual meets with Kearney this year - first time they have met that many times in one season.

Wildcats earning firsts were Dave Just in the 50, the 100 and 500 freestyle. Bob Floerchinger in the 200 free and 200 butterfly. Lance Clay in the 100 free; and the 400 yard freestyle relay of Clay, Jim Batten, Dan Carny and Tom Driscoll.

The win gave Wayne a 7-3 dual record. A scheduled meet here Saturday did not materialize because Regis of Denver failed to show up or notify coach Ralph Barclay. He claimed a forfeit.

The Wildcats are billed for a meet at North Dakota State Saturday.

The cars collided in a parking lot near Fifth and Main about 9:30 p.m. Thursday when a vehicle driven by Robert Mitchell, 721 Pearl, was backing and struck a car operated by Gaylin Woodward, rural Wakefield.

About 2 p.m. Thursday Bill Mc Natt, 203 Main, reported that a male player valued at about $100 was missing from his car while parked in a garage at 110 Pearl.

Allen's town board will continue studying the possibility of installing residential water meters during its March board meeting, said member Ken Linafelter.

Monday night the members decided to further study the use of meters or to get an accurate account of the amount of water being consumed, Linafelter said.

Meanwhile, the board assigned LeRoy Roberts to collect for dog tags. Prices for new tags are $3 for females, $2.50 for males.

Any dog that is caught roaming the town without a tag will be disposed of, Linafelter pointed out.

Tennessee Williams Play to Open

The Wayne State Theatre department, under the direction of Dr. Helen Russell, is currently releasing for "Streetcar Named Desire," a play by Tennessee Williams, to be presented Sunday, Feb. 16 through the 18th in the Ramsey Theatre of the Fine Arts Building.

The play reveals the inner most characters of Blanche Du Bois, a woman whose life has been undermined by her romantic illusions, which lead her to reject so far as possible the realities of life with which she is faced. The pressure brought to bear upon Blanche by her sister, with whom she goes to live in New Orleans, intensified by her sister's earthy and extremely "normal" young husband, leads to the revelation of her tragic self delusion, and in the end, madness.

Lighting is Decorating

Do you consider lighting when decorating a room? Think about it, for lighting can change the atmosphere of a room or feeling it gives you, regardless of how much time and money you spent selecting your furnishings. Lighting really does have psychological effect on people. A bright room creates an active, cheerful mood and is recommended for work rooms and activity areas. Low, soft lighting creates a relaxed atmosphere and is desirable for dining rooms and conversation areas. Dimmer switches are available so you can adjust your lighting to the occasion and the mood you want to create.

State employees' salaries subject of today's hearing

LINCOLN — The legislature's Budget Committee has scheduled a hearing today (Thursday) on a subject sure to attract representatives of the faculties of Nebraska's public institutions of higher education.

There may be a lot of just plain taxpayers on hand, as well.

The subject of the Appropriations Committee's 2 p.m. session will be the formula to be used as the basis for raising state employees' salaries.

The committee voted 6-3 last week to adopt the formula proposed by Governor J. J. Exon, a five per cent hike, plus $468 for each employee. That would cost the taxpayers another $22.3 million — maybe as much as $24 million more.

At that, however, it was about the cheapest — in terms of additional dollars needed from taxpayers — of a series of salary options under committee consideration.

The average state employee would get a raise of 11.8 per cent, as the governor figures it, from the proposal which is to be plugged into the 1975-76 fiscal year operating budget — if it is endorsed by the full Legislature.

The plan is to be written as a bill and reaction to it will be received at today's hearing.

Professors, who have been letting senators know they think they are losing ground in relation to the cost of living, are expected to be among those testifying at the hearing. The University of Nebraska Faculty, in particular, has been active in urging improvements beyond those the committee has given preliminary approval to.

Before accepting the Exon plan, the Budget Committee membership rejected — each time on a 3-4 vote — formulas which carried a higher price tag.

First to be turned down was a proposal for a five per cent step in pay, plus $648, or $180 more in across-the-board dollars than the governor was suggesting. The total added cost of the proposal was $26.7 million, compared with $22.3 million for the Exon plan.

Next to go was a proposal of five per cent, plus $364. That was $96 more than the Exon plan on a per-employee basis and the total was $24.6 million, compared with the $22.3 million.

The supporters of those two losing motions were senators Shirley Marsh and Harold Simpson, both of Lincoln, and Glenn Goodrich of Omaha. They also composed the losing side of the vote on the motion to accept the Exon proposal.

The majority on each of the three motions was composed of chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings and senators Robert Clark of Sidney, John Savage of Omaha.

The majority on each of the three motions was composed of chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings and senators Robert Clark of Sidney, John Savage of Omaha, Douglas Bereuter of Ufa, E. Thorne Johnson of Fremont and Leslie Stull of Alliance.

The salary policy hasn't previously been offered to the full legislature as a separate bill for consideration. It is one of the innovations chairman Marvel has said his committee is going to try this session.

Since the salaries involve at least 70 per cent of the total salary budget, resolution of the issue early in the session would help move the legislature along toward the possibility of adjournment before all 90 of the constitutionally-allocated days are used.

Marvel said senators in all previous sessions have had to accept a salary formula as part of an omnibus operations bill and lawmakers who weren't satisfied with it couldn't easily make a protest.

A policy which combines a percentage increase with a dollar hike tends to give the better break to employees on the lower end of the salary scale.

The five per cent, plus $468 that has committee approval, for example, gives an average raise of 11.8 per cent, but employees who earn between $25,000 and $30,000 get a boost of only 6.7 per cent, while those in the $4,000 to $5,000 range get 15.2 per cent jumps.

It is this tendency to give the greater percentage help to the lower-paid employees which the faculty members say has cost them ground in the race with inflation.

The budget for the current fiscal year — approved by the 1974 legislature — had a salary policy of five per cent, plus $300, plus a one-half of one per cent increment to be distributed for merit.

The policy just endorsed for the coming fiscal period doesn't have the merit money.

The five per cent is the step in the pay plan, an award for another year's service as a state employee. The $4968 enriches that to help combat inflation, especially those on the lower end of the salary range.

OBSERVATIONS

Get it down in writing

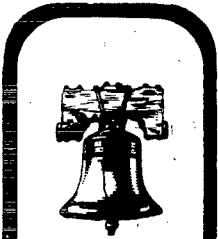

We agree with those on Wayne's city council who feel that something should be put down in writing so everybody concerned will know exactly how the ambulance will be operated once the new hospital opens in Wayne later this year.

Many local and area residents dug deeply into their billfolds and pocketbooks to help make that hospital a reality, and we think their minds should be put at ease as far as operation of the ambulance is concerned.

There are too many rumors making the rounds about the possibility of the hospital owners not taking on the responsibility of the ambulance, the possibility of the city being put in charge of its operation and the possibility of this area being without ambulance service. We think those rumors should be put at rest, once and for all. And about the only way that can be accomplished is for something to be put down in writing, something which specifically spells out the duties of everybody concerned.

Unless and until that is accomplished, rumors will continue to sprout, interested people will be caused unnecessary concern and problems will keep coming up. — Norvin Hansen.

Thone: Some D.C. 'experts' lack horse sense

By Cong. Charles Thone

It's long been apparent to me that many of the so-called experts in Washington don't have much horse sense. Now, some of them have shown that they have no sense at all when talking about cattle.

Some of these Washington servants with all the answers have suggested that Americans could make plenty of grain available for all the world if we would cut down on the amount of meat we eat. They argue that it is wasteful to feed grain to cattle. One doctor testified that an acre of land would produce only 182 pounds of beef, compared to 3,120 pounds of corn.

In the first place, most cattle are raised on land that should never be cultivated. The worst thing that could happen to our Nebraska sandhills would be to plant them in corn or other row crops.

Secondly, about three-fourths of what the typical fed steer has eaten by the time it is ready for market consists of food that man can't eat. Cattle are ruminants, with four stomachs, and they have the capacity to convert grasses to protein.

Without them, the food produced on the land that can't be cultivated would never be used to benefit mankind. The cattle can also thrive on what man throws away, such as the Florida feeding of citrus pulp to cattle after the juice has been squeezed out for humans.

The figures that have been used about producing 182 pounds of beef on an acre made the erroneous assumption that cattle are fed grain from birth. If a fed steer weighs 1,000 pounds, he's probably been fed only about 2,500 pounds of grain. Poultry is supposed to be the most efficient animal for converting grain to protein, but it takes 2 1/2 pounds of grain to produce a pound of poultry meat, which is the same proportion of grain to the finished weight of a fed steer.

There is some starvation in the world. In most places in the world, malnutrition is quite widespread. All of us want to help prevent people from dying of hunger. Some of the ad-die-headed think the way to do that is for America to give away huge quantities of food year after year.

A solution, of course, will come only by helping peoples of underdeveloped countries to establish and improve their own agriculture.

If America provides free food for all the people in a nation, there will never be any incentive for that country's farmers to grow their own food.

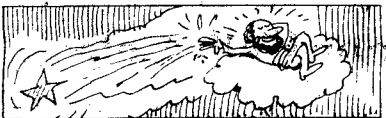

Over the long range, we should think of increasing, not decreasing our supply of beef. Right now, we have more than can be sold at a profit for the producer. There is a growing demand worldwide, however, for beef. We can produce good beef in the Midwest and ship the meat to Japan and Western Europe more economically than they can produce it locally. Through breaking down trade barriers and through promotion, we can open these markets for America.

Rather than condemning Americans to diets of grain, we ought to be thinking of the day when people all over the world can enjoy meat frequently. Then, the people of the globe will be taller, better nourished and have more strength to fight off disease. We can raise others to our standards, not lower our standards to the lowest in the world.

Better be alert, for hunters aren't!

Dear Editor: Just a short way from where my husband loads silage every day, two little red foxes had their home. He watched them every morning with much amusement as they ran and played.

Sunday morning as he loaded silage, he was startled as a bullet whistled by him. So close, he said, it seemed he could feel the breeze as it went by.

The coyote hunters were out. No one bothered to ask permission to hunt, or apparently even take the time to see if any human or livestock might be in danger of their bullet. They just stopped on the road, jumped out and shot. In a matter of minutes, both little red foxes were dead.

What sport is there in this? Eight of 10 pickups equipped with two-way radios and a couple of men each, chasing one little animal that doesn't have a chance of making it out alive. In my book that's called bull, or just plain crazy.

These are local men who should know the value of a farmer's livestock and equipment, yet they open gates to fields with livestock in them and roar around with their pickups, and then leave without shutting the gates.

That's bad enough, but when, like Sunday, they shoot without even caring whether a human or livestock is in the way of their bullet, then I think it's time for open season on hunters. — Don and Jerene Rohde.

Thoughts for today ...

"Influence" There are little eyes upon you, and they're watching right and day; There are little ears that quickly take in every word you say; There are little hands all eager to do everything you do; And a little one who's dreaming of the day he'll be like you; You're the little fellow's idol, you're the wisest of the wise; He believes in you devoutly, holds that all you say is do; He will say and do in your way when he's grown up just like you; There's a wide-eyed little fellow who believes you're always right; And his eyes are always always open, and he watches day and night; You are setting an example every day in all you do; For the little one who's waiting to grow up to be like you.

"The gas shortage may encourage people to shop closer to home, in fact in their own hometown. The importance of trading at home cannot be overemphasized when it comes to building a strong community. The benefits are tremendous and when viewed as a whole picture far outweigh any real or imagined savings that may be affected."

Student loans across country are threatened

By RON HENDREN

WASHINGTON — A recent study has concluded that more and more young people are defaulting on their federally guaranteed student loans, and that report has provided new and potent ammunition to congressmen, senators and White House aides who want an excuse to dismember the program. More than half a million students have obtained college educations with the help of these loans.

The study projects that the government will likely lose some $21 million annually in defaulted notes, about one half of one per cent of the total amount guaranteed, and about half the cost of a single C5A transport aircraft.

But never mind. $20 million is $20 million, and in these perilous times a lot more people are spending a lot more time looking for ways to tighten other people's belts. And rightly so, although the fiscal administrators would do well to start at home.

The problem is that those who are stragglers abnormally are the ones who are asked, or forced, to be the first to take in still another notch. Thus it is that Social Security and medicare and medical recipients, students and others living on slim, fixed incomes are the first to be asked to sacrifice still more.

And that brings us back to the recipients of guaranteed student loans. The four volume study (which, incidentally, cost the Office of Education $180,000) found that most educators already knew: the recipients of these loans tend to be students from families in middle and lower income brackets, and are people who for the most part would not receive formal education beyond high school were it not for this program.

The study also shows that defaulters tend to be lower income persons, are more likely to be black than white, and attended poorer, less prestigious schools. Many attended trade schools.

Richard L. Tambaugh, executive secretary of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators fears that "some banks will be more careful now in making loans to the kinds of students who could default." Federal officials are already suggesting "higher loan standards," and similar "solutions"

YOU AND YOUR CAR

By the Automotive Information Council

Tougher Standards Necessary? In addition to inflation, virtually every year brings new government mandated emissions and safety regulations which add to the cost of new automobiles.

While many of these requirements have proved beneficial to motorists in lives saved and cleaner air, mandated regulations of questionable value add unnecessarily expense to the cost of an automobile. One example is the low-speed impact-absorbing bumpers designed to save motorists money by reducing body damage in minor collisions. Government and industry studies both indicate that these bumpers do not offer significant benefits in relation to their cost. And the added weight results in decreased gas-line mileage.

The same cost-benefit considerations hold true in auto emission controls. The auto manufacturers are committed to reducing air pollution and have met the changing and increasingly stringent government exhaust emission standards from 1966 through 1975. But tougher standards through 1980 will add more to the cost of automobiles and further decrease gasoline mileage, with health benefits still unknown.

The Environmental Protection Agency says carbon monoxide levels in most urban areas have stabilized or are diminishing, and that oxides of nitrogen are not as prevalent or dangerous as previously thought. A National Academy of Sciences report states that standards set for all emission levels are three times more stringent than necessary. The Academy estimates that a car equipped with a dual catalyst system designed to meet the proposed 1977 emission standards will cost the owner $270 per year for five years, including higher purchase cost, increased maintenance and increased fuel consumption compared with a 1970 engine.

A joint study on energy and emissions by Columbia, Harvard and MIT recommends keeping the current emission standards through 1980, adding that if standards remain at the 1975 level, air quality will improve 10 per cent each year as a result of old cars being junked.

Hoskins, Wayne, Carroll Kids Tops in Dental Poster Contest

Third graders from Hoskins, Wayne and Carroll were named winners in the poster contest conducted by Educational Service Unit No. One. One winner, Jim Joslin of Laurel in connection with National Children's Dental Health Week all this week.

Winning the contest and the first place prize of a battery-operated tooth brush was little Cindy Falk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Falk of Hoskins and a student at District No. 77.

Taking second place were Pat Melena and Todd Dorcey, students at St. Mary's Catholic School in Wayne who combined their talents to produce their poster. All students at St. Mary's who participated in the contest were paired together so two students worked on each entry.

Young Melena is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Melena of Wayne; Todd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dorcey of rural Wayne.

Third place honors in the contest went to Valerie Bush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bush of Carroll and a student at District No. 68.

All posters entered in the contest are on display at the following businesses in Wayne: State National Bank and Trust Co., Wittig's Super Valu, Peoples Natural Gas Co., Montgomery Ward Catalog Agency, Jack and Jill, Ben Franklin Store, Gambles, Wayne Book Store, Coast-to-Coast and Shupe, Wessel and DeNaeyer dental offices.

The contest was open to all third graders in rural schools in Wayne County as well as those enrolled at St. Mary's in Wayne and Trinity Lutheran at Hoskins.

National Children's Dental Health Week is sponsored nationally by the American Dental Association and by the Nebraska Dental Association in Nebraska.

Theme for this year's observance is "Don't Give Plaque A Ghost of A Chance."

Dr. Wayne Wessel, Wayne dentist, has been named local chairman for the observance.

Looking for a tax refund? The Internal Revenue Service is ready and willing to get your tax refund, if you have one coming, in your hands as quickly as possible.

"All we need to help taxpayers get their refund quickly is for individuals to file their returns as soon as possible," said Everett Loury, district director for Nebraska. "Returns received now can be processed and the refund mailed to the taxpayer in four to five weeks. Taxpayers who wait until the April 15 deadline to file will have to wait up to eight weeks for their refund check to arrive."

Another advantage of filing early, Loury noted, is that it will assure prompt processing and issuance of any income tax rebates that may be enacted by Congress.

Last year 396,756 taxpayers in Nebraska received $125.6 million in refunds. "This worked out an average of $317 for each refund return for taxpayers in Nebraska," Loury said.

Taxpayers are reminded to include all W-2's and 1099 forms with their tax returns.

"This prescription will be ready in an hour. Mind waiting out on the street?"

Pork Promotion
The recent pork promotion sponsored by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce was a good example of promoting farm products. Congratulations to all the people who helped make this a success. I hope that we will see more promotion of products produced by Wayne County farmers in the future.

Beef Cow Herd Record
There are a large number of beef cow herds in Wayne County, but I find that records on such herds are hard to find.

I'm working with several farmers in the county and hope to obtain information on cost and return of beef cow herds in this county in the near future.

Rabbit Damage to Trees
I'm getting some reports of rabbit damage to trees. There are a few methods that will be of help.

WHO SAYS A FIREPLACE HAS TO COST A BUNDLE?

It doesn't, if it's the Woodsman. Temco's big, bold, contemporary free-standing fireplace comes with a small, unassuming, old-fashioned price tag.

Its distinctive, cylindrical shape gives maximum heat distribution and makes the Woodsman the perfect foil for contemporary surroundings. Like all Temco free-standing fireplaces, the Woodsman is a wood-burner. But it can be adapted easily to gas or electric logs. It's easy to install, at a fraction of the cost of a traditional masonry fireplace.

In a range of decorator colors, the Woodsman is at home just about anywhere. And it won't cost you a bundle to put it there.

Area Farmers Urged To Try Minimum Till

"Till less and save more" is the advice soil conservationists in Northeast Nebraska will be giving out this spring, according to a district soil conservationist in Wayne.

Arnold Marr, with the Soil Conservation Service in Wayne, said a major push will be made this spring to interest farmers in this part of the state in minimum tillage farming methods.

He said the effort is planned because of the need to conserve fuel and the shortage of subsoil moisture.

Marr said it has been proven that most types of minimum tillage will save about 50 percent of the fuel used in conventional plow tillage operations in row crop production.

According to University of Nebraska Lincoln extension service figures, it takes five and one-quarter gallons of fuel to till an acre of land by the conventional plow method, he said.

This compares with only two gallons of fuel an acre by the minimum tillage method, he said.

There are many advantages of minimum tillage farming besides just fuel conservation, according to Marr. It requires less time, reduces soil erosion, conserves the limited soil moisture and improves soil structure, he added.

There are various minimum tillage systems being followed, according to Marr, but the most common consists of stalk cutting, planting, cultivation once or twice and harvest. This system requires a special type of planter that will operate on a "trashy" surface, he said.

Another system, consists of using a disk to cut the stalks and then planting with a conventional surface planter, he said. This system works very well, but doesn't leave quite as much residue on the surface, he said.

The chisel plow is also quite common with the field being planted with a conventional planter, he said. Chisel plowing should be done in the fall for best results, giving the soil a chance to settle by the winter freezing and thawing action, he pointed out.

Chisel plowing, however, takes a little more fuel than other minimum tillage methods, he noted.

A farmer has to ask himself whether a new tillage system will result in a yield equal to or better than his present one, according to Marr.

Minimum tillage will equal or improve yield, he said, and farmers who use it agree that it does.

ETV Program Offers Tips to Area Farmers

Wayne area farmers and feeders will be able to learn more about such things as livestock nutrition, crop pests and grain marketing in the comfort of their living room, beginning tonight (Thursday).

The first in a series of six one-hour programs titled "Farmer Net" will be aired this evening at 8 p.m. on Nebraska Educational Television Network.

Farmers in the Wayne area can receive the program over either Channel 12 or Channel 19.

Norman Tooker, Douglas County extension agent who is hosting the series, points out that the hour-long programs on prime viewing time were planned in lieu of farmer information meetings held in the past.

He said the idea was conceived originally for Douglas, Sarpy, Saunders, Dodge and Washington Counties, but grown interest prompted ETV officials to telecast the series statewide.

With cold temperatures, short days, possible hazardous driving conditions and the need for farmers to tend livestock, Tooker urged farm operators, tenants, landlords and farm managers to mark dates of the shows on their calendars and get set "to stay at home and watch the programs in your own living rooms."

Wayne County agricultural agent Don Spitz strongly recommended the series for area farmers, noting that the program will cover a variety of subjects which should prove interesting to all farmers and feeders in the area.

The program will employ a mix of University of Nebraska Lincoln extension specialists, farmers and county agents discussing current developments in several areas. Participants also will include an attorney and two district extension specialists from Council Bluffs.

Tonight's program, "A Timely Look at Livestock Nutrition," will cover cow calf nutrition and how farmers can use more forage and less grain for producing beef.

Titles of the other five programs: "Livestock and Grain Marketing—Outlook and Alternatives," Feb. 13; "The Dollars and Sense of Using Crop Residues," Feb. 20; "Crop Pests (Weeds and Bugs) and Soil Fertility," Feb. 27; "Farm Family Estate Planning," March 6; "Farm Leases and Farm Records," March 13.

NE Feeders Plan For annual Meet

Why is cattle slaughter running at record levels when cattle on feed are of 26 percent? Can livestock feeders expect to market livestock at profitable prices in 1975?

These are questions that will be asked of Doug Murfield, USDA statistician, at the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association's annual meeting Monday at the Paddock Steak House at South Sioux City.

Murfield, director of the USDA statistical reporting service at Lincoln, is main speaker for the event.

On the business agenda are reports of the activities of 1974 and election of directors.

The evening will begin with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. Dinner is scheduled for 7:30.
