

Those Old Traveling Tent Shows (Savidge Era) Come Alive in New Book

By NORVIN HANSEN

How many of you can remember such terms as barker, candy pitch, preacher plays, three-sheeting and one-nighter? Do you remember when colorful posters suddenly appeared all over announcing that "Red Feather and His Squaw" would be in town within a few days? And do you remember when the Walter Savidge Amusement Co., headquartered in Wayne, sending out its tent show and carnival for appearances over much of the Midwest? If you do, you might enjoy reading "Footlights on the Prairie," a book by Jerry Mickel which traces the history of the repertory tent shows of the Midwest. Published by North Star Press at St.

Cloud, Minn., the book is available at Wayne Book Store. The 226-page book is loaded with some 100 pictures of early tent shows, some of the leading characters of the day and crowds enjoying that unique form of live entertainment which helped relieve much of the monotony of living on the prairies years ago. Among those pictures is one of the 17-car train which belonged to the Savidge Amusement Co. and which was used to transport the show and crew from town to town. The jacket of the book includes a panoramic photograph of the Savidge crew lined up in front of the midway during a stand in Neligh about 1920.

The author of the book, a Nebraska native, traveled more than 2,000 miles and interviewed a host of people, among them Mrs. Savidge, in order to gather information about how the tent shows began, grew, prospered and finally died. Mrs. Savidge, widow of the man who operated one of the largest shows in the western part of the Midwest, still lives in Wayne. Besides providing information about the Savidge company, Mickel covers Elwin Strong, a brother of Walter Savidge who later changed his name to that of an actor, well known actor whom Strong had worked for and admired. Both Savidge and Strong grew up in Wayne. Tent repertory shows have all but disappeared from the amusement picture. They were a unique type of theater which grew out of the troupes which played the smaller towns and cities. Says the author, "Rep shows brought laughter and tears to the country towns and villages during the last half of the nineteenth, and the first half of the twentieth century. These were the shows to which entertainment starved people drove a horse and buggy forty miles over the wide prairie to see." The rep shows played in the popular airshows in the summer and in the opera shows in the winter. After the silent movies took over the opera houses around 1913, the rep companies were forced into tents. Their greatest development in tents took place between 1919 and 1930, according to the author, but by 1940, whether in house or tent, the rep shows were no longer an important part of theater. The shows prospered, especially during the 1920's, and at the height of their success in 1927 the New York Times devoted space to their activities on two different occasions. The Times estimated that in the mid-twenties there were over 500 troupes playing to more than 17 million people and employing over 2,000 actors. The Savidge Amusement Co. was one of the largest of the companies, and it was unique because if carried a carnival. See TENT SHOWS, page 7

Cooking Tips Await Women at Expo '75

Wayne area women interested in learning more about such things as microwave ovens, outdoor grilling and kitchen lighting are invited to attend the cooking school which will be held during this week's Spring Expo '75 in Wayne. The exposition, which will feature nearly 50 exhibitors, is scheduled for Friday and Saturday in the city auditorium. Exposition hours will be from 6 to 9 p.m. on Friday, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday.

JUNE RENANDER

The cooking school, slated to begin at 2 p.m. on Saturday, will be conducted by June Renander, home service advisor with Nebraska Public Power District. A native of Pender and a graduate of Wayne State College, Mrs. Renander will demonstrate the use of small appliances such as the blender and fry pan. She also will demonstrate how to use a microwave oven, including preparation of a complete meal, and will discuss outdoor grilling.

Food which will be prepared during the cooking school will be given away as prizes to those attending. Mrs. Renander, who lives in Norfolk, works with schools, clubs and appliance dealers, and she makes home visits to help women become better housewives.

Also scheduled during the exposition is a style show Friday evening. The show will feature numerous outfits provided by several local merchants.

Each exhibitor and the Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the exposition, will give away prizes during the show.

There will be no charge for those wishing to attend the exposition or the two special programs planned during it.

Bicentennial Group Takes First Steps

American Bicentennial committee members in Wayne Friday night named a treasurer and a chairman for locating historical spots in Wayne County. Picked as the group's treasurer was Howard Witt, Chamber of Commerce manager in Wayne. Charles Maier, biology teacher at Wayne State College will be in charge of finding historical spots and places of interest in the county so they can be kept track of. Also Friday night, the committee discussed further the table it will share with the Senior Citizens Center at the Spring Expo '75 scheduled for Friday and Saturday at the city auditorium. The group agreed to have a donation box at the table so people can make donations to help the committee with its bicentennial plans and preliminary activities. Money donated at the exposition will be used for operational expenses such as envelopes, stationery and telephone calls, according to committee secretary Mrs. Ron Mau. The committee will not ask for donations to help with projects or activities until these have been decided upon specifically, she said. Gil Fournier, a student at Wayne State College, told the committee that he is in the process of setting up a Liberty Bell drill team and will make the team available for presentations in the area. The team, composed of Wayne State coeds, will first perform at Norfolk on May 1, according to Fournier. Details are being worked out for painting a large mural on one of the sides of a building in the downtown business district, according to the committee's secretary. The mural will depict scenes from this area's history.

Also planned by the committee is a meeting between Mrs. Roberta Wette of Wayne, general chairman of bicentennial activities in Wayne, and the county commissioners. The committee hopes the commissioners will name the county-wide bicentennial chairman so projects of interest to everybody in the county can be undertaken. Organizations or clubs in the area willing to help the committee with its bicentennial activities, are urged to get in touch with Mrs. Wette, housemother at Morey Hall on the Wayne State campus, or any of the 16 members on the committee. Already volunteering their services were the members of the recently formed Circle K at Wayne State. The group is the college arm of the local Kiwanis Club.

The bicentennial committee will next meet at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, March 21, at the city auditorium. The meeting is open to anybody interested in attending.

Council Okays Request for Liquor License

In a special meeting Friday afternoon, the Wayne City council approved the application for a liquor license by CitySide, Inc., the corporation which will operate the Black Knight Lounge and Steakhouse.

The city's approval will be forwarded to the state liquor commission, which has final say about whether the license will be issued. Also Friday afternoon, the council approved a request from Ervin Jerman to move a small building from Nebraska to the Northwest part of Wayne. Jerman will be required to post a $100 bond before moving the building.

Councilmen agreed during the meeting to accept the invitation from Roy Broymill of Dakota City to tour his manufacturing plant there and be his dinner guest, Broymill, who is expected to open his manufacturing plant in Wayne within the next several weeks, invited the councilman, mayor, city administrator and city clerk. They are expected to tour the plant this afternoon (Monday).

Council will hold its regular meeting Tuesday night in the Woman's Club room at the city auditorium. The meeting begins at 7:30.

Bible Prof To Speak in Wayne Area

The Rev. N. Leroy Norquist, professor of New Testament at the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago will be speaking in the Wayne area this week. He will be at Wayne State College Tuesday.

His talk, set for a p.m. at the WSC Student Center Birch Room, is open to the public.

Professor Norquist has an AB from Augustana College and earned his master of divinity degree from Augustana Theological Seminary. He received his STM at Willingham University and his PhD from Hartford Seminary, and he has done further study at Princeton Theological Seminary.

His talk Tuesday afternoon is sponsored by the Cooperative Christian Ministry.

He will be speaking at a pastor's meeting in Wayne today (Monday) and at Salem Lutheran Church in Wakarusa this evening. Tuesday evening he will be at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in rural Pitger. Wednesday evening he will speak at Lenten services at St. Mark's Church in Pender, and Thursday evening he will be at St. Paul's Lutheran in Wayne.

Ingram Bound Over for Trial

William Ingram, charged in December with auto theft, was bound over to Wayne County district court for trial following his preliminary hearing before district county judge Eugene McFadden of Norfolk Thursday afternoon.

McFadden set Ingram's bond at $10,000, twice as much as it had been set following his return to Wayne. He posted an additional $500 bond, 10 per cent of the extra $5,000, and was released. State law permits a person to be freed after posting 10 per cent of the bond, according to associate county judge Luverna Hilton of Wayne.

Top Students' Plaque

WINSIDE ENGLISH teacher, Mrs. Marian Iversen, isn't criticizing athletics when it comes to learning honors, but she feels more students who earn academic achievements should be honored equally. As a result, Mrs. Iversen presented the school last week with a plaque to honor the top three students in each graduating class for the next 14 years. Ironically, Mrs. Iversen has spent the last 14 of her 27 years of teaching at Winside.

Legion Post Plans Annual Fund Drive

Wayne's American Legion post this spring will sponsor its annual drive to sell subscriptions to magazines in order to raise money for additional portable hospital equipment, according to post-commander Loren Ellis.

Money earned by the post from sales of subscriptions to such publications as Cappers Weekly will be used to purchase hospital beds, walkers, crutches and other equipment. The equipment is made available to anybody in the county who might need it, according to Ellis.

Persons wishing more information about the annual project may contact Ellis.

Clinic's Aim: To Help Stop 'Rubber' Checks

The State National Bank and Trust Co. of Wayne will provide transportation—for any merchants wishing to attend a fraud prevention clinic scheduled for David City on Tuesday, March 18.

The clinic, being sponsored by banking organizations, is designed to benefit not only bank, but also merchants. It is especially aimed at merchants who have a high volume of checks which go through his cash register and who may be exposed to counterfeit money.

Merchants who wish to attend the clinic should get in touch. See CHECKS, page 7.

Fine Arts Festival Set for AH Friday

A combination of instrumental and vocal ensembles plus one-act play and speech presentations will make up this year's spring fine arts festival at Allen High School Friday night at 7:30.

Under the direction of music instructor Lorna Stamp, the instrumental and vocal groups will perform short numbers in the school's music room. The one-act play, "Don't Wake Harry," which received an excellent rating in district competition at Wayne recently, and speeches will be directed by Mrs. Sandra Chase.

Rehm: Save Money By Not Plowing

Area farmers looking ahead to spring plowing may save some money by taking a second look at some fields, says George Rehm, district agronomist at the Northeast Station near Concord.

The agronomist suggests that, instead of plowing, farmers try disking twice those fields that were in soybeans as well as those fields where the corn was cut for silage. For these fields, surface planters can be used to plant row crops following the last disking, he notes. This method of planting corn called the reduced tillage system has been tested for two years at the Northeast Station and the average yield for 1972 and 1973 was 105 bushels per acre, says Rehm. This compares to 108 bushels per acre for corn planted by the tillage system and 100 bushels per acre for corn planted by conventional methods.

The total planting cost for the reduced tillage system will be approximately $9 per acre. The planting cost for 1975 for the tillage system will be approximately $6.50 per acre. The field operations used in the more conventional planting methods will cost approximately $16 per acre, according to Rehm.

Tests at the Northeast Station, says Rehm, show that reduced tillage practices will not cause lower corn yields. In fact, the reduced tillage practices have produced slightly higher yields, he points out.

Rehm also points out that some form of a tillage planter is not necessary for a farmer to use reduced or minimum tillage practices. Today's farmer is really using some form of reduced tillage when he eliminates one or more trips over the field. The agronomist concludes that there are many fields in Northeast Nebraska where plowing will not be needed before a row crop can be planted in 1975.

Dixon Work Planned

The Dixon town board has okayed armor coating the town streets, a project which will cost approximately $6,300, said board chairman John Young.

The contract was awarded to an Iowa firm, which will complete the nearly two miles of street work in late June, Young said.

A Chilly Day's Work

WAYNE COUNTY agricultural agent Don Spitze and 4-H'er Steve Gramlich are dressed warmly as they go about tagging 4-H animals weighed Friday at the sale barn in Wayne. The two, along with 4-H'ers Janet Spillenger, Les Thomsen and Greg Owens, helped weigh 117 animals, 17 per cent more than a year ago. The 4-H members belong to the county's Teen Supremes, the junior leader organization. The USDA ear tags will help identify each animal and will enable the owner to get a carcass report after slaughter.

OBSERVATIONS

A sod house? Right on!

Although there are bound to be kibitzers and doubters, we think the idea of seventh grade students at Wayne's middle school constructing a sod house on school property is an excellent one.

Getting all those 3,000-plus pieces of sod cut, loaded, hauled, unloaded and shaped into a house is not going to be an easy task. In fact, it likely will be a very difficult one which will test those youngsters to see if they can really tackle a project like this and see it through to its completion. That in itself is going to be a learning experience for the youngsters, a learning experience they will remember longer than razing about sod houses in one history book.

Once the sod house is built, it will provide numerous opportunities for the youngsters to learn first-hand about what life was like on the Nebraska prairies years ago. As the teacher pointed out in explaining the idea to the school board, students could later finish the inside, walls of the soddy the way the early settlers did. Then they could take on a long-range project of furnishing the sod house with chairs, beds, kitchen utensils and other things similar to those used by the settlers. A "pioneer garden" could be developed outside the soddy so plants and flowers could be grown like those grown by the settlers.

The soddy could become quite an attraction for the community, with students themselves giving tours through it to explain about the life of early Nebraskans.

Of course, we are not blind to possible problems. One of the things the students, teacher and school officials are going to have to be most concerned about is vandalism. But since a great many young students are going to have a hand in the construction of the sod house, maybe that won't be as big a problem as some of us might think. It still might be wise, however, to plan construction of some type of fence around the house so night-time "visitors" could be kept away.

Another problem will be the gradual deterioration of the house. Sod that has been cultivated in recent years probably won't stand the test of time like the sod settlers cut from the earth years before plows came upon the scene. Some of those houses built out of virgin soil still stand in central and western Nebraska, and many others would be around had they been given proper care and attention. But that problem, like the one of vandalism, might also turn out to be smaller than expected. It's unlikely that the students who build the sod house, and the students who come after them, are going to let it crumble and deteriorate without some attempt to keep it in its original condition.

All things considered, we think the idea is an excellent one. We hope we can say the same thing several months from now when the soddy is completed. — Norvin Hansen.

'Herald revived many memories'

Quartz Hill, Calif.

Dear Editor:

A short time ago a friend of mine gave me a copy of The Wayne Herald. My parents moved from Pender, where I was born, to Wayne when I was two years old. I am now 85. The Herald brought back wonderful memories.

My father was a furniture dealer and built a building there on Main Street. I suspect Wayne has changed so much that one could hardly visualize where that building stood. Anyway, there was a Baptist church on one corner, a lively stable with a high board fence around three sides catty-corner across the street, a small dressmaker shop and our building.

I went to school in the school at the upper end of Main. There was a standpipe (for water) by the side of the school. It used to run over and get the street and schoolyard wet. I was five at the time and was always afraid the standpipe would tip over on me.

I have all these memories and many more. We knew the Leys (banker); we traded at the German store a block down from our store. Prof. Pile had his first summer school in our building, as my father had gone broke in the depression at that time. When I grew up I went to Wayne Normal. That was before the state had purchased it.

Why am I writing this? I am sending a check for $3 and want you to send me copies of the Herald. I did have friends here but suspect they have all passed away. At my age we live mostly in the past. I guess, though, I must say I will always have a big place in my heart for Wayne and the time I spent there until I was seven when we moved to Laurel. Mrs. Beth Brakemeyer (Bessie Thompson).

An old manuscript has the crazy idea that flour of daffodil is a cure for madness.

A closer look.

By Norvin Hansen

She enjoyed her most successful term of school and was loved by all her pupils. She was silent in thought, never complained of ailments, a devout Christian in every sense. Lover of her immediate family, relatives, friends and neighbors was her joy — truly a soul of generosity.

So reads an obituary which appeared in a Nebraska weekly newspaper recently. Marie Pretzer of Wakefield, former society editor at The Wayne Herald, clipped it out and sent it over.

"I thought I had seen everything. I don't normally get a kick out of a death notice, but this particular one really made my day."

Read on and you'll know why.

"Her motto was 'For God and Humanity.' To know Sophie was to love and respect her as she gave her very honest best in work, duty and play."

The obituary ran something like 19 inches in the weekly newspaper. I thought if I could write that much for my own obituary were I given the chance to compose it after passing on to my just — or unjust — reward.

SOME interesting facts about Nebraska's ranking in agriculture:

- First in commercial cattle slaughter in 1974 ($9,754,000 head).
- First in alfalfa meal production in 1974 ($69,000 tons).
- Second in sorghum silage production in 1974 (450,000 tons).
- Third in honey production in 1974 (10,742,000 pounds).
- Third in number of cattle and calves as of Jan. 1 (4,900,000).
- Fourth in land in farms and ranches in 1974 (48,100,000 acres).
- Fourth in corn for grain production in 1974 (380,800,000 bushels).
- Fifth in corn silage production in 1974 (7,275,000 tons).
- Fifth in value of all cattle and calves on farms as of Jan. 1 ($1,035,000,000).

— Seventh in creamery butter production in 1973 (22,944,000 pounds).

— Seventh in oats production in 1974 (28,560,000 bushels).

Got A Minute to Read The Minutes?

There is a comment made by a less-sincere elected or appointed official that is something like this: There is no reason to publish the minutes. They can be read any time in the secretary's office.

The official who makes an off-hand statement like this is not aware of the problems that would be created if all taxpayers were to descend on the office and ask to "see the minutes."

Every auditor's office in Nebraska would be required to employ an extra person to make the books available, every minute of the day. And, the books would not truly be easily available as they would be used as part of the work-day of clerks and officials. There would be a good deal of work interruption and inefficiency if taxpayers had to go to offices to read the minutes' about "what happened."

Publication of the minutes in this newspaper is the lowest cost method of letting the people know. No other method can match newspaper publication in economy.

Mimeograph stencils, paper, envelopes, ink and postage would quickly mount to figures far in excess of the cost of publication, even without clerical time. Publication in a newspaper is the easiest and most convenient method, for both the official and the taxpayer.

When is the last time you "had a minute to read the minutes." Now you can do it in the comfort of your home, at your leisure and at your convenience. It's part of the public's "right to know."

Legal notices keep the public informed.

Weekend Retreat Planned

The Rev. Clifford Custer, who has been an annual visitor to this area since 1970, will return Friday through Sunday, March 14-16, to speak and conduct a weekend retreat. His visit this year is sponsored by the Cooperative Christian Ministry at Wayne State College.

All meetings, open to students and the area public, will be held at the Hearth, just east of the Wayne State campus. Custer is a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary and has a degree in education and psychology from San Francisco State College. An ordained Presbyterian minister, he serves all faiths, traveling extensively to speak at churches, camps, conferences and to serve as a retreat leader.

Two general meetings have been scheduled during Custer's visit, one for 7 p.m. Friday evening, and one for 7 p.m.

THE REV. CLIFFORD CUSTER

Sunday evening. The retreat, which begins with the Friday evening general meeting, will consist of five sessions extending throughout the weekend and concluding Sunday morning.

Retreat participants are urged to wear informal clothing and bring sleeping bags. Meals will be served at the Hearth.

Cost for registration and the four meals is $5 per person and should be submitted to the Rev. Paul Reimers, Cooperative Christian Ministry, Wayne, Neb.

The retreat is planned as a personal and community experience in seeking and sharing, and will include teaching, singing, meditation, prayer, faith-imagination tools, one-to-one sharing and group sharing.

Rev. McDermott: How Important Is God in Marriage Relationship?

How important are religious values in relationship to marriage?

That was just one of the questions the Rev. Thomas McDermott of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Wayne asked the nearly 75 persons who attended Tuesday night's marriage seminar at Wayne State College.

Tuesday night's session marked the second in a series of five meetings on marriage being sponsored by the Cooperative Christian Ministries at Wayne State College.

The Rev. Jack Schneider, assistant pastor at Wayne's Grace Lutheran Church, conducted the first meeting, Feb. 25, on "Sexual Relations."

Father McDermott in his presentation stressed the importance to God, man, Jesus Christ and the church in relationship to marriage.

"Two persons from the same church can have opposite views of what God represents. I hope they never agree 100 per cent, because we grow together as we discuss our religious values," he said.

THE HOTTEST COMEDY OF THE YEAR!

Freebie and the Bean

With TV's Rhoda... Award Winning... a comedy outrageously funny.

Jim Meyer continues a long tradition in Wayne State wrestling — that is, winning a place in the NAIA nationals.

Going into Saturday rounds at Sioux City, the 126-pounder, a Wayne High product, had won himself no less than six place and possibly as high as third.

A mere six seconds separated Meyer from a crack at the national championship. That occurred Friday when Meyer encountered the same grappler who eliminated him from last year's national meet, fifth seed Glenn Durin of Taylor University.

They were tied at 2-2 when regular time ran out. Six seconds more would have given Meyer riding time for a winning point, coach Marion Haayer explained. But in overtime, Durin gained a 4-1 win.

From there Meyer went on to a 5-0 decision over Tim Wehner of Lake Superior State and a 5-1 win over Doug Sill of Anderson College. That sent him into a 1 p.m. Saturday match for fifth or sixth place. Winning that meant a chance for third place in consolation finals starting at 6:30 in Morningside College's Allee-Gym.

Thursday combat went this way: Meyer got a 17-2 major decision over Bernard Ferguson of Chicago State University, then a 3-1 decision over fourth-seeded Bob Pierce of powerful Cental Washington State, and finally a 12-4 decision over Dennis Lafollette of Dakota State.

Going into Saturday matches, Meyer's season record was 33-7. Wayne's four other national entries all lost initial scraps. Mike Riedmann (177) met top-seeded Larry Davidson of Eastern Washington State and got pinned in 4:25. Friday in a wrestling Riedmann suffered a 27-1 loss to Gordon Wright of Delaware State.

For the other three, there were no wrestling opportunities as their conquerors lost later. Craig Heltwege (134) and Herb Harris (158) both lost 9-4 decisions. Fred Spale, (190), 14-4.

WS Cagers Repeat Bow to 1st Ladies

History repeated, with minor variations, for Wayne State women's basketball in the Region 6 tournament over the weekend at Lawrence, Kan.

This year the Wildkittens won their first round game big, then lost a close one in Friday's second round.

Last year, it was reversed a squeaker loss in the opener followed by a romp.

In both cases the close losses were inflicted by William Penn College of Iowa. This time Penn survived a late Wayne come-back for a 57-50 win Friday night. Last year Penn prevailed, 49-45.

One difference last year's loss came in the first round, dooming Wayne to no better than fifth, which is where the Wildkittens finished. This year the pairings put Wayne and top-seeded Penn in opposite sides of the lower bracket.

Thus Wayne met Dickinson State of North Dakota and won easily, 77-49, and Penn defeated Kansas University. That guaranteed both a place in the top four among eight teams.

Wayne State women had a chance for third place in a 6 p.m. game Saturday in KU's Allen Fieldhouse. Penn earned a shot at a repeat regional championship and an automatic trip to the national meet because Region 6 can send two this year.

Against Penn, Wayne hung in tight through the first half, to a 23-18 recess score. After intermission the Penn Ladies moved up to 13 and 15 point leads before Wayne rallied late and cut the deficit to seven.

The previous night, Wayne coach G. J. Willoughby began subbing early in the game, eventually using all her players, and they all scored.

Training Sessions Set

Leader training sessions for the Wayne County Home Extension lesson, "The Impressionable Years," will be held March 17, 18, 20 and 21, according to home extension agents at the University of Nebraska North east Station near Concord.

The March 17 session will be at the Ridgeview Manor at Coleridge at 1:30 p.m. March 18 meetings will be at the Watthill extension office at 9:30 a.m. and at the Dakota City Court house at 1:30 p.m. On March 20, the session will be at the North east Station near Concord at 1:30 p.m. and the last session, March 21, will be at 9:30 a.m. at the Woman's Club room at Wayne.

During the March meetings, home extension lesson leaders will learn how the first three years of a child's life have an effect on the feelings and attitudes he will have all his life. The meetings are also open to lesson leaders from groups other than extension clubs, regardless of race, color or national origin. Leaders who plan to attend should contact the home extension agents at the Northeast Station ahead of time so printed material can be made ready.

WH to Present Salute to Music

Windsie High School's music department will host an all-day open house Thursday in conjunction with the national observance day of "Music in Our Schools day."

Parents are invited to the sessions, which begin at 8:30 a.m. in the school's multipurpose room. Featured during the day will be the high school's concert and stage bands, select choir, girls' glee and girls' chorus as well as elementary band and grade school groups.

Although classes will not be dismissed, a mini-concert will be held at 3:10 p.m. in the high school auditorium for all students, and a recital will be presented at 7:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room.

In addition to the sessions, parents will have an opportunity to talk with music teacher Mrs. Bonnie Siefken during the day.

The Windsie music boosters will provide refreshments.

Gamble Store Is Celebrating 50th Birthday

The Gamble Store in Wayne is observing the 50th anniversary of the Gamble organization all this week, according to Gene Cornell, store manager. On March 11, 1925 two young men from Ferguson Falls, Minn., Bert Gamble and Phil Skogmo, opened their first retail store. The first store, called the Gamble Auto Supply Co., was located in St. Cloud, Minn., and it turned out to be the first in a group of Gamble stores that today number more than 1,250 retail outlets in 25 states.

Plenty of Pork

THERE WAS plenty of barbecued pork to go around for pork producers attending a special barbecue at Humpty Dumpty Mills in Wakefield Thursday night. The feed capped the second of a three day Pork Production College for Young Producers at Wayne State College, sponsored by the University of Nebraska Lincoln extension service and the Nebraska Bankers Association. About 35 producers attended the course, according to Bob Fritch, center, area swine specialist at the Northeast Station near Concord.

Sixty Women Attend World Day of Prayer

Sixty Wayne women attended World Day of Prayer held Friday afternoon in Wayne. The service, sponsored annually by Church Women United of Wayne, was hosted this year by St. Mary's Catholic Church. Churches represented were United Presbyterian, First Baptist, Redeemer Lutheran, St. Paul's Lutheran, United Methodist and St. Mary's Catholic. The Rev. Thomas McDermott, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic, extended the welcome Mrs. Jean Nuss sang "Let There Be Peace on Earth" and accompanied group singing. Meditation was by Father McDermott. Mrs. Ray Schreiner, president of Church Women United, served as leader for the program. Scripture was read by Mrs. Harvey Lull, Mrs. Herb Niemann, Mrs. Darrell Rahr, Mrs. Noel Bennett and Mrs. Joe Riiken. Theme was "Become Perfectly One." This year's program was prepared by the women of Egypt for the International Committee for World Day of Prayer. It was announced that the May Fellowship Breakfast, also sponsored annually by Church Women United, will be held at the First Baptist Church Friday, May 7, at 9 a.m. Lunch was served following the benediction by the women of St. Mary's Church.

Book Brings Tent Shows Back to Life

Advertisement for a book about tent shows. Text includes: '(Continued from page 1) as a ballyhoo (a show business advertising gimmick). It was possibly the only one of the companies to use a carnival, which had to shut down its activities for the theatrical performance because Savage considered that the most important part of the enterprise. The Savidge and Strong companies were two of the best known ones in Nebraska, presenting such Broadway successes as "East Is West" in places as far away as Winner, S.D. The two brothers started their theatrical activities in 1906, transporting their show equipment in a box car. Later they separated and operated their own businesses. They were just two of many companies which operated in the Midwest. Others included the Clint and Bessie Robbins Show in South Dakota, the Augler Brothers in Minnesota, the Hazel McCowen Stock Co. in southeastern Nebraska and the Harry Hugo Players in central and western Nebraska. The shows included some great actors, including Jeanne Eagles, Jennifer Jones, Ralph Bellamy and Melvin Douglas. But probably the best known tent show actor - at least nowadays - is Millburn Stone, the "Doc" of television's "Gun, Smoke." Fifty years ago he was a popular leading man among the tent actors. The author of the book a graduate of Peru State College and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, spent about 10 years in research and writing the history of the tent shows. His work was inspired by his experiences with the Elwin Strong Co. in its last year, 1931. THESE TWO pictures, one outside and one inside the Savidge tent, are among more than 100 which appear in the recently published book, "Footlights on the Prairie."

Members of the Teen Supreme

Birth Day Guests
Mrs. Hort Wacker, Mrs. Gary Spinkielink and Douglas Buehler, Dorr and Beth Deidias, Sioux City, spent the weekend in the Arnie Fisher home and to observe his 80th birthday.

Ikes to View Film

Members of Wayne's Izaak Walton League will view a film titled "To Touch the Sky" during their regular meeting tonight (Monday).

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 above the fire hall in Wayne.

Discussed during the evening will be the costs of creating wildlife habitats out of three small triangular-shaped pieces of land on the county road intersections north, northeast and southeast of the Ikes Lake northwest of Wayne.

Arnold Marr, soil conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in Wayne, is expected to have cost estimates ready for discussion during the meeting.

The Ikes approved turning the plots of land into wildlife habitats after obtaining an agreement with county officials that the pieces of land would not be burned off as has been done in past years to avoid traffic hazards.

IRS: Use Label

Taxpayers can help speed any refund due them by using the name and address label from their tax forms package on the tax return they file, says the IRS.

Everett Loury, IRS district director for Nebraska, said, "When taxpayers handwrite their names and addresses on their returns, IRS employees must take time to edit and keypunch the information. This slows up normal processing and could lead to errors which, in turn, could delay refunds that might otherwise be made much sooner," he said. "Any changes should be made right on the label itself," said Loury. He also suggested that taxpayers who do not make out their own tax returns give the label to whoever helps them and ask him to be sure to use it on the return they file.

'Slaves' for Sale

The Allen High chapter of the Future Farmers of America will hold a slave auction Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Allen Legion Postpones

Date of Pancake Feed

Allen's American Legion Post hopes to set a new date for their pancake and ham feed during the regular monthly meeting tonight (Monday), according to Keith Hill, in charge of this year's project.

Last week members decided to postpone Saturday night's feed because of a scheduling conflict with the Lay Witness Mission convention in Allen over the weekend.

Purpose of the feed is to raise money for the summer softball and baseball programs.

AHS Plans 'Cake Feed'

A pancake supper to raise funds for the Allen High School senior skip day will be held at the high school auditorium on March 21 beginning at 5:30 p.m.

The Service Station

A. O. J. Kenneth Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hall of Carroll was chosen sailor of the month at his base in California. His address is A03 Kenneth Hall - U. S. N., 508801098 Sp. 153, Lamore, Calif. With Hall is his wife, the former Debbie Davis of Carroll.

OBITUARIES

Charles Hopkins
Charles Hopkins of Sun City, Ariz., died Feb 26 at Youngstown, Ariz., at the age of 85 years. Funeral services were held Friday in Arizona, with burial Wednesday morning at the Laurel Cemetery. The Rev. Douglas R. Potter officiated at the committal service.
Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Myrtle Sols Hopkins.

Herbert Frevert
Funeral services for Herbert E. Frevert of Wayne were to have been held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Grace Lutheran Church, Wayne. He died Thursday at the Wayne Hospital at the age of 69 years.
The Rev. John Upton officiated and pallbearers were Darold Gister, Merlin Frevert, Evan Bennett, Eldon Barelman, Delwin Peterson and Glen Frevert. Interment was in the Greenwood Cemetery.
The son of Henry and Martha Behmer Frevert, he was born July 8, 1905 in Wayne County. He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith. On Feb. 19, 1930, he was united in marriage to Evelyn Gister at St. Paul's Lutheran Church southwest of Pender. The couple farmed southeast of Wayne until retiring.
He is preceded in death by two brothers and one sister. Survivors include his widow; one brother, Edward Frevert of Wayne and one sister, Mrs. Harvey (Emella) Larsen of Wayne.
