Fluoridation Foes Get 'Funny Taste' Before Equipment Is Working

Although the fluoridation equipment was merely installed and not put into operation last week, city officials in Wayne received several telephone calls from people complaining about the taste of their water.

The fluoridation equipment will begin injecting tiny amounts of fluoride into the city's water supplies today (Monday), according to city administrator Fred Brink. Brink noted that he began receiving calls already last Tuesday, the same day the fluoridation equipment was being installed on four of the city's five water wells.

People were complaining that the fluoride in the city was adding to the water which it wasn't, was making the water "taste funny," Brink said. Some people even said fluoridation is a Communist plot directed against this country, he said.

Brink noted that many communities in Nebraska have natural levels of fluoride in their water supplies which are considerably higher than the fluoride level which Wayne's water is being raised to. Some communities in the country have fluoride levels several times higher than this city's now that additional fluoride is being injected into the water, he added.

Monthly chemical tests are made on the city's water by state health department officials, according to Brink, and these test now will occasionally include a test to check the fluoride level.

In addition, a street department employee daily checks all the city's water wells to make sure they are in proper operation, Brink said. Now that person also will check the operation of the fluoridation equipment each day to make sure it is not malfunctioning, he said.

Because of those daily checks and because of the simple design of the fluoridation equipment, there is almost no chance of something going wrong which would result in excessive amounts of fluoride being injected into the city's water supplies, Brink noted.

Clinic-Festival At Wayne State May Lure 500

Some 500 high school singers are expected on the Wayne State College campus Saturday, Mar. 22, for the fourth annual High School Choral Clinic Festival.

The festival, directed by Dr. Cornell Runestad, will get underway at 9 a.m. and will conclude with a 3 p.m. concert to which the public is invited.

Each participating school will have the opportunity to perform individually as well as with the mass choir. Mass rehearsals will be held in the morning and in the afternoon.

A special feature of the morning session will be a 45 minute concert by Westwood High School choir at 11:15 a.m. Westwood's choir is the 1975 honor choir.

During the afternoon the Wayne State College concert choir and the WDC Madrigal Singers will perform.

Dr. Lyle Seymour, college president, will speak briefly before the 3 p.m. concluding program.

Numbers to be presented by the mass choir at that time will be "Geographical Fugue" by Toch for speaking chorus; "I Found Jesus," an American gospel hymn; "Laudate Dominum," by Mozart; and "And Then Shall Your Light Break Forth," by Mendelssohn.

High schools planning to send choirs to the festival are Laurel High, Omaha; High-Melhigh High, Pierce; High, St. Edward High, Stromsburg; High, Lawton Branch High at Lawton, Ia., and Westwood High at Sloan, Ia.

County Farmers Get $2.269 Million in Low-Yield Payments

The 1974 drought suffered by Wayne County farmers will result in 1,015 farmers receiving $2,268,854 in low yield disaster payments.

Ray Butts, executive director of the Wayne County ASCS, reports that payments will be completed soon. There are 16 farms left to be paid as soon as signatures are received on various documents.

There were 187 farms which applied for low yield disaster payments but which did not qualify. These farms either had low much feed grain production or did not complete an after harvest report, according to Butts.

Producers had been encouraged by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to go all out in producing feed grains, said Butts, and then the government developed the low yield disaster program to take some of the risk out of a producer planting all feed grains on his farm.

The producer would know when he planted that he would receive some payment if he had a crop failure, Butts explained. A farm to be eligible for payment must have a yield low enough to be considered due to disaster, said Butts.

In Wayne County a farmer had to produce less than 51 per cent of what he would normally produce on his allotment. The producer would then receive 48 per cent a bushel on the difference between his actual production and his normal allotment production, Butts said.

The $2,268,854 in payments seems like a lot of money, Butts commented, but the payment represents a loss of approximately $12,000,000 in Wayne County feed grain farmers due to the drought.

'Fred' Is Popular at Expo '75

A YOUNG GIRL cautiously touches the hand of Fred Flinstone (realty Dave Sherry) during Spring Expo '75 in Wayne Friday night. The little girl was one of several hundred — possibly a thousand — people who turned out for the first night of the affair. Expo visitors were treated to a style show and numerous booths which local businessmen spent hours in preparing. On tap for Saturday, the final day of exposition, was an afternoon cooking school. The exposition remained open Saturday evening until 9 p.m. to accommodate the crowds, the largest ever to turn out for a similar event.

'Still Time To Spray for Lice Control'

It's still not too late to spray cattle for lice control, according to John Witkowski, district extension entomologist at the Northeast Station, Concord.

This is especially true for those people with a cow-calf herd and whose cows have not yet begun to calve, he noted. Spraying lice-infested cows will help prevent spreading of lice to the calves, as the lice move from animal to animal by contact. Lice-infested calves are more susceptible to respiratory diseases and generally will not do as well as louse free calves, he said.

If proper equipment is available, Witkowski recommends spraying with either Methoxychlor or Delnav.

Pour-ons such as Korlan 2 also can be used, but if this requires the use of a chute, he recommends not disturbing cattle with this method if the cows are within seven days of calving. Applications should be done on a nice day early in the morning so the cattle will be dry by nightfall, he added.

Dairymen should be especially careful to chose the right pesticide, for some dairymen have been forced to dump milk because illegal pesticide residues. See CONTROL, page 5.

Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' Highlights WS Concert

Felix Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," will be the feature of the Wayne State College spring choir concert to be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at Ramsey Theater in the WSC Val Peterson Fine Arts Center.

No admission will be charged. The public is invited to attend.

"Elijah" is the best known of all oratorios next to "Messiah," according to Dr. Cornell Runestad, WSC choir director.

The dramatic story of Elijah, who causes a period of drought for the Israelites because of their idol worshiping, will be told through a series of chorus numbers, ensemble pieces and solos. Well-known selections include "He, Watching Over Israel," and "Lift Thine Eyes," and solos "If With All Your Heavens" and "O Rest in the Lord."

The role of the prophet Elijah will be sung variously by baritone Joe Manley, Wayne; Matt Smith, Greeley; Larry Franzen, Harlington; and Rich Schroeder, Millard.

Jan Dickinson, Pierce, will accompany on the organ.

Soprano soloists will be Bev Kubik, Bancroft; Claudia Mallatt, Laurel; Diana Erickson, Lyons, and Jan Dickinson, Pierce. Contralto soloists are Cheri Helmer, Neligh, and Cindy Haase, Denison, Ia. Tenor soloists are Dan Murphy, Stuart, and Randy Srb, Papillion.

Members of the concert choir include these area students: Jill Carhart, Wayne, soprano; Kathy Fedony, Wayne, soprano; Mary Ream, Wayne, alto; and Joe Manley, Wayne, bass. Also members are Ron Wachpflz, tenor, and Michael Palumbo, bass, both faculty members at Wayne State.

Kenley Mann Wins Spelling Bee

Kenley Mann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Mann of rural Wayne, won the second annual Wayne County spelling bee Friday, defeating approximately 80 other seventh and eighth graders.

Young Mann, an eighth grader in District 51 west of Wayne, defeated Karla Frevert in the final round of the spelling contest, held at Wayne State's Student Center.

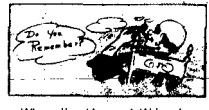

The young Frevert girl, an eighth grader in District 34, misspelled "sensitivity" in the last round of the contest; Kenley spelled it correctly, and then had little trouble with "funnel" to win the top honors and the $25 savings bond in the contest.

Karla won a dictionary as her prize for taking second place in the contest, sponsored by the county rural teachers' association.

Winning third place was Marilyn Strate, a student at Hoskins. Fourth place went to Ward Wacker, a schoolmate of young Mann in District 51.

Goal of New WSC Center: Creative Look At Old Problems

Creative rethinking of human problems is the goal of Wayne State's new Center for the Development of the Humanities, announced by Norman Nordstrand, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences.

The center will operate on several different academic levels at the same time, Nordstrand said, and is flexible in its programming.

"Like the National Humanities Institute at Yale University," Nordstrand said, "the Wayne center will concentrate on creative rethinking and innovations in all the disciplines of the humanities. This comes at a time in our colleges and universities when there is a feeling of uneasiness and uncertainty as to where a technological age with its demands seems to be leading us.

Prominent technologists, as well as humanists, are concerned with this problem."

Nordstrand continued, "The humanities are concerned with the search for a meaningful and satisfying life. They see man as an acting, thinking, feeling subject, rather than an analytic, factorial, causal analyst."

The Wayne State center, Nordstrand said, may develop innovative short-term programs, as in this winter's New York theater project, or it may recommend new types of majors in the humanities with concentration on specific areas such as American studies.

The center also will arrange special seminars to bring outstanding personalities speaking on the humanities as an integral See CENTER GOAL, page 7.

No Injuries in Mishap

No injuries resulted from a car-truck crash about three and a half miles west of Wayne on Highway 35 about 5 p.m. Thursday, reports the Wayne County sheriff's office.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Gerald Ellenberger, 47, of Norfolk attempted to pass a truck driven by Terry Janke, 31, of rural Winside as Janke was turning left. Both vehicles were eastbound when the accident happened.

Byron Janke, a brother of the driver of the truck and owner of the truck, was a passenger in the truck when the accident took place.

The Ellenberger vehicle sustained extensive damage while damage to the truck was less severe.

'Buying beef means jobs for many'

Wayne

Dear Editor: Wayne and Dixon Counties have approximately 150,000 head of cattle in feedlots. Figuring 300 head per hired man, were talking about 500 jobs. Then, of course, there are such jobs as feed salesmen, truck drivers, veterinarians, machinery dealers, etc.

A University of Nebraska extension specialist said, "Educate the consumer to eat good grade beef."

If this were to happen, could our grassland beef industry compete in price with the good grade beef of New Zealand, Australia and Argentina?

An 800-pound grass-fed steer requires about 2,000 pounds of grain to be a choice beef weighing 1,100 pounds. That is a grain conversion of two to one. (Hogs require three or four to one feed conversion.)

For 20 years (1953-1973) feedlots used larger amounts of cheaply priced corn, depressed by government storage. In the 1970's the United States exported feed grains and lost grains to the hungry world. This raised the price of corn and wheat to a more realistic level. Because of this we probably will not see many 400-pound to 600-pound calves fed on grain.

Promoting the sale of choice sirloin and T-bone steaks would be the positive approach to "our" beef industry growth. Hamburger and good grade beef is ably promoted by such as McDonald's, Burger King, etc.

We have a tremendous reputation world wide for our "corn fed" choice steaks.

As a manufactured product native to our area, we'll be hard pressed to find one that will serve as well.

We have the skilled labor force in abundance, we have the raw material in abundance (corn, roughage and cattle). We could probably sell a lot more choice steaks in the United States if we would all pull together.

Who needs choice beef steak? The city of Wayne! Those 500 hired men, the supporting businesses, the cow and calf raisers, and many, many more. — Merle Sieler.

Whereas 1890 is generally considered to mark the end of the land frontier available for settlement, 1974 — or perhaps 1975 — will be considered in retrospect the closing of the energy frontier in the U.S.

This perspective was suggested by Ed Rovener, of the National Governors' Council Energy Commission, Washington, D.C., in a talk at the 1975 Nebraska Water Conference in Lincoln Monday.

Rovener said Americans are now dealing with an expensive limited commodity, and are becoming more vulnerable in international affairs because 20 per cent of the total energy now used in the U.S. comes from foreign sources.

In essence, he told governmental, industrial, agricultural and educational leaders attending the conference that all viable and significant solutions to solving the energy crunch in the U.S. are eight to 10 years down the road.

Rovener, representing the National Governors' Conference, called for a national energy policy. He emphasized the difference between national and federal — the latter a blanket policy determined by the federal government with no allowances made for differing circumstances and needs in separate states.

The attorney for the governors' group lauded the creativity of the states in coping with the energy crisis of 1974 as the nation struggled to deal with the massive fuel shortage.

Rovener gave a thumbnail analysis of constraints which affect each potential energy source in becoming more fully developed or utilized to meet U.S. needs:

Coal — With a 300-year supply, "there is a peculiar mismatch between where coal and water are located." Water, he said, plays an important role in transportation of coal (if a slurry line is used), and in processing coal. Water also plays a key role in cooling equipment at generating plants and turning turbines.

Atomic fuel — One kind only is available now. Two plants which produce the enriched uranium used for atomic power or nuclear plants use 10 per cent of the entire electrical output of the Tennessee Valley Authority. There are many limitations on the location of nuclear plants. Even small capacity atomic power plants are "big." Other new atomic fuels or processes, such as breeder reactors, are "still in scientists' minds," Rovener said.

Solar energy — Every plant utilizing chlorophyll on earth is a beneficiary of the sun, which also indirectly was responsible for producing coal. Thus, the sun is an old and yet new energy source when considered as directly producing energy to heat homes, factories, etc. One of the drawbacks, Rovener said, is that no one has developed the technology for solar energy to be used by itself — another backup system must be present. He noted that some states are allowing incentives in the form of accelerated depreciation or a lower assessed evaluation on structures using solar heat systems.

Natural gas — Supply is declining and the dilemma includes whether it should be used for heating or fertilizer production to support expanded food production.

New petroleum sources — It will require seven years to bring in oil from the eastern continental shelf, even after state-federal jurisdictional disputes are ironed out.

The only viable program in the short run is obligably carrying out conservation measures, he said. This will mean changing but not necessarily lowering of the U.S. life style, Rovener added.

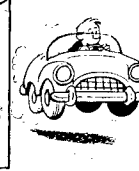

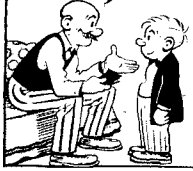

He singled out the automobile as one of the principal culprits. Scoring the attitude of many Americans, he said, "We're more casual about going to war in the Middle East than changing the style of our autos." He alluded to auto industry estimates that it would take four years to make cars more efficient.

If the U.S. had made cars as efficient as European cars, we would be exporting instead of importing oil," Rovener said.

Kansas editor sends books on sod houses

Colby, Kan.

Dear Editor: I was interested in the announcement that one of your school groups plans to undertake construction of a sod house.

Folks in Colby, Kan., know quite a bit about sod houses because this is the home of Sod Town Inc., and is headquarters for an organization with world-wide membership known as Sons and Daughters of the Sodders — whose membership is limited to persons who were born in sod houses, lived in them or went to school in a sod schoolhouse.

Sod Town and the Sons and Daughters of the Sodders are the results of years of planning and work by V. A. Kear, who died here in Colby just two months ago. Before he died he provided for the future of Sod Town, which eventually will be part of a grand museum now being planned here in Colby.

Mr. Kear also wrote a book, which this newspaper published, called Sod Houses and Dugouts in North America. Because this book includes instructions for construction and care of sod houses, I am enclosing three and urge that you pass them on to the teachers and the class so they may have a better idea on how to go about the project. Perhaps some day the class or some members or the teacher may be able to visit Sod Town and see a real sod house, sod school, etc.

I think this is an outstanding undertaking, one that would tie in nicely with our country's bicentennial. I wish the class good luck in its work. — Ray Hansen, Editor — The Prairie Drummer.

Editor's Note: Those books have already been passed on to Dan Johnson, teacher of the seventh grade social studies class at the local middle school which will tackle that project. The book tells how to build a door and window frames, how to go about putting on the roof, how to plaster the walls and the like. It even includes this stanza: Yes, for rugged, solid comfort — A soddy's hard to beat — For a fire made of cow chips furnished all the needed heat." Ray Hansen, by the way, is a brother of the editor of The Wayne Herald.)

By Norvin Hansen

I DON'T KNOW how they did it, but promoters of Wayne's Spring Expo '75 pulled in the crowds for the Friday-Saturday event.

I've never seen the auditorium as packed as it was Friday night. Every seat in the house was filled and people were milling about on the floor and in the aisles.

I played at least one basketball game in that auditorium back when high school district tournaments were held there and I can't remember a crowd like that one Friday night. I say one basketball game because that was back when Roger Deneski was playing for "Mac" and few schools were lucky enough to play more than one game against the Blue Devils in any type of elimination tournament.

Don't knock the Bloomfield basketball team. If you think back, that club clipped the Devils in a couple district tournaments a few years later, robbing them of trips to Lincoln. The chickens always come home to roost, they say.

BUT BACK to Spring Expo '75. The promoter of an event aren't the only ones who deserve a pat on the back. Those people who spent countless hours and dollars on their booths should also be complimented. They went all out this year, building booths which offered exposition visitors a host of ideas. In addition, they gave away prizes until they were coming out of their ears. Although it's difficult to get an accurate count, it wouldn't be unfair to say that more than $3,000 was given away in the weekend affair.

I'm one guy who votes for a repeat performance next year. How about you?

FOR A LITTLE humor, I stole this joke from the newsletter Bob Sutherland writes for the Wayne Lions Club.

An engineer asked his dentist the cost of a full set of dentures. Given an estimate, he fussed and fumed. "Why, you only use $20 worth of gold, $15 worth of artificial teeth, $4 worth of plastic." The dentist good humoredly interrupted and excused himself. In a few seconds he returned with a shoe box containing scraps of gold, plastic and artificial teeth. "I am awfully sorry," the dentist said, "I didn't realize you wanted the do-it-yourself kit. It's only $39.95."

OBSERVATIONS

It's a safeguard

If county-wide zoning were not in effect in Madison County, Eugene Dieter could go ahead and put in a trailer court and a laundrette a few miles northeast of Madison.

Since it is in effect, the county planning commission will first study the proposal before recommending whether he be given permission to go ahead with the project.

Dieter is asking for permission to change the zoning on 19 acres of land from agriculture to mobile home court. In addition, he is asking that about three-fourths of an acre be changed from agriculture to commercial so he can construct a laundrette to serve those living in the trailer court.

This, we feel, is an example of how county-wide zoning helps protect the interest of the people who live on the farms as well as those who live in the villages and towns. One of the major aims of county-wide zoning is to make sure that the use of land is not changed drastically overnight without the people first becoming informed and being given an opportunity to voice their opinions.

Wayne County is still many months away from completing its county-wide zoning project. As soon as federal funds are made available, the county commissioners should set that project in motion without delay. As things stand now, somebody could construct a large mobile home court a few miles from Wayne, Winside, Hoskins, Carroll, Sholes or Wakefield and there would be nothing anybody could do about it. — Norvin Hansen.

The Wayne Hospital Auxiliary is asking for volunteers to help collect, sort, price and sell items for their community-wide rummage sale scheduled for Saturday, April 19, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the city auditorium. WS Opens Baseball Slate at K-State Wayne State's optimistic baseball team begins an extremely challenging schedule Wednesday with a swing through Kansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri.

First game opponents will be Kansas State University, runner-up in the Big Eight Conference last year. K-State has almost of last year's team back, which features ace pitcher Andy Rego.

Coach Larry Schultz will take the team to Tulsa, Oklahoma to play American Christian College. ACC will have already played 27 games when they meet the Wildcats.

Remaining games on the spring trip are: March 21, Northern Oklahoma State University; March 22, Evangel College, and March 23, Missouri Southern State.

These teams have a decided advantage in that they have been able to practice in warm weather, whereas Wayne has not. However, the Wildcats are eager for a chance to prove themselves and should do quite well.

March 25 marks the opening of the home season. Wayne State will entertain Yankton College followed by a March 27 date with Valley City State College, also here at Wayne.

Helping with the coaching duties will be former major leaguer, Bob Weisenberg. Bob spent seven years in the Minnesota Twins organization as a pitcher and will be a great help to Wayne's fine pitching corps.

That staff will include seven veterans headed by junior right hander, Bob DeVaul. DeVaul posted a 4-0 win-loss record last year.

Remaining veteran hurlers with last year's win-loss record are: Don Sherman, Randy Sherr and Wayne Wessel with 12 points each. Team 4 took a 37-24 halftime margin before increasing its lead to 41-32 going into the final period. High man for Team 5 was Dennis Spangler with 17.

Team 3 will play season champ Team 1, idle last week.

Left-handed hopefuls Bill Schultz and Gordie Dunn have sustained injuries and their situation is uncertain.

Battery mates for DeVaul and Co. will be veteran catchers, Ray Nelson and Nick Dante. Nelson is a senior from Heelan High in Sioux City, Iowa, and Dante is junior from Omaha Rummel.

At the present time, starting shortstop Don Hasenkamp is injured and it is not yet known whether or not he will be ready to go. If Hasenkamp can play, the starting infield should look like this: first base Randy Miller, second base Ricky Benez.

'Disabled Workers Should Apply Early For SS Benefits'

Working people who face a long term severe disability should apply promptly for social security benefits to avoid loss of payments they may be entitled to, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

Social security pays monthly benefits to eligible workers and their families if the worker is severely disabled and cannot work for a year or more. Payment begins with the sixth full month of disability.

Back payments can only be made up to 12 months, so disabled workers shouldn't delay their applications, even if they're not sure they'll qualify for payments, Branch noted.

About one of every 12 workers getting social security disability payments misses out on some payments because he applied too late, he said.

Disabled workers who have not applied for benefits should call any social security office as soon as possible. Or, they can ask a friend or relative to make the call," he said.

'Governments Pay 31 Workers for Each 1,000 People In Wayne County'

The number of Wayne County residents on local government payroll appears to be relatively small, according to the latest survey conducted by the Department of Commerce.

Compared with other counties across the country, the proportion of local people on government payroll is slightly below the national average of 32 per 1,000 local residents.

This is brought out in the department's survey, titled "Compendium of Public Employment." Such studies are made every five years.

The figures for local areas, recently released, include all persons on payroll, of counties, townships, municipalities, school districts and special districts. Federal and state employees are excluded.

Special interest attached to the findings has been playing an ever increasing role in the economy due to its growth and its rising cost.

The report lists a total of 372 full time workers or their equivalent on local payrolls in Wayne County at the time the survey was made. Part time workers were converted to their full-time equivalent to permit comparisons.

In terms of population, this total amounts to 31 employees for every 1,000 local residents.

This is slightly less than in most parts of the United States, the average being 32 employees per 1,000 population. In the state of Nebraska the ratio is 34 per 1,000.

As for the payroll costs in Wayne County, they are somewhat lower, relatively, than they are in most localities. They come to approximately $18.48 per local resident per month.

This compares with $25.16 per capita at the national level and with $23.37 in the state.

According to reports from the Department of Labor and the Census Bureau, public employment has been zooming in the United States in the last 10 years. Most of it has been at the state and local levels. The federal job force has not changed significantly, reports show.

The total number of government employees rose from 9.7 million to 14.1 million in the 10 years. More than half of the rise was in the field of education.

18 Students at WSC Receive SBI Certificates

Eighteen business students at Wayne State College have received certificates of merit for participation in the Small Business Institute program which was co-sponsored by the U. S. Small Business Administration and Wayne State College.

The certificates recognize the students' achievements for management, counseling, services provided to the local business community, according to Dr. Neil Swanson of Wayne State, local SBI coordinator.

The Wayne State program, developed in 1972, is one of 11 such programs in Nebraska. The program utilizes senior and graduate business administration student teams under faculty supervision to provide personalized management consulting to small businesses.

"Everyone involved benefits from this type of program," noted Dr. Swanson. "The small business client benefits from sound, practical advice at no cost to him. The college provides real community service, and the student learns to apply management theory."

Students who received certificates of merit included Brent Johnson, Ronald Liemann and Herb Swan of Wayne.

Hoskins Lumberman Retires from Business

Hoskins lumberman E. C. Fenske retired the first of this month after working in the lumber business since 1918.

Fenske, who began working at the Hoskins yard in 1918 when it was managed by Frank Phillips, took over as yard master in 1921. The business, then known as Farmer's Lumber Co., was destroyed by fire in 1921. New buildings were later built at the original plant site and in 1922 the name was changed to Hoskins Lumber Co.

In 1931, Fenske moved with his family to Oconto where he was employed at Joyce Lumber Co. until 1941 when he was transferred to Pierson, Ia. In the spring of 1944 he moved back to Hoskins to become part owner and manager of the Hoskins company.

In 1948, the corporation was sold by Frank Phillips. Fenske, George Langerberg Sr., Ezra Jochens and the late Ed Koltath became owners along with Mrs. Stella Oldenburg and sons, Merlin and Norris, who sold their shares to the corporation in 1958.

Assisting in the yards at that time were Carl Mann and Samuel Ulrich, and later Myron Marshall, Louie Moritz and the late Rasmus Nielsen.

In 1968, Fenske was presented as award at the Lumberman's convention in Omaha for being in the lumber business for 50 years.

Verl Gunter, who moved to Hoskins from Colorado in 1970, worked with Fenske until last summer when the Gunters moved back to Colorado. Fenske had managed the yard alone since that time.

Fenske was born on a farm northeast of Hoskins April 4, 1903, and moved into Hoskins with his parents in 1916. He began working part time at the lumber yard while attending Hoskins Public School.

He and his wife, Grace, reside in the home they built in 1950. The couple enjoys gardening and traveling and Fenske's hobbies include bowling and fishing.

part of life in technical times. Finally, the center will promote opportunities to internationalize the curriculum in humanities, Nordstrand said. This continues Wayne State's existing foreign program, which began in the 1960's and will conduct institutes in six nations this year.

The Wayne State center believes that conditions of the future demand that education be internationalized to ensure human survival in the shrinking world. We hope to develop programs so that all Wayne students will spend some part of their college careers studying abroad in another culture.

An executive council to administer the center includes Dean Nordstrand, Dr. Marjorie Waggoner, in sociology; Dr. Russell Rasmussen, chemistry; Dr. Ed Elliott, special studies; Dr. Cornell Runestad, fine arts; Sayre Anderson, English, and James Pfifer, history.

Wayne's second annual city-wide beef promotion has been scheduled for April 24-26, according to one of the men in charge of the effort to spotlight the importance of the cattle industry in the area's economy.

Dates for the promotion were set during a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce's retail committee Wednesday morning, said Roger Nelson, Nelson, the Chamber Board's representative on the committee, and committee chairman Gene Croner will have charge of organizing the promotion.

The Chamber will give away a quarter of beef in a drawing in front of the Chamber office at 3 p.m. the final day of the promotion. In addition, participating businesses and firms will give away certificates good for two 14 to 16-oz. T-bone steaks in individual drawings.

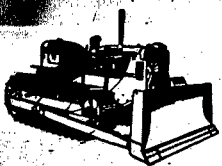

The area's economy is closely tied with the beef industry, according to Nelson, and the annual promotion is just an effort by local businessmen to recognize the cattleman. The Chamber recently conducted a pork promotion. It gained praise from local pork-producers as well as state pork officials.

Census Bureau Plans Survey
During the week of March 17-21, the Bureau of the Census will conduct its regular monthly survey on employment and unemployment in the Wayne area, according to Walter Freeman Sr., director of the bureau's regional office in Denver.

In addition to the usual questions on current employment, the March survey will have questions on the work experience and income of household members last year and whether they have moved since the 1970 census was taken.

"The sample of households in this area are among 50,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households."

What Form of Reduced Tillage Is For You?

All forms of reduced tillage have their advantages and disadvantages, but what about plowing?

Surface Planters: with few modifications can be used together with discs, plowing discs, or chisel plows; generally adaptable to a broad range of conditions though weeds may be more of a problem.

Last year's crop residue has been considered a problem and a detriment when it comes to seedbed preparation

"Reduced tillage" with last year's stubble on the surface can help save rain, machinery, fuel, fertilizer, chemicals and time

There are a number of options open for you to take advantage of "Reduced Tillage"

Chisel Planters: very effective in working with crop residues on the surface; tend to be more adapted to heavier soils. They have a relatively high horsepower requirement.

Til Planters: low time and horsepower requirement. Limited to band application of herbicide. It has a heavy duty cultivator recommended to handle residue. It is a specific machinery investment.

NOTICE

The Lower Elkhorn NRD has two new Buffalo til planters and cultivators available to cooperators for trial planting this year. If you are interested contact the Soil Conservation Service.

GIRL SCOUTS!

Take a girl, any girl, and introduce her to the world of scouting. You'll see her grow into a strong individual with character. Her actions will speak louder than her words. She'll become actively involved in worthwhile projects...like improving the quality of her environment or doing volunteer work in her community. As she grows, she learns...what loving and caring are all about.

As Girl Scout Week draws to a close, we pay tribute to the many girls and their leaders involved in scouting programs in the Wayne area. Congratulations on a job well done!
