

Despite Criticism, Legislators Name Ley to State College Board

By IVY HARPER
LINCOLN — Henry Ley, president of the State National Bank and Trust Co. in Wayne, was confirmed Friday by the Legislature as a member of the State College Board of Trustees.
The vote was 26 in favor, 14 not voting, and nine against.
Board members are appointed by the governor and must then receive approval of the Committee on Committees, if their nominations are to go to the floor of the Unicameral. To be advanced out of the 13-member committee a nominee must receive seven votes.
Ley got the required seven, with four senators not voting and Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha and Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston voting against his confirmation.
'Unicameral in Action'
Confirmation came after Ley's age and health were criticized by the two senators. Chambers told the legislators that "I don't know Ley from Adam."
He said he is basing his criticism on Ley's testimony before the Committee on Committees, of which Chambers is a member.
When Ley appeared before the committee, Chambers said, Ley "nearly fell asleep."
Sen. John Savage of Omaha explained to the committee at the meeting after Ley's appearance that Ley told him that he had mistakenly taken sleeping pills instead of vitamins, making him drowsy at the hearing.

Savage said that Ley did give a sketchy appearance before the committee and that he acted as if he were ill.
Committee members told Savage they would not vote on his nomination advancement until Savage found out from the governor if Ley is in good health.
Ley told Savage that he has been recovering from an illness since last year, but he said his doctors have told him he is in good health.
Bill Hoepfner, assistant to the governor, said Ley is capable of carrying out the responsibilities of the board and that doctors have given their approval.
Chambers said he does not believe that Ley mistook sleeping pills for vitamins, but if he did, Chambers said, "it is a commentary on his abilities to serve on the board."
Sen. William Skarda of Omaha said that because Ley took the wrong pill doesn't mean he should not be confirmed.
In defense of another gentleman once I put Preparation H on my toothbrush," Skarda said, "but that doesn't mean I am not a competent senator."
Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City supported Ley's confirmation and said that Ley is a dedicated public servant.
Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha also supported Ley, calling him a dedicated man to education, especially the state colleges.
"I have known Henry Ley for 25 years. He is a strong friend of the state colleges," Mahoney said.
Ley used to come down to the legislature, Mahoney said, when he was a non paid booster, spent his own money for gas, and tried to explain Wayne State College programs to legislators.

But Chambers said what Ley has done in the past was not an issue.
"Senators are missing the point. We're not judging him on what he has, not on his integrity in the past. We're not putting him into this position because of what he has," Chambers said.
Chambers criticized legislators for being lax in scrutinizing appointees and said that the senators should not rubber-stamp the governor's recommendations.
Sen. Herb Duis of Gothenburg said he supported Ley's confirmation only because Gov. J. J. Exon recommended him.
"We have a pretty serious matter before us," Duis said, "because of the problems in higher education."
"I respect Henry Ley. I think he's done a wonderful job, but we have to think of the length of time of his confirmation. I'm supporting this only on the governor's recommendation," Duis said.
Koch, who along with Chambers voted not to advance Ley's nomination to the floor, said he questioned Exon's judgment.
He said Ley's record is outstanding, but that he does not think Ley can carry out his responsibilities, on the board.
Chambers said that other members of the Committee on Committees have told him that they agree with him, but they "won't admit it, because they don't want to be put on the spot."

Farmers Cut Crop Plans This Year

Apparently concerned over the slow demand for products, Wayne County farmers have slightly scaled back earlier planting intentions for some major crops, but acreage levels could yield record crops this year unless weather disasters occur, reports Ray Butts, county ASCS executive director.

Butts noted that USDA surveys completed about March 1 showed that corn plantings nationally are expected to be three per cent less than last year and down three per cent from the January 1st estimate.

However, the combined national feed grain acreage is expected to be down only slightly from 127.7 million in 1974 to 127.5 million in 1975, he said. This includes sorghum prospects of nearly 18.9 million acres, 6 per cent above that of last year, or nearly 18.2 million acres, one half per cent above last year, and barley at 10.7 million acres, 12 per cent above last year.

Butts indicated that soybean growers showed that their plantings would be six per cent higher than last year, but smaller than the eight per cent increase that growers in 27 states reported Jan. 1. Soybean acreage is expected to be 56.6 million, whereas last year it was 53.6 million.

Kindergarten Roundup Is Slated for Friday

Parents of youngsters who will be entering kindergarten at West Elementary School in Wayne next fall are invited to the annual kindergarten roundup scheduled for Friday.
There will be two sessions during the day — the first from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. for families whose last names begin with A-M and the second from 1 to 3 p.m. for families whose last names begin with N-Z.
Elementary principal Richard Mettler noted that parents should be present at the start of the sessions if they wish to benefit from all the information which will be covered during the two-hour periods.
Parents are to bring their children and their children's birth certificates with them to the roundup, Mettler noted.
Youngsters have to be five years of age on or before Oct. 15, 1975 in order to enroll in kindergarten this fall, he added.

Also present will be Cathy Stake, speech clinician with Educational Services Unit No. One at Wakefield, who will give speech and hearing screening test to all youths at the roundup.

Kindergarten roundup for youngsters who will be attending the elementary school at Carroll this fall will be held later this month.

Embezzling Hearing Is Set for April 17

The preliminary hearing for John Krause, former manager of Feeders Elevator in Wayne, on an embezzlement charge has been set for April 17 in Wayne County court, according to court officials.

Krause's hearing had earlier been scheduled for March 20 but had been postponed.

Krause is charged with embezzling $28,390 from the Wayne business between Feb. 8 and April 8 last year.

Now living in Sioux Falls, Krause posted $2,000 bond in county court in February after returning to Wayne following his arrest on the charge in Sioux Falls.

District county judge Eugene McFadden of Norfolk will preside at the preliminary hearing to determine if Krause should be bound over to district court for trial on the felony charge.

W-C Board, Teachers Near 1975-76 Salary Agreement

Negotiators for the Wayne Carroll school board and the teachers in the school system have reached agreement on a salary package for the 1975-76 school year, according to board president Irvin Brandt.

The agreement, which was approved by the Wayne Education Association last week, is expected to be presented to the school board during its meeting tonight (Monday) for formal acceptance.

Under the proposal, the beginning salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience would be $7,675 next fall, a 6.96 per cent increase over the beginning salary of $7,175 paid a similar teacher this school year.

"A teacher with a master's degree and no experience would begin at $9,364, a similar percentage increase over the $8,754 which such a teacher would have been paid this year.

In addition to increased salary benefits, the group health insurance program would be changed to pay the average cost of a semi-private room and to increase hospital miscellaneous expenses, surgical benefits and major medical coverage.
There were no proposed changes affecting the existing salary schedule. Teachers now receive a four per cent raise for each year of experience and a five and a half per cent raise for each step on the advanced education ladder. There are limits to both experience and advanced education.

Also, there were no proposed changes in the pay for teachers for taking on such extra duties as coaching, sponsoring classes and the like.
The settlement is the result of three months of negotiations and a compromise reached between the teachers and the board, according to Brandt.
Negotiating for the board were Brandt and board members Wil-

City's Water Now Contains More Fluoride

Wayne's water will contain higher amount of fluoride than normal beginning today (Monday), according to city administrator Fred Brink.
Additional amounts of fluoride were to have been injected into the community's water, on March 17, but problems encountered with installing the fluoridation equipment and the necessity to receive state approval forced city officials to postpone putting the equipment into operation. Brink said.

State approval to begin using the equipment came Wednesday, and an official with the state health department inspected the equipment Thursday to determine if it was properly installed, according to Brink.
The state official told Brink it will be physically impossible for the equipment to malfunction to the extent it would inject enough fluoride to even come near the level necessary to cause sickness or death, according to Brink.

The official also noted, said Brink, that there are some communities which have a natural fluoride level in their water supplies of 20 parts per million.

Wayne is boosting the fluoride level in its water to the one part per million required by state law. The water naturally contains some fluoride.
Wayne was one of the few communities in the state to approve fluoridation in last year's elections.

Thone Taps Feelings of NE Nebraskans in Stop at Wayne

FIRST DISTRICT Congressman Charles Thone, center, listens to one of his constituents during his "Meet Your Congressman" session in Wayne Wednesday afternoon.

By NORVIN HANSEN

First District Congressman Charles Thone got a feeling about what problems are bothering Northeast Nebraskans in a give and take session at the Wayne County courthouse Wednesday afternoon.
Thone agreed with several of the people at the meeting who said the federal government is intervening and interfering too much with private industry and private enterprise.

Saying that he strongly favors the right of people to work without being forced to join unions or other bargaining groups, Thone said government should "back off" in its intervention in such areas as the automobile industry, agriculture and the like.
He said private enterprise operates best when there is as little control as possible.

The session, which attracted about 60 people, was held to give residents of 10 of the 27 counties Thone represents an opportunity to talk to Thone about current problems as well as speak with him privately.
It was just one of Thone's stops on a swing through his district last week.

Thursday he pumped gas and worked at a supermarket checkout counter in South Sioux City in an attempt to find out what people are thinking.
"I think I will gain more from first-hand talks with citizens than from reading volumes of opinion surveys," he noted.
Before his stop in Wayne, Thone talked to the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce. That evening he spoke to the Pierce County Livestock Feeders Association in Pierce, and on Thursday evening he addressed the Cedar Dixon County Farm Bureau at a meeting in Laurel. Friday was devoted to talks to groups in Lincoln and to the Saunders County Farm Bureau. Saturday included an appearance at the Nebraska Republican Foundation Day activities in Norfolk, and Sunday included a talk before the Alpha Zeta, honorary society for University of Nebraska-Lincoln agriculture students. Thone was scheduled to be back in Washington today (Monday) for reconvening of Congress.

Singling out inflation as this nation's top problem in his talk at Wayne, Thone criticized federal agencies and policies for driving up the cost of everything from automobiles to food.

He said it is time for Congress to start using the "paring knife" to cut away some of the cost of government. One area where that can be done, he noted, is in foreign aid. He said it would be much better if we would send college graduates to underdeveloped countries to help them improve life for their people than to pump millions of dollars into those countries through existing foreign aid programs.

Thone was critical of the burgeoning bureaucracy of the federal government, citing the 38 headquarters buildings of HEW in Washington as an example of a bureaucracy that "feeds on itself."
Other points Thone made in his talk in Wayne:
—There is little the people of this country can do to stop railroads from putting up their tracks, servicing small towns and cities, in time; the taxpayers of the country are going to pay for the shortsighted vision of those governmental officials who are permitting railroads to cease service to many communities.

—A short-term ban on importing beef from other countries will help America's cattle industry, but a ban is not the answer to those problems. The cattle industry may have to begin actively promoting its product, much like the pork, sugar and wheat industries have done in recent years.

—The time of cheap food in America is over, just as the time of cheap energy has come to an end. The consumer is going to have to realize that no longer can farmers produce food as cheaply as they once did.

—A swing is taking place in governmental spending, resulting in more emphasis being placed on social programs and less on defense spending. The defense budget will be reduced considerably in the next fiscal year and may become one of the leading issues of the next Presidential race.

—Neither taxes nor rationing is the answer to this country's energy problems. America is going to have to develop alternative energy sources.

In his talk at Laurel, Thone said that like the "shake and bake" movie double feature of "Earthquake" and "Towering Inferno," Nebraska farmers have been "shook" and "burnt" by rising production costs and falling crop prices.
"The consumer will pay unless target prices for crops are raised. This is because without improved target prices, See THONE, page 9

'Odds against dying from nuclear-power mishap: 300,000,000 to 1'

The odds against an American dying from a nuclear-power accident are 300 million to one.

So reports famed nuclear scientist Ralph Lapp in an article in the April Reader's Digest. Charging that a well-orchestrated campaign has raised the spectre of "nuclear accidents" killing tens of thousands of people, Dr. Lapp says the facts are otherwise. He cites a two-year study by 47 scientists and engineers under the direction of Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor Norman Rasmussen. The 3548-page study examines every possible accident that might occur with a nuclear reactor, then concludes: "Nuclear accident probabilities are so low that they are insignificant compared to the overall risk due to man-made and natural fires, airplane crashes, explosions, toxic-chemical releases, dam failures, earthquakes, hurricanes and tornadoes, that have been examined in this study are much more likely to occur and can have consequences comparable to or greater than nuclear accidents."

Dr. Lapp, a nuclear physicist whose experience dates back to the World War II Manhattan Project, says that by 1980 there will be more than 100 nuclear plants in operation. Citing the Rasmussen report, he says the average American will have a one in 300,000,000 chance of dying from a nuclear accident. By contrast, he says, the chances are one in 1,600 that the same person will die from an act of man of God. Dr. Lapp quotes Hans Bethe, the wise require burning two million tons of coal per year.

Nuclear power is gaining more and more attention as this country continues to consume its fossil fuels at an ever-increasing rate. And among those who are focusing attention on nuclear power are people who fear that accidents in nuclear power plants could cause hundreds and possibly thousands of deaths. In an attempt to bring the controversy into better focus, we offer this report about an article in the April issue of Reader's Digest.

"On any realistic basis," he says, "coal is a vastly greater killer than nuclear power could ever be." He notes that more than 100,000 miners have died in mine cave-ins and explosions in this country, and that countless miners have had their lives cut short by injury and black lung disease. Additionally, the human and environmental cost of burning two million tons of coal cannot be estimated with any precision," Dr. Lapp says.

He charges that alarmist statements by some environmentalists have "quarantined nuclear power behind a barrier of fear." He says that in Boston. Legal maneuverings by a single protester shut down the giant Pilgrim nuclear-power station for five months—and cost consumers $45 million in added fuel costs.

Yet this fostering of fear has scant basis in fact, Lapp says, quoting Rep. Mike McCormack (D., Wash.). Congress' only nuclear scientist and a member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee: "No member of the public has ever been harmed by any radiation from a licensed nuclear-power plant. Although accidents are possible, the probability of a serious accident threatening any human being is so small that society can easily afford to live with this risk."

'Criticism is poor use of paper'

Dear Editor: Due to the recent editorials written by Mr. Alan Cramer and Mr. Norvin Hansen in the March 31st Wayne Herald involving the city council and their duties to inform the citizens of Wayne for which their tax monies are spent, I would like to say a few words in my behalf.

As far as Mr. Cramer's remarks, I will say that his "thin air figures" are perhaps correct. In going through the claims for 1973, I find that there were 3,688 claims made, at a cost of 48 cents a line, the minimum cost would have been $1,770.24 or $147.52 a month. In 1974, there were 3,833 claims issued at 48 cents each and would have cost $1,839.84 or $153.32 a month. This cost is not accurate because I did not drop out the salaries each month or figure the cost for headings, as they would have to be included. Mr. Cramer quoted me a figure of 14 cents a line or a little more for a single column. The actual cost is 48 cents a line.

I do not know to what extent the towns, quoted by Mr. Cramer, published their claims, but the way I interpret the bill, it is possible that few of them complied with the law. In reading back through The Wayne Herald recently, I noticed the claims published by the city of Winside; utilities fund $5,234.66 and general fund $2,204.73. The city of Hoskins also published their claims; there were eight of them and they did not state what they were for. Not being able to know what the towns listed by Mr. Cramer have done in the way of publishing their claims, and in comparison with our estimated cost for the size of town, I can only conclude that Mr. Cramer's figures are possibly incorrect or construed in "thin air" also. Mr. Cramer also states "that the town of Scottsbluff spent less than $830 last year for publishing claims," yet using his figures of $32.08 a month this only comes to $384.96 for the year.

You do not have to be a genius in

Reader: Let's encourage conservation

Dear Editor: Reading about the problem of our power situation in Wayne has prompted me to write and offer these comments and ideas.

We have to face the reality that the energy shortage is real and not contrived by the major oil companies. Once this fact is accepted we may take corrective action.

We are faced with power plant revenue losses during the past months and need to correct the situation. Today's unusual times require unusual remedies for our problems.

Let's implement a plan right now to reduce customer rate of energy to make all customers pay for energy at a rate more closely related to the cost of producing and supplying it. Traditionally, the more a customer uses, the smaller the charge per unit of energy. This is a regressive system which promotes high usage and, in many cases, waste. This is no longer rational or desirable.

Our present pricing policies actually penalize those who strive to save and conserve energy. At the same time, it rewards those who are using or wasting larger quantities of energy.

By converting to a progressive pricing policy, we can induce customers to save energy. An incentive is needed and this new policy should suffice.

It should be noted that this new system also could be applied to the natural gas industry to alleviate some of the problems in that area.

We would not be the first to institute such a policy, for Wisconsin did away with its "declining block rate" structure last year. But let's not be the last to reform our utility regulations either. Let's be one of the leaders.

It should be noted that abnormally high energy production cost adjustments were made recently in power produced for us by Nebraska Public Power District. This mathematics to see that Mr. Cramer's figures are also on "the border of ridiculous."

As for Mr. Hansen's remarks, the first thing a good reporter does is spell the name of the person, he is talking about, correctly.

I will not disagree that the effort used to attempt to defeat this bill was not as political in nature as the ones used to pass it, that is what government is all about.

I, like Mr. Hansen, don't pretend to know much about politics but it is unfortunate that in most instances I call a spade a spade. I do not use the newspaper to print started or half facts to falsely inform or sway the public. I have contacted Mr. Hansen on several occasions for printing only the portions of my statements that he felt necessary and sometimes changing them to suit his fancy; thus twisting the real intent entirely.

Perhaps through the years they have changed the requirements of a good journalist. The first thing they taught me, a good reporter reported only the facts. It was not good practice to spice up or construe the true facts. Mr. Hansen is noted for not researching the facts.

I feel that the public does have the right to know what their tax monies are being spent for, and this is why all records are open to the public for their asking at city hall, and all city council meetings are open to the public. If the public is not interested enough to come in and ask, they really don't care that much. As I said before, I have yet to have anyone ask that the claims be published.

I would further say that I feel that The Wayne Herald could save some paper or put it to better use than to use nearly a half a page criticizing the mayor and city council for trying to save some taxpayer's money. — Vernon Russell, councilman, first ward.

Editor's Note: 1. Legal advertising rates, set by Nebraska statute, are based on a complicated formula of type size, line length and other factors. Different governmental agencies and different legal publications (such as estate notifications, etc.) are charged at different rates and based on different formulae. The City of Wayne is charged 24 cents per single-column line.

2. Regarding the Scottsbluff charges, the Cramer editorial clearly stated that "RANDOM months were selected" for the press survey; hence the $32.08. Total expense to Scottsbluff for claims publication was just short of $830 last year.

was due to the Cooper Nuclear Station being out of service for 17 days for repairs, the lack of natural gas available to power plants and dry conditions which reduced expected generation from hydro-electric facilities. All these factors increased the cost of energy. These adjustments must be considered by the city council when new rates are set, as they are unforseen in extent and can not be projected accurately. These recent adjustments are higher than normal and hopefully will not be as expensive in the near future.

In conclusion, the only short-term solution is the conservation of our petroleum sources. To do this, an incentive should be given to the consumers to reduce consumption. This incentive could and should be the change in pricing of the product of the ultimate consumer (everybody). Let's move now to rectify our past and present pricing policy by discouraging excessive usage of a precious and critical commodity. — A Reader's Practical Suggestion.

By Norvin Hansen

LIKE MOST people, my little boy really got a kick out of the Wayne High production of "South Pacific."

Every time I ask him about it, his eyes light up and a big grin breaks out. Then he proceeds to tell me about this one scene where, according to his rendition, one of the actors has this line:

"Sir, get out of here. Sir, get out of here. Sir, get the HELL out of here!"

Then he tells about the scene where "this guy had an orange with black lines all over it and he gave it to the man right beside him and when he left the room the man threw it at the drap and this guy behind the curtain said, 'Who threw that? Then this guy said, 'I did and what the hell are you going to do about it?'"

Six-year olds love to be able to swear in such a way that they can't be criticized. After all, they're just telling it like it was.

A PERT little girl came into a local business with her mother the other day and proceeded to carry on quite a conversation with the manager, who squatted down to talk to her.

Before long, the little girl reached up, patted the manager's bald head and said, "Boy, you really got haircut!" The manager broke up when he heard that.

A PUBLICITY blurb about the Platte River Regatta the Schuyler Jaycees plan on hosting in May brought to memory my one—and only—attempt at canoe racing.

A fellow reporter at the North Platte Telegraph and I were bold enough to enter the race from Hershey to North Platte, thinking it would be fun as well as a great source for a feature story.

Although on a smaller scale, our trials and tribulations to were similar to those of the characters in "Deliverance." And, it certainly didn't result in a prize-winning feature story.

No sooner had we climbed in our canoe than we started drifting, rather rapidly I might note, toward the rope at the starting line. Knowing no better, I grabbed the rope to keep us from going downstream . . . and promptly swamped us. We bobbed to the surface about 50 feet downstream, and it took a good portion of our energy to battle the canoe back to the starting line.

Then we were off at the firing of the gun, zig zagging back and forth while the experienced guys went straight with the current.

Regrettably, we took a different course when the river branched into two channels, and from then on we seldom saw any of the other racers. Occasionally, we would see one or two boats, tiny specks on the water a quarter mile or so away.

After ramming into the bank four or five times, grounding on sandbars just about as often and getting stuck in overhanging branches once or twice, we finally got into a channel and started making some time. The finish line couldn't be far away and we were probably gaining on the other racers, or so we thought.

About the time a barbed wire fence loomed up in front of us, stretching all the way across the channel and leaving no room for us to sneak underneath.

That fence (which only God knows the reason for) promptly dumped both of us in the river—once again for our second cooling off. It also left quite a few scratches on our hands and arms.

Of course, we finally made it to the finish line, barely beating a man and wife who had been calmly sightseeing on their leisurely trip down the river.

We got quite a few cheers . . . from the few bystanders who stayed around after the awards presentations to the fastest finishers, youngest finishers, oldest finishers, last finishers and the like.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

Brunswick, Ga., Givin Reporter

"Once the freest, most independent people on Earth, we Americans seem more and more to meekly accept any regulation, rule, regimentation, order, etc., that our all-powerful, socialist, big brother type, bureaucrats hand out, no matter how arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable."

OBSERVATIONS

Guest editorial: Bigger isn't always better

The fact that Nebraska has more school districts than any state in the nation and there remain many one-room rural schools is in the news once again. The Education Committee of the Nebraska Legislature is taking a special interest, as is the State Department of Education, and new standards may result.

Since education, the same as other institutions in American society, is ever-changing, this focus on the small schools is proper. Where plumbing is antiquated or non-existent, textbooks and equipment outdated, or teachers unqualified, change should be ordered. But for the most part, such change can be brought about by existing regulations.

Patriots of many of the rural schools naturally fear their children being taken by bus long distances to larger schools. And on this score, Sen. Loran Schmitz had a telling point when he noted that while some of the advantages of larger schools do not exist for the one-room variety, "the other side of the coin" is that the small schools "don't have the problems with drugs, violence and other things that they know are bothering bigger schools."

Bigness has proven to be a curse from a disciplinary standpoint, though the problems of maintaining order are present in any school of whatever size.

What should concern all Nebraskans most is not the number of school districts or the size of the schools; but the quality that is emerging. It is possible to measure by standardized tests, so that deficiencies can be corrected—not always by ordering schools to join but by making sure that the facilities, whether they exist for one student or 20, or 200, are adequate.

From a financing standpoint, the existence of 1,241 school districts, not all of which still maintain an active school, may be unwise. But neither smallest nor the one-room category of schools is evidence of inadequacy. The close personal relationships of teachers and students in such circumstances may outweigh the lack of sophisticated teaching aids and more elaborate equipment. Similarly, the fact of a one-to-one teacher-pupil ratio, or one-to-five, prov. neither adequacy nor inadequacy, may be the only practical ratio isolated areas.

We hope that the diff. titles in larger schools today will take the educators previously bent on consolidations and eventual elimination of all the one-room facilities a little more tolerant. —From the Norfolk Daily News, March 29, 1975.

Learning the Old Way

WALTER LERNER of Wayne, left, gives Eddie Fleer instructions on how to stitch leather by hand — the way it was often done years ago when the Wayne shoe man started in the business. Lerner's display was one of several at Tuesday's second annual Wayne Middle School Senior Citizens Center history program at the city auditorium. On display were antiques offered by members of the center and area residents. The program, designed to inform school children about Nebraska history, also featured group singing, skills by students, a style show by members of the center wearing old-fashioned clothes, square dancing and reports by students of their interviews with elderly residents of the community.

Anniversary Dance Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rahn of Allen will observe their silver wedding anniversary Friday, April 11, with an anniversary dance at the Ponca Legion Hall from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

BPW Meets Tuesday

At their meeting Tuesday night, members of Wayne's Business and Professional Women's Club voted to purchase the book, "A Measure Filled," a biography of Dr. Lena Madestin Phillips.

Dr. Phillips, who promoted the formation of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in 1919, founded the International Federation in 1930, with affiliates in some 60 countries. As a result of the book, Dr. Phillips' native state of Kentucky has placed a historical marker on the house she was born in at Nicholasville.

After the book has been read by the club it will be placed in a local library. Royalties from the book go to the World Friendship fund of the United States Federation of BPW Clubs.

Eight members attended the April meeting, held at the Black Knight Snookhouse. President Lenita Bahde led in the collect and Mrs. Etha Fisher presented the program, "How Do you Formulate a Life Plan?" Members of the club are planning to sell spring handbags as a fund raising project.

WS Library To Close for Inventory

Wayne State College Conn Library will be closed for ten days between second and third term, from April 17 through 26, for an inventory of all materials. The library will reopen Sunday, April 27.

Charles Selling, head librarian, noted that staff members have taken inventory in past years while the library remained open, but with materials going in and out, the check was not thorough. A complete inventory has been needed for years, he said.

Library hours for third term will be 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Thursday; 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday, and 6 to 9 p.m., Sunday. The library will be closed Saturdays during third term.

For non students in the area who wish to use the college library a $2 membership, good through August, entitles borrowers to the same library privileges that WSC students have. Conn Library has several recent additions that should interest those who wish to broaden their scope of news. The Washington Post, of recent Watergate fame, now arrives daily. An other addition to the newspaper files, soon to begin, is the New York Times daily. The library has received the Sunday Times for many years, and a complete file of the New York Times on microfilm, from its first editions back in the 1850's is available to Conn Library visitors.

Two specialty newspapers have also been added: Rolling Stones, for those interested in current entertainment, and Sporting News.

Carroll Joins Area COG

Carroll became the fourth town in Wayne County to join the Mid Elkhorn Valley Council of Government during the town board's monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Other towns belonging to the council are Wayne, Winside and Hoskins.

Purpose of the council is to help secure federal funds available for community improvement.

Members also agreed to study the closing of a mile stretch of county road two miles south of Carroll.

Ron Benson of Consolidated Engineers Architects of Norfolk recommended the closing, citing decrease in traffic use.

Benson, in a letter, also notified the board that the town's lagoon east of Carroll doesn't violate pollution standards set by the federal government.

At the meeting, members okayed the hiring of Russell Sundahl of Carroll as part-time maintenance man. Sundahl, a freshman at Wayne High, will work for 26 weeks. Still undecided is the hiring of a full-time maintenance man, according to clerk Mrs. Dennis Rohde.

A 15 per cent decrease in pork production this spring is forecast by the USDA. The cutback is due largely to high feed prices and other rising costs.

Trading at Home leaves more gas in your tank

(and leaves more of your money where it will do more for you)

One Economic Fact which nobody can deny is that when we trade at home we save time and gasoline.

But when deciding whether to trade with neighbors Tom, Dick or Harriet or to go off somewhere else and prosper some strangers, there is another Fact to consider:

The Fact that the more we trade at home, the more likely it will be that our neighbors in business will have what we want when we need it and don't have time (or gas) to roam the country to find it.
