

Farmers Alerted About '75 Disaster Payments

Producers in Wayne County are being alerted to the disaster payment provisions of the 1975 feed grain, wheat and cotton programs administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

"We want to do all we can to explain how producers become eligible for prevented planting and low yield payment," ASCS county executive director Ray Butts said.

In the case of wheat and feed grains, if the producer is prevented by a disaster from planting an acreage of annual-non-conserving crop at least equal to the sum of his wheat and feed grain allotments, he may qualify for a prevented planting payment, according to Butts. Annual nonconserving crops normally planted in Wayne County are soybeans, oats and rye.

Low yield payments apply only to program crops of wheat, corn, grain sorghum, barley and upland cotton that have been planted, and when a disaster totally destroys the crop or reduces the potential yield substantially below normal. Butts noted.

Butts emphasized that if a disaster prevents a farmer from See PAYMENT, page 7

Wayne State Slates Frosh Orientation

Four spring and summer dates have been set aside by Wayne State College for freshman orientation: Wednesday, May 28; Monday, June 9; Friday, June 27, and Saturday, July 19.

Freshman orientation enables students who have been accepted for admission to Wayne State College to become acquainted with the college, its services and faculty prior to enrolling in the fall.

Jim Hummel, director of admissions, is in charge of arrangements for freshman orientation.

Chamber Starts Visiting Local Businessmen

Starting this week, Wayne's Chamber of Commerce manager will be spending two half days each week visiting with local businessmen in an attempt to tap their feelings about business activity, according to Chamber president Rowan Wittke.

Wittke said that Howard Witt will be visiting 12 businesses each week, asking owners and managers questions about such things as the success of the Chamber's special promotions and eliciting suggestions from them.

"It's a way for our Chamber to make personal contacts with everybody," said Wittke, noting that Witt's visits will not be limited to only Chamber members.

The Chamber office will not be closed during the time Witt is out of the office making calls on businessmen, Wittke said. Although secretary Janet Sullivan will be leaving the office at the end of this month, Betty Biggersstaff is training to take over her job, he said. They will be able to take care of the office on the days Witt is calling on businessmen, he noted.

Pork Woes Focus of Meeting

This past winter Northeast Nebraska pork producers were hard hit by cold, snow and winds, resulting in breeding problems, baby pig loss and associated health problems.

The result of the overall problem has prompted an informational meeting scheduled at the Northeast Station near Concord on Wednesday, May 28, at 8 p.m.

Dr. Alex Hogg, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension swine veterinarian, will report on preventive management to ensure large litters. Frank Murphy, pork producer from Stuart, will discuss his system of disease control through gestation herd management.

All area pork producers and persons associated with allied industries are urged to attend the meeting. It is being cosponsored by the NU extension service and the Northeast Pork Producers Association.

THAT'S RIGHT, that check is for $150 and is payable to the Liberty Belles. Wayne's new all girl drill team, Jean Nuss, finance officer for the local American Legion, signed the check last week after the organization became the first to donate to the group, organized several weeks ago by Wayne State College student Gil Fournier. Holding the check is coed Jean Lienemann, a member of the marching group. The Liberty Belles will perform in Wayne during the Memorial Day parade. The 24 girls hope by that time to have most of their outfits in order—flags, rifles, hats and uniforms. It will be the group's first public performance.

WH Art Work on Display

Wayne High School art students will be displaying their work during a five-day art show at the high school auditorium, beginning today (Monday).

The students, in art classes taught by Ted Blenderman, will be displaying everything from paintings and drawings to pottery, sculpture and crafts, said Blenderman.

Also included in this year's show will be examples of seventh grade art work, he said.

Some 150 students will take part in the show.

The public is invited to attend the show during school hours, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday. Some student work will be offered for sale.

Persons visiting the show are requested to use the west entrance of the high school for easy access to the gym.

'It's A Concert, It's A Show, No It's ...'

The Wayne High stage band's performance Tuesday night will be as much a show as a concert.

The fifth annual jazz concert, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Wayne State's Ramsey Theatre, will include several popular numbers along with extensive lighting for atmosphere and special effects, says stage band director Ron Dalton.

Numbers in the program will include "Spinning Wheel" and "Fire and Rain" by Maynard Ferguson. Those two numbers won the group fifth place at the Mid America stage band contest in Omaha.

The 27 member group also will play such popular numbers as "Tribute to Duke Ellington," "Make a Joyful Noise" and "Aloha Again, Naturally."

An added attraction at this year's show will be a special guest appearance by Gary Slichta, trumpet instructor and director of jazz ensembles at Morris State College in Sioux City, who will perform several numbers with the high school group.

Slichta graduated from the University of South Dakota and taught in Iowa high schools before joining the staff at Morris. While at Odebolt, Ia., his high school jazz bands won several statewide competitions and performed with such noted artists as Doc Severinsen.

Producing special lighting and stage effects during Tuesday night's program will be high school art instructor Ted Blenderman and Wayne State's Orville Hickerson, with the assistance of several high school music, art and drama students.

Tickets, which may be purchased at the door or in advance from stage band members, are $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

The total received by the county, the last payment of the school year, came to $39,729.93. Another payment will be made in late July.

Receiving the largest share of the total was the Wayne-Carroll school district. Its share came to $30,157.67. Winslow's school district received the next largest share, $4,557.41. The 24 rural schools in the county received a total of $5,024.85.

You Can Try, But You Can't Beat 'Energy Game'

They call it the Energy Game, and it does have some elements of a game. But for Wayne State College professors Wes Fritz and Dean Metz, their "game" is serious business.

Most of the time the two professors present their Energy Game as a program, explaining to adult audiences what problems the nation faces in finding enough energy.

In the past three or four months they have given the program to 48 groups throughout Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota. About a thousand persons have participated in the game since the program has been offered by Wayne State.

Metz and Fritz, who teach chemistry and physics, respectively, got into the Energy Game business when they attended a training workshop at Oak Ridge, Tenn. Now Oak Ridge Associated Universities has assigned them to carry the energy environment story to community organizations and colleges in Nebraska and the Dakotas. The program is not designed for elementary and secondary level students.

Top Teacher Salaries in W-C System Creep Past $14,000 Level

By NORVIN HANSEN

Four teachers in the Wayne-Carroll school system will receive salaries of more than $14,000 during the 1975-76 school year, putting them in the same salary range as the school system's elementary principal.

Those four teachers are among 27 of the school system's 71 teachers who will receive salaries of more than $12,000 during the coming school year. A total of 50 of the 71 teachers will receive salaries above $10,000 a year.

Those facts are gleaned from teacher salary information supplied by school superintendent Francis Haun at the request of this reporter. The same information is available to the public.

Salaries for teachers already hired for the coming school year are contingent upon their gaining anticipated college credits during the summer, according to Haun.

Three of the teachers in the Wayne-Carroll school system hired for the coming year will be paid salaries through Title I federal funds, and five will be paid through Title III federal funds.

Title I funds go to school systems to teach economically and educationally deprived students. Title III funds channelled to the local school system will be used next year to help other schools adopting the local school system's Project Success program. Aimed at helping students who have difficulty learning in traditional classroom situations, the program has gained both state and national recognition for being an outstanding program.

Title III teachers are paid under an extended contract since they report earlier in the year, finish later, attend evening meetings and may take part in workshops during the summer, according to school officials.

Salaries for the Wayne-Carroll teachers is based on a salary schedule agreed upon earlier this year by the school board and the Wayne Education Association, which represented the teachers in salary negotiations.

That schedule contains $7,875 base salary for a beginning teacher with no experience, a hike of $500 over the current base of $7,375.

The schedule also contains provisions for a four per cent hike over the base for each of a maximum 14 years of experience in the school system and a five and a half per cent hike over the base for each of seven steps up the advanced education ladder. Those provisions are the same as contained in the schedule for the current school year.

Maximum salary under the schedule which will go into effect next school year is $14,000. However, a teacher can receive a higher salary for additional duties, such as coaching, sponsoring a class, heading a department or the like.

Only one teacher, mathematics-physical instructor Robert Porter, will be at the top salary step allowed under the 1975-76 schedule. He has been in the school system at least 14 years and has his master's degree plus at least 27 hours of college credit. He also serves as a department chairman and school photographer.

The four teachers who will receive salaries above $14,000 next year are Porter, $16,021; industrial arts teacher coach Mike Mallette, $14,542; social studies teacher coach Ron Carnes, $14,163; and mechanical arts teacher coach Al Hansen, $14,034. All teach at the high school level.

Salaries for the administrators next year will be $23,000 for the superintendent Haun, $18,050 for high school principal Don Zeiss; $16,250 for middle school principal Loren Park and $14,750 for elementary principal Richard Metzer.

A thought-tickler for the taxpayer

Future of the property tax: It'll be cussed and discussed for years

The property tax, one of the oldest forms of taxation — and perhaps the most disliked — persists as an important source of governmental revenue. And property tax reform, relief or repeal will likely be "cussed and discussed" for years to come.

The situation sketched in the opening statement of a newly issued publication authored by extension economists representing the 12-state North Central Region.

The publication, product of a committee chaired by Dr. Everett Peterson of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, is designed to "educate rather than advocate a particular solution" to the issue of what to do about the property tax.

In a background chapter on property taxation in the U.S., the publication notes that property taxes account for about one out of every six tax dollars collected in this country.

"Property tax collections have more than doubled in the past 10 years and are expected to exceed $50 billion in 1975."

Authors Arley Waldo and Carole Yoho of the University of Minnesota state that "property taxes may distort, or be deliberately used to influence the way in which land and other natural resources are used, the location of economic activity, the character of residential neighborhoods and the way in which entire communities develop." This, they observe, despite the fact the principal reason for property tax levies is to raise revenue to finance local units of government.

The authors trace the concept of property taxation to the colonial period, with influences by English and European tax systems. However, they point out that property taxes as they exist today in the U.S. "are largely an American invention."

Property taxes have long been exclusive a source of state and local government revenue, with the federal government last levying a property tax during the Civil War.

White state and local property tax collections increased from under $1 billion in 1902 to over $45 billion by 1973, the proportion of total tax revenues raised by the property tax has declined.

In the early 1900's, property taxes accounted for more than half the total tax revenue of federal, state and local governments. The relative importance of the property tax declined in the 1930's, and fell still further in the World War II era, as federal taxes shot upward. The low water mark for the property tax nationwide was reached in 1952, when it accounted for only about 11 per cent of the nation's total tax revenue. It now stands at about 15 per cent.

With the withdrawal of most state governments from the property tax field, it is now almost exclusively imposed and administered by local units of government. While the property tax is the largest single source of revenue for local governments, the overall importance of local property taxes has declined. Other sources generating increased flows of funds into local government budgets are intergovernmental transfers (state and federal grants-in-aid), charges for public services and miscellaneous sources such as interest earnings on deposits and securities.

Property taxes in Nebraska provided 47.2 per cent of total state and local government tax revenues, 81.1 per cent of state tax revenue, and 91.1 per cent of local tax revenue.

Among local governments, school districts receive the largest share of property tax revenue, about two-fifths of the total in 1973. Counties and municipalities rely on property taxes for about one-third of their total general revenue.

The authors analyze that for most local governments the property tax is a residual tax used to fill the gap between the amount of revenue available from other sources and the total revenue needed to meet local budget requirements.

"When the growth of revenue from other sources fails to keep pace with increasing demands for local public services, property taxes almost inevitably rise unless increases are legally restricted. Without other sources of local tax revenue, the choices available to local officials are to increase property taxes, cut planned expenditures or increase charges for public services.

"As demands for local services increase, the effect on local property taxes is largely determined by decisions at the state and federal level concerning grants-in-aid to local governments and availability of non-property tax sources of local revenue."

In succeeding chapters of the publication, the economists discuss improving assessment and equalization, use-value assessment of farmland, taxation of personal property and policy issues in property taxation.

The authors list the principal property tax issues as property tax reform, erosion of the tax base, taxation of personal property, fiscal disparities, property tax relief and property tax repeal.

They concede that many states have acted in recent years to remedy some of the shortcomings of property tax systems, "but many issues... are yet to be resolved."

The economists' final comments relate to the future of the property tax: "Despite its widespread criticism, the property tax is likely to remain a major source of tax revenue for local governments for years to come. If nothing else, it has been durable; and such an important source of revenue is not likely to be quickly discarded."

They stress, however, that "this makes it all the more important that attention be given to the defects of the property tax, and that every effort be made to improve it."

Single copies of North Central Regional Extension Publication No. 37 can be obtained free of charge by Nebraska residents through any county extension office.

OBSERVATIONS

Flags are fine, but . . .

It will be nice once those welcome flags and American flags are flying on Wayne's Main Street on holidays and special occasions.

Wayne's business district and main streets through the community are not the most beautiful in the state, and anything the city, Chamber of Commerce or civic organizations can do to improve them is to be commended.

I would have preferred that the city council spend a little more money to purchase more than 50 flags and to purchase a better quality material than has been ordered. Fifty flags will be better than nothing, of course, but when you spread those 50 flags over some 15 blocks, the effect is going to be reduced considerably. Also, those flags will begin fading in time, something a better quality flag would not do until possibly years later.

It may be that the flags will spark enough good comments from local residents that the city council will be convinced to order more flags in an effort to turn the main street into an avenue of flags. At the same time, flags could be ordered for Seventh Street, assuring that everybody who travels through this city on those special days will be impressed with Wayne.

I have argued in the past that Wayne should have an impressive avenue of flags. Maybe this is a step in that direction. — Norvin Hansen.

TOTAL DAMAGE in Wayne County from that recent tornado has been estimated at $1 million, says the Farmers Home Administration.

Wayne, Pierce and Cedar Counties were the hardest hit counties outside of Douglas, with each suffering about the same dollar loss, the FHA survey reveals.

If you're looking at concentrated damage, Magnet would likely have to qualify as the leader in this area. Damage there was estimated in the survey at $805,000.

Wayne County's damage was mostly to farmsteads with the Dale Deck and Chester Marot farms hit the hardest. Also damaged were farms in Dixon, Stanton and Knox Counties.

I don't know how, but this part of the state got through that tornado activity without any deaths or serious injuries. Considering how terrible the weather was that Tuesday, that is quite something.

ANOTHER sidelight to the tornado activity in this area was passed on by Paul Woolard of the weather service office at Norfolk.

He told me that one of the nation's top tornado experts, Dr. T. Theodore Fujita, estimated that the tornado which hit Magnet was of greater intensity than the one which ripped through Omaha. Dr. Fujita, professor of meteorology at the University of Chicago, came to Nebraska shortly after the tornadoes struck this state to glean some facts from the damage left behind.

I would never have guessed it, but the federal government is just starting requiring "child-resistant closures" on those familiar paper book matches you get at restaurants, bars and the like.

It will take "coordinated motions in sequence" to open the matchbooks when those regulations become effective.

That ranks just about as high on my list of necessary governmental activities as the idea somebody has to put something in cigarettes to make them go out after they are put down for something like 10 or 15 seconds.

If I didn't know better, I would think there was some Communist conspiracy against us guys who like a smoke now and then.

LAUREL is making a bid to get two Vietnamese doctors to settle in that community and set up practice.

Banker Rick Adkins and pharmacist Dave Felber flew to California last week to interview several Vietnamese doctors about moving to Laurel. The husband wife team which seems most promising had practiced in Saigon before fleeing South Vietnam in recent weeks.

However, from what I can learn Laurel would have to support the husband and wife for about six months while they study and train at the University of Nebraska so they would be qualified to practice medicine in this state. Then there would be no guarantee the couple would stay in Laurel. If they do come, they would bring their two boys and grandmother.

Although it seems like a long shot, Laurel and other towns in this part of the state are to be commended for trying to sell themselves to a large group of Vietnamese doctors trying to decide how to put their lives back together again after leaving their homeland. I hope some of them have some luck in their efforts.

A WAKEFIELD woman, Mrs. Lowell Johnson, had a harrowing experience the other day.

On Tuesday morning she was run over by a 14,000 pound tractor on the Johnson farm just south of Wakefield. Her three-year old son apparently climbed onto the tractor and released it from gear. The tractor coasted backward, and Mrs. Johnson was run over twice by the left rear wheel as she attempted to climb onto the tractor. She was badly bruised and received abrasions in the mishap.

SCS SALUTE

The Soil Conservation Service this year marks its fortieth year of service to the nation's farmers and ranchers with land treatment problems.

Following the "Dust Bowl" of the "Dirty Thirties", federal legislation formed the Soil Conservation Service to provide technical assistance on erosion control management techniques that protect the nation's land and water resources.

Since 1937, the SCS cooperated with Soil Conservation Districts and since 1972, Natural Resources Districts in Nebraska.

Technical assistance is provided to individuals and NRD's in the areas of soil science, agronomy, engineering, biology plus range management and forestry.

Literally, hundreds of demonstrations and meetings have been held to show the benefits of practices such as waterways, terraces, dams and reduced tillage farming.

Additional responsibilities have been added to the Soil Conservation Service with the invention of the term "non point pollution". "Non point pollution" is the word used to describe the erosion of soil and nutrients from crop and rangeland.

Soil sediment is the single most serious pollutant of our groundwaters. The Congress is considering the possibility of legislating limits of soil loss. Responsibility for designing erosion control practices will fall on the shoulders of SCS and NRD's.

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District salutes the Soil Conservation Service on forty years of accomplishments and is looking forward to the challenges of the next forty!

RURAL ZONING

Comprehensive Plan, as the basis for rural zoning, simply defined, is a blueprint for future development of a town or county. A comprehensive plan includes three elements: (1) a land use plan (which is the major part), (2) public facilities and (3) transportation. The first step would be a study of the existing uses of those three elements. Based on existing uses and such factors as population and economic projections for the future, recommendations are made on how the land should be used, as well as, the need for expansion of public facilities and the transportation need.

The importance of adopting a Comprehensive Plan cannot be over emphasized. State law required that since 1967 a comprehensive plan must be adopted before zoning regulations can be legally adopted or enforced.

WHAT DOES RURAL ZONING DO?

Rural zoning regulates the type of intensity of land use in unincorporated village and open country outside and zoning jurisdiction of village and cities.

WHY HAVE RURAL ZONING?

There are numerous reasons and advantages for having rural zoning. Probably the next important reason is that land is becoming scarce. Because of this, the use of land should be carefully planned to meet future needs.

Rural zoning can also prevent conflicts between property (and economic loss) owners which occurs as a result of incompatible uses on adjacent tracts of land.

Rural zoning provides an orderly method of growth as well as protection of society's interests in preserving and promoting health, safety and the general welfare of its citizens.

Several other counties in Northeast Nebraska are now in the process of drawing up Comprehensive Plans to help the order or growth and prevent conflicts in land use.

Once Again, Blue Devil '9' Is Headed for State

Wayne High's baseball team will make its eighth bid in nine seasons for the state Class B title when the Blue Devils play in the state tournament at Lincoln on Tuesday, May 27.

The Devils, who haven't been beyond the state semifinals since 1970, will face the winner of the Omaha district, yet to be named.

Wayne may break its jinx this year, said Wayne coach Mike Mallette after his club downed Bancroft, 4-0, in Wednesday's district finals at Wayne. Reason for his optimism: Strong pitching and improved hitting.

Against Bancroft, the Devils' connected for nine hits, including a home run and a double by the team's leading hitter, junior Paul Mallette.

Mallette, who carries a hefty 528 average, once again sparked the Devils in district action. The junior homered on the first pitch in the opening frame to send the ball flying over the left-center field fence. With a 1-0 lead going into the third, Mallette ripped a double to score teammates Randy Park and Dave Nuss for a 3-0 count. Then in the top of the fifth, Mallette singled, stole second and came home on catcher Mike Meyer's double.

The Devils finished the game with three doubles, including Nuss' hit in the third. Mallette had four hits in four at bats.

Senior Earle Overin picked up his fifth win on the mound against one defeat. Overin, who struck out 12, gave up only two hits.

In the Devil's last eight games, Wayne hurlers have given up only two runs, another reason for coach Mallette's confidence.

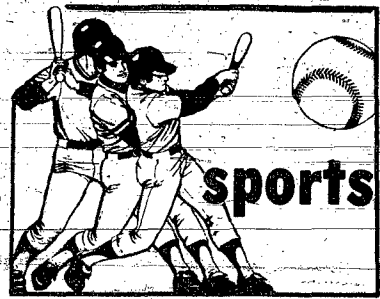

Wayne's team confidence gets a test in Tuesday's makeup game with Northeast Nebraska's other state contender, Allen, which won its district Monday.

The locals travel to Allen for a 3:30 p.m. game that both coaches believe will be a slugging match.

"Allen generally has been known as a hitting ball club. I'm sure it will be a good game for both clubs," Mallette said.

Trojans, Bears 5th, 6th in District

Wakefield and Laurel High golfers finished fifth and sixth in Thursday's 10-team Class C district meet at Norfolk.

Wakefield, paced by Kerry Bressler with an 88, shot an 18-hole total of 373. Mark Anderson led Laurel to a 376 total with an 86. Anderson placed 10th in individual scoring.

Also scoring for Wakefield were John Polen with an 89, Alan Johnson with a 96 and Steve Pospisil with a 100. For Laurel, Gordon Kardell had 96, Scott Huetig and Bob Sutton 97.

Norfolk Catholic won with a 311, followed by Neligh 349, Plainview 351, Bassett 363, Wakefield 373, Laurel 376.

Springview 383, Bloomfield 388, Loup City 392 and Hartington High 397.

The top three teams and Top five individuals qualify for the state meet in Lincoln this week.

NEN Softball Starts Tuesday

Action in Northeast Nebraska Softball League starts Tuesday night for festish teams in Winside and Hoskins.

Starting at 7:30 in Hoskins, Danny's Bar of Hoskins hosts Norfolk VFW. At 9 p.m., Hoskins' second entry in the league faces Norfolk Rendering.

Winside will host Hadar beginning at 8:30.

There are nine teams in the league. Other clubs include three from Norfolk and two from Stanton.

Track, Sports On Agenda for Special Meet

Members of the Wayne-Carroll school board will hold a special meeting tonight (Monday) to discuss the design of an all-weather track under consideration and the eighth grade sports program.

Meeting with the board will be coaches in the school system. Board members are considering constructing an all-weather track south of West Elementary School. Coaches are expected to contribute ideas on such things as the number of lanes, whether a warmup area should be built outside the track and the like, according to superintendent Francis Haun.

They also are expected to present ideas as to whether the school system should take over all eighth grade sports activities. The city recreation program now provides all sports except track for eighth graders.

A Nebraska School Activities Association ruling which is being enforced prohibits member schools from letting their junior high teams compete with teams which are not controlled by a member school system, according to Haun.

The meeting, set for 8 p.m. at the high school, is open to the public.

Wayne Sends 5 to State Track Meet

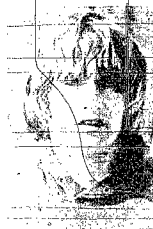

Five members of Wayne High's track team have qualified to compete in the Friday-Saturday state high school track meet at Omaha Burke High School.

Leading the quintet is senior Dick Chapman, who won the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and ran a leg on Wayne's winning 880-yard relay team during Thursday's Class B district meet at Plainview.

Chapman ran the 100 in 10.1, the 220 in 23 and helped Rod Hoops, Mark Brandt and Marty Hansen set a new school record with a 1:33.3 clocking. The same four set a time of 1:34.3 earlier this season.

Going to the state meet in the triple jump for the second straight year is Gordon Emery, who finished second with a leap of 41.6. All first place relay teams and individuals placing first, second and third qualify for the state meet in Class B running events. The top two in field events go to state.

"This is the best bunch of kids I've had in recent years," said Wayne High coach Al Hansen, adding that the five going to

Kearney Nips Wildcats, 4-3, in 16-Inning Bout

For 16 innings the battle surged back and forth—4-3 hours in the championship game of the Nebraska NAIA District playoff Friday night at Broken Bow.

It went this way: Kearney State 1-0 in the top of the first, Wayne going ahead 2-1 in the bottom of that inning and adding another run in the third. Kearney knotting the count at 3-3 in the fourth, followed by seven scoreless innings, then each team tallying one run in the 12th, three more zero frames.

And finally, in the top of the 16th, a Wayne throwing error to first after a difficult pickup of a Kearney bunt scored the go-ahead run. Then a wild pitch allowed another Antelope run.

For a 4-3 count in the bottom of the 16th with a pair of hits, but no runs. And that was all—Wayne ending its season. Kearney repeating as district champion for the second year and going on to the NAIA Area 3 playoff next weekend at Huron, S.D.

Statistics gave a strange view of the marathon. Wayne outthrew Antelope 12 to 7 and committed only three errors, while Kearney bobbled six times.

Both teams had several chances to win, but left runners stranded as fine fielding and heroic relief pitching stymied the offenses.

For Wayne, Roger Saul turned in 11 innings of pitching which coach Larry Schultz rated as an A-plus effort in relief. The Wayne home-town hurler took over from starter Bob Gross in the fourth and met every challenge through the 14th.

Jim Kopecky, who had manned third base all the game, moved to the mound in the 15th for his second relief duty of the day. He had earned credit for the afternoon victory when Wayne defeated Dana, 4-3. Kopecky relieved for the last two innings in that one.

Against Kearney Friday night Kopecky gave no hits in two more relief innings. But he was stuck with the loss on the combination of an error and a wild pitch.

For Kearney, third reliever Frank Ryan got the win credit after replacing second pitcher Steve Gullion in the 17th. Like Saul, Gullion entered in the fourth and threw a masterful game. Terry Sheen started for Kearney.

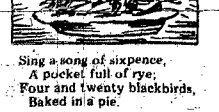

In the afternoon game, Dana jumped to a 3-0 first inning lead. Wayne scored once in the fourth tied in the seventh on Jerry French's two-run homer, won in the eighth. Pinch runner Brent Moeller stole second, then scored on Don Hasenkamp's long sacrifice fly to the center-field wall.

Thursday, Wayne defeated Dana 3-1 and Kearney edged Concordia 2-0 in the first round. Dana eliminated Concordia a 13-inning 5-3 decision. Kearney downed Wayne 6-7 vs. the No. 1 Antelope pitcher, Ken Verghitt held Wayne to three hits.

Wayne ended with a 15-7 season. Sombor Wildcat's parking up gear after the final disappointment, had it summed up best by senior Dean Ott, a baseball and football letterman who was near tears. "What a way to end a career!" He had contributed several sterling catches in left field and some pitching.

Game Commission Says 'Mowing County Roadsides Clips Off Wildlife Habitat'

Nebraska's county boards of commissioners have in their hands the management of one of the state's most extensive and productive types of game habitat, the thousands of miles of county roadsides that lace the state.

And the seemingly insignificant decisions they make in coming weeks in regard to these roadsides could have a definite effect on Nebraska's game populations, particularly the pheasant, according to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

A decision to mow or burn county right of way in spring or early summer, for example, could cut drastically into a county's pheasant population. But a decision to delay such practices until mid-July would have just the opposite effect, says the Game Commission.

The whole problem centers on the loss of habitat in Nebraska, particularly the decline in the nestling cover that pheasants and other wildlife need to raise young. In Nebraska, much of the landscape is being denuded to make room for more crops and the cumbersome farm equipment and irrigation systems now in vogue. About the only place left for pheasants to nest is the roadside ditch, according to the Game Commission.

A Game Commission study showed that about 25 per cent of all the pheasant chicks produced in Nebraska are raised in the narrow band of cover along the roadside. Quail also use roadside nest sites quite often, as do cottontails and a host of other species of wildlife.

For a number of years, the state roads department has cut back its mowing operations or changed its mowing schedule to accommodate wildlife. A number of county boards have also responded well to the pleas of wildlife biologists.

Some counties, though, continue mowing for a number of reasons, says the Game Commission. Some feel that standing grass constitutes a range fire hazard, although agronomists and road maintenance personnel say that standing grass is less prone to ignite than the cut grass.

Some feel that the public prefers the "neat" appearance of mowed grass, but a study shot this theory full of holes. That study showed that 82 per cent of the motorists do not even notice if roadsides are mowed. Most of those who did notice favored unmowed right-of-way when they learned it would be of benefit to wildlife, according to the Game Commission.

There are some other things for county commissioners to consider, besides the obvious benefit to wildlife, notes the Game Commission.

A considerable saving in fuel costs is one result of a cutback in mowing, and with a little sensible seeding and mulching, roadsides could soon establish covers of desirable grasses that would crowd out noxious weeds and cut down erosion. In the long run, this would mean lowered roadside maintenance and weed control costs. The Game Commission has available recommended grass seedings which would be beneficial to wildlife.

Some counties may be unable or unwilling to leave the entire ditch undisturbed, but they can help pheasant nesting success if they mow only one swath nearest the roadway. Game Commission studies have shown that most pheasant, quail and other wildlife nests are found between the center of the ditch and the fence line.

Lienemann, who won the 120 yard high hurdles in 15.4 Thursday, also will run in the 180-yard low hurdles after finishing second to Wakefield's Nicholson.

Nicholson nipped Lienemann by .213 to .216, to win his event. However, Lienemann will go to the state meet since the top two individuals in each event qualify for state.

Both area clubs were expected to be in contention for the district team championship, but Pender grabbed an early 30 point lead and the question of which team would take first in the 14 team meet was never in doubt.

The struggle for second place continued between Winside and Wakefield until the last two relay events where coach John Troczon's Trojans won the 880 and took second in the mile. Pender finished with 1067 points, Wakefield 84 and Winside 674. Placing eighth was Laurel.

Information on energy resources and demands, environmental effects and population growth is programmed into the simulator. The machine is equipped with a clock device which speeds time by at the rate of a century a minute.

Once the game begins, participants are on their own. They must keep energy supplies in balance with energy demands without damaging the environment.

Players must make quick decisions to delay exhaustion of oil, gas and coal as long as possible. Warning lights and buzzers announce shortages of energy supplies and environmental damage.

But no matter how well the game is played, the inevitable always happens—FOSSIL FUELS run out. And the game is done.

The citizen workshop was initiated in 1973 by Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Dr. Dixy Lee Ray. The aim was to create an informative program with a format that would involve the audience in an entertaining way.

Gas Squeeze Affects Wayne, Area Towns

Wayne is one of 38 Nebraska communities which is affected by further restrictions in the gas connection policy of Peoples Natural Gas, according to Richard Wayne of Council Bluffs, regional vice president for the company.

The new policy, which became effective March 1, limited Peoples to 150 new residential connections in the 38 communities during 1975. Permits for all 150 applications have already been granted.

Also affected by the policy are the communities of Wakefield, Emerson, Jackson and Bancroft, said Keith Mosley of Wayne, manager of the five-town district. All 38 communities are affected by the new policy are towns where Northern Natural Gas Co. is the wholesale pipeline supplier.

Although all 150 connections have been spoken for, additional applications for new residential gas connections are still being accepted at Peoples offices throughout Nebraska, according to Wayne.

He said that some of the permits already granted probably would not be exercised or would be voluntarily cancelled. New permits equal to the number not exercised would then be granted. Permits are valid for a 90-day period.

Applications for residential connection permits are available at all Peoples offices. Once the application has been prepared and submitted, it is reviewed along with all other applications that that month. If the application is subsequently approved, the local Peoples office is notified and the permit issued, Wayne explained.

Wayne urged contractors or prospective new home builders to contact their Peoples office for additional details before making final plans on the choice of a home heating system.

Peoples is continuing to connect new gas customers who were granted permits under terms of the company's previous connection policy, Wayne said.

In other changes, Peoples said it is accepting no applications for firm commercial or industrial gas service. Loan applications by existing firm commercial and industrial customers where service is now being provided is prohibited. All applications to convert existing coal, fuel oil or propane furnaces to natural gas are also being denied.

Wayne said the reason for the change in the connection policy is because Peoples is unable to presently contract for additional supplies from Northern Natural Gas.

"We've tried to accommodate new residential customers as long as we felt we could do so without jeopardizing service to our existing residential and small volume commercial users," Wayne said. Northern has adequate supplies under contract for those residential and small volume users now receiving gas service, he said.

Backyard Quiz

When and how do you get rid of billbugs?
Billbugs occur as adults and grubs in turf. Now is the best time to control adults before they lay their eggs. After you use diazinon granules or liquid, apply enough water to wash the chemical off the leaves. If you miss the billbugs now and get damage this summer, then you will need to apply diazinon granules in an attempt to control them. Add one inch of water every 3-4 days until the chemical has reached the billbugs.

Yard & Garden Tips

If creepy, crawly things usually drive you buggy in your vegetable garden, you should check into a new publication from University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologists titled "Insect Control Recommendations for Vegetables in the Home Garden."

The recommendations in this guide are based on research results of "NU and other land grant institutions, USDA recommendations and label registrations. Warns the authors, "Insecticides are useful when used properly to protect plants from destructive insects. All of them are poisonous to some degree and must be handled, used and stored using proper safety precautions. Labels provide necessary information about proper use, storing, handling and treatment of accidental poisoning."

The entomologists list the organic methods of insect control, cultural practices that reduce insect problems and the amount and type of insecticide to use on specific insects.

For a copy of the guide, contact your county Extension agent and ask for "Insect Control Recommendations for Vegetables in the Home Garden" (EC 75-1507).

SEXAUER CERTIFIED SRF SOYBEANS

Our 60# bags will plant 1½ to 2 acres.

You'll profit all the way, when you plant SRF Soybeans this year. SRF beans require lighter planting rates, 30 to 40 pounds per acre, and with our full 60# bags of seed that means you'll plant 1½ to 2 acres of beans per bag.

The narrow leaf characteristics of the SRF Soybean varieties assist in directing sunlight to lower plant areas and to the seed pods. This produces healthier, stronger plants resulting in increased bean yields.

Plant Sexauer Certified SRF Soybeans and increase bean yields, while reducing your costs.

And remember, if they aren't certified, they aren't true SRF Soybeans.

Job Survey Slated In Area This Week

How many people are supplementing their regular pay, check with a second job? How many people are enrolled in adult educational courses or are taking vocational training?

Information on these subjects will be collected during this week from a sample of house holds in the Wayne area.

The questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau of the Census for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Households in the survey area among 50,000 nationwide that have been scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households. All information they supply is held confidential by law, and is used only to compile statistical totals.

Public Notices

BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW

Deadline for all legal notices to be published by The Wayne Herald is as follows: 5 p.m. Monday for Thursday's newspaper and 5 p.m. Thursday for Monday's newspaper.

3,700 Trees Planted for Area Wildlife

Over 3,700 trees and shrubs were planted in Northeast Nebraska wildlife areas recently by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

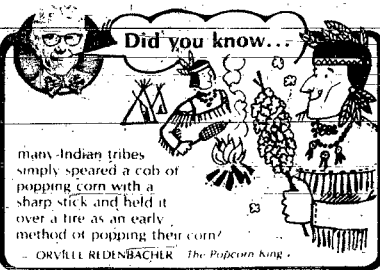

According to Warren Schwanebeck of the wildlife crew, the trees and shrubs will benefit both game and non-game wildlife by providing food, nesting areas, loafing areas and winter cover.

Trees planted include cedar, coneaster, walnut, Scotch pine and Austrian pine.

In the past five years, over 36,000 trees and shrubs have been planted for wildlife on state wildlife areas in Northeast Nebraska. "However, this does not compensate for the loss of woody cover on private land," said Schwanebeck. "Wildlife numbers will continue to decline as trees and shrubs in shelterbelts, roadways and on rivers and streams are removed."

A Growing Start

WAYNE Senior Citizens Center president Anton Pedersen, left, gives mayor Freeman Decker a hand in planting a tree to kick off the local American Bicentennial activities. Looking on is Bicentennial chairman Roberta Wolfe. The seven-foot cottonwood tree was planted Thursday afternoon in the Henry Victor Memorial Park on the south edge of the city. It was purchased by the Center from donations and earnings from craft sales.

The Carroll town board Tuesday night gave the go-ahead to Howard Johnson of Johnson Construction Co. of Sholes to estimate street repair costs.

The Sholes firm, which has done street work in Carroll, will submit costs of street repair probably this week, said town chairman Howard McClain.

Also approved by the town board was the proposed building addition to Ron's Bar. The addition, to be located on the south side of the present building, measures 24 by 60 feet.

Members also okayed a contract with a Norfolk firm for rat control at the village dump. Total cost will be $55 for applications in fall and spring, said village clerk Mrs. Dennis Rohde.
