

Wanted: Newspaper Storage

Wayne Boy Scouts who have been diligently collecting old newspapers in their monthly drives are in a bind they need a building to store approximately 20 tons of newspapers until they can sell them to a firm in Omaha.

The newspapers collected from residents in Wayne, Winside and Carroll in recent drives are now being stored in barns at the Wayne County Fairgrounds. However, the Scouts will have to remove them in a few weeks so work can begin on preparing the fairgrounds for the fair, said Bill Kemp, assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 175, the group which has tackled the monthly collection drives in recent years.

Local and area residents who have a building which they would let the Scouts use for storage for the next several months are urged by Kemp to call him at 375-1624.

He said it is possible the newspapers may have to be stored until the first of the year because the Omaha firm is still recovering from an extensive fire which struck several weeks ago.

In the meantime, Scouts have temporarily cancelled all monthly paper drives, according to Kemp.

He noted, however, that Wayne, Winside and Carroll residents who have a garage or basement to store their old newspapers are urged to do so until the Scouts resume their drives.

The Scouts use money collected from the drives to sponsor summer camping trips and the like.

Iron Causes Local Fire

A fire caused by an unattended iron did several hundred dollars in damage to a Wayne home shortly after noon Saturday, reports volunteer fire chief Cliff Pinkelmann.

He said an iron was left unattended at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Todd Manske at 717 Windom St. while the couple was out of the house. The iron apparently burned through a cover on an ironing board and fell to the floor, starting a fire on the carpet, he noted.

When Manske returned by himself, he discovered the fire and tried to put it out.

Ivan Beggs, the first fireman to the door of the home, had to talk Manske out of the house because the smoke made it difficult to see, according to Pinkelmann.

Manske was taken to the Wayne Hospital and given oxygen because of smoke inhalation, Pinkelmann said, but he was otherwise unharmed.

County Planning Group Learns About Zoning Steps

Members of Wayne County's Joint Planning Commission came a step closer to developing a comprehensive land use plan in the county during Tuesday night's meeting.

Among those attending the meeting was Jeffrey Poley of the Office of Planning and Programming in Lincoln. Poley will be working with the commission as a consultant in helping develop county-wide land use and setting up zoning regulations.

Poley told the commission that the first step in setting up comprehensive planning and zoning activities will be to develop a plan and a series of background studies, including historical data and land development.

Poley said the report also will include such information as physical and economic development in the county, existing land use, transportation and public facilities and suggestions on how the land might be best utilized and what steps the commission should take for general development. All that information is necessary for developing a successful comprehensive planning program.

Poley told the commission that it will be responsible for the initial preparation of the comprehensive plan and for making recommendations to the local governing body on matters pertaining to planning and zoning following its completion.

The consultant recommended that commissioners establish a local comprehensive planning advisory team as one way of providing ready sources of information and advice pertaining to planning and zoning.

He said such a team would be able to provide data, plans, policies and other information which could be used in the planning program.

Cost of the program, which the commission will undertake over the next few years, is estimated at $35,000, according to Poley. Wayne County will receive $10,000 in federal funds, with the remainder of the cost, $5,000, paid for with local funds.

Head of the commission is banker Phil Olafson of Carroll. Vice chairman is Mern Mordhorst of Wayne and secretary is William McQuistan Jr. of rural Pender.

Other members of the commission are Art Behmer of rural Hoskins, C. O. Witt and Lloyd Behmer of rural Winside, Stan Hansen of rural Carroll, and Neil Sandahl and Frederick Mann of rural Wayne.

The commission will hold its next meeting at 8 p.m. on July 1 at the courthouse in Wayne. Meetings are open to the public.

Wayne youngsters ages six to 12 are invited to take part in the Wayne police department's annual bicycle safety school, scheduled for Monday through Wednesday next week.

The three sessions will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. each day, with the first one scheduled for the meeting room at the fire hall, according to parliament Melvin "Lefty" Lamb, in charge of this year's school.

He said youngsters need not bring their bikes to the first session. Registration will be held that morning, and a film titled "Do's and Don'ts of Bicycle Riding" will be shown.

The second session will include a review of bicycle safety and riding around the residential area of the community. Helping the youngsters with their riding will be local Boy Scouts.

Wednesday's session will be held at the parking lot at Rice Auditorium on Wayne State campus. Youngsters will be given riding ability tests, judged by Boy Scouts. Certificates will be given to youths completing the school, and refreshments will be served.

There is no charge for the school, he added, but each youth will have to have his bike licensed. Fee for licensing bikes in Wayne is 50 cents.

Allen Aims To Improve Kids' Reading

In connection with the National Right to Read summer program being conducted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Allen school system is planning to hold a summer reading program.

The program, for children in grades kindergarten through eight, will begin Monday and will run through July 2.

Classes will be held daily Monday through Friday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., with a mid-morning snack break.

According to Glenn Kumm, special vocational needs instructor at Allen, who is helping conduct the program, Right to Read is focusing this summer on boys and girls in the elementary and secondary school level who would like to improve themselves who might otherwise regress during the summer months.

The program seeks to draw national attention to the fact that some 19 million adults in the United States are functionally illiterate and seven million elementary children are under achieving in reading.

"We at Allen want to provide exciting and stimulating activities to be taught in a relaxed and flexible atmosphere," said Kumm.

Special emphasis will be placed on reading and mathematics. Conducting the reading program will be Mrs. Judy Weding of Wakefield. A graduate of Wayne State College, she is a specialist with the Mac Sec KIDS, page 5

Meeting Slated on Soil Survey Results

Wayne County farmers interested in learning more about the land they till are invited to attend meetings scheduled for next month, according to county agricultural agent Don Spitze.

Spitze said a meeting will be held at both Wayne and Winside to explain and distribute the recently completed soil survey of the county.

"There is a lot of value to information in the soil survey book, not only to farmers but also to real estate people, fertilizer salesmen, contractors and the like," Spitze said.

Meetings are scheduled for July 16 at the city auditorium in Wayne and for July 17 at the city auditorium in Winside. Both meetings will begin at 8 p.m.

Also scheduled is a noon meeting at the Student Union at Wayne State College on June 17. That luncheon, which will be primarily for agribusiness people, will be by invitation, Spitze noted.

The 36-page soil survey book, compiled earlier this spring, includes several pages of maps detailing the types of soils in the county.

It also contains descriptions of the soils which exist in the county, information on the use and management of those soils, and information on the county's natural and cultural features.

The soil survey was conducted by the Soil Conservation Service in cooperation with the University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division.

Top Farm Woman to Be Named at 2nd Luncheon

Mrs. Doris Ward, chairman for the second annual Farm Ladies Appreciation Luncheon, has announced plans for an Outstanding Farm Women Award to be presented during this luncheon.

The award will go to the Wayne area farm woman who has contributed the most to her community and to her family.

The luncheon is scheduled for 1 p.m. Friday, July 11, at Wayne State's Student Union.

Mrs. Ward said organizations and individuals are encouraged to nominate women for the award. Although no special form is needed, letters of nominations should describe the nominee's activities and must be signed by the person preparing it, she said. Nominations sponsored by organizations should be so indicated, she added.

Selection for the award will be based on good neighbor activities, contributions to clubs and community organizations, work in the church, and the attitude and support within the family.

Nominations should be sent to the Outstanding Farm Women Award, in care of the Chamber of Commerce office at Wayne.

Deadline for submitting nominations is July 1.

Women who would like to attend the luncheon, sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce, need only stop in at one of the sponsoring businesses so they can be invited. Last year's dinner was attended by some 400 farm wives and women.

In connection with this year's luncheon theme, "Quilting Bee Luncheon," ladies who plan to attend are asked to sew their name on a 12-inch quilt block and turn them into the Chamber office by July 1.

Designs should be within a nine-inch square of the block and may be embroidered, appliqued or done in patchwork. Prizes will be given to the farm women with the best block designs.

The blocks will be used to make a friendship quilt by members of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center. The quilt will be sold, with proceeds going to help with Wayne's American Bicentennial efforts.

Others serving on the planning committee with Mrs. Ward are Mrs. Ernest Thayer, Mrs. Gordon Nurnberger, Mrs. Gary Pick, Mrs. Roy Hurd, Mrs. Fred Gildersteeve, Mrs. Gene Frdrickson, Mrs. Jay Liska and Mrs. Steve Schumacher.

Overin, Hix Combine To Shut Out Laurel

Wayne Legion pitchers Earl Overin and Dave Hix combined for 14 strikeouts and Wayne scratched out eight runs in the second frame as the locals blanked visiting Laurel, 11-0, Monday night in the season opener of the Ralph Bishop League.

Overin fanned 11 batters and gave up Laurel's only two hits. The right-hander went four frames before coach Hank Overin sent in Hix to finish the abbreviated five-inning contest. The win evened the Legion's record at 1-1 after last week's loss during Wakefield's tournament.

Wayne scored eight runs off just two hits in the second frame. Center-fielder Gordon Cook smashed a run-scoring triple to right center to open the scoring attack.

Later, Cook ended the frame with a three-run single before he was caught between first and second. Cook finished the game with two hits in two at bats.

In the first inning, Cook was hit by a pitched ball to put runners at first and second. Earlier, left fielder Marty Hansen singled. Second baseman Paul Mallette then loaded the sacks when he was safe on an error. Overin's ground rule double scored two runs and short-stop Dave Nuss' single added the final run in the opening frame for a 3-0 count.

Sterling Stolpe started on the mound for Laurel. He gave up four of Wayne's five hits and nine runs before coach Bob Weisenberg substituted Brad Erwin in the second frame.

Rouse's Singles Lift Wakefield Over Allen

Second baseman Dave Rouse singled in two runs to lead Wakefield to a 4-3 comeback win over Allen-Martinburg Sunday night at Allen.

Rouse's single in the fifth inning tied the score at 3-3 in the opening game for both in the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League. Then in the top of the seventh with two outs, Rouse ripped another one-bagger to put Wakefield ahead.

Allen jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first frame when shortstop Gary Troth raced home on an error and third baseman Tim Hill singled to score second baseman Kevin Hill and catcher Dave Schipul.

Wakefield hurler Kevin Peters cooled Allen's bats the last eight frames, giving up five more hits while his team's batters went to work.

Right-fielder Roger Lueth scoring Wakefield's first run, driving in third baseman Rob Eaton in the top of the second. Peters, who got on first by an error and rounded second on a wild throw, scored on another

THAT SIGN at the junction of Highway 35 and the spur leading to Winside saluting Winside High's Class C state wrestling champs may have to undergo some changes this summer.

Appropriate would be adding the names of Dwight Lienemann and Jill Stenwall in recognition of their athletic feats. Both are state champions in their own field: Lienemann won the 167-pound high school wrestling title last season; Miss Stenwall is the best high school girl shot putter.

But neither has stopped earning firsts. This past weekend they were themselves on other levels, and they now have chances of earning national recognition.

Lienemann, who won the 178-pound division during Saturday's Nebraska Federation wrestling meet in Columbus, will be going on an eight-state tour with the state's other top Federation winners. States' top wrestlers will be visiting Iowa, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Missouri before coming back home to Nebraska.

Jill will be heading to the state junior olympics meet in Hastings Saturday after she won the shot at a qualifying meet in Sioux City. Sunday she also qualified with another first in the same event during an AAU meet in Hastings.

In winning the shot at Sioux City, Jill established a meet record for the 16-17 year age group with a toss of 42-3/4. If she wins at Hastings, Jill advances to the regional meet at Des Moines the following weekend, according to coach Jim Winch. The nationals will be at White Plains, N.Y.

At the regional AAU meet in Hastings, wet weather hampered Jill in her attempt to better her best toss of 45-3/4. However, her heave of 20-11/4 wasn't anything to shrug. Fact is, she was the only girl to go over the 40-foot mark. Winch pointed out.

In the discus, she took second with a mark of 123.5. Again, rains hampered her perhaps winning two first-place medals.

Lienemann qualified for the tour after pinning all three opponents in the first period. The wins boost the Winside grad's record to 35-0. He completed his senior year at 32-0.

Also on the tour will be Lienemann's head coach, Doug Barclay. There's a chance another Wildcat grappler may make the tour. Heavyweight Mike Anderson, who finished third in his division, may go if he is named one of five alternates by Barclay, and three other coaches—Dean Miller, South Sioux City; Larry Neese, Columbus, and Bill Morrison, Oakland-Craig. The tour starts July 21.

Also competing at Columbus from Winside were: Bob Bowers, fourth in the 105-pound bracket, and Brad Langenberg, fifth at 145.

NORTH Country Golf Academy, under direction of Wayne State graduate Larry Berres, is holding two one-week golfing sessions in Walker, Minn., beginning July 6.

Son of Mrs. G.A. Berres of Wayne, Larry serves as an area consultant for the National Golf Foundation as well as golf coach at the University of Missouri in St. Louis.

Cost per session is $195, which includes all meals, lodging, greens fees, range balls and practice facilities. Registration deadline is June 30.

SADDLE CLUB competition gets into swing Sunday at 10:30 a.m. when the Carroll horse club hosts its 13th annual show.

Fourteen events are slated for the junior bracket, and another 21 events are lined up for junior, senior and open team brackets. Vern Peters of Uehling will judge the riders; Merlin Jenkins and Jerry Junck will be announcers. Rain date is Wednesday at 5 p.m.

SC Heelan Wins Ellis BB Torney

Sioux City Heelan blanked Sioux City North, 6-0, Sunday afternoon to win the Chuck Ellis Memorial Baseball Tournament at Wakefield.

Heelan hitters blasted out homers in the fourth and sixth frames after scoring three runs in the third.

Saturday night Heelan advanced to the finals with an 8-7 win over defending champion Bluffs Thomas Jefferson.

Bancroft Stuns Wakefield, 11-1

Bancroft Midgets surprised Wakefield Monday, knocking off the favorites in the Ralph Bishop League by a score of 11-1.

Minus several starting players, Wakefield ran into pitching problems as starter Brad Jones gave up seven runs on three hits in the first inning. Bancroft scored two runs in both the second and third innings to halt the game in the fifth frame.

Jones was the only Wakefield

2nd-Best Golfer in '74 Tries Harder in '75

Omaha golfer Leo Gard lived up to the saying, "When you're second best, you try harder."

Last year Gard finished second in the Wayne County Club Memorial Day Golf Tournament with a 27-hole total of 106. Two strokes behind winner Larry Sock of Norfolk.

"This year, the year is different. Gard shot rounds of 36-34-35 for a 105 total to capture Sunday's championship round in the annual meet.

Right behind Gard were a bevy of Nebraska's top golfers, including John Tomasiwicz of Omaha; Mike Ley of Lincoln and Sock.

Tomasiwicz finished second with a 108 while Sock, Steve Sergeant of Omaha and Bill Schultz of Elkhorn finished in a three-way tie for third with 109's. Tying for sixth were Tom Appledorn of Omaha and Kevin Meyer of Sioux City with 110, while Jack Kendoriz of Omaha and Ley tied for eighth at 111.

"We didn't have as many golfers as we had hoped to," said club officer Bob Reeg, pointing out that the club was hoping for a turnout better than last year's 225. About 195 golfers entered the tourney.

However, Reeg added, the tournament was one of the club's most successful in recent years.

A total of 13 Wayne golfers placed in the top four positions of the 10 flights. Richard Pflanz and Ken Kluge led local golfers by winning the ninth and 10th flights. Both fired 18-hole rounds of 89.

Top flight finishers:

Kenneth Utecht, 30, of Wayne, according to the Wayne County sheriff's office.

Both drivers were eastbound at the time of the accident, according to the report, and Shaw was slowing down to turn onto the airport driveway.

Utecht told sheriff Don Weible that lights from an approaching car made it impossible for him to see Shaw's motorcycle in front of him.

Considerable damage was done to the motorcycle and minor damage to the left front of Utecht's vehicle, the sheriff said.

Shaw received treatment for abrasions and bruises Sunday evening and was released from the hospital that night. He returned to the hospital Monday morning and was released again Tuesday morning, hospital officials said.

Osmond Stops Carroll
Osmond scored eight runs; four of them on a grand slam in the third inning, to give Carroll its second loss of the season — Sunday night, 8-1.

Dick Chapman scored Carroll's only run in the first frame when he doubled and came home on Delmar Eddie's hit. Jim Jorgensen was the losing pitcher. His record is 0-1.

Thought for Today By Rowan Wittze "Generosity is giving more than you can; pride is taking less than you need." - Khalil Gibran "Most of us think of ourselves as being rather generous if we give a few dollars to each charitable cause which comes to our door. Fortunately, few of us have an opportunity to demonstrate our pride by accepting less charity than we need. Why not exhibit generosity and pride in daily non-monetary dealings with others? We can give more attention, more respect, more consideration. We can take less in the form of demands we make on those around us. Our reputation for sympathetic, understanding service is based on the fact that we truly care about the families who have put their trust in us." Wiltse Mortuaries

Bob insisted, who collected two doubles and a single in the fifth to set up Wayne's winning run. With two away, Bodenstedt stole third and slid safely into home on an error by catcher Rusty Gade. It was the Midgets' first game of the season and opened—Ralph Bishop League action.

Keating's one-handed grab of Gade's grounder in the top of the sixth halted Laurel's chances to enter a runner from third when Keating quickly threw to first for the second out of the final frame.

Credit for Wayne's victory also goes to relief pitcher Tyler Frevert. The third Wayne pitcher to enter the game, he took over in the third frame and finished the game with six strike outs. His last strike out came in the top of the sixth when the right-hander lanned left fielder Don Dalton to end the game.

Wayne gained a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first when Frevert and right fielder Joe Kenny scored on catcher Larry Creighton's ground out and starting pitcher Vic Sharpe's double.

Laurel bounced back for a 3-2 lead in the second on back-to-back doubles by second baseman Cleve Stolpe and shortstop Brian Johnson.

Laurel upped the margin to 4-2 when Mike Martin walked to home in the top of the third. But the locals knotted the game in the last of the third on left fielder Mike Rethwisch's two-run single.

In the bottom of the fourth, Wayne tallied two more runs off Creighton's triple for a 4-4 lead, but Laurel tied the game in the top of the fifth on a single and error.

Doug Thompson took the loss for Laurel.

They are Dr. Gilbert Schiffman from John Hopkins University, who will speak on learning disabilities, and Dr. Doris Johnson from Northwestern University, who will present a workshop on auditory problems.

Although the weekend workshop is already full, the Thursday evening opening session, to be conducted by Dr. Schiffman, is open to the general public at no charge. Dr. Schiffman will speak at 7:30 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre at the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center.

His talk should be of interest to instructors, lay people and parents.

JOHN BARNES

83-Year Old Wins $25 in Weekly Drawing

Wayne's Birthday Bucks prize remains at $500 this week, the result of a grand prize winner not being named in last Thursday evening's drawing. Taking home the $25 consolation prize last week was John Barnes, 83, of Wayne.

He was in Kuhn's Department Store Thursday night when the winning date of March 28, 1987 was announced. His birthday: Sept. 23, 1891.

If the grand prize goes unclaimed again this evening (Thursday), it will remain at the $500 level for another week and another $25 consolation prize will be awarded to the person present in one of the participating businesses whose birthday is closest to the date drawn at random and announced at 8:15 tonight.

The Birthday Bucks awarded in the weekly drawings may be spent just like cash in any business helping make the weekly drawings possible.

No purchases and no registrations are required, but a person must be in one of those sponsoring businesses to collect either the grand or consolation prize.

OBSERVATIONS

What's summer all-about?

If everybody really tries, we should be able to come up with enough activities so parents can keep their kids out of their hair all summer. School for the youngsters hasn't been out more than a week and already parents are shuffling their kids off to vacation Bible school. As soon as that ends, they will be able to enroll them in bicycle safety class for a few days. Then it will be about time for park recreation and swimming lessons. In the meantime, they can send them to summer recreation activities to fill in the lulls when there isn't anything going on. By the time all that is over, it will be time for the kids to head back to regular classes at the elementary school or middle school. And when the summer is all over, parents can lean back and relax, thanking their lucky stars that they were able to keep their kids "usefully" occupied all summer. What really will have happened is that the poor kids will have been cheated out of another summer vacation. These thoughts aren't meant to be critical of any one of those summer activities planned for the youngsters. Each one is worthwhile by itself. The annual bicycle safety classes to teach the youngsters a few safety lessons which might help them avoid an accident, summer recreation activities to help them develop their coordination, swimming lessons to teach them a little confidence in and around water, and so on. But these thoughts are meant to be critical of those parents who look upon those activities as "summer's built-in babysitters. Although they repeatedly say that all these activities are too valuable for their children to miss out on, I think that in the back of their minds the activities are just excuses to get the kids out of the house so somebody else can take care of them. I wonder if we aren't destroying the real meaning of summer when we schedule half a dozen or a dozen different activities for the kids and then vie among ourselves in trying to attract as many youngsters to take one as we can. What ever happened to those summers when a kid didn't have anything more to do than to mosey down to the creek with his fishing pole as an excuse for swimming with a bunch of other kids? And those summers when you stuffed your slingshot in your hip pocket, climbed on your bike and rode out in the country with your buddy, zinging rocks at turtle doves and sparrows in the trees? And those summers when you walked up to the high school, sat down on the bank and watched those tough guys sweat for hours on end building a new auditorium? And those summers when you found the coolest place in the house so you could read comic books detailing the exploits of Red Ryder, Plastic Man, Batman and GI Joe? I guess those summers are over for too many of our kids. Now they have to get up early in the morning so they can spend a couple hours at swimming lessons before going home to grab a sandwich so they can make it to the latest summer recreation activity on time. I'm one guy who thinks maybe those old summers weren't so bad after all, even though we probably learned little which too many parents these days would consider worthwhile. — Norvin Hansen.

LETTERS. 'Observer' wrong about handouts, farm wife says. Win Side. Dear Editor: For someone who lives in a community dependent on agriculture, an Observer (letter to the editor, June 2) certainly does not understand farming. The farmer "handouts" as he calls them are not really handouts. Due to the heavy rains and tornadoes in May, farmers are eligible for low cost loans, I said LOANS. A loan (according to my dictionary) is "a sum of money put out at interest." This sum of money must be paid back, with interest, at some future date. For last fall's payment to farmers who were hit by drought, the fertilizer did not cover his cost of seed, herbicide, herbicide, insecticide, fuel, etc. He received less than nothing for his time. What independent business (besides the farmer) depends on the Good Lord for his success or failure? Another thing that doesn't set well with me is your control over our income. Your Independent Businesses, take their reasonable markup. I don't begrudge them that, but when each Independent Business tacks on his markup the price, of course, goes up. Then you the consumer, boycott the product to force the price down. This reduction in price hits only the farmer if you the consumer would let the farmer deal in a supply and demand market with no restrictions, he would need no support because he would adjust his supply to your demand. A farmer is NOT guaranteed a subsidy by the government. Attest the many cattle feeders who have quit feeding or cut back sharply, trying to hang on to some of their investment in a 160 mile trip southwest that we took recently we saw very few cattle in the feed yards. Also, attest the many vacant farm places in the country. Where are the farmers that used to be out here? Some of the older people have retired, the middleaged have given up and moved to town, some of the younger people have gone to the cities to work because of the easier life and the "free" weekends. The young man can not make it out here unless he has a larger or other benefactor who can help set him up and grow. Farming is a business that requires a large investment. You can't make it on 80 acres now as our forefathers did. You want more and more food for less and less money, and we keep trying to supply it. I am familiar with both sides of the fence. I have worked for one independent business 10 years, and another for 17. Their road to success is paved with hard work too, but they don't have the problems farmers do. Farming is a hard but rewarding job. I don't knock it until you've tried it. I am proud to be a farmer's wife and a businessman's secretary. — Mrs. Arland Aurich.

Fluoride story contains some half-truths'. Dear Editor: Regarding the front page story on fluoridation of Wayne water in the June 2nd issue, some half truths seem to appear. (Half truths are lies, so chances are that story was written and submitted by someone other than yourself). The story says fluoride was added after much debate. Half true! It was added after an election in which only 18 votes difference, in favor of the addition. Later on, the story says fluoride is a natural substance, etc. True! But shouldn't the fact be brought out then that the chemical being "added" is not natural calcium fluoride but rather the poisonous sodium fluoride which is a and is ordinarily used in the manufacture of rat poison? Another clarification should be that NOT "many" towns have added the chemical. Most of them have rejected this mass medication in Nebraska! Last week the great city of Los Angeles voted on the issue and substantially rejected it. — One For Pure Water.

GRASSROOTS OPINION. Miami, Fla., Diario Las Americas. "It is evident that the persons who are to rule a country or lead the opposition parties should possess, within what is reasonable, the adequate qualifications of intelligence, education, moral and civic attributes to be able to perform the work corresponding to those positions. But this in no way means that it must be demanded from those leaders the qualities of a superman or of a genius... The best political leader, whether in the Public Power or out of it, is the normal individual who, not being a superman, embodies the basic qualities of morality, intelligence, patriotism and experience to conceive and execute prudent government plans and to orient the community with his sincere word and with his good example in public and in private life."

'In Washington' FTC trying to break Joe's shaving arm. By RON HENDREN. WASHINGTON — Oh my Lord, the ball game is over! The Federal Trade Commission has ruled that if sports stars and other celebrities are going to endorse products, they'll have to use them. The implications are devastating. Joe Namath will have to start shaving with Noxzema, eating Mayo for breakfast and maybe even wearing pantyhose, although the commission did hedge on that one. Mickey Mantle is going to have to start drinking Lite beer, and have you ever tasted that stuff? The only celebrity endorser who might possibly not be affected is Earl Green. He has been so convinced himself that a certain cereal tastes like wild hickory nuts. He probably eats it and it probably does, but who besides? Euell Gibbons wants wild hickory nuts for breakfast? The ruling is just plain unfair. These people have to make a living, and as for the rest of us, what with the quality of television these days, the commercials are the best part, anyway. So what if Joe Namath takes it all off with hot lather instead of Noxzema? Most people don't care if he takes it off with a meat-ax — it's watching him clown around that makes his ads memorable. No, the Commission is using its limited resources to go after the wrong people. What matters is not whether celebrities actually use the products they endorse, but whether companies' claims about those products are actually true. And the Commission's record on that score is awful. Example: Three years ago, the FTC charged that the makers of Anacin, Excedrin, Excedrin PM and Bufferin were guilty of false and misleading advertising. To wit, that Bufferin does not go to work in half the time that Anacin's "analgesic ingredient" is, or ordinary aspirin, that Anacin does not contain "twice as much of its analgesic ingredient" as all competing products, and so on. Big deal. If you think those ads have changed materially in three years, you haven't been watching much television. In short, the FTC has the worst press defense record in the league, and they're not going to improve it much by trying to break Joe Namath's shaving arm.

Hi!

Whew! 84th Legislature half over

CAPITOL NEWS. LINCOLN — The 84th Legislature is taking its seven month recess. Although the lawmakers convene annually these days, they still lump two sessions together into units. What adjourned May 23 was the first session of the 84th Legislature. What convenes Jan. 7 will be the second session of the same Legislature. The grouping of sessions is natural because there is the same membership in each. Senators elected in 1974 took the oath of office last January, and the lawmakers chosen at the polls next year will be sworn in as members of the 85th Legislature. The speaker and other officers named during the first session hold their jobs through both meetings. Committee assignments are unchanged. Bills also hold over between sessions of a Legislature. There were about 120 or so measures which didn't get final attention either passed or killed during the 1975 meeting. They hold their position on the boards until next winter. The continuing aspect probably had something to do with the abrupt end to the 1975 meeting. Everyone knew May 23 would be the finale, but the adjournment still caught many by surprise. The lawmakers had no sooner finished overriding a J. J. Exon veto on a speed limit bill than the governor arrived to give his farewell message. When he was through, the dean of the legislators — 29-year-old George Syas of Omaha — stood up and moved that the session adjourn sine die (for good) and, with a rousing voice vote in favor of the motion, Lieutenant Governor Gerald Whelan brought down his gavel and ended it all. Ended it, that is, for seven months.

Speed Veto Overturned. It looked for awhile that day as if there might be a return of the senators a lot sooner than next January. The talk that morning was all about a special session. But Exon, in his brief address, said that he would try to have what he called an "unconstitutional, unworkable and unfair" provision in the speed limit bill handled through the courts, rather than by calling the lawmakers back. Here's what it was all about: On the 84th anniversary of Senator Ernest Chambers of Omaha, who kept assisting his colleagues the federal government wouldn't do anything about it, the Legislature inserted in LB 381 a provision changing the penalty for speeding. The change applied only to motorists caught going up to 65 miles per hour on the Interstate highway. Under the Chambers amendment, such motorists would be fined $10; but they wouldn't have to pay any court costs and there wouldn't be any assessment of points against their driver's license. Exon took the position that such an amendment makes a mockery out of the federally imposed 55 mph limit. What's more, he said, it is unconstitutional and he cited an attorney general's opinion which held that it was "constitutionally suspect" to excuse some speeders from court costs and points and not others. So Exon decided to veto the bill. But it wasn't an easy decision, because the basic bill was designed to extend for another year the Nebraska 55 mph speed limit which otherwise would have expired June 30. Had the veto been upheld and the bill failed to become law, the limits would have gone back to pre-energy crisis levels of 75 on the Interstate and 65 elsewhere on the highways. Exon said he wasn't going to let that happen, since a state which doesn't comply with the 55 mph limits Uncle Sam has decreed is risking the loss of millions of dollars in highway construction funds. The only way to extend the 55 mph limit, if LB 381 had fallen to the Exon veto, would have been to have called the legislators back into a special session because the veto arrived on the last day of the regular 1975 meeting. Chambers was among those who said the bill should be passed over the governor's objections. Other states, he said, have imposed mild penalties for violations of the 55 mph speed ceiling and haven't had sanctions imposed from Washington. Besides, Chambers said, the veto wasn't aimed at the bill, no matter what the governor said. The black senator from Omaha said he was the governor's target and he called the Exon veto a "stupid, vindictive move." When Exon arrived minutes later — to give his brief goodby to the senators — he said he was disappointed that the veto was overridden. He said he would direct Attorney General Paul Douglas to go to the courts and see if the no points, no court cost provision could be declared unconstitutional and void. Douglas said last week he was preparing such a lawsuit, which he said he hoped would go directly before the state supreme court. The State Patrol, meanwhile, announced it still was looking for anyone exceeding 55 mph on the Interstate. That's the legal limit, the Patrol said, and troopers will be enforcing the law.

Pay raises totaling about $3,250 annually were granted to Wayne city employees at a council meeting Tuesday night. Baseball-minded Wayne youngsters this summer will get a chance to play in the low midget league. Plans now call for an eight-team league playing every week. Twelve NE Nebraska counties are included in a major mail improvement project, it was announced Tuesday by Robert R. Justus, Wichita postal region director. About 40 children from 12 NE Nebraska counties are expected in Wayne Saturday for an extension clinic sponsored by the Nebraska Services for Crippled Children at the WSC student union. 10 years ago. June 3, 1965. Dixon is joining the group of Northeast Nebraska communities celebrating their 75th "birthdays" this year. Confusion over which day was being observed as Memorial Day resulted in a smaller crowd than usual for rites held Monday at the Wayne cemetery. The Masonic Lodge has purchased land on which to build a new Masonic temple. An operatic concert by the 50-piece Strategic Air Command band from Offutt AFB, Omaha, will be presented Thursday, June 10, at 2 p.m. in the Willow Bowl on the WSC campus. Clip & save. Despite Roadblocks, Trees Still Popular

Even though increased land utilization and sky-high agricultural markets have cut down acreage in Nebraska, the Clarke-McNary tree distribution program still sold 2.1 million trees this spring.

Future Feeders
Future Feeders 4-H met May 27 at the Northeast Station, near Concord. Hosts were Jeff and Dirk Carlson and Brian and Layne Johnson.

Movies were shown on breaking, training and showing a horse. Lessons were worked on in the workbooks.

Next meeting will be June 17 at 8 p.m. at the Northeast Station with Jeanene and Gordon Kardeff and Bob Dahlquist serving.

extension forester, "About 6,000 acres are planted to trees in the state, but our tree sales can't keep up with some recent policies to pull up trees."

Jennings released the Clarke-McNary figures recently and revealed a jump of 100,000 more trees sold in the state compared to last year's total. Conifers proved highest in demand, making up 1.5 million of the total sold. Walnut trees showed a tremendous rise in popularity due partly to the forestry incentives program, said Jennings. Figures revealed a jump from 25,000 sold last year to 111,000 this year.

Said Jennings, "We could have sold anything we could get our hands on, but we couldn't supply enough conifers since our stock was low, due to severe hail two years ago that lowered the number available this year. We're trying to anticipate sales several years in advance so by 1978, we plan to offer 30 per cent more conifers. We anticipate sales at 2.3 million conifers out of a total of 2.8 million trees by that time."

This and That...

from YOUR COUNTY AGENT

WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Alfalfa Weevil
Melvin Wilson who lives in the northeast part of the county called me the other day and reported that a small green worm was damaging his alfalfa. I went out and inspected the alfalfa, and the worms proved to be alfalfa weevil.

The larvae of the weevil is green with a white stripe down the back, a black head and is approximately one-fourth inch long. Severely damaged fields have a whitish cast due to the death and drying of the upper leaves and buds following skeletonization by larvae. The weevil seems to prefer first year alfalfa. The damage is more severe near wooded areas, as this is where the eggs are laid.

There are a number of chemicals that will control the weevil, but it's probably best to mow the alfalfa for hay. Many of the worms will then die due to exposure to the sun. Unfortunately, some of the weevils may survive and start mating the new generation. If this happens they will need to be controlled by a chemical such as Furadan.

More Bugs
Cutworms are always with us this time of the year, but they seem to be especially prevalent this year. Milton Boysen west of Wayne called me about cutworms damaging his newly emerged corn. Black cutworms had destroyed five per cent or more of the field, and some small areas had better than 20 per cent damage.

Unfortunately, EPA has taken away some of the most effective insecticides for control of the cutworm. If you don't have any dairy animals on the farm, toxaphene would be a good choice. Other choices include sevin and dylox. Any of these chemicals may or may not give good control depending on the weather, but it's the best we have.

Yard & Garden Tips

Keep Young Trees Growing

If you planted trees this spring and thousands of Nebraskans did, it is very likely they are off to a good start. Moisture is a most important requirement for success in getting trees established.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension foresters list the following things to do, all of which will be especially important this first growing season.

1. Follow through with a weed control program.
2. Provide extra water, if possible, when soil becomes dry for a prolonged period.
3. Watch for and act promptly on insect and disease problems.
4. Protect trees from injury.
5. Contact your county agent or extension forester for any assistance you need in evaluating problems if they occur.

Kiwanians Elect Sherry President for 1975-76

Wayne Kiwanians unanimously elected Dan Sherry as the club's president for the 1975-76 term during Monday's luncheon at the Women's Club room in the city auditorium.

Also taking office will be Bob Jordan, president-elect; Deryl Lawrence, vice president; Vern Fairchild, secretary-treasurer; and directors Frank Teach, Dean Bruggeman and Carl Lentz.

Sherry will replace current president Gene Bigelow. Jordan moves up from vice president and Fairchild retains his position.

During Monday's meeting, members heard from Lyle Garvin, owner of GEC Manufacturing Co. in Wayne.

Back in 1958 Garvin started a company known as Wayne Sport Goods. Four years later he and Carl Ellermer of Wayne formed GEC. Several years later Garvin bought out Ellermer.

GEC, which manufactures and sells various types of sporting equipment, distributes in about 40 states. Garvin said Texas and California are the best states for sales, especially for track equipment, he noted.

Prior to Garvin's talk, membership chairman Max Lundstrom presented member Bob Bertlett with a two-year pin for perfect attendance.
