Summer Park Program Gets Underway Today

Wayne youths looking for something to do now that they have some spare time on their hands may want to enroll in the first session of the city's annual summer recreation park program.

Registration is scheduled for this morning (Monday) from 10 to 11 a.m. at Breasler Park. Activities will begin Tuesday and will run through July 3 on Monday, Friday and 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., according to Mrs. Mike Karel, in charge of the program this year.

The program's second session will run July 7-25. The program is open to all boys and girls who will be in kindergarten through the eighth grade next fall. There is no charge for youths living in Wayne, but parents of youths in surrounding areas have to pay the $10 family fee to enroll their children in the activities. The fee entitles all children in a family to participate in all city recreation activities for a full year.

Mrs. Karel noted that few of the activities scheduled for the first session will be repeated during the second session, permitting youths to enroll for both sessions if they wish.

Helping Mrs. Karel with the activities which will be held during the first session will be Pam Sutherland, kindergarten; Becky Allen, first grade; Lori Sturm, second; Cary Kinslow, third; Julie Overin, fourth; Vicki Ostendorf, fifth-sixth; and Karla Schwartz, seventh-eighth. All are at least through their freshman year in high school. Mrs. Karel, and the youngsters should find them enjoyable to work with.

Meeting on Rural School Is June 23

Construction of a new school building for the recently consolidated rural school districts south of Wayne will come up for discussion during a public meeting Monday, June 23.

The meeting will be held in the District No. 57 school house at 8 p.m.

Discussed will be the building which will be needed to house the students from Districts No. 8, 10, 34, 40 and 69, the rural school districts which recently were merged with No. 57.

Still pending is a proposal to merge District No. 88 to form an even larger rural school district.

Preliminary plans call for construction of a steel building just off Highway 15 four miles south of Wayne. The building would contain three classrooms and a multipurpose room. It would be needed to house the approximately 52 students who will attend school there this fall, according to Wayne County superintendent Fred Rickers.

Although the proposal to merge the five school districts with No. 57 failed to gain approval of the state school reorganization committee, it did win approval of the county committee. That is all that was needed to put the plan into effect, according to Rickers.

The proposal to merge No. 88 with the other school districts is now pending action with the state committee. Like the proposal to merge the other districts, all that is needed is the okay of the county committee to put that proposal into effect, Rickers noted.

Interested in Catfish Farming? If So, Conn Library is For You

Have you used your government document depository library this year? Do you know what a government depository library is, and are you aware that you have one in your area?

Four years ago Wayne State College Conn Library was appointed a district depository, one of 13 in the state, and as such serves as a depository for publications printed by the Government Printing Office.

As a selective depository, rather than a regional depository, Conn Library receives only materials dealing with interest areas it has specified. That is, Conn is not required to accept all items published by the Government Printing Office, as regional depositories are.

Even so, approximately 50

75 items arrive at Conn daily to be catalogued and placed on the shelves. Those hundreds of articles per week represent about 40 per cent of the material published by the Government Printing Office.

Articles in the government documents section of the library may be checked out by any American citizen for a four week period. It is not necessary to have a Conn Library membership in order to utilize the government documents depository.

Government documents available include pamphlets, books, maps, atlases, charts, curriculum guides and even coloring books. And in the event borrowers find they would like to own copies of any of the items, they may purchase them from the Government Printing Office at a minimal charge.

Because Wayne is an agricultural area much of the material requested for the Conn depository is of an agricultural nature. For instance, there are plans for designing and building farm out buildings, pamphlets on orchard planting or catfish farming, weather maps and information on irrigation and land drainage.

There are also guides for growing houseplants, population statistics, consumer reports on textiles, or poisons, or playground equipment, curriculum guides for police officers, for ambulance drivers, and guides for welding geared to several age levels, to name only a few.

Among the recent additions is a book entitled "The Dye Is Now Cast," which should be interesting to many in view of the Bicentennial celebrations emphasis. This 300 page volume was published for the National Portrait Gallery by the Smithsonian Institution Press and contains hundreds of illustrations to bring to life the birth of our America.

Another book, "Windows Walls Bridges," deals, through poetry, prose, photographs, humor and understanding, with the problem of drugs.

"Pennsylvania Academy Moderns" is a portfolio of modern art.

"U.S. Policy in the Middle East" is a special report.

"Planning for Retirement" is a guide with answers to many common questions.

And there are more. All were printed with your taxes and for your information.

Conn Library is open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday during the summer.

Handy to Have

CONCORD volunteer firemen last week began distributing more than 160 stickers listing rescue unit telephone numbers and the number for the Concord fire department. The firemen, who purchased the stickers earlier this year, hope people will place the gum-backed labels on their telephones in case of an emergency.

Study Reveals: Wayne's Economic Picture Bright

Wayne, along with other college and university towns cross-country, is now displaying a solid economic growth profile — with construction and commerce burgeoning, despite the present recessionary squeeze.

Sp. observes Marshall Dennison, president and chief officer of PENNAMCO, Inc., a Philadelphia based national real estate financing and servicing organization. One of the nation's largest mortgage banking firms with a portfolio exceeding $7 billion, PENNAMCO is an affiliate of First Pennsylvania Corp.

A recent PENNAMCO study, according to Dennison, highlighted a variety of expansion trends in Wayne. Among those trends:

Total private nonresidential construction spending rose to $3 million at year-end 1974 — an increase of four per cent over the last five years. Private nonresidential construction for 1975 is projected at the $5 million mark.

Office construction, national ly, represented the largest share of the 1974 nonresidential building mix. Next in order of spending importance came industrial buildings, stores and merchantile building, hospitals, and educational and amusement buildings.

This area has been experiencing a six per cent cumulative rise in new apartment and private home units since 1970.

Although the single-family home market has been strong — commanding approximately 60 per cent of the residential construction mix — there has been escalating demand, much of it from the college population, for apartment rental housing as well.

Vacancy rates in single-family dwellings and apartments in Wayne remain low, averaging well below the national average of 6.1 per cent vacancy rates in owner-occupied housing and 3.2 per cent in rental units.

"Along with solid housing industry gains here," Dennison notes, "there has also been substantial population growth since 1970."

"Wayne's growing population," Dennison concludes, "contributes to new demand for housing, both rental and sales."

Road Work Continues

FRAMED by warning devices on Highway 15, workmen continue landscaping efforts at Wayne's industrial tract on the east edge of the city. Although hampered by recent rains, the workers have paved the access roads leading into the industrial tract, giving better facilities to the two industries now located there. The access road was built a few inches higher than the highway in anticipation of the highway resurfacing work expected in coming months. The access road project is being financed with a $40,000 federal grant made available to the city through the Farmers Home Administration.

'Bankruptcy is no longer a hush-hush affair'

North Platte

Dear Editor:
As a boy in Wayne I recall the raised eyebrows and a hush-hush attitude when an infrequent bankruptcy was reported. The enclosed publisher's bankruptcy listing proves a change from the time when a stigma of shame and pity surrounded a bankrupt.

Today there seems to be an increasing membership in the "Bankruptcy Club." When declared liabilities are from ten to hundreds of times the assets the citizenry realizes that easy credit is available — W. A. Lerner.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Lerner sent along a clipping from the Omaha World Herald listing recent bankruptcy filings in Nebraska. The names of a husband and wife from Wayne were among those filing for bankruptcy recently.)

'Thanks, mayor, for questioning signs'

Wayne

Dear Editor: I would like to thank our mayor, Freeman Decker, for questioning the "necessity of the many signs which restrict parking from midnight to 5 a.m." May our ambitious council originate a solution to the elimination of this "necessity."

Thanks again (from my car), mayor — Jeanie Meyer.

(Editor's Note: Mayor Decker questioned the necessity of those signs at Tuesday night's regular council meeting.)

'Blue-eyed Arabs jacking us around with gas prices?'

Wayne

Dear Editor: Just recently gasoline prices in Wayne took a big percentage increase. This increase is legal, as once a month the oil companies can pass an increased cost of production, per federal government regulations.

However, one has to marvel at how these companies and/or their retail outlets manage to raise their prices in Wayne at almost the same hour! Could it be that there is price fixing (collusion) by "blue-eyed Arabs" here in Wayne? One small consolation is that at least the prices did not stay at their artificially high level for very long.

An example is one station that went up from 49¢ per gallon to 58¢ per gallon. Within a couple of days, the price had gone to 56¢ per gallon and then shortly thereafter to 53¢ where it remains at this time. Thus, the increase (over 18 percent) did not hold up (no pun intended) at that level.

All this leads to the question: Why did the price fluctuate so much over a short period of time? If only the increased cost of production can be passed on to the ultimate consumer? The obvious answer is that the station tried to charge all that it could and found much consumer resistance. This appears to be a flagrant violation of the federal law (the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act, passed by Congress in 1973) which controls oil prices.

Of course, this unnamed station should not be singled out as the only one guilty of overcharging. It seems peculiar that on out of town and out of state trips the price for gasoline is higher here at home than elsewhere. On a recent trip of many hundreds of miles, I paid the highest price for gasoline in Wayne! This only drives business away as Wayneites are not ignorant nor are they captive customers.

This letter is not intended to criticize fair profits, as I have a liking for this, but an unfair profit is a horse of another color. It's a greedy profit and not fair to customers when a price is increased on inventory on hand (in the storage tanks) when it's discovered that the price on new supplies is going up. Such action should not be sanctioned or tolerated by John Q. Public!

Perhaps this is inherent in the oligopoly (few sellers — many buyers) of the gasoline business. If so, new competition should be urged to make free enterprise work in this area.

I'm positive that a government gasoline enterprise is not the answer (witness that large annual deficit in the Post Office), but neither is the present set-up that we have imposed upon us.

In conclusion, it's important to note that President Ford's $1 per barrel import tariff increase on imported crude oil (effective 6-1-75) is not responsible for this summer's increase in gasoline prices, as some would lead you to believe; When Ford initiated action last winter by his first $1 import tariff, it took until April to reach us here in the Midwest.

Thus, when one hears on the local radio station that "Ford's latest increased import tariff is affecting Wayne's gas prices," it makes you wonder if some individuals actually think that is true!

Really, to unload the oil, refine it and get it to us here in a matter of days of the tariff increase is not likely. According to national news sources, this will increase prices later on in July, and by 1/2 cents a gallon — not the artificially large increase posted by our local gasoline vendors.

All this makes one wonder what excuses our "Blue-Eyed Arabs" will use in the very near future. — "A Blue-Eyed American."

By Norvin Hansen

A WAYNE man is shaking his head in amazement over the workings of Medicare. It all happened like this:

The man spent considerable time and gas chasing from one doctor's office to another with a fistful of doctor and drug bills, but all he got was a lot of buck passing, since his family doctor of many years had passed away.

He then mailed the bills to the insurance company, but they were returned. He mailed them back with a more detailed letter of explanation. Weeks later a check was sent to an area doctor, who endorsed it and mailed it to the policy holder.

Thus far a total of 50 cents had been spent on postage (and who knows how many manhours). 20 cents by the insurance company, 20 cents by the policy holder and 10 cents by an area doctor.

The check finally mailed to the man, in a roundabout way, was for 20 cents.

When he opened the letter and saw how much the check was worth, he was ready to tear it up in a fit of temper. Then he thought again and considered holding it until to foul up the insurance company's bookkeeping.

project was Bill Jammer, UNL student from Laurel.

CARROLL native Alan Finn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Finn, received his two year associate degree with honors during the May commencement exercises at University of South Dakota Springfield. He was one of 52 students whose academic work qualified them for graduation with honors. His grade point average of between 3.50 and 3.74 earned him the second highest honors possible at the school, magna cum laude.

The top three winners in each of two age groups, three years to 12 and 13 to 18, will receive $100, $75 and $50 cash prizes. The fair is scheduled for Aug. 20-24 at Akad-Park in South Sioux City.

HERE'S an interesting brain teaser contributed by Cliff Dahl of Wayne: Tillye, Linda and Nita went up to some dongs in Long Beach and stayed overnight. The only room available at the hotel was $30 so they took it, making $10. Later, the clerk found he had overcharged them so he sent up the bellboy with $5 to refund them. The bellboy decided to chisel the girls so he gave each of the girls $1 and kept $2 himself. Now, then, if the room cost them $9 each, or a total of $27, and the bellboy kept the $2, that made $29. What happened to the other dollar of the original $30?
