W-C School Board to Act On 75-76 Budget Monday

Wayne-Carroll school board members are expected to approve a budget for the coming fiscal year during their regular meeting Monday night.

Members will consider for adoption a proposed budget that calls for raising some $134,360 more through local property taxes than is being raised this year.

If that budget is approved, it would mean a hike in the tax levy of "between four and five mills," according to superintendent Francis Haun.

The current school tax levy is 47.92 mills, or $47.92 on each $1,000 worth of assessed valuation.

The main reasons for the increase in the mill levy are fixed charges, which are tabulated in the budget for the first time and salary increases.

Salaries increased a total of $52,700, or about 6 1/2 per cent, over the present fiscal year, Haun said. A large portion of the fixed charges are those monies that come from the state for special education, he added. The charges total about $32,100. For the past three years the mill levy has dropped, Haun said, pointing out that the levy increase might be less than anticipated if the property valuation goes up. Figures for the 1975 property valuation are expected to be released sometime in August.

The public hearing on the proposed budget is scheduled for 8 p.m. during the board's meeting at the high school. The hearing is an opportunity for persons to comment on the budget.

140 Participate In WS Institutes

About 140 persons are combining vacation and education this month as participants of one of four international education programs offered by Wayne State College.

The British institute has 34 participants, the German institute 18 participants, the Scandinavian institute 27 participants and the Spanish institute 55 participants.

Each of the tours includes sightseeing, cultural activities and free time for those who wish to take side trips. A formal study program is included for those participants who are taking the tour for college credit.

The institutes will each last a month. Participants include students, teachers, college faculty members and area residents.

How much money—currency and coins—is in circulation in Wayne County? Is there less than there should be for the economy to be operating in normal fashion?

The supply and the flow of money have been the subject of studies and conferences that have been going on in Washington for months. Varying views have been voiced by the President, by Congress, by the Federal Reserve Board and others.

Almost all of them agree that the amount of currency in circulation has to be expanded to turn the recession around. The only questions have been by how much and by what method?

While that controversy has been going on, the U.S. Mint has been busily engaged in alleviating the shortage of coins, which has been troubling shopkeepers and others for several years.

In the past fiscal year, it reports, its plants have been going full blast, turning out no less than 11.6 billion coins of all sizes, far in excess of the previous record of 9.7 billion.

Marr: USDA's Soil Survey Can Improve Dollar Return

Wayne County farmers and ranchers can improve net dollar returns through using the county's newly published USDA's soil survey, said Arnold R. Marr, Wayne County Soil Conservation Service district conservationist.

It can assist farmers and ranchers to install conservation practices, to find out what crops will grow best and to estimate crop yields. This only touches the surface of what valuable information may be obtained from the county soil survey, Marr added.

In 1963 a soil scientists team, under the direction of Donald Kerl, began an in-depth soil inspection and evaluation. The team mapped all of the county's approximately 283,520 acres. They were responsible for providing up-to-date soil data and for replacing the 1919 Soil Survey edition.

The soil data booklets will be formally presented to county residents during hog education meetings. The meetings will be held July 16 at 8 p.m. in the Wayne auditorium and on July 17 at 8 p.m. at the Winside auditorium. Soil scientists from the University of Nebraska and the SCS will conduct the program.

This survey was made cooperatively by the SCS and NUS conservation and survey div. See MARR, page 5

Wayne School Gets $22,922 To Expand SLD Program

A Wayne developed program to help children who have difficulty in learning to read, will be made available around the nation, Nebraska congressman Charles Thone announced Tuesday.

For that program, the U.S. Office of Education has awarded a grant totaling $22,922 to the Wayne public schools. Thone said. The grant will be used to help fund the cost of sending a team of Wayne teachers to schools across the nation to help adapt the program.

The Specific Learning Disabilities program was developed under the direction of Richard Meteer, principal of Wayne's West Elementary School. It is for children who have at least normal intelligence but who have difficulty learning to read and to spell. The system combines use of the senses of sight, sound and touch to aid in learning.

The SLD program, which also involves motor development in large and fine muscle skills and curriculum modification, will be started in August in school systems in North Carolina, Texas and Iowa, with the aid of the federal grant.

Working in the three-phase program will be language disability — Marian Rennick, Mary deFreese, Mary Lou George; motor perception — Don Koenig, Paul Eaton, Marian Simpson, and curriculum modification — Carol Norcine.

Next year's plans are to start training teachers in Northeast Nebraska to adapt the SLD program in area schools, Meteer pointed out. Among the schools earmarked for the program are Winside, Emerson, Hubbard, Lyons, Bloomfield, Norfolk, Wynot, St. Helena, Monomonic, Bow Valley and Fordyce.

WH Science Teacher Chosen 'Outstanding'

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources district director Verne Mills of Wayne has been chosen Nebraska's outstanding educator in the Allis Chalmers awards program. The announcement was made last week during the Lower Elkhorn NRD Board of Directors meeting in Norfolk.

Mills, a science teacher at Wayne High School, was chosen for the award from among 24 educators across the state, one from each natural resources district. The Lower Elkhorn district encompasses Pierce, Madison, Wayne, Stanton and Cumming Counties, as well as portions of eight other counties in Northeast Nebraska.

According to Glenn Spreeman of Norfolk, assistant manager of the Lower Elkhorn NRD, Mills was chosen for the award because of the activities and programs he has initiated dealing with conservation education.

Mills will automatically be entered in national competition where he will compete with 50 other educators, one from each state, for a $1,500 grant to be used for educational purposes.

A native of Neper, Mills taught one year at Nebraska Western College in Scottsbluff and has been with the Wayne-Carroll school system for seven years. He teaches general and advanced biology classes at the high school during the school year and an environmental studies class during the summer months. He also serves as chairman of the science department.

Mills said the purpose of the environmental studies course, which has been offered at Wayne High for the past two years, is to familiarize students with their local and regional environment and to give them a look at how to preserve what's "right" and change what's "wrong."

Tuition Going Up

Free high tuition rates for non-resident students will be substantially increased for the 1975-76 school year.

Winside school district will have the biggest increase, up from $2,050 in 1974-75 to $2,750.

Other area school districts and their tuition rates: Wayne, from $2,050 to $2,250; Wakefield, $1,850 to $2,250; Laurel, $1,750 to $2,000; Norfolk, $1,350 to $1,550; Pierce, $1,550 to $1,700; Wisner-Pfizer, $1,900 to $2,200.

Wayne's city council Tuesday night will review a proposed budget for the coming year during the council's regular meeting.

The proposed budget calls for expenditures totaling $2,574,068 during the coming fiscal year, some $54,885 less than what is expected to be spent the current fiscal year.

City clerk-treasurer Bruce Mordhorst said the suggested budget, which may be altered before the council sets a public hearing date, Tuesday night, would require a small hike in the property tax from the present 24.48 mills to 24.79.

A mill levy of 24.79 is $24.79 in taxes on each $1,000 worth of assessed valuation.

Also to be discussed during Tuesday's meeting are possible rate increases in gas and electricity.

Mayor-Freeman Decker also is expected to appoint members to the newly created airport authority board.

The authority's meeting starts at 8 p.m. in the Woman's Club room at the city auditorium.

That Jingle in Your Pocket is Part of 567,000 Coins in Wayne County

How much money—currency and coins—is in circulation in Wayne County? Is there less than there should be for the economy to be operating in normal fashion?

The supply and the flow of money have been the subject of studies and conferences that have been going on in Washington for months. Varying views have been voiced by the President, by Congress, by the Federal Reserve Board and others.

Almost all of them agree that the amount of currency in circulation has to be expanded to turn the recession around. The only questions have been by how much and by what method?

While that controversy has been going on, the U.S. Mint has been busily engaged in alleviating the shortage of coins, which has been troubling shopkeepers and others for several years.

In the past fiscal year, it reports, its plants have been going full blast, turning out no less than 11.6 billion coins of all sizes, far in excess of the previous record of 9.7 billion.

Wayne County's share of that output, based upon equal distribution, is 567,000 coins, or about 54 per local resident.

It consists of one half dollar coin, 3 quarters, 5 dimes, 4 nickels and 47 pennies per capita. There is also a new one-dollar piece in circulation for every three persons. The face value of the 11.6 billion coins is listed at $54 billion. Because silver is no longer used in their manufacture, there was a vast difference—almost 94 per cent—between their face value and the cost of producing them. It netted the government a handsome profit, about $310 million.

Nationally, the face value of all coins in circulation is over $8.3 billion, according to the Mint's figures.

Wayne County's portion of this, based upon uniform distribution, is $415,000.

As for the total amount of currency of all kinds in circulation in the United States, it is close to $69 billion. This is exclusive of the stockpile of money that is held out of circulation by the Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve.

The $69 billion is equivalent to $374 for every man, woman and child in the country, from the county soil survey, Marr added.

In 1963 a soil scientists team, under the direction of Donald Kerl, began an in-depth soil inspection and evaluation. The team mapped all of the county's approximately 283,520 acres. They were responsible for providing up-to-date soil data and for replacing the 1919 Soil Survey edition.

Legion's Three-Run Rally In 7th Topples Laurel, 4-1

Wayne's Legion scored three runs in the sixth inning Monday night off left fielder Marly Hansen's triple and Bob Keating's single to drop Laurel, 4-1. The win keeps Wayne on top of the five-team Ralph Bishop League with a perfect 5-0 record. Overall, the Legion stands at 9-1-1.

Hansen's booming triple scored a pair of runs after Keating's run-scoring single broke a 1-1 deadlock in the top of the sixth. Keating drove in catcher Mike Manes who singled, advanced to second and third on a Laurel error and sacrifice. Second baseman Tyler Frevrt, who was safe on the error that advanced Manes, and Keating scored on Hansen's hit. Host Laurel took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the second when third baseman Jon Erwin doubled and later scored on second baseman Brian Johnson's run-scoring single.

Behind the strong pitching of Brad Erwin, Laurel stayed in front until the top of the fifth when Wayne knocked the game at one-all. Hansen set up Wayne's first tally after singling; stealing second and racing to third on a passed ball. A fielder's choice by shortstop Paul Mallette scored Hansen.

Wayne had pitching problems throughout the seven-inning contest. Dave Hix started on the mound but was relieved after the second frame. Catcher Mike Meyer took the mound for the first time this season and went to the seventh where he walked two. Coach Hank Overin then called on shortstop Paul Mallette to finish the game.

Meyer, Overin pointed out, got credit for the win. Mallette was credited with a save.

Not seeing action Monday night was regular pitcher Earl Overin who suffered a shoulder injury during Sunday's contest at Coleridge.

"In that game, both teams ended in a seven-run deadlock when the game was called because of a time limit. Trailing 5-4 going into the seventh, Wayne bats come out for a single and two doubles to score two runs. Another run scored on a Coleridge error.... With one away Overin smacked a single and came home on Hix's two-bagger. Manes then ripped the inning's second double to score Hix.

In the bottom of the seventh, Coleridge answered back with two runs to tie the game.

Overin, who replaced starting hurler Paul Mallette in the sixth, exited the game after two runs scored in the seventh when he was hit by a batted ball. Mallette struck out the last two Coleridge batters.

Midgets Chalks Up 6th Win

Wayne Midgets Monday night breezed past host Laurel, 10-2, for the locals' sixth win in nine games.

Scoring three runs each in the first and second frames, Wayne jumped to a 6-0 command, then added single runs in the fourth and fifth before mounting two more in the sixth for a 10-0 lead.

Winning pitcher Tyler Frevrt, who scored three runs, ripped a triple for the biggest hit of the night. Shortstop Steve Bodenstedt finished with a pair of singles in four at bats to lead Wayne hitters. Laurel's top-hitter was shortstop Brian Johnson with two singles.

Frevrt threw a four-hitter to pick up his fourth win in seven starts. Doug Thompson suffered a pulled muscle.

Winside, Emerson Girls Battle in SB District

Girls softball teams from Winside and Emerson are slated to open second-night action to night (Thursday) in the 14-team district tournament at Emerson. The tournament is for girls 18 years and under.

Wednesday night two other area teams, Wakefield and Allen, were scheduled to play at 7:30. Games also scheduled Wednesday were Hubbard-Newcastle and Norfolk-Walthill. Drawing byes were Homer and Winnebago.

The seven night tournament is scheduled to finish Tuesday at 9 p.m. with the top two teams playing for the right to represent the district in the state tournament. Time and place for the state tournament wasn't released.

Pender Blanks Allen '9', 6-0

Pender scored five runs in the seventh inning Sunday night to hand Allen Martinsburg its sixth loss in eight games.

Pender took advantage of four singles and a double plus two Allen errors in the seventh to break away from its 1-0 lead. Pender scored its first run in the top of the third.

Allen hurler Neil Blohm struck out seven.

'Doves Are Fair Game in Nebraska'

Nebraska's first dove season commissioners adopted dove regulations for 1975 on the basis of a preliminary framework, and on the basis of frameworks offered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in past years.

At the same hearing, the Commissioners adopted hunting regulations for the 1975 snipe and rail seasons. Snipe season will run from Sept. 15 through Nov. 18, with a bag limit of eight and a possession limit of 16. Rail hunting will go from Sept. 15 through Nov. 9, with bag and possession limits of 25.

The season dates, bag and possession limits of 10 and 20 birds respectively, and other regulations, will not be absolutely concrete until mid July, however. Sportsbeat

By Bob Bartlett

THE SAD thing about last Thursday's Second Guessers' meeting was the poor turnout. Only 14 attended—a far cry from the 25-35 who usually attended the weekly meetings during last school year.

Perhaps a lot of the members were on vacations. But for those who weren't, why not attend the meeting?

Second Guessers, in case some might be wondering, is a group of local and area persons drawn together to help boost Wayne State and its athletic program. Membership is open to anyone who cares to attend the weekly meetings, that begin when fall classes start at Wayne State.

As member Ken Swarts said during the meeting, some people are planning an apathetic 156th on the club because it isn't very active.

Swarts, however, wasn't trying to put down the club. He wanted members to know that now is the time to do something to erase that label. That was the purpose of Thursday's meeting.

For those who weren't present, the club is going ahead with plans to charge an annual membership fee, which includes cost of meals, the idea being to occur.

Swarts, however, wasn't trying to put down the club. He wanted members to know that now is the time to do something to erase that label. That was the purpose of Thursday's meeting.

Wakefield, both pointed out that if a person has to pay an annual fee, he probably would take more interest in the club and its functions—also attend more meetings.

Already members have decided to take on one project—raising the needed $3,050 to pay for construction of an activities sign to be located on the Wayne State campus. Purpose of the sign, which will be built near the corner of 12th and Main Streets, will be to let visitors as well as townspeople know about upcoming sports and other activities on campus.

If you have some suggestions for club projects, why not give club president Bill Workman of Wayne a ring.

AREA FOLKS won't have to go far for plenty of Fourth of July activities on Friday and this weekend.

Wakefield will be the site for a four-team Legion and four-team Midget baseball tournaments. At 9 o'clock, Wisner Midgets open action against Norfolk, Wayne and Wakefield Midgets range at 3 p.m. Championship game is at 5:30 p.m.

Legion play gets underway at 11 a.m. in Wakefield and Wisner. Wakefield and Norfolk battle at 1 p.m. Championship game is at 8 p.m.

The day's activities won't be filled with sports alone at Wakefield. Also included will be a tractor pulling contest. Three classes will include men's, powder puff and "social security" group—guess that means anyone 65 years or older. Also on the calendar is a tug-of-war contest as well as dinner, fireworks display and games for the youngsters.

Those persons interested in a good swim meet may want to head for Yankton Saturday and Sunday to watch Wayne's summer swim team compete with youngsters from around Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota.

Closer to home, Saturday the Wayne County Horse 4-H Club will hold an open charity horse show beginning at 6 p.m.

Top riders in 22 events add top scorers in the junior and senior divisions will take home the awards. It's a worthwhile event—proceeds go to help crippled children in Wayne County.

Town Team's 17-Hit Attack Blasts 2nd-Place Newcastle

Wayne exploded for 17 hits Sunday night and scored 11 runs to blast second-place Newcastle, 11-6, in Northeast Nebraska Baseball League play at Wayne.

Mike Creighton, Fritz Weible and Terry Luff each connected for three hits en route to the town team's fourth win in eight starts.

Scoring in all but one frame, Wayne mounted a 4-2 lead after the third frame and took a 6-3 command going into the sixth. Creighton led off the scoring in the opening frame when he tripled and came home on Weible's single.

Creighton's single drove in Wayne's second run in the second inning, scoring catcher Bob Nelson who had doubled and advanced to third on second baseman Roger Saul's double.

The locals put together back-to-back two-run innings in the third and fourth. A pair of runs batted in by Mic Daehnke in the third and by Luff in the fourth scored the runs. Daehnke doubled to score left fielder Kerry Jech and Luff's single drove in Weible and Jech.

After one run in the fifth scored by starting pitcher Randy Nelson, Wayne tallied three more in the sixth off four hits. Weible, Luff and Daehnke scored for a 10-4 command. In the seventh Creighton scored his second run of the night, after singing and coming home on Luff's one-bagger.

Nelson, who took the win on the mound, was relieved in the fifth by Luff.

The win moved Wayne back into third place in the nine-team Northeast Nebraska Baseball League standings. In other Sunday night action, Ponca downed Wakefield 5-2, Dakota City and Decatur did not play. League leader Homer was idle.

Gary Preston's first-inning Homer gave Wakefield a 1-0 lead. In the third, Wakefield added one more. However, in the fifth Ponca's John Kingsbury and Bob Rockwell each drove in a pair of runs en route to Wakefield's fifth loss in seven outings.

Tonight (Thursday), Wayne has a chance to close the gap on Homer when it hosts Decatur as part of the league's "challenge night." Pace-setting Homer will host second-place Newcastle. Ponca hosts Pender and Wakefield entertains Allen-Marlinsburg.

Because Dakota City only has played three games, it is not eligible to play in Thursday's mid-season playoffs.

Free Tennis Lessons Will Begin Next Week

sion. It is part of the technical assistance furnished to the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

The soil survey is divided into two parts. The first part, in a narrative format, explains the basic data. This includes facts on soil's uses for farmers, ranchers, highway departments, city planners, bankers, prospectors, homebuyers, realtors and construction engineers.

The other part is a county's soil map series that shows graphically, locations of soil types.

These soil maps and supporting data can help farmers and ranchers:

- Fit soil management practices to the soil properties.
- Determine combinations that produce the greatest yields at the least cost.
- Point out potential new or special crop prospects.
- Explain success characteristics for reclaimed land.
- Describe how much animal waste can be absorbed.

It also provides ranchers answers on range potential, range and grazing management, supplemental income prospects for wildlife and recreation activities and guidelines for conservation planning. The latter uses the survey's soil maps and soil descriptions to identify problem areas; select suitable areas for stock ponds and establish schedules for grazing and proper use of the soils.

Gotch Scores 2 Runs To Lift Allen Midgets

Runs by Bart Gotch in the seventh and ninth innings Tuesday night saved Allen Midgets from suffering their second loss when Allen came from behind to beat Newcastle, 13-12.

Gotch scored the tying run in the seventh when he walked, advanced to second on a passed ball and scored of winning pitcher Jeff Creamer's double.

In the ninth Gotch again walked, went to second and third on wild pitches before another wild pitch allowed him to score.

Creamer went to the mound in the fifth inning and finished with 11 strikeouts. Pitcher Lindy Koester started and was later replaced by Brad Chase.

Sunday night Allen, holding a 6-1 record, is slated to play Emerson.

Host Allen suffered its first loss Sunday night, 14-6 to Marlinsburg, when the area club ran into pitching problems.

Starter Brad Chase, who didn't allow any runs in the first three innings, gave up two in the fourth. That tied the game at 2-2. Catch Keith Hill then replaced Chase in the start of the fifth with Creamer.

Allen broke that tie in the bottom of the fourth with three runs. Brent Chase took first on a fielder's choice and advanced to second when teammate Todd Ellis walked to first. A double by Mark Ruback drove both home. Ruback later scored on a passed ball.

Leading 5-2, Allen soon saw the lead change hands in the top of the fifth when Marlinsburg scored five runs for a 2-5 command. In the sixth, the visitors tied the victory with six runs.

Thought for Today

By Brian McBride

"The rule for every worthwhile man is that no serious job ever shall receive less than his best thought and effort..."

William Feather

It's easy to get so busy with a host of things that "must be done" that we give them all a cursory "lick and a promise." It often seems there just isn't enough time to do our best on each task.

The errors that are thus committed, the extra work required to correct such errors, the satisfaction of a job well done... these ultimately prove that we should limit the number of serious jobs we attempt but bring to each one our very best thought and effort.

Our experience and professional competence enables us to serve a bereaved family with the sympathy and understanding which provide comfort and assurance.

Which means that $1 which is carried off somewhere else before its time will take away with it $4 or $5 in trade, wages, local taxes, bank deposits and other enrichment.

ATHLETE'S FOOT!

Contrary to belief, athlete's foot is almost never picked up. Since it is a fungus, the presence of warm, moist skin encourages growth. To help prevent athlete's foot, the skin of the feet and the webs of the toes must be kept cool and dry. Heavy socks, usually made of wool, can increase the sweating of feet and induce infection. Rubber or synthetic sole shoes may also encourage too much warmth and moisture.

LETTERS

A Toast to Mrs. Fletcher

Dear Editor

May I say cheerily, with my glass of iced tea to Shirley (Fletcher) for her great letter in Thursday's paper.

I, too, am concerned about the freedom of publishers who push booze and drugs everywhere the young kids go. The Laurel Concord area is just as bad.

There's always a kegger in progress north of Laurel for anyone who cares to attend. If the beer is purchased by parents for a special event or by a member of the alumni who thinks buying drinks is smart. So far nothing tragic has happened, but I fear for those attending that something will.

Another thing that helps rub this already sore spot is the lovely movies shown at our drive in theatre for those great car-cram nights. Big deal, not worth $3.00 and a barrel of popcorn. Don't tell me you have to show the trashy shows to get the good one.

It makes me sad to think that my children are there, but they are at times. They are old enough to know what they do, but it sure is some choice to make.

Parents now days don't really care as long as they (their children) are out of their hair and are 18 years old. So many parents say, "We just can't afford this and that." But just look in their refrigerators in the flash in their back pocket on the golf course or in the bar at the bowling alley.

This is the next generation we are talking about. I'd hate to see them take over our beautiful America. If it weren't for the beer cans along the roads, it (America) would be beautiful.

Pornography is not only on the news stands, but in literature in high school. That is another subject I could write a book on. It's time we started cleaning up our towns, country sides and the minds of our children. The Lord did not mean for them to be used in that way. Suzie Johnson.

(Editor's Note: Mrs. Fletcher's letter referred to the growing problems of drugs, alcohol and pornography in Wayne—and the lack of parental response to do anything about the situations.)

HAVE A HAPPY DAY

Letters Welcome

Letters from readers are welcome. They should be timely, brief and must contain no libelous statements. We reserve the right to edit or reject any letter.

OBSERVATIONS

What more appropriate time to seek out the nation's philosophical foundations than now, the eve of the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence?

One hundred and ninety-nine years ago this fourth day of July, the Continental Congress adopted the resolution of independence without one dissenting vote. It meant that the 13 colonies of America were united, free and independent. A new nation began its great experiment under law, a written constitution.

The successes achieved since July 4, 1776, can be traced directly to the strong foundation laid by the founding fathers and their collective expression of an extraordinary quality of thought, speech and action.

We have much to celebrate, but we must do more than that. Each generation has been called on to accept the challenge of 20 different crises, and each generation has lived up to its responsibility. There must be a re-dedication to the past, an awareness of the present and a plan for the future. We must share the same spirit and determination as those founders to solve the complex problems that face us.

We need to view this great anniversary as a time to come together and to meet the challenges of the known and the unknown as we observe the birthday, honor the spirit and begin the third century.

So from one end of this nation to the other, America is only you and me, as Walt Whitman so aptly described it.

Then, let's honor America by participating in this splendid birthday present to each of us from all of us. It will be a better place if it were done by the people from one end of the country to the other.

What can we do? Nothing sweeping and spectacular perhaps, but it is a rare community which doesn't have unresolved problems which call for diligent citizens' participation for fresh ideas, for a measure of unselfish works.

Accordingly, we will be more firmly bound to the country we inhabit. It will help assure the continuity of the philosophy of individual freedom and individual responsibility. American Historic and Cultural Society, Inc.

A Congressman speaks to the voters

Thone: Federal hospital inspection program is another unholy mess

By CHARLES THONE
First District Congressman

A new, additional federal hospital inspection program is driving up health costs and reducing availability of hospital beds. It is a prime example of the unholy mess that is the federal bureaucracy and of its bent for over regulation.

Last week, I was very encouraged by my attendance at a White House meeting called to deal with too much regulation of business and our personal lives. The meeting included President Ford, Vice President Rockefeller, the Cabinet and 24 of us representing the 535 voting members of Congress. Republicans and Democrats, liberals and conservatives, seemed to agree that some federal agencies that were intended to insure competition—use stifling it and that some regulatory bodies that were supposed to help the consumer are hurting him.

The new, additional program for inspecting hospitals is still in an experimental stage in Nebraska so far. Five hospitals have been inspected. Only one of them passed the inspection. One of them is being bagged to install new equipment in a wing that won't be used for patients when new construction is completed within a few months.

Of the first 124 hospitals inspected under this program nationally 105 didn't pass. In 20 states, every hospital inspected was deemed a failure.

Many observers believe that bureaucrats at the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare are trying to take over the task of inspecting and accrediting hospitals from a private organization, the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. This is an international organization supported by physicians, other health personnel and hospital administrators.

Hospital personnel tell me that inspections by the joint commission are geared to results. Can a hospital deliver high quality health care to its patients? Hospital personnel say that the HEW inspections are mechanical, with inspectors concerned about measuring widths of doors and dimensions of windows, rather than attempting to measure quality of patient care.

The federal inspectors are unwilling to take local situations into account, applying the same rules and regulations for a small clinic in rural Nebraska that they apply to a giant hospital in New York City.

Nebraska hospitals are now inspected as many as 14 times a year by various state and federal agencies. Many of these inspections take several days to complete. Some inspections contribute nothing to better health care, but all add to the cost of your stay in the hospital.

Sometimes the inspectors contradict one another. National Columnist James J. Kilpatrick reports that Dayton, Ohio hospital had to have plastic liners in all its wastebaskets to pass the HEW inspection but had to take the liners out to pass an inspection by the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Can we end the harassment and duplication of inspection in the hospital field and cut similar over-regulation throughout the government? I think there is cause for hope. On Wednesday, July 9th, the President will hold another meeting on the subject, this time with the commissioners of all the independent federal regulatory agencies. Legislation for reducing over-regulation has wide-spread bipartisan support in Congress.

For the future of the nation, we must turn back the trend toward the government ruling the people. As we celebrate our nation's independence, we should be mindful of words spoken nearly 50 years ago by Supreme Court Justice, Louis Brandeis. He said: "Men born to freedom are naturally alert to rebel invasion of their liberty by evil minded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachments by men of real well meaning but without understanding. In other words, if we don't watch out for the do gooders, they may do us in."

State board to study standards for schools

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN—The State Board of Education next month will consider what is known as Rule 14, which establishes the minimum standards a school must meet to get state approval.

Only school systems approved for continued legal operation by the state board are considered to be providing a program of instruction which is in compliance with the compulsory attendance laws, according to State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell.

Her staff has drafted the elements of Rule 14 after holding hearings. The state board is to make its decision on July 21.

Under the proposal, all schools will be assumed to be approved for the 1975-76 school year. Those discovered within that year to be short of the standards will then go on probation for a year.

That means that every school system will have at least two years in which to comply with the provisions, according to Mrs. Campbell.

These are some of the elements to be required, for elementary instructional programs:

- The program should be flexible enough to allow for differing student needs and teaching styles.
- Schedules should be prepared weekly.
- Reading and mathematics should be emphasized in the primary grades and should receive continued emphasis for those children with a special need in those areas.
- Each week's schedule should include attention to reading and language arts, mathematics, social studies, science, health, physical education, art and music.
- Students in kindergarten through sixth grade shouldn't be allowed to participate in athletic contests, except for annual field or play days.
- Identification should be made at least annually of children who could benefit from special education programs, but steps must be taken to protect the rights of due process for parents and guardians in the placement of such children.
- Students' basic skills should be tested for minimum performance.
- The teacher pupil ratio shouldn't exceed 30 to 1.
- Elementary teachers shall participate in at least two days of inservice training each year.
- Half of the textbooks used for regular elementary classroom instruction shall have been purchased within five years of the time they are being used and must have a copyright date of no more than five years before they were purchased.
- Library books must be marked and shelved according to a standard classification system and the children instructed in the use of a card catalogue before sixth grade.
- Each school shall have at least one set of encyclopedias not more than six years old.
- Each school shall acquire at least 25 new library books per teacher annually, up to 150 per year.
- Each school shall have and use at least one filmstrip projector, one slide projector and one tape player/recorder.
- Each school shall subscribe to at least two children's magazines—one for primary grade children and one for intermediate grade youngsters.
- Each school, or each teacher, must subscribe to at least one professional educational magazine.
- Each school shall be in a safe condition and maintain necessary medical supplies to treat minor injuries.
- Each school shall have immediate access to a telephone and each room shall have at least two double electrical wall outlets.
- Each school shall have inside lavatory and toilet facilities and a drinking fountain.
- Mrs. Campbell said there has been some controversy over some of the standards and further objections may be made.
- The commissioner made a speech last week to teachers attending the summer sessions at the University of Nebraska Lincoln. She reported on the proposed standards, discussed progress in the special education financing controversy, reviewed legislation and commented on the need for making educational opportunities more equal in Nebraska.
- In reference to the special education programs, Mrs. Campbell said progress is being made as rapidly as possible, despite a number of difficult problems. She has been involved from the day she took over the job in January with efforts to implement the program for children with physical or mental handicaps. A variety of legal issues have been involved.
- Referring to educational opportunities, Mrs. Campbell said inquiries exist both in treatment of races and in taxes.

Conference Scheduled

Education issues will be discussed at a conference to be held on Aug. 15 at the University of Nebraska Lincoln campus under the sponsorship of the Nebraska State School Boards Association.

About 800 educators, parents and students are to be invited. They will be divided into small groups to discuss priorities facing education at the elementary secondary level, the technical community college level and at the four year higher education level.

'I Messages' vs 'You Messages'
How do you get your children to do something? Do you order them to do things without reason? Or do you tell them how their actions affect you? We might call the first example a 'you message' — telling them what to do. The second example is an 'I message' — telling them why what they do upsets you.

A 'you message' such as 'Get your feet off my couch' may not have much effect on your child. An 'I message' like 'I really worry about stains on my couch when I see your muddy feet on it' tells him how you feel. It won't make him feel threatened by your power.

'I messages' will create a better understanding between you and your children. If your teenager comes home two hours late to stay out this late? These 'you messages' convey anger, which could build up a wall of hostility and put her on the defensive. Maybe you are really more worried than angry, so tell her how you really feel, and she will appreciate your feelings — even though she thinks she's old enough.

Think about what kind of messages you send to your children. Try some 'I messages' and you might notice a change in their behavior.

Vandalism at WHS Under Investigation

The Wayne County sheriff's office still is investigating vandalism sometime on June 22 at Winslow High School which resulted in about $150 worth of damage.

The most extensive damage was to a 53 by 56-inch plate glass window in the school's library which was broken. No cost was given.

According to the sheriff's office, all the doors to the school were locked when officers arrived at the scene the next day. Also damaged was a bulletin board, ceiling tile, school trophy and picture-frame glass.

Always intensely Christian, Portugal wears on its coat of arms five, blue shields, each with five "bezants," disklike designs, representing the five wounds of Christ. Traditionally, Portuguese monarchs wore no crown. It belonged to the Blessed Virgin, National Geographic says.

'Heat, Humidity Can Cause Poor Reproduction in Boars, Sows'

Heat and humidity can team up against a pork producer to cause poor reproduction in boars and sows, lower gains in feeders and pigs and death-losses on the way to market, warns the University of Nebraska-Lincoln agriculture department.

Heat stressed sows may not show signs of estrus (heat) although they may be ovulating. If they are bred, high body temperatures can cut embryo survival down. Heat stress, even for a short time, is especially damaging during the first two to three weeks of gestation, the department noted.

Short-term heat stress on the boar can reduce pregnancy rate as much as 30 per cent. Although a boar may be active, his fertility drops because the sperm forming process is hurt. Semen quality will begin to show the effects of high temperature about two to three weeks after exposure, continue to decline until four to five weeks, then return to normal by eight to nine weeks after exposure to high temperatures.

Feeders pigs will eat less when it gets too hot. When they stop eating, they stop growing, although a Missouri study showed that pigs that fell behind in weight gains when heat stressed at 86 degrees caught up in less than two weeks when temperatures returned to 73 degrees.

What can pork producers do to alleviate heat stress and its effects? Several management tips are offered by University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension veterinarian Alex Hogg and extension swine specialist Bill Ahlshede.

The two specialists explain that a pig can't sweat. He needs to lose water vapor from his nose and lungs to keep cool by evaporation. High humidity slows down that process. The pig's other defense against heat is to keep his body cool, either in shade or by wallowing in the mud.

NE Station Plans Weed Control Tour

Area farmers will have a chance to compare the working performance of soybean herbicides during a twilight weed control tour at the Northeast Station near Concord on Thursday, July 10, at 6:00 p.m.

Soybean weed control will be featured, said agronomist Russell Moormaw, pointing out that in one experiment, 30 different treatments have been applied to 15 inch row soybeans. Included in this test are several experimental herbicides, one of which is applied postemergence to remove grass-type weeds and volunteer corn.

Other four stops will include no-till corn and soybeans which have been planted into winter wheat and rye stubble. The effect here is to utilize rye and wheat for livestock grazing before using herbicides to kill them, and to plant corn or soybeans without tillage.

Also to be featured will be soil pH effects on soybean injury from herbicides like Sencor, Lexone or Lorgx.

Farmers are invited to bring samples of weed plants if they are unsure of identification.

A lunch will be served following the tour.

breath with their mouths open and then begin to pant if they're not cooled off. In more extreme cases, pigs suffering from heat stress go into a frenzy, searching frantically for a cool spot. With no relief, their circulatory system collapses and they die.

For these reasons, the three main things to provide pigs in hot and humid weather are shade, air movement and water. They recommend six to eight feet of shade per animal and a wallow for breeding stock outside. Pigs in a confinement building should have a sprinkler run a few minutes four times an hour after temperatures are above 70 degrees. Continuous sprinkling all day is not necessary. Once you've been sprinkling for several days, don't suddenly stop until the season changes, Hogg added.

Hogg said there are cases where pigs have been moved from one lot to the next, then killed themselves piling up against the fence, trying to get back to the water in the old pen. To avoid this, he suggests herding the pigs around new pens until you are sure they've found the water, or not moving them to unfamiliar surroundings during hot weather.

Feed and breed in the evening or early morning. Ahlshede and Hogg advise as another rule of thumb. Also, hot weather stress is especially hazardous to closely confined livestock, so extra precautions need to be taken in handling hogs in sorting and holding pens, trucks and rail cars.

Land of Insects

We have had a real epidemic of destructive insects this year. First, it was the glassy and black cutworm that caused considerable stand reduction in corn, then we were hit with the alfalfa weevil.

Some farmers sprayed, but in many cases the alfalfa was cut for hay without too much damage. In some cases the weevil kept the regrowth from greening so the damaged alfalfa was more susceptible to the cut worm.

Last, but certainly not least, has been the variegated cutworm that has caused real devastation in the alfalfa. These worms have kept newly mowed alfalfa from greening up as long as a month. Many farmers have sprayed with fair to excellent results. Fortunately, it seems that this worm has about run its course and most of the alfalfa fields are now greening up but in many cases the worms have cost the farmers a cutting of alfalfa.

Where Have They Gone? Farmers often ask "Where have the insects gone?" Insects do go through four stages: egg, larvae, pupa or resting stage, and adult. The larvae is the worm stage that causes the most destruction. I checked one alfalfa field near Hoskins and found 100 per cent of the cutworms in the pupa stage. The pupas are rusty brown shells about an inch long. Cutworms are in the pupa stage two to three weeks before turning into an egg laying moth and starting the whole cycle over again.

Fortunately, the first hatch is usually the destructive one so we should be out of the woods for this insect for the duration of the crop year.

I'd hate to estimate the economic loss to Wayne County farmers due to weevil, variegated and black cutworms but it is considerable.

More Insects The weather has been ideal for breeding a record hatch of mosquitoes. Larvae, slugs and snails are often encouraged by wet conditions. Several bait formulations are available for slug control. They are Bug gotta, which contains methaldehyde and can be used in vegetable gardens and slug-gotta and Arme-lug Bait can be used only on ornamental plantings.

Art Show Turns Into Reunion for Artist, Student

For one visitor, the art show called "Vanishing Nebraska Landmarks," was more than an art show. It was a reunion.

Artist Elmore McManus, Robertson of Red Cloud, brought her 30 painting exhibit here over the weekend as Wayne's major art show of Bicentennial events. One of the early visitors Friday was Mrs. Barbara Bright of Royal who had triple reason to enjoy the show. She knew the artist and many of the scenes in the paintings. Also, she is an elementary school teacher, studying at Wayne State this summer, with an art minor.

Before moving to Royal 16 years ago, Mrs. Bright and husband Jim had lived in Red Cloud, where they were close friends of the artist and her husband, the late Glen McManus.

In animated conversation, the two women toured the exhibit, chatting about old times and getting up to date on their families. Every so often Mrs. Bright recognized a scene in the paintings — the Red Cloud depot, a bridge or windmill or old stone house. Memories flooded back.

Quite a number of the "Vanishing Nebraska Landmarks" that Mrs. Robertson painted are in the Red Cloud vicinity and elsewhere in southeast Nebraska. Mrs. Bright, a native of Guide Rock, near Red Cloud, knew many of them.

But it is safe to say that most Nebraskans who viewed the paintings had seen somewhere, something like all the landmarks — most of them still existing from distant decades of Nebraska's growth.

ARTIST Elmore Robertson, left, and old friend Barbara Bright meet again at Red Cloud art show exhibit Friday through Sunday at Wayne State Fine Arts Center.

Mrs. Robertson, born and raised near Red Cloud, began painting at an early age. She describes her art as mainly self taught.

The exhibit she brought to Wayne State was commissioned by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Obitz of Red Cloud, who wanted to make it their personal Bicentennial.

Mrs. Robertson chose to portray early Nebraska in simple motif. Each painting shows a single thing, a barn, a harness, a sod house, a tractor, even the old buzz saw her father used in an outhouse too.

Her paintings, all in oil for this collection, are vibrant in color, true to reality, recalling Nebraska pioneers who scratched a living from the soil in primitive times.

Several more dates are already booked for the show in the
