Children's Theater Troupe To Perform at Wayne Park

Just by closing your eyes and saying the magic words, "Abra Kadabra, Ala Kazam," parents and youngsters in the Wayne area can travel around the world with the actors of the Magic Globe Players Children's Theater.

The four-member troupe will be visiting Wayne later this month to take the audience to such countries as Turkey, China, Denmark, Arabia, the United States and Germany in their "Legends, Fables and Fairytales From Around the World" program.

Their performance, scheduled for 4 p.m. Thursday, July 31, at Bressler Park, is being sponsored by the Wayne County Mrs. Jaycees.

The Magic Globe Players, a North Dakota based children's theater troupe, was organized in 1971 and has performed in over 200 communities to an audience of over 40,000 children and adults in North and South Dakota. The players will be visiting nine North Central states this summer.

The actors, who include teachers and college students, will present their show on a 10' x 10' portable stage so that children can sit close to the stage and become involved in the action of the stories, and occasionally help act out the plot.

The stories from different countries are presented through the use of acting, pantomime, music, puppetry and creative dramatics.

Tickets for the one-time performance are 75 cents and may be purchased on the day of the play or in advance from Mrs. Jaycees member Mrs. Bryan Reinhardt. Mrs. Jaycees will also be selling tickets in downtown Wayne on Thursday, July 24, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Cleanup Continues for Tornado Victims

It may be a year before Dale Deck is able to have his farm back to normal after a May 4th tornado damaged or destroyed almost all of Deck's possessions.

Gone are machine and hog sheds plus seven other buildings that were whipped out by one of the swirling winds that struck farms in Wayne, Stanton and Pierce Counties.

Deck's two-story house, which also was hit, sustained enough damage that the cost of repairing would about equal the price of a new house. As a result, Deck is building a new home for his mother and him.

About a mile south of the Deck farm, Chester Marotz is faced with a similar dilemma—rebuilding a large portion of his farm buildings. Major destruction included a 30 by 40 foot barn and another 39 by 72-foot building that was built just a year ago.

Despite all the losses, though, both men feel that they will survive the damage mainly because of the help of neighbors and friends.

"Thanks to our neighbors helping us, we'll make it," said Marotz as he gazed over his acreage.

There's a lot of work for a lot of people, but the job will get done, he smiled.

Another reason for Marotz's optimism is the family's determination. The Marotz family, including Chester's father, have lived on the present farm for 50 years, Chester 18 years.

Because of the family pride, Marotz figures the family will stick to the work and possibly have the majority of buildings back in shape sometime this year.

In addition to rebuilding two large buildings, Marotz will have to replace 21 of the 25 feed bunkers that were destroyed. One of the major losses he won't be able to replace are the 18 head of cattle and 20 hogs that were lost.

Marotz, who farmed about 300 head on his farm at the time of the storm, knows that it will take time to get the farm back in shape. But he also knows that he has plenty of help.

Marotz didn't give a damage estimate.

Deck figures his total losses will be about $40,000 to the house alone. About three-fourths will be covered by insurance.

At first glance, Deck said about 90 per cent of his farm was destroyed. Unlike the Marotz, Deck didn't lose any livestock.

"My first inclination was to throw in the towel," Deck said. "But I have this house... at least it's someplace."

Deck hopes to have his new one-story basement house completed by fall corn picking. With the help of friends and neighbors, the project is well on its way to being completed.

Already built is a new metal machine shed. Presently the basement and most of the frame of the new house is up, including the roof.

Meanwhile, Deck and his mother are living in a trailer home owned by Louie Willers of rural Winside. Before moving into the trailer home, Deck had been traveling from his brother's farm about a half mile southeast of his.

"Getting back on my feet couldn't have been done entirely without all the help I've received," he added.

Although the recession had a strong impact on Wayne County in the past year, as it did everywhere else, its effect on business was less severe than in many other communities.

According to figures just released—consumer spending in local retail stores for food, clothing, furniture and other commodities remained at a higher level than had been expected.

Despite the fact that the cost of goods and services rose sharply in the year, more than offsetting the gains in personal income in most families, business activity in the area was relatively good. Home buying and auto sales were exceptions.

The details are contained in a new market study made by the Standard Rate and Data Service. It shows just how the average local family spent its retail dollar in the year. Comparable data is given for other sections of the country.

In Wayne County, it shows, stores selling food and automotive equipment captured a large part of the consumer dollar. Between them, they attracted 32 per cent of all local retail business.

The outlay for food alone, in local supermarkets, butcher shops, bakeries, delicatessens and the like totaled $4,193,000, compared with the prior year's $3,499,000.

This was solely for food bought for home consumption. It does not include the amount that was spent in restaurants, lunch rooms and other eating and drinking places.

As for dealers selling automotive equipment and supplies, including cars, motorcycles, boats and trailers, they accounted for $5,733,000. The previous year's volume was $5,451,000.

Most other retail lines ended last recession, page 7.

CONSTRUCTION OF a new house on the Dale Deck farm about five miles southwest of Winside began last month.

According to Deck, the one-story basement structure should be completed by fall if weather permits.

Truck Fire Causes $200 in Damages

A truck belonging to Nebraska Public Power District of York sustained about $200 worth of damage Monday when a fire broke out in the engine compartment, according to Wayne volunteer fire chief Cliff Pinkelney.

The fire was discovered about 12:45 p.m. when the truck was headed north on the 300 block of Main. The driver, a York man, and several bystanders extinguished the blaze before fire trucks arrived.

No one was hurt.

Fifty four teachers from Nebraska, South Dakota and Iowa are on the Wayne State College campus for a three week Learning Disabilities Workshop which got underway last Thursday.

About 40 area children are also involved in the workshop.

The morning sessions are devoted to the Language Arts Practicum, and the afternoon session to the Motor Perception Practicum and Principles of Learning Disabilities.

The workshop is sponsored jointly by Wayne State College, Title III, the Wayne Public Schools and Educational Service Unit One.

The staff includes Mary deFrense, Vi Harlan, Sally McNeil, Sue Barclay, Marian Rennick and LaVah Maciejewski, all from the Wayne school system. Workshop coordinators are Richard Mettner, principal of West Elementary School, and Dorothy Ley.

Winside Fills Teaching Staff

Winside school officials have hired two new-teachers to complete the teaching staff for this fall.

They are Ronald Peck, 33, of Mapleton, Ia., and Rolene Stahl, 23, a 1975 graduate of the University of South Dakota at Vermillion.

Peck, who replaces Doug Barclay as head football and wrestling coach, will teach boys physical education as well as assist in boys track, said superintendent Don Leighton.

Barclay resigned his post in June to take a teaching position at an Illinois high school.

A native of Coleridge, Peck is a 1963 graduate of Wayne State College. In 1971 he received his master's degree in physical education from Wayne State. Peck's last teaching assignment was at Maple Valley High School in Mapleton, Ia.

Miss Stahl, who was born in Galva, Ia., will teach high school math and one business course. She is replacing Ron Haisle who resigned this summer to go into private business.

Dixon Man Credited With Saving Life

A Dixon man, Norman Jensen, has been credited with saving the life of an employee at Iowa Beef Processors.

Jensen applied a tourniquet to an employee's arm after it became entangled in a meat blender while at work on June 16. According to a doctor's report Jensen's quick action saved the employee from possibly bleeding to death.

Jensen, who has had no previous first aid experience, was awarded a plaque and certificate from IBP during a presentation on July 2.

Foundation Gets
$2,000 Memorial

A memorial gift has been donated to help defray cost of providing equipment for patient rooms at the New Providence Medical Center in Wayne, according to Ken Olds, secretary of the Wayne Hospital Foundation.

Mrs. Paul F. Siman of La Jolla, Calif., has donated $2,000 to the Foundation as a memorial to her late husband, Dr. Paul Siman, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Siman, and Siman's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Victor Siman.

Dr. Paul Siman practiced medicine in Wayne during the late 1930's. After further studies at the University of Iowa, he moved to San Diego where he practiced as an orthopedic surgeon. Siman died on Nov. 29, 1974.

Harry Siman practiced law in Winside and in Wayne until his death in 1974.

Construction Delays Change Opening Date for Hospital

Members of the Wayne Hospital Foundation board are unsure of the completion date for the new Providence Medical Center because of construction delays, said Ken Olds, Foundation secretary.

Wayne's new 30 bed hospital was expected to be completed by Aug. 1, but not all of the finishing work is completed, according to Olds.

Major reason for the delay is the hiring of a Norfolk firm in mid-January to replace Hansen Plumbing and Heating, Inc., of North Platte, Olds said. The North Platte firm's contract was terminated because of failure to complete the work. Olds added, "If work would be finished by the first of next month, Olds pointed out that the hospital has to first pass the state fire marshal's inspection before it can be opened.

Total construction costs of the hospital have been approximately $1,716,184. Pledges totaling $890,000 were received and approximately $615,000 has been received. DELAYS, page 7.

Monthly telephone rates for Northwestern Bell customers in Wayne and Winside will increase an average of 30 cents, effective today (Thursday), according to Mike Smith, Bell manager for the Wayne area.

The hike, approved this week by the Nebraska Public Service Commission, is expected to raise the company's net earnings from its Nebraska operations by $2.4 million.

Rate hikes outlined include 30 cents per month for one-party residence service; 20 cents for two-party residence service, and 20 cents for eight-party rural service.

One-party business rates in Wayne will increase 90 cents while Winside one-party business will pay 60 cents, Smith said.

In Wayne, customers now will pay $5.84 per month for one party service; $4.55 for two party service, and $4.30 for eight-party service. See PHONE RATES, page 7.

Rural Laurel Man Suffers Arm Injury In Two-Car Crash

A 52-year-old rural Laurel man, Franklin McDonald, was released from Wayne Hospital Tuesday night after suffering an arm fracture, dislocated elbow and lacerations in a two-vehicle collision shortly before noon Saturday.

According to reports, Franklin was alone when his vehicle and a car operated by Lori Stone, 17, of Coleridge, collided at a county road intersection about nine miles north and a mile west of Wayne.

Miss Stone and two other passengers, three-year-old Ryan Stone and his sister, 14-year-old Sheri Stone, were treated and released from Wayne Hospital.

Sunday morning about 1:30 a Wayne youth and an Emerson man escaped injury when their cars collided head on about one and a half miles north of Wakefield on Highway 35.

A car driven by Curtis Frey, 23, of Emerson, was northbound when Frey lost control of his car and went in front of a vehicle driven by Mark Greenwald, 18, of rural Wayne, according to investigating trooper Bill Watson of Wayne.

No one was injured. Both cars sustained extensive damage.

Winside Man Injured
While Loading Hay

A rural Winside man remains hospitalized in a Norfolk hospital after he sustained a compound leg fracture Tuesday on his farm about four and a half miles northwest of Winside.

Eldon Thies, 38, was loading hay bales about 1:45 p.m. when he slipped and fell below a hay wagon, according to reports. The wagon ran over his left leg.

This was taken to Our Lady of Lourdes Hospital by the Winside rescue unit.

Allen's Oldest Resident to Mark 100th Birthday

Allen Noe, who is believed to be Dixon County's oldest living resident, is looking forward to his weekend birthday party.

Saturday will mark her 100th birthday and Sunday residents of the town of Allen will help her celebrate with a special party at the high school auditorium.

Relatives, guests and friends are expected to gather for the 2 p.m. party at the high school. For Emma, Sunday's party will be one of many that has been held in her honor for the past several years. She'll concede, though, it will be a special party.

"Oh, yes, I look forward to it," she quipped. "I just hope I make it," she said smiling.

Despite some loss of eye sight, Emma remains in pretty good health, according to her daughters, Martha Noe and Mrs. Marvin Green. Their mother has had only three operations, they point out. The first came at age 70 when she had to have her appendix removed. Five years later, Mrs. Noe had surgery for a broken leg; 12 years later for a broken hip.

For over 40 years, Emma has lived in a small frame house on the northwest end of Allen's main street. Staying with her are her daughters, Mrs. Emma Shortt and Martha Noe, and grandson Steve Shortt.

Born on July 19, 1875 to Mr. and Mrs. Delancy (Miles) Royce, Emma lived on a farm near Irving, Ia. until eight years later when the family moved to Wakefield. In 1897 she went to Waterbury to manage Mrs. Fannie Conner's general store. In Waterbury she met her late husband, Fred. A year later they were married.

Mrs. Noe, who has lived in Dixon County since her moving to Nebraska at the turn of the century, recalls that land sold for $18 an acre in 1905 when she and her husband lived on a 40-acre farm west of Allen. Prices, she noted, are one of the biggest changes in life style for everyone.

Mrs. Noe, who came from a family of eight children, has six daughters and four sons. Altogether she has 32 grandchildren, 79 great grandchildren and four great great grandchildren.

"Raising that many children was a lot easier back then because there wasn't much going on," Mrs. Noe said. Today, she figures, raising 10 children would be a problem if parents aren't willing to give of themselves.

Mrs. Noe doesn't claim to have any secrets for her longevity. But as one daughter pointed out, "Mom was a born nurse... she could take care of herself and her family without any problems."

Mrs. Noe pointed out that keeping members of the family well-fed was one of the family laws. "Fred always believed he'd rather buy flour for food than pay for doctor bills," she smiled.

Sock's Four-Under-Par 104 Captures Wayne Open Golf Tourney Sunday

For the second straight year, the name Larry Sock appears among winners of Wayne Country Club golf tournaments.

The 20-year-old Norfolk golfer Sunday captured the club's annual Open tournament with a four-under-par 104 over 27 holes to shutout Renne Sasse of Lincoln by one stroke.

During the club's Memorial Day tournament last year, Sock also fired a 104 to grab the title.

Sock opened Sunday with nine hole rounds of 34 each for a 68. However, the University of Oklahoma student trailed Steve Sergeant of Omaha by one stroke going into the final nine. Sergeant fired rounds of 33 and 34 for 67.

A total of 53 golfers competed in the championship flight that saw very little breathing room between the top eight golfers. Ben Lantz of Council Bluffs finished only two strokes off the pace while Randy Sock, Norfolk; Don Schudt, Sioux City; Al Lewis, and Sergeant tied for fourth with 107s. Rounding out the top eight finishers was Wayne Sintek of Omaha with 109.

SPORTS

Legion Stays Atop RBL Standing

Wayne's 8-2 victory over Wisner Monday night kept the Legion atop the Ralph Bishop League standing with a perfect 6-0 record.

Strong hitting by centerfielder Gordie Cook, shortstop Paul Mallette and catcher Mike Manes powered the locals to the victory. Cook connected for a pair of singles and Mallette and Meyer each doubled and singled to drive in a total of five runs.

Wayne put together back-to-back three-run innings in the fourth and fifth frames to virtually snuff out the home team. Mallette drove in a pair of runs in the fourth on his one bagger and Meyer accounted for another run on a two-base hit in the fifth. Cook drove in two on his single.

Pitcher Gary Munter chalked up the win, giving up only five hits.

Overall, the Legion's mark stands at 15-2-1 going into Wednesday night's home tilt against Coleridge.

Sunday at Yankton, the locals lost their second game of the season when they forfeited.

Coach Hank Overin was ejected from the game for arguing with the umpire. Later, catcher Mike Meyer was told to leave the game by the umpire, before the whole team walked off the field.

Wayne was trailing 11-7 in the fourth when the game was discontinued.

Wayne, Allen Hurlers Blast Homers in Allen's 9-6 Win

It was a pitchers' night both on the mound and at the plate for Allen-Martinsburg and Wayne hurlers during Sunday night's Northeast Nebraska Baseball League clash at Allen. Allen hurler Neil Blohm smashed a two-run homer in the opening frame and Wayne's relief pitcher Roger Saul countered with a three-run circuit hit in the ninth. However, Saul's round tripper wasn't enough to close Allen's lead as the home team dropped Wayne, 9-6.

Allen, now 2-1 in second half league standings, all but put the game away with a total of seven runs in the fifth and sixth frames. Taking advantage of Wayne mental errors, Allen scored three runs in the fifth off three hits and four in the sixth off five hits.

Wayne held a brief 3-2 lead after four innings. The locals tied the score at two all at the end of two on runs by right fielder Bob Nelson and Mic Daehnke. Nelson walked and Daehnke singled before each scored on Allen miscues.

In the bottom of the fourth, center fielder Kerry Jech put his club ahead when he doubled and later scored on "shortstop" Rick Ginn's two-bagger.

The loss drops Wayne's record to 1-2.

In other NNBL action Sunday night, Homer continued its reign as the top team in the league with a 7-0 no-hitter victory over Wakefield.

Bob Jacobsen's home run and single and Jim Westergaard's two singles led Homer's 10-hit attack.

Also Sunday, Newcastle whipped Decatur 10-5, and Dakota City got by Ponca, 7-6.

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, Thursday, July 17, 1975.

Carroll Takes 2 From Verdigre

Carroll took a pair of games from Verdigre Monday night in men's softball action at Carroll. Aided by a bevy of home runs, Carroll pounced the visitors 15-9 and 14-10.

Hitting round trippers were Bob Hall, Dick Chapman, Gary Hurlburt, Delmar Eddie, Steve Jorgensen and Daryl Hahn.

Friday night Carroll chalked up another victory with a 12-10 decision over Pierce.

Tonight (Thursday) Carroll travels to Bloomfield.

Tough Going, But Fun

YOUNG Brad Moore of Wayne shuts his eyes as the water splashes in his face during the 10-and-under medley swim race against Hartington Monday night at the city municipal swimming pool. Despite Wayne's fourth dual loss Monday, 266-218, coach Scott Driscoll pointed out that his youngsters are improving. Still undefeated is the 13-14 year old girls relay team of LaVonna Sharpe, Peg Pinkelman, Cindy Lindner and Sue Proett. Double winners included Ken Daniels, Lisa Barclay, Tracy Stollenberg, Greg Noyes and Doug Marr. Joan Hochstein, Julie Kay, Penny James and Barclay planned the winning 15-17 girls relay for Wayne's other first place team entry. Saturday the locals host Wisner beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Midgets Continue Above .500 Mark

Wayne's Midgets continue to stay above the .500 mark despite spitting action against Wisner and Yankton.

Holding an 8-7 record, Wayne beat Yankton Sunday, 7-3, and lost to Wisner Monday, 4-3.

Against Yankton, the locals connected for 10 hits, including a pair of singles in two at bats for second baseman Steve Bodenstedt.

Wayne took a 5-0 lead in the opening frame off four singles, then added single runs in the second and fourth innings before capping the five inning match with two runs.

Yankton scored twice in the third and once in the fifth.

The Midgets appeared to be off to a good start against Wisner, taking a 2-1 command after one frame. Back-to-back singles by shortstop Tyler Frevert and Bodenstedt set up the locals' first two runs. Pitcher Vic Sharpe drove in one run with his booming double and third baseman Aaron Nissen's sacrifice to centerfield drove in the other run.

With the exception of Frevert's single and triple and catcher Kevin Murray's single, Wisner silenced Wayne's bats for the remainder of the contest.

The home team scored two runs in the third for a 3-2 lead and added one more run in the fourth in the five and a half inning contest.

Frevert was Wayne's top slugger with three hits in three at bats.

Wayne County Is a Leader In State's Population Loss

Wayne County is one of three Nebraska counties to show a large population loss during the period of 1970-73, according to the Census Bureau.

The population dropped almost 10 per cent to rank the county second in loss of residents. Arthur County led with a 14.5 per cent decrease in population while Kimball recorded a 9.1 per cent loss, said Duane Olsen, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension economist.

The estimates were developed from an analysis of the components of population change, Olsen said. The natural increase (births less deaths) was derived from records in state offices of vital statistics.

Net migration, he said, was estimated for each area from federal tax records from 1969-72. Other special adjustments from the 1970 population base account for immigrants, institutional inmates, college students and service people, he said.

Overall, Nebraska followed the national trend in the first three years of the decade to ward more rapid growth in rural areas than in cities, Olsen pointed out.

Non metropolitan counties increased their population by an estimated 4.2 per cent while metropolitan counties (population more than 50,000) grew 2.9 per cent on the national level from 1970-73.

Olsen said farm population on a national level appears to have remained relatively stable from 1970-73.

Farm numbers declined at an estimated one per cent rate during that period compared with a three per cent decline during the 1960's. The annual net outmigration during the 70's was the least since the 1930's.

Although counties near large cities have continued their growth, he said, they do not fully account for the increase of non-metropolitan population in the early 1970's.

The fastest growing rural counties are the retirement communities near scenic areas, he said. The two factors which support this rural growth are greater choice of jobs and the desire for a clean, quiet and safe place to live, according to Olsen.

The number of non-metropolitan jobs increased more than twice that of metropolitan jobs during the early '70's, he said.

Population increases during that period in Nebraska's two largest counties, Douglas and Lancaster, are projected to be 6.4 per cent and 7.8 per cent respectively.

Several counties adjacent to Douglas and Lancaster counties experienced large population gains also, according to the estimates. Washington, Sarpay, Cass and Seward had increases greater than 6 per cent. Dodge and Saunders had smaller gains while Saline, Gage and Otoe had losses.

The Census Bureau estimated an overall increase of 3.2 per cent for Nebraska from 1970-73. The estimate indicates that 45 counties increased population and 45 decreased.

Other large increases were registered for Dakota (10.4 per cent), Lincoln (10.4 per cent) and Gosper (8.6 per cent) counties.

"When a man realizes his littleness, his greatness can appear."
H. G. Wells

There are few things more ludicrous than a man of little talent and ability who is overly impressed by his own importance. He feels no one but himself, the world considers him as an object for pity.

Probably the first step toward greatness is the recognition of our limitations. No one is perfect. We all have deficiencies. An honest appraisal and evaluation of personal weaknesses can be a major strength, making it possible for our greatness to appear.

Budget Increase

Strikes again plague construction of NU fieldhouse

CAPITOL NEWS
LINCOLN—In 1971, the Legislature tacked another nickel onto the tax paid on cigarettes purchased in Nebraska.
 Part of the proceeds were to be used to pay for construction of a new fieldhouse for the University of Nebraska. It was to be ready for use sometime during the 1974-75 basketball season, probably about the start of the Big Eight portion of the schedule. That meant just after the first of the year in 1975.
 Construction continues on the fieldhouse. Rather, as of the middle of last week, it wasn't continuing. Union workers were staying home in protest of a nonunion contracting company.
 They had been staying home for about four weeks, throwing construction of the $12 million sports complex off schedule.

Perhaps, said UNL athletic director Bob Devaney, throwing it so far off schedule that the new arena on the state fairgrounds won't be finished in time for the opening of the Nebraska basketball season.
 The Huskers' initial home basketball game is to be Nov. 28 against Illinois. Northwestern is to visit the next night. The remainder of the nonconference schedule includes Washington, St. Mary's of California and South Carolina.
 It's a powerhouse package picked especially by coach Joe Cipriano as drawing cards for the 15,000 seat fieldhouse. "It would be a shame if we weren't in there by December," Cipriano said.
 But Devaney said that even if the Huskers did have to start the next season in the coliseum, which has served the basketball teams for five decades, they would move as soon as possible to the new quarters.

 He conceded, however, that the possibility is creating some giant problems for ticket manager Jim Pfiffner, who has 8,000 seats to fill at the coliseum and nearly twice that many in the fieldhouse.
 Asked how that will be resolved, Devaney said: "That's a good question."
 In the meantime, efforts were continuing to settle the labor dispute.
 That problem involved nonunion employees working for T&M Construction, Inc., of Lincoln. The firm had a contract for grading, paving and drainage work.
 Union members claimed T&M wasn't paying wages or providing working conditions equal to those received by union members from other companies.

 One of the unions placed what was called an "informational" picket at the gate used by the T&M employees. Although the unions said they have asked their members to work anyway, officials said members decided "as a matter of personal judgment" to stay home. That began June 13.
 Orva Metzler of Omaha, business manager for Local 571 of the Operating Engineers Union, said: "A tradesman won't go behind a picket."
 Devaney and Harley Schrader, UNL physical plant director, said they were negotiating with union and contractor representatives in an effort to get the dispute settled.
 The project has been hit before by delays, including difficulty in the early stages of construction in getting steel. At best, the first games to be played there will be a year later than the senators expected when they raised the cigarette tax in 1971.

Conference is slated
 About 35—maybe more—of Nebraska's legislators will be in Iowa's Lake Okoboji area early next month for the midwest legislative conference of the Council of State Governments.
 The state senators from Nebraska will meet with their counterparts from 14 other states to discuss such issues as medical malpractice insurance. The conference is to be held Aug. 3-6.
Hearing planned
 The Nebraska Power Review Board has scheduled a hearing at the Capitol on July 23 on an application by the Omaha Public Power District.

 OPD wants permission to build a 1,150-megawatt nuclear power generating plant near its present nuclear facility in the Fort Calhoun area. OPD serves much of eastern Nebraska.
Sculptors Named
 The Nebraska Interstate 80 Bicentennial Sculpture Corp. has named the 10 artists whose outdoor sculptures—some of them as much as 100 feet long and 30 feet high—will be placed in rest areas along 455 miles of the super highway.
 The $500,000 project has drawn national attention.
 The works of art are scheduled for official unveiling on July 4, 1976.

OBSERVATIONS

Potpourri

The government bureaucracy minds work in strange and mysterious ways... One Hot County wag claims that expenditures for the proposed Norden dam will be about one million dollars for each farm or ranch served by the resulting irrigation waters. He suggests through the Hot County Independent newspaper that each farmer or rancher be given $250,000, the dam thing be abandoned and the taxpayers be saved three-quarters of a million per farm! There must be a hole in the logic somewhere, although...
 Another government goof came to my attention yesterday... a local citizen's grandmother received a $100 tax rebate... not bad, only she died last November before the rebate structure was announced. Think of the red tape involved in straightening that one out!
 Lots of events coming up hereabouts... next on the agenda will be Winside Old Settlers Reunion Tuesday night, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Parades, dances, tractor pulling contests, variety show, band concerts, prizes galore. All kinds of good stuff. Better plan on taking in part or all of it following on Aug. 7, 10 or 11 at the Wayne County Fair.

 Final touches are being made at the new Providence Medical Center—no date has been set for its opening but hospital officials are hoping for an August dedication.
 The Wayne golfer doesn't know it but two witnesses saw him break his club during league play the other night. After the temper flare-up he looked around saw no one observing, quietly put the club (both parts) in his golf bag and strode away.
 Acting editor Bob Bartlett just looked at this copy length, eyed the hole he saved on the editorial page and told me the story about what the cavalry man said to his horse as he rode over the cliff... "Whoa, you SOB. Whoa!" —Alan Cramer.

America needs an energy day

America needs to organize an Energy Day that would have at least as much impact on our nation as did Earth Day in 1970.
 It would be hoped that Energy Day would attract all the types of people who took part in that first Earth Day—those who hate to see the earth spoiled unnecessarily, those worried about the future of their planet and those concerned with waste of irreplaceable natural resources.
 In addition to all those, Energy Day ought to get the attention of all those only interested in saving a buck.
 Nobel Prize winner Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg has said that within a few decades we will have to create a "recycle society, a society in which virtually all materials are reused indefinitely! A meaningful reclamation of waste could make a substantial contribution to our national goal of Energy Independence."
 The most obvious aspect of America's present energy crisis is the fact that we will be dependent this year on other nations for 38 per cent of our petroleum. It has been estimated that a third of the energy consumed in the United States is wasted. Since oil provides only 75 per cent of our energy, and 38 per cent of our oil is imported, we could end oil imports by stopping our waste of energy.
 An obvious answer to our energy crisis is the full development and utilization of other energy sources, but there are other ways to reduce our need for imports. In my opinion, conservation must be given top priority. For example, if we recycled all the aluminum we waste, we could eliminate all oil imports two days per year. It takes only 5 per cent as much energy to convert aluminum waste to ingots as it takes to make aluminum originally.

 If all the combustible trash that is now buried or burned just to get rid of it were used to create energy, we could end our oil imports for 28 days.
 If we could reclaim the iron, steel and glass we are now throwing away, this would eliminate another three days of oil imports per year.
 Ending our waste of energy would do more than end our dependence on foreign oil. It would extend the number of years when petroleum will be available in the world. Recycling would reduce the amount of irreplaceable minerals being taken out of the earth forever. It would cut down on the number of trees we fell each year.
 Cost of moving our trash is now rising alarmingly. It is estimated that trash handling cost the nation $2.4 billion in 1971. If we don't change our ways, it will cost us $3.7 billion by 1980 and $4.4 billion by 1985. If we devise adequate steps for recycling wastes that can be reclaimed and burned the remainder for energy, we can undoubtedly keep trash handling cost from rising. It might even be reduced.
 Conservation must become a way of life with us. To stir millions of citizens to action in conserving energy — to mobilize public opinion so that legislators will create laws that give incentives for recycling and other forms of conservation — we need an event that will act as a catalyst. Therefore, I will introduce a Congressional resolution to designate Nov. 26, 1975 — the day before Thanksgiving — as Energy Day, a time when Americans will be thankful for their natural resources and mindful of how precious they are. — Nebraska Congressman Charles Thone.

Manager's actions spoiled afternoon

Dear Editor,
 This past Saturday a friend and I decided to play a round of golf. As the Wayne course was being prepared for the upcoming tournament on Sunday, we decided Wakefield would be a fun course to play.
 It is unfortunate that an enjoyable round of golf would have to be shattered by a verbal attack by the manager. Upon completing 18 holes, we were returning a golf car when, to our complete surprise, we were accused of playing extra holes.
 As we are certainly not experts in golf (I play about one round per year), and it was getting late and mosquitoes were becoming predominant, it is absurd to think we would be so attacked. I sincerely hope that this is not indicative of the fine hospitality I have associated with Wakefield in the past.
 Through this letter I hope to inform the management that some people are honest and that outrages as that displayed Saturday afternoon accomplish nothing, except create tainted images of the business and community. —Michael Jones

'Abuse of food stamps is hurting agriculture'

By M.M. VAN KIRK
 Director of Information
 Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation
 The federal food stamp program is one of hundreds of federal programs which are out of hand and whose benefits to the people they are supposed to help are highly questionable.
 Some 20 million Americans today receive food stamps and the number may soon be greater because of liberalization of laws and regulations which qualify more and more people as eligible recipients.
 A full page advertisement appeared in a leading Nebraska newspaper recently plugging the sale of a book which the authors admonish families "earning up to $16,000 per year" to use as a guide to qualify for participation in the food stamp program.
 One of the advice was that such families could save several thousands of dollars annually on their grocery bills to use for many things they have always wanted. And readers were told that this isn't welfare but simply a return of their tax dollars in which they are entitled anyway. It is all a part of the philosophy that continues to grow that government owes everybody such things as food, shelter, medical care, etc., whether one expends any effort to help himself or not. Nobody wants to see anyone go hungry in this nation of ours or to be deprived of the necessities of life. Government does have some responsibilities in these matters. But practical people who know that the food stamp program as it is now operating has gone beyond the bounds of good sense. Persons in real need are being shorted while benefits are being extended to persons reading guide books on how they can cut their family food bills so they can buy more automobiles, new homes, college educations for their children, etc. It's one of the reasons why the federal government anticipates a $100 billion deficit in the next two years and why inflation is robbing low and middle income families.

 One has only to stand in line at a supermarket checkout counter and watch the cashing of food stamps to recognize that much of the food stamp program benefits are not going to truly needy, hungry people.
 The food stamp program has a long history. From 1939 to 1943 an experimental federal food stamp program assisted 11 million Americans at a four-year cost of about $240 million. Emphasis was on distribution of "surplus" food stocks which the federal government had acquired in its agricultural support program. This program was dropped during World War II when there were jobs for everyone and the economy was at a wartime peak.
 In 1961 a new "experimental" program was authorized. By 1964, about 350,000 people in 22 states were receiving food stamps under the program. In that year, Congress authorized a permanent program and appropriated $35 million to fund it. By 1970 the appropriation had risen to $610 million as the number of eligible recipients steadily increased. Today, the figure is $5 billion per year, nearly one-half of the budget of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. If the trend continues, instead of 10 per cent of the U.S. population participating, perhaps 25 per cent or more will be relying on the food stamp program to supplement their incomes.
 One of the reasons American agriculture is in economic trouble is that government social and economic planners backed by politicians looking for votes continue to foster the idea that food must be cheap so that more and more of the family income can be spent on all the modern trappings of an affluent society. The food stamp program is being used, not to provide food for hungry families as it was intended, but to supplement the incomes of millions of Americans who have other priorities for their spending.

 If the food stamp program and the economic health of the country are to be saved, then some changes must be made and sooner than most people realize.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Jocelyn Smith

Use the Right Canner
When canning fruits and vegetables, heat them long enough so the internal temperature of the food gets high enough to stop growth of enzymes and destroys spoilage organisms. The kind of canner you use to destroy spoilage organisms depends on the kind of food you're processing.

For fruits, high acid tomatoes and pickled vegetables, use a boiling water bath canner. Foods with acid can be safely processed in boiling water.

For all common vegetables including low acid tomatoes, use a steam pressure canner. To safely process low-acid foods in a reasonable length of time it takes a temperature higher than that of boiling water. The boiling water bath method is not recommended for processing low acid foods.

If you don't have a pressure canner available, a pressure saucepan equipped with an accurate indicator or gauge for controlling pressure at 10 pounds (240 degrees F.) may be used as a steam pressure canner for vegetables in pint jars. If you use a pressure saucepan, add 20 minutes to the processing time given for the pressure canner.

Don't mistake pressure canner processing time for water bath processing time. Under processing can cause jar lids that have sealed to unseal and allow food spoilage.

Never can in the oven. The temperature of the food in the jars during processing does not get high enough to insure bacteria destruction. You also risk the chance of jars exploding when using the oven to can.

For more information on home canning of fruits and vegetables, request bulletin EC 70 925 from Jocelyn Smith, Northeast Station, near Concord.

Tomato Blight Control
Leaf blight always causes a lot of problems when growing tomatoes. Zineb, maneb or copper-containing compounds such as Bordeaux mixture, will effectively control blight when they are applied before the disease gets a good start, and if they are reapplied at 10-14 day intervals during the growing season.

It is necessary that the spray material thoroughly wets the plants for good control. You can do this by adding a wetting agent to the spray solution. Also, add enough household detergent so the spray solution readily spreads over the leaf surfaces.

The disease causes small round spots which are noticeable when the leaf is in the process of yellowing and dying. These spots are about an eighth of an inch in diameter and have ash-gray centers. Tiny black dots may be seen in the center of the spots.

When the disease is allowed to develop until there are a lot of dead leaves, it is then very difficult to control because of the large number of spores being produced in the dead tissue. It is very important to set the spray schedule before the plants become infested.

Knudsen: Now Is the Best Time for Soil Samples

Now is the time to take soil samples of land that will be seeded for late summer or fall crops, according to Delno Knudsen, extension agronomist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. "Top yields of wheat and good stands of fall-seeded grass or alfalfa are more likely if soil samples are taken and tested this summer," said Knudsen. "The samples will determine needed amounts of fertilizer and lime," he added.

Plowlayer samples should be tested for late summer alfalfa or grass seeding. Knudsen said this is the best way to determine whether phosphorus or lime are needed. He said lime should be incorporated well ahead of legume seedings. Knudsen said land that will be seeded to wheat is usually open now and "you may want to obtain subsurface samples as well as plowlayer samples." A residual nitrate test can be made to determine nitrogen needs, he added. The subsurface sample should be taken from where the topsoil sample ends to a depth of at least 24 inches. A second subsurface sample for 24 to 36 or more inches is even better. Both surface and subsurface samples are necessary to determine the amount of available nitrogen in the soil to be added.

Pastures can be sampled in the summer and the same is true for established stands of alfalfa and other hay. Knudsen pointed out that a good time to pull a sample is right after taking a hay crop. "Usually fertilizer would not be applied until fall except for irrigated pastures. However, if the soil test is made now, the fertilizer recommendations will be at hand when needed.

Large amounts of fertilizer, especially nitrogen and phosphorus, are required for irrigated pastures. Soil tests can be taken also to determine the amount of available nitrogen in the soil to be added.

Farmers Urged to Comment On Grain, Wheat Programs

Area farmers and interested persons have until Aug. 4 to send in their written comments and proposals on the U.S. Department of Agriculture 1976 feed grain and wheat programs.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz proposes to determine and issue regulations relative to

The National feed grain allotment Butz announced on April 10 that the 1976 wheat allotment would be 61.6 million acres. The Secretary is required to announce the wheat allotment by April 15 of each year for the crop to be harvested in the next calendar year. For feed grain the determination for the 1976 crops must be announced by Dec. 31, 1975.

Whether there should be a set aside requirement for feed grains and wheat for the 1976 crops and, if so, the extent of such requirement.

Whether there should be provision for additional diversion for the 1976 crops and, if so, the extent of such diversion and payment rate therefor. The loan rate for the 1976 crop of feed grains and wheat, including commodity eligibility, storage requirements and loan maturity dates.

Other related provisions necessary to carry out the loan and purchase program and the set aside program.

Written comments should be sent to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Restraint Is Best Practice For Summer Lawn Care

As summer approaches with daily temperatures shooting past 80 degrees Fahrenheit and nightly temperatures hovering around 70 degrees, the quality and performance of most turf in Nebraska begins to decline.

Most of the home lawns are cool season turfgrass such as Kentucky bluegrass, which prefers soil temperatures between 60 to 70 degrees for optimum shoot growth. So as the daily temperatures climb into the 80's and beyond, a natural decline or high temperature growth stoppage is experienced by these species, according to Dr. Robert Shearman, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension horticulturist.

What can be done to improve turfgrass growth during high temperature periods?

A few specific management practices can enhance turfgrass growing conditions during hot months. However, the best rule of thumb is to practice restraint, Shearman said.

Most of the management needed should be done in the spring and fall. Kentucky bluegrasses should not be over fertilized from late June to mid August. Excessive fertilization now increases the grass plants' susceptibility to high temperature injury and drought stress.

If fertilization is necessary during warm months, use only light applications that aid in color retention but do not stimulate excessive growth. Iron can be used to supplement nitrogen for improved turfgrass color.

Proper mowing height and frequency can be one of the most useful management tools during the warm summer weather. Kentucky bluegrass generally performs best at a mowing height of one and a half to two inches, during spring and fall growing periods. In early to mid June, this mowing height should be raised to two to two and a half inches. This added height will help insulate the growing point of the turfgrass which is located near the soil surface. In late August, the mowing should again be returned to one and a half to two inches, he noted.

The mowing frequency is dictated by the growth rate of the turfgrass. As a rule, no more than one-third of top growth should be removed with any mowing. An adequate mowing frequency will stimulate the turf to maintain good density and will give the lawn a well-maintained appearance.

Remember—the more fertilizer and water, the more frequently the turf will need mowing.

You probably will have to help nature along when it comes to watering needs: About one to two inches of water per week

Tractor Program Also to Feature Tips For the Consumer

Food preservation tips, energy conservation and careers in home economics give a sampling of the consumer program planned for the 1975 Tractor Power and Safety Day on Thursday, July 24, at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Field Laboratory near Mead.

Dr. Roberta Sward, associate director of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and one of the Tractor Day participants, said the consumer program should give visitors an opportunity to talk informally with home economists from the NU College of Home Economics and the Extension Service.

Dr. Hazel Anthony, dean of the NU College of Home Economics, will be on hand to discuss current programs and consumer offerings in the college. She also will show slides of the new home economics building on the East Campus.

Energy use and conservation is one of the main focuses of Tractor Day. One of the consumer exhibits will illustrate the heating power of solar energy, as well as demonstrate its effect on textiles in the home such as draperies and carpeting.

Another consumer exhibit will show examples of how clothing can save an energy conservation by insulating the body.

can also be checked if a subsurface sample is taken," said Knudsen. Problem areas in crops already growing can also be sampled now, according to Knudsen. If the crop in part of a field is not doing well, this area can be sampled while it is well defined by abnormal growth or color.

Knudsen said it is advisable to sample the soil in area where the crop appears to be normal in addition to the problem area. He said this provides a comparison of results which is often helpful in diagnosing a problem. "We might not be able to help this year's crop, but we can often tell what to do next year to avoid the problem again."

It is always important to take a representative sample. Cores taken from 10 to 20 places are necessary for each sample. He pointed out that five to 10 cores are usually adequate for subsurface samples. Each sample should represent a uniform soil area and different soils should not be mixed.

Knudsen said soil sampling forms and boxes are available at county agents' offices. New subsurface forms and boxes are also available from county extension offices.
