Wayne County 4-H Lass Wins Dairy Queen Title

Rhonda Kniesche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kniesche of rural Wayne, was crowned 4-H Dairy Queen at Monday's district dairy show at South Sioux City.

Miss Kniesche, a member of the Wayne County Hi-Raters 4-H Club, is now eligible to compete for the Ak-Sar-Ben Dairy Queen crown at the organization's livestock show this fall.

Another Hi-Rater, Kris Anderson, won a first-place trophy in the showmanship competition at the district show. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson of rural Wayne.

One hundred and twenty 4-Hers from seven counties in Nebraska, three counties in Iowa and one county in South Dakota competed in this contest. Wayne County had the largest single county delegation with 25 4-H'ers.

Purple ribbon winners in Holstein breed competition, were Julie Sprouls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sprouls, Wayne in purebred senior calf and Jay Langemeier, son of Mr. See QUEEN, page 6.

Bond Issue Is Approved

School District 57 voters cast ballots Tuesday unanimously approving a $75,000 bond issue to finance a new schoolhouse, Wayne county clerk Norris Weible said.

A total of 101 voters out of a possible 185 showed up at the voting booths in the old District 57 school, four miles south and one mile west of Wayne.

The unanimous vote came as no surprise to school board members. Through a petition drive, the present District 57 was formed by combining eight former school districts. Over 90 per cent of the voters contacted during the drive indicated they were in favor of the bond issue.

The school board and district building committee had enough faith in the response to the petition to authorize an $8,000 down payment so construction could begin before the election, according to building committee chairman Larry Nichols.

Nichols said the early construction was initiated because of a desire to have the school ready in time for the approaching fall term.

All-Girl Judging

Team to Represent County at Fair

For the first time in Wayne County history an all-girl 4-H dairy judging team will represent the county at the Nebraska State Fair.

Selected to the judging team this week were Diane Puls, Kris Anderson, Cindy Bull and Rhonda Kniesche.

Diane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Puls, Hoskins; Kris is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, Wayne; Cindy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldron Bull, Wayne, and Rhonda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kniesche, Wayne.

The four were chosen on the basis of total points accumulated during Monday's district dairy judging contest at Sioux City and the Teen Supreme judging contest held this month. In addition, the judges meet the 14 or older age requirements, said Wayne County agent Don Spitz.

Also announced this week was the selection of Wayne County's livestock judging team, which also will compete in the State Fair.

Making up the quartet are Les Thomson, Dwight Anderson, Steve Gramlich and Mike Rethwisch.

The four also were selected on total points accumulated during the district livestock judging at Lori Lee farms and the Teen Supreme judging contest, both held this month.

Parents of the 4-H'ers are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomson, Wakefield; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson, Laurel; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gramlich, Carroll, and Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Rethwisch, Wayne.

Rains Help Relieve Dryland Problems

Rainfall Tuesday night gave some relief to heat-stricken corn crops in Wayne County but a general soaking rain of about two inches is needed, according to Wayne County agricultural agent Don Spitzer.

"The shower Tuesday night gives us a little more breathing space," Spitzer said. "And the cooler weather helps, but we still need a couple inches to really soak things up."

Wayne received .58 of an inch, according to the Norfolk weather office. Other amounts reported included Pilger, .66; Winside, 1.06 and Stanton, .75.

Northeast Nebraska missed the heavier rains received elsewhere. According to a weather service spokesman heavy rains fell mostly south of the Elkhorn River. West Point got 3.72 inches, the Creston-Howells area got between 2 and 2.5 inches and the weather service had an unofficial report of from 4 to 6 inches, nine miles south of Stanton.

Rain reported over the weekend included Wayne, .45; Winside, 1.06; Pilger, .76 and Stanton, 1.26.

Spitzer said before the Tuesday night shower that dryland crops he had observed were generally under stress.

He said Wednesday morning that the shower helped, but more moisture is needed. "We're entering the critical silking and tasseling period. Corn can use from three to four hundredths of an inch per day."

Cooler temperatures are also buying time for dryland corn, Spitzer said. "A couple of days with temperatures in the mid-90's and dry winds would really hurt."

Irrigated corn hasn't suffered as much this year as it did during last year's drought, according to Spitzer. "We haven't had the problem with farmers not being able to get over the field in time, like we did last year. I've even noticed some outfits shut down."

Beans and grain sorghum are apparently holding up well for now. Spitzer said the critical period for these crops will probably come in about mid-August.

Rainfall has actually been above average this year because of abnormally heavy showers in June. Wayne weather observer Pat Gross recorded rainfall on 14 of the first 25 days in June, but from then until last week-end, only trace amounts were recorded.

"Crops were starting to show stress, according to county ASCS director Ray Butts. He said Monday, after observing fields in the eastern half of Wayne County, that dryland corn was starting to look "white and droopy."

No figures for subsoil and top-soil moisture content were available but Wayne Soil Conservation Service officer Arnold Marr said Tuesday morning that top-soil he had seen looked dry. "There's still moisture in the subsoil," he said. "But it's down far enough that plant roots can't use it quickly."

Dog Days Offers Early Shopping

Shoppers in Wayne will be able to take advantage of reduced prices on summer items during Saturday's annual Chamber of Commerce Dog Days promotion.

Chairman of the Chamber's retail committee Gene Cornett, who is in charge of the promotion, said the suggestion hours for the sidewalk sale are 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Merchants will have booths set up in front of their stores displaying shirts, shoes, dresses and other items of summer merchandise for sale.

"This is the time of year when merchants are getting ready for fall and need space," Cornett said. "There should be some good buys on summer items and I would advise anyone planning to shop to get there by noon."

Cornett said he expects shoppers to start pouring into Wayne as early as 6 a.m. Saturday if the trend set in past Dog Days promotions is followed.

Post Office to Get Facelift

Bids are being sought for modernization and maintenance work on Wayne post office, Congressman Charles Thone announced Tuesday.

The planned work includes installing a new service counter and lighting, replacing tile in the money order room, carpeting of the post master's office and repairing the rental box area.

Also planned are roof repairs, resting the stone coping around the top of the building, chalking and water proofing the exterior wall, and painting the interior walls and exterior trim.

Bids also will include installation of a doorway to be built on the south lobby wall. The new doorway will allow postal employees to enter the work area without having to use the door to the post master's office, Thone said.

Bids for the work should be received by Aug. 5 at Mission, Kan. For more information contact Mrs. Linda Kline, design and construction, U.S. Postal Service, room 918, 5700 Broadmoor, Mission, Kan.

Driver Killed in Collision Near Wakefield

A Fremont man was killed and a Hoskins man was injured in a two-vehicle collision Monday on Highway 9 about 5 and a half miles north of Wakefield.

Dead is 36-year-old Robert Hankin, who was driving a gasoline transport south on Highway 9 when he lost control of his vehicle and struck a northbound truck operated by David Behmer, 20, of rural Hoskins, according to investigating trooper David Headley of Wayne.

Hankin was dead on arrival at Wakefield Community Hospital at Headley said.

Behmer, who was transferred Tuesday from Wakefield to a Norfolk hospital, is in satisfactory condition after suffering a head concussion, multiple lacerations and multiple fractures, according to a Wakefield physician.

Going to State

Two Wayne County 4-H'ers from Hoskins, Shirley Kleensang and Marilyn Strate, will make up the county's second demonstration team to compete at the State Fair.

The pair were among other winners named during last week's home economics contest at the Villa Wayne. However, their names were inadvertently omitted from the county agent's list of winners. They will give a demonstration on "Hints for Splints," a first aide project.

Parents of the 4-H'ers are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kleensang and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Strate.

Also going to the state fair are the demonstration team of Lesli Gruenke and Susan Rethwisch, and individual winners Anita Sandahl and Kris Anderson.

School Rule 'No Problem' For Local Rural Districts

Outhouses are out, at least for Nebraska schools, but that shouldn't present any major problems for Wayne County schools, according to county superintendent Fred Rickers.

Rickers said all schools in Wayne County should be able to comply with Rule 14, a directive approved by the State Board of Education Monday.

The ruling basically affects Class I school districts, including 17 districts presently organized in Wayne County.

The rule directs that schools must have running water and flush or chemical type toilets. Rickers said all but three of the rural Wayne County schools meet these standards now and those three schools will probably have wells and indoor plumbing within a year.

Schools must also have a library which includes 25 volumes per teacher up to 150 volumes, Rickers said and all county schools meet that standard.

A previous directive required 300 volumes in each Class I school. "Very few of our schools have 300 volumes," Rickers said. "But we always get books from the city and college libraries on a rotating basis. It's been my experience that more interest is shown when the students know the books are going to be there for only two weeks."

Encyclopedias sets no more than six-years-old are also required. "There are a couple of districts that don't meet that standard now," Rickers added, "but they have budgeted for new

Miss Nebraska to Perform Today at Settlers Reunion

Miss Nebraska for 1974, Sharon Sue Pelc, will be the honored guest today (Thursday) during the final day of Winside's three-day Old Settlers Reunion.

Miss Pelc will be honored at the Bicentennial grand parade at 11 a.m. About 2:15 p.m. she will present her ventriloquism act at the park grandstand.

Several other events are scheduled between Miss Pelc's two appearances. The Wayne Liberty Belles drill team will march at 12:30, followed by a horse-shoe pitching tournament and the Winside High School band concert, both at 1 p.m.

The Starline baton twirling team will perform at 1:30, the same time the whisker judging contest begins. Prizes will be awarded in three categories, best mustache, sideburns and muttonchops, whitest beard and stiffest beard.

A barbershop quartet will harmonize at 3 p.m. The next event begins at 6:30 when volunteer firemen from Wakefield, Pierce, Wayne, Hoskins, Carroll and Winside meet for their annual water fight.

Musical entertainment will continue throughout the evening, starting with the Battle Creek Booster Band concert at 8.

Anyone with a yen for dancing will be two bands to choose from. "The Jokers," will play for a teen dance at the town auditorium, from 9 p.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Clem Appleknocker joins the "Young Country" band for a street dance from 9 to 1.

The Steelman Brothers Carnival will finish its three-night stand with the conclusion of the reunion.

Wayne County Students Bound for College Face Higher Costs

Residents of Wayne County who have sons and daughters bound for college this fall are finding, not surprisingly, that it will take more money than it did last year.

In general, their costs will be 6 to 8 per cent higher than before, according to a survey of 2,400 colleges and universities throughout the country.

Many parents, especially those with two offspring going to college at the same time, find themselves in a financial bind as a result.

This year, because of the number of Wayne County students involved and because of the higher rates, local families are being faced with overall costs estimated at approximately $1,343,000.

The facts and figures on college enrollments and costs are based upon data compiled by the College Entrance Examination Board, the Commerce Clearing House and others.

They show that it now takes a total of $4,391, on average, to send a youngster to a four-year private college. This compares with $4,039 in 1974.

At four-year public colleges the average cost has reached $2,679, from the previous level of $2,400. Two-year institutions have gone up proportionately.

Included in the total costs are tuition, fees, transportation, room and board and miscellaneous expenses, including books. The tab is considerably less for those who commute to college.

At private institutions the biggest item is tuition and fees, which have risen to an average of $2,240. Room and board is next in line, $1,302.

BROTHERS Randy and David Ritze used their marksmanship skill Tuesday night to collect a handful of prizes during the nickel toss at the first night of Winside's Old Settlers Nicks. Sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ritze of Winside, the boys were a part of a good-size crowd which took part in the activities. For Randy, top, dropping a coin in a glass was just a matter of a quick toss. Meanwhile, David used a little concentration before attempting to win a glass. SPEAKING OF PEOPLE

A Century of Memories Recalled at Party

Allen's oldest resident has lived to see 20 Presidents serve in the White House and has traveled in just about everything from horse and buggy to such cars as a 1916 Model T Ford, a seven-passenger Studebaker, an Oakland, a Paige and a Star.

Yes, Mrs. Emma Noe has seen a lot and done a lot in the last 100 years, and friends and relatives helped her recall those years at a birthday party Sunday afternoon at the Allen High School auditorium.

Mrs. Noe, who is also believed to be Dixon County's oldest living resident, marked her 100th birthday Saturday. Nearly 250 guests, including all 10 of her children, gathered at the open house event Sunday in honor of the occasion.

Margaret Shortt of Lincoln registered guests and Mrs. Gaylord Strivens of Norfolk was in charge of birthday cards. Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Noe of Meila, Idaho.

The cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Allen Prescott of Dixon, was cut and served by Mrs. Melvin Jones of Allen and Mrs. Kenneth Hamm of Fremont. Mrs. Emma Shortt of Allen poured and Mrs. Gaylord Strivens and Mrs. Mike Malone of Minneapolis served punch.

Among those assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. Keith Noe of Lincoln, Mrs. Marvin Green of Allen, Mrs. Oliver Noe and Mrs. Leslie Noe, both of Dixon, and Mrs. Lynette McCright of Minneapolis.

Oliver Noe of Dixon was master of ceremonies for the afternoon program. Great granddaughter Deb Lundahl of Wakefield sang "Mother" and Grace Green of Allen read "What is a Mother?" "Mothers Garden of Memories" was read by Leslie Noe of Dixon.

Emma Elvira Royce was born to Mr. and Mrs. Delancy (Allies) Royce on July 19, 1875 at Milling, Ia., the sixth in a family of eight.

Her father's family came to Connecticut from England in 1643 and built a house at Wallingford, Conn. The house, later named Royce House or Washington Elms after the town gave a farewell for General George Washington at the beginning of the Revolutionary War, stayed in the family until recent years when it was turned over to the Choate School Foundation.

Mrs. Noe has lived to see 20 men serve in the White House and recalls three presidential assassinations, hearing first of President James Garfield's death during a Fourth of July celebration at Delle Plaine, Ia., when she was six years old.

She attended high school at Toledo, Ia., and planned to become a teacher until a bout with scarlet fever altered her plans.

In 1897 her family moved to Wakefield and Emma followed the following year. In 1897 she went to Waterbury to manage Mrs. Fannie Conner's General Store. There she met Fred Noe, a former teacher who was farming at the time. They were married April 6, 1898 at her parents' home five miles north-east of Wakefield.

Noes started farming on the Charles Chase farm south of Waterbury. They resided on several farms around Allen and Dixon until 1942 when they moved into Allen. The couple celebrated their 49th wedding anniversary shortly before Noe's death in April of 1947.

Mrs. Noe has been a member of the Methodist Church for 85 years, having helped organize the Epworth League at Wakefield, and was a Sunday school teacher for many years.

For over 40 years, Mrs. Noe has lived in her own home at Allen with two of her daughters, Martha Noe and Mrs. Emma Shortt, and a grandson, Steve Shortt.

Her children are Martha Noe, Mrs. Arthur (Florence) Malcom, Mrs. Emma Shortt and Mrs. Malvin (Grace) Green, all of Allen; Mrs. Rex (Mary) Miller of El Centro, Calif.; Mrs. Fletcher (Esther) Brandt of Creighton; Ralph of Meila, Idaho, and Robert, Oliver and Leslie, all of Dixon. There are 32 grandchildren, 79 great grandchildren and four great great grandchildren.

Following the afternoon program Sunday, a Corsage for Missions was presented by the Allen United Methodist Women and devotions were given by the Rev. K. Waylon Brown, pastor.

"God Has Not Promised" was sung by grandsons Victor Green and the Rev. Roger Green. Accompanists for the program were Mrs. Ray White and Grace Green.

Among the congratulatory messages received by Mrs. Noe are those from President and Mrs. Gerald Ford and Nebraska's governor, J. James Exon making Mrs. Noe an admiral in the Great Navy of the State of Nebraska.

FAMILY NIGHT — WHO HAS TIME?

With all the school activities, sports, dates, parents working, teenagers working and so on and on, how often does your family all spend an evening together? Or a Saturday together?

At first you might say, "Oh, we're home a lot." But if you really think about it, perhaps you're not at home a lot. Families are spending less and less time together.

Maybe we are getting our priorities mixed up. Is that softball game really more important than Janie's birthday? Is that extra night at work

Eaton's 3-Hit Pitching Halts Wayne

Wakefield posted its first win in the second-half of the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League Sunday night with a 4-2 clipping of host Wayne.

Behind Rob Eaton's three-hit pitching, the visitors shutout the locals' major scoring threats in the fourth and seventh frames when Wayne had runners in scoring position.

After scoring one run in the fourth to trail 3-2, Wayne's center fielder Mike Creighton was left stranded at third base when third baseman Terry Lutt flew out to center field for the final out of the frame. In the seventh, the lower team had players on first and third when Eaton struck out his 12th batter for the third out. Eaton finished with 15 strikeouts.

Wakefield, now 1-3, jumped to a 1-0 lead in the opening frame when center fielder Doug Fischer singled, stole second and scored on Eaton's one-bagger. The visitors scored twice in the third for a 3-0 command. Fischer walked and Eaton singled to set up the two runs. After stealing second Fischer came home on Roger Lueth's sacrifice. Eaton later scored on Rich Kilne's double.

In the bottom of the third, right fielder Bob Nelson scored Wayne's first run after walking and coming home on left fielder Kerry Jech's fielder's choice.

Wayne whittled the lead to one in the fourth when pitcher Roger Saul was hit by a pitched ball, advanced on a wild throw and scored on second baseman Randy Nelson's flyout to center field.

In the eighth, Lueth doubled and scored on left fielder Kip Bressler's two-bagger for the game's final scoring.

Wayne, also holding a 1-3 record in the standings, is idle tonight (Thursday), but will see action Sunday night at Ponca. Other games around the league last Sunday night saw Homer remain undefeated with an 11-6 win over Dakota City, Pender dropped Newcastle, 9-7, and Decatur nipped Ponca, 4-2.

Allen-Marionsburg gets back in action tonight with an away game at Homer. Otherwise, Thursday games include Newcastle and Dakota City and Ponca at Pender. Wakefield has the night off.

Scribner Hands Midgets Second 5-4 Defeat

Scribner Midgets became the second team in two straight outings to come from behind in the closing frames to knock off Wayne by one run.

Sunday afternoon at Scribner, the hosts scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth to hand Wayne a 5-4 loss. Against Bancroft Friday, Bancroft scored four runs in the last frame for an identical 5-4 victory.

Going into the bottom of the sixth it appeared the locals might come out with their eighth win in 16 games, when Wayne scored two runs to finally take the lead, 4-3. Center fielder Mark Brandt walked and relief pitcher Tyler Frevert singled to set up Wayne's go-ahead runs. Brandt scored on a passed ball. Frevert came home on a throwing error by Scribner's catcher.

But Scribner countered in the sixth with a pair of runs off a sacrifice and a Wayne miscue to drop the locals' record to 7-9.

Wayne's starting hurler, Vic Sharpe, had three singles in three at bats to lead Wayne sluggers in their seven-hit attack. Sharpe, who threw the first four innings, and Frevert each pitched three hits.

The Midgets were scheduled to face Randolph at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday in the first round of the District Three American Legion tournament at Wakefield. A win would advance the locals to the finals on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. against Wakefield in the three-team district.

Girls BB Camp Dropped

A girls basketball camp slated for this week for Wayne area girls has been cancelled due to lack of interest.

The camp was to start Monday and end Saturday, according to Julie Brinkman, who was to help direct the camp.

Loss of Overin Reduces Legion Pitchers to Two

Host Wayne will head into Friday's District Three American Legion baseball tournament without the services of veteran pitcher Earle Overin.

That's the official word from coach Hank Overin after a doctor's report last week advised the young hurler to stay off the mound for another week. Overin hurt his arm during the Coleridge game last month. However, the right-hander will play in the infield.

The loss of Overin reduces Wayne's pitching corps to two fulltime hurlers, Paul Mallette and Dave Hix. Both have seen action during the season. Mallette holds a 6-1 record and Hix is 4-0.

According to coach Overin, the Legion will have two other pitchers available for duty. Gary Munter has one victory to his credit, an 8-2 win over Wisner. The other hurler, Bob Keating, has a 15-10 win over Wynot.

Mallette chalked up his sixth win Sunday in the Legion's 7-4 victory over Scribner. Mallette struck out six in five innings before Hix came in the sixth frame.

Mallette also was instrumental at the place in Wayne's 16th win against two losses and a tie. He connected for a single and a double to drive in a total of three runs.

In the first frame Mallette singled in left fielder Marty Hansen from second. In the second, Mallette's double drove in Hansen and center fielder Gordie Cook for a 3-0 Wayne advantage.

The locals jumped to a 7-0 count with four runs in the fifth frame on one hit and three Scribner errors. Scoring for Wayne were Mallette, Mike Meyer, Dave Nuss and Mike Sharer.

Scribner rallied with two runs each in the sixth and seventh on four hits. All together, Wayne pitchers gave up five hits. Friday at 8 p.m., Wayne faces the winner of Wakefield-Wynot game in the five-team tournament. The Wakefield-Wynot matchup is slated to open the meet tonight (Thursday) at 5:30. Randolph and Hartington are scheduled to face each other at 8 p.m.

Cage Camp Starts Sunday

Dates for the second Cats' Cage Camp at Wayne State College have been moved up to July 27 through Aug. 2. All youths who will be in grades five through senior high are invited to attend the basketball camp, said WS coach Jim Seward, in charge of the camp.

Camp dates had been set for Aug. 3-9, but a Nebraska School Activities Association ruling prohibits such activities during most of August, Seward pointed out as the reason for the date change.

Registration is at 1 p.m. at Rice Auditorium. Cost will be $85, which covers room and board for six nights. Cost for those players living off campus will be $20. Seward noted.

Assisting in the second cage camp this summer will be Tom Millsap, Dale Parker and Tim McCarthy. For more information contact Seward at 375-2200.

Stenwall Is 2nd At AAU Regional

The state's leading high school girls shot putter, Jill Stenwall of Winside, finished second in the regional AAU meet in Des Moines last weekend.

Jill, who heaved the shot 42-11 was about a foot short of topping a Wisconsin girl whose toss of 43-10 earned her an all-expense paid trip to the national AAU meet in Ithaca, N.Y. on Aug. 8-10.

Jill, who will be a senior at Winside High, helped to lead Nebraska to its seventh consecutive state championship during the regional meet. Nebraska entorier finished with 138 points while second-place Minnesota had 58.

This year Jill set a new state girls record with a best-ever mark of 45-2 during the high school district track meet at Wisner. She won the 1975 state Class C title with a toss of 43-3.

WHAT DO you think about discontinuing Little League baseball? Do you think that competition on this level is hurting a young player because of the so-called "pressure" placed on the young stars to do well? Does Little League baseball create a feeling of incompetence in young players if they don't perform well at a young age?

Those are some of the questions former Philadelphia Phillies baseball player Robin Roberts is posing to parents and coaches about the present state of baseball for children ages eight to 12.

Speaking in last week's Newsweek magazine guest column, Roberts pointed out that Little League baseball is hindering rather than helping young players learn how to play the sport and cope with the pressures.

The basic fault of Little League is the fact that it makes young players feel incompetent "for acting their age" — not paying complete attention to the game, Roberts pointed out.

"What would seem like a basic training ground for baseball soon turns out to be a program of negative thoughts that only retards a young player," Roberts said, explaining that often a player is told not to swing in hopes of getting a walk. "The fun is in hitting the ball," he added.

Roberts' solution to the problems created by Little League is a softball program for youngsters eight to 12 years old.

He reasons that trying to instill complete organization upon persons of that age is nearly impossible. The organization destroys the flavor of baseball. So let the youngsters enjoy softball. "Kids have a natural fear of a baseball; it hurts when it hits you. A softball is bigger, easier to see and easier to hit. You get to run more bases more and there isn't as much danger of injury if one gets hit with the ball," Roberts said.

Organized baseball for youths between ages 13-15 would help the child learn the sport. At age 16 is the best time to work really hard with youths in the sport, he noted.

CITY RECREATION director Hank Overin looks at Little League baseball in a different light.

Overin believes that the present city program needs some changes to help the players. One, he would like to see the Poe Wee and Little League program dropped from the Ralph Bishop League. Then divide those age groups into various teams to create a city league. That way most of the youngsters out for ball would get a chance to play.

Overin would like to keep the Pony division players a part of the Ralph Bishop League. Because of the large numbers out for that particular sport, Overin pointed out that the competition for a playing sport might reduce another player's chances of seeing fulltime action.

Right now a change in Wayne's present Little League program is in the planning stages. If all goes well maybe next year some of those plans may become a reality, Overin noted.

THE WAKEFIELD school board last week voted to drop high school baseball and golf from the school 1975-76 sports calendar.

According to superintendent Muri Belter, the board voted to drop both sports because "of the interference with the educational program."

A lot of the students who participate in the two spring sports are gone most of the school time, he added. Another reason for dropping baseball is the dwindling number of high school teams in the Class C level, Belter noted.

Allen Draws Bye In NEN Playoffs

Allen Midgets Sunday will take on the winner of the Ponca-Jackson contest at Ponca in the second day of Northeast Nebraska Little League playoffs. Game time is about 3:30 p.m.

The area club bypasses last Wednesday's first night playoff action after knocking off Hubbard, 8-4, last Sunday to remain on top of the seven-team league with a 9-3 record.

Besides the Jackson-Ponca matchup on Wednesday, other playoff games are Hubbard at Emerson and Martinsburg at Newcastle. Semi-final action will be on Sunday and finals will be on Wednesday, July 30. All games will be played at Ponca.

Last Sunday Allen scored six runs in the second inning en route to its ninth victory. Catcher Jeff Creamer, who finished pitching chores in the final frame, led Allen sluggers with two hits and five at bats.

Headup play by Allen third baseman Brent Chase halted Hubbard's comeback attempt in the fifth frame when the bases were loaded. With one out, Chase grabbed a grounder, touched third base for a force out and threw to home to complete the double play.

Brad Chase chalked up the win on the mound.

Brudigan Wins

Driver Gene Brudigan of Hoskins continued his winning streak with victories at Grand Island and Norfolk last weekend.

Brudigan won the first heat race at Grand Island on Saturday and finished first in the second heat at Norfolk on Sunday.

Gerald Bruggeman won the trophy dash at Hastings on Friday and was second in the second heat at Grand Island on Saturday before the rest of the races were rained out.

He finished sixth in the feature race at Hastings behind Brudigan, who was second.

At Norfolk, Bruggeman finished third in the third heat. Both Bruggeman and Brudigan's cars had mechanical failure following their respective heat races and they were unable to enter the rest of the events.

Archery Clinic Specialist

GRAYLING — Steve Howell noted area archery enthusiast, has been appointed to the position of Consumer Clinic Specialist according to an announcement here today by world famous bowhunter, Fred Bear.

Howell, a resident of LaVista, has been interested in archery only for the last four years, however, in those four years he has accomplished much. He is president of the Fred Bear Bowhunters League and is a member of the Fred Bear Sports Club. He has participated in several tournaments and took third place in the freestyle round. He also finished third in Nebraska State Tournament. Aside from his interest in bowhunting and target archery, Steve also finds time to help the young people of his area and he is active in the Junior Olympic Archery Development Program.

Bear Archery Consumer Clinic Specialists work with retail outlets, schools, camps and colleges to help educate the general public as to the sport of archery, including shooting techniques, equipment and safety. A small cadre of top archers in each geographical area of the country are conducting these free clinics to meet public demand. It is reported that there are nearly as many archers in the country today as there are golfers.

In making the announcement, Fred Bear stated, "We are pleased to welcome Steve Howell to our professional advisory clinic staff, and we know that we will help thousands of people become more familiar with archery, man's oldest sport and one of his most challenging."

Cleanup Planned, Help Is Needed

It's time to clean up in Wayne County Fair grounds, fair board secretary Marilyn Koch said. The annual pre-fair cleanup will begin on Monday at 4 p.m. All interested persons in Wayne County are asked to bring riding lawn mowers, trimming equipment, brooms, rakes and other equipment and pitch in to get the grounds ready for the fair, Aug. 7-10. Koch said the cleanup campaign won't involve any painting but the entire grounds will be cleaned. Lunch will be served afterward. He said the grounds will be cleaned again Aug. 11, following the fair.

Collision

(Continued from page 1) The collision occurred about 4:50 p.m. when the Hankin vehicle went onto a shoulder and came back onto the highway. Headley said, causing the empty transport to roll into the Behmer truck. Behmer was driving a truck owned by Midwest Bridge Co. of Norfolk. The transport is owned by Central Transport Co. of Norfolk. The traffic fatality was the third this year in Dixon County.

Scout

(Continued from page 1) began his Webelo Training and at the age of 11 became a Boy Scout in Troop 221, which recently merged with Troop 174 and is now going under the number 174. Troop officers he has held are quartermaster and patrol leader. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow and Leadership Corp. and has also received his mile swim award and Eagle Scout award. In the past, Redeemer Lutheran has awarded God and Country honors to Bill Kugler, Ted Bahe, Tom Bahe, Ronald Wriedt, Robert Wriedt, David Jensen, Mark Ellis, Steve Carman, Jim Brasch, Kerry Jech, Kevin Jech, and Vincent Knesche.

College

(Continued from page 1) At four-year public colleges, room and board is slightly less, $1,272, but tuition and fees are much lower, $578. Financial aid to hard-pressed students is being increased this year by many colleges and by the federal government. Some $857 million in such assistance is being offered by the U. S. Office of Education, with $6.3 million of it allocated to those in Nebraska. According to the latest figures, approximately 380 persons from the Wayne County area will be going to college this year. The cost entailed, $1,343,000 is based upon the expectation that half of them will be headed for public colleges and half for private ones.

Bond Issue

(Continued from page 1) will be erected four miles south of Wayne on highway 15. Foundation footings were poured two weeks ago and the concrete floor was scheduled for completion last Friday. School board secretary Mrs. Dennis Janke said the building will house three classrooms and a multipurpose room. Enrollment in the kindergarten through eighth grade school is expected to be about 52.

Weekend inspections by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture of combines coming into Nebraska uncovered many "loaded" with weeds seeds. Noxious weeds and common weeds, including jointed goat grass, were found in several

Firearms Are Banned In Hunting Bullfrogs

Nebraska's bullfrog season is under way, but the popular old-time method of sniping the croakers with a small-caliber firearm is no longer allowed, said the Game and Parks Commission. Legal methods for taking frogs include hook-and-line, gling, denetting or scrambling after them with bare hands. Bow and arrows may also be used on frogs, except in state parks and recreation areas. Bullfrogs may be taken round the clock until Oct. 31. Artificial light can be used. Nebraskans 16 and older and nonresidents must have a fishing permit to go after bullfrogs. combines, explained John Furrer, extension agronomist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"Undesirable weeds in wheat fields often get started at harvest time. Jointed goatgrass, recently introduced into western and southern Nebraska is suspected of getting there by custom combine operators who brought it in from Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas," said Furrer. Wheat growers who employ custom combines should insist that they be thoroughly cleaned. Furrer noted that inspection and cleaning before the combine enters the field could prevent serious weed infestation.

Extension Council To Hold Convention

Dixon County Home Extension Council met at the North-east Station near Concord July 16 with 21 attending. Mrs. Merle Von Minden, citizenship leader, read an essay she wrote, entitled "Pathways Towards a Better America." Mrs. Von Minden received runner up in state competition for her essay. Other reports were given by Mrs. Harlin Anderson, Family Life leader, Mrs. Ernest Stark, education leader, and Mrs. Irene Armour, health and safety leader.

It was announced that the group will hold a mini convention in September, instead of Achievement Day. Mrs. Paul Rahn and Mrs. Orville Curry reported on the state extension council meeting they attended at York in June.

The group is planning to sponsor a Bicentennial booth at the Dixon County Fair where they will sell copies of the book "Treasure Trails in the U.S.A."

Next council meeting will be Oct. 17 at 9:30 a.m. at the North-east Station.

MANUFACTURING OF PLASTICS REQUIRES VERY LITTLE ENERGY. IN 1973, ENERGY NEEDS FOR PLASTIC PRODUCTS OF ALL KINDS AMOUNTED TO JUST OVER ONE PERCENT OF THE TOTAL ENERGY CONSUMED IN THE U.S.

BECAUSE PLASTIC MATERIALS ARE EXTREMELY LIGHTWEIGHT, GREATER QUANTITIES OF FINISHED PRODUCTS CAN BE SHIPPED BY TRUCK OR RAIL WITHIN GIVEN WEIGHT LOAD LIMITS. FEWER TRIPS ARE MADE, LESS ENERGY IS CONSUMED.

FINALLY ONCE DISCARDED A PLASTIC PRODUCT CAN BE BURNED IN MODERN INCINERATORS DESIGNED TO PRODUCE STEAM FOR THE GENERATION OF ENERGY. THE HIGH HEAT VALUE OF PLASTICS MAKES THEM AN IDEAL FUEL. PLASTICS ARE ALSO CAPABLE OF RETURNING TO THE ENVIRONMENT MUCH OF THE ENERGY CONSUMED IN THEIR MANUFACTURE.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Anyone can have high blood pressure or hypertension, according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

If you are over 40 years of age, there is a bigger chance you have high blood pressure. Blacks have about three times the incidence of hypertension as whites. Research shows about an equal incidence between men and women, but complications seem to be less among women.

The medical association says that knowing your blood pressure can save your life. High blood pressure can be checked quickly, without pain, and high blood pressure can be treated by taking medication. The association recommends that young and old, men and women, easy going and tense persons, all have a high blood pressure reading taken.

The association says that high blood pressure is a "lifelong" situation with no cure, but it is easy to treat once the condition is recognized.

Back in 1934...

CONSTRUCTION of Wayne post office, left, began in 1934 when workmen used a team of horses to do most of the lifting work. That's quite a contrast from the picture on the right taken Saturday after workmen cut down a familiar old tree after it was infected by Dutch Elm disease. The same tree is standing in the top left corner.

Do Consumers Realize Responsibility in Food Safety?

Do consumers know that adequate food safety protection is not guaranteed? Simply because meat and poultry products are inspected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS)?

A survey conducted by USDA's Economic Research Service (ERS) indicates that consumers may not know that they, too, have a responsibility for food safety in the home.

The study also revealed that consumers take unnecessary risks in the handling of meat and poultry products.

Sixty-three per cent of the survey respondents thought it was "not likely" or "not at all likely" for meat and poultry to carry harmful bacteria and fungi.

Although Congress charged APHIS in the 1967-68 Whole Some Meat and Poultry Inspection Act with the responsibility of inspecting the nation's meat and poultry supply to assure its wholesomeness, this inspection does not extend to retail stores, nor does it relieve consumers of the responsibility to take proper food safety precautions in the home.

APHIS meat inspection officials stress that meat and poultry are not sterile products, and it is consumers' responsibility to take proper food safety precautions in the home.

The ERS survey disclosed that consumers also do not understand the danger involved in allowing cooked food to stand at room temperature for more than two or three hours.

Eighty-eight per cent of those queried said they were concerned from food safety standpoint about letting uncooked meat or poultry stand for more than two or three hours at room temperature. However, only 53 per cent were concerned about leaving cooked food out for the same period of time.

Most food bacteria in uncooked food are destroyed at cooking temperatures above 130 degrees F. but University of Nebraska-Lincoln food scientists point out that cooked food also can be a haven for growing bacteria through recontamination or cross contamination.

The rule is to wash all utensils and hands in hot soapy water after handling raw food since it may bear bacteria and before touching cooked food. Cooking food at proper temperatures will destroy bacteria which cause food poisoning.

Consumers interested in copies of the preliminary report of the survey may write to the Information Division, Economic Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

A little simple arithmetic about a Math major.

The cost of a higher education is getting higher. In fact, you could end up spending close to $20,000 to put your child through college.

So maybe you should consider U.S. Savings Bonds. They're one of the most dependable ways to build funds for an education.

All you have to do is join the Payroll Savings Plan whenever you work. Then an amount you specify is set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

Say your child is 3 years old now. If you buy a $75 Bond a month through Payroll Savings, by the time he's 18, you'll have $16,048 tucked away. A solid sum to get him started. See? A little simple arithmetic can add up to a lot.

Make the chances of your child's college education more secure. Join the Payroll Savings Plan now.

U.S. Bonds pay 8% interest when held to maturity of 5 years. For more information, contact your local U.S. Savings Office or the nearest U.S. Savings Office. Some restrictions apply. See your local U.S. Savings Office for details. Bond interest is subject to federal income tax. Bond face value may be different upon redemption.

Bucks' Drawing Remains at $500

Wayne's Birthday Bucks drawing scheduled for 8:15 p.m. this evening (Thursday) will be worth $500 to some shopper lucky enough to have his birthday match the date drawn at random.

The grand prize remains at that total after another week going by without the top prize being claimed in the weekly drawing.

Winning last week's consolation prize for the second time in three weeks was George Baird of Wayne, who was at Kaup's TV Service when the winning date was announced in all participating businesses last Thursday night. The winning date: May 22, 1987. Had Baird's birthday matched that date, he would have won the $500 grand prize instead of the $25 consolation prize.

Another consolation prize will be awarded this evening if the grand prize goes unclaimed for another week.

New School is Shaping Up

WORKMEN LEVELLING concrete for the floor of the new District 57 schoolhouse are Robert Easte, Steve Loag, Kevin Jech and Virgil Kardell. Footings for the building were poured two weeks ago and the floor was poured Friday, although the special election seeking approval for a $95,000 bond issue is not until Tuesday. School board president George Bierman said construction was authorized because of the desire to have the building completed by fall and because over 95 per cent of the voters contacted in a petition drive, necessary to form the district from seven former districts, indicated they were in favor of building a new school.

Coupons awarded winners in the weekly drawings may be spent just like cash in any of the cooperating businesses. A person need not make any purchases to participate, but a person must be present in one of the participating stores in order to collect either the top or the consolation prize.

The starting date for resurfacing of Highway 35 from Wakefield to Wayne has been pushed back to Aug. 1, according to state highway project manager Stan Johnson of Wayne.

Not all the equipment is ready to begin the nearly nine-mile stretch of work, Johnson pointed out as the main reason for the delay.

Land use hits you where you live

How do you feel about getting government back closer to the people?

I think most Americans have a gut feeling today that we need to move in that direction. And yet, on so many fronts we seem to be moving rapidly in the other direction. Stranger still, many of the same people who make a lot of the noise about bringing government "closer to the people" turn out to be on the opposite side of the issue on a case-by-case basis.

Some current proposals for federal "land use" legislation are a good example of the latter behavior.

"Land use" is a fancy term for what used to be called "zoning," and more recently has been known as "planning." We can — and should — do a better job of land use planning than we have done in the past. But we should also approach the task with a healthy appreciation of its complexity. Much of what passed for "progressive" zoning and tax policy in an earlier era has contributed to some of our most intractable urban problems today. Why, for example, should it be nearly impossible in so many of our big cities to live within walking distance of the place of work?

Conversely, diversity and local experimentation have often pointed the way for others to follow. Some cities today — Chicago comes to mind — are building skyscrapers that combine within one building shopping centers, recreational facilities, office space, hotels, and apartments. Residents (theoretically) can commute by elevator, contributing little or nothing to transportation — related urban problems.

Land use, of course, is not an issue related solely to big cities. Suburbs, agricultural areas, and wilderness lands also have their unique planning and use problems. And for that matter, the considerations that apply to protecting a wilderness area in New Mexico may be quite different from those for a tidal marsh in Maryland.

Land use is also a subject that affects you, directly and indirectly, in the pocketbook. Zoning and other land use regulations determine what you can do with your own property, what can be done with property adjacent to yours, and what can be done with the other property in your community. This last point has a very direct bearing on your local taxes, as well as on the nature of your immediate environment.

For all of these reasons, it is important for each of us to pay more attention to local land use issues. But for the same reasons, I would hate to see the federal camel get its nose under the tent, and that's exactly what's being proposed in Washington today.

Last year, a bill was introduced in Congress to establish federal standards for land use. States which did not adhere to the standards would have lost not only the funds available under the bill, but also federal funds for parks, highways, and airports.

This bill was so frightening in its totalitarian implications that it didn't get very far. But its sponsors are back now, to try again. The new bills — H. R. 3510

This guest editorial was written by Richard L. Leshner, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. In his newsletter, "The Voice of Business," it seems particularly timely because of the rural zoning effort currently underway in Wayne County. The Joint Planning Commission, responsible for the project, meets at 8 p.m. on the first Tuesday of every month.

Our ancestors fought, among other things, to gain freedom from onerous land use restrictions imposed by the Crown. Let's not wind up back where we started.

spend money for programs that they don't really need or want, simply because they can't afford to lose the federal funds available for the purpose.

Representative Morris Udall (D-Ariz.), author of H. R. 3510, has denied that his bill would give federal officials "any authority to review a State's land use plan." But section 202 (c) of the bill itself says, "No State shall be eligible for any grant... unless the Secretary (of the Interior) determines that the state land use program meets the requirements of Title III." How would you interpret that language?

Price tag for Pershing College is a cool $2 million

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN — When Pershing College went out of business, its Beatrice campus went on the market.

No takers.

The University of Nebraska, which was also being offered the facilities of Hiram Scott College at Scottsbluff at the time, was considered a likely prospect.

At the same time legislative efforts to plug Hiram Scott into the university system (eventually successful) were being undertaken, the lawmakers were asked to consider the Pershing facilities (never successful).

The university never acquired Pershing, but the University of Nebraska Foundation did. The original idea was to convey the former private college campus to the university, which would operate State University of Nebraska (SUN) programs there.

But those plans didn't pan out and the foundation now is trying to find other owners for the facilities, valued at about $2 million.

One of the prospects is the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College area, which operates campuses at Fairbury, Milford, and Lincoln.

The southeast area's board considered the possibility last year and decided it is worth more study. But the board members made it clear, even without study, that they weren't interested in paying $2 million for the Pershing facilities — because, they said, they don't have that kind of money.

In fact, the board members said they weren't much interested in paying any thing and some of them indicated they didn't think it would be a good idea even to receive the campus as a gift if it were offered (which it hasn't been) as a gift.

There has been declining enrollment at the Fairbury campus. First, football was dropped, causing a slippage in enrollment. Then, tuition waivers (another way of saying scholarships) were whittled, and enrollment shrunk again. Now, the dormitory is in serious financial trouble — with foreclosure a possibility.

There are members of the southeast board who say the Pershing campus should be considered as a possible alternative to a Fairbury operation, although none of the board members made that as a positive suggestion.

Board member G. Alan Dunlap of Milford did say that Pershing shouldn't be considered as a possible fourth campus.

Ticket Policy Reviewed

Are legislators influenced favorably toward the University of Nebraska because they get free seats (two apiece) to Cornhusker football games?

For that matter, do publishers, editors and reporters give NU an advantage in the news columns and over the airwaves because stadium tickets (in addition to those sportswriters get in the press box) are made available?

Even if the answer to both those questions is negative, should the university be giving away tickets at a time when more Nebraskans are willing to pay for seats than there are seats to sell?

A legislative study committee considered those issues last week. University spokesmen — including a regent, the Lincoln chancellor and athletic director Bob Devaney — said NU was trying only to show its appreciation, not to influence.

"There is nothing improper in what we're doing," Chancellor James H. Zumberge said.

Devaney said many of the tickets that are distributed free go to prospective athletes, high school coaches who help the NU program and donors of $1,000 or more.

Senator John Cavanaugh of Omaha, chairman of the study committee, said legislators probably wouldn't pursue the matter any further, since Regents chairman Kermit Wagner of Schuyler said the board is conducting a review of the ticket policies and should get a subcommittee report later this week.

Senator Jerome Warner of Waverly, who introduced the resolution calling for the interim study, said his main purpose was to have the situation reviewed and that he was satisfied that the university was doing so.

Devaney and his ticket manager, Jim Pittenger, said they were comfortable with the present policy. They said they understand the guidelines even though they aren't written out in a formal way.

A published policy, Devaney said, is all right in principle, but could cause him problems because it would "give more people a chance to criticize us."

Even Devaney said the whole issue would go away if the Cornhuskers would become a losing football team, but that solution wasn't endorsed by either the senators or the university official

OBSERVATIONS

Moving a little too fast

The bond issue for the new District 57 schoolhouse passed Tuesday. That's good — because construction on the new building began three weeks ago.

The decision to begin the construction was based on two items: the desire to have the building done in time for the overwhelming response — reportedly over 90 per cent — in favor of the project revealed during the petition drive necessary for the district from eight former school districts.

Authorizing the construction before the election is not illegal, according to county clerk Norris Weible. If the vote had been no, construction would have been halted and the district would have been liable for the $8,000 down payment.

The desire to have the building ready in time for the upcoming term is understandable and in view of the response during the petition drive, the early go ahead was probably okay.

But two points need to be made concerning the procedure of beginning a project before the voters approve. One, the public has been known to be fickle from time to time and possibly, just possibly, the vote could have been a big surprise.

Two, if projects are going to be started before the election required to authorize them, why have the election at all? The idea is to give every taxpayer a chance to vote, by ballot, not by petition.

Everyone becomes perturbed at times when government, federal, state and local, moves too slow. But attempting to move too fast can result in elected officials being caught short — Jim Strayer

Youth used to think that when they completed their educations, they would start at the bottom of the ladder and work up. Nowadays they seem to feel that they should start at the top and work their way down to retirement.

TOBACCO CULTIVATION IN NEBRASKA

Tobacco plant is indigenous to the Western Hemisphere. Sixteenth century explorers, intrigued by the use natives made of the plant, carried it to Europe. Smoking soon became a custom in most European countries, and it has been a commodity of international trade ever since. Though Popes fulminated against it, Russian smokers suffered the knout, and James I of England (1603-25) described it as "loathsome to the eye, harmful to the nose, harmful to the brain, and dangerous to the lungs." It was impossible to dissuade the people from their new found pleasure.

Among the aborigines of America, tobacco was also a trade item between tribes, a fact suggested by the remains of stone or pottery pipes found in areas where the crop did not thrive. Other aromatic plants including sumac leaves were sometimes used in smoking, either alone or in mixture with tobacco. The Indian term kinnikinnick describes such mixtures or tobacco substitutes. Tobacco was important in the ceremonial life of the Nebraska Indians, and one of the cultivated plants was a species of "nicotiana."

State Journal" (Lincoln), noted that "tobacco cultivation... is not a successful industry." The journal urged travelers to examine the "healthy and luxuriant growth" of a plot between Plymouth and Omaha, since tobacco had become by then a "curiosity to many who never saw the weed in its native state." Conversely, in eastern Kansas and Missouri crop acreage expanded. In 1897 the Kansas Board of Agriculture concluded "tobacco in eastern Kansas seems to be a profitable crop as compared to other farm products." The expense incurred in planting, cultivating, packing, and shipping does not exceed $50 per acre," the board said, and "a good profit" might be cleared. The Kansas white burley variety grown then was used mainly for mixing chewing tobacco.

An attempt was made by tobacco interests in the 1880-1890's to introduce cigar leaf varieties into Nebraska, Wis. consin, Colorado, and other western states. Promising test plots were reported in the state, especially in the Schuyler area, in the 1890's. Cigar factories — mostly small — were established by the score, anticipating the use of local crops, but farmers did not find tobacco growing profitable. The first cigar factories had been opened long before in Omaha and Brownville during the 1850's. Many other cities followed suit. Their output gradually increased until the 1880's, when the new factories greatly expanded production.

In 1886 almost 300 factories produced 18.2 million cigars. In 1894 almost double that number of firms produced 20.5 million cigars. Obviously, from the beginning much unprocessed leaf had to be shipped into the state to supply cigar-makers. Before World War I cigar rolling began to decline, and a few years later it had lapsed into a moribund state.

The third annual Nebraska Board of Agriculture report (1871) listed Johnson County as producing 1,112 pounds of tobacco, probably in very small plots. President R. W. Furnas, Brownville, listed the following average pounds-per-acre yields during the five years between 1864 and 1868: 1,000, 500, 430, 434, 525. (Incidentally, during those years wheat yielded 14, 18, 26, 15, and 15-1 2 bushels per acre, and corn 28.5, 46, 29, 36, and 32.)

In 1879, 101 Nebraska acres of tobacco produced 58,000 pounds, but by 1889 only 11,000 pounds were reported from a smaller acreage, and the "Nebraska

A Back Seat Problem

"I wonder," said good person Jones with a little triumph.

"If there is any way to get You seated farther down?"

You see I have to talk across So many empty pews. Before my voice can reach the back, I fear my point you lose

And then I feel so lonesome, Way up here you clear back there. It's hard to feel your love with me When I come to God in prayer.

I wonder if you folks are scared Of what I'm going to preach? That you hurry so to sit Back in the farthest seats?

Or do you fear the church someday Will suddenly catch on fire? Or do you want to slip out quick If of conviction you should die?

I wish you could see closer now, So I wouldn't have to shout. If you don't, I'm going to have to get THOSE BACK SEATS TAKEN OUT!

This and That...

Here are some hot weather tips and facts for the home garden offered by R. E. Neild, Nebraska agricultural climatologist. I'd like to pass them on to you.

It is not only more pleasant to pick vegetables in the cool of the morning than during the heat of the afternoon, but picked vegetables also keep better.

Cucumbers are cool — the temperature inside a fruit on the vine may be as much as 20 degrees lower than the air.

Avoid spray injury to plants by using proper mixtures of insecticides and fungicides and by spraying in the morning or evening or when the temperature is below 80 degrees.

High temperatures suppress color development in flowers, beets, carrots and tomato fruit. The colors become more intense with cooler temperatures in the fall.

Tomatoes grow at night and the blossoms will not set fruit when the minimum daily temperature is above 72 degrees.

Corn does not pollinate well and the ears may not fill with kernels during prolonged periods above 96 degrees.

Give trees and shrubs, especially newly planted ones, a deep, thorough watering during prolonged hot spells.

House plants set in the soil in pots and in semi-shade will keep cooler, require less watering and will do better than if left above the surface.

Vigorously hose evergreen foliage with water during hot spells to help control spider mites. The water washes eggs, young and adult mites off the plant and helps raise humidity to discourage their development.

Insect problems become more serious during hot weather when plants become stressed. Don't neglect control measures, but spray only in the cool of the day.

Wayne Winners
The Wayne Winners 4-H Club met July 10 in the Ted Bahe home with president, Tim Rother, calling the meeting to order. At the last meeting in June, a motion was made of considering buying an American and a 4 H flag and a gavel for the club. The motion was made to buy the set of flags and put off buying the gavel until a later date. Members discussed a booth for the fair. Bret Bahe and Chris Phelps were nominated to work on the booth and check on all the materials. Sheep members planned to meet July 21 at 7 p.m. at the home of Steve Gramlich to learn how to clean, shear and trim sheep.

The group was to meet again July 17.

News reporter, James Prendt

Peppy Pals
The regular business meeting of the Peppy Pals 4-H Club originally set for July 9, was held July 12, in the Hilbert Johs home.

Six members and two parents attended the meeting which was conducted by vice president Tracy Stollenberg in the absence of the president.

Final plans were made for the style revue, song contest and county fair. Mary Pat Dolata practiced her foods demonstration which she presented July 11 at Villa Wayne.

The meeting was adjourned and Mrs. Evan Wecker treated the group to ice cream bars.

Next meeting will be held Aug. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Wecker home.

Conservationist Parallel Terracing Can Combat Soil Erosion

Nebraska farmers should be turning to parallel terracing to combat soil erosion in their fields, according to Ron Gaddis, University of Nebraska-Lincoln conservationist.

Field terracing breaks up long slopes and prevents fast flowing water that can wash away top soil. By slowing the water's flow, more soaks into the soil, so runoff is reduced, he said.

Parallel terraces have uniform spacing between them. They don't weave in and out with respect to each other. The distance between the terraces is determined by a multiple of the width of the farmer's equipment and the slope of his land, Gaddis pointed out.

Nonparallel terraces are built to follow the contour of the land, regardless of the irregular spacing that may result.

Because spacing between parallel terraces is uniform, point rows are eliminated, Gaddis said. This makes planting and other field operations smoother and permits more even application of pesticides and fertilizer.

According to Gaddis, a common complaint about parallel terracing is more expense because more dirt must be moved to build the terraces.

This is true, he noted, but pointed out that the added expense of parallel terracing must be weighed against the time, fertilizer and pesticides wasted on point rows. Farmers installing new terrace systems should not put in a 1940 system for 1980 farming, he said.

One misconception about parallel terracing is that it can only be done on some fields. Generally that is wrong, Gaddis said, except in fields with shallow topsoil where considerable earth moving would expose too much subsoil and make parallel terracing impractical.

He also said that it may cost more to parallel terrace in fields with highly irregular slopes than in those with more uniform slopes.

TERRACES with tile outlets and grassed bank-slopes will break up long slopes and prevent fast flowing water that can wash away topsoil, according to conservationist Ron Gaddis.

farmers are going to have to ask themselves if they can afford to not terrace and then look ahead to changes which will occur in the next 10 to 15 years, and ask if they can afford anything but parallel terraces.

Parallel terraces can be either storage type, in which the water collected behind them is drained through underground pipes, or nonstorage (drainage) type, in which the water is channeled out by grass waterways.

For tiled outlet storage-type terraces, the length of time it takes for the water to drain can be controlled by changing the size of an orifice plate in the pipe inlets. This allows crops to absorb as much moisture as possible without drowning them, Gaddis said about 24 to 36 hours is the normal drainage period.

An underground system is the more expensive to install, Gaddis said, but noted that it can add as much as eight to nine percent more arable land to a field, land that otherwise must be used for surface waterways.

Gaddis reported that cost sharing funds for parallel terracing are available to farmers through the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP). Through ACP, he said farmers could get up to 70 percent of the money they needed for parallel terracing and underground drainage. NRD's supplement federal conservation cost sharing on certain land treatment practices if federal funds fall short of NRD goals.

He suggested that farmers contact either the Soil Conservation Service, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Nebraska Land Improvement Contractors, a Natural Resource District office or the Extension Service for information about parallel terracing and the cost sharing funds.

Theme of Farm Safety Week Is 'To Plan Ahead'

This Friday marks the beginning of Farm Safety Week in Northeast Nebraska as well as in the nation, said Ray Butts, executive director of the Wayne County ASCS office in Wayne.

The 32nd consecutive observance of the annual national safety event, which runs through Thursday is co-sponsored by the National Safety Council (NSC) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The theme of this year's Safety Week is "Planning Prevents Accidents."

Safety experts have learned over the years that accidents can be planned against by employing some simple spot check inventory rules by using the proper equipment for protection, and by using some good old fashioned horse sense," said Butts.

Each year many farm workers are killed or seriously injured in preventable accidents. Planning in advance for a safe farm environment can help save the lives and health of these workers, he added.

During World War II, Farm Safety Week opened an attack on rural accidents that cut into crucial agricultural production. The national observance spearheaded a concerted effort in American farm communities to reduce accidents and resultant losses, injury and death.

"Farm Safety Week gives us an excellent opportunity to review ways of eliminating safety hazards by planning for safer practices on each farm," Butts said.

Today's farmer must be a specialist both in his approach to farm methods as well as safety. Lost days mean lost profits and a farmer by the very nature of his work can't easily regain lost time the way a manufacturing plant can, he went on.

NSC and USDA encourage farmers and ranchers to incorporate protective caps or frames on older as well as newly purchased tractors, to use personal protective equipment which could prevent or reduce the severity of a large part of agricultural injuries, to build safe practices into the conduct of all daily activities and to work for safety every month of the year.

NU Safety Day Will Feature New Combine

A combine featuring a major breakthrough in threshing technique will be demonstrated at the University of Nebraska's Tractor Power and Safety Day, starting at 9 a.m. today (Thursday) at the Field Laboratory at Mead.

Arrangements have been completed to demonstrate the new twin rotor combine developed by Sperry New Holland, according to Dr. William Splinter, chairman of the NU Department of Agricultural Engineering.

The company claims that the new threshing technique reduces crop damage while improving harvesting speed and capacity, he said.

Of interest to swine producers and others will be a demonstration of using solar energy to heat a swine finishing building.

The project, financed with a $30,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture is designed to determine the economics of heating an existing modified open front building at the Field Laboratory, according to Dr. James DeShazer, engineer in charge of the project.

Ranchers and farmers who must handle large numbers of big round bales will be interested in the latest machinery for handling the bales, according to Kenneth Von Bergen. He will have units ranging from inexpensive ones mounted on a three point hitch to collection and transport wagons that can handle four to five bales per load. In addition, he will have all of the major design types of large roll balers available today.

Besides numerous demonstrations, farmers, ranchers and their wives can roam through numerous commercial exhibits. All 75 available display plots have been reserved, according to engineer Norman C. Teter.

Added Cost for Power Passed Along to Users

The peak demand for electrical power this month is expected to be greater than last year, according to Cal Comstock, Wayne County Rural Public Power District manager. That will probably mean a slightly higher cost per kilowatt.

July is always the month for peak demand, Comstock said, because of heavy use by irrigators. The demand during July of last year was 10,614 kilowatts.

Spot checks are made through the month and Comstock expects the demand this July to be around 12,000 kilowatts.

An increase in the number of irrigators accounts for a major portion of the increased demand. The power company has hooked up about 20 irrigation wells this year, bringing the total to around 104, Comstock said.

The Wayne County district has no generating facilities but purchases all its power from the Nebraska Public Power District through the Nebraska Generation and Transmission Cooperative, with headquarters in Columbus.

Hydroelectric power costs about eight mills a kilowatt to produce, Comstock said, while power generated using natural gas or oil may cost as much as 29 mills a kilowatt.

Each power district is allocated a designated amount of electricity produced at hydroelectric plants and districts must purchase additional power wherever it is available.

Any added costs above the basic rate is passed on to the customer, either directly or indirectly, depending on the amount of use.

An allowance is made for added costs when rates are set for small users, such as residential customers, Comstock said. Electricity is now costing about one mill per kilowatt more than was anticipated when rates were set last March and he predicts an increase will be necessary next year.

Large users, such as irrigators, are billed directly for added costs. For example, power purchased in June cost about three mills per kilowatt more than the base rate and large users had the added cost included on their monthly bill.

Comstock said added costs could have been higher this summer but the water level in Nebraska dams is higher than normal, allowing for more hydroelectric generation.

The Boettchers came to Allen in late April taking over for Mr. and Mrs. Myron Osbahr Jr. of Allen.

Wage Reports Due By July 31

Quarterly wage reports and social security contributions for household workers are due by July 31, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

People who pay a household worker $50 or more in cash wages in any 3-month quarter must send a report of the wages, along with the social security contribution, to the Internal Revenue Service within one month after the end of the quarter.

Quarters are January-February, March, April-May, June, July-August, September, and October-November-December. Wage reports and social security contributions for the second quarter of 1975 are due by July 31, Branch said.

People who employ household workers may file the wage report on a form available at any Internal Revenue Service Office. "Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees (for Social Security)."

The social security contribution for a household employee is 5.85 percent of covered wages.

Thought for Today

By Brian McBride

"What were once vices are now the manners of the day."

Seneca

We have a tendency to regard the ills of our society as unique, contemporary problems. Seneca's plaintive statement shows that rapidly changing mores and manners have been a standard condition for 7000 years!

We still think that, in this super charged, jet propelled age, the changes come with a speed and a degree that would have startled Seneca. In fact, the vices of a generation ago are, almost without exception, considered to be acceptable, even desirable, today. Having converted all vices to "manners," the pendulum must soon start its swing in the other direction.

Your funeral director, just as your doctor or your lawyer, should be selected on merit and well in advance of need.

Style Revue Is July 30

The Wayne County 4-H style revue will be held on Wednesday, July 30, the city auditorium, following a song contest scheduled to start at 7:30.

Billed as a dress revue in past years, the name has been changed to reflect the fact that boys learning to sew under the Bachelor Bob 4-H project are now eligible to participate in the show.

Over 100 4-H'ers will participate in the style show, which has the theme "Silhouettes of Fashion." The auditorium will be decorated for the event by the Wayne County Teen Supremes 4-H Club.

A special feature of this year's show will be the display of Bicentennial costumes. Participants can either make their own costumes from an historically based design or model actual historical garments.

The clothing displayed in the style revue will be judged the day before the show. The top three selections will be eligible to enter the state style revue at the State Fair in Lincoln.

Have You Tried Highway 15?

Class Observes Natural Farm

A group of Wayne Carroll High students recently had an opportunity to learn about natural farming. Accompanied by their teacher, Verne Mills, the members of an environmental studies class visited two natural farming operations near Valley.

Owners of the farms are Del and Val Akerlund and K.C. Livermore. The Akerlunds farm 670 acres of cropland and 90 acres of pasture, and Livermore owns 160 acres of cropland and 90 acres of pasture.

The farms visited were unique in that no herbicides, insecticides, pesticides or commercial fertilizers had been used on them for over eight years. Yet it appeared the land was yielding crops abundantly and the farm operations were profitable, according to a release by the state Game and Parks Commission.

Wheat harvest was in full swing the day of the tour. The yield on wheat on the Akerlund's best field was 75 bushels to the acre with a test weight of 64.2 about 65 pounds per bushel. Average yields on neighboring fields were 30 to 40 bushels per acre, the release said.

Yields on other crops were also good in past years according to these farmers. During last year's drought, Akerlund's unirrigated soybeans averaged 42 bushels to the acre while some of Livermore's unirrigated corn went over 100 bushels to the acre. Yet operating costs, according to these farmers, had been reduced by over 50 percent since returning to natural farming.

Major conservation practices observed by the class included crop rotation and the use of green manure crops. A typical rotation was corn, soybeans, corn (silage), wheat or oats. Green manure crops as sweet and red clover were planted with the oats at seeding time. After harvesting the oats, the sweet and red clover was being left till the following spring.

The Akerlunds felt they could replace up to 115 pounds of available nitrogen to the soil through this practice. In addition, they felt this practice could increase the water holding capacities of their soils.

This year they have also planted vetch in their cornfields after the last cultivation of corn to provide ground cover and hold soil moisture after the corn is harvested. Wildlife, particularly pheasants and quail, also appeared to be benefited by the green manure crops.

Natural fertilizers such as squid fish, colloidal clays and trace minerals were applied according to soil tests. Modern farm equipment which was being used included chisel plows, rolling cultivators, 30 inch eight row planting equipment and a soil tiller.

The Wayne High class members reported the soil had a more pronounced smell, the release said. Other differences noted include the absence of hard clods and few weeds.

Mills said the practices used conserve energy, increase water retention, reduce erosion and water pollution and increase wildlife habitat.

Sullivan: Time to Put Financial House in Order

With inflation on the rise again, you can no longer afford to manage financial affairs "by the seat of your pants." Today, to make ends meet with the same amount of money as last year, you must put your financial house in order — and keep it there, said William Sullivan of American Bankers Association. "To help you do a better job of managing your money under present conditions, the American Bankers Association (ABA) offers the following tips.

The problem is how to get started... You can't do much planning unless you have a point of departure. So that's where you begin. Take your checkbook and analyze your spending for the past year. Identify fixed costs, such as rent, mortgage and taxes, versus variable expenses. The rest is simple. Just subtract fixed costs from after-tax income, and what's left is spendable. Once you know that figure, you can make a sensible budget. Without it, you're guessing.

Take food expenses. For years, most experts advised that a family of four with an income of $15,000 should spend no more than 20 per cent of take-home pay. But today, inflation requires you to increase that guideline to 25 per cent. That means you have to cut somewhere else to keep your head above water. There's nothing you can do about fixed costs, so look elsewhere — like eating out only once a week instead of twice or preplanning to make fewer shopping trips or taking less expensive vacations.

How much you should save is another key question. An old rule of thumb suggests setting aside an emergency fund equivalent to 30 to 40 per cent of gross annual income. But this will vary depending on your age, relative job security and whether your employer covers you for medical, dental and disability problems.

Also if you have children going to college in a few years, you ought to know what inflation is doing to tuition and student living costs. They're going out of sight. So you can't start too early to establish a college education fund. And if you already have one, make sure its goals are still realistic. Changes are inflation will require you to up your commitment to the fund.

One of the least known facts in modern American agriculture is that farmers for years have sought their profits through increased production and efficiency rather than in higher prices.

'Crop Loss Affects Businessmen'

Farmers usually are more concerned about insect problems than the average businessman, said John Witkowski, area entomologist from the Northeast Station near Concord.

But businessmen should have a strong interest in the control of insect problems because a farmer's loss in the field will mean an economic impact to the community, Witkowski pointed out during Monday's Kiwanis luncheon.

Witkowski said that in Nebraska about six and a half million acres of corn are planted each year. In Northeast Nebraska, the figure is one and a half million acres.

Insects last year destroyed about $3.4 million dollars worth of crops, which means a loss of revenue to the community involved, he said.

A large portion of the corn crop can be destroyed by various insects in as fast as one night. The most devastating insect to the corn crop is the root worm, Witkowski noted.

The recycling period of the root worm permits it to live and reproduce in a corn field throughout most of the year. Although there are certain types of chemicals which may temporarily rid the field of insects, the best method of control is crop rotation, he said.

However, many farmers hesitate to rotate large fields because of the inconvenience and cost of different types of machinery to plant and harvest a different crop, Witkowski added.

The best chemicals to control insects no longer are on the market because the Environmental Protection Agency has banned their use. As a result, farmers are forced to use less effective chemicals to control insects, Witkowski pointed out.

ENTOMOLOGY specialist John Witkowski, left, explains part of his program to Kiwanian Sid Hillier, following Monday's presentation at the weekly Kiwanis meeting.
