

Students Will Pick

Their Own Topics

In Independent Study

Class at Winside

Students who do well in regular classroom work at Winside High School, but would like to study a special interest will be able to do so through an independent study program beginning this fall.

If accepted for the program, students will be able to pick their own topic, subject to approval, according to principal Allen Schlueter.

The idea was brought up by science students last fall and several students under the direction of teacher Mike Jones carried out projects in the spring, but received no credit.

Jones and other staff members developed an independent study program proposal which the school board approved in the spring.

Independent study won't be confined to science projects, Schlueter said. Anything that interests students is eligible. "If a kid wants to build a hot rod in the trades and industries shop, we'll consider it," Schlueter said.

From one to three credits can be received for projects. The number of credits is arranged between the student and the supervising teacher, based on how much work is involved and what the student will learn from it.

Final determination on the number of credits is made by Schlueter and the school guidance counselor.

Students applying for the program must be passing in all subjects and must be in "good standing" in the project subject area.

Good standing will be defined by the teacher involved.

Each student must present a proposal describing what the project goal is. The teacher and student involved will determine requirements for the activity and a preliminary outline must be filed with the principal's office.

After that the student must be recommended by three teachers and must be interviewed by a selection committee which will be composed of the guidance counselor and three teachers.

Registration for independent study was not open in the spring, but students will be able to sign up during the first nine-week session. All projects must be completed outside the regular classroom.

Sunday Open House Planned for Hospital

Open house and dedication ceremonies for the new Providence Medical Center in Wayne have been scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 24, according to a joint announcement made Wednesday by the Wayne Hospital Foundation and the Missionary Benedictine Sisters of Norfolk.

The Benedictine Sisters will operate the $1,670,000 facility. Ken Olds, chairman of the hospital foundation, said tentative plans are for the new hospital to begin operation early in September.

The dedication ceremonies will begin at 1:30 Sunday afternoon, Aug. 24. The hospital will be open for public inspection following the ceremonies until 5:30.

Construction of the hospital represents the completion of an extended effort to provide a medical center to replace the present Wayne municipal hospital. The old hospital building, built in 1942, will be used to house city offices.

The Wayne Hospital Foundation was organized in 1961. In 1971, an effort to form a hospital district with taxing authority to build a new hospital was discontinued after objections were expressed at a public hearing held before the Wayne County commissioners.

In September, 1971, the Missionary Benedictine Sisters of Norfolk proposed a plan under which they would provide one half the total cost of the hospital if the Wayne area contributed the other half and would agree to turn the hospital over to the order for operation and maintenance.

As part of the plan, the board of trustees of the state colleges gave eight acres of land adjacent to the Wayne State College.

Local Student Given Degree

Alan Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Meyer of rural Wayne, received his master of arts degree in business education August 9 from the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks.

Meyer is a 1970 graduate of Wayne High and 1974 graduate of Wayne State College. He will begin teaching in the fall at Lincoln Southeast High School. While in graduate school, Meyer became a member of Delta Pi Epsilon, business education honorary fraternity.

MRS. CONNIE Jessen gives some pointers to DiAnne Witte, daughter of Arnold Witte of Concord; Lori Kraemer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Kraemer of Concord; and Lori Von Minden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Von Minden of Allen. The three girls are members of the Wranglers 4-H mixed song group which qualified for state fair competition with their performance Thursday night. Mrs. Jessen judged the contest.

Dr. Wiseman To Lead Scout Fund Campaign

Dr. Willis Wiseman of Wayne is one of six men named to head the 1976 finance campaign in the Diamond Dick Boy Scout District.

In past years, one person has been chairman for the nine-county fund-raising effort. The district has been divided into five areas for 1976 with chairmen for each.

Other chairmen are Tim Stern and Dennis Meek, Norfolk; Dr. Charles Vlach, Hartington; Gerald Langhorst, Creighton; and Steve Urovesich, Neligh.

Recruiting and training will be conducted during the rest of 1975 with the campaign actually beginning during the second week in January.

COG Administrator To Meet Tuesday With Commissioners

Wayne County commissioners will conduct a public hearing on the proposed $1,826,600 county budget Tuesday.

Also on Tuesday's agenda is a meeting with Council of Government administrator Steve Martin of Norfolk.

Martin will meet with the commissioners at 10:30 to discuss details of the proposed county wide law enforcement if the system goes into effect.

Additional deputies would be added to the county sheriff's department for patrolling the communities of Winside, Hoskins and Carroll.

Martin, Tuesday will discuss how application should be made for $45,000 in federal funds for the county law enforcement body.

The money, available through the state Crime-Commission, would be used to pay salaries for three full-time deputies, a dispatcher, uniforms, patrol cars, communication equipment and arms.

Sheriff Don Weible will be project director for the county agency. An advisory council would be made of residents of Carroll, Hoskins and Winside, the three communities which requested county wide law enforcement.

Singers Headed for State Fair

The Future Feeders 4-H club and the Wranglers club both received purple ribbons in the Dixon County song contest Thursday night at the Northeast Station and will be state fair representatives.

Members of the Future Feeders trio are Kari, Lori and Sury Erwin, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Erwin. They will compete in the girls small song group division at the state fair.

Members of the Wranglers, who will be competing in the mixed song group division, are Cheryl Koch, Joni Kraemer, Cathy Sachau, Lori Von Minden, Lisa Rostade Joff and Mark Creamer. Linda and Doug Koester, Duane Stolle, Mark Koch, Jack Warner, Stan McAfee and Scott McAfee, who was unable to attend the Thursday night performance.

The Wranglers junior mixed song group also received a purple ribbon. Other mixed groups were Pop's Partners and Dad's Helpers. Both groups received blue ribbons.

The Concordettes senior girls small group also received a blue ribbon and the junior Concordettes were awarded a red ribbon.

Parents Need To Register New Students

Families new to the community of Wayne who will have children attending Wayne Middle School, grades five through eight, should stop at the school to register their children, reports principal Loren Park.

The school office will be open for registration from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. beginning today (Monday), and will continue throughout the week.

New students planning to register should bring their last report card and name and address of the school they last attended. If a member of the family is unable to personally stop at the office they should call the middle school office, Park said. Students who attended Wayne Carroll schools last year are already registered, he added.

School for all students in the Wayne Carroll school system begins on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

June Bond Sale Totals $36,079

Sales of U.S. Savings Bonds in Wayne County during June totaled $36,079 and brought half year sales to $122,008 according to county chairman Henry Lev.

Sales throughout Nebraska during June were $4,386,337, bringing the state wide, six-month total to $29,905,411.

At the end of June, the county had reached 59 per cent of the 1975 sales goal, substantially ahead of the 45 per cent record overall for the state.

Error Noted In Beef Story

An error was made in the Aug. 11, issue of The Wayne Herald in reporting the Wayne beef show at the 4-H County Fair.

This was the first year that Hugh Jager won the grand champion overall trophy for his market steer. The Aug. 11 story reported that he had won the same award in 1971 and 1974.

In those two years Jager won the grand champion market heifer award. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walt Jager of rural Carroll.

Local Guardsmen In Minnesota

National Guardsmen from the Wayne area began annual training at Camp Ripley, Minn., on Aug. 10.

The first week will be devoted to preparation for a training evaluation program. Men in Company A, with drill centers in Wayne and O'Neill, will fire various weapons during the preparation phase, as part of the 1st Battalion, 134th Infantry Brigade (Mechanized).

During the second week, the battalion will move into the field for maneuvers including a full scale attack, defensive action and counterattack. Regular army soldiers from Fort Carson, Colo., will evaluate the 88 hours of daylight and night tactical training.

Fort Carson has been the site of summer training for the battalion since 1969. According to a National Guard spokesman, the guardsmen are finding the permanent-type accommodations comfortable at Camp Ripley a welcome change from field tents normally awaiting them at Fort Carson. Camp Ripley is devoted exclusively to training National Guard units.

Winside Girls To Have Use Of City Gym

Winside High School girls will be getting a place of their own to practice basketball during the 1975-76 season.

The school board Monday night heard a report from superintendent Donald Leighton concerning an agreement for renting the village auditorium for practice sessions. The cost is $20 per session plus reimbursement for any damages incurred.

In other action the Winside board increased the school mileage allowance to 20 cents a mile and voted to accept standards set by the Education Department for free and reduced price school lunches.

Nettle Creek Players End Fifth Season

A 60 by 90-foot piece of land covered by a circus tent in Hagerstown, Indiana was an unofficial part of Nebraska's Wayne State College campus again this summer.

The tent was the performing home of Nettle Creek Players, a summer stock theatre. Among 40 members of the troupe are 20 from Wayne—present or former students or faculty, and two other Wayne residents.

Directing the company is Ron Wachholz, who was a communication arts instructor at Wayne the past four years and has been involved with Nettle Creek since its origin in 1971. In the coming year he will be full-time director of the community theatre in Richmond, Ind., near Hagerstown. Also in the Nettle Creek company as director of music is Micheal Patumbo, Wayne State orchestra director. His wife, Cindy, assists with production.

Nettle Creek Players happily reported their best year in attendance, averaging close to 200 a night for each play's eight showings. That number compares with 83 average attendance in the first summer.

Wayne State students or graduates have been conspicuous in lead roles—Becky Miller of Richmond, Ind., with the title role in "Sweet Charity"; Mark Hamm, formerly of South Sioux City as Don Quixote and Ken Graffis as Laurel in "Man of La Mancha"; Joel Miller of Atlantic, Ia., as the King in "The King and I." For the latter, incidentally, Miller has his head shaved bald—like Yul Brynner in the movie version. "The King and I" had its last performance Sunday.

Hamm had another major role in his fourth year with the troupe, as business manager.

Between summer seasons, he spent most of his time in Hagerstown as resident of the big two-story house which the company owns as summer home for most of the cast.

Wayne State students, past or present, in the troupe besides those mentioned above, are Noel Rennerfeldt, Oakland, Jan Dickson, Pierce; Laura Hansen, Omaha; Harold Grant Jr., Omaha; Michael Schneidt, Fowler, Ind.; John Stark, Schuyler; Mark Davenport, South Sioux City; Joe Manley, Wayne; Duane Clausen, Rushville; Carter and Lori Leeka, Winnebago; Paula Eoff, Frontsburg, Md.; Rick Kuebler, Kearney. Also in the cast is Bob Skokan of Wayne, a University of Nebraska student.

Among these, the first-year students receive college credit. The veterans of two or more years receive varying pay, primarily by board and room.

Nettle Creek Players originated in 1971 when three residents of New Castle, 10 miles west of Hagerstown, decided east central Indiana needed a summer stock theatre. After much search for a place to perform, they found an empty lot in Hagerstown and rented a tent.

A tent presents some production problems, says Wachholz, but the players learn a lot about improvising. Sometimes they also have to scurry when rain comes—close the side flaps, carry in props stored outdoors, watch for leaks.

Wachholz made one change this summer. Instead of a stage up front, he switched to theatre-in-the-round. Now the cast performs on a 20 by 24-foot platform. The tent's center pole is middle stage, but that's handy for hanging props and lights.

BALANCE AND hand skill are as important as speed and power in the figure-eight event of the Dixon County bicycle rodeo. Here, county agent Roy Stohler times Jody Lynn Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugen Jones of Allen, as she goes through her paces.

Bike Rodeo Tests Skills Of Dixon County Riders

A total of eight purple ribbons were awarded to riders in the Dixon County 4-H bicycle rodeo Thursday morning in the park at Concord.

Riders guided their two wheelers through five events, including a "slow race", a figure-eight timed event and an obstacle course, designed to test their skill at safe bike handling practices.

Purple ribbon winners in the senior division were George Watchorn and Ricky Schweers, both of Ponca. Doug Koester of Concord and Kirk Echtenkamp of Wayne.

Junior riders receiving purple ribbons were Anita Fritschen of Concord, Colette Kraemer of Allen, Steffen Schweers of Ponca and Kimihito Ishizuka, a Japanese student staying with the Lloyd Roebber family of rural Wakefield as part of a cultural exchange program.

Other senior ribbon winners were Blue—Annette Fritschen of Concord and Ricky Curry of Ponca. Red—Dawn Kliver of Allen and Mary Jo Lundin of Allen.

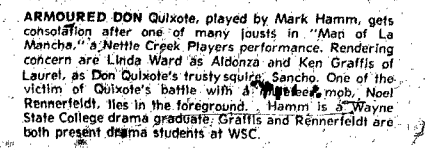

Ribbons were won by the following junior riders: Blue—Jody Kaulman and Leigh Croade, both of Wakefield; Keith Curry and Doug Rickett, both of Ponca; Kevin Echtenkamp and Mark Schuttler, both of Wayne; Jill Hanson of Concord; Robb Linaletter, John Stapleton and Jeanne Warner, all of Allen and See RODEO, page 6.

Highway Plan Now Available

The state department of roads has completed the first draft of a planning study report for proposed improvement of Highway 35, beginning at the junction with Highway 98.

Work proposed includes grading, culvert work, bridge work and surfacing. Copies of the report are available at the Roads Department district office in Norfolk.

Formal comments about the report will be accepted until Sept. 15.

Borrowing money—a matter of interest

By Richard L. Leshner, President U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Applied for a loan lately? If so, you were probably shocked by the size of interest rates recently.

What can be done to get the rates down? Well, there are two schools of thought on that. One group says the answer is to print more money. The other group says the answer is to print less money.

The reason for this slight divergence of opinion is that money is probably the only commodity which can increase in cost both when there's less of it and when there's more of it.

By now, you're probably as confused as the typical congressman. Read on, and I'll try to untangle things.

It's easy to understand why interest rates go up when money is scarce, or "tight." When borrowers want more money than lenders are willing to part with at a given interest rate, then some borrowers will offer to pay a higher rate to get what they need. By this process, the "price" of money — its interest rate — is bid up, just like an auction.

When the cost of borrowing money goes up, less of it is borrowed. People put off buying new cars or houses or appliances. Businessmen put off expansion plans. The economy slows down.

Since an economic slowdown usually causes unemployment, tight money is politically unpopular. Whenever interest rates go up far enough to pinch, there are calls in Congress for the Federal Reserve system to "ease-up" and make more money available (that is, create new money). In theory, such an increase in the money supply should bring down the interest rate. But that theory hasn't been working very well in practice lately, because of inflation.

Understanding the relationship between inflation and interest rates is extremely important for all of us today — especially those in Congress.

This relationship is not at all difficult to see if you put yourself in the place of the lender. Suppose your brother-in-law wants to borrow $100 from you for one year, at a simple interest rate of 5 per cent. At the end of the year, you would hope to get back your original $100, plus an extra $5 for your service to the borrower.

But, wait a minute. If inflation for that year is 10 per cent, then the $100 you get back will no longer be worth $100 in terms of what it will buy — it will be worth only $90. So, even with the extra $5 in interest, you will still have lost $5.50 on the deal. (The $5 in interest has also depreciated to $4.50.)

How long would you be willing to go on making loans on that basis? Not long, I'll bet. What you'd do is add an "inflation premium" to the interest rate, to compensate you for what you expect to lose in the case of our example, if you want to make 5 per cent in "real" terms, you'd have to charge the borrower 15 per cent, and that, my friends, is how inflation raises interest rates.

(Interest rates also vary with the degree of risk foreseen by the lender. Your brother-in-law might have to pay a higher rate than General Motors. But such charges vary with the individual borrower, and are not much affected by inflation.)

So what's wrong with the Fed expanding the money supply to lower interest rates? Well, by now most of us know that inflation is caused when the money supply increases faster than the supply of goods and services. When the Fed creates a lot of new money to ease interest rates, it also aggravates inflation. And inflation raises interest rates. That's the trap.

As Treasury Secretary William Simon said early this year, "Each time we lose a bout with inflation, interest rates are ratcheted higher. In 1966 rates on long term corporate bonds peaked at a little over 6 per cent, in 1970 they reached almost 10 per cent, and last year the high was 12 per cent.

If the credit needs of the Federal Government were not so great, there would be more money available at lower rates for private borrowers — without the need to print worthless dollars to satisfy the demand.

For all of us, that's a matter of great interest.

STRAYER Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

THIS ITEM from "Farm Reports" a weekly news letter received by the Wayne County ASCS office: Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz's nephew — Dave Butz — has left the St. Louis team and will play defensive football for the Washington Redskins. There's a rumor that in return for young Butz, St. Louis will receive from Washington two members of the House Committee on Agriculture and the 1976 draft choice of the Democratic National Convention.

boosters who thought it would reduce the problem.

Did the vandals lose interest for all the lack of publicity? Not at all. Exactly the opposite. During the period, police records showed a 30 per cent increase.

The vandalism in the Winside area occurred a week ago (Aug 11) when some evidently decided to shoot up the country side, including two Holstein cows and a couple of mail boxes.

It remains to be seen if anyone will be caught, but I'd like to give whoever is involved something to think about — according to U.S. Postal Law, destroying a letter box is punishable by a penalty term or a four-digit fine or both. Whether or not the mystery marauder(s) would be charged under the law if arrested I have no way of knowing but it might be something to think about the next time they get an itchy trigger finger.

VANDALISM near Winside during the past week makes this item from the West Point newspapers seem appropriate. Over in Webster City, Ia., the radio and newspaper agreed not to mention vandalism for a three month period. The agreement came in response to civic

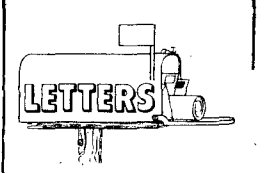

"DON'T THROW IT AWAY!" is the admonition of M. Van Kirk, information director for the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation. He says old farmsteads across American contain, though sands, perhaps millions of dollars worth of "treasure," at least in terms of what antique collectors might buy.

Old glass jars that grandmother used for canning, especially the ones with glass tops, are bringing as much as $5 each.

Old harness sets, long unused, may be valuable. At a recent market, a horse collar with brass knobbed hames attached had a price tag of $50. Straps of harness bells go for hundreds of dollars with bells valued at about $12 each, according to Van Kirk. Horse drawn sleighs, carriages and buggies are especially hot items.

Hand cranked and foot pedaled items are also said to have special value. Old toys are becoming popular, especially those little iron horses and farm sets that grandma might have packed away.

Just because something is old doesn't mean it's valuable but it appears the percentage is good enough that it would pay to save them.

Senior Citizens liked parade

Dear Editor

We of the Wayne Senior Citizen Center wish to thank Mr. Richard Miller, one of the committee members, for extending the invitation to us to participate in the 75th anniversary celebration of the "Old Settlers' Parade" held recently in Winside.

We wish to thank them for the $25.00 that we received in the club division, for first prize for our float, our "Bobbles and Bubbettes" band members dressed in old fashioned clothing, and playing of the old fashioned tunes and patriotic songs, carrying out the bicentennial theme.

We appreciate being included in the activities of our community, as our age group, "senior citizens" have helped to make this community a good one; that it is.

Livestock auction termed a success

Dear Editor

As junior members of the 4-H council, we felt that the 4-H bonus auction held at the fair was an outstanding success. The sale went very smoothly which is a credit to all of the people who worked many hours in setting it up. Don Spitz and the sale committee did a great job in organizing and executing the sale. Special thanks goes to auctioneers Stan Baier, Orville Lage, Jim Troutman, Al Wieseler, the Wayne banks for clerking and the 4-H leaders who helped during the sale. Our sincerest appreciation is extended to the many buyers and bidders who came and showed their support to the 4-H program. Thank you — Janet Splitterger and Steve Gramlich

OBSERVATIONS

Economic impact should be considered

First District Congressman Charles Thone is planning to introduce legislation which would require all federal agencies to attempt to estimate the economic effect proposed regular before implementing such rules — an "economic impact statement." To borrow a phrase from the environmentalists.

There is plenty of evidence to support such legislation. For example, a U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission rule states that "articles not meeting the requirement of the regulation are to be considered as banned, and added to the Banned Products List by the Consumer Safety Commission."

The commission, therefore, gives itself the power to ban a complete line of products without any court action.

According to Thone, the commission issued in September, 1973, a "Special Holiday List" of "dangerous" toys and prohibited sale of the listed items. Through a mistake, several products of Marlin Toy Products, Inc. were listed. The bulk of the company's toys are produced for sale during the Christmas season.

It was December before Marlin could get the commission to acknowledge that it had made an "editorial error."

By then, the company had lost over a million dollars in sales and was forced out of the toy business. Three-fourths of the 85 company employees were laid off — a substantial decline in employment for the 1,400 resident community of Horicon, Wis., where the plant was located.

The company is still teetering on the edge of bankruptcy — thanks to a bureaucratic oversight.

The automobile industry has also been hard hit by arbitrary decisions by bureaucrats. First there was an order several years ago by the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration that auto manufacturers produce cars which would allow occupants to survive any crash at up to 30 miles per hour — without seatbelts. On a federal judge eventually ruled that the order was impossible to achieve, but only after expensive litigation, the cost of which must be passed along to the American consumer.

Then there was the inter lock seatbelt system which required buckling up for — among other things — a sack of groceries on the passenger's seat. It's been done away with but development of the system and tooling up for production of a new component is expensive and those costs must also be passed along to the consumer, regardless of the number of units produced.

Now we are finding out the much touted catalytic converter might be putting chemicals into the air which are more harmful than the hydrocarbons it is designed to reduce.

Even if requirement of the converter is dropped, the American consumer will still be paying for development costs — not to mention whatever increase in fuel prices was caused when many distributors were forced to go to the expense of installing tanks for the unleaded fuel required by the converters.

Thone's idea seems like a good one, as long as the legislation is written so that it doesn't become too binding, and end up causing the type of situations it is designed to prevent. — by Jim Strayer.

'Stay alive in '75'

STATEMENT BY GOVERNOR J. JAMES EXON

We are entering the last half of 1975. August is especially known for its killing effect on Nebraska's roadways. Once again, I am concerned about the number of senseless deaths which will occur because someone made a mistake, or because some driver was irresponsible for just a moment.

We all know how easy it is to make a mistake. Some errors can be easily corrected. But when the mistake is a matter of life and death, there is no second chance. A motor vehicle — the same as a gun — is not a toy. Both can kill. Both need to be handled with respect.

There were 55 murders in Nebraska in 1974. That is a shocking thing. Yet, there were 388 persons killed in motor vehicle accidents. I find that shocking, also.

Many times people seem appalled by murders, but resigned to motor vehicle fatalities. Yet, is unplanned violence any less violent than planned? Are the dead any less dead?

Here in Nebraska, we are continually concerned with conservation. We know our water supply and our land must be conserved and cared for if we are to go on enjoying the benefits of each. And we see this concern for ecology expressed as citizens across the state recycle papers and glass, pick up trash and clean out streams. Yet we continue to destroy our most valuable resource — our people — at an appalling rate on Nebraska's roadways.

During July, 45 persons died on our state's roads — that's more than one per day. And in the first seven months of this year, we lost 193 persons in traffic accidents.

Those are 193 persons who will never make another contribution to Nebraska's Good Life. Those are 193 persons who are missed and mourned by their families and friends. Those people are resources we can never replace.

Probably the most tragic part of these traffic deaths is that they could have been avoided. If someone hadn't been speeding, if someone hadn't been drinking and driving, if someone hadn't been so sleepy, if someone would have had their brakes checked, if someone had been more alert, there are many "ifs" which could have kept these people alive today.

I have directed that the State Office of Highway Safety coordinate an educational traffic safety campaign. Nebraska's media has again pledged its support to reach all Nebraska drivers, young and old.

Drive as if your life depends on it. Please stay alert, and stay alive in '75.

Too much water forced the Wayne Swim Team's season to end with a tie Tuesday night at Wausa.

The dual meet was rained out shortly after it had begun and the coaches agreed to call it a tie.

SPORTS

Cat Practice Begins

Football for 1975 begins Monday (today) at Wayne State, and Coach Del Stoltenberg expects about 100 players. That would be the largest number in years, maybe a record.

Among the returnees about 30 to 35 will be lettermen and 17 of them are starters from last year.

With a fairly young squad last year, there were relatively few losses to graduation, but those 10 graders graduating included a lot of talent. The defense will miss a pair of veteran ends, Stan Lewis and Tom Allie, both four-time letter winners. Lewis was drafted by the Cleveland Browns. Also gone from the defense are inelbacker Regg

Swanson, who decided not to use a final year of eligibility because of knee surgery... and cornerback Brent Moeller.

The offense lost only wingback Dean Ott and guard Dick Giesmann, a considerable loss. Ott did everything there is to do on offense and set an all-time pass receiving record.

Stoltenberg will start heavy duty practice Monday after the squad checks in Sunday. Assisting him are Ralph Barclay, in his eleventh season directing Wildcat defense; Marion Hayner, coaching the offensive line for the third year; Doug Barry, handling the defensive backs in his second year, and graduate assistant Bill Morrison, who will help with the varsity and coach the junior varsity.

The Wildcats will have three weeks to prepare for their opener Sept. 6, at home against William Penn.

Lessor Sparks South; North String Broken

Auburn's Denis Lessor found the hoops very friendly at Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln Friday night especially during the second period as he fired the South All Stars to a 109-99 win over the North.

Lessor sparked the South's 27 point second period with 13 points as the North squads four game winning string in the annual Nebraska prep all-star clash came to an end.

The North All Stars, under Howells coach Jim Morrison, had practice for a week at Wayne State College in preparation for the game.

The North led only briefly in the early going but fell behind by as many as 13 points during the first half. A third quarter rally by the Yankees brought them within four points but they never could slow the South's record breaking offense.

With 3:12 left in the game, Omaha Burke's Bob

Omaha Cager Gives Impressions Of Wayne

Small town Wayne was a pleasant surprise for Howard Cotton, a player on the North All Star squad that practiced at Wayne State last week, highs from Omaha Technical High School.

"I was used to living in the big city, so I didn't know what life in Wayne would be like. But the people are friendly and they always have something for us to do," Cotton said.

Among other events planned, by the people of Wayne were trips to the county fair and a steak fry, held for Cotton and his eleven teammates.

The outstanding guard from the Tech Trojans also noted other big changes in his lifestyle since he began practicing with the Yankee All-Stars.

"It's a big adjustment having to go to basketball practice at night," Cotton observed. "And I'm not used to going to bed at 11 p.m. At home I stay up at least to 12:30 a.m."

Of all the events slated on the All Stars' schedule, Cotton especially looked forward to the mini camp for basketball players in grades six through nine. And if any young would-be basketball player asked Howard Cotton what it takes to be an All Star, Cotton had the answer. "It takes time and effort," explains the spunky 6.0 guard. "If you don't have natural talent, you've got to practice a lot to be good." Cotton believes anybody can be a good ball player with practice.

"When I broke my shooting wrist last season, I had to start shooting from scratch. I've practiced very hard, and I'm almost as good as I was, but my shooting percentage is not as high," he adds.

North head coach Jim Morrison was pleased with several aspects of Cotton's game.

"He seems to be a good ballhandler. He shows a lot of hustle and a big desire to win," says Morrison of his guard.

The desire to win is clearly evident when speaking with Cotton. During his two years of varsity basketball, Cotton's Tech team never beat Omaha Central. Cotton believes that it would be much better than beating Central if the North team can whip the South squad, which has two players from Central — John C. Johnson and Clayton Bullard.

Considering his own strengths and weaknesses, Cotton admits, "I dribble well under pressure, and I've got pretty good reflexes."

Although he has much talent, Cotton isn't sure about how much action he might see in the North-South classic played Friday in Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

"At Tech there was always a shakey player or two, but here Coach Morrison could start any five players he pleases — they're all good," says Cotton.

Friday night's game was the last four quarters of high school ball for Cotton and his eleven teammates from the north of Nebraska, but looking back, the living in Wayne was an enjoyable experience for Omaha's Howard Cotton.

"The food in Wayne was great," Cotton said with a laugh.

Bowler Meet Set

Plans for the coming men's bowling season will be made during the annual association meeting Tuesday night at 8 p.m. at Melodee Lanes in Wayne.

OMAHA TECH'S Howard Cotton (far right) and Columbus High School All Star Lowell Greenwall defend Bill Ourada of Elm Creek during a workout at Rice Auditorium.

WATER COLORS

Scientists say that the blue color of the sea is only a reflection of the sky. Patches of other colors—green, brown or red—in the open ocean are caused by microscopic organisms in the water.

Health Tips

Cigarette smoking is regarded as an important factor in the development of cancer of the lungs and larynx. It is regarded as the most important cause of chronic bronchitis. Male cigarette smokers have a higher death rate from coronary heart disease than nonsmoking men.

The Nebraska Medical Association recognizes that it is difficult to stop smoking, in spite of proven dangers. Success depends on wanting to quit, will power and the use of various gimmicks to break the habit pattern.

Guessers Expand Program

With the installation of a new information sign on the Wayne State College campus and plans for a membership drive, the Second Guessers club of Wayne is in the process of reorganizing.

Active in the community for about 10 years, the Second Guessers is an organization of about 35 businessmen interested in supporting sports in the area on both the high school and college levels.

In the past, the organization has met weekly with the various Wayne coaches to discuss the week's sports action. But now club president Bill Workman said the organization is planning to expand its activities.

"We first want to incorporate and become a recognized organization," Workman said. The first step for the Second Guessers will be a membership drive and Workman said he's hoping to hit the 100 mark in members.

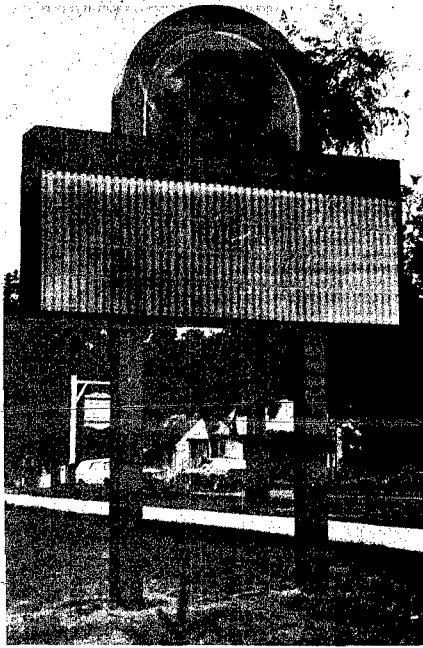

"Once our membership is established," he said, "we will look to other things."

In the past, the organization has sold reserve seats to Wayne State games, helped out with holiday basketball tournaments and just recently funded the new information sign on the west edge of the WSC campus.

Also among the projects planned for the near future by the Guessers is a promotion book for Wayne State College activities.

Persons interested in joining the organization can contact one of the four club officers according to Workman. Besides Workman, Bud Froehlich, Rowan Wiltse and Darrell Heier serve as officers.

A year's membership in the organization is $12.

JUST NEW this week on the Wayne State College campus is an information sign on the west edge of the campus. The sign was a result of one of the Second Guessers recent projects.

Prep Gridders Open Practices

Nebraska's prep football gets underway Monday (today) with the first sessions of grid practice at high schools throughout the state.

At Wayne Carroll High School, coach Al Hansen will begin his tenth year at the helm of the Blue Devils with a 10 a.m. meeting Monday. Throughout the first week of training, the Devil hopefuls will be practicing at 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Wayne Carroll will open its season September 5 at home against South Sioux City. Last year Wayne posted a 10-1 record.

The schedule is nearly the same at Wakefield, Monday at 10 a.m. head coach John Torson will have an equipment check-out meeting with a practice at 4 p.m. The rest of the week, the Wakefield gridders will practice at 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Torson, in his fifth year at Wakefield, will send his gridders against host Lyons on September 5. Last year Wakefield was 4-5 on the year.

Two new coaches are leading area grid squads this fall.

At Allen, Cliff Jorgenson has taken over the first year of coaching after graduating from Kearney State College. Practice Monday through Wednesday will begin at 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. Jorgenson said there will be no Tuesday night practice and the Thursday and Friday practice times have not yet been set.

Last year Allen finished 2-7. The other new area coach is Ron Peck at Winside. Winside gridders will have their first practice under Peck Monday at 7 a.m. Monday night the Winside hopefuls will return to the practice field at 7 p.m. The 7-and-7 practices will continue through the week.

Winside's opener will be September 5 at Wynot. Peck has been a head coach in Iowa for the past eight years and is a 1963 graduate of Wayne State College.

At Laurel, second year coach Bob Bozied will have his gridders working out at 7:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. beginning Monday. Last year Laurel posted a 3-7 mark. Laurel's first step at trying to improve that mark will come September 5 when they open with a home game against Randolph.

State Fair Line-Up Is Varied

The most diversified and star-studded line up of entertainment attractions in its history is on tap for the 1975 Nebraska State Fair.

The Captain and Tennille, a rock duo currently enjoying the top spot on national record charts with their hit, "Love Will Keep Us Together," will be the grandstand attraction to open the fair on Friday, Aug. 29.

The opening Saturday show, Aug. 30, will be a gospel music special. The Imperials, the John Mathews Family, Ray and The Emeralds, Coy Cook and The Inspirational are the featured gospel groups. Each group will perform individually, then all will combine talents for a gala, 40 voice closing spectacular.

Jack Albertson and Freddie Prinze, co-stars of "Chico and the Man," will be together on the grandstand stage for a single performance, Sunday, Aug. 31.

Versatile Roy Clark is the star for two grandstand performances, Labor Day night, Monday, Sept. 1, and Tuesday, Sept. 2.

In addition, The Osmonds will appear in a one-night performance Friday, Sept. 5, and two country and western stars, Lynn Anderson and Roger Miller, will share billing for the fair's final two nights, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 6 and 7.

Wednesday and Thursday evenings of fair week will be filled by an expanded championship tractor pulling contest.

Carmen Dragon, he and his wife, Toni Tennille, both served time with The Beach Boys, he primarily as an arranger and she playing piano and singing as the only "beach girl" ever to tour with the group.

Though best known for his current starring role as the station filling station operator in "Chico and the Man," Jack Albertson's TV credits also include the Commander Stoner role in "Ensign O'Toole" and parts in "Bracken's World," "Innside," "The Virginian" and "Marcus Welby, M.D.," among others.

By contrast, Freddie Prinze, Albertson's sidekick on the current series, is in his first starring role following graduation in 1973 from New York's High School of Performing Arts.

The 21 year old comedian did nightclub stints until he landed an appearance on the Jack Paar Show, and finally, "The Tonight Show," where his talent was noticed by James Komach, creator/producer of "Chico and the Man."

Roy Clark is no stranger to television viewers and fans of either popular or country music. He's starred on the "Hee Haw" series since its inception with his wit, singing and slurring abilities, while turning out hits like "Yesterday When I Was Young" and "For the Good Times," songs that bridge the gap between country and popular.

Honors have included Country Music Entertainer of the Year, and he is the only person to have been voted country music's top comedian in the same year by both the Country Music Association and the Academy of Country and Western Music.

The Osmonds can best be described as a family of stars. First, there were the Osmond Brothers, achieving stardom over a decade ago as regulars on the "Andy Williams Show" and following with appearances in "The Travels of Jamie McPheters" and "The Seven Little Foys."

Then Donny started releasing solo singles and albums, each an instant hit. Younger sister Marie came on the scene with her own country-flavored tunes and, in duet with Donny, some successful revivals like "Morning Side of the Mountain" and "Leavin' It All Up to You." Young Jimmy is also making a name as a single, especially in Japan and England.

Arriving in Nashville from North Dakota by way of California, Lynn Anderson has been a consistent country hit producer, even before her smash, "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden." "Ride, Ride, Ride," "Too Much of You" and "Promises, Promises" are others that have been high on the popularity charts.

"King of the Road" was the kind of different song, and Roger Miller's the different, down home type of sound that took the country by storm a few years ago.

Since then, the "king" has written and recorded a string of hits that includes "Little Green Apples," "Dang Me" and "You Can't Roller Skate in a Buffalo Herd" and hosted his own television series while maintaining a schedule of personal appearances and television guest spots.

Prolific Morning Doves Now On Hunter's List

The mourning dove is finally recognized as a game bird under Nebraska law, a classification justified by the bird's biological data and its history.

According to studies by wild life biologists across the country, the mourning dove is a prolific and very plentiful bird. And, there are very few places that support more doves than Nebraska.

Norm Dey, the Game and Parks Commission's waterfowl and migratory game biologist, reports that Nebraska is the third largest producer of doves in the nation, ranking only behind Oklahoma and Kansas. Dey declined to estimate Nebraska's dove population saying only that it would probably be "in the millions." However, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service authorities have estimated the North American dove population at some where around 500 million birds.

Judging by annual harvest figures, the mourning dove is the most popular game bird in America. It is estimated that dove hunting provides recreation to roughly two million dove hunters each year.

One reason for the abundance of doves is their high rate of reproduction. They will nest almost anywhere, even selecting a spot on the ground if a site in a free is not handy. A pair of doves will raise several broods each summer, and will nest immediately if a clutch of eggs is destroyed.

Doves also thrive because of their adaptability. While more intensive agriculture practices have worked to the detriment of other game species, these fact ors seem to have little effect upon the dove. Other game species are declining because of habitat loss at a time when demand for outdoor recreation is increasing. In the meantime, doves continue to thrive.

As is the case with all prolific game species, there is considerable natural mortality. Less than half of the birds hatched in any given year survive until the next breeding season. Annual losses run from 50-40 to 70 per cent, whether the doves are hunted or not, according to biologist studies.

Nebraska has not had a dove season since 1952, and the population remained about the same in Kansas, where dove hunting has been allowed, the population actually increased slightly, so it is apparent that hunting has no bearing on the dove population.

The limiting factor is not the gun, but habitat, as with all other game species.

Nebraska's first dove season in 23 years was authorized by the Unicameral, and the Game and Parks Commission has adopted a 30 day season for 1975, beginning September 1.

Overpowering your boat does not necessarily increase speed. In fact it may slow the craft, and it certainly will increase the costs of installation and fueling. Each boat is designed to operate at peak efficiency with a certain horsepower which is listed on the capacity plate. Try changing the propeller for better performance, the number and pitch of the blades can make a great difference for little expense.

Checks Reflect Benefit Hikes For Veterans

Special checks will be mailed in September to 13,810 disabled veterans in Nebraska and 3,065 dependents in the state who qualify for increases in their disability compensation and dependency indemnity compensation signed into law by President Ford on Aug. 5.

The increases of 10 to 12 per cent were effective Aug. 1, but the change came too late to be incorporated in the checks to be mailed at the end of August, according to James C. Smith, director of the Lincoln VA regional office.

The separate checks to be mailed to beneficiaries next month will range from $3 to $174, he said. The new rates will be reflected in checks to be mailed at the end of September and in subsequent monthly checks.

Nationally, 2.2 million disabled veterans and 300,000 dependents were eligible for the benefit hike. Total cost of the increases for the first year will be $450 million.

Smith emphasized that no application or inquiry is necessary. The increases will be made automatically by the agency, he said. Veterans with a 50 per cent or less disability rating received a 10 per cent increase in their monthly payments. Veterans with a greater disability rating and dependency indemnity compensation beneficiaries received a 12 per cent increase under the new law.

Monthly payments to single veterans with 10 per cent disabilities were increased from $32 to $35. Veterans rated 100 per cent under the general schedule were raised from $584 to $655. For the most severely disabled, the maximum amount was raised from $1,454 to $1,628 monthly.

Shavings and Sawdust Mark a Growing Nation

Was America born of a land of whittlers? The question comes to mind among today's plastic age craftsmen when they notice the increasing popularity of wood in serving the needs and satisfactions of modern man.

Many believe there may be more wood being used in the United States now than ever before, thanks largely to home building and furniture making. If wood is not still America's most versatile material, being used for making things, the National Geographic Society says, at least it may be the most admired.

"There's a spirit in wood that draws man to touch, feel, be one with wood," says George Nakashima, one of America's most sought after contemporary cabinetmakers, in the Geographic's new book, "The Craftsmen of America."

He believes in "a partnership between man and wood neither meant to live alone." Even if they had wanted to, the foresters of the nation had no choice of living without wood.

America of 300 years ago was a land of trees. A squirrel with a yen for travel could have made it from the Jamestown colony in what was to become Virginia, to the north woods of the Great Lakes without ever touching ground.

Wood had a big part in the way of life for the early settlers. The cabinetmakers, rail splitters, barn builders, the carvers of ship's figureheads, the coopers, the wheelwrights, the decoy shapers, the fashioners of country fiddles—all became part of the American grain, the fiber of the nation's character.

Before the advent of the industrial revolution in the United States, wood was nature's all purpose material for the craftsman, almost regardless of what he made.

Wooden heads displayed the wares of the wig maker, wooden frames held quilts for colonial needlework, wooden looms and shuttles were indispensable to the weaver. Cigar store Indians, merry go round horses, little girls' dolls—all were wood.

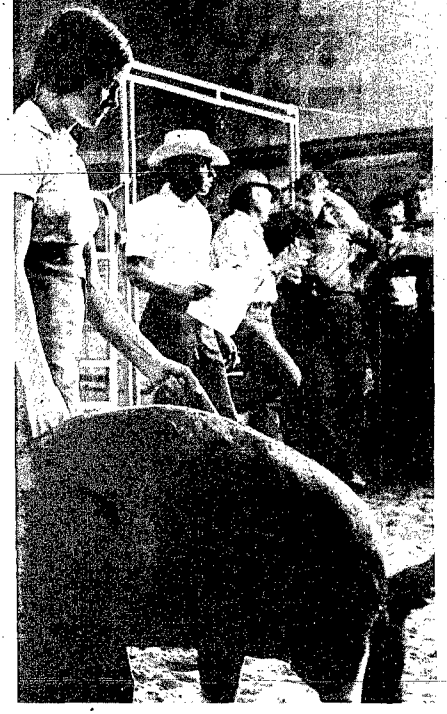

In kitchens, wood dippers and bowls, butter churns and spoons, and dozens of other tools of the cook were fashioned of wood. It was the silversmith's hammering block and the blacksmith's charcoal. Architects and builders imitated stone blocks and marble pillars with wood. Farmers used it for almost every thing, from oxen yokes to shaving horses for making barn shingles.

Today, when do it yourself woodworking is a hobby more than an essential skill, it still has a strong appeal even watching wood being worked.

Everybody smiled with understanding, according to one old story, when someone in a ring of bystanders watching Mark Twain working over a chunk of wood with a jackknife finally asked him what he was whittling.

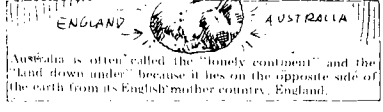

"Walking stick," a statuette, a whittling?"

"No," Twain answered, "a pair of shavings."

Direct Deposit Available For Monthly SS Checks

People who live in Nebraska and 22 other States west of the Mississippi River are getting a special opportunity to have their monthly social security and supplemental security income checks deposited directly in their checking or savings accounts... The direct deposit program is entirely voluntary... People who want their social security and supplemental security income checks to continue coming to their homes shouldn't do anything... But people who want their checks mailed to a bank savings bank, savings and loan association or similar institution or a Federal or State chartered credit union can arrange for it with a direct deposit authorization form... Direct deposit information is being mailed with checks that will be delivered in August to people who get monthly social security or supplemental security income payments... Completion of the form does not permit withdrawals from your account by anyone other than people you authorize... Branch said... People whose checks are already being mailed to a financial organization should also make direct deposit arrangements with the SF 1199 form... The direct deposit program will help prevent loss and theft of social security and supplemental security income checks and will eliminate standing in line to cash or deposit them... The direct deposit option is also being offered to people getting social security and supplemental security income checks in Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, Washington and Wyoming... The program will be extended to other States in the next few months... Branch said... Social security pays monthly retirement, disability, and survivors benefits to eligible workers and their families... The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over or blind or disabled.

Health Tips

Happy parents are those who know what to expect of their child... The Nebraska Medical Association points out that it is understandable that parents become defeated by a two-year-old who says "no" to everything... a four year old who hits and bites, or a thirteen year old who is moody and retreats to his room... Behavior can be tolerated, if not enjoyed, when parents realize the behavior that is normal at that particular age... The child's journey from helpless infant to responsible adult, hood takes eighteen to twenty-one years, at least... It takes a long time for muscles and coordination to mature so a child can walk and write his name... He must learn to control his nervous system to take dis- appointment without crying, or concentrate on what a teacher is saying to him at school... Raising children is sometimes easier when parents remember that good children sometimes do naughty things... The Nebraska Medical Association suggests that a child brought up in the spirit and atmosphere of love, acceptance and understanding has the best chance of being a happy, healthy adult.

Covenant Women Meet Wednesday

Covenant Women met Wednesday afternoon with 30 members present. Final plans were made for serving the noon luncheon Saturday, Aug. 16 for the Northeast Nebraska Delta Kappa Gamma Chapter of Professional Women Teachers.

An article was read concerning the action of the Federal Communications Commission to deny a petition to disqualify religious groups from broadcasting on television or FM channels reserved for educational programming. More than 700,000 letters had been received by the FCC in protest. However, many had the mistaken idea that all religious programming on all networks and stations would be banned.

Some discussion was held on ways to raise money for the bicentennial.

Following the business meeting, Renee Wenstrand played two piano numbers for the group.

Mrs. Iris Larson had devotions, using Psalm 111 in expressing thanks for Jan Gray and her work the past year in Ecuador.

Save for Second Service

Take proper care of meat leftovers immediately after serving. Cover closely to prevent drying out and store them in the refrigerator. To save space, cut meat from the bones and wrap tightly in plastic wrap or bags or aluminum foil. It is best not to grind or chop leftover cooked meat until you are ready to use it again, unless it is to be frozen.
