City Electric Rates To Jump 15 Per Cent

The Wayne city council Tuesday night passed a resolution to increase city electric rates by 15 per cent.

The increase becomes effective with the billing period ending in mid-October.

Discussion of an electric rate study was listed on the agenda but the council dropped the matter for the time pending information from the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) concerning an expected increase in wholesale rates. The city is considering buying power from the company and leasing the Wayne plant to NPPD.

According to city administrator Fred Brink, the city-owned electric plant has operated in the red since 1964.

Brink informed the council that fuel used to generate power will increase by 1.6 cents for a new price of 30.84 cents a gallon. Following the meeting, he pointed out that the fuel price was 13 cents a gallon in September, 1973. The new price puts generation costs at about 22 mills per kilowatt when diesel fuel is used. Natural gas is the primary fuel used but large volume curtailment to commercial is expected during peak use period this winter.

Controversy again centered around a salary increase requested by Brink. At the last council meeting, the vote was four to three in favor of granting the jump from $19,126 to the $21,085, giving the ordinance on first round approval but failing to muster the necessary six votes which would have allowed second and third readings that same night. Council members John Vakoc, Caroline Filter and Vernon Russell registered the "no" votes.

The three members again objected Tuesday night when the ordinance came up for second reading. Russell stated that while he wasn't saying the raise was or wasn't merited, he didn't believe information on Brink's work, necessary to make a judgement, had been provided. Mrs. Filter said the salary should be negotiated and Russell asked that the matter be discussed in executive session. Council president Jim Thomas, acting in the absence of mayor Freeman Decker, city attorney Budd Bornhoff if that was possible under provisions of the state public disclosure law.

The attorney reviewed the statute and said he couldn't see any justification for a closed session. The idea was advanced by the council on the grounds that it was necessary to protect a reputation (Brink's), one of the circumstances under which closed sessions may be held.

Brink indicated that he didn't care to take the salary negotiation into closed session but Russell made the motion which was seconded by Bahe. Vakoc cast the only dissenting vote (councilman Ivan Beeks was absent.)

Upon their return to their regular chambers, the council passed a resolution dictating an ordinance giving a salary hike to $20,700, $385 a year less than Brink had asked for. Vakoc and Filter voted against the raise.

October 16 was set as the date for a special hearing to consider a request for rezoning of a residence to allow business use. Carlos and Sherian Fry have indicated they wish to operate a pottery and art center in a house at Seventh and Logan Streets.

Brink informed the council that paving has been completed at the industrial development site east of Wayne. Under a resolution passed by the council Brink will present a report on completion of the project completion in order to obtain payment of a $40,000 Federal Home Administration grant.

The council agreed tentatively to sell a five acre tract at the site to Nutrition Plus, Inc. Brink said Merle Stier of Wayne has said the company will process gourmet cuts of beef. In order to allow development prior to legal publication necessary for the sale of city property, the council agreed to lease the land to the

Corporation Plans Export Of Gourmet Beef Product

Prime beef from northeast Nebraska is now being packaged for gourmet tastes abroad and more of the tasty meat will probably be exported if a new, locally-owned corporation is successful.

The Wayne city council Tuesday night gave tentative approval for the sale to Nutrition Plus, Inc. of five acres of land at the city industrial site.

Nutrition Plus owner Merle Stier of Wayne said Wednesday morning that the company, not yet incorporated, will be used as a vehicle for setting up another corporation, U.S. Choice Steak Sales, Inc.

The deal will be to contract with local cattle feeders for choice and prime beef. The feeders will market the beefs at regular packing houses, but will reserve the loin portion.

The select portions of beef will be processed into gourmet cuts of meat, quick frozen and packaged for export.

Stier said Larry Johnson, owner of Johnson Frozen Foods in Wayne, is already packaging some such cuts for foreign export. Processing for the new company would initially be done in his plant. A warehouse building would be located at the industrial site.

"We hope to eventually outgrow Larry's facility and build a processing plant but that will depend on how successful we are," Stier said.

The idea behind the enterprise is to establish a meat processing business, owned by local people including cattle feeders. How successful the corporation will be remains to be seen, but Stier seems optimistic.

"We've got the whole world for a market, the demand is great and it hasn't been filled. And of course, we've got the best product in the world right here," Stier said. "The basic ingredients for a successful business are supply and demand. Both exist and we're trying to put them together."

Sherry Brothers Will Operate Feed, Hardware Business at New Location

Bob's Farm Service no longer exists in Wayne but proprietor Bob Sherry was joined Wednesday in a new enterprise, Sherry Bros., Inc., by brother Don Sherry.

In addition to the feed, fertilizer and farm chemical business operated under the old name, Sherry Bros. will open at True Value hardware store in the building at 116 W. First St. in Wayne, formerly occupied by Logan Valley Implement.

Bob Sherry said he expects the hardware store to be open by Nov. 1. The company's effective incorporation date was Wednesday. He has already moved his feed storage from the old Wayne railroad depot building into a warehouse occupying the east half of his new building. The warehouse was part of the Logan Valley maintenance and repair shop.

Sherry said the new feed building consolidates storage sites in addition to the old depot. The company's liquid bulk fertilizer plant will remain at its present location on Oak Drive.

The new hardware store will be farm oriented, stocking items such as fencing, bulk chain and tools. The remodeled building will provide about 5,000 square feet of floor space.

Arval Brantletter, building owner, said modification to the store exterior include a mansard type front, four foot wide windows separated by eight foot white panels, and a recessed

Wayne Airport Authority Plans Aircraft Display

Wayne area residents will have an opportunity to see a variety of aircraft used in business and pleasure flying when the Wayne Municipal Airport has open house on Oct. 19.

Airport Authority members decided Monday to sponsor the event in recognition of Governor J.J. Exon's designation of October as General Aviation Awareness Month in Nebraska.

Airport authority member Merlin Wright said all owners with aircraft will be asked to have their planes on display for the open house. He added that owners from other communities might also be invited to participate. Hours for the display will be from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

The open house is part of a state-wide program developed by the State Department of Aeronautics and the Federal Aviation Administration to focus attention on the value of general aviation to a community.

A lot adjacent to the building east, used by Logan Valley for machinery display, has been paved and will provide parking for about 25 customers.

Features inside include paneled walls, a lowered ceiling and new offices, carpeting and tile floors.

Another business is scheduled to begin operation in the building this weekend. Don Lanston will operate Specialty Electronics from a shop in the north east corner of the hardware store as an independent business.

Langston began the repair business in his home on a part-time basis about a year ago and has been doing repair work full time since about January.

Safety Commission Will Study Accident Pattern

The Wayne traffic safety commission will meet Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the county ASCS office.

Chairman Ray Butts said the commission will review accident reports to determine if there are any specific trouble spots in Wayne which are contributing to the increase in traffic accidents.

The commission is made up of seven members who were appointed in December, 1973 by Kent Hall during his term as mayor, and deputy sheriff Scotty Thompson, appointed by the county commissioners as their representative.

Members in addition to Butts are Dean Pierson, Kurc Oite, Orville Sherry, Joe Dorsey and Al Wittig.

Wayne County Historical Society Will Convert House Into Second Museum

The home of the late Rollie Ley became property of the Wayne County Historical Society Tuesday night when three of his five children signed documents authorizing the gift.

The home, located at the corner of Seventh and Lincoln Streets in Wayne, was built in 1902 by Dr. William C. Wright man, who came to Wayne in 1887. Rollie Ley purchased the two-story frame home in 1912.

The structure reflects the elegant architecture of the time, complete with a porch extending around the front of the home. Accommodations include five marble fireplaces, five bedrooms and a sleeping porch.

Participating in the transfer-of-deed ceremony Tuesday night were three of Rollie Ley's children: Harold Ley, Mrs. Harold Hein and Mrs. Richard Armstrong all of Wayne. Two sisters, Mrs. Mary Alice Champs and Mrs. Milton Auker, live in California. The museum will be dedicated in memory of their father. The house has been vacant since the death of their stepmother, Mrs. Gertrude Ley, Mrs. Clifford Johnson, a member of the outgoing historical society board of directors, said the organization will outfit the home with fixtures and furnishings from the period in which it was built.

Converting the new acquisition into a museum will be under taken by the county Bicentennial committee in conjunction with the historical society. Money left in the Bicentennial committee's coffers when the organization is disbanded will go towards maintenance and furnishing of the home.

Mrs. Johnson said the historical society already has a number of items in storage which will probably go into the new MUSEUM, page 8

Wayne Woman Is Killed In Highway 35 Accident

The second fatal accident in less than a week on Highway 35 east of Wayne occurred Sunday when Mrs. Lillian Luaders, 44 of Wayne, was killed in a one-car crash.

State Patrol Trooper William Watson said the accident happened at an intersection about five miles east of Wayne when Mrs. Luaders pulled into the left lane to pass a car making a right turn off the highway

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Wakefield Community Hospital.

Watson said wet pavement and the condition of the road probably contributed to the accident. See ACCIDENT, page 8

'75 Community Chest Drive Is Off to Good Start

Wayne businessmen and individuals gave more than $1,900 to the Community Chest during an advance gifts luncheon Tuesday.

Twenty people donated a total of $1,915 during the luncheon, held to give an early boost to the drive to raise $12,900 and to give employers an opportunity to conduct drives within their own businesses if they wish.

Marilyn Carhart, secretary of the Community Chest, said the donations made at the luncheon plus about $350 she has received through the mail puts the total amount received at $2,270—one of the best starts the Community Chest has had in recent years.

The nearly 35 people who turned out for the luncheon at Wayne State's Student Center was fewer than the board of directors had hoped for. Most business owners and managers were invited to the luncheon along with many of the larger donors from last year's fund drive.

Although the number was small, the average donation given during the luncheon was over $50 each, giving board members reason to believe that the $12,900 goal can be reached if other businessmen follow suit and if individuals contacted donate their fair share.

Kem Swarts, president of the board of directors, told the gathering that this year's goal represents about a 12 per cent increase over the 1974 figure of $11,450.

"My understanding is that the drive last year came the closest to meeting its goal since the fund drive in 1967," Swarts said. "This year, with your help, I think we can reach our goal."

The actual fund drive, which board members hope can be completed in two weeks, will not start until Tuesday, Oct. 14, when a breakfast is held at the Student Center for all captains and their workers who will be making individual solicitations for funds. That breakfast is set for 7 a.m., with coffee and rolls served at 50 cents per person.

If Wayne reaches its goal of $12,900 this year, the money will be distributed in the following manner: $3,000 to the local recreation program, $2,500 to Boy Scouts, $2,400 to Girl Scouts, $1,400 to Salvation Army, $700 each to the Senior Citizens Center and to the Arthritis Foundation, $500 to Red Cross, $300 to the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation and $200 to the Florence Crittenton Home in Sioux City, a home for unwed mothers.

Swarts emphasized during Tuesday's luncheon that the Community Chest was organized several years ago in order to cut down the number of drives held in Wayne.

Speaking to the gathering, Swarts said the Chest needs the help of everyone to "point out that this isn't one drive, but THE drive."

Community Chest board members are in the process of finding five people each who will serve as their captains in this year's drive.

Each captain in turn will find five workers who will go out to ask individual citizens for donations to this year's drive.

The Oct. 14 "kickoff" breakfast is being held for all captains and all their workers. Each worker will select five card during that breakfast so they can talk to people individually and ask them, to donate money toward this year's goal.

Business owners or employers who did not attend Tuesday's advance gifts luncheon may contact one of the board members or the secretary if they wish to conduct the fund drive in their own business.

Serving on the board are Joan Potts, Dick Manley, Laura Franklin, Bob Barlett, Bob Reeg, Neil Dinges, David Ley and Kay Swarczek.

Serving as drive chairman is Bill Workman. He is assisted by Don Zeiss.

Heritage Arts to Be Lesson for October

Open up that old trunk, the cedar chest or the dresser drawer in the store room and you'll find pieces of embroidery, crocheting or other needlework done by your ancestors.

The nation's bicentennial is reviving interest in needlework and heritage arts of the past says Anna Marie Kreifels, area home economist at the North east Station near Concord.

During October and November, home extension clubs in Cedar, Dixon, Dakota, Wayne and Thurston Counties will be discussing heritage arts at their club meetings, she notes.

Training sessions for home extension club lesson leaders and other interested organizations in the five county area will be conducted in October to give these representatives information that they in turn, can present to their club members.

The extension lesson is planned to acquaint club members with a variety of textile and stitchery arts such as patch work, needlepoint, hemstitching, embroidery and others. Miss Kreifels, who will be conducting the training meeting, said time will not allow the actual teaching of these skills, however leaders will have the opportunity to express interest in various techniques so that work shops might be offered at a later time.

Training for the lesson, "Heritage Arts," will be held Oct. 8, 9, 30 a.m., city auditorium, Hartington.

Prep Picks: Divisional Battles On Tap for Area Clubs

By BOB BARTLETT

Two divisional conference games highlight homecoming activities for area teams this Friday.

Winside plays host to Wausa and Wakefield taking on Wisner. Pilger in games coaches feel could be deciding factors for a divisional title.

Winside, of the Lewis and Clark loop, shares first place in the Clark division with Wausa. Both teams have 2-0 records. For coach Ron Peck and his crew, Friday's win is a must if the Wildcats want to repeat as divisional champs and win a berth in the conference playoffs.

Winside is riding on a two-game win skid after suffering a 19-0 setback to Walthill in the Wildcats' second outing of the season. After last Friday's 26-6 triumph over another divisional foe, Hartington High, Peck believes his Cats are ready to meet Wausa.

I believe Peck is right and will go with Winside to chalk up win No. 4 against a solo loss.

Turning to coach John Torczan's Trojan club, Wakefield is in a losing slump. The Trojans, 2-2 have lost their last two ball games because of key injuries to key personnel. Namely, quarterback Mike Soderberg who has missed both games because of a knee operation. Injuries also have slowed Wakefield's top runner and defensive back, Scott Mills, and hampered lineman Steve Greve and defensive secondary Tim Rouse. Those are pretty sizeable losses.

If Wakefield could get back to full strength, the Trojans could give a strong Wisner-Pilger a run for the money. However, Winside has shown a lot of improvement the last two games, especially in the Galors' 8-6 loss Friday to West Husker Conference leader Hartington Cedar Catholic.

Although Wisner is 1-3 overall and 0-1 in the West Husker, I'll pick the Gators to hand Wakefield its second conference and third overall.

I'm still picking for my first week of perfect selections. Last week, I searched for three of four correctly, with the only Wakefield's 33-0 loss to Madison stopping me. The three wins and one loss make my overall mark 11-6, or about 65 per cent.

Other area prep selections (winners in boldface):
Tekamah-Herman at Wayne—Last week's layoff won't hurt the Blue Devils. Wayne should be at full strength to meet Tekamah at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Memorial Stadium.

Allen at Homer—Allen coach Cliff Hagen rounds out his team's third straight week of rough opponents. Perhaps the following Friday night, his Eagles can look forward to the team's meeting cellar dweller Newcastle of the Lewis division of the Lewis and Clark Conference.

Laurel at Pierce—The Bears are rolling now. Look for Laurel to keep its winning streak building.

WS Defense Ranks No. 1

Wayne State gridders still rank No. one on offense among Nebraska college teams this week, thanks to a bulldog effort against Doane Saturday. Wildcat defense limited Doane to four yards rushing and 17 passing, so claim a total defense average 192.7 yards.

Doane came into the game because man is adaptable to his environment, many persons have developed the ability to ignore the excessively loud noise levels that surround them. However, this does not mean that these people are immune to the hearing losses that can result from continuous or prolonged exposure to such sound levels.

ranking No. two in defense but slipped to fourth, 224, as Kearney, 198, and Hastings, 203, moved up. For Kearney, that's unusual. The Antelopes have not stressed defense in recent years.

Wayne claims that state's top rusher, tailback Brian Moeller with a 97.7 average, and the leading pass receiver, split end Maurice Minkten, averaging 110.7 yards a game. Quarterback Rick Benedetto rates fifth in passing with an 86.7 pace in four games.

Despite the individual leaders, however, Wayne team offense is fourth, behind Hastings, Kearney and Dana.

Moeller tops all players in scoring with 32 points, and he is fifth in total offense at 103.5 yards.

WAYNE HIGH's reserve football team found the going rough Monday against a strong Hartington Cedar Catholic club. Twice the Devils' offense misplayed scoring plays, but failed to generate a winning effort, said coach Ron Carnes, after his club lost, 20-14. Part of Monday's action included

Something Old, New for WS Saturday

Something old, something new — that's Wayne State football this week. The "old" is the prospect of facing a dangerous foe, Dakota State. The "new" is playing away from home the first time this year, after four straight here.

The Wildcats will go to Madison, S.D., for a 2 p.m. game Saturday against a Dakota State team which has scored 151 points while winning two of four games. That record matches Wayne's, but the Wildcats have put only 67 points on the board.

Last Saturday, Wayne offense reached a season high in downs, 25. DSC's Trojans meanwhile lost to Huron, 29-7. Earlier, they lost to Northwest, 31-20, then beat Concordia of St. Paul, 38-0 and Black Hills State, 57-20.

Coach Del Stollenberg expects Wayne defense to get another stout challenge, considering not only the Trojan scoring tendency, but the facts that Wayne whipped Dakota State last year, 33-14, and the game Saturday will be homecoming.

Wildcat defenses demonstrated a lot of prowess in holding Doane to 53 net yards in rushing plays. That figure actually falls to four yards because two center snaps that sailed over Doane's punter were charged partially to rushing loss.

The wild snaps proved crucial. Both times Wayne took over deep in hostile territory — on the four and eight yardlines — and promptly scored touchdowns. The first of these gave Wayne a 17-7 lead when tailback Mike McMahon ran three yards, late in the second quarter.

Another errant center snap early in the third came into Wayne possession on the Tiger eight. This time split end Maurice Minkten pulled in a Rick Bene ditto pass for a three yard touchdown. Both extra point kicks went wide.

Two touchdowns by Doane and one by Wayne erupted from passing heroics. Doane hit first with a 51 yarder from quarterback Gary Knapp to wide receiver Terry Houch late in the first period. Bruce Batt added the point, tragically, this TD resulted from another punt.

Doane scored on another pass in the third period, from Knapp to Ralph Kath for 40 yards. Batt added the point for a 19-14 score, and Wayne fans got a bit lairy.

Later in the third, Wayne mounted two promising drives, only to have the first stop on an interception, the second on a lost fumble. Both times though,

Then there was Moeller's 81-yard rushing grind, including a 22 yarder, longest for the team this year.

The third drive proved a charm when tailback Brian Moeller scored from a yard out after a 55 yard Wayne effort. A passing conversion attempt went awry.

Stollenberg spread credits broadly on his troops, especially after noting the defensive chart. It showed 14 players sharing in tackles. And he said of Minkten's pass catching, "I don't know how he hung onto two of them." Both required leaping efforts under heavy defense.

Cedar Capitalizes On JV Mistakes For 20-14 Victory

"Our mistakes gave Hartington their touchdowns," said coach Ron Carnes after his Wayne reserves Monday fell to Cedar Catholic, 20-14. The visitors went 28 yards the first period after a Wayne fumble set up Hartington's first TD for a 6-0 halftime lead. In the final period, Hartington erased Wayne's 14-6 command with a pair of touchdowns coming off an 85-yard punt-return and a blocked Wayne punt that resulted in a 50-yard six-point play.

"Our defense actually did a good job," Carnes pointed out. "It's just that Hartington scored on our mistakes." Carnes added that his offense didn't do as well, "especially line blocking." Sophomore Brian Haun scored both Wayne touchdowns on one-yard runs. The first score came in the third period where the locals went ahead 8-6 following Marc Lawrence's run for the two-point conversion.

Haun, who finished as Wayne's leading ball carrier with 34 yards, scored his final TD in the last period. Quarterback Vic Sharpe was four for 13 in the air for 44 yards.

Leading Wayne's defense were Ralph Atkins, Mark Poshman and Steve Bodenstedt with eight, six and five tackles respectively.

Wayne, now 2-2, takes a break until Monday, Oct. 13, when the JVs travel to West Point Central Catholic.

Creighton Spikers Heighten LH Sixth Loss

Creighton Tuesday night came back for a 14-10 first set deficit to topple Laurel volleyball players 16-14 before winning the second set 15-2.

The match loss for Laurel dropped coach Carol Woodward's team record to 0-6 on the season.

In reserve play, Creighton again was the victor in two sets, 16-14 and 15-3. The reserve team holds a 2-4 mark.

Outstanding players for Laurel were senior Pat Starks at the net in the varsity game and Mary Juhlin with five points in the B game.

WS Harriers 'Give Best Team Effort'

"Best team performance in a long time." That's the way Wayne State's cross country team rated in the opinion of coach LeRoy Simpson after the Doane invitational meet Saturday at Crete.

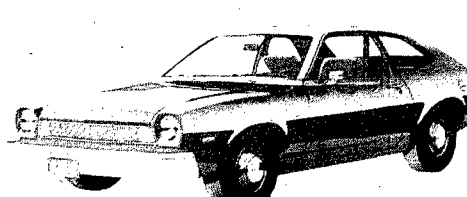

With most of the state's best distance men competing, Wayne finished fourth among nine teams — five of them scoring. Doane won its own meet for the first time since 1940, with 33 points. Nebraska Wesleyan came in second at 40, Kearney State third at 78, Wayne next with 95. Concordia, Platte Midland, Fairbury and Hastings trailed.

Wayne's Ed Burnett toured the hilly four mile course in 21:49, good for ninth. It was the highest Wayne placing in a major meet since the late 1960's. Chip Hagerman logged a 21st place at 22:26, Don Rinehart at 22:49 for 28th, Al Libby at 23:13 for 32nd, and Andy Myrue, 24:06 for 44th.

The Wildcats will compete in the USD Springfield invitational Saturday.

Government Contributions To Local Income Rising

How large a part does government play in the financial affairs of Wayne County residents?

How much of their personal income comes from governmental agencies - federal, state and local - via salaries and wages, social security, unemployment insurance, pensions, welfare payments and the like?

According to the latest statistics, a larger portion of personal income comes from such sources than ever before. Locally and elsewhere across the country, the role of government has grown by leaps and bounds in the last few years.

To a large extent it is attributed to the recession, which has led to a great outpouring of public funds in an effort to turn the economy around and assist those who are most seriously affected by it.

In Wayne County, it is estimated, based upon an updating of the latest statewide figures, about 28 cents out of each dollar of personal income comes from government sources. In the past year it amounted to approximately $17,516,000 after taxes.

Of the 28 cents, it is calculated, some 17 cents is from the Federal government and 11 cents from the state and local governments.

The range in other parts of the county, is from a low of 22 cents in Connecticut, to a high of 62 cents in the District of Columbia, where there is a high concentration of federal employees. Nationally, the average is 29 cents.

The findings are based upon reports from the Department of Commerce, the Tax Foundation and others.

During the past year, the figures show, some $345 billion was disbursed to individuals in the United States by the various levels of government.

Nearly half of it was for pensions, social security, food stamps, health insurance benefits and such, technically called "transfer payments," for which no services were being rendered.

In general, these transfer payments produced about one dollar out of every seven dollars of personal income.

There is considerable concern among economists over the accelerating growth of such expenditures. They note that they are a major element in government budgets and are, according to the Tax Foundation, "relatively uncontrollable."

Complaints About Mail? Try Sending Post Card

Postal customers will find it easier to register complaints, thanks to a new consumer service card now available, said Wayne postmaster Wilbur Giese.

The U.S. Postal Service introduced the cards Wednesday, to cut red tape for customers with complaints. Letter carriers or postal clerk can provide the carbon post card sets. One copy goes to Giese and the other goes to postal service headquarters in Washington, D.C. for analysis.

Giese said that the copy to him will mean faster action locally and the copy to headquarters will aid in spotting problem areas and trends so corrective policies can be set.

Lions Will Aid Tour of Hospital

Wayne Lions Club members Sunday will join over one million of their brethren in World Service Day. The goal of the special day is to demonstrate the humanitarian principles of the Lions organizations. The Wayne club will do so by assisting elderly residents with transportation for a tour of Providence Medical Center. Tours are scheduled on the hour from 2 to 5 p.m. Anyone wishing to take advantage of the transportation service should call 375-1260.

In other action the council: Granted permission to demolish a vacant house at 493 Logan St., belonging to the Church of Christ. Bond for the permit was set at $850, based on the dwelling's 856 square feet of floor space.

Granted a building moving permit to Ted Bahe. The councilman, who abstained from discussion and voting on the matter, will move an 8' x 10' building to his property for use as a utility building. Bond is $800. Authorized the placing "no parking" signs along Providence Rd. Brink informed the council that the parking restriction was a condition of sale when the property was acquired.

Directed Bernhoff to draft an ordinance setting occupation taxes on various liquor licenses available in the city. The subject was discussed Tuesday, following closely Monday's official canvass of the recent special election in which liquor by the drink was approved. The council can levy an occupation tax in amounts up to twice the license fee. Bernhoff informed the council that bottle club licenses can no longer be used in Wayne after the first class C liquor license is obtained.

Agreed to issue moving and building permits allowing modular homes in Wayne if manufacturers will certify that the prefabricated dwellings meet all building, plumbing and electrical codes required by the city.

Passing a motion to continue granting annually a $150 scholarship to a student from Wayne attending the electrical lineman course at Northwest Technical Community College in Norfolk. Recommendations for recipients will be requested from the college and Wayne Carroll High School. Emry said the scholarship was established two years ago and is one of the best of qualified students.

Authorized Brink to lower from 25 cents to 10 cents each the cost of brick removed from a street intersection.

Directed city clerk treasurer Bruce Mordhorst to place on the next agenda discussion of limiting the amount of time campers can use facilities in Heritage Wet Park on the south edge of Wayne, adjacent to Highway 15.

A ten-mile section of the highway from Wayne to Wakefield is being resurfaced and shoulders have not yet been constructed. The drop off at the edge of the pavement varies, Watson said.

Stanley V. Johnson, State Department of Roads manager for the resurfacing project, said the resurfacing is complete except for a final layer to be applied from Wayne, three miles east and paving on approaches to the three bridges on the section of road.

Earth shoulders are yet to be built and paved intersections, driveway approaches and mail box turnouts must still be installed. Johnson said the project should be finished in about two weeks except for some shouldering and the addition of guard rails to the end of bridges. The project was started Aug. 26.

A 28 year old Wayne State College student, Nick H. Bonnenberger of Alkimos, was killed Sept. 23 in an early-morning motorcycle accident on the highway, at the bridge adjacent to the Wayne Municipal airport.

No trial date has been set. Wischhof is alleged to have shot at Wayne police sergeant Ron Penlerick when Penlerick and sheriff Don Weible arrived at the trailer home shared by the Wischhof brothers to make the arrest. No charges were filed in connection with the supposed incident.

Paul Wischhof underwent surgery in an Omaha hospital for two gunshot wounds in the chest area and was later released.

The Wayne property will be the second physician's home given to the society. Mrs. Clarence Sorenson gave in memory of her husband a house originally owned by Dr. G.J. Hess. It was moved from Sixth and Main Streets in Wayne to a site on Highway 35 just east of the community. Mrs. Johnson said it will continue to be developed as a museum, for the display of artifacts from Nebraska's rural past.

Special showings should be arranged through Carl Rump, planetarium director. "How To Watch a Flying Saucer" varies from last year's UFO presentation in that it is presented in dialog fashion. The story involves a typical UFO sighting by a non-scientist and his subsequent discussions with an astronomer who offers some possible explanations for the mysterious sky objects.

Flying Saucer Show Returns

The program deals with a wide variety of UFO experiences and attempts to show how natural events can be mis-identified under certain conditions. Also mentioned are those UFO which as yet have no plausible explanation. The program concludes with a look at objects and events most frequently mis-identified as UFO's in the upper Midwest at this time of year.

A Home Eye Test, to enable parents to do a vision screening of their pre-schoolers (as early as age three) at home, is available free from the Nebraska Society for the Prevention of Blindness. With it, the Society hopes to reach the tens-of-thousands of youngsters in the country who have never had their vision tested. Marching and Music Are Ingredients for Band Day

Fancy marching coupled with fine music delivered a lively treat to Wayne Saturday as 21 high school bands joined the Wayne State College band in parade and concert. Blair and Keya Paha High School bands won first in parade competition in categories for larger (200 and over) and small schools, respectively.

Hooper Logan View and Wakefield earned second places among larger and smaller schools.

First place bands each received a plaque and a $30 scholarship for the college's 1976 Summer Music Camp, the awards to be given as each band determines.

As in the past, the Wayne High band performed in the parade, but did not compete for prizes.

As a new feature, the Wayne State Liberty Bells drill team, attired in Bicentennial uniforms, marched in the parade. They led the procession from the campus to Fourth St. where they took up a position to salute each band passing.

At halftime during the Wayne State Doane football game, WSC director Raymond Kelton led the massed bands — more than 1,200 musicians — in a concert of patriotic melodies.

Pear Fare For Hearty Lunch

Winter lunch-box carriers need lots of hearty fare. A variety of main dishes can be included in the various shapes and sizes of thermos bottles now made to carry hot foods and casseroles.

Send off your hearty eaters with spicy-hot meat balls and spaghetti, some crisp relishes, crunchy breadsticks or buttered French bread and several fresh Anjou, Bosc or Comice pears. A lunch sure to warm up the chilliest day and cheer the most repetitious menu!

Fresh Western pears provide energy-packed, low-calorie eating, easy to carry in a lunch pail. For quick midday snacks or tasty coffee-breaks, include an extra pear, and a pear slice for convenient-to-eat pieces. The refreshing, juicy taste of fresh winter pears will perk up a busy morning and give a real boost to the rest of the day.

Available through May, fresh winter pears can be enjoyed in many ways. Out-of-hand eating is the easiest. When cut into wedges, brushed with lemon juice, and wrapped in-foil, they're easy to snack on at your desk or in your car, if you're on the move.

You'll usually find fresh Western pears ripe and ready to eat at your favorite market. Ripe pears yield to gentle pressure regardless of color. You can always buy firm pears with confidence. They'll ripen at home in a few days at room temperature, becoming sweet and juicy, the way you like them.

The Nation's housing stock gained nearly 7.5 million units between the 1970 census and October 1974, according to preliminary figures from surveys made for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) by the Bureau of Commerce, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The 1974 total of housing units was an estimated 77,602,000, or 1,433,000 above the October 1973 total and 7,464,000 above a total from the 1970 census that had been adjusted for units missed in the count.

The statistics, announced jointly by HUD and the Department of Commerce, are from a new annual housing survey series conducted by the Bureau of the Census for HUD to provide current information on housing conditions and trends as a basis for more effective housing and neighborhood preservation policies.

The figures being released today are from the first two annual surveys covering 1973 and 1974. These annual surveys make it possible to measure trends on a yearly basis rather than every 10 years when benchmark data on housing are collected by the Census Bureau in its Decennial Censuses of Population and Housing. The annual series is collecting new data that will permit more sophisticated

Dixon County Youths Win Purple Ribbons

Two Dixon County youths won purple ribbons at the Ak Sar Ben Livestock Show in Omaha. They were Annette Fritschen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fritschen of Concord, and Jack Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Warner of Allen.

Annette received two purple ribbons for her crossbred market pig and showmanship. She also received a blue for herdsmanship.

Warner won a purple ribbon for his junior dairy herd. He also won purple, blue and red ribbons for other livestock he exhibited at Omaha.

Other Dixon County youths winning ribbons were sisters Kari, Lori and Susan Erwin. Kari and Lori each won blues for their crossbred market beef while Susan received a red in the same category. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Erwin of Concord.

A Wakefield youth, Greg Meyer, won two blues for his crossbred steers. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Meyer.

Health Tip

Chances are, if you are a woman over forty years of age, you should have a test for diabetes.

The Nebraska Medical Association reports that women are more likely than men to develop diabetes, and roughly three out of five diabetics are women.

Many diabetics do not exhibit all the signs of diabetes. But in general, most have been feeling ill and rundown. Other signs are excessive thirst and hunger, the slow healing of cuts and scratches, visual disturbances and itching.

Diabetes, when detected early, can be treated more easily than many health problems. Detection and immediate treatment is most important to continued good health.

Diabetes can strike at any age in children, the disease is often severe. There are more than a million and a half Americans who have diabetes without knowing it.

Hoskins Riders Win Awards

Two Hoskins Riders won purple ribbons in various divisions of horses show competition Friday at the Ak Sar Ben Livestock Show in Omaha.

They were Bill Langenberg and David Fleer.

Langenberg won purples in reining and pole bending and Fleer received a purple in barrel racing.

Over five million employees were covered by the Federal Workmen's Compensation laws in the 1973 fiscal year, the Labor Department reports.

Thought for Today
By Rowan Wittse

"Common sense is genius dressed in its working clothes."
Ralph Waldo Emerson

Although most of us think we would enjoy being a genius, we might be disappointed if it would somehow be arranged.

We tend to think of "genius" as synonymous with "success" but that is seldom true. The genius is more apt to be a mal-adjusted bundle of complexes, the victim of failure and frustration. It's only when genius can put on working clothes, finding practical application for lofty theory—that anything gets accomplished, and then we call it common sense.

It's us, there are no "minor details". Every thing is done for the benefit of the family we serve and every detail deserves and receives our closest professional attention.

KEEP THE HOME FIRES SPARKLING
A bright, shiny kitchen seems to radiate a "homey" feeling, and a clean stove is an important part of it all.

Do keep your gas range sparkling and avoid frequent long, drawn out scrubbing, follow these tips for daily stove care:

*Wipe up food spills when they happen. If grease and food residue are allowed to build up, they'll be more difficult to remove. After each use, when the range has cooled, squirt all enameled parts with Grease Relief™ degreaser and wipe with a damp sponge to get rid of sticky dirt quickly and easily. If food has burned on, scrub with a plastic or nylon mesh pad—do not use a metal pad which can scratch enamel.

*Remove burners, grates and drip pans if food has been spilled onto them. Drip pans can be cleaned easily by wiping with degreaser and sponge and rinsing under clear water. If food has burned on, use a mesh pad instead of a sponge. Burners and grates should be soaked in hot sudsy water to which degreaser may be added. Grates may need scouring to remove burned on food.

*When replacing burners, grates and drip pans, test each burner to make sure it lights. If any of the holes in the burner are clogged, they can be cleared with a piece of thin wire.

Education Costs Nothing New

It may make some hard pressed parents feel a little better to know that their English ancestors also went into debt trying to get a good education for their children.

In 1647 James Howell wrote: "Everyman strains his fortune to keep his children at school. The cobbler will clout it till midnight, the porter will carry burdens till his bones cracked again, the ploughman will pinch both back and belly to give his son learning."

Education and almost every other aspect of life in Renaissance England are on display in "The Life of Our English Ancestors," a new exhibit at the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C.

Scheduled to run through October, the show includes scores of 16th and 17th-century books, pamphlets, and posters that cover everything from sure-fire moth-proofing techniques to advice for young marrieds.

"The exhibit looks to our roots," explains Folger Director O.B. Hardison, Jr. "The English language and life style that came to fruition in Renaissance England still influence the way we think and look at the world."

As today, Renaissance parents believed that book learning should be accompanied by healthy physical activity and sports were encouraged.

Football, however, was frowned upon by many who considered it a barbarous activity. Describing the game, a critic wrote: "One catcheth here a fall, and there one's maid, who never saw the ball."

Of the playing field, gallants dressed lavishly. Men were advised to show off their finery in the central aisle of London's old St. Paul's church. Other advice included instructions on how to reveal the colorful taffeta lining of a cloak with a careless twitch of the shoulders and how to flourish an expensive watch by pretending to set "the wheels to the time of Paul's."

Courtships and marriage were not neglected in Renaissance England. One of the documents in the show is filled with advice from a father to his newlywed son.

A solicitous parent urges the boy to take his new wife out on the town occasionally. "Let her not spend the remnant of her days, at home in sorrow, over come with passion," he cautions.

The ideal woman of the time possessed goodness, courage, wisdom, "Sweetness of language," wit, and the skill to run an efficient household. Criticism that women learned too many foreign languages drew a blast from a young tutor.

"Several languages under stood by a Woman will do our Gentlemen little hurt who have little more than their Mother Wit, and understand only their Mother Tongue, these most usually make this objection to hide their own Ignorance."

FOOD MARKETING ALERT

USDA Agricultural Marketing Service

As of mid-September, the supply situation in October is expected to look like this . . .

RED MEATS —

Beef . . . plentiful. Output expected to be seasonally high and record large—about 5% above record of a year earlier, 10% greater than 1972-74 average for Oct. Prime and Choice grades, however, will continue to account for lesser share of total beef output than a year earlier.

Pork . . . light. Even though output should increase slightly from Sept. levels, it is expected to be some 22%-25% below a year earlier and well under 1972-74 Oct. average.

POULTRY & EGGS —

Broilers-fryers . . . adequate, with production about 10% ahead of year earlier, 7% over 1972-74 average.

Turkey . . . adequate. New-crop marketings slightly under Oct. 1974 and down 7% from 1972-74 monthly average. Oct. 1 cold storage holdings well under record high of Oct. 1974 but near most recent 3-year average.

Eggs . . . adequate, with Oct. output about 3% under a year earlier, 6% less than 1972-74 average.

MILK & DAIRY PRODUCTS —

Fluid milk, dairy products . . . adequate. July production was below 1972-74 average. Examples: milk, down 2%; butter, 11%; American cheese, 4%; nonfat dry milk, 9%. Aug. milk production was 1% below Aug. 1972-74 average. In comparison with July 1972-74 averages, commercial stocks of butter and nonfat dry milk were down 46% and 36% respectively; American cheese stocks were up 8%.

Terminology used: PLENTIFUL — More than enough for requirements. ADEQUATE — Enough to meet needs. LIGHT — Less than adequate; not enough for normal needs.

Fresh potatoes . . . adequate, with harvest of large fall crop at seasonal peak.

Canned vegetables . . . adequate, except for green beans which should be plentiful (canners' holdings on July 1 — latest date for which figures are available — were more than double those on July 1, 1974, and the 1972-74 average).

Peanuts . . . plentiful. July 31 stocks from record 1974 crop were 2% under 1974's high level. Another record crop is in prospect for 1975. Walnuts . . . plentiful. Record 1975 crop estimated 22% larger than last year's output and 9% ahead of the record 1973 crop. Almonds . . . plentiful, because of large carry-over from record 1974 crop. The 1975 crop is estimated at about 27% under 1974 crop.

GRAINS & LEGUMES —

Wheat . . . plentiful. Production expected to be 19% above last year's record crop and 27% more than 1972-74 average. Rice . . . plentiful. With harvest in full swing, a record crop is forecast — 9% greater than previous high in 1974 and 26% ahead of most recent 3-year average.

Dry beans . . . plentiful, with 1975 production 11% under last year's record crop, but 1% above last 3-year average. Dry peas . . . plentiful, though crop to be about 32% below last year's output and 4% under 1972-74 average.

Corn . . . plentiful for food use. Record output predicted, 22% more than 1974 crop and about 7% greater than 1972-74 average.

Apples, Pears and Rice Are Unusually Abundant

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that wholesale and retail market supplies of apples, pears, and rice will be unusually heavy during October. Suggestion for food shoppers: Enjoy the abundance.

Scientists Digging into Idea Of Making Underground Homes

Now that we've learned to cook like a caveman (on a backyard barbecue), we're going to start living like him (in a hole in the ground).

At least that's the whimsy that comes to mind as scientists dig into the idea of underground housing to save energy for heating and cooling.

Their tests and calculations are anything but whimsical. They show that buried buildings may save 75 per cent of what it takes to heat or cool buildings above ground. The National Geographic Society says.

Most of the subsurface buildings now planned by architects and builders are nothing like tunnels, mine shafts, or caves.

Designs are intended to save the occupants as much as possible from feeling the air living or working underground. Many buried ground buildings open onto large, dugout courtyards that trap light and sunshine.

To test energy savings of underground buildings, the National Science Foundation has granted $206,400 for instruments to be installed in a buried bookstore on or under the campus of the University of Minnesota. A similar bookstore at Ithaca, New York, serves Cornell University students.

Whatever they learn may not be all that new. Sixty five to 100 years ago hundreds of thousands of Americans lived relatively snugly underground as they pursued the largely fearless plains.

At first they often lived in dugouts, usually greatly enlarged burrows of prairie dogs or other animals along the low hills.

Sometimes the roots were crushed by wandering herds of buffalo. But with such amenities as a buffalo robe over the door and with a chimney hole in the dirt roof, occupants faced up to winter's worst.

"Our dugout was so warm," a Nebraska homesteader's wife recalled, "that during the blizzard 1888 we sat in it and let the fire go out."

After a year or so they usually moved up to the sod houses, low-lying with walls of building blocks carefully cut from the sod of the prairie itself. Prairie marble, they called it.

From 1870 to 1910 more than a million sod houses were built on the plains stretching from southern Texas to mid Canada.

It took about an acre of prairie grassland to provide enough of the two-foot blocks of turf for the average small house. Walls were two feet thick, and a small house might weigh 90 tons.

A howling blizzard was unheard inside. Even if the super fire of buffalo chips went out a bedtime, the temperature rarely dropped to freezing by morning. In the summer a soddy was as cool as a cave.

Sodders could not burn with standing both prairie grassfires and flaming Indian arrows.

Floors were dirt, pounded hard. Sometimes a snake or prairie dog might borrow up in the middle of the floor to the surprise of all.

"I never get wet till it happens to rain," mused an old song of life in a sod house. Roofs were usually willow poles and brush covered with sod, which dripped mud during a gully washer and for a day after.

Sod houses usually caved in after a few years, but not before a wooden house could replace it. The tenants hoped a few sodders survive today, perhaps as examples of how to beat the energy crisis.

80th Birthday Celebrated

By Mrs. Ed Oswald 286-4872

Health Tip

A child must begin to learn some of the lessons of living even in the first week of life. Styles of child rearing change. The Nebraska Medical Association points out that there was a time of great rigidity in which youngsters ate at a certain time, no matter what. Then the pendulum swung to great permissiveness in which the child could eat his own schedule.

The modern child rearing practices now recognize the infant has little or no emotional control. As he lives with people, he learns from them and develops his own personality and a pattern of reactions to his environment. He can be spoiled by lack of consistency in discipline, as well as suppressed by too demanding rigidity.

A natural development in a loving and supporting family which accepts the baby as an individual with his own right to be himself, is most beneficial. At the same time, he is taught the skills of social living and how to accept the restrictions that are necessary in our present world.

Homesstead, Florida, a small city just south of Miami, is known as the city of bicycles. Ten years ago, a physician, Dr. Paul Dudley White, a heart specialist and bike enthusiast, officially opened the city's safe bike routes. Because of increasing ridership, you should consider opening such safe bike routes in your town.

In Homesstead, secondary traffic routes connecting housing areas with schools, playgrounds, shopping centers and other activity centers are well marked and in general, parallel more heavily traveled roads. A community project, the bike routes are well marked. Many motorists avoid using the bike routes, and bicyclists avoid the motor ways, so travel can be safer for both.

Cycling is healthy exercise, but demands education and concern within every community to achieve maximum safety. From 400 to 500 deaths and twenty-five thousand to thirty thousand injuries occur annually from collisions between bicycles and motor vehicles. Community concern is urged to meet the bicycle safety challenge.

The last Presidential railroad car, named the Ferdinand Magellan, was bought by the government for $10 during the Truman Administration. NEWS Of Education

GOOD CALCULATION
Statistics prove it: educators consider small, personal calculators an aid to education.

A recent independent nationwide survey of 2,000 elementary and secondary school teachers, sponsored by Casio, Inc., showed that teachers believe calculators to be a positive influence in two ways. They reduce tedium among advanced students and they can serve as a motivational device to stimulate interest among students not otherwise interested.

Most teachers recommend classroom use of personal calculators between the ages of 12 and 18. That's when most children have already developed their skills in arithmetic. So the calculators eliminate drudgery, save time, and help in checking the answers and scoring.

When buying a calculator to aid a school child, it's smart to choose a well-respected brand that is inexpensive but offers important functions such as square roots, logarithms, eight digits, sine, tangent, and other basic arithmetical functions. Such a good inexpensive calculator is made by Casio, the world's leading manufacturer of electronic calculators.

When buying your child a calculator make sure it's inexpensive, maintenance-free, easy to operate and a name brand.

HOME BUYER CLINIC
By William J. McAuliffe Jr.
Executive Vice President
American Land Title Association

HAUNTING MISTAKES

Attractive as it may seem, the home you are about to purchase could be haunted by land title problems from the past. The time for precaution against such hazards is before you buy.

One of the many types of title difficulties that make safeguards necessary is the mistake in a public record. If a mistake remains hidden from the eyes of a title searcher, it can prove costly in the home buyer after a transaction is completed.

Two recent examples will show how mistakes can bring trouble.

In New York a home buyer learned after completing his purchase that a past deed to the property contained an erroneous description of the land — which meant his property overlapped onto the adjoining real estate. An attorney was retained to correct the deed, which removed the problem. Related fees were paid by the title company issuing owner's title insurance for protection of the buyer, which was obtained before completion of his real estate purchase.

In Michigan, a home buyer completed his transaction and later received notice that a paving assessment confirmed before the date of his purchase was outstanding against the property. A title search before completion of his real estate purchase did not reveal the assessment because it was incorrectly posted in local government records. This Michigan buyer also was protected by owner's title insurance, under which the title company paid the assessment to save the insured from financial loss.

It's an excellent idea to learn the facts on selection, financing, closing, and land title protection before purchasing a home. For free information on the subject, write American Land Title Association, Box 566, Washington, D.C.

Fresh Cinnamon Pear Tapioca
2 cups water
2/3 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon ginger (optional)
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 pears, peeled, cored and diced
3 tablespoons tapioca
1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon candies
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine water, sugar, ginger, salt, and pears in saucepan. Simmer until pears are tender. Drain, measuring liquid. If necessary, add water to liquid to make 2-1/3 cups. Set pears aside. Return measured liquid to saucepan and add tapioca and mix well. Let stand 5 minutes. Place over medium heat. Add pears, cinnamon candies, and lemon juice, stirring until cinnamon candies are dissolved. Cool, stirring once after 20 minutes. Chill. Serve with cream, if desired. Makes 3 cups or 6 servings.

performance. A new torque-arm rear suspension. And Vega offers a tough Dura-Built 140-cu.-in. 4-cyl. engine guarantee.

Graphs Explain Taxing

Wayne County assessor Doris Stipp prepared these four pairs of graphs, showing what proportion of the tax dollar is provided by various sources in each of four taxing districts and how each district spends that dollar.

As the graphs illustrate, real estate taxes provide the biggest chunk of money in all four districts, followed by personal property tax. Motor vehicle tax is the third biggest contributor. The proportions vary because of property valuations and because of the amounts contributed through the public utility or special tax. Education is the biggest spender in all districts. Each pays one mill for the educational service unit and 2.35 mills go to support the Northeast Technical Community College.

Within the city of Wayne, 59 cents of each dollar goes to the Wayne-Carroll school district. The Winside district takes 54 cents of each tax dollar paid by residents within the town's corporate limits. The third chart from the top represents a district in the Wayne-Carroll school district but outside any corporate limits. While the school mill levy is the same—61.02—the proportion of the tax dollar is larger because the consolidated district levy does not include any corporate tax.

District 257, at bottom, pays half its tax money toward the 26.23 free high school tuition levy, plus 18 cents to support the class I School District 57.

The two corporate districts contribute a portion of each dollar toward the city levy—24 cents of each tax dollar in Wayne and 27 cents in Winside. The two rural districts pay a fire district tax—32 cents of each dollar in District 257 and 25 cents in District 217.

Valuations and tax levies for each district are shown at the bottom of each graph.

Southeast Tech meeting no party for Fairbury delegation

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN—The Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College Area Board of Governors met last week in the Calico Corner, a party room in the East Hills Supper Club in Lincoln.

It wasn't a party for the delegation from Fairbury which made the trip to see what the board would decide about the fate of the community college operating in their home town.

It was a happier occasion for the Beatrice delegation, which had been encouraging the board to accept an offer of the former Pershing College facilities at Beatrice.

Technically, the 11 member board didn't decide to acquire Pershing College and close down Fairbury, but the vote was 7-4 in favor of a resolution which authorized negotiations for Pershing.

If terms acceptable to the board can be worked out with the present Pershing owners — the University of Nebraska Foundation — Southeast Tech will acquire the 70 acre campus and its five buildings.

The resolution also says: "Be it further resolved that after acquisition of the Pershing College Campus, the programs and courses now offered at the Fairbury Campus be phased out and/or closed, and that such programs and courses and such additional programs and courses as may here after designated by the board of governors be offered at the Pershing College facilities."

The Fairbury area residents had fought hard to save their school and they said last week they weren't giving up now. The battleground would move to the legislative floor and possibly to the courtroom, Fairbury partisans said after the board decision.

The Fairbury school was one of the former local junior college merged into the technical community college system in recent years. Pershing was a private school started in the mid-1960's. After it became defunct, Pershing was offered by the Beatrice community leaders who inherited it to Peru State College. That deal didn't work out and the next offer was made to the University of Nebraska.

The Board of Regents was interested for awhile, but the controversy over the NU acquisition of the Hiram Scott facilities at Scottsbluff (another defunct private institution whose campus was made available to the public sector) made them careful.

Also, there was legislative opposition to the plan — with senators complaining that the regents would accept the facilities as a gift and then expect the Legislature to provide funds for equipping and staffing it.

So, the title went instead to the University of Nebraska Foundation, which was expected to hold the property until the legislative problems were threshed out.

This summer, however, NU President Durward B. Varner, on behalf of the foundation, offered the property as a gift to the Southeast Technical Community College Area, which operated in Lincoln and Millard as well as Fairbury.

Varner said all it would cost the area to acquire the facilities worth at least $2 million would be reimbursement to the foundation for costs it has incurred since it took possession last December. He said those costs wouldn't run beyond $50,000 — and the area board had an estimate last week of $35,780.

The resolution said the executive officer Robert S. Eicher, in his negotiations with the regents' representative, couldn't obligate the area to more than $35,808.

Renovation of the facilities is expected to cost the area about $185,000.

The board's resolution says the Fairbury campus "is not fully and adequately serving the needs of the students and citizens of the Southeast Community College Area because of the costs, both capital and operational, required for its maintenance in view of the declining enrollment and projected decline in student age population for the area now served by the Fairbury campus."

Board member Don Nielsen of Lincoln

said it wasn't easy for the board to rule against the continuation of the Fairbury operation. But he said the board is "dealing with limited resources and we must do the best job with what is available."

He and others said the larger population and more central location within the area of Beatrice made it a more logical spot for the area to use.

Furthermore, the board was concerned about the fact that revenues weren't covering operating costs or fixed expenses (the dormitory bonds, for example), Nielsen said.

The chief board spokesman for retaining Fairbury and rejecting the Pershing offer was Ted Doyle of Fairbury. He said it didn't make good economic sense to abandon the investment in Fairbury and pick up bigger facilities when enrollments were declining.

Among the more emotional witnesses as the board opened the meeting to comments from the floor was State Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan who said the Legislature never intended for area boards to have the power to close campuses and pick up new ones.

Maresh promised to carry the battle to the legislative chamber in 1976. He said he already had discussed the issue with some of his colleagues and he reported they were "shocked."

Tale of two crises: Whale oil and petroleum

By Frank G. Zarb
Federal Energy Administrator

Did you know that America had an oil crisis during the Civil War? It was a whale oil crisis, and its outcome is worth noting as we try to deal with today's oil crisis.

From the time of the Revolution to the Civil War, whale oil was an important energy source—used in the lamps and candles that produced light for America's homes and offices.

By the late 18th century, America's celebrated New England whaling ports—New Bedford, Nantucket, Sag Harbor—buzzed at a pace that would approach frenzy in the following century.

A fleet of 360 vessels combed the waters of the Atlantic from Hudson Bay to the Falkland Islands, from Africa to Brazil, bringing back to port a bounty of 45,000 barrels of whale oil per year.

Like today's petroleum industry, America's whale oil industry was international in scope, with sales stretching from England, to the West Indies, Central America and the Orient.

As with petroleum—it was apparent in the heyday of whaling that this precious oil could not forever keep pace with the demands of a growing nation.

Nature provided us with a limited number of whales which we must today protect, just as she provided us with a limited quantity of petroleum which we must now conserve.

The tragedy of the Civil War disrupted America's booming whale oil production. Suddenly, this plentiful, cheap energy source became scarce and expensive.

In the mid 1860's, the price for a gallon of whale oil soared to $2.25 per gallon, almost double what it had been in 1859.

In the halls of Congress, cries rang out for the government "to do something" about the whale oil crisis. But this was long before talk of price controls, rationing or allocation programs had ever fallen from the lips of government officials.

What the government did was allow the free market mechanism to take its natural course.

With higher whale oil prices, consumers began to use less, while whale oil producers invested more money in new ways to increase their productivity.

At the same time, men of vision in a free market economy saw new opportunities to meet the challenge of the whale oil crisis. Kerosene and other petroleum products were developed. The kerosene lamp began to replace the whale oil lamp.

In 1875, the first practical generator for outdoor electric lights was built, and by 1896, the price for a gallon of whale oil dropped to 40 cents.

So the whale oil crisis didn't put America's lights. It triggered our free market economy to produce new energy. And that's exactly what we must allow to happen in solving today's oil crisis.

OBSERVATIONS

Care needed on Highway 35

The second fatal accident in less than a week occurred Sunday on Highway 35 east of Wayne.

Construction work is continuing on the highway and extra caution is needed when driving on it. It appears that the condition of the road may have contributed to the death of Mrs. Lillian Lueters, Sunday.

It can be annoying to drive on a road under construction because normal driving habits can't prevail. Even though traffic lanes are open, drivers must be aware of the various types of pavement encountered and the fact that there is a sharp drop-off to the shoulder of the road.

When driving on Highway 35, exercise a little more caution. For that matter, a little extra care on all roads would be beneficial. Help make this recent tragedy on Highway 35 the last one. Jim Strayer

Where should tax break go?

Congressman Charles Thone said in his newsletter this week that he expects testimony on his bill to provide tax credits for higher education costs to be heard in November during House Ways and Means Committee hearings on tax reform.

Thone introduced the bill in March of this year. It would allow parents supporting sons and daughters in post-secondary education programs, including college, business and vocational schools, up to $490 credit to be subtracted from the federal income taxes due.

Maximum relief would be for persons with low and moderate incomes. The credit would decrease or be entirely lost as income goes up.

Thone's bill is attractive on the surface because it helps bring a college education within the grasp of students from lower economic brackets. However, at least as outlined in his letter, it ignores those students not being helped at all by their parents.

It is a continuing source of irritation that the student who waits a couple of years to begin an education or who interrupts an education to work or enter the military, and perhaps in the meantime marries and starts a family is still considered to be a ward of their parents when they re-enter school, even though he or she is working and has been self-supporting for a number of years.

It would seem that the people who really need the tax break are those who are entirely independent. If parents helping support a student need the tax break, working and students making it on their own need it worse. — Jim Strayer

Immunizations necessary

Childhood diseases such as polio and measles are a thing of the past. Or are they? According to the Nebraska State Health Department, children are still at risk of dying or being permanently disabled by these and other preventable diseases, and the state once again faces a serious threat of local epidemics.

During the last school year, there were outbreaks of measles in several areas across the state causing much needless human suffering and expense.

People have begun to forget the horrors of the days when thousands of children fell victim to these diseases. As a result, they are less diligent about making sure that their children are fully immunized. More children remain vulnerable, the diseases are once again being encouraged, and not enough children are vaccinated to keep the diseases from spreading rapidly to large numbers of susceptible children.

Children should be vaccinated against seven diseases: polio, measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis. Vaccination should begin as early in life as two months, so that young children do not remain at risk.

With safe, effective protection readily available, every case of these diseases must be viewed as an indication of negligence. An epidemic would be a statewide disgrace. Parents of unvaccinated children should get in touch with their physician or health department without delay. Submitted by Nebraska Department of Health.

Work innovations reviewed

"Work is work if you're paid to do it, and it's pleasure if you pay to be allowed to do it," said Finley Peter Dunne.

That's a wry commentary on the importance of our attitude toward what we do.

Suppose someone offered you a job at moderate pay that required you to spend 40 hours a week inserting a small sphere into a series of holes spaced over a large park, and suppose they insisted that you accomplish the task solely by use of a set of oddly shaped and rather ineffectual instruments capable of moving the sphere only by repeated impact?

As work, it would be infuriating; as pleasure, it's called "golf."

Just before the recession, there was a lot of speculation about whether our attitude toward work was changing. Did we still want to work? Did we need more "meaningful" jobs? Had our youth become "alienated" from the traditional work environment?

By and large, such questions have been shelved in the scramble to find enough jobs of any kind. But they will return, especially in a society that is producing far more college graduates than college-level jobs.

In anticipation of economic recovery—and we are recovering—it's worthwhile to review some of the ideas that have been proposed (and in many cases tried) to make work more enjoyable for the workers, as well as more productive.

BETTER COMMUNICATIONS—There are lots of variations on this one. What if all comes down to, though, is a realization that the people who actually do the work are often in the best position to know how to improve upon their methods. Therefore, managers should seek the advice of the workers and then take it.

In some places the program is formal, with worker-management productivity committees meeting regularly. In other places, the communication is less formal and less scheduled.

ASSEMBLY LINE ALTERNATIVES—Workers assemble an entire component themselves, or as part of a team, rather than performing a single operation all day.

These programs get mixed reviews.

State Ag Export Value Expected To Go Over Billion Dollar Mark

Recent grain sales to Russia and refusal of longshoremen to load ships destined for the USSR have not only roused memory of the first mammoth grain sale to the Soviet Union in 1972-73 but also stimulated intense public discussion regarding the threat to American agricultural commodity exports.

Exports of agricultural products provide an $11 billion positive factor in the U.S. trade balance for the third successive year and as such are important to the country's economic well-being, says Dr. Everett E. Peterson, extension economist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The $11 billion is the amount remaining after deducting the value of food aid shipments and agricultural imports. "This balance represents foreign exchange earnings which can be used to pay for imports of petroleum, other resources and consumers' products," Peterson explained.

Agricultural exports in the year which began July 1 are expected to total $22 billion, about the same as the 1974-75 marketing year, he reported. In 1974, the production from 96 million acres, or three of every 10 acres harvested, was exported. Quantity exported (in 1975-76) will be greater, but prices will average below those of last year, when feed grains were produced," Peterson explained.

Uncertainties as to the actual level of U.S. agricultural exports by June 30, 1976 include, final size of the feedgrain crop degree of recovery from economic recession in western Europe, Japan and other market areas; and political pressure in the U.S. to restrict exports if food prices rise sharply, due to higher grain prices, Peterson analyzed.

The Ford Administration and Congress will try to avoid higher meat prices, especially before the November election next year. Wheat exports of 1.2 billion bushels would have little effect on consumers' food prices. With favorable harvesting weather this fall, exports of one billion bushels of corn and 700 million bushels of soybeans should be possible without much change from current grain prices."

A continued high level of exports is crucial to wheat farmers, Peterson said, because foreign sales account to about two-thirds of production. Domestic accounts for 800 million bushels annually, compared to the 1975 production of 2.2 billion bushels. "Unless wheat exports average one billion bushels or more, carryover stocks will accumulate and acreage restrictions will again be needed," the NU economist predicted.

Of the $22 billion worth of agricultural exports expected in 1975-76, major foreign customers will be European Community, $5.1 billion; Russia, Southeast Asia and Latin America, each buying $2 billion worth; and Canada, west Asia and other Western European nations each taking about $1.5 billion. "All of these countries except Russia have been steady buyers of U.S. Agricultural commodities," Peterson stated.

The Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China have been "in and out of the market," causing sharp fluctuations in grain prices since 1972. For example, grain purchases by Russia this year will be five times those of last year, Peterson noted. They have varied from two to 14 million metric tons during the past four years. Because of good crops and balance-of-payment problems, China will buy very little U.S. grain this year.

Other Asian countries, except Japan, have shifted recently from concessional to commercial sales, Peterson said. Shifts in the volume of U.S. agricultural exports have a profound effect on Nebraska agricultural returns, varying in proportion in the importance of the crop grown in the state.

Nebraska's share of the value of U.S. ag exports will again exceed one billion dollars, with foreign markets providing important outlets for wheat, feed grains, soybeans, livestock and meat products produced in the state.

Foreign countries buy nearly 50 per cent of the U.S. soybean crop, 25 per cent of feedgrains, 50 per cent of cattle hides and 40 per cent of fallow produced each year. In dollars, grains and feeds will account for $12 billion of the $22 billion worth of ag exports in 1975-76, fats and oils, including soybeans, for $4.4 billion and livestock and livestock products, $1.5 billion.

On the other side of the ledger, the U.S. is also a major market for other countries' agricultural products, Peterson emphasized. Total value of such imports is expected to be about $9.5 billion in 1975-76, the same as last year.

but with changes among commodities. About 16 billion worth of products—competitive with U.S. food and fiber producers—will be imported this year, with sugar and animal products each amounting to $2 billion. In 1975, sugar imports equaled 82 per cent of domestic production; wool imports, 32 per cent; beef, 7.5 per cent; cheese, 6 per cent; and pork, 3 per cent.

Coffee, tea and cocoa account for $2.5 billion of non-competitive imports, valued at $3.5 billion.

Oil Representative: Fertilizer Cost Won't Hit '75 Spring Level

If it's a tough winter, fertilizer prices will be up again but they won't reach the $275 per ton of anhydrous ammonia that was charged last spring. The price should go up from the present $200 a ton to around $215-220, according to Ned Case, a representative from Phillips Petroleum Co.

Case was in Lincoln checking on research being conducted by the University of Nebraska department of agronomy. The research, detailing fertilizer levels to grow wheat, is now in its third year and should be nearing completion.

Case outlined five basic areas of concern for next spring's planting season. He noted that dealers will have some inventory carry over, due to the wet spring that put a stop to some

Livestock Officer Says Pork Supply Will Grow

A year from now, there will be more pork in the nation's meat cases, says Verlo Butz, vice president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board pork program.

"Actually, increased supplies could start showing up as early as June 1976—but the peak in volume is more likely to come in July-September," Butz said. "The increase in pork supplies should mean lower prices for pork in retail stores at that time, he observed. There likely will be down as well as ups in pork prices between now and then. More beef is moving to market and that, combined with poultry supplies, could put pressure on the price of pork, Butz said.

He based his prediction on the Sept. 1 U.S. Dept. of Agriculture hog and pig report, released Sept. 19. The report showed that hog farmers in 14 hog-producing states intended to increase production of pigs in the December-1975-February 1976 period. The report indicates a six percent increase over last year in the number of sows farrowing (giving birth to pigs). Butz said the predicted increase is the first upturn in pig production since the first prior of 1973.

This and That...
from YOUR COUNTY AGENT

DON C. SPITZ
WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Most people are surprised to learn that fall is the best time to control dandelions. People normally become concerned only in the spring when yellow flowers show up in a lawn that is supposed to be green. Dandelions sprayed in the spring usually mature a seed crop before they die.

October and November are the most effective months for dandelion control. Dandelions are making their fall flush of growth now, even though it is less noticeable because of the absence of flowers. Destruction of dandelions in the fall is more effective because dying plants do not mature a crop of seed.

Often there are more windless days in the fall—which is important when spraying. Desirable plants are not as easily injured by chemical drift or fumes because they are mature and hardened. This year's crop of leaves is almost finished anyway.

The most effective method of control is to mix 2-4-D amine with water and spray the plant. Compressed air sprayers or hose end sprayers will work. Dry materials offer convenience and there is less danger of drift. Weed leaves should be damp at the time of application so dry materials will stick to them. Fertilizer-herbicide combinations are popular because they combine two operations. Dry materials, which include granulars, may be applied with a fertilizer spreader.

Protect Roses
Most winter injury to roses comes from the alternate freezing and thawing of the soil during warm spells in late winter. This problem can be minimized by proper application of a good winter mulch around the plant. A mulch will prevent the soil from freezing too deep and will also act as an insulator to keep it that way.

At least 12 inches of mulch is needed to protect tender roses from the rigors of winter in Nebraska. The best mulches are kinds that do not tend to pack down too tightly. Saw dust, fine garden soils or vermiculite make excellent mulches.

If leaves are used for mulching, place them in a cylinder made of hardware cloth or chicken wire mesh to hold them together. Make the cylinder 16 to 18 inches in diameter for individual plants. If the roses are planted in a bed, extend the enclosure eight to ten inches beyond the outer limits of the plant plot. A plastic covering is advisable if leaves are used.

You should wait until the soil has partially frozen before applying the mulch. Too early application of the mulch may result in as much damage to the plants as no mulch. Apply the mulch after the roses have been exposed to temperatures of about 25 degrees for several days and have dropped their leaves.

Range Fire Rate Doubled In State from Last Year

National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 5-11, brings into focus the fact that nationwide, the number of range fires has decreased, while Nebraska is having more.

That's the word from Donald Westover, University of Nebraska Department of Forestry fire management coordinator, who says that last year nearly 36,000 acres were burned over in the state. There were twice as many range fires in Nebraska in 1974 as the previous year. "And nearly 90 per cent of the range fires were caused by people," he added.

He said "people must develop the conviction that preventing range fires is everyone's job." If Nebraska is to join in the national trend of fewer outdoor fires Westover believes the long time message from Smokey Bear, the famous U.S. Forest Service fire prevention symbol, has had impact in greater public awareness of the need to put campfires out, extinguish cigarettes and attend to trash fires.

Proof positive that citizens "listened and were careful," is the statistic that the number of forest fires in the U.S. has been cut in half over the past 30 years.

"While Smokey's new message to citizens is 'Thank you, fire!' fires still destroy millions of trees every year," Westover stressed, with trees being one of the country's most valuable resources.

'This Is How We Fly a Plane'

total of 82 Winside elementary and high school students participated in the class assignments. Glancing over some of the controls in the cockpit before their flight are Winside students, from left, Dave Schlueter, Chris Macke and Angelia Tietz.

The first Bible printed in Ireland was dated 1716. John v. 14 reads "sin on more" instead of "sin no more." The mistake was not found out until the impression of 8,000 copies had been printed and bound.

Health Tip

Hypertension is a common "silent" health problem, and the Nebraska Medical Association reports many people are unaware they have high blood pressure or hypertension because they feel perfectly well. Hypertension is a major cause of stroke, heart failure and kidney failure, but these complications can be prevented with control of blood pressure. Although hypertension usually cannot be cured and requires lifetime medical care, it can be controlled by taking medications daily as directed. Persons being treated for hypertension should take their medicine every day even if they feel well. If they feel sick, they should check with their physician.

Soybean Checkoff Is Now Underway

On Oct. 1 Nebraska soybean farmers began checking off a half-cent per bushel when they sell their soybeans at local elevators.

The Nebraska Soybean Development, Utilization and Marketing Committee (SDUMC) is responsible for allocating funds collected under the checkoff program, which was approved by the legislature in June.

Although elevators will begin checking off collections Oct. 1, they will not forward the funds to the SDUMC until the end of the quarter. Therefore, the committee will have no funds available for allocations or refunds until January.

However, it was pointed out that farmers who wish to request refunds of their checkoff contributions must do so within 60 days of the sale, even though money cannot be refunded until January. Refunds must be requested from the state commissioner of agriculture.

"The money will be used for research so that we can solve our production problems here at home," said Ralph Raikes, of Ashland, chairman of the SDUMC. "It will also be used for funding overseas market development programs so that we have a market for all we produce."

The SDUMC is composed entirely of soybean farmers. Other members, in addition to Raikes, are: Carl Gangwish of Shelton, vice-chairman; Eugene Glock of Rising City, secretary and member at large; Elmer Blankmeyer of Dakota City; Edwin Damkruger of Beatrice and John Lueschen of Wisner.

The Wayne Kiwanis club Monday installed new officers for the 1975-76 term.

Heading this year's organization is Dan Sherry, who moves up from president-elect post he held last term. Sherry takes over for Gene Bigelow who now joins the ranks of past presidents. Serving as Sherry's vice president is Deryl Lawrence, who was a member of the club's board of directors. Bob Jordan moves up from vice president to president-elect. Continuing his role as secretary is Vern Fairchild.

Rufus Sheldon, newly elected lieutenant governor of Division 4 of Nebraska-Iowa district, told members during the noon meeting that the Wayne club is only good as long as there is strong membership participation.

The Hornich, Ia., resident, who belongs to the Sioux City chapter, pointed out that the club's new president will need the help of past officers and members if the club is to succeed in meeting its goals. "No club president can do it alone," he added.

Sheldon emphasized that the Club Meeting committee is the most important group in the club. He said that if the Club Meeting committee doesn't have good speakers lined up for each meeting, then members are apt to take less interest in the club. "If the programs are dull, then

Hearing Loss is not a Sign of Old Age

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Bellone. A non-operating model of the smallest Bellone-aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it. Send for this non-operating model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. No wires lead from body to head. These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 8577, Bellone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria Street, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

people won't attend," he pointed out. Committee on Growth and Education also has an important role in the club. Sheldon went on "We need more members if we are to build," he added. In line with that thought, Sherry noted that one of his goals for the coming term is to add a new member each month. Prior to the installation, members unanimously voted in favor of raising yearly dues from $25 to $35. Also during the meeting members were introduced to Doug Ennet, the newly elected lieutenant governor for the Nebraska-Iowa Circle K district. Ennet, a senior at Wayne State, told the group one of his goals is to charter Circle K chapters at Northwestern and Westmar Colleges in Iowa.

People who can answer "yes" to five questions may be eligible for supplemental security income payments, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk. The questions: Are you 65 or over, or blind, or severely disabled? Is your income from pensions or social security benefits less than $177.70 a month ($256.60 for a couple)? Is your home valued at $25,000 or less? Is your car valued at $1,200 or less? Are your assets—savings, stocks, or other things convertible to cash—worth less than $1,500 ($2,250 for a couple)? "If you think you might be eligible for supplemental security income," Branch said, "call or write any social security office for more information about the payments."

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over, or blind or disabled. The program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Norfolk social security office is a Box 389, 1310 Norfolk Avenue. The phone number is 371-1595.

Americans have a big thirst for soft drinks, whether they call them "soda" in New York, "tonic" in Boston, or "pop" anywhere else. Last year the average American drank more than a glass a day, or 406 eight-ounce glasses—a full gallon more than the year before.

Role of Women Topic of Nov. 18 Norfolk Meeting

Women in northeast Nebraska have been asked to cooperate in a statewide effort to determine the roles of needs of women in the constantly changing patterns in government, industry and education.
Questionnaires, titled "As A Woman, What Is My Role, and What Are My Needs?" have been mailed to about 2,500 women in Northeast Nebraska by the Women's Communication Center of the YWCA in Lincoln. The results of the survey will be used in planning a workshop on "Women: Her Role, Needs and Options," to be held in Norfolk on October 18.
The project is being conducted by the University of Nebraska Lincoln Extension Division and Alumni Association, the Women's Communication Center, the Nebraska Department of Labor, and Nebraska Community Colleges under a grant from the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities.

HEW Grants Still Available For Current School Year

For many young people, September means back to school and a chance to further their education beyond high school. But any student knows that school can cost a lot of money.

Entry Opens For 1976 State Mother Title

The Nebraska Mothers Committee is accepting nominations for 1976 Nebraska Mother and official entry blanks can be obtained by contacting Mrs. Jerry J. Brown, 1221 Nebraska Ave., Norfolk.
The mother chosen for the 1976 title will receive recognition at a ceremony in Lincoln in the spring. Nominations must be received by state chairman Mrs. Frederick Blumer, 535 Madison, Lincoln, by Feb. 1, 1976.
To be eligible, entrants must be a member of a religious body, be legally married and not separated nor have been divorced, and must be the legal mother of one or more children, the youngest of whom is 15.
Mothers of legally adopted children qualify for the contest but foster children do not qualify her as a legal mother.
The winner of the state title will compete for the national Mother title.

EXTENSION NOTES
By Anna Marie Kreiffels

Cooler weather and lower humidity usually cause static electricity to build up in synthetic fabrics. Many homemakers use fabric softeners to help reduce the static electricity problem. Some fabric softeners are added to the laundry during the rinse cycle, while others are intended for use in the clothes dryer.

Anti-static fabric softener can cause a residue build up when used in clothes dryers. The common types of softeners designed for dryer use are the liquid, the aerosol, and the packet variety. Instructions on the labels should be followed closely for each variety. The aerosol type is most often found to cause a build up of residue in dryers. Continued use of aerosol spray softeners, especially if over used or if small loads are dried, can leave a residue mainly at the back of the dryer drum where tumbling clothes won't remove the film. This residue builds up and gradually turns a brown color from the heat, often times staining clothes. Such stains may require special treatment or professional cleaning for removal.

NRD Hearing Site

Wayne will be the site for one of three public hearings to be held in October regarding the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District one- and six-year plans.

In addition to the Oct. 15 meeting in Wayne, hearings will be held in West Point on Oct. 13 and at Norfolk on Oct. 16.

The public hearings are organized to allow district residents an opportunity to review the programs and goals of the district regarding the development of natural resources.

The hearing dates were set at the Sept. 25 meeting of the district board of directors. Local board members are Vern Mills and Val Peterson of Wayne, Howard Hansen of Laurel and Lowell D. Johnson and Glen Olson of Wakefield.

The annual district awards banquet will be held Nov. 17 in Pierce.

At the Sept. 25 meeting, the board members also recommended submitting the following resolutions at the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts Conference in January:

— Encouragement of consolidating agencies dealing with natural resource development, on a county-by-county basis.

— Funding of an information and education program by the Association of Resources Districts for the benefit of all districts.

— Legislation supporting solid waste and recycling measures on a county or regional basis.

— Requesting an increase of $2,500 the cost-share maximum to farmers for conservation projects constructed.

Winter Injury To Evergreens Can Be Slowed

Nebraska's erratic and sometimes harsh climate frequently causes damage to ornamental evergreens. This damage, commonly referred to as winter injury, occurs with a combination of dry summer and fall weather followed by cold temperatures through the winter and early spring months.

Winter injury results from the drying and desiccation of needles, twigs, and branches on red cedar, arborvitae, juniper and certain pines. In the early spring, damaged evergreens appear brown and dried out at the tips and will fail to leaf out normally. In some cases, these evergreens may leaf out only to die back within three or four weeks.

Occasionally, winter injury symptoms do not show up until a year or more after the physiologic stress occurred. Trees grown in poorly drained soil or excessively fertilized ground are more likely to be damaged by winter injury.

Unfortunately, weather cannot be controlled to prevent winter injury. However, several precautions will reduce the possibility of weather related damage to ornamental evergreens. Some of these are:

1. Select well-drained soils as planting sites.
2. Following a dry summer, soak the soil thoroughly before freezing weather sets in.
3. Place a mulch around the base of the trees to increase moisture retention.
4. Proper fertilization and soil aeration will increase plant vigor.
5. Remove all dead branches and twigs in the spring as soon as they appear.
