City Road Work Cost Pegged at $195,000

A forest of hands shot into the air Monday night when state highway commissioner Merle Kingsbury of Ponca asked the audience at a public hearing how many in attendance were opposed to the proposed four-lane section. Testimony earlier left little doubt that that proposal, plus a planned access road to serve six homes, just south of Red Carr implement, are the primary concern of Wayne area residents regarding the preliminary design.

The hearing was conducted to hear public testimony concerning Department of Roads (DOR) preliminary plans for resurfacing and improving about 10.2 miles of the highway, starting at 12th St. in Wayne and extending to a point about one-tenth of a mile north of the intersection with Highway 116. A count by Bernie Logan, DOR executive secretary, showed that 21 of the 47 persons attending the meeting responded when asked for a show of hands if they were opposed to the proposed four-lane section. Testimony earlier left little doubt that that proposal, plus a planned access road to serve six homes, just south of Red Carr implement, are the primary concern of Wayne area residents regarding the preliminary design.

way Commission and the Federal Highway Administration. Further exhibits and written testimony can be submitted to the roads department, until Oct. 30, for inclusion in the official transcript.

DEPARTMENT OF ROADS Engineer Willard-Rachow points out for Wayne Chamber of Commerce president Rowan Wittse a detail of the preliminary design for improving Highway 15 north of Wayne.

Excerpts from testimony presented by property owners is detailed in a story on page 4 of this issue of The Wayne Herald.

City officials including mayor Freeman Decker and council president Jimmie Thomas expressed concern when they learned that the city's share of the project amounts to $195,000. Willard Rachow of Lincoln, DOR rural roads engineer, said while reading a statement of preliminary design features, that the total cost of the project is estimated at $2.3 million, with 70 per cent of that amount coming from federal sources. Wayne must pay 30 per cent of the cost of the portion of the project within the city, a total of $635,000. Rachow said, with the city's share being $195,000.

The engineer said that, according to information received by the DOR from the city at one time, the city limits extend to the north edge of the Country Club golf course, including the golf course on the east and extending west to include the present road and right-of-way, but not property on the west side of the highway.

If that is true, Rachow said in conversation following the close of the hearing, the $195,000 estimate for the city's share of the project is correct.

Mayor Decker said Tuesday morning that apparently that portion of the highway was taken within the city limits by an ordinance passed in 1969. The matter will be investigated further, Decker said, and discussed at the city council meeting Tuesday night.

In outlining the preliminary design, Rachow said the highway will be widened to four lanes, starting 240 feet north of 13th St., extending north for about one mile.

The center line would shift west to a maximum of 28 feet in that sector, to avoid the cost of relocating greens on the golf course. The 52-foot four-lane strip would extend north to a point just north of Discount Furniture.

It would begin a shift to the east with the center line moving from its present course a maximum of 37 feet. A bridge south of Fredrickson's would be replaced with a new structure located east of the present one.

After about one half mile the road would shift back to the west, following closely the present line. The road would be widened from 22- to 24-feet-and-a-half.

Assessor: Listers Busy In Wayne, Rural Areas

Property listers are still busy in Wayne County gathering information to be used for re-evaluating property, county assessor Doris Shipp said Tuesday.

Listing is completed for Carroll, Winslow and Snook. Urban listers Mrs. Richard Lund and John E. Kay, are currently working in Wayne and have listed most property north of 7th St. They are expected to begin on the south half of the city this week.

Rural listers Scott Nelson and John A. Kay have completed seven of the county's 13 precincts and are now starting in the Brenna precinct. Mrs. Shipp said the two rural listers will be trained to list commercial property so they will be able to start work on business during the winter months. Listing of business property will start during the first week in November.

Mrs. Shipp expressed her appreciation to county residents for their cooperation in allowing listers to enter their homes. She pointed out that this is not required by law. However, an assessment must still be made if entry is refused and this is not always to the property owner's advantage. Mrs. Shipp said she said property owners who have refused entry will be contacted again in case they have reconsidered.

Deadline for completion of the project is Jan. 1. Mayor Merle Kingsbury pointed out that the listers are only gathering information and not actually evaluating property. That will be done later, using information gathered by the listers.

ASCS Still Needs Nominations

With barely a week remaining in the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office has yet to receive any nominations for the seat up for election on the county ASCS committee.

ASCS executive director Ray Butts said Tuesday that no nominations had been received by his office, although letters had been mailed to all farmers in the county.

The three-member board is responsible for overseeing the administration of ASCS programs in the county. The importance of the committee was pointed out last year when committee members were responsible for deciding who was eligible for drought disaster payments after a dry summer had parched many fields in the county.

Committee members are elected to a three-year term, with one seat coming up for election each year. The seat presently held by Alden Johnson of rural Wakefield, committee chairman, is at stake in the present election. Johnson is eligible for reelection to a second three-year term, if nominated.

Deadline for nominations is Tuesday. Butts said any nominations must be postmarked or delivered to his office by that date to be valid. If a total of four nominations is not received, the present committee will make nominations, Butts said.

A ballot will be compiled from nominations received and a copy sent to each farmer in the county.

Herald Won't Publish Monday

The Wayne Herald will not publish a Monday issue this week because of the federal government's Oct. 27 observance of Veteran's Day, there will be no mail service that day. The Herald and other Wayne businesses will observe normal office hours Monday.

county. Butts said he and his staff will accomplish this as soon after Nov. 1 as possible. Deadline for returning ballots will be Dec. 1.

State, Regional Contests Ahead For WHS Band

Wayne High will be one of 73 high schools sending bandsmen to 18th annual Nebraska Marching Band Festival, Nov. 1 in Lincoln.

The nation's oldest and largest indoor marching band festival is expected to be bigger than ever this year, said chairman Mike Veak. He expects 4,500 high school musicians to participate in the competition at Pershing Municipal Auditorium in Lincoln.

Growth of the event has dictated the dropping of the rehearsal period to allow more time for competition. Veak said that in previous years, the morning has been set aside to allow the See BAND, page 4

Council To Consider Pay, Tax Measures

Second readings of ordinances to set the city administrator's salary and occupation taxes for liquor licenses are scheduled for the city council meeting Tuesday night at 7:30.

Public hearings are set to consider applications for Class C liquor licenses for Korn's NU Tavern and Les' Steak House. Discussion items include renovation of the old Wayne hospital building for use as a city hall, repairs to the municipal swimming pool and paving of Highway 15.

Council members will also review bid specifications for an industrial tractor, a fire truck and a police cruiser.

Minimum Tillage Is Workshop Topic

County agricultural agents, natural resources district staff members and Soil Conservation Service employees from a 10 county area will convene Tuesday at the Northeast Station near Concord for a conservation tillage workshop.

District agriculture engineer Steve Pahl said the purpose of the workshop will be to teach agricultural specialists use of conservation tillage (also called minimum tillage) methods so they can provide information to farmers in their area.

Conservation tillage isn't new to northeastern Nebraska. Pahl said. The methods have been used on the Northeast Station research farm for about 10 years and the idea has gained popularity with many farmers.

"We would like to see more of it," he explained.

Minimum tillage combines tilling operations, requiring fewer passes over a field, which in turn cuts down on fuel costs. At the same time, conservation tillage methods help prevent soil erosion and conserve soil moisture.

During a morning session at the station headquarters building, a general introduction to minimum tillage methods will be presented and a panel will discuss various aspects including weed control, fertilizer application, soil condition, plant disease and insects.

In the afternoon, equipment used for minimum tillage will be explained and participants will have an opportunity to practice minimum tillage on the experimental farm, using the specialized equipment necessary for the farming method.

Is This the Right Way?

CONTROLS of a Bell helicopter attract Lorin and Lomny Grashorn, sons of Al Grashorn of Wayne. The two boys were among 300 persons attending open house at the Wayne airport Sunday afternoon.

Visitors Tour Airport

About 300 Wayne-area residents took time Sunday afternoon to visit the Wayne municipal airport and view aircraft displays.

The open house event was sponsored by the city airport authority and airport manager Al Robinson, to promote interest in general aviation. October was proclaimed General Aviation Month in Nebraska by Gov. J.J. Exoh.

Robinson said about 30 aircraft were on display for the event. The machines included two Bell helicopters, five home-built experimental airplanes, twin-engine executive models and a host of conventional modern light airplanes, most of which are used for business and transportation purposes by fliers in northeast Nebraska.

A special exhibit was an N3N biplane, used by the U.S. Navy as a trainer at the start of World War II. The antique aircraft is owned by Jim Batters, a flying friend of Robinson, hailing from Port Byron, Ill.

Although airplane rides weren't included in the official open house plans, Batters did provide a few impromptu sorties for fliers who showed a special interest in the biplane.

Included was Keith Wickert of Laurel, a veteran World War II Navy pilot who trained in one of the venerable open-cockpit aircraft.

According to Batters, Wickert hadn't lost touch on the N3N controls. "Keith gave me the ride," Batters explained. "It was fun watching someone go back 30 years."

While crowds showed interest in the novel aircraft, the main purpose of the show was to promote interest in the everyday flying undertaken by local private pilots as part of their business, and Robinson said visitors were interested in that aspect of flying.

Ten of the aircraft displayed belonged to pilots of the Wayne airport as a home base and a majority of the remainder were flown in from other airports in northeast Nebraska, including Pender and South Sioux City.

Owners were present to answer questions about their aircraft and how they use them. In addition, a film about general aviation was shown in a hangar.

"It was a pretty fun day," Robinson said. "We were trying to stir up some interest in flying, and I think we were successful."

Read-A-Thon Will Enrich Young Minds, MS Fund

Young students in the Wayne area are invited to participate in an MS (multiple sclerosis) read-a-thon during the next month, according to Wayne public librarian Kathleen Tooker.

Mrs. Tooker said purpose of the nationwide program is to help youngsters improve their reading habits while at the same time raising funds for MS research and patient services.

The read-a-thon is being sponsored by the Nebraska-Iowa Midlands chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, the Wayne Middle School library and the Wayne Public Library.

Youngsters who sign up for the program will in turn sign up pledge a certain amount for each book read. The money will be turned over to the MS fund. Registration cards and read-a-thon kits are available at either the public or middle school libraries.

The program is identified by its central character, the Mystery Sleuth Hound, whose costume includes a Sherlock Holm's checked tweed hat and jacket. Mrs. Tooker said children who sign up for the program will also be known as mystery sleuths in that they are helping solve the mystery of MS by supporting research into its cause and cure.

'75 Chest Drive Ends Tuesday

Wayne Community Chest drive captains and their workers are reminded that Tuesday is the deadline to turn in their funds collected for the annual campaign.

The goal for this year's door-to-door fund drive is $12,900. As of last week about $4,000, or one-third of the goal, had been handed in, said drive secretary Marilyn Carhart. Money for the drive can be turned in at First National Bank or State National Bank.

Donations from the drive will help to support the local recreation program, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Senior Citizens Center, arthritis foundation, Florence Crittenton Home in Sioux City for unwed mothers, cystic fibrosis research, Salvation Army and Red Cross.

Testimony Leaves Little Doubt: Four-Lane Highway Not Welcome

Several residents owning property adjacent west to Highway 15 presented testimony at the State Department of Roads design and corridor public hearing in Wayne Monday night, concerning the proposed design for improving the road.

Most testimony centered around a proposal to convert a portion of the road to four lanes. Residents also expressed opposition to a planned access road to serve six homes located south of Red Carr Implement. The following are experts of the testimony presented and some answers provided by DOR officials.

Bob Dwyer, one of six homeowners in the area where the access road is proposed, went to a strip map of aerial photos and pointed out the housing area.

Dwyer said his concern is to determine how much the frontage road would interfere with septic tanks and sewage fields, necessarily located in front of the six homes because of the land elevation there.

Charles Rosecrans, engineer with the DOR roadway design division, contended drawings and said the sewage fields are not indicated on the preliminary plans. The fields will have to be located during the final design phase and a determination made regarding their disposition.

Tom McCarthy, DOR district engineer headquartered in Norfolk, said notes have been taken regarding location of the sewage systems and that homeowners would be contacted regarding what could be done, before plans are completed.

Dwyer said that considering the elevation of the land, and the soil type present, his recommendation would be that the homes be connected with the city sewerage system.

Mrs. Jim Pokett, who also lives in the housing area, questioned the DOR traffic projection, which is based on current average traffic counts. She attributed a good portion of the present traffic to "Young people using it (the road) for a drag strip."

She said there is no law enforcement on the stretch of road.

According to Mrs. Pokett, speed has been a factor in a significant portion of the accidents on the stretch of road. Often, Mrs. Pokett said, cars traveling north "are doing 85 when they get to our house and are up to 110 when they reach Frederickson's."

The question of whether that section of road is within the city arose, because that would determine whether city or state and county law enforcement officers have responsibility for patrolling the road segment.

Willard Wilke also questioned the need for an access in front of his and his neighbor's homes.

The road would eliminate only two driveways, Wilke said, adding that there has only been one traffic accident in the area since 1954 in that a resident of the housing area was involved. He also asked why "the road couldn't be shifted east some what."

Rachow said that at one time it was proposed that the centerline be farther east. The plans have been changed because it is estimated that the cost of re-laying golf course greens would be $143,000.

Russel Johnson also asked if the center line couldn't be shifted east. The road engineers agreed to consider the suggestion during the final design phase.

Johnson said the present plan would mean the removal of trees from his property and alterations to his driveway would make it difficult for cattle trucks to turn into his farm yard unless provision is made for a turning area.

Owners of businesses located along the highway, in and near Wayne, also expressed concern over the proposed four lane strip.

Miron Jenness asked how close the road would come to his Puffin Kat mini-golf course and Fat Kat drive-in. Rachow examined plans and said it appears that the road would be widened in that sector within the existing highway right-of-way.

Jenness also protested the four-lane road, on grounds that he believes it will create a traffic control problem when large numbers of vehicles are leaving the Wayne State campus.

Jack March, owner of the Dude Ranch Drive-In Theater, was told construction limits of the road would come within 24 feet of the theater screen tower. Rachow said March will lose a marquee, hedge row and fence, but later added that moving the screen shouldn't be necessary.

Harold Surber, owner of Discount Furniture, located north of Carr Implement, said his main concern is how long traffic will be stopped during construction. Rachow said he doubts if the project can be completed in two construction seasons. He said local traffic would be maintained on the road as much as possible during the construction period.

Road Work

isn't expected until 1977. Right of way acquisition would begin in 1978 and the actual bid letting for construction isn't expected until 1979.

Rachow cited accident and traffic statistics as reasons for the proposed four-lane section and a two lane access road to serve the residential area south of Carr's. From Jan. 1, 1972 to Sept. 12, 1975, 31 property damage and 15 personal injury traffic accidents have occurred in the one and one-half mile section proposed for widening.

Rachow later said the accident rate is about normal.

According to DOR projections, the road will carry a daily traffic load of about 2,500 by 1999. Present average count is 1,375 per day.

Following the description of the project the public was invited to offer comment for recording in the hearing record.

Mayor Decker was the first to take the microphone, saying he had recently traveled 1,200 miles north. "When people ask me how the roads were, I tell them great after I got past the intersection with 116."

Decker continued, stating his agreement that the road should be resurfaced. "But a four-lane road doesn't quite make sense," Decker said, adding that he would guess there is more east west traffic through Wayne (DOR figures confirm this.) A good two-lane road would take care of the traffic situation, Decker said.

The $195,000 shakes me up a little bit," he concluded, referring to the estimate of the city's share of the project.

Willis Johnson, Dixon County supervisor, was the only official there from the three counties affected by the project.

"We've needed the road for 10 years and now it's three years away. People have to learn to give a little to get a little."

Wayne Chamber of Commerce president Rowan Wilke reaffirmed a letter endorsed by the Chamber directors in August. The board went on record as not opposing the road improvement but as opposing the four-lane proposal.

A four-lane road would be more useful, Wilke said, if one were built from Wayne east to the airport to serve the growing commercial and industrial sector.

Following the close of public testimony, Kingsbury explained that the Tuesday meeting will be the last public hearing on the completion of the design. The public will be notified when the design is completed and various agencies including the Highway Commission and the Federal Highway Administration approve the plan.

Kingsbury emphasized that the design considered Tuesday is preliminary only, adding that while he can't promise any public recommendations will be incorporated in the final design, the testimony presented will be given careful consideration before plans are completed.

"You've made it pretty clear that you don't want a four-lane highway," he said.

Class B competition, including Wayne High, commences at 4 p.m. Class C will start at 4 p.m., and Class A at 8 p.m.

Wayne Spikers Win West Husker Crown

Wayne High spikers Tuesday night downed Wakefield for the West Husker Conference title at Columbus Lakeview.

Led by four players with seven serve points each, Wayne went three sets, 15-12, 12-15 and 15-8, before claiming its first major loop trophy in three years.

All-conference selections were Susan Jacobmeier and junior Stephanie Dorsey, along with Julie Kovensky and Julie Kay, led Wayne scoring as both clubs split action in two close sets. In the third set Wayne "started playing like a team" to quickly jump to a 10-1 command and later a 14-2 edge before Wakefield trimmed the lead to the final 15-8 score.

Also named to the 12-girl all-conference team from Wayne was senior Mary Kovensky. The all-loop honors for Kovensky and Jacobmeier marked the second year both have been named to the West Husker team.

For Wayne, the win was the 13th against one loss. On Thursday, Oct. 30, the locals will go after the Husker Conference crown against East Husker Champ, Hooper-Logan View, when the teams meet at 7:30 in the Wayne High auditorium.

Paced by all-conference players Lynn Holm and Mary Kober, Wakefield now holds a 9-5 record.

Kober led spikers with 18 spikes while Holm and Lori Magnuson both had 13. In scoring, Renee Wilson had 11, Magnuson 10, Julie Mavis seven and Holm four.

Wayne advanced to the finals with wins over Stanton and Madison. The locals Monday breezed past Stanton, 15-5 and 15-4. Dorsey had 11 straight points in the first set, Jacobmeier had eight in the second set.

In one of the toughest games of the eight-team tournament, Wayne got by Madison in three sets, 11-15, 15-8 and 16-14. "We definitely played defense that last game," said a happy coach Mavis Dalton.

Julie Kay led pointmakers with 13 while Kris Nedergaard and Mary Kovensky did well at the net, the coach added.

Wakefield Monday posted wins over Wisner-Pilger and Hartington Cedar Catholic to get into the finals Tuesday.

Coach Ernie Kober's girls went two sets to dump Hartington—15-10 and 15-12. Tammy Murphy and Holm each had eight points while Kober had six. The Trojanettes battle Wisner three sets in the opener before winning—15-5, 9-15 and 15-7. Holm and Kober each had 12 points, Murphy eight.

Prep Picks:

Another Week of 6 Wins, Lose and a Tie

Finally reached a passing percentage in picking prep football winners for the 1975 grid season. My mark rose to 70 per cent after a second straight week of picking three winners against one loser and a team which tied.

The right selections Friday were Wayne over Columbus Lakeview, Winslow over Neligh and Coleridge over Allen. The upset of the week happened at Creighton when coach Bob Bozied's Laurel Bears handed Creighton its first loss of the season. Wakefield and Stanton tied.

Not included in my percentage were Wednesday night's outcomes of Wayne-Emerson-Hubbard and Laurel-Wausa. I'll wait until next week to figure them into my overall record which now stands at 21-9-2.

Since two games were scheduled to be played Wednesday, there are only three tilts on tap for Friday.

This week's selections (winners in boldface): Bancroft at Allen—Bulldogs are too strong for coach Cliff Jorgensen's Eagles.

Coleridge at Winslow—Wildcats will continue to show their strength when Coleridge invades at 7:30 p.m.

Hartington Cedar Catholic at Wakefield—Injury plagued Trojans won't find any relief from West Husker Conference leader Cedar. Pick Hartington to win No. eight.

Monday

Pierce at Wayne—Chalk up No. eight for the Blue Devils in their bid for a berth in the state playoffs.

DEFENSIVE END Dave Carper (89) attempts to neckle Kearney State runner Dave Burke as the junior tailback ducks around right end in first-half action of Saturday's homecoming at Wayne State's Memorial Stadium.

NCC Race Boils Down to Battle for 3rd

Not too much consolation in it, going for third place, but that's what Wayne State's football Wildcats will do Saturday night at Peru State.

After a 17-6 loss to Kearney Saturday and 3-0 to Chadron a week earlier, Wayne dropped out of title contention, so will match a record identical to Peru's, 3-4 overall and 0-2 in conference.

Peru took a 31-0 blitz from Kearney, then gave "mistake" ridden Chadron a scare before bowing 10-6 Saturday. Chadron lost four of eight fumbles, gave up one interception, and took 10 penalties for 115 yards, but held Peru to 44 rushing yards while gaining 281 on the ground.

Especially interesting to the Wildcats should be Peru's passing against Chadron, 158 yards. Wayne defense has been some what porous against the pass, but its rushing defense ferocious.

Comparatively, however, Wayne owns better team statistics than Peru. The Wildcats have amassed 1,051 net yards rushing, 1,046 passing. Peru has 734 rushing, 521 passing. Perhaps more telling, Wayne passers have connected on 50 per cent, Peru's only 29 per cent.

Passing accuracy was the offensive highlight in Wayne's loss to Kearney. Overall, the two Wildcat quarterbacks hit 18 of 27.

For the fourth quarter, Miller really took to the air as he pitched 13 and hit on 10. Unhappily, his one interception stifled what could have been a touch down. He found split end Maurie Minkten at the Kearney four.

But Antelope defensive back Mitch Johnson also was present, between Minkten and the ball.

Minkten claimed interference, but could not convince a nearby official.

One more Wayne scoring threat died on a lost fumble after a pass reception.

Wakefield Frosh Down Emerson

Freshman quarterback Jeff Simpson passed for two touch downs and Chuck Sherer recovered a blocked punt in the end zone for another six points Monday as Wakefield's freshman gridders downed Emerson-Hubbard, 18-12.

Sherer opened Wakefield's scoring in the first period after Dean Sharp blocked an Emerson punt. None of the extra point attempts were good.

The next period Simpson spotted teammate Val Johnson down field for a 55 yard scoring pass to put the Trojans in front 12-0 at the half. A Simpson to Bill Johnson aerial for 35 yards in the third period hiked the score to 18-0.

Emerson scored its 12 points in the final stanza.

The entire offensive front did a good job of pass protection, said coach Dennis Limpman. Also earning recognition for their playing were defensive standouts Verdel Ekberg, Tod Swiggart, Jim Simpson, Tony Henschke, Tim Prochaska and Sherer.

quarter, applied even more fury in the fourth. They did not yield to a single first down. After the fumble loss, Wayne defense drove Kearney nine yards back on three plays.

Then the Wildcats struck from the Kearney 42. On the sixth play, Miller drilled a pass 25 yards to light end Mike Green in the end zone, with 3:24 to play. A wild center snap flled the extra-kick try, and Wayne rolled by 12-0.

One minutes remained when the Wildcats got their final chance. Again Miller went to the air, hitting three straight to the Kearney 23, each time with Antelope blitzers hanging onto him.

Then disaster, another blitz trapped Miller for 12 yards loss, with six seconds left.

No question what Wayne had to do. Pass from the 35. Miller fired the rocket. The 5-9 Minkten was there in the end zone. But so were three tall Kearney defenders, and one of them batted the ball down, inches from the yardsstick.

Again in the second game, Wayne raced ahead on nine straight winning serves by Nitz chief of state. This time Wayne retained momentum to gain a 15-4 win.

Still another foul seemed to develop in the final game. Wayne going up 10-2. Within minutes, the spunky Blackhawks' heads reached a 12 tie, were moved ahead one point, then were shoved out as Wayne made it 15-13.

Devils Creep Up to No. Six

Wayne High creeps up to the No. six spot in this week's Class B top 10 prep football ratings in the Omaha World-Herald. Last week, the Blue Devils were No. seven.

Not surprising after Wayne's victory Friday night is the fact that the locals are on top of the district playoff standings in District B-3. The 6-0 Devils have 45.6 points, about two points higher than second-place Columbus' Scelus.

Looking at the top teams in the four districts, Kimball has the highest average with 46.2 points followed by Lincoln Plus X with 45.5, Waverly with 44.1 and Wayne. If the first round of playoffs were played today Wayne would face Kimball and Plus would take on Waverly, according to NSAA executive secretary Les Chamberlin.

College Spikers Stay Undejected

Wayne State's volleyball team remained unbeaten this fall, 13-0, after a close battle with Northeast Technical Community College, here Saturday.

Wayne jumped off to a 12-0 lead in the first game before Norfolk rallied to a 14-12 win—time running out before the 15th point.

Again in the second game, Wayne raced ahead on nine straight winning serves by Nitz chief of state. This time Wayne retained momentum to gain a 15-4 win.

Still another foul seemed to develop in the final game. Wayne going up 10-2. Within minutes, the spunky Blackhawks' heads reached a 12 tie, were moved ahead one point, then were shoved out as Wayne made it 15-13.

First District Win Escapes Allen Boy

Eleven-year-old Robb Linafelter of Allen has two more years to see if he can advance beyond district competition in the annual Ford sponsored Punt Pass and Kick contest.

The Allen youth Saturday failed in his bid to win his first ever district title in Omaha.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Linafelter, Robb won the local contest at Ponca and finished first in zone competition at Fremont. This fall to mark the fourth straight year he has placed first in both levels.

WPCC, 6-0

A 67-yard pass play Tuesday from quarterback Tom Ginn to Brad Emry gave Wayne's freshman football team a 6-0 victory over West Point Central Catholic.

The win was the locals' first in five games. On Thursday, Oct. 30, Wayne travels to Hartington Cedar Catholic for its final game of the season.

Neither team was in scoring position for the remainder of the game in what Wayne coach Duane Blumenkamp called "a defensive struggle."

The frosh finished up with 154 offensive yards. Leading ground gainer was Emry with 45.

Dave Schwartz was the top tackler with 14. He was followed by Dave Mann and Don Straight with 13 and 11.

Randolph Gridders Nip Laurel Jr. High

Snannon Hopkins scores both Laurel touchdowns Tuesday, but the junior high club came up two points short as Randolph won 14-12.

Hopkins scored in the third and fourth quarters to whittle Randolph's 14-0 margin in the third period. Randolph led 6-0 at the half.

The loss ends Laurel's season with a 3-3 record.

WS Harriers Add Victory To NCC Win

Wayne State's cross country team outran three visiting teams Friday to put an extra level in the Nebraska College Conference crown if won a week ago.

The Wildcats scored 24 points, well ahead of Chadron State's second-place 51, although national-class Lee Graesser of Chadron won easily and teammate Tim Maseberg finished third. Morningside scored 69, Buena Vista 90.

Despite a bout with flu early in the week, Graesser foured the rest of the season and will lead the team in the Nebraska College Conference crown if won a week ago.

The next four places belonged to Wayne runners: Chip Hagerman of Ainsworth, 22:56; Jerry Sanders, Kansas City, Mo., 24:11; Dale Sahl, George, Ia., 24:16; and Don Rinehart, St. Cloud, Minn., 24:22.

Terry Hooker of Chadron State came in eighth at 24:32. Two Wayne runners, though out of the scoring, finished next: Al Lilibe of West Point and Andy Myrtrue of Holstein, Ia.

Trailing them were Terry Bahney, Bob Larsen and Greg Hilde, all of Morningside; Rick Christiansen and Jim Williams, Buena Vista; Lonnie Clemmon and Duane Rees, Morningside; Cy Harman, Chadron; Craig Connelly and Duane Jensen, Buena Vista; and Bob Hotaling, Chadron.

In the NCC meet at Chadron on Saturday, Oct. 11, Wayne won the conference championship for the first time, scoring 37 points to edge Kearney State, 40, and Chadron State, 47.

That time, too, Graesser finished first in 23:23 over a 4.7 mile course, trailed by Burgett with a second-place 24:00. Hagerman was Wayne's second finisher with a fifth-place 24:30. Rinehart placed seventh at 24:42. Sahl 10th at 24:47. Sanders 13th at 25:30.

Ponca Triumphs

Allen junior high closed its gridiron campaign Wednesday with a 26-0 loss to host Ponca. After a scoreless first period, Ponca pushed across two touchdowns during the second period for a 12-0 halftime lead. In the second half, the winners went to the air for the final scoring plays.

Allen, 12-1, was led by Greg Allen on 117 ground. Carr, Pat Onderstell and Frank Lansen led the defense, said coach Jim Koozil.

Sportsbeat

By Bob Bartlett

Wayne High rushing standout Mark Brandt believes his team will go to the state playoffs. Speaking at Thursday's Guessers meeting, the club's Athlete of the Week told members, "Keep on supporting us...I think we can go to state."

LIKE MOST coaches, Wayne High football coach Al Hansen is waiting until the end of regular season play to see if his Blue Devils win their district for the right to play in the state high school football playoffs.

Right now Wayne leads District B-3 point standing according to the Omaha World-Herald. But leading and winning the Class B district are two different things, the coach noted during last week's Second Guessers' meeting. "Nothing is going to be settled until the last game," he said.

Wayne is the front runner this week with the help of Laurel's Kingsize upset of Creighton Friday night. Going into that game, Creighton and Wayne were tied for first in the division. But Laurel all but ended Creighton's hopes of a possible shot at the district title with a 18-12 victory over the Bulldogs. The loss was the first for Creighton in seven games. Meanwhile, Wayne upped its record to 6-0 with a 27-0 drubbing of Columbus Lakeview.

Hansen pointed out last week that none of the actual points in the district make a difference until the end of the season. The final standings will be released by the Nebraska School Activities Association. If Wayne finishes its nine-game slate undefeated, and untied, the Devils will gain bonus points. But final points also are based upon the outcomes of other teams Wayne has played during the season. Before Friday night, Hansen noted that former foes Madison and Blair had 3-3 records. And to help in the final point standings both teams would have to win two of their last three ball games for winning records — another area in which Wayne can gain valuable points. Friday night Blair won its game, but Madison fell.

In a telephone interview Monday with NSAA executive secretary Les Chamberlin, Chamberlin pointed out that the final point standings will be compiled after Oct. 31 — the last night for most high school football teams. The points will be figured over the weekend and the top team in each district would be notified by Monday Nov. 3.

Chamberlin pointed out that the district winners in Class B will be ranked according to their point average. The top team will play the fourth place team and the second place team will play the third place club in the first playoff round. Sites for the first round of playoffs are the school farthest west will host the game between the first and fourth place teams. The school farthest east will host the game between the second and third place teams. Championship game will be held at the school farthest west.

LIKE HANSEN, Chamberlin cautioned football fans not to rely on the standings, published in the Omaha and Lincoln daily newspapers. Chamberlin pointed out that the newspapers use a computer to compile the points after every game. "We have to wait until the end of the season before we find out the final records of the teams before the final standings are correct," he said. He noted that towards the end of the season, standings in the papers should be close to NSAA figures. No matter what the standings are now, BECAUSE OF the lack of space and the large number of stories Monday's issue, the Guesser's Athlete of the Week story didn't get in. As a result the story and pictures of last week's selections are in today's issue.

The Athlete story wasn't the only story left out of Monday's paper. Also left out were stories on junior high football and the college cross country victory as well as list of the top bowlers for last week. Again those stories are in today's paper.

WAYNE AND Wakefield High football fans who aren't able to attend their school's football games and want to hear the play-by-play action will have a chance to do so now that radio station KTCM will be broadcasting some of the games on its new FM frequency, 104.9.

Friday night announcer Gerry Hix will describe the action of the Wakefield-Hartington Cedar Catholic game, beginning at 7:30. Monday night the Wayne-Pierce game will be broadcasted.

Osmond Takes 2 From Winside For Clark Title

Osmond shutoff Winside's bid to represent the Clark Division in the Lewis and Clark Conference volleyball playoff next week when the visitors Tuesday night took two sets.

Osmond stopped coach Don Leighton's Wildkittens, 15-3 and 15-8, to hand Winside its second division loss in five outings. Osmond, 5-0, will meet Lewis division winner Homer Monday night for the loop title at Homer.

Senior Jill Stenwall had one of her better floor games while Deb Albercht did a good job of spiking. Leighton noted. Tonight (Thursday) Winside, 5-7 overall, hosts Norfolk Catholic.

Osmond also was victorious in the reserve match, winning 15-0 and 15-2.

Sun Schedule

The following schedule applies to any point that is due north or due south of Wayne. For each nine miles west, add one minute. For each nine miles east, subtract one minute.

Winside Jr. High Closes Season With 20-0 Victory

Winside junior high Tuesday closed its grid season with its first victory, a 20-0 shutout of visiting Osmond.

Bill Gotberg scored a pair of touchdowns and Dirk Jaeger posted a six point play as Winside finished with a 1-2-1 record. Jaeger bolted two yards in the opening frame for Winside's score. The extra point attempt failed. Still in the same period, Gotberg capped a 49-yard drive with a two-yard dive play for a 12-0 lead. Brian Foote dashed into the endzone for the twopoint conversion which gave Winside a 14-0 halftime command.

In the final period Gotberg went six yards for the touchdown. Winside's leading rusher for the night, Roger Prince with 80 yards, was very instrumental in Winside's last two scoring plays, said coach Mike Jones.

Prince went 24 yards on an end around to set up the team's second touchdown. During an 84-yard drive for the hosts' final TD, Prince ran 31 yards and grabbed a halfback pass from Jon Langenberg for another 18 yards.

Turkey Season Opens Saturday

Nebraska's fall turkey season for shotgunners opens 15 minutes before sunrise on Saturday, according to the Game and Parks Commission. Prospects look good for the season, particularly in the Nebraska Unit where the population appears a bit higher than normal. That area experienced higher than usual winter survival of birds, which was reflected in very good success during the spring season. The other fall turkey hunting unit, Round Top, should have an average number of birds on hand. Generally, about 45 to 50 percent of Nebraska's fall turkey hunters are successful.

Looking for 1st Win

Laurel reserves will be looking for their first gridiron win Monday when they invade Creighton. Laurel, 0-5, was scheduled last Monday to host Bloomfield, but Bloomfield canceled the match.

Athlete Of The Week

BRAD ERWIN, Laurel High School

Quarterback Brad Erwin's on target passing, which scored two of Laurel's touchdowns Friday for a 18-12 upset of Creighton, is reason enough the senior should win this week's "Athlete of the Week" award. But the two-year veteran did more than just pass for two touchdowns to knock off previously undefeated Creighton. Erwin added a new threat to Laurel's game when three times he quick kicked the ball to put Creighton out of scoring position. On third down and long plays, Erwin booted the ball twice for 45 yards, and another for 40 yards. That was the best offensive game for Erwin, pointed out coach Bob Boried, adding that Erwin's quick kicks were "very instrumental" in Laurel's win. Erwin finished the game with seven pass completions of 14 attempts for 120 yards. He also broke loose on punts of 39 and 17 yards. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Verdel Erwin of Concord, Brad started at the quarterback position last year while alternating with Gordon Kardell. Erwin also was a starting guard on last year's district winning basketball team. During the summer he pitches on Laurel's American Legion baseball team.

Brandt, Donohoe Win Awards

Offensive and defensive players are the latest recipients of the Second Guessers' Athlete of the Week awards.

The offensive player is Wayne High's leading rusher, junior Mark Brandt, and the defensive player is Wayne State's Pat Donohoe. Both received the awards Thursday noon during the Guessers weekly meeting at the Cornhusker Cafe. The awards are presented each week to the outstanding player from Wayne High and Wayne State who are selected by the coaching staffs.

Against Madison Brandt collected 108 yards and became the Blue Devils' leading rusher for the fourth game. Brandt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irv Brandt of Wayne.

Wayne State football coach Del Stoltenberg calls Donohoe the "best nose guard at Wayne State." The 6'1" 227 pound senior twice has been selected to the Nebraska College Conference all loop team and has been named to the NAIA District 11 team. Donohoe led lackers with 12 stops in the Wildcats' 10 loss to Chadron State.

Pat is the son of Mrs. Lois Donohoe of O'Neill.

Allen VB Falters In Lewis Battle

"We were just too nervous," said Allen volleyball coach Steve McManis after his girls fell to Homer, 15-6 and 15-4, during Tuesday night's Lewis division playoff at Homer.

As a result of Homer's victory, the Knights will face Clark winner Osmond next week for the Lewis and Clark Conference title.

"We hit a night when we were off and they were hot," McManis commented after his girls suffered their first conference loss in the five games. One bright aspect of the match is that Allen shared the division title with Homer since both teams have 5-1 loop records.

Allen takes its 5-4 overall record to South Sioux City Tuesday night. In reserve action, Allen won 15-1 and 15-12. June Stapleton had 21 serve points for the night. In two games, Stapleton has served a total of 48 points. Against Newcastle she had 27. Also playing well was Kris Young. The reserves are 3-3. The C team eyed its record at 2-2 with a two-set victory. Led by Sharon Peterson and Susie Erwin with 16 and eight points, Allen won 15-9 and 15-8. Marcia Smith also was tabbed for her good play.

Higher Farm Income Offset by Cost Jump

For Wayne County's farm community, the past year turned out to be a better one, by and large, than it did for farmers and ranchers in many parts of the country. Although some operators did little more than hold their own, others, especially growers with large, well-equipped setups, ended up in the black. The gains were not so good on the other hand, for most livestock producers. The final figures for the year, recently released on a county by county basis, show that gross receipts in the local area from the sale of crops, livestock and other farm products compared favorably with those reported in 1973. The better showing was due to higher prices obtained for most commodities rather than to increased production. Expectations of a bumper crop were out because of the hot, dry summer followed by an early frost. However, figures from the Department of Agriculture show that it was a landmark year in that gross farm income in the United States topped $100 billion for the first time in history. In Wayne County, according to data compiled by the Standard Rate and Data Service, farm receipts in the year came to $71,342,000, as against the previous year's $58,119,000. The increase, 22 percent, compares with a 21 percent rise in the United States. The income figure refers to gross receipts, before taxes and operating costs are taken into account. The bulk of it consisted of cash returns from the sale of crops, livestock and other commodities. Making up the rest were government payments.

Wayne State Foundation Approves Record Budget

The largest budget ever proposed, $30,620 was approved Friday by the Wayne State Foundation Board of Trustees for the 1976-77 school year. The meeting was held at Wayne State College.

Appropriations within that budget include $16,520 for scholarships and awards; $4,500, recruitment and public relations ($1,000 increase over last year); $3,000, administrative expenses; $2,500, printing and postage; $2,000, international institutes; $1,250, alumni activities, and $700, on-campus institutes.

Plans were made by the foundation to sponsor a series of on-campus dialogues to be conducted by visiting scholars of national or international reputation. The series, to focus on contemporary basic issues, will be called the House-Neihard Dialogues for Dr. Julius T. House and Dr. John G. Neihard, two major figures from the past of Wayne State College. The series will be opened to students, faculty and the general public.

The Wayne State Foundation also dedicated to undertake the planting of additional trees in the Willow Bowl. Officers elected for 1976 are Val Peterson, president; Henry E. Loy, vice president; Kenneth Olds, resident agent, and Charles Kay, executive secretary-treasurer. New trustees are Richard J. McCallum, Tom Fuller and Patricia A. Stander, Omaha; Edmund E. Werner and Donna Sonner Holmes, Grand Island; Russell Hopper, Hampton; James Nissen, Lincoln; Ray Larson, Fullerton; Beryl McLure Williams, Streator, Ill., and Lloyd Erlexben, Glendale, Ca.

The Wayne Foundation organized in 1961 by former Nebraska Governor Val Peterson, has received over $403,000 in contributions and donations from Wayne businessmen, alumni, students, faculty, friends of the college and the city of Wayne since its foundation.

The Norfolk post office is holding a letter containing a wedding card, $60, a list of first names—and no address—Wayne postmaster Wilbur Giese said Tuesday.

Giese said he was notified by the Norfolk post office that the letter was picked up by a Monday star route truck which collects mail from post offices between Sioux City and Norfolk.

A list of first names is written on the front, suggesting a check list, but no address is included.

Giese said the letter will be returned when the sender identifies the names in the checklist.

A SPECIAL PRESENTATION was made Tuesday night at the Wayne Lions Club meeting as Cleus Sharer, left, was awarded a 100 per cent district governors award by Charles Denesa.

Cleus Sharer of Wayne was presented a 100 Per Cent District Governors Award Tuesday night at a couples dinner held by the Wayne Lions Club.

Sharer, a Lion since 1962, was cited for outstanding service while serving as district governor.

Five new members were inducted into the organization: Bob Dwyer, John Witkowski, Steve Pohl, Dick Ditman and Jim Strayer. Their sponsors were Dale Stoltenberg, Vern Krause, Bob Vakoc and Charles Meier. Members received tickets to sell for a masquerade dance Nov. 1 at the Wayne National Guard Armory. The band "Grand Junction" will play for the Lions Halloween dance. Tickets, available from club members are $1.50 or $2 at the door.

Lions members will give a helping hand with Honey Sunday Nov. 16. Members of the organization voted to provide transportation for church youth group members who will be selling honey in rural areas.

Dance Caps WSC Homecoming

Wildcat Days of 1975 is an event for the memory book now, and it will be a pleasant memory, judging by student reaction at Wayne State College.

Except for a big rain Thursday evening which sent the street dance into the City Auditorium, but dampened no spirits, weather smiled cheerily on the fall festival's full week.

For Wayne residents, a major event came Saturday morning with the parade up Main Street — an old favorite that was revived last year after an absence of seven years following the 1966 snowstorm that ruined the parade.

Spectators probably did their own judging on best floats, but judges who had the official say revealed their choices at the afternoon football game. Winners: Art Club, in the organization class; with a depiction of Washington crossing the Delaware; Morey Hall, in the dormitory class, with a model of the WSC campus, and a motto noting the hall's 25th anniversary and the proud phrase, "Morey Hall: Leader of Leaders."

Wildcat Days featured other contests too. The Friday Greek Olympics attracted close to a thousand enthusiastic partisans, cheering contestants in pyramid building, the marathon race, egg toss, torch race, tug-of-war, gunny sack race and chariot race.

Phi Mu won the sorority competition, thus crowned its favorite sister, Kandy Kane of Omaha as Helen of Troy. Phi Sigma Epsilon won the fraternity trophy and Tabbed Denny Schlimes of Wayne as Alexander.

From the Olympics, action turned to the freshman skits in Rice Auditorium, and Berry Hall came out the winner after judges had to break a three-way tie in first calculations.

Friday night's third event, a pep rally, went according to tradition, with bonfire, cheers, band music, confident predictions about the next day's football outcome, and the usual cheerleader mystery game at the expense of prominent students.

Unfortunately, predictions of football victory turned into the only blish on Wildcat Days. Wayne bowed to Kearney State, 12-6, though the Cats kept home fans alive until the last play, yielding a potential tying touch-down pass—batted down in the end zone.

Cross country and volleyball teams produced victories — both continuing fine seasons. For the Wildcat Days finale, a crowd of maybe a thousand enjoyed the music of Omaha rock combo Travis for the traditional dance in Rice. One special number: the royalty dance for Queen Jane Barlo, King Willie Neid and their court.

Health Tip

When it snows six inches overnight, don't expect to get it all shoveled from the walks and driveway in 15 minutes.

Mother Nature took all night to distribute the snow you want to attack in a quarter of an hour. The Nebraska Medical Association (NMA) reminds you to think of your heart.

Snow is heavy, so don't attempt to shovel all the snow at one time. Give yourself time to rest, and if you cannot get it all shoveled, hire a neighborhood teenager considerably younger and probably in better shape.

Breathing chilled air rapidly, along with unfamiliar physical strain, are things that could cause you to have a heart attack, says the NMA, which suggests that if you have not exercised to keep in shape, take it slowly when you scoop winter snow.

When you have a cold or other infection, you may have a headache caused by swollen, inflamed sinuses.

The Nebraska Medical Association (NMA) says that sinus headaches are common with such an infection, and often the infection and headache clear up spontaneously as the secretions drain into the nose and throat.

'Jag har tappat en plomb' means "my filling just fell out" in Swedish!

University president opposes budget cuts

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN — The Legislature is back in town.

Gov. J.J. Exon called the lawmakers into special session to review budgets and taxes and to give him some more tools for dealing with the state's cash flow.

Exon has said he wants action before the State Board of Equalization meets (the deadline is Nov. 15) to set the state sales and income tax rates for the 1976 calendar year.

The rates now are 2.5 per cent on sales (3.5 per cent for purchases in Omaha, Lincoln or Bellevue, where a city tax is levied) and 12 per cent of federal liability on personal income tax.

Exon has said that unless his legislative package to remedy what he sees as the state's fiscal ills is adopted, the rates for 1976 will have to be 3 per cent on sales (4 per cent in Omaha, Lincoln and Bellevue) and 16 per cent on income.

Those increases, the governor has said, would be "dramatic."

Maybe so, said University of Nebraska president Durward B. Varner, when told what the governor wants to do to avoid the boosts, but it may be time for dramatic increases in the tax rates.

The governor has told state agencies he will cut their general fund (tax fund) budgets by 3 per cent down the line.

Varner said that is too much when the budgets, as adopted with Exon's consent by the 1975 legislature, were tight to begin with.

The university president said it is "inevitable" that N.U. would have to fire some of its employees and withdraw promised salary increases to meet the governor's budget cut specifications.

Another possibility, he said when he first heard of the 3 per cent budget reduction plan, is shortening the school year.

Varner said Nebraskans have enjoyed static, or nearly static, tax rates for several years. The governor and the Legislature, he said, have done a "remarkable job" in keeping the rates in check.

But, he said, cutting back "vital public services" in the midst of the fiscal year just to avoid tax increases is wrong.

Varner said he was sure "thoughtful Nebraskans" would agree with him.

But Exon didn't agree.

Nor did some of the legislators called for the special session. Sens. Richard D. Marvel of Hastings and Jerome Warner of Waverly, for example, said they were willing to have budgets cut if it would prevent tax rate increases.

They were reluctant, however, to endorse the Exon plan before he offered his specifics.

What Marvel, the Legislature's veteran budget chairman, and Warner, author of a 1975 provision which kept the income tax at 12 per cent this year instead of the 13 per cent Exon wanted, said they wanted to emphasize was that the governor had concurred with the spending authorized for this fiscal year.

They said every one of the Exon line-item vetoes of the mainline budget bills was sustained by the Legislature. If he had wanted less spending, he had an opportunity to cut deeper into the budgets when they went over his desk, the two lawmakers said.

What's more those two and Speaker J.W. Burback of Hartington had protested the tone of Exon remarks when the special session first started.

They said the governor was talking about a "severe financial crunch," something they claimed he could deal with without calling a special session.

Cash flow problems, the three said in an open letter to Exon, should be separated from tax rate problems.

The governor later agreed that the state could "get by" through the rest of 1975 without action by the Legislature. He said the "key question" concerned tax rates, and he was glad to hear the senators would support budget reductions to keep those rates from climbing.

However Varner reads the mood of "thoughtful Nebraskans" in regard to tax rates, a poll issued last week by The Omaha World-Herald indicated Exon's policy—which has been anchored for five years to a hold-the-line tax philosophy—is popular. The governor was given a good rating by nearly eight-out-of-every-10 Nebraskans surveyed.

On the same day that poll was conducted, ironically, Exon officially took himself out of the race for the U.S. Senate seat Roman L. Hruska is vacating next year.

There has been consistent speculation that the governor would take a crack at that job. He consistently has said he wasn't interested, but he always refused to say he wasn't absolutely interested.

Last week, he said it absolutely. He said he was making the announcement so there wouldn't be partisan political overtones to the special session.

If he ever runs for the U.S. Senate, Exon said, 1978 would be the year. That's when Sen. Carl T. Curtis' term expires. So does Exon's term as governor, under the Nebraska Constitution, he can't seek a third term.

Air quality - - what and when

By RICHARD L. LESHER

By VERNE M. MILLS

What's more important to you, where you live? Cleaner air? Jobs and a healthy economy? Low electric rates? Cheaper food? Inexpensive transportation?

In the best of all possible worlds, such choices would not have to be made. Unfortunately, we do not live in the best of all possible worlds—although some people act as though we do. The unemployed want jobs, the homeowner with an electric bill higher than his mortgage payments wants relief, and damn the consequences. And some environmentalists insist on air cleaner than Mother Nature produces.

It is easy to sympathize with each of these viewpoints individually. Put them all together, however, and you have Mission Impossible.

The industrial and agricultural development that provides more jobs and cheaper food often pollutes the air. We can, and should, eliminate the worst of the pollution. But we don't know how to eliminate all of it (at least not at a cost that would be less than prohibitive.)

The least expensive, most available fuels for the generation of electricity are also those contributing most to air pollution. Equipment to reduce some forms of this pollution can cost more than the cost of the powerplant itself. Such expenses, including the cost of cleaner, premium fuels, must be added to the electric bill, unless the plant can be located where air pollution does no harm.

Reasonable people aware of the problems, should be able to make intelligent decisions on how to balance these factors in their own areas. Obviously, local conditions will vary enormously—prevailing winds and prevailing poverty may push the priorities in one direction in one place, while stagnant air and affluence make the opposite course more sensible elsewhere.

But will reasonable people be given the chance? Congress has had a tendency to legislate extremist positions into law where the environment is concerned. There is a very great threat that it is about to top its past performances on the clean air issue, passing regulations so stringent that further industrial or agricultural development would be forbidden in most of the country.

Can we afford to control air pollution? Can we afford not to? Before an intelligent response to these questions is possible, we must realize that the "affordability" of pollution control cannot be determined by economics alone. Here's why:

1. Pollution is not simply a nuisance—pollution kills. Since it usually kills slowly and unobtrusively, the resulting deaths are not dramatically called to the attention of the public, however. It is clear that death rates due to pneumonia, emphysema and lung cancer have skyrocketed since air pollution has increased. Tell me—what economic value shall we place on human life?

2. Pollution interferes significantly with the earth's life support system—that is, with those biological, chemical and geologic processes which constantly renew and recycle our air, water and soil. I doubt that any economist could propose a dollar value for our life support system, yet its gradual degradation is a threat to all life.

What about the economics of pollution control? Achieving and maintaining a cleaner environment certainly will be costly, however, living with pollution is even more so. The President's Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ) reported in 1972 the following break-down of annual air pollution damage costs to the U.S.: human health, $6 billion; materials and vegetation, $4.9 billion; lowering of property values, $5.2 billion. Thus our annual bill for air pollution damages is at least $16.1 billion. That amounts to $268 out of your family's budget each year in the form of higher taxes and costs. But there's more. The CEQ estimates that a reasonable cleanup program which would reduce air pollution damages to $10.7 billion annually would cost only $2.9 billion. The national savings would be $6.8 billion of which your family's share would be $113—with cleaner air to boot.

SUNDAY — Choose a church and attend it, as often as you can, without words, much plenty of words without heart. Ephesians 4:32. Be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving each other.

MONDAY — Trust not the world. 1st Peter 1:8. He that trusts in the Lord your God and you will be established. 1st Chronicles 20:20. Put your trust in the Lord your God and you will be established.

Out of Old

Nebraska

Narrow gauge railroad trips on lines all over America are becoming increasingly popular with tourists. These lines, as well as the powerful standard gauge lines, had practically been abandoned by the traveling public before passenger service was entirely withdrawn, though freight service occasionally continued.

Now, because of the current waves of nostalgia for a less complicated era, taking a train ride, especially when the train is pulled by a noisy steam engine belching smoke, is the thing to do. Most popular are the mountain narrow gauges, which traverse a ruggedly beautiful landscape. These were built as an economy measure because of the higher cost of constructing a standard gauge roadbed over high passes, through tunnels, and up narrow, twisting valleys.

Not so, the Covington, Columbus and Black Hills Railroad, a narrow gauge line in northern Nebraska which proposed to reach northward from Sioux City, into South Dakota and southward to the Union Pacific main line. It was built to save money all right but because of the difficult terrain. The promoters hoped to profit personally by spending less on materials and labor.

Dakota County voted $95,000 toward construction of the line. When the people of Dixon County voted 460 to 112 for $87,000 in bonds, they thought they were getting a standard gauge which would link with other lines and give a direct haul to markets farther east. It turned out to be a "contemptible affair with a 3 1/2 foot gauge," according to William Huse, author of the "History of Dixon County" (Norfolk, 1896, reprint, Earl Hinds, Ponca, Neb., 1973). A full account of this "frascally little railroad" as Huse called it, may be found in the bound volumes and newspaper files of the Nebraska State Historical Society.

On July 4, 1876, the "cars" began running between Covington and the Missouri River across 27 miles of Dakota County to Ponca, located about four miles inside the Dixon County line. It was not a popular carrier of either freight or passengers. Often the mixed train carried cedar and Knox coves to the west widely refused to grandiose the company bonds, and the grandiose scheme to reach the Black Hills began to disintegrate. Crews grading west of Ponca were hard pressed when they were not paid. No gesture was made toward extending the line southward to Columbus on the U.P.

In 1877 a new manager named Davenport was called in to revitalize the company, but to no avail. It went into receivership in 1878 and in 1879 was sold to the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha Railroad company. The track was widened to standard gauge.

Among the sardonically humorous tales that always seemed to grow out of mismanaged shoreline railroads was this one realized by Huse. Crews on the C.C. & B.H. conversed with farmers plowing along the right-of-way until the plow pulled the train.

By June, 1976, the Stühr Museum, Grand Island, will have laid a mile of narrow gauge track on which will run steam equipment originally from Alaska, most recent owner has been the Nebraska Midlands Railroad of North Platte.

OBSERVATIONS

Everyone a winner

Open house at the Wayne Airport Sunday was a success, thanks to the efforts of quite a number of people and the cooperation of the weatherman.

The event was initiated by Wayne airport authority members and airport manager, Al Robinson, as part of the observation of General Aviation Month in Nebraska.

Aviators from the area, and at least one from as far away as Illinois, cooperated by making time to show their aircraft and answering questions from an interested public.

Wayne area citizens responded to the invitation by showing up in respectable numbers, to find out what aviation means to their community.

It was one of those events where everyone was a winner—JIM STRAYER.

Singsaas: Mental Health Services Are Available

The major causes of mental health problems are alcoholism, drug abuse, family breakdown and the lack of awareness of mental health services, according to Duane Singaas, psychiatric social worker for the Northern Nebraska Comprehensive Mental Health Center in Norfolk.

"Of the four, alcoholism is the No. one problem," Singaas pointed out to Wayne Kiwanians Monday. But a person's lack of awareness of mental health services is perhaps as great a cause of mental health problems, he emphasized.

"About 80 per cent of the local people don't know that mental health services are available," he said. As a result some people are letting pressures and daily stress which they cannot handle, continue to build.

Singaas pointed out that there are 16 satellite mental health clinics in the 22-county area that can offer help to persons needing it.

He noted that a lot of college students are using the satellite facility in Wayne, located at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. The Wayne clinic is open every third Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for anyone who needs help with their mental health problems.

The cost of clinic services is based upon the number of persons in a family and the person's income, Singaas explained.

During Monday's luncheon Singaas and VISTA mental health educator Charlene Mockus, both of Norfolk, presented a slide program which outlined the goals of the Center.

Singaas said the Center has been in operation for about a year and services a 215-mile area.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Anna Marie Kreifelts

The High Price of Shoplifting

Last year U.S. consumers paid for one billion dollars worth of goods they never saw. All this expense is due to the increasing problem of shoplifting.

Allen Planning Whisker Contest For Bicentennial

A beard-judging contest starting on Jan. 1, will be one of the highlights of the American Bicentennial celebration in Allen next year.

Allen Community Club members Monday night agreed to sponsor the contest along with a Fourth of July parade and fireworks display that evening.

The annual homecoming for Allen High alumni on Sunday, June 27, will kickoff the week-long activities schedule, members learned during their meeting. According to Allen Bicentennial chairman Karen Knepper, every night until July 4 there will be planned activities.

Further plans for next year's celebration of the nation's 200th birthday will be made when the Bicentennial committee meets on Wednesday, Nov. 5, at the fire hall. Organizations and churches in Allen are asked to send representatives to the 7:30 p.m. meeting.

Shoplifting in self-service discount and department stores amounts to 2.6 per cent of their annual sales. Shoplifting continues, despite the use of closed circuit TV monitors, mirrors and security personnel. In some stores electronic hang tags are being used to detect shoplifters. These are an added expense to the store and, in turn, to the consumer.

Although arrests have increased more than 200 per cent in the past 10 years, many shoplifters go undetected. They come from all walks of life and have many reasons for doing it. Half of all shoplifters are juveniles between the ages 6 and 18. They steal on a "dare" or "just for a thrill." Females outnumber males about 20 to 1.

Other shoplifters include amateurs, mostly women, who steal on a sudden impulse or temptation, and vagrants who steal items they need to exist. One of the most dangerous shoplifters is the narcotic who steals to support a habit. The most difficult shoplifter to detect is the professional who makes a business of stealing for resale. Even employees steal. An estimated 75 per cent will take something.

Nationwide consumer prices rose $21 per family because of shoplifting. All consumers are having to pay for the dishonesty of fellow shoppers.

Plenty of Sore Feet After 11-Mile Trek

About 100 youths and adults from six area towns participated in Sunday's CROP march for hunger.

Ninety of those 100 from Concord, Dixon, Wayne, Allen, Laurel and Belden walked or rode a bike to complete the 11-mile course east of Concord and helped to raise about $1,500 in pledges, said the Rev. Bob Neben of Laurel.

If all the pledges are collected, the figure will be about $1,000 short of the $2,500 goal. "The exact figure won't be known for a while," he said.

If Mrs. Keith Berg of Laurel collects her pledge of $13 per mile, she will have made over $130.

An Allen youth, Brad Brown, was the first person to finish the course. Brown jogged the 11-mile course in just under two hours.

Money from Sunday's march will go to CROP, which is an arm of Church World Service. Sponsors also may request their contributions to go to one of the following: Catholic World Relief, Lutheran World Relief or the World Relief Committee of the National Association of Evangelicals.

The CROP planning committee wishes to thank all those who helped or took part in the march.

Car Fire Extinguished

A car fire about 11:15 a.m. Saturday was extinguished before members of the Wayne volunteer fire department answered the call.

According to fire officials, a car operated by Todd Manske, Wayne, caught fire in the engine compartment. The auto sustained minor damage.

TWO HIKERS take a break during part of their 11-mile trek Sunday to raise funds for CROP. The two paused for a cool drink while others continue the long walk in the warm afternoon sun.

Currently groups are operating in France, England, Canada, Sweden, West Germany and the United States.

According to Dr. Hepburn there are many YFU proponents from all areas of the political spectrum, including each of the presidents since the late John F. Kennedy.

Farm Noise Level Subject of OSHA Visit

Is the noise level generated by tractors and other farm implements and equipment under certain conditions injurious to the health of farm workers to the extent that noise standards should be established and enforced?

The answer, at present, is not a clear-cut yes or no, because a number of variables involved. But a final decision will be forthcoming by the U.S. Department of Labor, and a recommendation from an advisory committee may be made as early as December.

Findings gathered from a three-day visit to Nebraska are likely to be significant in shaping the recommendation by the 15-member Agricultural Advisory Committee to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). The committee, headed by Dr. Harry Erisman of the University of Florida, Gainesville, has been wrestling for nine months with the challenge of establishing whether noise levels encountered in normal farm operations warrant the same standards affecting both manufacturers and farm workers.

Rollin D. Schneider, University of Nebraska extension safety specialist and a past chairman of the committee, said the advisory group is the assistant secretary of labor for OSHA came to the state because of its leadership in testing tractors and other farm equipment for noise.

During their stay, the committee visited the Merle and Ralph Olson farms near Cresco to see general farm equipment in operation and learn of actual noise levels to which an operator is exposed.

While it is known that noise levels above 90 decibels can be detrimental to hearing, and tractors and other farm equipment have produced noise in excess of 100 decibels, a valid cause-and-effect conclusion cannot be drawn that simply, Erisman said.

ing has declined over a period of time, but it would be speculative to pin the blame on a single cause, such as a tractor, the safety specialist stated. Other activities where high noises are present might be indicated, he suggested.

The length of time a farmer might be exposed to a high noise level makes a difference in the potential health hazard, he explained. It is the intermittent nature of noise exposure in farm operations which makes the problem of establishing possible noise standards different in agriculture than in industry, where noise such as on an assembly line is constant, he added.

Erisman said the on-site experience, such as the committee's visit to the Olson farms, "is crucial to decision-making," by the committee in recommending standards. The committee recommended roll-over protection standards for tractors which went into effect April 25, requiring that employees be made aware of nine safety rules of operation, in addition, all tractors manufactured on or after October, 1976 and used by employees must have built-in rollover protection features. The standard is not retroactive to older tractors.

Currently, Erisman said, the committee is studying the need for standards in noise, job-related transportation and electrical systems in agriculture.

At the Olson farmstead, committee members, including Mrs. Alice Murray of Ames, Ia., a farm owner, observed while the brother-partners operated a grain auger system, a crop dryer, disk, chain saws, a combine and conducted a mini-bull rock shoot so shotgun noise input could be measured.

Among non-committee members on hand was John Egging of Gurley, representing Egging Manufacturing Co., which makes tractor cabs. Egging had earlier presented a paper on tractor cabs to the committee. The Olsons noted they had been wearing hearing protection devices for several years. They also pointed out the difference in noise levels next to a shelter belt. (Two University of Nebraska scientists in forestry and engineering have proven through an extensive study that tree stands can significantly muffle or deaden sounds, such as highway noise).

UN-L extension agricultural engineer Mike Mumgaard and other industry sound experts used dosimeters and precision sound level meters to get both instantaneous and cumulative recordings of sound. They found an uncomfortable 110 decibels in front of the fan of a large grain dryer, with the noise level dropping off to 74 decibels some distance away. From 85-90 decibels were recorded in the cab of a tractor pulling a disk. The radio was on in the cab. When the radio was turned off, the sound dropped to 82 decibels. The chain saw, notorious as a noise generator, lived up to its reputation.

One, two and finally three chain saws were used simultaneously. It was found that one chain saw gave off 110 decibels, two saws upped the total to 113, but bringing in the third saw did not add significantly to the noise level.

Various committee members voiced comments during their visit to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln tractor testing laboratory and the Olson farm.

Jay Anolcus, OSHA program specialist, Washington, D.C., said the noise problem is the most pressing issue of the five or six standards being considered for recommendation to the Secretary of Labor. He noted the absence of noise standards for agriculture, while they have existed in industry for a long time.

John Harris of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute (FIEI), Racine, Wis., expressed interest in the amount of noise causing hearing impairment over a working lifetime. He suggested that because experts do not know what a safe noise level is, "we tend to over-protect to be on the safe side."

"Frank Walters of Deer & Co., Waterloo, Iowa, chairman of the FIEI noise committee, said "a properly engineered cab will not intensify noise." However, he emphasized that the cab must be failed to the vehicle. Twenty years of work have gone into noise reduction in vehicles, he said.

Mrs. Alice Murray, who also is on the national Farm Bureau Women's Committee and the National Safety Council Board, insists that employees on her Iowa farm wear earmuffs during the entire work day when operating machinery.

Warren Morse, Burlingame, Calif., OSHA coordinator for the Western Conference of Teamsters, termed time spent at the UN-L tractor testing facility as "very informative and helpful" in understanding the nature of the farm vehicle noise problem.

He is particularly interested in improving working conditions in the field for the farm worker, including protection from pesticides and chemicals and assurance that farm vehicles are safe and maintained by qualified operators.

Problems Discussed By Grain Marketing Committee

A number of items of interest to farmers came up at a meeting of the Nebraska Grain Marketing and Utilization Committee on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus.

Besides the usual concern about a transportation crunch if we start again to move large quantities of grain to Russia, the committee of businessmen, farmers, public officials and scientists agreed on a number of other items.

—Robert Anderson, executive vice-president of the Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Association, said fertilizer prices should not be as high as they are last, but farmers should consider buying now.

—Dr. D. G. Harway, chairman of the UN-L department of agronomy, said farmers might be well advised to apply their fertilizer this fall, but under proper soil temperature and moisture and application conditions. Fall applications should be delayed until the soil temperature is 50 degrees or lower and applied nitrogen should be incorporated into the soil.

Warm weather and moisture permit soil bacteria to transform ammonia to nitrate, which can be lost through leaching, he explained.

Sidressing during the growing season has been proved to be the most effective way to use fertilizer, but other factors such as fertilizer availability when needed and time available for applying it can dictate application at other times, he added.

Dr. Thomas Thompson, UN-L grain marketing coordinator, agricultural economist, warned that anyone using water at air for drying should not be drying too heavily with grain when the temperature is high.

High temperatures will put the grain out of condition quicker than the grain must be watered closely under these conditions, he said.

—Paul Sindt, executive director of the Nebraska ASC, proposed that farmers be encouraged to plant more winter wheat.

Wraglers Achievement night was held Oct. 15 at the Northeast Station for the Wranglers 4-H Club with parents as guests. Roll call was answered with each member telling the most important event in his or her 4-H year.

Election of officers and leaders was held with Lindy Koester, president; Diane Witte, vice president; Cheryl Koch, secretary; Kevin Kraemer, treasurer; Lori Von Minden, news reporter; Fritz Kraemer, organizational leader, and Frank and Kathleen Pflueger, Sandy Pettit and LeRoy Koch, assistant leaders.

Gifts were presented to Scott McAfee, outgoing president, for leadership given in the club the past years and to Bark Creamer for serving as pianist for club song groups. Following the business meeting teams were chosen and games played with Lori Von Minden in charge of recreation. Lunch was served by the Stollers, Sachaus and Stallings.

Next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 8 at the Northeast Station, near Concord.

his chairman of the UN-L plant pathology department, said that the sooner corn is in the bin the better.

Delay in harvest can result in large field losses because of stalk rot and corn borers, he said.

When the subject of piling newly harvested grain on the ground came up, Harway said at the moisture content of pulp this year, it can even be put in large piles, even if it gets rained on.

Irrigators Being Advised To Fill Soil Profile Now

Nebraska irrigators who were being advised this summer to water crops judiciously to conserve water are now being urged to fill the soil profile insofar as possible before the ground freezes up for the winter.

Paul Fischbach, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension irrigationist, said prolonged dry conditions extending much further into the season than in normal years make it imperative for irrigators to get moisture into the normal root zone for crops.

UN-L irrigation specialists have been recommending the concept of programmed soil moisture depletion—an approach for obtaining high yields without excessive irrigation by the plant utilizing moisture stored in the soil profile by the irrigation water and rainfall. The heavy pull by corn and sorghum on stored moisture and the absence of fall rains has resulted in extremely dry conditions, with a deficit of eight to 10 inches of moisture in some areas, Fischbach stated.

It may not be feasible to completely fill the soil profile this fall, to allow for the intake of snow water and spring rain, Fischbach said. However, he advised applying four inches of water in the top two feet of soil to bring the moisture content to field capacity.

Because of the differences in penetration rate in various types of soils, the number of waterings and amount of water applied in each irrigation may vary to achieve a saturated soil profile, Fischbach said.

In heavy soils of eastern Nebraska, it might require two to four irrigations or an equivalent combination of irrigations and rainwater to send moisture to the five-foot depth. Depending on the type of irrigation system, a gross of five to six inches of water may be required to store four inches, Fischbach added.

In the case of center pivots, it will be important to coordinate the amount of water applied per revolution with the intake rate. In some instances it may be possible to apply four inches during one revolution; in others, it may require two to three inches during each of two revolutions.

If weather and soil conditions permit, it would not be out of the way to apply six inches before freeze-up in bone-dry areas, Fischbach said.

However, he warned that if irrigation with a center pivot system continues late in the season, the pivot should be shut down when the temperature reaches 38 degrees to avoid icing up and possible damage. This can be accomplished by turning down the daytime or installing a device which will automatically shut down the system when the temperature reaches 38 degrees, he said.

WHAT IS GREENBUG RESISTANT MILO?

I have had some questions about new varieties of milo that are called green bug resistant. There seems to be some confusion as to what this term means so I'm going to quote information from Dr. David Keith, Extension Entomologist.

"Greenbug resistant" milos will resist, not be immune to, bug-free and farmers should not expect them to be.

The term "resistance" is an easy one to misinterpret — most people think it means total immunity to the insect. This is not the case, although it would be ideal. Unfortunately, the term is not easily explained.

Resistance is really made up of three parts—tolerance, antibiosis, and nonpreference. A "resistant" variety may have as much as tolerance, antibiosis, or a combination of two or all three. "Tolerance" resistance is the ability of a plant to produce a crop even though greenbugs infest the plant. Such a plant would have just as many greenbugs on it as a non-tolerant plant—but it would yield the latter.

A plant with the "non-preference" mechanism would not have as many greenbugs on it as a non-resistant plant simply because the greenbugs don't like it for some reason. Perhaps it is too hairy or has some distasteful substance.

Most of the new varieties of resistant milo coming into the market this year have the tolerance type of resistance, with some degree of antibiosis. Some of the milos may have just as many greenbugs as the non-resistant lines. Those varieties with tolerance plus antibiosis resistance should have about one third to one half the greenbugs as non-resistant lines. In both cases, the proof of the pudding will be in the yield. Both should out yield non-resistant varieties, regardless of greenbugs.

It is possible that even a resistant variety will benefit from spraying if the greenbug numbers get too far out of line. Most of our current economic threshold data was taken on non-resistant lines and therefore are not applicable to those resistant lines. Research is underway to determine what these levels should be.

Fire Destroys Two Hay Stacks

A fire about five miles northwest of Allen about 9:15 Monday a.m. destroyed two hay stacks on the Harlan Mattes farm.

Members of the Allen volunteer fire department battled the blaze after a spark from a hay chopper ignited the stacks. Damage was minor to the chopper.

Firemen stayed at the Mattes farm for about three hours to prevent the fire from spreading to 18 nearby hay stacks.

Earlier Monday, about 2:15, the Allen-Waterbury rescue unit was called to the Mattes farm where Blomh was taken to St. Luke's Medical Center in Sioux City.

Green, leafy vegetables such as collard, kale and broccoli have a good calcium content.

Dr. Colwell pointed out that almost 80 percent of the colleges' budgets are for salaries, mainly to persons who work on yearly contracts beginning July 1. Another 10 percent of the budgets go for fixed costs such as utilities.

"That means," Dr. Colwell said, "that all the reduction would have to come from the remaining 10 percent of the budget, which has been appropriated for items such as maintenance and repair, instructional supplies, travel for off-campus courses, library books and materials and other necessities that keep a college operating."

"It further means, that this fund would have to be cut by at least 30 percent to comply with the governor's proposal because the rest of our budget has already been committed."

Dr. Colwell added that the college presidents, responding to the directives of the board of trustees, entered into the contractual agreements through the normal business processes and that it would be difficult for the presidents to make any budget reductions without approval of the board.

Colleges 'Nearly Inoperable' Predicted Effect of Budget Cut

The four state colleges in Nebraska would be "rendered almost inoperable" if they were forced to cut the general funds portions of their current budgets by three percent at this late date, said Dr. William Colwell, president of the board of trustees of Nebraska State Colleges.

Dr. Colwell pointed out that the trustees have long made it a practice to submit a minimum and realistic budget to the Legislature and governor, and that the current budget is below what many observers feel is essential.

A three percent cut in the colleges' budgets would mean a loss of approximately $364,000. "It further means, that this fund would have to be cut by at least 30 percent to comply with the governor's proposal because the rest of our budget has already been committed."

Dr. Colwell added that the college presidents, responding to the directives of the board of trustees, entered into the contractual agreements through the normal business processes and that it would be difficult for the presidents to make any budget reductions without approval of the board.

$500 Bucks Prize Still Unclaimed

ROD NICHOLSON

Another $25 consolation prize, or perhaps the $500 grand prize, will be awarded tonight (Thursday) at 8:15 during the weekly Birthday Bucks drawing.

Last Thursday a Wayne man, Rodney Nicholson, missed winning the $500 prize when his birthday was six days short of the winning date of Aug. 30, 1947. Nicholson's birthday is Sept. 5, 1947. As a result of his birthday being the closest to the winning date, he won the $25 Bucks prize.

If Nicholson's birthday had matched the date drawn at random, he would have won the $500 in coupons. The coupons can be spent just like cash in any of the participating Wayne businesses.

To win either, the consolation or grand prize, a shopper must be present in one of the participating stores when the date is announced. No purchases or registration is required to be a winner.

Thought for Today

By Brian McBride

"The lack of something to feel important about is almost the greatest tragedy a man may have..."
 Dr. Arthur E. Morgan

Morgan's thought brings to mind those who have much to feel important about... a brilliant scientist, a great physician, a leading statesman... those whose great contributions to mankind are unquestioned.

We all have... or could have... something about which to feel important. Anyone who has a special skill he uses in his work, a homemaker whose devotion to her family is evidenced in a tidy house and nourishing meals, a scholar who excels in these all have a reason to feel important.

If tragedy strikes at some distant location, call us first. We can handle all the necessary arrangements for you with full local responsibility.
