City Tax Is Approved But Driver Needed Now

Wayne residents should soon be able to take advantage of a city-operated taxi service — if a driver can be obtained.

City administrator Fred Brink told the city council Tuesday night that he had received approval from the state Public Service Commission on the city's application to operate a taxi service. He said he expects to be able to complete necessary paper work sometime next week.

However, Brink said Wednesday that he had just learned that Dave Bernhardt, who was to have been the driver, has accepted a position in Fairbury and will be moving soon. Brink said he will have to find a qualified driver before the taxi can go into operation, and he welcomes any applications.

Bernhardt, a December graduate of Wayne State College, had previously been employed by the city as an administrative

Strategy Session Slated for Board

The Wayne Education Association (WEA) expected to submit today (Monday) a list of items for negotiation, Wayne Carroll schools superintendent Francis Haun said Friday.

The school board will meet in a special work session tonight to discuss negotiating strategies. If tradition is followed, the board will vote to go into closed session. Haun said no action will be taken in the special meeting regarding the WEA negotiation request.

Formal action on the request will probably come during the school board's regular meeting.

Local Dental Health Chairman Named

Wayne dentist Dr. W. E. Wessel has been named county chairman for the 1976 National Children's Dental Health Week, scheduled for Feb. 1-7.

The special week is sponsored nationally by the American Dental Association, and in Nebraska by the Nebraska Dental Association.

The 1976 theme is "Smile, America. Be Free from Dental Disease" in conjunction with the American Bicentennial, the symbol for the 1976 campaign is "Smile Doodee," an American Revolution caricature.

Dr. Wessel said tentative plans to observe the special week locally include a field trip by Wayne (first graders) to the Shupe, Wessel and DeNeyer dental office in Wayne, the annual dental health poster contest for fourth graders, and special dental health projects in the schools. Dr. Wessel said further details will be released later.

WCS Starts New Term

The new term at Wayne State College gets underway Monday with registration classes will begin Tuesday.

Course schedules are available at the Wayne State College registrar's office in the Hann Building in addition to a listing of classes offered during the day, many new classes are being offered on a night schedule and still other times are available for these classes.

Among the night classes being offered this term is "Local and Family History," a course which can prepare one for charting his own family tree. This class, taught by Dr. Monte McLaws, meets each Wednesday from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

There are several literature offerings, each focusing on one specific author, and offering from one to three hours of credit.

Prenatal Classes Start in Wayne During February

Prenatal classes for parents expecting children will be held at Providence Medical Center beginning Tuesday, Feb. 3.

Under the direction of nurses Mary Bose and Joan Merchant, the classes will be held every Tuesday night at 7 p.m. for six weeks. The two-hour classes will include facts about labor and delivery, and care of the infant after birth. Films on prenatal care also will be shown.

The six-week prenatal course will be the first in Wayne. According to Miss Merchant, the course wasn't offered in Wayne before because of lack of proper facilities.

Both fathers and mothers are urged to register for the course, which is free of charge. Persons interested may register at Bendick Clinic, 215 W. Second, or at Dr. Willis Wiseman's office, 214 Pearl.

Allen Woman Dies in Crash

A 51-year-old Allen woman was one of four persons to die in a car pickup collision three miles west of Willis Friday night.

Dead are Esther Brenflinger, 51 of Allen, a passenger in the pickup; Alice McNeal, 65 driver of the car; and James McNab, 70, both of Brewster, Minn., and the McNabs' daughter, Alice Todryk, 28, of Detroit Lakes, Minn.

Injured in the accident were the driver of the pickup, 27-year-old George Cooper of Allen, and Mrs. Todryk's sons, Michael, 7, and Danny, 6. The two boys were reported in good condition at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital in Sioux City. Cooper was reported to be in fair condition.

The state patrol said the car was westbound when Mrs. McNeal lost control on ice, slid sideways and was struck broadside by the pickup, eastbound on U.S. 20.

Gallery Owner Files Bankruptcy

WAYNE COUNTY TREASURER Leon Meyer displays some of the new license plates which went on sale Friday. Meyer said about 330 motorists lined up to purchase the new plates, a record for first day registrations.

First-Day Vehicle Registration Is Record

A record number of motorists lined up in the Wayne County courthouse Friday, the first day of the new license plate registration for 1976.

County treasurer Leon Meyer said 330 motorists registered vehicles, and county clerk Norris Weible reported that at one time the waiting line extended out of Meyer's office, across the court house lobby and down the entrance stairway.

Meyer speculated that the unusually large first day turnout might have been partly caused by vehicle owners who thought they would be saving money by early registration, or because they simply want to pay the smaller amount this year, even though it will mean they have to register by the end of January next year.

Other than having two amounts for their 1976 tax state payments, motorists won't be affected much by the new system until they purchase a new vehicle. They must register the vehicle when it is purchased, and pay 12 months taxes and fees, and won't register again until the same month the following year. Under the old system, for those who wait until February to register.

Meyer theorized that the heavy first day registration might have been partly caused by vehicle owners who thought they would be saving money by early registration, or because they simply want to pay the smaller amount this year, even though it will mean they have to register by the end of January next year.

Lions Dance Attracts 500

More than 500 people packed the Wayne National Guard armory Wednesday night for a New Year's Eve celebration sponsored by the Wayne Lions Club.

A near capacity crowd celebrated the New Year, dancing to music provided by band, Country Classics.

Lions Club president Bob Vakoc termed the dance "an unqualified success."

"One of the goals of the Lions Club is to provide wholesome entertainment," Vakoc said. "I'd like to thank everyone in the area who has supported us both financially and by attending activities such as the New Year's Eve Celebration."

Proceeds from the dance will help support several Lions Club activities. Heading the list will be the club's pledge to Providence Medical Center. The

City OK's Street Plan

The Wayne city council Tuesday night learned that it might be possible to purchase a limousine-type ambulance for considerably less than anticipated; modified and approved the one- and six-year street improvement plans; and rejected a bid by Councilman Vernon Russell to curtail the publishing of claims paid by the city.

City administrator Fred Brink informed the council that he had located a firm in Texas which builds limousine type ambulances on 1975 Oldsmobile chassis. The City of Aurora purchased an ambulance from the firm at a cost of about $15,000. Brink said he will invite the company to submit a bid in time for the Jan. 13 bid opening.

The city had previously opened a single bid, in the amount of about $27,000, for a limousine type ambulance built on a Cadillac ambulance, but decided to readvertise for bids after possible acceptance of the bid was delayed past the deadline set by the bidder.

Vernon Russell told his fellow councilmen that South Sioux City has chosen to ignore LB 193, the Nebraska statute which requires cities, with the exception of Omaha and Lincoln, to publish an itemized list of claims paid by cities. Russell made a motion that the City of Wayne also discontinue publishing the claims and contact South

St. Louis, Mo., for more information. The two towns work together in opposing the law.

Russell termed the law ridiculous, adding that he thinks very few people can read the claims the way they are printed.

The city uses a paragraph format in publishing the claims, rather than following a format approved by both the Nebraska Press Association and the Nebraska League of Municipalities.

Russell continued that in his opinion, the statute is "strictly a political law to begin with" pushed by Nebraska newspaper publishers. He added that most people he had queried about the claims publications said they didn't know what he was talking about.

Council president Jimmie Thomas said he had polled 10 people about the claims, and they all had said they wanted to see the claims listed, although they don't care for the format used.

Russell said it would make more sense if each item were printed on a separate line but estimated that would triple the cost of publication.

City administrator Fred Brink said Jim Marsh, managing editor of the Wayne Herald which publishes the claims, had told him using a one-item-per-line format would cost about $10 more.

Wednesday, Marsh computed the cost of publishing city claims in the Dec. 4 issue of The Herald at $27.84—24 cents per line for 116 lines, using the city's paragraph format.

Listing each claim separately would have increased the lineage to 155, at a cost of $37.20, an increase of $9.36.

The issue died, temporarily at least, when Russell's motion to discontinue publication of the claims failed to receive a second. Councilman John Vakoc said he would like to follow up the proposal with further investigation.

Another motion made by Russell gained council approval over the opposition of three of the seven members present. The motion commits the city to remit to Wayne State College one percent of the cost of electric power used by the college in 1975, a custom long followed by the city.

Vakoc opposed the measure, saying that he feels contributions are better left to the individual. He said that the reasoning behind the practice is to return to the college a portion of profits from sale of electricity and pointed out that the generating plant hasn't operated at a profit for some time.

"I don't want anyone to think that I don't feel the college is an

CPA President Offers Tax Tips

It's that time of the year again when everyone must start preparing their 1975 income tax returns, and bills can be held down by using four basic tools for reducing income subject to taxes, said Duane L. Thelen, president of the Nebraska Society of Certified Accountants.

Adjustment such as sick pay and moving expenses are attractive, Thelen said, because they reduce gross income, leaving "adjusted gross income," a much smaller target for the tax collector's aim.

Debitations include those for the taxpayer and dependents and reduce adjusted gross income still further to "taxable income."

Tax credits, however, are best of all, Thelen said, because they can be deducted dollar for dollar from taxes owed.

Thelen noted several big changes in the current tax picture compared to 1974. For example, persons using the standard deduction instead of itemizing can now deduct 16 percent of adjusted gross income, with a maximum of $2,300 for single persons, and $2,600 for couples filing joint returns. A married person filing a separate return can deduct a maximum of $1,300.

Single persons making less than $2,350 don't have to file this year. For those filing joint returns the level is $3,400.

All taxpayers, regardless of their tax bill can subtract $30 from what they owe, plus another $30 for each dependent. The $30 credit came as a result of efforts last summer to stimulate the lagging economy. The

Weed Control Suggested For Young Tree Stands

Many Wayne County farmers will be planting trees for wind breaks in 1976 and good weed control is necessary for survival and growth of young trees.

Weeds growing near trees are especially harmful during the first two or three years after planting, according to extension forester Ellsworth Benson, who offered some tips on weed control.

Principles previously called simazine, has been tested and found safe in controlling weeds in a tree stand. This chemical works well in tree plantings because it leaches into the soil very slowly. It persists in the top two inches of soil, well above the root zone of the trees but in proper location to be taken up by roots of small weeds.

Rules for application offered by Benson are:

1. Apply before weeds reach two stage.
2. The soil surface should be smooth and trash free.
3. Soil surface should be firm and well packed to avoid any danger of the chemical going into tree roots.
4. Soils of medium or heavier texture should receive an application of four pounds of active ingredient per acre.
5. Application rate should be cut in half for first year of application on American elm, Siberian elm, hackberry, Russian olive and boxelder.
6. Do not disturb treated area after application.

Chemical should be applied in a band three or four feet wide in the tree row. A trip down each side of the tree row, spraying an 18 to 24 inch band is a good method of application. The band width can be regulated by raising or lowering the distance of the sprayer nozzle from the ground.

Apply the chemical uniformly by walking at a steady pace and maintaining a constant sprayer pressure. Pumping the sprayer 100 feet.

Flurry of Home Court Action Faces Cats

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, January 5, 1976

Fresh from winning championship of their own Christmas Holiday Basketball Tournament, Wayne State eagles plunge into a home stretch of four games.

The schedule: Boone Saturday night (Jan. 3), USD Springfield Tuesday, conference rival Chadron State Thursday and Hastings Tuesday, Jan. 13. All are scheduled at 7:30 in Rice Auditorium, except the Hastings game at 8 after a wrestling meet.

The Wildcats treated tournament fans to a pressure-packed brand of basketball—reaching a season high for sheer, sustained intensity. Monday's first round produced a 94-65 verdict over Midland, paced by Johnny Redmond's record-tying 25 rebounds. That duplicated Wayne's all-time game mark set by another Kankakee, Ill., product, Ronnie Jones, in 1973.

Tuesday night Redmond continued heroics, this time in the field goal department. He stuffed 15 goals for 30 points, both figures seasonal highs for the team. Good thing he did, too. Scrapy Bellevue College, down by 38-78 at the half, took a 10-minute rest in the second half until the Wildcats recovered from a scoring slump and went ahead to stay, 60-59, with 4 1/2 minutes left.

Rick Anderson, benched until late minutes, hit the go-ahead fielder. Rex Prestler scorched a pair of his long-shot specialties. Wayne Robinson added four points, and Anderson topped off the championship victory with another goal for the 70-62 finale. Wayne's offense varied rapidly from fast break to control and back to fast break to keep Bellevue's Bruins off sync. It worked well except when an eight-minute stretch in the second half yielded the Cats only six points from a flurry of shots.

The championship plumb—Wayne's second in a row and eighth in 18 years—lifted the Cat record above 500 for the first time, now 6-5, and coach Jim Seward could believe his team had found a winning combination. Westmar College claimed third place earlier Tuesday after surviving a late Midland rally, 66-65. The Eagles never trailed, but had anxious moments as Midland surged to the one-point final deficit.

"WELL, let's get that ball down here," could be the remarks of these eight Wayne State and Bellevue players as they wait for mates to come down court in the championship final in the college division of the Wayne State Holiday Basketball tournament Tuesday.

Hunter-Safety Program a 'Must' For Youths in '76

With the coming of the new year, graduation from a Game and Parks Commission hunter-safety course will be required of young hunters in Nebraska before they can legally take the field.

20,000 youngsters since the hunter safety law was passed in 1973. It is estimated that another 20,000 young hunters will need hunter safety training before next fall's seasons roll around.

The need for hunter safety is apparent from statistics on hunting accidents in Nebraska. During the past 17 years, hunters 19 or younger were the gun handlers in 55 per cent of all hunting accidents in the state.

Besides offering instruction in good gun handling practices, the Game and Parks Commission course also aims toward developing youngsters into responsible, ethical and concerned sportsmen. Required instruction includes hunter ethics; wildlife management, and game laws, while optional material covers survival and first aid, archery, care and identification of game, and other topics.

Hunter safety instruction is available in nearly 200 schools in Nebraska. Youngsters attending a school not offering hunter safety should contact a volunteer instructor in their area. Names of hunter safety instructors are available from conservation officers and from Game and Parks Commission officers in Norfolk.

VACUUM. NOT HOT AIR.

The inside story on Owatonna's RAMM System

Owatonna's RAMM System offers you 50% faster grinding, a superior end-product and dust-free milling. Here's why:

Materials leave the grinding chamber (A) by one outlet (E), creating a vacuum behind the screen. There's no turbulence or back pressure; materials stay in the chamber for only three or four hammer revolutions. Less time in the chamber means faster grinding, fewer fines and a uniform mix.

As material is augered to the mixing tank (F), it passes under a vacuum chamber (B) which picks off minute particles of dust. This is routed through a high-capacity blower (G) to the materials separator (D) and sent into the air. Any remaining heavy particles return to the grinding chamber at (C). Back pressure in the separator and total mill are eliminated. Pressure build-up in the tank has also been removed, thanks to a tank vent (H). End result: dust-free milling.

See your Owatonna dealer for details about the RAMM soon.

Ted Bahe attempted to table the motion but failed to gain a second. Leo Hansen, Ivan Beeks and Vakoc voted against the motion to allocate the funds, amounting to $938.78 for the year.

After making one change, the council approved the one and six year street improvement plans for the city.

The city is required to submit the plans annually to be eligible for a $3,000 state grant for a street superintendent, and for State Highway Department allocations from motor vehicle tax, gasoline tax and various other revenues connected with roads and transportation.

The one-year plan sets priorities for street improvement projects for the current fiscal year. Brink said the city is under no obligation to undertake any of the projects or follow the order of priorities, and the plan does not preclude undertaking other projects.

Top priority on the proposed plan for fiscal 1975-76 was a street from east Highway 35 north to the end of East 10th St. to provide direct access from the highway to Providence Medical Center.

Vakoc objected to making the project the top priority saying, "The feedback I get is that we've had enough ambulance-related expenses this year." Bahe suggested lowering the priority of the item to number five for the current fiscal year. Russell advocated making it a part of the plan for 1976-77.

The council adopted Russell's suggestion and unanimously passed a resolution to adopt the plan.

The change gives top priority to enclosing 700 feet of an open-ditch storm sewer beginning at east Seventh St.

Other projects on the one year plan are: reconstruction of Fourth St from Windom to Dearborn Streets; enclosing of another storm sewer, paving and bridge construction on Fairgrounds Ave. from Nebraska St. to Windom St.; and purchase of a utility tractor, a street sweeper, and a street sander.

In other action the council —Directed Brink to write a letter to the Wayne Federal Savings and Loan Association giving them permission to widen paving on Fourth St. between Main St. and the first alley east. The project, requested so the saving and loan association can proceed with plans for a "Teez" building at the corner of Fourth and Main Streets, must follow city street specifications and is subject to city approval. The association will bear costs of widening the pavement.

—Heard a report from Bahe on the committee appointed to study the establishing of a rescue unit. The council approved the appointment of Mrs. Dean Backstrom and Mrs. Pauline Lutz to the committee. Bahe asked for the appointments in order to provide committee members not connected with either the city or rural volunteer fire departments. The committee plans to formulate tentative regulations for the rescue unit before seeking volunteers to man it.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Medical authorities believe that tonsils have no function after about five years of age, however, until then tonsils are one of the body's methods for protecting itself by trapping or filtering bacteria and germs.

Tonsils are spongy masses of tissue rich in blood supply and filled with lymph cells. The tonsils are visible on each side of the throat between the arches of the palate. The Nebraska Medical Association says tonsils can be removed at almost any age. They should not be removed in cases of acute infection, acute illness or severe blood disease that might interfere with proper clotting and healing, such as hemophilia.

Generally, tonsils are removed if they are very large or cause repeated acute infections with sore throat, cause large lymph nodes in the side of the neck or if they become the chronic focus of infection.
