Season With

THE START of the baseball season for Wayne State coach Larry Schultz and his wildcats isn't too far off, despite the cold, we weather we had earlier this week. The Cats open season play the middle of this month and will play a 41 game schedule. 13 fewer than last year's schedule the reason for the drop is the department's budget, Schultz said, add ing that this year's slate of teams is as tough if not tougher than the 1975 lineup. For the tirst time in't the school's history, Wayne will play the University of Nebraska Lincoin. The Cornhuskers are one of tive Big Eight teams Schultz has undue to the coming season. Others include towa State, Kansas State, Ckla-noma State and Colorado. Schultz teels that be playing teams of this caliber, his cub will improve. Last year the Wildcats finished with a 19-15 venerue, ingluding their second straight runner up spot in the district playoffs. Kaarney, a some may recall, won the district by beating Wayne in a 16-inning marathon. Murphy resolution passes: Unicameral wants constitutional convention

CAPITOL NEWS LINCOL-Returning to every other year sessions of the Junicameral is a dead size but the move to try and force congress to balance the federal govern-ment budget is very much alive and kfcking: Nebraska has added its vote to those of sever other states in the move to puttion Congress for a constitutional convention to order to draft an amendment requiring in a balanced budget, eliminaling the sever bitmer public debt. Sen, John Murphy of Sould Stow City. He prime sponsor of a resolution petition-ing a convention, said he was worried about whether the Unicameral would give final approval to the resolution. It did and Murphy confided "I'm relieved."

Chamber wants taxpayer price index

The U.S. budget for 1977 is printed in a bulky, paper-backed document of some bulky, paper-backed document of some 38; pages and includes many charts, tables and other statistical analysis. Bul you won't lind any tables or charts that tell now much government is costing the average American family in taxes or how much that figure goes up from one year to the next. Perhaps what we need is an ofticial indicator to keep up posted on the high cost of government spending and to relate it to the average family. It could work similar to the consumer Price Index (CPI), which the government complies and publicities to inform Ameri-carts of the monthly changes in prices and inflation. If we had such an official indicator, we-might become as deeply concerned about the high cost of government as we do about the high cost of filling. We could call it the Taxpayer, Price Index. (TPI). It is no big deal to produce such statistics. For example, the Could commerce of the United States prepared a lable which shows that President Pares, composed budget is going to cost the everage family 5328 in tederal taxes, compared with 5328-in 1967. This the average family $5,328 in tederal taxes, compared with $2,322 in 1967. This cost per family figure has risen nine per cent in the last decade, much faster than $5,555 to 10,000

The Chamber also underscores another important point. In an article in Washing-ton Report, the Chamber's blweekly Report publication, the business federation ob-serves that. despite popular belief. food housing and automobiles are not the biggest items in the family budget. "Actually, the government costs the average family more than food, housing and automobiles combined," the article said. "This yeak, as if has every year since not, the tederal tudget will once again increase as the federal government chalks up record exgenditures. "The most significant increase in the last decade, was in income security, which more than tripled and now costs the average household $185.3" "The accompanying table quickly re-veals that increase household $185.3" "The accompanying table quickly re-veals that increase for the programs, has risen 256 per cent in the Below is an abbreviated version of the Chamber table.
