Farm Ladies 'Autograph' Quilt

Area farm women who sewed their names on quilt blocks for the Wayne Chamber of Commerce's Farm Ladies Appreciation Luncheon last July, can see their needlework designs as part of a friendship quilt, made by members of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center.

The quilt, which measures 81 by 99-inches and contains 42 blocks, will be on display tonight (Thursday) at People's Natural Gas Co. between 7 and 9 p.m. Chairman of the project is Mrs. Cat Ward.

Ladies who attended the annual Chamber-sponsored event last summer were asked to sew their names on a 12-inch quilt block, using embroidery, applique or patchwork. The blocks were turned into the Chamber office to be judged and prizes were awarded to the women having the best block designs. All of the blocks received at the Chamber office were used to make the quilt.

The quilt began to take shape in January when the blocks were turned over to volunteers of the local Senior Citizens Center who worked to put the coverlet together. Work on the quilt was completed in early February.

According to Mrs. Ron Mau, secretary of the Wayne County Bicentennial committee, the quilt will be sold with all proceeds going to help with American Bicentennial activities in Wayne. Mrs. Mau said the quilt will be on display for the next few Thursday evenings at the Gas Company office.

Among the blocks used to make the quilt were those designed by Faye Dunklau, Leona Hamner, Donna Hansen, Marie Hagemann, Maryann Lange, Melissa Betty Sumner, Elaine Bierman and Mrs. Arnold Junck, ladies who received prizes during the Farm Ladies Luncheon for having the best designs.

Wayne Senior Citizens Center members who donated their time to work on the project were Mary Kean, Nellie Brockman, Rachel Bull, Gladys Petersen, Rena Pedersen, Lucille Wert, Annie Ruebig, Alice Dorman, Lottie Longnecker, Mathilde Harms, Mary Miller, Myrtle Weber and Emma Soules.

Freshmen Will Play Important Role in Girls Track at Winside

The field events again will be the area Winside High girls track coach Jim Winch expects his club to pick up a lot of points when the season starts later this month.

Bolstering what has been a strong field representation will be senior Jill Stenwal in the shot put and discus. Jill, who holds the state shot put record with a toss of 45-3/4 feet last year, will be a strong contender in the discus after she placed fourth in the state with a mark of 127.5.

Both those marks could fall this year, Winch pointed out, because Jill is in better shape. This year she played girls basketball which the coach feels will improve her leg strength. While practicing in the gymnasium, she has heaved the rubber ball 45 feet.

To score more points and be a contender in the Lewis and Clark Conference, Winch knows that he's going to have to rely on his underclassmen in the sprints and distance runs.

The seventh-year coach has 11 freshmen in the lineup which includes a total of 24 girls. Some of the freshman Winch hopes will fill the bill in the sprints are Lisa Longnecker, Ann Mann and Brenda Voss.

Winch will be depending on sophomore veteran Shirley Kleensang and Longnecker to give the one-two scoring punch in the sprints. Kleensang is looking better this year, the coach noted, adding that Longnecker will be strong in the 440, 880 and possibly the mile.

Senior sprinter Sheryl Peterson, who holds the school records in the 100 and 220, has a good chance of snapping those marks of 11.8 in the 100 and 26.8 in the 220. In addition, she may set a school record in the long jump by boating the present mark of 14-10.

Peterson, along with senior Gail Brons, sophomore Paula Hoeman, junior Barb Petermann and Voss, likely will form the nucleus of the 440 and 880-yard relay teams. Because this year the relays aren't scheduled one after the other, Winch figures he may be able to use the same four girls in both relays.

In the past years, the conference race has been between three teams—Osmond, Wausa, and Winside. Two years ago Osmond won and Winside placed third. Last year Wausa finished first and Winside was second. Does the progression of winners mean this is the year for Winside to take the league? "I would like to think so, but it's going to be a battle if we do," Winch noted.

Riedmann Is Second at Nationals

"It was a typical comment from Wayne State's Mike Riedmann, despite the fact he was back in Wayne after winning second place in the NAIA national wrestling tournament Saturday.

There he was at the All Sports Banquet Monday night, clear at the end of a food line, with about 600 people ahead of him. Some one said, "This is a strange place for an All-American to be, way back here."

Riedmann's reply: "That last guy really put me in my place. He threw me all over the mat."

This referred to the defending champion 190-pounder Craig Kelso who beat him in the finals at Edinboro, Pa., and whose hills helped lift his Adams State, Colorado, team to a repeat championship.

Wayne coach Marion Haeyer had a different version of Riedmann's performance against the powerful Kelso. He thought Riedmann wrestled well even in defeat by a fall. And speaking of four previous matches in the nationals, all victories, Haeyer described Riedmann simply as "super."

The senior from Omaha could have graduated in December, but chose to delay commencement and pursue another goal, finishing the wrestling season and, more important, shoot for a national championship. He missed it by only one notch. The second place automatically qualified him as an All-American.

He also qualified him for another possibility—traveling with an American team that will wrestle this summer in Japan and Korea. Though he is undecided, Riedmann is giving the opportunity serious thought.

He is the 14th Wayne State wrestler to earn a place (first through sixth) in the NAIA nationals since 1964. Those 14 won 23 places, including five firsts, five seconds, three thirds, four fourths, four fifths, two sixths.

At the sports banquet, coach Haeyer introduced Riedmann, praised his performance not only in the nationals but all season—a performance which earned the citation of Most Valuable Wrestler.

His 34.9-1 record equals the Wayne State season victory mark, set last year by Jim Meyer of Wayne, en route to a fourth-place national finish.

Wayne placed 24th among 102 teams at Edinboro, 10 places higher than last year. Peru State landed in 20th, though its highest placer was heavyweight Fred Marisett, sixth. Three other Bobcats won several matches to give the team 20.25 points. Riedmann earned all of Wayne's 16 points.

Hunting, Fishing Survey Continues

At least 7,000 Nebraskans will receive questionnaires sometime between now and July regarding their hunting and fishing activities as part of a nationwide survey being conducted for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

National analysts an opinion-research company based in Philadelphia, is conducting the survey for the Fish and Wildlife Service. It was initiated at the request of state conservation agencies across the country.

The survey began earlier this year with a telephone canvass identifying hunters, fishermen and other recreational users of wildlife. The mailed questionnaire will seek additional information from sportsmen identified in the initial telephone contact.

Nebraska sportsmen receiving these questionnaires in the mail are asked to respond accurately and promptly. Every response is an important contribution to information required by fish and wildlife managers to assure preservation of hunting and fishing opportunities.

Lewis: Training Camps Tough, Playing Is Fun

By BOB BARTLETT

Names such as runningbacks O.J. Simpson, Franco Harris, Larry Brown and Ron Johnson don't bother Stan Lewis, former Wayne State defensive end who now is a member of a national professional football team.

To the six-foot-four 240-pounder, it's size and ability which makes a player a good football player, not a name.

For that reason, the Chicago product believes one day he could be one of the top defensive players in professional football. At least, that's one of his goals during his playing career.

"I feel that I have a good chance...if they give me another shot. I'd sure try," Lewis said after he learned that the team he was playing for, the Cleveland Browns, placed him on waivers.

That second chance appears to be a strong possibility for Lewis, who is in Wayne to complete the necessary hours at Wayne State in order to get his teaching endorsement. The NFL's latest expansion club, the Seattle Seahawks, has signed him to a one-year contract.

If the Seahawks settle their differences with the NFL in time for the start of the 1976-77 season, Stan is confident that he will have a good chance of getting a starting assignment. "It will be a good opportunity to show what I can do...I'll be starting from scratch just like everyone else who tries out for the team," he smiled.

During his first year in professional football with the Browns last year, Lewis became dissatisfied because he wasn't getting in much playing time. After Cleveland was winless in five starts, Stan felt he should have been playing more.

else who tries out for the team," he smiled.

Two reasons Stan feels he can do well in professional football are his good health and attitude towards the game. "I'll stay in the game as long as it's fun, but I leave when it becomes a job...when I have to force myself to get up for a game."

but the coaching staff didn't see it that way.

After suffering losses to Cincinnati, Houston, Minnesota, Pittsburgh and Baltimore, "the players started to lack the confidence in each other and the offense just couldn't move the ball," Lewis pointed out.

It was after Cleveland struggled to a 1-9 record that Lewis was called to the front office where he was told he would be placed on waivers.

To make the playing squad for Seattle, Lewis will have to prove himself again when training camp opens in July. But going into this year's camp should be a little bit easier for the veteran.

Training camp won't be any easier as far as the physical output Stan will encounter, but he will have a better idea of what camp life is like.

In training camps "you have no friends, especially on the field," he said, adding that a coach once told him that "you're in this for a business, he's (the other player) out to get your job."

Stan said that workouts in training camps usually are more hard hitting than during regular season play because players are trying to impress coaches for a starting position. It's during the last two or three days of workouts before the teams made their reductions in the squad size which are really tough for the players.

During the two and a half week training period with the Browns, Lewis said that all the players do is think football 24 hours a day. Stan was one of 25 rookies who was competing with 90 other veterans for one of 43 positions on the club.

During his playing years in 1973 and 1975 at Wayne State, Lewis was named to the Nebraska NAIA District All-Star team. In 1974 he was awarded honorable mention on the All-American team and selected male athlete of the year at Wayne State for the 1974-75 season.

Before coming to Wayne, Lewis was a standout player in his hometown of Chicago. At Christian Fenwick High School, where he was one of 800 in his graduation class, Stan was selected to the all-state grid team.

Two reasons Stan feels he can do well in professional football are his good health and attitude towards the game. "I'll stay in the game as long as it's fun, but I leave when it becomes a job...when I have to force myself to get up for a game."

Mitchell Leads JH Grapplers

Heavyweight Dan Mitchell of Wayne was the only grappler from three area junior high squads Saturday to win a first place in the 16 team Pender Invitational.

Mitchell pinned his opponent to lead Wayne to an 11th-place showing with 35 1/2 points. Mitchell was the only Wayne grappler to place in the top four spots.

Favored Tekamah-Herman pulled away from the pack with 180 1/2 points, followed by Logan View with 122 1/2, North Bend with 112, Lyons with 101, Oakland-Craig with 92 1/2, Plainview with 87 1/2, Winside with 80 1/2, Pender with 67 1/2, Randolph with 54 1/2, Wisner-Pilger with 41, Wayne, Scribner with 23, Howells with 20, Wakefield with 16, Leigh with eight and West Point with one. Norfolk Catholic didn't enter the tournament.

For the majority of the top teams in the final standings, Saturday's meet was their season finale after a 10-week practice session, said Wayne assistant coach Steve Hix. Hix added that Wayne should do a lot better this Saturday at the Howells' Tournament.

Mitchell pinned two opponents and decimated another before he took his title on a pin in 59 over a youngster from Plainview.

Winside coach Ron Peck had four matmen take second. They were Ted Risor at 76 pounds, Brian Foote at 82, Rick Bowers at 88 and Brad Janke at 145. Jon Langenberg was fourth at 112 pounds.

For Wakefield coach Lyle Trullinger, Scott Hallstrom at 136 placed fourth.

In Fifth Place

The five-man bowling team of Jim Maly, Don Sund, Ken Spitzberger, Ernie Beaver and Gary Kay of Wayne slipped from third to fifth in this week's standings of the Sky Bowl open handicap tournament at Schuyler.

Last week the team rolled a three-game series of 2,994. In first place is Fairstaff of West Point with a 3,102 series.

MIKE RIEDMANN displays one of the trophies his team won at the district meet before he and several teammates headed for the national NAIA tournament last week.

GRAPPLERS from Wayne and Wakefield battle each other Saturday during the second round of the 82 pound class at the Pender Invitational. For Winside, Brian Foote, top, has the upper edge of Wayne's Mike Schock as referee John Torczon of Wakefield looks on. Foote went on to pin Schock and later finish second in his weight class.

Guessers Honor WH, WS Athletes

All kinds of awards, including the best hair do to the top wrestler of the year, were presented Monday night during the fifth annual All-Sports banquet for male and female athletes from Wayne State and Wayne High School.

An audience between 400 and 500 persons nearly filled the Birch Room at Wayne State's Student Union for the event sponsored by the Second Guessers Club.

Following the pork dinner, representatives from the college and high school sports departments cited their players for their performances during the season.

Speaking for the coaching staff at Wayne High, athletic director Harold Maciejewski introduced some of the outstanding athletes at Wayne High who received conference and state honors.

Earning honors in football were Monte Lewis, Larry Creighton, Paul Mallette, Mike Wisniewski and Mark Brandt. Both Brandt and Mallette were named to The Norfolk Daily News' Top Twenty team for the 1975 season.

In volleyball, Maciejewski noted that Wayne girls finished first in their district and the See GUESSERS, page 5

Job Well Done

FOR HIS hard work in helping to develop the Second Guesser's Club, Rowan Wittke of Wayne was presented the club's President's award Monday night during the all sports banquet. The award is the second given in two years. The first person to receive it was John Brestler, who was honored last year for his work in the community.

People once considered the heart, not the head, the seat of understanding and wisdom.

Sportsbeat

By Bob Bartlett

MONDAY NIGHT'S All-Sports banquet for Wayne State and Wayne High athletes was one of the best I've been to since the program started five years ago.

Perhaps the one thing that made this year's program a little brighter than in past years was the increased number of "formals taking part." Must admit they're better looking than the guys.

Seriously, a lot of the credit for the program's success has to go to the Second Guessers who helped make the dinner possible. Namely, chairman Dale Gutfahl and his assistant George Thorbeck and a host of other hard-working members.

Two of those members who perhaps have taken a more earnest part in the function of the club are Rowan Wittke and Dan Gardner. Both were publicly thanked by club president Bill Workman during the program.

Wittke has been very instrumental in designing and building the new Wildcat Room for members of the W.Club. He also has taken an active part in membership development and helping to build a marquee on the college campus. For his efforts, he was presented the club's second annual President's award by Workman.

Talking about Gardner, Workman pointed out that Dan has been the main drive behind the club's membership drive and helping to generate revenue for the club.

PROBABLY one of the highlights of the banquet was when Wayne State wrestling coach Marlon Haeyer introduced Mike Riedmann, the 190-pound Wildcat grappler who finished second in the national NAIJA tournament last week.

Although the second-place finish was more of an honor for Riedmann, I'm sure Haeyer felt he had some part in Riedmann's accomplishments as the senior grappler pointed out. "Coach Haeyer sure has changed things around here since our low spots three years ago," Riedmann said.

Besides having a wrestler place in the nationals, Haeyer can be proud that his team set a new school record for the most wins in dual meets (17) and won both the Nebraska College Conference and district titles in the same year. The latter is only the second time a Wayne State team has won both in the same year.

About those titles, the conference title is the school's 10th, and the district is the school's fourth.

UNLIKE previous years, Wayne State will not have an alumni-varsity football game to highlight the end of spring football practice.

Coach Del Stoltenberg last week pointed out to members of the Second Guessers club that the staff had to drop the annual game because of the 65 players-to-be expected out for spring ball wouldn't be available for the game because of the Easter break. The game would have been played the weekend of April 17, the day before Easter. "It's not fair to ask the players to come back," Stoltenberg said, adding that some of the alumni players indicated earlier that they also wouldn't be able to play.

As a result, the coach is thinking about an intersquad game to close spring drills. "Most of the kids will get a chance to play that way and we'll get a better chance to look them over," he added.

Spring practice starts Monday.

RECEIVED a thank you note from Allen High's girls basketball coach Steve McManigat who pointed out that "your coverage and stories were very good for the girls...and we really appreciated it."

The coach added "Oh, yes, have you given any thought to a girls All-Area team this year. I think you should have one."

I'm going to hold off until next season to select a girls all-area team because that's when most area girls teams will have an equal number of games. For the majority of the five area girls teams, this season was the first year for play with other high schools.

FOR THOSE coaches who haven't turned in the final season statistics for boys or girls basketball, now is a good time to mail them to me.

Every year we try to do a wrapup story on the teams and their players, including a couple of comments from the coach about the season.

Osmond Invitational—and second in the state. Receiving all-conference honors were seniors Mary Kovensky, Susan Jacobmeier and junior Stephanie Dorcey.

This year's basketball team ended a 12-year drought by making it past the first game of Class B district action. The Blue Devils went all the way to the finals, before falling to Hartington Cedar Catholic. Helping the Devils end the drought was West Husker all-tournament and Wayne Herald all-area selection, senior Monte Lowe.

Two Wayne High grapplers, senior Ken Daniels and sophomore Kirk Echtenkamp, were cited for their accomplishments on the mats this year. Daniels won his district and went on to take second in the state. Echtenkamp placed second in his weight class in districts and also went to the state meet.

Other sports recognized were cross country, baseball, golf, boys' girls track and girls basketball.

Individual coaches from Wayne State took their turn in presenting their "funny awards" and other athletic awards. Women's softball and basketball mentor, G.I. Willoughby, recognized sophomore Julie Brinkman as the year's female "Athlete of the Year."

The "Biggest Eaters" award went to Connie Kunzmann and Ellie Studer. The "Best Card Player" award was given to student manager Carol Bergman and Bobbie Brackage.

Football coach Del Stoltenberg acknowledged several players who won national recognition. Senior Pat Donohoe of O'Neill in almost 35 years to be named to the first team of the Little All-American club of Division Two in the NAIA. He was also named as the school's male "Athlete of the Year."

On the honorable mention team were junior Maurie Minton of Gretna and Ray Wagner of Westport.

Named as the most improved player was Gary Krajcick of Omaha and picked as the outstanding freshman player was, Rod Hoops of Wayne.

Tom Elafros of Omaha received the joke award in football known as the "Charles 'Chuck' Covey" trophy, which depicts a horse's rear end.

In basketball, coach Jim Seward named Rex Pressler, Rick Anderson and John Redmond as the club's top senior players for the 1975-76 season.

Cross country coach LeRoy Simpson presented his joke award to Don Rinehart of St. Cloud for being the last person out of the shower... and to Al Liebbe of West Point for having the best hair do.

Coaches Bernice Fulton and Larry Schultz each recognized some of the players in volleyball and baseball, respectively.

Although most of the awards mentioned had been presented earlier in the school year, several athletes in swimming and wrestling were presented their awards for the first time during the banquet.

Lance Clay of Hawaii won the Most Valuable Swimmer award and Randy Pinkelman of Wayne received the Most Improved Swimmer award. In wrestling, 190-pound Mike Riedmann was honored for taking second place last week in the finals of the national NAIA tournament in Pennsylvania.

Lowell Johnson of Wakefield has been named to represent the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts operations committee on a legal-institutional task force of the Nebraska erosion and sedimentation plan.

The plan is being developed to implement the National Water Pollution Control Act which calls for reducing contamination of the nation's waters by 1983 to levels that would support aquatic life and recreation.

Johnson will serve with ten other government representatives to determine the present legal authorities and responsibilities of local, state and federal agencies regarding pollution control. The task force will also be developing any additional legislation they feel necessary to reduce pollution.

Glenn Spreeman, assistant manager of the NRD, was named to serve on the soil-water interrelationships task force which will coordinate research regarding soil loss limits and the effect of sediment on water quality.

Background Information Needed for Income Plan

People who plan to apply for supplemental security income payments can save time by first getting together information about themselves, said Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled. People can get information about applying for the payments by calling or writing any social security office.

"When applying," Branch said, "it's a good idea to have with you as many of the following as possible: a checkbook, if you have one, to show how much you have in the bank, any savings account books, stocks and bonds, life insurance policies, automobile registration cards, latest real estate tax statements if you own a home or any land, last year's income tax returns, W-2 forms, and evidence of all other income."

If it may save time, too, according to Branch, if people applying for supplemental security income payments know how much cash they have on hand and know the value of their car, if they own one.

"You should also have your social security card," he said. "Disabled or blind students 18 to 22 should have a school identification card, tuition receipts, or similar evidence of school attendance."

The supplemental security income program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Norfolk social security office is at 1310 Norfolk Avenue. The phone number is 371-1995.

Bernard Knutson of the Norfolk office will be at the Wayne Senior Citizen Center Tuesday from 9 a.m. until noon.

Lions Club Talent Contest Blanks Available Monday

Entry blanks for the Wayne Lions Club Talent Contest will be appearing in Monday's issue of The Wayne Herald.

The contest will begin Sunday, April 11, at 1:30 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre on the Wayne State College campus.

Four age divisions will be included in the contest, with the individual's age on July 1, 1975, determining which division he or she will be included in.

Divisions are: elementary—nine and under, junior—10-12, intermediate—13-15, senior—16-18. Prizes will be awarded for first and second place in each division.

First place winners in each division will be eligible to compete in the Lions district talent contest in Omaha April 25. Winners there will compete in the state contest in Kearney in June.

No more than nine performers can comprise a single act and the age of the oldest member will determine the division of competition. No contestant will be allowed to participate in more than one division. Time limit for each act is six minutes. The use of fire in any act is prohibited.

In addition to Monday's Herald, entry blanks will appear in Wednesday's Morning Shopper. Entry blanks must be returned to contest chairman Fred Webber by April 3.

Cases Settled in District Court
In Wayne County district court, Congora Inc. was awarded a $7,311.31 settlement in a suit against Merly Toppe.

The petition alleged that the money was due for the cost of materials, plus interest, supplied to Toppe.

Alice Langenberg, plaintiff of Anaheim, Calif., was granted a dissolution of marriage from Gons Howard, defendant, in the Robert Hoskins. The defendant was ordered to pay $100 per month in child support.

The Service Station

Airman Donald L. Myers Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Myers of Wakefield, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

During his six weeks training, he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

The airman is remaining at Lackland for specialized training as a security police man. Myers is a 1975 graduate of Wakefield High School.

Some people believe that if the first robin you see in the spring flies up, you will have good luck for the rest of the year. But if it flies down, you won't!

THE MOST EVIL MAN IN THE U.S.A.

A few notes on the evil he created in 1969.

He found a quarter of a million "unemployables" who never could hold steady jobs.

He trained them and put them into work that pays money they never dreamed of earning before.

He's a businessman.

For poor kids who couldn't otherwise go to college, he took three hundred and fifty millions and saw to it that those who earned them got scholarships.

He gave eight hundred million to non-profit organizations for medical research, to help stamp out cancer and heart disease and a hundred other dread diseases of the world.

To build new housing for the poor and middle-incomes in U. S. cities, he put up one billion and a quarter dollars, so more people can live in decency.

Sure, he's been a polluter — as has everyone from the U. S. government to ordinary citizens. But last year he scraped up two and one half billions to fight pollution of air and water and nature. This year he plans to get up four billion more, to keep up the battle.

After that, he put up fifteen billion dollars in Social Security taxes to help provide support and medical care for senior citizens. And he added forty-one billion dollars in income taxes to help pay the bills of the U. S. A.

And all the while, he was contributing millions of hours of personal and business time to virtually every humanitarian cause you've ever heard of.

He's a businessman. The most evil man in the U. S. A.

Isn't it time somebody had a good word for this evil man who happens to do so much good for so many people?

We think so.

Wayne merchants have done their best, including gift certificates and discounts on merchandise, to the winners of a number of contests which will take place during the marathon. Events include a jello eating contest, a limbo contest, and other dance contests.

Cover and Meuret aren't giving away any details but claim an attempt at a world's record will be made during the marathon.

ing off on some recreation programs and cutting back on wages. Adjustments to the sewer maintenance budget and park fund would probably also be looked at, Brink said.

For now, considering revenue sharing during budget preparation is a case of "crystal-balling it," Brink said, and hoping news items are true which indicate a favorable outlook for continuation of the program.

Revenue sharing has been extremely beneficial to urban government," Brink observed. "However, it should not be viewed as a windfall. Money has historically been available from other sources, but being able to count on revenue-sharing money has helped administrators in developing workable budgets."

Brink believes the recent plant capacity leasing agreement with Nebraska Public Power District might also prove to be a bright spot in the city's financial picture.

He said that although the city's bonding ordinance and Nebraska statute prevent any additional revenue generated through the agreement from being used as operating capital for city departments, additional revenues could be used to retire the bonded indebtedness on the light plant. Hopefully, the ultimate effect would be to get the plant operating in the black again, Brink said. Then, profits from plant operations could be used for other city functions.

To Make Homemade Butter

MEMBERS of Brownie Troop 192 in Wayne got some first hand experience Monday on how to make homemade butter during their meeting in the Darrell Moore home. Under the guidance of Troop Leaders Mrs. Moore and Yicky Skokan, and assistant Sharon Rix, 15 girls took turns churning the cream which was used to make homemade biscuits. Working during one of the sessions are, from left, Lori Jacobsen, Denise Barker, Mrs. Moore, Krista Ring and Lori Sorensen.

Class Will Explain Education Grants

Seven workshops will be held across Nebraska during the next three weeks to give high school counselors and other interested persons information on the Basic Education Opportunity Grant Program for post-secondary education.

Ronald R. Fritz, associate director of financial aids and scholarships at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, is coordinating the workshops which are designed to assist persons who work closely with students.

The federal Basic Educational Opportunity Grants program is an entitlement program and is the base of all financial aid available to students attending post-secondary institutions. Funds are granted on the basis of need between July 1, 1973 and June 30, 1976, more than 700,000 students across the nation will have received approximately $113 million in aid through the program.

In northern Nebraska a workshop will be conducted March 25, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk. No advance registration is required.

Exon calls university lobbying effort 'propoganda'

CAPITAL NEWS

LINCOLN—Gov. J. Exon and a group of state senators have decided the University of Nebraska's quest for quality in education is now more a guise for more money than anything else.

Not only that, but Exon and State Senators Robert Clark of Sidney and Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove have decided to launch an open court attack to the University's lobbying efforts which they say amount to a propaganda campaign which begins with parents and ends up at the lawmaker level.

"What we've got here is a major confrontation over whether or not we are going to be snowed with propoganda," said Exon.

Clark said in the name of upgrading NU quality, the Unicameral has for the past few years been "dumping money in there like it was going out of style." He said he hasn't been able to determine if the University is better because of it, "but we have a more costly university."

The Governor said it was easy for him to understand why the committee went nearly $11 million above his recommendation. He said "The Budget Committee is, for the most part, lock, stock and barrel in the back pocket of the University."

And Kennedy said the lobbying the University is doing—not only at the lawmaker level but right down on the "mom and dad" level isn't helping senators like him who feel the time has come to cut back on substantial increases for all agencies of government and education in particular unless there's solid justification.

Exon suggested there might be a way to get around the use of students in budget lobbying. Prefacing his suggestion with a claim he personally may not go along with the idea, Exon said it might be time to do away with flat tuition rates.

He said possibly students should be required to pay 25 per cent of the cost of their education, no matter how much that was. That way, Exon said, when the University decided to go after an increase maybe "some of these students might not be the pawns of the University for use in getting it."

Nebraska 16th in Support

The trio noted the University's big argument for more money has been a much publicized campaign to put Nebraska in the top half of the Big Eight Conference. Exon noted the latest figures show Nebraska to be 16th in the nation in state financial support for higher education and second in the Big Eight.

Apparently, he said, the University wants to be at the top of the national list and he said even with the 23 per cent increase the University would get if the Appropriations Committee recommendation is adopted would put it there. The $100 million request, he said, would put it up another step.

Another major consideration, Exon said, is the economic plight of the nation in general. Noting the University this year received an 18 per cent increase in state support over last year and in turn last year received 25 per cent more than the year before, the governor said the money just isn't there for that sort of thing.

According to figures provided by Kennedy, legislatures are giving other Big Eight schools increases ranging from 5 to 15.5 per cent for an average of 11 per cent. And, he said, no significant enrollment increases are projected for Nebraska to sustain more than the 9.3 per cent Exon suggested.

Veterinary College is Needed

A consultant hired by the five-state Old West Regional Commission says there's no doubt but what a veterinary college financed by the five states is needed.

Dr. Clarence Cole, former dean of veterinary medicine at Ohio State, said livestock losses attributed to diseases in North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming and Montana amount to $860 million a year.

Cole said a better supply of veterinarians would help cut those losses. Cole has recommended the five states pool financial resources and build a veterinary medicine college. He has estimated the cost at $14 million. Cole has also recommended Lincoln as the site.

None of the five states has a veterinary medicine school. Each must contract with another state that does and agree to pay the difference between resident and nonresident tuition for the benefit of the student and the difference between tuition and actual per student cost to the other state.

A meeting of the commission is scheduled for April and at that time the governors of the five states must vote on whether to authorize $497,000 to begin preliminary construction planning. Exon has asked the Unicameral for a firm stand for or against the project.

Senator Worried About Roads

Illigan Senator Richard Maresh says he doesn't like an amendment the Revenue has recommended to his LRB63, a measure to increase the state gasoline tax from 8.5 cents to 9.5 cents a gallon so more money will be available for state and county road work.

As a result, Maresh has asked that first round consideration on the bill be delayed until Nebraskans have had a chance to learn of the amendment. The amendment would allow the State Roads Department to drop gravel roads from the state highway system once they have been improved to county road standards. Under current law, they must be approved to state standards to be dropped.

Maresh said the whole idea behind the amendment is to get rid of some state highways and place the burden of maintaining them on the counties.

"Many counties that have lost branch railroads will now be subject to losing their state highways as well if the amendment stays," the lawmaker said. He said the amendment, suggested by the Nebraska Highway Advisory Commission, should have been proposed in a separate bill and not attached to his with no chance for a public hearing on that issue alone.

Unicameral Nixes Omaha Buses

State senators rebuffed initial efforts by the Omaha delegation to try to get the state to help pay for buses the Omaha School District will need in order to comply with a court desegregation order.

Offered were amendments to the session's state aid bill to channel $2.5 million to Omaha for buses. The bill, LB631, proposes a $15 million increase in state aid to all Nebraska schools.

The Omaha senators have threatened to vote against the aid increase unless they get their way, except for one. Omaha Senator Ernest Chambers contended the school district caused the situation that brought about the court order and that city alone should pay, not others.

OBSERVATIONS

Bicentennial ball rolling

Judging from reports given at last week's Bicentennial committee meeting, Wayne should have quite a celebration July 3, 4 and 5.

Quite a number of events are already lined up and it sounds as if work is progressing nicely on planned projects.

However, there is still plenty of room for more events, particularly on Monday, July 4. And there is still plenty of time to make plans.

The months between now and the celebration are shorter than it might seem, so anyone with ideas should get to work. There will never be another Bicentennial and it will be a shame if someone finds himself thinking, after the celebration is over, "you know THAT would have made a terrific Bicentennial project." — Jim Strayer

Would Jefferson's document baffle bureaucrats?

Suppose the Founding Fathers assembled in Philadelphia to hammer out a new form of government had been forced to contend with a 1975 style bureaucracy? Chances are that instead of preparing for the July 4 Bicentennial, our biggest national holiday would be the Queen's Birthday.

For a glimpse of what might have been, consider the following example of what Thomas Jefferson and Company would face today, if they had to run a draft on a "Declaration of Independence" quite bureaucratic, technocratic and lawyers for approval. This is what Jefferson's rejection slip might read like:

"Dear Mr. Jefferson: We have read your 'Declaration of Independence' with great interest. Certainly, it represents a considerable undertaking, and many of your statements do merit serious consideration. Unfortunately, the Declaration as a whole fails to meet recently adopted specifications for proposals to the Crown, so we must return the document to you for further refinement. The questions which follow might assist you in your process of revision.

"1. In your opening paragraph you use the phrase 'the laws of Nature and Nature's God.' What are the criteria on which you base your central arguments? Please document with citations from the recent literature.

"2. In the same paragraph you refer to the 'opinions of mankind.' Whose pooling data are you using? Without specific evidence, it seems to us, the 'opinions of mankind' are a matter of opinion.

"3. You hold certain truths to be 'self-evident.' Could you please elaborate. If they are as evident as you claim, then it should not be difficult for you to locate the appropriate supporting statistics.

"4. 'Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness' seem to be the goals of your proposal. These are not measurable goals. If you were to say that 'among these is the ability to sustain an average life expectancy in six of the 13 colonies of at least 55 years, and to enable all news papers in the colonies to print news without outside interference, and to raise the average income of the colonists by 10 per cent in the next 10 years,' these would be measurable goals. Please clarify.

"5. You state that 'whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new Government.' Have you weighed this assertion against all the 'alternatives'? Or is it predicated solely on the base-instincts?

"6. Your description of the existing situation is quite extensive. Such a long list of grievances should precede the statement of goals, not follow it.

"7. Your strategy for achieving your goal is not developed at all. You state that the colonies 'ought to be Free and Independent States,' and that they are the 'British Crown.' Who or what must change to achieve this objective? In what way must they change? What specific steps will you take to overcome this resistance? How long will it take? We have found that a little foresight in these areas helps to prevent careless errors later on.

"8. Who among the list of signatories will be responsible for implementing your strategy? Who conceived it? Who provided theoretical research? Who will constitute the advisory committee? Please submit an organizational chart.

"9. You must include an evaluation design. We have been requiring this since Queen Anne's War.

"10. What impact will your program have? Your failure to include any assessment of this inspires little confidence in the long-range prospects of your understanding.

"11. Please submit a PERT diagram, an activity chart, and an itemized budget.

"We hope these comments prove useful in revising your 'Declaration of Independence.'"

"Best wishes,
"P.S. Could you please enclose vitae of the signatories? We need them for our files.

"P.P.S. We note that you have not included a logical framework matrix listing underlying assumptions, and end of project conditions. Please submit with your revised paper." — By Ed Schwartz, Submitted by Soil Conservation Service.

Wayne
Dear Editor:
The Wayne Senior Citizen's Center is pleased to announce that it has received 25 free tickets to the annual Kiwanis Pancake Supper.

As the nation slides uneasily into the Bicentennial year, and presidential election campaign to boot, Americans seem strangely strained between a materialistic smugness and increasing concern — over the ability of government to govern and support an even handed justice without which an open society cannot long endure.

What we seem to be confronting in one respect is, so to speak, the failure of the success of the Industrial Revolution. Beyond anyone's wildest dreams, it has, via increased production and such unbelievable material gadgets as computers spread middle class status to states and societies worldwide. And those impoverished nations left on the outside looking longingly at the show windows of consumer goods are demanding to be let in and their rising expectations satisfied.

Ironically, the have nations themselves have not only not found the key to Utopia, they are in critical danger of being fragmented by their own pressures generated from within. The welfare state has been expanded irresponsibly and wastefully but, paradoxically, a major redistribution of the wealth has not occurred.

Presidential candidates are not talking about such basic issues. Instead they mouth equivocal views about housing and respond by promising the moon to disgruntled constituents who demand to know "what have you done for me lately?" A more penetrating question to ask ourselves would be: how are we going to correct the narrow, selfish over-sights and stupidities that have brought us to the edge of economic and social disintegration so that we can shape up in time to take advantage of the period of grace the immediate future gives us?

Bill criticized on own merits

A recent issue of The Wayne Herald carried a story regarding a flyer distributed locally and across the nation containing accusations regarding the Child and Family Services Act, which proved to be false and misleading.

Here is what First District Congressman Charles Thone had to say about the bill, judged on its own, real merits, in his weekly news letter. — J. S.

A weakening of the institution of the family, a weakening of state and local governments, and a weakening of the already anemic fiscal health of the federal government would result from passage of the Child and Family Services Act (H.R. 2966 and S. 626).

There is a need to draw families closer together and for parents to spend more time with their families. Where both parents work or where there is only one parent in a household, the child will usually be better served if care is provided by grandparents, family members or in a neighborhood atmosphere.

The proposed Child and Family Services Act would encourage even irresponsible nonpayers to turn their children over to day-care centers. It would make day-care centers rigid, structured institutions, instead of warm, loving, individualized places.

Chaos among the numerous federal day care programs gives a preview of what would happen if we were to provide federal day care for every child whose parents wanted it. Even current Social Security legislation provides for some aid to day care centers.

For the Social Security aid, federal bureaucrats have ruled that a day care center must have one adult employee for each child up to six weeks old, one adult for every four children between six weeks and three years, one adult for every five children between three and four, etc.

These rigid federal requirements almost caused the closing of about 20 percent of the day-care centers in the nation by imposing immediate tough standards that certain centers could not meet in such a short time.

On March 9, a joint Senate House conference committee agreed to suspend these rigid requirements until July 1. When the requirements do go into effect, many centers will still be forced to close, or else Congress must appropriate many millions of dollars more to bring these centers up to standards. The Senate specifically rejected an amendment to let each state set its own staffing rules. The majority there insisted on pushing ahead with tough federal regulations. This was despite the fact that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare won't complete until 1977 a study on what the best staffing requirements are for day-care centers.

In arguing unsuccessfully for passage of the amendment to let states set their own standards, Senator Robert Packwood of Oregon indicated that a Congressional majority seems to believe that "somehow there is a magic in Washington, that we have a superior knowledge, that God has spoken to us and only us, and we will translate what God says to the states and the local governments."

Ours is a diverse nation. Our strength and our renewal comes from many solutions to problems being tried in many ways. Those in Washington had better discover that Americans refuse to be put into molds. Congressman Charles Thone

By BOB BARTLETT
 Bessie Bagley never really thinks about age and its relationship to working. For the 80-year-old Allen native, work is something she has done most of her life and hopes to continue.
 Bessie, who celebrated her 80th birthday last week, got a big birthday surprise when she came to work at Darlene's Country Kitchen in Allen. Waiting for her were a store-full of friends who helped collect $110 to give Bessie for her birthday.
 Soon after she received the money which was shaped in the form of a tree, a close friend, Mrs. Richard Olesen of Waterbury, presented her with a Bicentennial birthday cake in the shape of an American flag.
 "People are so nice to me," she quipped, then added "maybe it's because I'm so grouchy."
 Bessie, who has worked in the town's only cafe for about 30 years, said she enjoys working because she likes people. "If I were to stay home, why that ole rocking chair would get me yet," she smiled.

 Bessie puts in eight hours a day, four days a week. She arrives at the cafe at 7:50 and keeps going until store manager Kay Wisecup almost has to shove her out the door. "Bessie's a fixture around here; everybody who comes in here loves her," Mrs. Wisecup said.
 The sad part about her job, Mrs. Bagley confesses, is that "when I leave Thursday, I can't hardly wait to get back Monday."
 Bessie's husband, Ernest, is equally as active. Ernest, who will turn 80 in December, works at the Out Back in Bar in Martinsburg from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. five days a week.
 The Bagleys, who have two children, five grandchildren and four great grandchildren, are looking forward to celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary on Oct. 4. "We've never had any fights," the spry Mrs. Bagley stated, "we understand each other very well."

FOR BESSIE, a four-day work week is a little too short for her active pace. She can hardly wait her three-day weekend to get over so she can start bright and early Monday morning.

tomorrow

Tomorrow seems to be a day which never comes. With all of the "todays" we have at our disposal, it is difficult to imagine tomorrow will ever come.

Be it does. It always does.

And it's our decision as to what we will find when tomorrow finally arrives. Life insurance companies will tell you that 1 per cent of the people reaching 65 will be well-to-do. 4 per cent will be able to adequately take care of themselves. This means a total of 5 per cent will be able to take care of themselves in retirement, while 95 per cent will not.

Do you want to be in the top 5 per cent of the people reaching 65? If you do, isn't it time you took time to sit with us and talk about your plans.

As the people place, our job is to make sure your tomorrow is the tomorrow you want for your family and yourself.

Tomorrow always has a way of creeping up and becoming today.

Beef Breed Differences Outlined

It's just too much to expect one animal to be the best or most efficient producer for every kind of situation—you don't expect that from people or industry, so why should one beef animal be able to fit the tastes of everyone?

That question was put to 1,200 people during the Chuck Wagon Roundup at the Ak-Sar-Ben pavilion here in Omaha March 11.

Dr. Robert Koch, University of Nebraska professor of animal science at the U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, explained that all the beef breeds and variations on breeding and feeding have a place in the world market. Grass-fed, grain-fed, lean, fat-all will find a willing market, he said.

In his work on beef cattle breeding and production, Dr. Koch found that about the only factor that varies greatly among breeds and offers a form of controlling production is the rate of production or growth rate.

"We can see how much they'll eat and what they'll do with the feed," he said. Koch's research revealed a fallacy—he originally thought that every type of breed had different types of muscle distribution, which accounted for the variations in rib, loin and round cuts. "But when you cut data out, you can see that the proportions vary due to the distribution of fat, not muscle," he said. "If you look at the muscling from one end of an animal to the other, they are basically the same, from a Jersey cross to a Charolais cross. They vary only in the percent, it's the same with the bones. What did differ in our research was the amount of fat in one location as compared to another."

The USDA grading standards judge higher grades by the amount of fat in the muscle, called marbling in meat. "But to get more fat in the muscle, you get more fat elsewhere," said Koch. "If you're fat, you're fat all over."

Koch stressed that breeders and feeders look at and control the different percentages of fat. In any breed type, to put more fat in it, you'll put more fat all over. But the more fat that goes in one area in order to fatten up another area, the more fat must be trimmed, which is a cost to the industry.

The scientists reported that a taste panel judged all the breeds of similar tasting quality, which could come as a surprise to some purebred breeders claiming the best tasting qualities. Koch said this research should tell us that "we can forget trying to find which breeds taste the best and get on to which breeds can produce meat the cheapest, and that's where the focus should be."

HI Raters
The HI Raters girls 4-H Club met March 11 at 8 p.m. at the Grace Lutheran Church with 13 members present. Recreation was provided by Trish and Tod Willers.

The group watched a film on beef cuts. Projects were decided on and Mrs. Duane Retzwich was elected the new organizational leader. Serving were the John Andersons and the Vernon Bauermeisters.

Pots and Pans
The Pots and Pans 4-H Club held their meeting March 2 in the home of Cheryl and Colleen Roeder. The president called the meeting to order with 11 members and nine visitors present.

The club discussed how to make a proper motion. A demonstration was given on food.

Next meeting will be April 6 at the home of Penny and Shelle Meyer at 8 p.m.

News reporter, Michele Meyer

Spring Branch
Spring Branch 4-H Club met March 8 at the fire hall. Kurt Willers, president, opened the meeting with the 4-H motto.

Livestock weights and other club projects were discussed. Members and leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Willers, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Puls and Bob Anderson made plans for the Bicentennial. Don Spitzke showed slides on "Cuts of meats" and "Swine Judging." Lunch was served.

Next meeting will be March 29 at the fire hall.

Koch named Angus as lower in kidney and pelvic area while Angus and Hereford types carried much more fat over the ribs. With this kind of knowledge, breeders can use these characteristics to mold an animal to the characteristics demanded in the marketplace.

Genetic Betterment Important in Boars

"Swine breeding companies have gained a definite foothold in the United States as suppliers of breeding stock for commercial swine producers," believes Dr. Irv Omtvedt, chairman of the University of Nebraska Lincoln animal science department. "You've seen the ads in the magazines next to the one for a certain boar or breed there's a full page ad for a 'brand' of boar put out by a breeding company."

"This raises the question of who will provide the swine industry's seed stock in the future, greater variety in breeds or strains, with more complete performance records and more accurate estimates of potential breeding value, breeding stock with less disease risk, and more service in meeting breeding program goals."

Regardless of who breeds them, the boars that are used must offer genetic improvement, and that's where the individual purebred breeder must remain competitive, he said.

"Most breeding companies today are still relying heavily on the existing purebred industry for much of their new seedstock, and they will continue to keep their herds and strains open to outside introductions if they can get improvement this way."

Omtvedt concluded, "There is room in the swine industry for both the independent purebred breeders and the commercial breeding companies, with both needing to make changes to meet the needs of the commercial producers."

"The relative threat of breeding companies to the purebred industry depends on the progressiveness of the purebred industry."

Omtvedt noted that although breeding companies suffered a relatively high turnover rate at first, with some companies dropping out, others have expanded and today are enjoying increasing popularity among commercial swine producers.

"They can supply producers with a sizeable volume of uniform animals in one package and the animals are raised under apparently strict health programs," he detailed. "And buying a set of breeding stock makes it easy for a commercial swine producer to follow a definite hybrid vigor program without having to keep track of so many breeds or keep their own replacement stock each generation."

Omtvedt pointed out that this setup has also helped spur an interest in the use of crossbred boars, especially in view of the probable hybrid vigor for boar reproductive traits.

"Crystall balling" the future of the swine industry, he said that commercial producers will constitute the bulk of the industry, "so they will dictate the industry's direction."

"Therefore, whoever can best meet the demands of the commercial producer will be the one to supply the swine industry's breeding stock."

"Whoever that is," Omtvedt continued, "they will have to produce stock that can keep up with these trends in the average commercial swine herd: larger average size operation, primary confinement, more intensive management, with a more systematic breeding program, greater emphasis on performance and efficiency, and less willingness to buy unknowns."

The NEA annual science head chaired a session on "Seedstock What and Where?" in which a panel of four commercial producers told their experiences using purebred and crossbred boars and the standards and services they expect as boar buyers.

Omtvedt noted that although breeding companies suffered a relatively high turnover rate at first, with some companies dropping out, others have expanded and today are enjoying increasing popularity among commercial swine producers.

Regardless of who breeds them, the boars that are used must offer genetic improvement, and that's where the individual purebred breeder must remain competitive, he said.

Extension entomologists have warned that we may have problems with cutworms this spring in alfalfa.

In well-established alfalfa stands, army cutworms feed on the developing buds and early leaves of first growth, preventing normal regrowth. Well-established stands probably will not be permanently injured, although first-cutting will be delayed, and yield of first cutting somewhat reduced.

New stands may be partly killed by feeding of this cutworm. The problem is that EPA has severely restricted the chemicals that can be used against this insect. If you suspect a problem let me know and I'll check to see what can be used at that time.

NOTES FOR A DAIRYMAN
Running a heifer through the parlor 20 days prior to freshening will accustom her to the routine and noise of the milk operation. As the heifer gets closer to freshening, wash her udder and handle it as though she was being milked.

Coming through the parlor before freshening will give her access to grain. It's important to accustom the rumen to the higher grain ration it will receive after the freshening. As freshening all cows, including heifers should be receiving at least one pound of grain per 100 pounds of body weight. A heifer is growing, as well as producing milk, and should receive extra grain to allow for this growth.

Twenty per cent more protein should be added to maintenance requirement during first lactation and 10 per cent during the second. This keeps her producing at high levels and provides sufficient protein so she will be a large mature cow. Many times it will be necessary to feed this additional grain outside because there won't be sufficient time in the parlor.

Breed heifers to dairy bulls. Don't just use a "cow fresher." Select a bull with more potential for milk production than her average. This enables you to raise good dairy replacements, and stay away from outside sources. All heifers should be fresh by 23 to 24 months of age. At this age, they should be ready to milk and start paying back all the feed investments.

Corn Borer Battle Possible

The European corn borer has been in Nebraska since the mid 1940's but it has really made a name for itself in the last few years. Leroy Peters, University of Nebraska district extension entomologist at Clay Center, released fresh figures and control measures to be taken against the European corn borer.

The population trend recorded for the last five years foretells a possible battle with European corn borers, said Peters. Broken down into cropping districts, the percentage of plants infested goes from a high of 92.3 per cent in the east in 1971 to a low of 32.9 per cent in the northeast in 1973 and back up to 93.6 per cent in the east in 1975. Looking at the number of borers per 100 plants during the five year period, the northeast reached a peak number of 742.6 borers last year up from a low of 31.7 in 1973 in the same section.

"European corn borers seem to be beyond predictability, according to these figures. The percentage of plants infested can jump from 32.9 per cent in 1973 in the northeast to 77 per cent the next year, the determining factor is the weather in June and August," said Peters. "The ideal conditions for egg laying are calm, warm nights."

The European corn borer causes two types of damage, said Peters. "First generation larvae bore into and feed within the stalk before and during tasseling. This interferes with movement of plant nutrients within the stalk, and reduces the yield potential an average of three per cent or more per borer."

"The second generation larvae bore into and feed within the stalks, tassels, ears, and ear shanks. This will slightly reduce the yield potential. However, the greatest losses from the second generation larvae are caused by broken stalks, dropped ears, and difficulties encountered in mechanical harvesting."

Peters noted that several factors may reduce European corn borer losses. These include cultural practices and natural controls. However, he said that these are not always effective and the use of insecticides is sometimes required. All these factors together will help reduce

Water Management Is Subject of Conference

Determination of whether a state water management policy is needed may be a result of the 1976 Nebraska Water Conference in Lincoln March 29-30 at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Involvement of the Corps of Army Engineers and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in water use regulations points to the possibility that Nebraska needs to get a firm grip on the control, according to Dr. Leslie Sheffield.

Sheffield, assistant to the University of Nebraska Lincoln vice chancellor for agriculture and natural resources, is secretary of the Nebraska Water Conference Committee, which is sponsoring the conference along with NU.

Irrigators in South Dakota already have been hit with Corps of Engineers and EPA regulations to which some are objecting. Sheffield pointed out.

While the program will be otherwise wide ranging, included will be subjects such as the proposed coal slurry pipeline, runoff controls, regulation of nonpoint source pollution, groundwater quality, and environmental concerns, he said.

On the more positive side will be subjects such as water diversion to create more irrigation, increasing irrigation efficiency, and groundwater recharge, he said.

At the end of the two-day conference, William Weir of Imperial, chairman of the Nebraska Water Conference Committee will present some resolutions developed by task force groups, Sheffield said.

Report Reveals Affects of Swine Eating Habits

"Nibbling" and "meal eating" drew to a tie in a University of Nebraska experiment designed to see if the eating patterns of pigs affected their feed efficiency.

One of our best ways of giving you better service is flotation application equipment—the rigs with the big balloon tires that spread out the surface weight.

Using flotation equipment, means getting into fields a lot earlier, even when they're wet or frozen. Because the equipment doesn't cause the compaction or field damage that regular tire-equipped applicators can cause.

Since our rigs apply fertilizer and herbicides in less than ideal conditions, they can work more days. Cover more acres, faster. And serve more customers when they want to be served.

'Now's the Time to Think About Tree Planting'

Now is the best time to start thinking about tree planting as the ground begins to thaw, said Dick Gavitt, extension forester from the Northeast Station near Concord.

Gavitt, who spoke Monday at the weekly Wayne Kiwanis Club noon meeting, said April is the best month to plant new trees in order to give them the best chances of growing.

"The best time to prune trees is in January or February, except for Maple or Birch trees, which tend to lose their sap or maple more often during the winter months," Gavitt noted.

Trees may serve many useful purposes. They can be a source of shade, specimen for development, framing a house or building, create a good background, serve as a screen view, protect against summer and winter winds and serve year around to reduce noise.

With Arbor Day approaching in April, Gavitt said now is a good time to think about planting trees on that day to help beautify the city.

A program to encourage cities across the nation to plant and grow more trees is being formed. To receive national recognition as a tree city, Gavitt pointed out that a city must set up a legal board similar to a city planning commission to regulate types and numbers of trees planted; make annual and long range plans for planting trees; create a city ordinance to plant trees, and from an Arbor Day proclamation whereby citizens will take part in a tree-planting program.

Gavitt feels that in Wayne the program would be especially helpful in planting trees to replace those killed by Dutch Elm or other diseases.

CHEESECAKE - A FAVORITE

Some years ago cheesecake was a specialty in German, Austrian or French restaurants. Today it has grown so popular, it rivals apple pie as one of America's favorites.
However, cheesecake isn't new. About the time our country was starting, cheesecake was a standard item in cookbooks. Farmers made their own cheese and their wives used the fresh curd to make delectable pastries flavored with spices or lemon or candied peels and raisins.
Throughout Europe wherever dairy products were in abundance, people feasted on these cakes.

Bucks Prize Climbs to $725

The jackpot in this week's Birthday Bucks drawing climbs to $725 as a result of another week going by without someone winning the grand prize.

Mrs. Bleich, whose birthday is Jan. 13, 1916, was at Swans' Women Apparel when the winning date was announced. Because her date was the closest to the winning date, she received $25 in Bucks as a consolation award.
Tonight (Thursday) some lucky shopper will have a chance to win the $725 grand prize or the $25 consolation award when the date is selected and announced at 8:15.
No registration or purchases are necessary to enter. However, a shopper must be present in a participating business when the date is announced.

Thought for Today

By Brian McBride
"We have no right to ask when sorrow comes, 'Why did this happen to me?' unless we ask the same question for every joy."
Phillip S. Bernstein

Life consists of a strange mixture of joys and sorrows. It is natural to accept the joyous occasions as our just due. It is also perfectly natural to question why we are being subjected to each unpleasant, sorrowful experience.

On balance, we think, life offers more happiness and joy than it does sadness. We must learn to accept what life offers and make the best of our total situation, accepting the sorrows with the same willingness that we welcome life's joys.

Consideration for those who serve, combined with a sincere desire to be of service, has characterized our contribution to this community.
