

Democrats Told Reshape Goals

Representatives of several Democratic presidential hopefuls, and the party's House and Senate candidates, headed a Bicentennial convention Sunday in Wayne.

About 250 persons from Northeast Nebraska attended the function, kicked off at 4 p.m. with the viewing of "Give 'Em Hell, Harry," about former Democratic President Harry Truman.

During a dinner at the Wayne city auditorium Sunday evening, party representatives called for unification of the Democratic party.

Representatives for presidential candidates included Forrest City, speaking on behalf of his father, Frank Churchill, and Senator John Hansen of Newham Grove, representing Fred Harris; Dr. Paul Villar of Kanawha, representing Jimmy Carter; and Sairy Anderson of Wayne, speaking unofficially for California governor Jerry Brown.

The program became somewhat heated as senatorial candidate Hess Dyas tried a broadside at opponent Ed Zorinsky. Dyas made an oblique reference to Zorinsky's switching his party affiliation recently, and charged the Omaha mayor with being opposed to Social Security.

Zorinsky responded when his

4,785 Voters Register

The number of Wayne County voters registered for Tuesday's election is down slightly from the 1974 total, but county clerk Norris Weible said part of the difference is due to an administrative procedure.

A total of 4,785 voters have registered for this year's primary, compared with 4,853 in 1974.

Weible said, however, that his office has recently purged registration books of names of persons who no longer live in the county.

Republicans outnumber Democrats nearly two-to-one in number of registered voters. The GOP total is 2,993, against 1,594 for the Democrats. In addition, 235 voters are registered as independent. No third party registrations were recorded.

Weible also listed the following precincts and polling places: Wayne first ward—Wills; Wayne second ward—National Guard armory, third ward—court house, fourth ward—fire hall, Brenna precinct—District 57 school, Strahan—District 51 school, Hunter—District 47 school, Hoskins precinct and village, Hoskins precinct, Garfield—District 77 school, Sherman—District and Sholes—District 76 school, Hancock precinct and Winside—Winside auditorium, Chapin—Winside American Legion hall, Wilbur—District 15 school, Plum Creek—Altona store, Leslie—District 25 school, Logan—Wakefield school, Deer Creek and Carroll—Carroll auditorium.

Sherman and Deer Creek voters are in Nebraska's 19th Legislative District. All other Wayne County voters are in the 17th District.

The two were selected for the honors by their fellow students. Their names will be engraved on the plaques they are shown holding, which are permanently displayed at the school.

Candidates Concerned with Budget, Education

A total of five candidates are seeking their respective parties' nomination to run for the seat being vacated by Nebraska Senator Roman Huska.

The Wayne Herald has previously published interviews with the two Republican candidates—John McCollister and Richard Proud—and with Democratic candidate Hess Dyas. The two remaining Democratic candidates were interviewed Sunday night following the Democratic dinner in Wayne.

Ed Zorinsky

Fiscal responsibility is the main theme of Omaha mayor Ed Zorinsky's bid for the Democratic senatorial nomination, and he said printing more money is not the solution to the nation's economic ills.

He cites his record as Omaha mayor for the past years, during which time taxes have not increased and the number of employees on the city payroll has decreased by 46.

The federal government should have to operate its business like any other entity, corporate or private, Zorinsky said, and that rules out spending more money than is taken in.

Balancing the budget can't be accomplished overnight, Zorinsky said, but it is possible, with unemployment as the key.

Reducing the unemployment rate to four per cent would allow for a balanced budget, he said, because of the additional tax dollars generated.

Public works can help, as an interim measure, the Omaha mayor said. All levels of government have plenty of work to be done which would make public works employment productive.

In the long run, Zorinsky said, unemployment will have to be solved by creating more jobs in the private sector of the economy. The government should encourage the creation of jobs through incentives such as tax breaks. There would be a trade off between dollars lost through tax breaks and the savings in the number of dollars paid out for welfare programs, Zorinsky said, and the government would receive increased revenue from taxes paid by previously unemployed persons.

Fiscal responsibility should extend to all areas of government, Zorinsky said, and he supports a proposal to adopt zero-base budget procedures. If the proposal is adopted, government budgets would be prepared from scratch each year, rather than preparing only a proposal for changes in the previous year's budget.

Implementing sound business practices in defense contracts could result in a reduction in defense expenditures, he said, adding that the United States should maintain a defense posture second to none.

"If the nation can't defend itself, inflation and unemployment become academic," he said.

Zorinsky said that as mayor of Omaha, he is vitally concerned about agriculture, because the city's economy is based on agriculture.

It is up to agriculture sales to offset the volume of imported commodities and give the United States a favorable balance of trade, Zorinsky said. The sooner that is realized, he said, "the sooner we will again become a viable economic nation."

The family farm is the backbone of American agriculture, and preserving the family farming system is vital Zorinsky said. He wants to see the estate tax exemption on farms raised to $400,000 or 50 per cent, whichever is greater.

Lenore Etchison

Mrs. Lenore Etchison, an economics and political science graduate of Morgan State College, received her master's degree in education from Central Missouri State University.

A teacher for 12 years, including five years at Bellevue, Mrs. Etchison thinks state and federal government should assume greater responsibility for the cost of public education. Each level of government—local, state, and federal—should share education costs equally, she said.

Increased federal funding of schools would not present any real danger of loss of local control of schools, she said. The nation's population today is so mobile, that it is no longer desirable for individual localities to have separate educational standards.

Mrs. Etchison said she also thinks schools should serve special needs so all citizens can develop to their full potential.

The senatorial hopeful would like to see reform in the judicial system of the nation. The press has been the vanguard of freedom in this area in the past five years, she said.

She would like to see courts adopt a formal reporting procedure regarding trials. The information would be compiled into an index so courts could see if the law was being applied equally to all.

Along with reforming the court system, Mrs. Etchison would like to see sweeping reform in the nation's penal systems.

"Everyone talks about what they would like to do after they get to Washington," Zorinsky said. "Everything I say I would do, I have been doing for the past three years in Omaha."

Rather than placing law-breakers in a few larger institutions, she would like to see more smaller penal institutions with prisoners segregated according to the seriousness of their crime and past criminal record.

That would separate first offenders and others from more hardened criminals, she said, eventually resulting in a lower rate of repeat offenders. A minimum of two hours a day of rehabilitative training should also be made mandatory, she said.

At the same time, Mrs. Etchison would like to see some compensation for victims of crime. Persons convicted of crimes would have to pay up to 10 per cent of the cost of damages suffered by their victims, as a condition for release. Up to nine per cent could be waived under Mrs. Etchison's plan, but at least one per cent of damages would have to be reimbursed to victims.

On defense matters, the candidate said military strength should be adequate. "But I don't think any element of government should be such a sacred cow that it can't be looked at and weighed."

Any program which receives public funds should be evaluated periodically to see how efficient it is operating, she said.

The current welfare system encourages the break-up of families, she said and in many cases discourages persons from working, according to Mrs. Etchison. Persons working for minimum wages, seldom receive health and other benefits necessary for family security. While they may make more money than welfare provides, they also give up other benefits such as public-supported medical care.

Mrs. Etchison said the welfare system should be revised so people can go to

Winside Receives Bicentennial Banner

"I can't imagine how you could have wedged more Americans into this room than you have," state Senator John Murphy told the audience Sunday afternoon during presentation ceremonies for the Winside Bicentennial flag.

The occasion had been scheduled to be conducted in the city park but inclement weather forced the festivities indoors and about 350 people packed the city auditorium.

The effort of individuals has been important in developing the nation, the 17th district senator said, not the actions of government.

He charged young people in the audience with the responsibility of remaining knowledgeable about their government, particularly now when government spends 50 cents out of every dollar spent in the United States.

Individuals must be demanding of their government, he said. If the public isn't demanding, government will degenerate.

Murphy presented the Bicentennial flag and certificate to Winside Bicentennial chairman Richard Miller. Miller also presented a second Bicentennial flag to school superintendent Donovan Lighthorn.

The information would be compiled into an index so courts could see if the law was being applied equally to all.

School Board Meeting Rescheduled

A meeting of the Wayne-Carroll board of education scheduled for Monday of this week had to be postponed, school superintendent Francis Haun said.

Board member Margaret Lundstrom was not in town and Dale Stoltenberg had a conflict with another meeting. President Dr. Irvin Brandt was hospitalized Friday. The absences precluded assembling a quorum for the meeting. The meeting is rescheduled for Monday evening, May 10.

Dr. Brandt, visiting his parents in Albion, was hospitalized Friday afternoon, according to a spokesman for the Boone County Hospital there. Saturday afternoon he was transferred to Nebraska Methodist Hospital in Omaha.

A spokesman there said Tuesday that Brandt was in good condition but was being kept for observation. Exact cause for hospitalization was not stated, although the Nebraska Methodist spokesman said "some type of cardio-vascular disorder" was suspected.

WS Hosting NAIA Tennis, Golf Meets

Wayne State will be host this weekend to state collegiate championships in tennis and golf.

The Nebraska NAIA district tennis meet is a Friday event with seven teams starting action at 10 a.m. on the college courts. Doane is a big-odds favorite to repeat as champion. Also competing: Wayne, Kearney, Midland, Concordia, Hastings and Dana.

Starting Friday and continuing Saturday will be the NAIA district golf tournament. Wayne coach Del Stoltenberg expects all nine NAIA teams to enter—all of those here for the tennis meet, plus Peru and Chadron. In golf there appears to be no heavy favorite, but Stoltenberg thinks his team has a good chance at high place maybe first—and Kearney is likely strong.

Friday play with 18 holes begins at noon, Saturday at 9 a.m. The Saturday round is 18 holes, also will serve as the Nebraska College Conference championship.

Wayne's tennis team defeated Yankton College, 7-2, Saturday at Yankton and Briar Cliff 9-0 Monday in Sioux City, to make the season 8-6 before Wednesday's final dual at home against Buena Vista.

Wildcat golfers won medal play meets at home this week. Monday they scored 310 to beat Doane, 322—Nebraska-Omaha; 324; Midland, 335. Monday Wayne carded 341, well ahead of Concordia at 361 and Mount Marty, 391, on a gusty, windy day.

Seniors John Biehle rated as medalist both days with a one-guy par 73 Monday and 82 Tuesday. He will head Wayne's district team, along with Bill Scarborough, Dan Hendrickson and Kevin Cavelier. Vying for the fifth man spot are Howard Pifers, Doug Lage and Bob Vander Zee. In a brief season the Wildcats won four of five meets.

Wausa Outdistances Field To Win 'Cats Invitational

Powerful Wausa left a trail of smoke which almost carried nine other high school teams Tuesday at the Winside Invitational track meet.

Coach Francis Dittmer's Vikings tallied six first-place ribbons to help his favored team collect 146 points.

Tied for second were Winside and Ponca with 65 points each. Close behind were Coleridge with 60, Macedonia with 52, Walthill with 49 1/2 and Wingo, bago with 42 1/2. Wynot had 23, Beemer 17 and Allen 6.

Kim Johnson and teammate Merrill Friedrich each won two events to lead the Vikings. Johnson won the shot put with a heave of 48 1/2 and won the discus with a toss of 136. Friedrich went 39-11 in the triple jump and ran a 10:3 in the 100. "Our times weren't the greatest but we had the best team effort of the year," said Winside mentor Jim Haiferly of the Wildcats' second-place tie.

Senior Dave Mann again led the Cats with a first in the 800 and a third in the two mile. He also anchored the winning mile relay foursome, which also included Hugo Bleich, Chuck Mann and Wayne Smith.

"Our regular performers did their job as expected, but some of our younger kids also came through," Haiferly noted. Bill Thomas, Cliff Tillema and Dean Janke were three runners the coach was pleased with. For the first time this season Thomas placed in the discus. Tillema in the 200, and Janke was fourth in the 800.

Mann who won the 800, mile and two mile at the Lewis and Clark Conference meet last week, didn't compete in the mile because of leg cramps. See WAUSA, page 7

NCC Champion Wildcats Earn Berth in District

Wayne State's baseball team returned home Wednesday from a successful western trip which produced three wins in five games, championship of the Nebraska College Conference and a place in the Nebraska NAIA district playoff.

Tuesday at Boulder the Wildcats had satisfaction in spilling with Colorado University, the fifth Big Eight team they've faced this year. There was little satisfaction in the first game, a 6-0 loss in which the Cats committed six errors allowing the Buffaloes eight unearned runs. Jim Auck was the starter and loser.

But the second game belonged to Wayne, 7-5 in 10 innings, with Roger Saul pitching five innings of winning relief. The Wayne native gave up only one run and three hits. His record now: 3-1. Saul took over when starter Bob DeVaul suffered a freakish injury in the sixth. He whirled to pick off a runner at first, caught his spikes in the ground and twisted a knee—how seriously, it isn't known yet.

American Indians believed that jadd could cure snake bite.

By Bob Bartlett

ASK Al Libbe and Dale Sohl why they ran the 26-mile marathon race at the Drake Relays recently and be prepared for a lengthy discussion. The Wayne State students didn't do it for a joke, they were as serious as anyone might be. Their purpose, to see if they could do it.

Neither one expected to finish among the top runners in a field which started out with 270. Libbe finished the grind in 54th position and Sohl was 57th. Total time was about two hours and 40 minutes.

Still, the question of why pops up. "Really, it's the only man's race around," Libbe pointed out. A person has to be more mentally tough and in good physical condition to run in a race of this type, he went on.

"Perhaps the biggest reward of the marathon race is just to finish," Libbe said. Both agree that after a person has ran half the distance, they feel in good shape. It's when they reach the last three to five miles that the pain really starts to take effect.

Libbe, who is from West Point, noted that cross country as well as marathon running is a lonely sport compared to such team sports as baseball, basketball and football. "That's why it's mentally tougher than any other sport. You have to be really dedicated to work out every day to stay in shape."

A daily workout might consist of running about 12 miles. That's about 75 miles a week or 25 miles short of what some of the top runners in the nation do in a week's time, Libbe noted.

Sohl, who is from George, Ia., and Libbe plan to continue running this summer, possibly in several marathon races at Black Hills, S.D. and a race in Omaha in August.

Whether they will continue to run next fall is another question. Libbe will be a senior and Sohl will be a junior. Right now their only thoughts are on upcoming running events.

Information about the two runners was in a story written last week by college information director Dick Mantley. However, there wasn't enough room in Monday's issue to run the story.

OTHER information which didn't get into Monday's paper were the results of track meets at Winside and Columbus Lakeview. There were stories about Wayne's junior high girls team winning the West Husker Conference 11th and team standings in the girls division of junior high track meet at Winside. You'll find those results elsewhere on the sports pages.

To summarize, Wayne girls overwhelmed their opponents with a total of 178 points, way ahead of Winsler/Pilger with 64, Hartington Cedar with 62, Emerson-Hubbard with 53 and Wakefield with 42.

The locals posted wins in six events, including two first-place ribbons by Barb Kovensky and Jane Edmunds. At Winside, Osmond won with 88 points followed by Winside with 69, Laurel with 66, Ponca with 55, Hartington with 51 and Allen with 44. Laurel's Paula Chace was the only triple winner of the day-long meet. She won the long jump, 100 and 220.

QUICK GLANCE: Jeffrey Brudigan of Hoskins placed second in the 90-pound division at a freestyle meet held last week at Boys Town, sponsored by the Omaha Westside Wrestling Club.

Winside High senior Bob Hoffman recently received a letter from Robert Morris, director of the Nebraska Coaches Association's annual All-Star basketball game, congratulating him on being strongly considered for the North All-Star roster.

The three-time Lewis and Clark Conference all loop player again this year led Winside in scoring and rebounding as the Wildcats chalked up one of their best winning records, 11-7.

Wakefield '9' Belts Winless Leigh, 10-5

Catcher Dean Sharp drove in four runs on a pair of singles Monday and Wakefield runners stole a total of 12 bases while stopping host Leigh, 10-5.

The win "boosted" coach Joe Coble's club from a 7-2 going into the last game of the season Wednesday against Wayne.

Wakefield went through three hurriers in the seven-inning contest. Starter Dan Byers, who picked up his second win in three starts, went four frames, giving up two hits and two walks while striking out six. Doug Starz took over for one inning and gave up four hits and a walk. He struck out one. Brad Jones finished the game with four strikeouts. He didn't give up any hits or walks.

"Our pitchers finally found the strike zone," Coble pointed out about his team's easy win over winless Leigh. Jones looked especially sharp the last two innings, he added.

Wakefield was minus the big hits, but showed the consistency of the plate offensively and on the field defensively to post the win, the coach noted.

NNBL to Meet Friday Night

The Northeast Nebraska Baseball League will have a team meeting Friday night at 8 o'clock in Wakefield to help organize this year's playing dates.

League secretary Merlin "Luffy" Olson said the meeting will be held at his office at 214 Main St. for managers and coaches of the teams involved.

Luffy said he expects all nine teams to return this year. The only exception he knows of might be Decatur. The other teams in the league are Wayne, Wakefield, Allen, Martinsburg, Homer, Ponca, Newcastle, Dakota City and Pender.

League action is expected to start on Sunday, May 30.

Logan View Hurlers Fade Against Devils

Brothers Mike and Mark Ruwe couldn't get the job done and Hooper-Logan View's third ace on the mound, Mike Braun, had his share of problems too.

Result, Wayne saluted past the visitors, 13-3, to chalk up the Blue Devils' ninth win in 10 starts.

The problem the Logan View hurlers were having was control. All three gave up 13 walks, with the bulk of those bases on balls—seven—coming off Braun in the last of the fifth. There Wayne scored four runs off walks before Tom Ginn singled in the fifth and final run of the abbreviated contest.

Wayne hitters managed only six hits off all three pitchers. But Wayne mentor Mike Mallette said he wasn't displeased with his team's lack of hitting. "Our batters didn't have too many opportunities to hit...thirteen walks are as good as 10 hits anyway," Mallette pointed out.

Although none of Wayne's hurlers issued any walks, Mallette pointed out that his team's defense wasn't as sharp as it has been. Wayne committed a total of six errors, the most this season.

The longest hit for Wayne was a double by relief hurler Vic Sharpe who drove in two runs in the bottom of the third.

Senior Dave Hix started on the mound and went two innings before first baseman Doug Carroll transferred to the mound for two more frames. Sharpe finished the abbreviated contest.

Coeds Drop Out Of SB Tourney

Wayne State closed out the women's softball season Saturday with a second loss in the Nebraska state tournament in Omaha. Nebraska-Lincoln defeated Wayne by 4-2 after Nebraska-Omaha beat the Wildkittens Friday, 5-1.

Omaha went on to win the large-college state meet with two Sunday wins over Kearney State, 9-1 and 4-0. Thus UNO gets a shot at repeating last year's College Women's World Series championship.

Meanwhile, in the small-college tournament, Midland whipped Peru State, 19-1, for the championship. This title does not carry a World Series opportunity.

Wayne finished with a 5-15 record by a mostly new team loaded with freshmen and sophomores. Only one senior, a substitute, will be lost. The record produced Wayne's only losing season since softball began.

Gensler's Grand Slam Saves Eagles' Hopes for 2nd Win

A pair of home runs, including a grand slam by designated hitter Randy Gensler, gave Allen the lift it needed to help the Eagles edge host Homer, 12-11, in a nine-inning contest Tuesday.

The victory was the second for coach Bob Moore's club over Homer and gave Allen a 2-6 mark into the first round of district play next week against Macy.

Gensler, who drove in the winning run in the teams' first meeting last month, ripped his round tripper in the six-run seventh frame to help give Allen its second lead of the game.

Winning pitcher Jeff Creamer opened the frame with a triple and teammates Kevin Hohenstein and Lindy Koester each walked to load the sacks. Catcher Denny Uhl walked to force in the first run of the inning before Gensler connected over left center field for a 10-10 ball game. A pair of singles accounted for Allen's go-ahead score. Second baseman Brent Chase singled, stole second and came home on Charlie Ferguson's one-bagger.

Creamer sent the game into extra frames in his half of the seventh when it scored a runner with the help of two Allen miscues.

In the top of the ninth, Homer walked Allen's Rayne Dowling and Gensler before Chase singled in the winning run.

Getting Allen's first solo roundtripper was Koester, who smacked the ball over right field fence in the fifth frame for a 5-3 Allen lead.

It was far from a defensive game, Moore later commented. Allen committed eight errors while Homer was charged with only two. However, the Knights' pitching crew had its share of trouble on the mound, walking 12 Allen players. Eagle hurlers Jeff Creamer, Shawn Persinger and Todd Ellis sent eight pitchers to the base.

Homer appeared to have the game tucked away in the fifth frame when the hometown club scored seven runs off two hits and a bunch of walks and miscues.

Creamer, who got credit for his second win, left in the fifth, before Homer's bombardment. Persinger went two-thirds of a frame after Homer's scoring parade started. Then Moore replaced him with Ellis. Ellis walked two and a third before Creamer went back to duty.

Gensler finished the marathon with six runs batted in off his three hits in four at bats.

Hoffman, Stenwall Are WH Top Athletes

Winside High seniors Bob Hoffman and Jill Stenwall Saturday night were named Athletes of the Year during the school's athletic banquet.

The selections were based upon the votes of the coaching staff and the athlete's performance throughout their high school career.

Hoffman, who earned 11 letters during his four years at Winside, lettered four times each in basketball and track and three in football. In his last three years, Hoffman has been named to the Lewis and Clark Conference's all-loop team in basketball and football. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hoffman of rural Winside twice has been named to The Wayne Herald's all-area basketball squad and once to the Norfolk Daily News' top 20 nonorable mention list in football.

Following the 1975 season, Hoffman was named to the Omaha World-Herald's Class C All State team and to the Norfolk top 20 club.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stenwall of Winside, Jill has received seven letters. She has earned four in track, two in volleyball and one in girls basketball.

Last year Stenwall earned a gold medal by placing first in the shot put during the girls state track meet. She currently holds the best ever mark in the shot with a heave of 43.34 and the second best toss in the discus, 136.5 feet.

City, County Considering Out-of-Court Settlement

The Wayne County board of commissioners Tuesday met with Wayne mayor Freeman Decker and city administrator Fred Brink to discuss the possibility of a compromise in a suit filed by the city against the county.

The city alleges the county owes it $7,000 under an agreement for providing ambulance services.

County clerk Norris Weible, who said he was speaking in the capacity of a private citizen, at the last city council meeting raised the question of how much the suit would cost Wayne taxpayers in legal fees, and the council agreed to consider a compromise.

The county commissioners Tuesday said they would consider an out-of-court settlement and notify city officials of their decision prior to the May 11th council meeting.

The commissioners also gave permission for the Wayne Lions Club to place a Bicentennial sign on the southeast corner of the county property. The sign will consist of a map of Wayne County with sites of historical importance marked.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Jones, county Bicentennial chairman, discussed plans for the raising of the county Bicentennial flag May 16 at the courthouse.

Criminal activity in Dixon County during fiscal 1975 cost citizens nearly $60,000 according to a report issued by sheriff Dean Chase.

Chase said the number of incidents, including non-criminal activity, investigated by his office increased by about 40 percent over the previous fiscal year.

Citizens are reporting a higher percentage of incidents, Chase said, and that accounts for most of the increase. Reported crimes increased by 20 percent.

Fewer persons were actually jailed during fiscal 1975 than in the previous year, 56 compared to 61. Burglaries dropped by two, to 26, while reported cases of larceny jumped from 58 to 77. Vandalism incidents climbed slightly, from 19 to 21. Auto thefts—two cases—and accidents—60—were the same for the two years compared by Chase.

Fire

About 8:30 a.m. when Behmer noticed the blaze from his kitchen window. According to fire chief Herman "Dutch" Opler, the family was in the living room when Behmer decided to check. He had turned off the windmill.

By the time firemen arrived, Behmer had salvaged a tractor and loader from the burning shed, but lost another tractor, feed wagon, three augers, an elevator and other equipment. Also lost in the blaze were about 800 bushels of ear corn, about two tons of cattle feed, 500 bushels of oats and 700 bushels of shelled corn.

The fire apparently resulted from a short circuit in a tractor parked in the alleyway of the corn crib.

Had firemen arrived three minutes later, the fire might have engulfed a barn nearby, it was reported.

Firemen were able to reach the scene of the blaze quickly because the members were at a fire meeting when the alarm was sounded.

work and initially still receive some public assistance. This gives people the dignity of working and being taxpayers, allows them to raise their standard of living, and should eventually result in their reaching a point of self-sufficiency, she said.

Agriculture policy must be revised so farmers' per capita income in 100 percent of the per capita income average of the rest of the nation, Mrs. Echolson said, adding that the current figure is 70 per cent.

To reach that goal, the Pappillon candidate wants to see the federal government sponsor an "ample" crop insurance plan, support farm-cooperatives in developing projects such as gasohol production, providing funding for additional farm research to make crop production more efficient and find additional uses for farm products, and raise the estate tax exemption for farms, tying it to an economic index so the exemption will rise as value rises.

Problem arises with mental health review panel

CAPITOL NEWS
LINCOLN — Nebraska's law of many years governing the involuntary commitment of persons with mental problems was thrown out by a U.S. District court and the Unicameral has enacted a replacement.

In the process of enactment, the lawmakers decided Gov. J. J. Exon should appoint a special three-member panel which would review the cases of those committed under the old law.

The courts said the old law failed to protect the constitutional rights of mental patients.

The review panel would make sure all those committed involuntarily did not have their rights violated and that they belonged in an institution for treatment.

However, a bit of a problem has turned up.

State officials said originally the panel would have to review only the cases of some 25 persons who are now at one of the regional centers at Lincoln, Hastings or Norfolk.

That was an underestimate.

Little Impact Expected
 State Institutions director Jack Cleavenger now says there are 568 additional cases that must be reviewed.

Cleavenger said those additional cases involve people who were sent to places, such as nursing homes, other than regional centers for help.

He added there are people with recurring problems and they are scattered all over the state.

The Institutions director said when the new involuntary commitment law was being considered by the legislature he knew about the other 568 but wasn't sure they would have to be included in the review process. He said it has now been determined they will be included.

Cleavenger said he doubted the review process would have much impact.

He doubted that many will get out because of the law. If they could be out, they would be out now," he said.

He said the proof in that statement lies in patient number statistics over the years. In the past 20 years regional cases have been reduced from 5,000 to 500.

Specifically, the new law requires that a person be found dangerous before that person can be institutionalized involuntarily. And, Cleavenger said, it's exactly why the numbers have decreased over the years — only those deemed dangerous to themselves or others have been sent to regional centers for treatment.

No Drug Case Changes Seen
 The U.S. Supreme Court decided to uphold the conviction of a man who bought heroin from one law enforcement undercover agent and sold it to another.

One might expect that decision, a disputed one among the justices, to herald a major change within law enforcement.

However, a Nebraska State Patrol spokesman says otherwise.

"They have enough dope without us selling it to them," said Randall Rinquest, head of the patrol's legal staff.

"That's just not proper" despite the fact that the court upheld the conviction, Rinquest said. "We have enough to do without setting a guy up."

The attorney said the patrol, as a statewide agency, is particularly interested in shutting off the supply. The use of the procedure condoned in that one case, he said, would yield an arrest of a street dealer only.

"We're really interested in getting the supplier to the street dealer," Rinquest said.

However, he said that doesn't mean the patrol isn't going after dealers. He said the patrol's drug division is especially active in areas of the state outside Lincoln and Omaha, which have their own specialized narcotics agents, in clearing the streets.

But he said the push within the patrol is to provide prosecuting attorneys with quality cases — quality cases meaning ones that stick when they get into court.

"We have enough real cases without making pretend ones," Rinquest said.

Technically, the nation's high court ruled the two-agent deal did not violate the illegal entrapment doctrine.

Rinquest said in that area the decision might have a major favorable impact. He said that impact could be a more lenient attitude by the courts in considering just what constitutes illegal entrapment.

However, he said the primary test would remain whether a person is predisposed to commit a crime so that when a law enforcement agency gets involved all it is doing is providing a specific opportunity for that person to do something he would do normally, and has done, for evidence purposes.

In an interesting dissenting opinion at the U.S. Supreme Court level, one justice even suggested that the law enforcement agency involved in that agent to dealer to agent transaction ought to be tried for pushing drugs.

Privacy Rights Threatened
 Is it right for a policeman to peer into a private home with binoculars and then make a warrantless arrest for a misdemeanor crime?

 A Nebraska Supreme Court majority said "Yes."

But two judges said they thought that was going a little far too.

In the case, a Lincoln man's house was watched by police with binoculars who later arrested the man on the grounds he was participating in a marijuana party.

The other judge said they doubted that a misdemeanor crime had been committed. They did say they didn't like the way police handled the situation.

Douglas County District Judge John Grant, filling in temporarily on the supreme court bench, said "The conduct of police in this case in peering through what amounts to a crack in the wall (it was a window) of defendant's home, infringes on defendant's constitutionally protected right to be free of warrantless governmental intrusion."

Supreme Court Judge Lawrence Clinton said the situation was a little more serious.

He said there are times when a policeman, seeing something happen through a window, should not take the time to go get a warrant in order to do something. He cited the beating of a woman by a man as one of those times.

Clinton said he didn't think a misdemeanor crime where the penalty was a fine and society in general was not being harmed, or in danger of being harmed immediately, was included.

He said in his opinion the situation amounted to an invasion of the right of privacy.

That right, under the majority opinion, he said, "is reduced to an intolerable minimum if officers may at will enter a house without a warrant to arrest a person for a misdemeanor."

"No man is good enough to govern another without that other's consent." — Abraham Lincoln

Efficiency central to budget controversy

The current budget debate between the President and Congress may seem of less than monumental significance to the casual observer. The two sides' figures are not very far apart in tribute. I think, to how surprisingly well the new congressional budget control machinery is working.

But while the actual differences are not as great as they appear, the nature of the debate is important.

The President proposes a budget of $295.8 billion, financed with taxes of $351.3 billion and borrowing of $44.5 billion. The congressional budget committees want to spend about $413 billion, borrow a little more over $50 billion, and reduce the difference in taxes.

In other words, the President wants to leave more money in private hands. Congress wants to run more money through Washington. That's the nature of the debate. At the heart of it is the question of which strategy promises "the greatest good for the greatest number" consistent with our other values.

Unhappily, the debate is fuzzed up with a lot of misconceptions. Some conservatives say that all government activity is unproductive and insist that "only the private sector can create wealth." Obviously, neither assertion is true. There are countries which, theoretically, have no money, and yet they do manage to create wealth.

Some liberals, on the other hand, try to portray all opposition to government spending as heartlessness, selfishness, lack of proper social concern, or even disguised racism. Such assertions may or may not be true, depending on the money being spent, but they are impossible to disagree with the statement that before wealth can be distributed, it must be created. And it therefore follows that the efficiency with which wealth is created should be of at least as much concern to the liberals as to the conservatives.

Efficiency, then, is what it's all about. Is wealth created more efficiently by the private sector or by government?

It's really no contest. The private sector wins hands down, both demon- strably and theoretically.

Russian workers, for example, are only half as productive as American workers. The difference is not simply in the training and skill of the workers. It lies also, in the amount of capital investment per worker, in the quality of the capital equipment (machinery and tools), and in the efficiency with which capital is used. How efficiently capital is used is determined by the incentives governing its use.

In our society, the private individual (or corporations) who use (invests) his capital wisely will make money, other things being equal. He will reward the training and skill of the workers. On the other hand, if he manages his assets badly he may get poor.

So the incentives in our society favor calculated risks and careful management by the government? That's what's really behind the budget debate.

Now consider the incentives for a government bureaucrat charged with investing public money. If he loses the money, he may lose his job. But if he makes a brilliant investment that pays off handsomely, the biggest reward he can expect is a promotion — if that. Therefore, government management of capital favors caution, not innovation.

It can be maddeningly difficult even to establish that a government project has, in fact, failed. For a private investor, the free market defines failure with surgical precision. If the customers don't buy, the business either changes its ways or goes broke. But the failure of a government venture can be covered up over talk of "public service," "social significance," etc., while it's kept afloat with tax money.

Do we want to continue drifting toward an economy in which capital is managed by the government? That's what's really behind the budget debate. — Richard Leshner, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Hats off for pep club idea

Wayne High School principal Don Zeiss is planning a coeducational pep club for next year and our hats are off to him for an idea whose time has come.

Some critics of education are saying that extra curricular activities should be curtailed or at least not allowed to proliferate more than they have.

In one sense, that is sound reasoning. Extra curricular activities should supplement, rather than detract from, academic programs.

How then, does a pep club supplement academic programs? By putting some student into the mainstream of school life.

There generally exists a certain segment of the student population which attends school but is outside that mainstream. Because of this, school assumes a secondary importance in their lives. They don't feel all that much a part of what is happening, so other interests take precedence.

Which are many in some cases, but not in those where the secondary importance of the school leads to an indifferent attitude toward achievement of basic educational goals.

A coeducational pep club is one organization that all students can belong to. Its primary function is to foster pride in the school. We usually tend to think of this in terms of athletic competition, but it goes beyond that.

If a coeducational pep club can pull some students into the mainstream of school life and foster an enthusiasm which spills over into all aspects of the school, including academic achievement, then it will indeed further the educational process.

It's a new idea for this part of the country, one that is certainly worth a try. Zeiss has said that boys aren't exactly beating down his door to join the club and that is to be expected. But hopefully, Wayne High male students will get over viewing the Pep Club in its traditional role as a girls' organization, and start looking at it as a school organization, one which can benefit everyone. — Jim Strayer.

Washington trip: great experience

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Winside School District, I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the State National Bank and Trust Company of Wayne for sponsoring the Bicentennial trip to Washington, D.C. this past week.

Winside had sixty students plus fifteen adults on the trip. We have heard so many comments from them stating how enjoyable the trip really was. We saw so many places of interest on the trip, it would be impossible to relate everyone's highlights.

With so many people on the trip that had never flown, I am sure that was first, but the sight of Arlington Cemetery, the Nation's Capitol Building, the Lincoln Memorial and the Jefferson Memorial, just to name a few will surely remain in the hearts of all who saw them.

In these days of declining pride and faith in our nation, it is hopeful that this trip taken by so many students will help to restore our pride and faith in the United States! — Participating students from Winside: Donovan D. Leighton, Carl Hansen, Jean Gahl, Norma Brockmeier, Mrs. Dennis Bowers, Mrs. Norris Janke, LaJean Stockdale, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Suhl, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Lage, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Melchery, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brockman.

Dear Editor:

The students and sponsors of the Wayne Middle School wish to thank the State National Bank of Wayne for making the Bicentennial trip to Washington, D.C. possible last week. Special thanks to Beverly Etter who worked very hard on the project.

The sponsors were very pleased with the conduct of the Wayne-Carroll school. They were very well behaved and a credit to the community and state. On at least three occasions, sponsors were stopped by strangers who remarked on how well behaved the students were. We thought you should know. — Middle School sponsors, Loren R. Park, Dan Johnson, Joyce Mitchell.

State offers safety tips

Farm equipment was involved in 140 accidents last year. This accounted for four fatalities and 37 injuries. The year before, in 1974, there were eleven fatalities related to farm equipment.

Tractors have gotten bigger over the years and a collision with a car usually ends tragically. The Nebraska Highway Safety Program warns that the danger slow moving farm equipment presents is upon us again. They admonish all drivers to use extreme caution in the upcoming months when Nebraska's rural highways are frequented by farm machinery.

There are many precautions that should be observed to prevent a possible tragedy. The Safety Program urges that only licensed drivers be allowed to take farm machinery out on the road. Many roadway farm machinery accidents involve operators below legal driving age. Many youngsters are strong enough and able to operate machinery in the field, but they usually don't have the knowledge, judgment and experience to safely deal with the traffic and special roadside hazards.

To safely travel on public roads with a slow moving vehicle, the Safety Program notes that you must see and be seen. Glow moving vehicle emblems are available at all farm equipment dealer and should be replaced when they are faded. Before taking farm equipment out, operator should check to make sure tail lights, rear reflectors, flashing lights and the SMV emblem will be clearly visible to following traffic.

Great care should be exercised at ungraded or "blind" intersections on county roads and when crossing narrow or one-lane bridges. Sharp curves and hills call for special alertness too — keep well to the right.

Safe driving requires that your guard be kept up all the time; never abandon defensive driving tactics even on local roads. Many farm vehicles are struck by neighbors who also are familiar with the roads, but have violated defensive driving rules. — Nebraska Highway Safety Department.

Bucks Winner
Just Short of Claiming $750

If Leonard Denkinger would have been born on June 10, 1914 instead of June 20, he would have won himself the $750 grand prize in the weekly Birthday Bucks promotion sponsored by participating Wayne businesses.

Denkinger of Wayne was the person whose birthday came the closest to the winning date and as a result he won the $25 consolation award.

He was in Charlie's Refrigeration and Appliance Service when the winning date was drawn at random and announced at 8:15 Thursday. Picking the winning date was Mrs. Charles Kudrke of Charlie's Refrigeration.

Tonight (Thursday) another lucky shopper will have a chance to win the consolation or grand prize in the weekly contest. To be a winner, a person must be present in a participating Wayne business when the date is announced.

If you're a heavy user of cold cuts, it pays to slice your own for significant savings.

Social Security Questionnaires Are Necessary

People getting supplemental security income payments shouldn't feel they're being singled out for investigation when they're contacted during the year by social security representatives, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk. The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled. The law requires that eligibility for supplemental security income and the amount of the monthly payments be redetermined once a year for everyone getting the payments. The Social Security Administration gets in touch with people to get information about income, living arrangements, and other factors that might affect their supplemental security income payments. This may be done by a questionnaire in the mail or by personal interview in the home or social security office.

Social security representatives are glad to identify themselves, according to Branch. "They never ask you to give them money to have something done," he said. "It's their duty to help people — in any way they can — to get supplemental security income payments in the right amount." People can get information about supplemental security income payments by calling, visiting or writing any social security office. The Norfolk social security office is at 1310 Norfolk Avenue. The phone number is 371-1595.

The State National Bank and Trust Company would like you to know that we have a right to be proud of our young people. We just returned from a series of Bicentennial "Education on Location" flights to our nation's capitol. Over 350 students, parents, and teachers made the two trips.

Everywhere we went in Washington, D.C. on both trips administrators, teachers and parents received compliments on our young people. Washington's residents were as impressed with the conduct and behavior of our children as our students were with the panorama of living history in the capitol. State National Bank and Trust Company was pleased to host so many ambassadors from Nebraska. We thought you'd like to know.

Pasture Worst Since '30's

Nebraska pastures and range-land are in the worst shape since 1934, according to Wally Moline, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension forage specialist.

This is a result of dry weather and overgrazing, he said.

Even with normal rainfall, it would take two years of good management to get the grass back to where it should be, he said.

In the meantime, he suggests supplementing the pastures with seedings of alfalfa, small grains, sudangrass, or millet.

The next move from an annual forage, such as sudangrass, should be to alfalfa, he said.

As the UNL computer program keeps coming out with alfalfa as the best source of protein in feeding rations, farmers are recognizing the tremendous value of the crop, he said.

Consequently, there will be a considerable increase in seedings, especially as new irrigated acres are added, Moline said.

Alfalfa can be established under irrigation as late as June, he said.

Indicative of the interest in the crop is the number of inquiries he has been getting about varieties to plant, he said.

"This is important, since there can be a 20 per cent difference in yields between two varieties," he said.

"The best bet for a Nebraska farmer is to check with his county agent. Each has been provided with a list of varieties and their yields in tests around the state. The farmer can check the list and decide for himself which variety would be best."

But whatever the variety choice is, he insists on certified seed, he said.

Another direction a farmer can go is more intensive production of ensilage, he said.

The tonnage of ensilage harvested in Nebraska has doubled every three years for the past 10 years and is now up to eight million tons per year of corn and sorghum silage, he said.

Harvesting of haylage is also on the increase because it enables farmers and ranchers to get maximum yield and quality, he said.

The least cost protein in a ration is alfalfa, even at hay prices of $40 to $50 per ton, he said.

An added word of advice from Moline on raising alfalfa is to maximize tonnage on present acres before considering seeding more acres.

This means proper fertilization, mostly phosphorus, but also usually potassium and sulphur in sandy soils, he said.

A soil test, specifying that the crop is alfalfa, will guide a farmer in his selection of fertilizer for alfalfa, Moline said.

Farmers with questions about alfalfa can get them answered at the University's Field Laboratory at Mead, starting at 10 a.m. May 11 at the agronomy section, he said.

Tours will inspect variety trials, pest management research, and diseases, he said.

Scientists will be available during an afternoon "skull session" to answer farmers' questions, he said.

FACE FLIES

Face flies which have spent the winter hibernating in attics, between walls and around window casings in houses are now becoming active. With the arrival of warm spring days, the flies are congregating under eaves or on walls and more will enter rooms inside the home.

The first thing you need to do is find the hibernating location. Then use 20 per cent Vapona strips, in attics or other locations where they can be placed.

To "teach" flies between walls or around windows, inject one per cent Vapona solution with an oil can or syringe, or by aerosol. Vapona solutions are sold for fly control on dairy cattle.

FLY CONTROL ON STOCK COWS

Fly control can be a real problem with stock cows. Summer is a busy time and often the farmer won't see his cattle on a regular enough basis to notice a fly problem.

There is a simple and effective method for fly control on stock cows on pasture. The use of either oilers or dust bags charged with methoxychlor will be effective if the bags or oilers are placed properly.

All cattle must be "forced" to use the insecticide daily. This can be done by fencing off the watering area and leaving an opening in the fence so that the animals are forced to come in contact with the insecticide each time they drink water. The oiler or dust bag should be hung so that it is about three or four

FEEDING RUMENSIN

Feeding Rumenin to cattle increases feed efficiency up to 10 per cent or slightly more. It will cost up to 1.5 cents per head daily and should return as much as $6 to $8 per dollar invested in Rumenin.

Rumenin improves feed utilization by increasing energy utilization from rumen fermentation. More efficient utilization of energy reduces the need for feed and therefore intake is usually reduced in finishing rations. Daily gain is approximately the same as controls when recommended levels of Rumenin are fed.

Rumenin does not appear to affect carcass quality. No residue is found in the carcass so no withdrawal period is required before slaughter.

Tree Survival Rules Explained

There are four rules to follow to insure satisfactory survival and growth of trees when you plant them, according to Walter T. Bagley, University of Nebraska-Lincoln associate professor of forestry.

He listed the rules as:

- Site preparation which can serve water and minimize erosion.
- Summer fallow on dryland for one or two seasons may be needed to insure that the soil profile is wet to a depth of at least three feet.
- Cultivated sites should be fallowed with implements designed to keep crop residue on the surface to reduce evaporation and erosion.

Chemical fallow can accomplish the same results and is especially useful on sites not adapted to machine cultivation.

—Proper planting of viable, adapted stock.

Plant with roots hanging down in a natural position and at the same depth as they grew in the nursery, and firm the soil.

—Vegetation management after planting to conserve water and minimize erosion.

Proper and timely stubble mulch cultivation will permit water to penetrate and minimize evaporation.

Plant a cover crop between the rows in late summer to provide wind protection for small trees and extra water from snow accumulation.

Protection from animals.

Fencing can keep cattle out and herbicides and mowing can keep the rodent population down in the cover crop.

Equiballs have been successful in reducing damage by deer. Individual wire mesh enclosures may be needed to protect trees from rabbits, but encoring and protecting coyotes, weasels and hawks can also help.

Providing leafy alfalfa and grain winter feeding stations has been effective in reducing mice and rabbit injury to trees.

Water, rather than fertilizer, is more likely to limit tree survival and growth, Bagley said.

Trees May Become Great Plains Crop

Indications are that trees may some day compete with sorghum, corn, and wheat for acreage in Great Plains region, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln forester said in Denver April 22.

Walter T. Bagley addressed a symposium on "Shelterbelts" in the Great Plains.

"Our quest for alternatives to fossil fuels and other non-renewable resources has focused attention on the importance of trees along with other plants as energy sources."

Wood is an attractive material because of the relatively small amount of energy required in the manufacturing process, he said.

The demand for wood in the United States will double by the year 2000, according to the U.S. Forest Service prediction, he said.

Since there are many reasons why much of the timber land of the world will not contribute to the useable supply of timber, Bagley suggested that research is needed to develop economically viable multiple purpose tree plantations on our better land.

"Shelterbelts and other tree plantations designed for protection and production on fertile irrigated cropland have the potential to make a significant contribution to our energy stockpile," he said.

Apparently shortages have developed in the south, or stumpage prices are lower in the north, because southern pulp and paper mills are now buying trees as far north as Nebraska and Iowa, Bagley said.

The tree resources in the Plains would be considerably increased, he said.

If 10 per cent of the irrigated land in Nebraska were planted to trees in properly designed patterns, it would provide excellent windbreak protection and add more than $200,000 to our timber resources, he said.

Research shows that shelterbelts reduce evaporation demand and minimize plant water stress, he pointed out.

On many farms, the acreage of conventional crops under irrigation would not need to be reduced by adding shelterbelt plantings, since the acreage in trees would simply be added to the acreage under irrigation, he said.

Trees could be watered during the "off" season without jeopardizing the summer crops, he pointed out.

Properly managed, selected trees from such windbreaks could be harvested from time to time without reducing the effectiveness of the planting, he said.

Research needs related to multi-purpose plantings in the Great Plains, he said, include:

- Developing methods and crop combinations which will maximize production of food and fiber with minimum energy expenditure, while minimizing erosion and improving soil productivity.
- Tree selection and breeding for genotypes with potential for improved quality and quantity of food and fiber.
- Developing efficient harvest and transportation methods.
- Finding new uses and products and greater efficiency of use for all tree crops.

Modern Misses

The Modern Misses 4-H Club met in the home of Holly Franz on 13 members and 11 mothers present.

The club discussed the speech contest. Sharon Fleer asked how many members were entering and asked them to read their speeches. Mothers discussed what could be done to improve the speeches and Bev Dangberg helped the members with them.

The club also discussed a float for the Bicentennial parade. Holly gave a demonstration and lunch was served by Mrs. Franz.

The club is inviting all clubs to attend the Modern Misses skating party which will be held May 13 at the Wakefield Skating rink.

Jordan Is Elected President of Kiwanis Club

By a unanimous vote Monday, members of Wayne Kiwanis club elected Bob Jordan as the club's new president for the 1976-77 term.

Jordan, who is serving as president-elect, will take office on Oct. 1, replacing Dan Sherry. Other members elected to take office in October are Deryl Lawrence, president-elect; Lynn Meyer, vice-president; Warren Fairchild, secretary-treasurer; and Dick Armstrong and Charles Surber, who will serve on the board of directors.

During the noon meeting, representatives from Wayne County Farm Bureau, Neil Sandahl and Merle Ring, talked about the role of the Farm Bureau on the state, state and national levels. The Wayne bureau started about 12 years ago with six families, said Ring, whose family was one of the organizers. Now, there are 293 families who makeup the Bureau. Labeled as a non-political and non-sectarian group, the bureau helps farm members solve problems in the agricultural field. Many persons think the Farm Bureau is an insurance company, but that's just an offshoot of the program, Sandahl pointed out.

Actually there are several other programs which bureau members are eligible to take advantage of, he added. Among them are the Young Farmer-Rancher, which helps young persons learn more about farming and ranching through tours of various farms and ranches and Nurse Loan Fund, which offers financial assistance to persons going into nursing.

On the state and national levels, the Bureau has lobby groups in the Unicameral and Senate to help voice the needs of the farmers. The biggest concern of Farm Bureau right now, Ring said, is the relief of the property tax on farmers. In the past, farmers have had to pay tax on their livestock regardless if they made a profit or not on the sale. Gradually, the Nebraska Legislature is changing the tax ing process so that the farmer will pay a sales tax. This will be more fair to the farmer, Ring added. Ring has helped to introduce a bill on the state level which would make it mandatory that all public schools in Nebraska use beef raised in the United States for its lunches, rather than imported beef. The idea has received such a strong recommendation by various other Farm Bureau groups across the nation that the bill now is before the Congress.

Thought for Today By Rowen Witte "Mother is the name for God in the lips and hearts of little children..." William Thackeray To a tiny child, his mother is his world, he provides everything he has or needs... food, shelter, warmth, protection and love. If an infant has a concept of God, it almost certainly is in the image of his mother. As we grow older, our concepts clarify and we realize that our Mothers are not really God after all. But, in times of uncertainty and stress, where can we find more divine characteristics than in Mother, whose love and concern for us is boundless and unending. If it's not too late to do so, let your Mother know that you appreciate all she has done for you.

Scented stamps for Love Letters

Winside Youths Enjoy Hobbies

By PAT OSWALD.

Two young Winside boys share hobby fever and keep busy most of the time, either with their hobbies or by helping others such as senior citizens with yard work or shoveling snow.

Randy and Randy Ritze, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ritze, also have early morning paper routes. Randy participates in track and basketball at school.

David collects stamps, a hobby he started with the help of his mother.

"My mother had a stamp collection and got me started," he said. "She gave me some old United States stamps." Since then, David has collected over 200 stamps from abroad, getting them from relatives and friends stationed in various countries. His first stamps were embossed and already on envelopes.

"My unusual stamps include three dimensional ones and scented stamps from Bhutan, a kingdom in the East Asian Himalayas," David said. The scented stamps are for love letters. The Winside youngster now has over 2,000 stamps in his collection, most from the United States.

After completing his U.S. stamps collection, he hopes to collect more from overseas. His oldest stamp is a one-center of Ben Franklin.

"Stamps vary in prices," he remarked. "Some cost over $300, but I don't have any that are that expensive." The Winside High School freshman also has a variety of airmail stamps in his collection.

Randy, an eighth grader at the Winside Public School, enjoys the coin collection which he began about four years ago. His oldest coin is a 1910 penny and there are several other early 1900 coins in his collection, which now totals 175 coins.

"I get coins from relatives, friends and by watching my own change," he said. His most unusual coin is a 1967 penny with a cross on it and has the saying, "Let Us Pray." Another unusual coin is one printed on the reverse (back) side only.
