The Wayne County Fair at Wayne has received $1,000 from Ak-Sar-Ben, according to president Leland Herman and secretary Marilyn Koch. The money will be matched with local funds and used for construction of an agricultural exhibit building and interior seating, lighting, pen construction and exterior landscaping.

The County Fair Improvement Program, now in its 23rd year, is one of a series of projects of financial assistance to county fairs made possible by funds from Ak-Sar-Ben's annual race meeting, according to J.D. Anderson, chairman of the agricultural committee of the civic organization.

This year Ak-Sar-Ben is revising its program of contributions to Nebraska County Fairs, eliminating the spruce up grant in favor of doubling the building grant to a maximum of $1,000 annually for construction of permanent improvements on the

Democrats Elect Officers

Wayne County Democrats passed a resolution Thursday night calling for the Nebraska legislature to provide the same number of dollars per student for state colleges as is now allocated to the University of Nebraska system.

County chairman Allen O'Donnell, re-elected to that post at the county convention Thursday night, said the university system per student allocation now is about twice the allocation state colleges.

Sylvia Eynon was elected county vice chairman. She and O'Donnell will be delegates to the Democratic First Congressional District convention in Lincoln Sunday, June 13, and at the state convention in Kearney, June 26-27.

They will attempt to place on the Democratic state platform the state college support resolution and two other resolutions passed by local party members. Those resolutions call for

WSC To Host Chamber Coffee

Wayne State College will be host for the June Chamber of Commerce coffee, according to Chamber secretary Howard Witt.

The morning get together for Chamber members will be June 14, in the board of trustees meeting room on the second floor of the Hahn administration building.

Neighbors Give a Hand

The wisdom of this is legendary, but the good will of this is modern. The neighbors of the Hahn administration building gave a hand in the recent fire that destroyed the building. They donated food, clothing and other supplies to the fire victims. The neighbors also helped to clean up the building after the fire. Their help was a great help to the fire victims.

4-H's Preparing for County, District Contests

A professional sheep shearer clipped a couple bags of wool from 4 H lambs Wednesday as Wayne County youngsters weighed in entries for rate of gain contest which will be judged during the county fair in late July.

County agent Don Spitz said over 100 sheep were sheared and weighed, compared to 72 last year. Those animals are 4 H market lamb projects. In addition, Spitz said, about 20 market lambs will be tagged for Ak-Sar-Ben competition, bringing the total for 4 H market lambs to about 125.

Seminar Aims To Prevent Air Accidents

At's Air Service of Wayne, in cooperation with the district safety office of the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) in Lincoln, is holding an aviation safety seminar this Thursday evening in the new Industrial Arts building on the Wayne State College campus.

Allen Robinson, airport manager, said all private pilots are encouraged to attend the 7:30 p.m. meeting.

Robinson said the seminar will deal mainly with the increase in locally based airports, including Pender, Wayne and Hartington, and the additional accident risks these airports are subject to because of the increased flow of air traffic.

NEWLY ELECTED Wayne County Republican party chairman Kent Hall (left) chats with Nebraska Secretary of State Allen Beermann following the GOP county convention Thursday morning. Beermann, guest speaker for the event, said Nebraska will probably have the highest percentage of voter turnout during the 1976 primary elections.

Beermann Says Nebraska Leading in Voter Turnout

Nebraska has a good chance of being the state with the highest percentage of registered voter turnout for the 1976 presidential elections, Secretary of State Allen Beermann said in Wayne Thursday, even though less than half those eligible to vote cast ballots.

Beermann, who addressed Wayne County Republicans Thursday morning during their county convention, said 400,000 Nebraskans went to the polls for the May 11 primary, about 57 per cent of the state's registered voters, but less than half of the 1.1 million Nebraskans eligible to vote.

"That still compares favorably with other states," Beermann said, pointing out that only 14 per cent of the eligible voters in Rhode Island made it to the polls for that state's primary. As things stand now, Nebraska is leading other states in voter turnout, Beermann said, and it looks as if it may maintain that lead.

Voter apathy results in officials being elected by a minority of the populace, he pointed out, adding that Gov. J. James East for example, was elected by 200,000 voters, about one fifth of the potential number of electors.

There are six main reasons people give for not registering to vote, Beermann said. They don't want to serve on juries, they want to avoid creditors, they want to avoid court-mandated payments such as alimony, they don't want their name on any public role, they want to avoid receiving junk mail, or they simply don't care about elections.

Reasons given for not voting are simply excuses as far as the Nebraska secretary of state is concerned. He pointed out that absentee, disabled, and confined ballots are available, so no one really has a reason for not voting.

He contrasted voter apathy in the U.S. with election returns in other countries. Officials from Australia and Uruguay told him voter turnout in their countries is 100 per cent — and for good cause. In those two countries, failure to vote results in a fine and can mean the loss of driving privileges and other civil rights.

"I'm not advocating that for us," Beermann said. "But it does point out some alternatives."

Elections are expensive, costing about $7 for each vote cast more than is spent per capita on highway construction. The per capita cost is high, Beermann said, because expenses are the same, regardless of the number of voters.

Costs could go even higher for Nebraska if some election law changes are made. Beermann said he expects the legislature to consider during its next session a change which would allow crossover voting.

Improvements May Require Tax Statement

Wayne County residents undertaking building improvement projects may need to file an improvement statement for taxing purposes, county assessor Denis Shipp said Friday.

State law requires that improvement information statements be filed with county assessors for projects valued at $1,000 or more.

If a building permit is required for the project, and the permit is filed at the assessor's office, the improvement statement need not be filed.

In Wayne County, the municipalities of Wayne, Winside and Hoskins require building permits and file them with Mrs. Shipp's office. Projects in Carroll and in rural areas require the statement.

Failure to submit the required statement could result in a penalty of from $25 to $250.

July 4th Plan Session Set For Thursday

Three Charged With Pig Theft

Wayne County court judge Joseph Hunker Friday set bond for three men charged with pig stealing and appointed attorney John Addison of Wayne to represent them in court.

Morris Wayman 20, and his brother, Terry Lee Wayman, 17, both of Pender, were apprehended by a Thurston County sheriff's deputy early Friday morning at the junction of Highway 9 and 35 near Pender. The deputy held the two men after discovering in their possession pigs alleged to have been taken from the Brian Kai farm.

Information obtained from the brothers led to the arrest in Pender later Friday morning of Clifford Hurlbert of Neligh. Hurlbert is charged with allegedly taking pigs from the Kai farm May 12 and May 20.

Morris Wayman is charged with three counts of pig stealing, on May 12, May 20, and Friday, May 27.

Capone Brother Was Nebraska Lawman

Most folks who were reading headlines during the prohibition years probably remember Chicago gangster Al Capone, but some Northwest Nebraska residents were better acquainted with his brother, a Nebraska lawman.

Wayne State College professor Dr. Monte McLaws has researched the life of Richard Joseph Hart, the name assumed by James Capone, who ran away from home at an early age, the oldest of nine Capone children. Hart was born in Naples, Italy, settled at Homer in Dakota County, and became a lawman for Nebraska and later, for the federal government.

Dr. McLaws said he will eventually compile the information he has gathered into a biography. He has been active on the lecture circuit during the Bicentennial year, and will address the June 22 meeting of the Wayne County Historical Society.

The impetus of his lecture, Dr. McLaws said, is on the important role of local history, and how it can be preserved to give insight into both local and national historical events.

During his research, McLaws has collected three FBI investigations of Hart in connection with his work as a lawman, about 200 letters to his superiors, newspaper clippings, slides, and photographs, which he will display during his lecture.

The eldest of seven Capone brothers, became known as "Two Gun Hart," not because he wore two pistols as a lawman, McLaws said, but because he was an accomplished pistol marksman with either hand, as well as a "wild west" trick rider.

Hart was town marshal for Homer before becoming a deputy sheriff for the state of Nebraska for a year and a half. He was later hired by the federal government to stop liquor sales to Indians, and work on the Omaha and Winnebago reservations in Nebraska, then in South Dakota and later in Washington and Idaho.

McLaws describes Hart as "not necessarily the white sheep of the Capone family," explaining that while there is no evidence that he was involved in crime, Hart was a tough lawman and his hard-nosed methods resulted in his being fired by both Nebraska and the federal government.

Hart contacted his family in the '40s after Al Capone was released from Alcatraz prison, but his family origin remained a secret until 1951 when he was subpoenaed to testify before a Senate committee.

Course Aims at Smoking Habits

Smokers who would like to quit puffing will be able to get some assistance next week when Pastor L. L. Osborn returns to Wayne for a repeat performance of his five-day plan to quit smoking.

The Seventh Day Adventist pastor conducted a similar course in Wayne last fall, meeting each evening for five days with persons who want to give up smoking.

Sponsored in conjunction with the American Cancer Society, the Seventh Day Adventist five-day system has helped millions of Americans to quit smoking, said Pastor Osborn, who has conducted a number of the courses throughout Northeast Nebraska.

The course will be conducted in Wayne June 14-18, beginning at 7:30 p.m. each evening in the Woman's Club Room in the city auditorium.

'The Problem Is Right Here'

FRAMED by bicycle wheels, Dixon County agent Roy Slottis (left) and Ruth Albrecht of Maqui do some troubleshooting Thursday during the first of a two-day bicycle clinic held at the Northeast Station near Concord. Ruth was one of 20 youngsters from around the area who attended the clinic to get bike riders, some tips on safety, bicycle handling and state laws. Each guiding, extension engineer from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was there to help out. The two-day clinic wasn't all work, though. Activities included overnight camping at the station plus a lake ride the next day.

Sen. Curtis denounces OSHA pamphlet as insult to farmers

The following remarks were made by Nebraska Sen. Carl Curtis and are reprinted from the Congressional Record, where they appear as "Additional Statements" under the heading "OSHA Insults the Farmers and Wastes Their Money."

Sen. Curtis mailed the excerpt along with a copy of the pamphlet "Safety With Beef Cattle" which he addresses in his remarks.

The pamphlet is truly an insult to the American farmer, as well as all American taxpayers. Our thanks to Sen. Curtis for letting us know what the wonderful folks at OSHA do with their time and our money — when they aren't busy harassing businessmen, making up new rules, and handing out citations. — Jim Strayer.

Mr. President, see the Senator rise. See the Senator make a speech. A speech is a group of words put together to make a point. Beware of speeches. They can trip you up. You should post signs when speeches are to be made.

You probably think I have taken leave of my senses. Or you are offended by the childish tone of my opening remarks. I hope you are offended, because that is my reaction to a government pamphlet entitled, "Safety With Beef Cattle."

The pamphlet was issued this year by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration which, in its infinite wisdom, is issuing booklets in lay language for various industries to explain its regulations, because up until now, nothing of an explanatory nature has been available. All OSHA has been coming up with are fines and citations.

Now we have booklets. And what fine pieces of literature they are!

I have in my office about 30 of these booklets put out at government expense by OSHA and the Department of Labor. These publications account for some of the outrageous cost of OSHA to taxpayers. OSHA spent $293.3 million between April 1971 and July 1975, and by some estimates, will spend as much as $116 million this fiscal year.

As far as these pamphlets go, the public is being fleeced. Some of the pamphlets are informative and well-written. Many of them make honest attempts to explain the regulations pertaining to specific industries in language compatible with the technical language of the industry.

So you can imagine my outrage when I realized that only for farmers, only for the food producers of America, is the language used by OSHA so childish, so trite, and so incredibly arrogant and insulting that it nearly leaves me speechless.

In the pamphlets for other industries, the language is comparable to the language of the industry, and the type of print is average. It is the basic size of printing you find in most books and publications.

Then we see the booklet for cattle producers called "Safety With Beef Cattle." The print is huge, the type used in Dick and Jane books for first graders.

And the way the book is written is demeaning.

"Be careful around the farm. Hazards are one of the main causes of accidents. A hazard is anything that is dangerous.

And it goes on in this supercilious tone addressing men who have been farmers and feeders all of their lives, many of them with college degrees in agricultural science.

Does OSHA think these people cannot read?

"Put away tools, equipment and feed when not using them. When floors are wet and slippery with manure, you could have a bad fall. If your ladder is broken, do not climb it."

I am so thankful someone put this into writing, to save our Nation's farmers from further humiliating affronts.

Everyone at OSHA must still think of farmers as "hicks." As an article this week in U.S. News & World Report states:

"The 'hicks' of yesterday is today the most potent force in the entire U.S. economy — producing more, buying more, exporting more goods by far than any other business in the country."

And yet OSHA tells farmers: "Wear clothes that fit right." And to cattle feeders dealing in one of the biggest industries in the country, OSHA says:

"Be careful when you are handling animals. Tired or frightened cattle can bolt and trample you. Be patient, talk softly around the cows. Don't move fast or be loud around them. If they get upset, don't go into the pen with them."

According to U.S. News & World Report:

Total sales of agricultural products abroad this year will bring in an estimated 22 billion dollars — far and away the largest single source of U.S. sales abroad. Chemical exports last year were a distant second at 9 billion."

OSHA does not talk down to chemists, but here is what it says to farmers:

"Many people trip over animals and fall. You can get too tired when working with cattle. Tired people make mistakes and can be hurt." Productivity on family farms outstrips that of every other industry in the country. Each farmer feeds himself and 48 other people. It takes intelligence, hard work, and stamina to run a farm, obviously, more than it takes to write pamphlets for OSHA.

I am outraged at the demeaning tone of the instructions to farmers. I am insulted as a taxpayer that we are paying for these insults.

I understand the pamphlet was prepared by Wayne L. Singleton, extension animal scientist, beef, Purdue University; Kenneth M. Weinfeld, extension veterinarian, Purdue University; and Gay L. White, information specialist, Purdue University. They worked under contract with the U.S. Department of Labor in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

I hope when they did their research they did not, and I quote, "... fall into manure pits. These pits are very dangerous."

STRAYER Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

Left-handed people are in the minority world-wide but they now constitute a majority on the Wayne police force. Keith Adams, newest addition to the force, is a lefty, making it four out of seven on the force. Shouldn't cause any trouble of course, although I did hear Mel "Lefty" Lamb saying something the other day about demanding left-handed holders.

Solar Energy Boom
A big boom is expected in solar-powered heating and cooling systems, according to a market survey by Frost and Sullivan, Inc. of New York City.

According to the Federal Energy administration newsletter, solar energy may be a $10 billion dollar industry by 1985. For the moment, however, the U.S. has only about 200 such houses—most considered experimental.

Tapping sunshine is expensive now, about $20 a watt compared to $1 a watt for nuclear produce electricity, but hope fully, research and wide use could reduce that cost. Still, the sun power industry experience a minor boom in 1975. A total of 717,000 square feet of medium temperature solar collectors were produced, four times the total for 1974.

A collector is the part of a solar heating unit containing air or liquid to absorb the sun's heat. In medium temperature units, the medium is heated to about 180 degrees. An average American household needs about 500 square feet of these collectors to meet heating needs.

The number of firms in this industry rose from 39 in 1974 to 118 last year. So while the solar power industry is still in its infancy, it looks as though more and more Americans will be turning to the sun as a source of home heating energy.

Named to serve on the Board of Directors was Frederick Mann of Wayne. Elected to serve with Mann were the Rev. Al Norden, Lincoln, Larry Matthews, Seward, Ray Gosse, Cedar Bluffs, Leonard Warnock, Plainview, and Fred Hanson, McCook.

Delegates attending the four day meeting refused to condemn two congregations, First Lutheran Church of Omaha and Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church of Fullerton, and their called workers from Concordia Seminary in Exile. District officials were encouraged to continue counseling both pastors and their congregations in an attempt to "achieve synodical certification" for their pastors.

Delegates did, however, announce that the Nebraska District does not provide official endorsement for pastors who have not been certified according to approved synodical procedures.

EXTENSION NOTES

Had Your Milk?
June is Dairy Month, but everyone needs milk all year around. Babies, children, teen agers, adults and senior citizens should all drink milk.

Everyone needs calcium to keep bones and teeth strong and healthy, as well as for other bodily functions. When a person does not get enough calcium in their diet, their body robs calcium from the bones for other uses. Because of this, the bones of older persons become brittle and break easily. More older people break a hip and fall, than fall and break a hip.

What does this have to do with Dairy Month and drinking milk? Milk is the best food source of calcium. Other foods such as dark green leafy vegetables are fair sources of calcium. Milk used in cooking, canned milk, dry milk, cheese and ice cream all count.

It's never too late to start drinking milk. Research has shown that adequate calcium in the diet not only maintains the existing level of calcium, but will slowly reverse this calcium drain.

A Monument to Trees

On their wedding day, Sterling Morton and his bride Caroline left Detroit and headed for the rugged Nebraska Territory.

When they arrived they were greeted by a huge expanse of land without any trees. Among his many interests, Morton was a fiery conservationist and in his frontier newspaper he wrote about the great need to plant trees. The idea took hold, first in Nebraska where Arbor Day was first proclaimed, then all across America. Eventually, foreign countries adopted Arbor Day as their conservationist holiday. Meanwhile Morton and his wife backed up their beliefs by flowing their home into a colorful paradise of trees, flowers and shrubs.

Today you can visit their beautiful home and arboretum at Arbor Lodge at Nebraska City.
