WSC Initiates Energy Drive

By Kathy Mason
WSC Journalism Student
Wayne State College is beginning a dramatic energy conservation program, initiated by WSC administrators after the City of Wayne proposed an increase of 105 per cent on the college's electrical rates.
Wednesday officials of Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) came to the campus to confer with college administrators on ways the college can reduce its electrical rates.
One suggestion is a power shedding device which is attached to high power electrical motors. The device will shut off some motors if total electric use gets too high. Another suggestion is called "waste heat recovery," implemented by a device that recycles used heat.
The college has already begun some of the less complicated ways of saving energy, such as running air conditioners only during office hours, making sure lights are not on unnecessarily, and just making better account of where the electricity is going.

Father's Footsteps Lead to 'Wild Blue'

A 1976 Wayne High graduate Wednesday took the first step in following a path previously taken by her father — one which could eventually lead her into an aircraft cockpit.
Julie Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kay of Wayne, was sworn into the Air Force during ceremonies at the Kay residence in Wayne.
Julie will report Aug. 2 to the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., where she will begin a one-year course in preparation for entry into the academy's four-year bachelor of science and commissioning program.
Her father, a Wayne native and WSC graduate, became director of the Wayne State Foundation in 1972 after retiring from the Air Force as a lieutenant colonel.
Kay completed cadet training and was commissioned in 1952 and then completed pilot training. He spent 14 years of his Air Force career as a helicopter pilot flying rescue missions, including tours in Vietnam.
Julie is one of about 120 high school graduates from across the nation selected to enter the preparatory program. Selection for the prep school is based on the results of tests, and high school activities. Students are prepared to later enter into the Air Force Academy's four-year program leading to a bachelor of science degree and second lieutenant's bar.

JULIE Kay was sworn into the Air Force Wednesday by Lt. Col. Emil Marx. Julie will enter the Air Force Academy prep school in August. Her father, Charles Kay, is director of the Wayne State Foundation, and a retired Air Force officer and pilot.

Hunter Safety Course Planned

Youngsters between the ages of 12 and 15 who plan to do some hunting this fall are required by state law to complete a hunter safety course.
Extension area youth specialist Roy Stohler will conduct a hunter safety certification course beginning Wednesday at 6 p.m. at the Northeast Station near Concord.
Other dates for the three day session are July 20, 8 p.m., and July 28, 6 p.m. Attendance at all three sessions is required for certification unless other arrangements are made. Youngsters completing the course will receive a hunter safety patch.
"Hunter safety training is definitely a step in the right direction toward eliminating hunting accidents, improving the hunter's image, and introducing a positive approach to ward shooting," Stohler said.

CITY WORKER climbs a pole while working on transformers in the electrical distribution system. The City of Wayne is now in the process of increasing the capacity of the system to deliver power. Under a capacity-leasing agreement with the Nebraska Public Power District, that should eventually put additional dollars in the city coffers.

Keeping the Lights On

Budget, Bottle Shop on Wayne Council Agenda

The Wayne city council is expected to arrive at a final budget proposal for fiscal 1977 during their regular meeting Tuesday night.
The council met July 3 to begin work on the budget. City administrator Fred Brink presented his proposal totaling $5.55 million at that time, including about $600,000 for increasing the capacity for the city electrical system and $290,000 for a proposed project to cover an open storm sewer.
A public hearing on the final budget proposal is tentatively scheduled for the council's regular meeting July 27.
The only public hearing included on Tuesday's agenda concerns a Class C liquor license application, this one a repeat.
The council previously voted to recommend against granting a Class C license to Wayne Liquors. The Bottle Shop, retail outlet for the firm, is located on Main St. on a commercial zone, but adjacent to a residential zone. Some city officials objected to the license, which would allow proprietor Doug Finn to add on sale service to his package liquor operation, because some nearby residents said they didn't want a bar located that close to their homes.
Other egg eaters included Harry Mills, Herman Utecht, Terry Nicholson, Mrs. Dennis Carlson and Renee Wilson.
Wayne's Legion team defeated the Wayne team 3-2 in the final inning of play in a game that evening.
Festivities closed with the ringing of the colors and a prayer by the Rev. Robert V. Johnson, pastor of the Salem Lutheran Church in Wayne.
The grand finale to the day's activities, for young and old alike, was the lighting of fireworks at the ballpark that evening.

The council later changed its mind, but the official recommendation could not be reversed. Based on the recommendation, the state liquor control commission voted against granting the license. The council will now be called upon to vote again on whether or not to recommend granting of the license.
Other agenda items include a resolution to direct installation of sidewalks north from Villa Wayne, and a resolution to direct adoption of new electrical rates.

Horse Show Leads Laurel Event

Laurel's two-day Bicentennial celebration will begin July 22 with a 4-H horse show and achievement night in the arena just off Highway 20, from 5 to 7 p.m.
A special pageant will be presented from 3 to 5, depicting the early settlement of Laurel. An old fashion band concert and songfest will be offered along with the pageant.
Things will get a little wet after that, at least for contestants in the swimming meet, beginning at 5 p.m. at the Laurel pool, and the water fight sponsored by the Laurel fire department at 7.
Anyone wishing to enter the swimming competition can do so by contacting employees at the swimming pool.
The Friday festivities will also include a baseball game between Laurel and Wisner, followed by fireworks at the ball park.
A square dance sponsored by the Laurel Square Dance Club is also planned for Friday evening, July 23.

Wakefield Celebrates Fourth

An Almost Anything Egg eating contest, baseball games and fireworks display drew a crowd of several hundred persons last Sunday during Wakefield's Fourth of July celebration.
Following an opening ceremony marking the nation's 200th birthday, Wakefield Aids gets took on the Wayne team for a baseball game at the Wakefield park. The game ended with Wakefield defeating Wayne 5-4.
Then it was time for local residents to test their appetites and running, driving and tossing abilities at the Almost Anything Eggs contest got underway.
Four teams, captained by Ron Ring, Jim Clark, Steve Greve and Susie Kober, competed against each other in a variety of events, including a breakfast relay, back seat driver contest, 20leg race, fresh egg throwing contest and water balloon race.
The Yankee Doodle team, headed by Miss Kober, captured 13 eggs during the contest. Other members of the team were Tammy Schroeder, Mary Kober, Keith Siebrandt, Cindy Keagle, Judy Gustafson, Lynn Holm, Roger Gustafson, Sam Utecht, Mark Kober, Steve Sorensen and Doug Fischer.
The Ready Mix Wrestlers, including Steve Greve, Loren Victor, Kurt Dolph, Chuck Leonard, Bill Newton, Brian Newton, Pat Nicholson and Ken Dolph, took the top prize money in the tug of war contest.
Other teams competing in the tugging contest were Wakefield National Bank, Busby Veterinary Clinic, Farmers Elevator, The Wakefield Republican, Big Red teams 1 and 2, Eaton Nursery, Salmon Well Co., Iron Men, Schmidt Trucking, The Lounge, Dr. MacDonald's Feed, Felco, Sampson Oil and Murfin Welding.

Census Bureau Plans Survey

Census Bureau representatives will conduct a survey of employment in the Wayne area July 19-24, according to regional director Richard Burt.
The survey, conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor, will sample about 70,000 households throughout the U.S. Statistics obtained during the survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.
The field has 2,900 feet of paved runway and 2,000 feet of grass runway. Wayne is listed as a general purpose airport, but according to criteria, should have 4,200 feet of paved runway to qualify for the rating.
Robinson, with more than 20 years flying experience, is qualified as an instructor for commercial, instrument and helicopter licenses for both single and multi-engine aircraft, has a seaplane pilot's license, and is certified as an airframe and power plant mechanic with an endorsement as an inspector.
The growing airport operation could probably be expanded more if facilities were available, Robinson said about $4,000 in aircraft maintenance was added up to other airports in June and he would consider hiring a mechanic if adequate maintenance facilities were available.
Available runway also limits use of the airport somewhat.

Airport Is Vital Link In Wayne Development Effort

The general aviation industry — flying excluding the military, and major airlines — has grown tremendously in recent years and the trend is reflected at Wayne's municipal airport.
Services offered at the airport include flight instruction for private, commercial and instrument licenses, single engine air taxi service, aircraft maintenance, fuel, and hangar space for about 20 aircraft.
All available hangar space is currently rented with a total of 21 aircraft based at the airfield, including two helicopters belonging to the Madison County Civil Defense organization.
The number of aircraft represents a tremendous increase in activity for the Wayne airfield over the past 18 months. When Al Robinson took over as airport manager in 1972, there were 173 hangars, there housed only 15 planes including the two helicopters.
The total number of privately owned planes kept at the airport effective January 1 was 16. Value of those aircraft, according to records kept by the county assessor, is $101,300. Based on the 1975 consolidated mill levy — 78.06 — taxes paid on the aircraft would total $2,767.62.
In addition to the number of planes based at the local airport, consumption of aviation fuel also provides a yardstick for measuring the increase in activity.
According to records supplied by Neska Oil Corporation of Pender, 12,100 gallons of aviation gasoline were supplied the airport in 1974, and 16,200 gallons were pumped in 1976.
"With the year only half over, 11,000 gallons have been consumed at the airport and an additional 10,000 gallons are on order for a total of 21,000 during the first six months of 1976.
Flight instruction is also a good indicator of local interest in flying. In 1975, 11 fledgling pilots at the Wayne airport made their first solo flight. The figure for the first half of 1976 is 13, and Robinson expects 11 students to earn their private pilot's license within the next couple of months. Total number of new pilots by the end of the year should reach 17, Robinson said. If students now taking flying lessons progress at the normal pace, average time for qualifying for a private license is eight months.

In addition to flight instruction, Robinson also operates an air taxi service and during the past year has transported passengers to Oklahoma, Minnesota, Michigan, South Dakota, Chicago, St. Louis and Denver.
The increase in flight instruction and addition of the air taxi has meant a considerable amount of flying time. Robinson and his stepson, who joined the operation in February, Robinson has logged 215 flight hours since the first of the year, and Howell has chalked up 190 hours since his move to Wayne.

way manual used by aviators. Robinson said that, from a pilot's point of view, that would "put Wayne on the map" and increased use by pilots in transit could be expected.
The airport authority has voted to request a budget for fiscal 1977 of $41,839.25. Projected revenue from hangar rental and state tax reimbursements, however, would account for $27,766 of that amount, leaving only $14,073.17 to be provided through the city property tax mill levy. The airport authority, formed a year ago, inherited some $30,000 in indebtedness incurred previously for improvements. Chairman Frank Prather said that if the proposed budget is approved, and budgeting continues at that level, those debts would be paid in about three years. He said the airport authority now feels debts should be paid before any major improvements are considered.

OBSERVATIONS

Return to sanity?

It's probably too early for high hopes, but it's beginning to look like the nation might regain its collective sanity and start applying common sense in conducting its affairs.

The Supreme Court ended June by striking down a gag order imposed in a Nebraska murder case and indicated that "barriers... remain high" against such actions.

At the same time, the Senate voted to exempt farmers with small numbers of employees from OSHA regulations. We're assuming that means, at least, that farmers are freed from the specter of towing a portable toilet behind their tractors in order to conform with one of the more recent brainstorms by the OSHA whiz kids.

Then, on July 2, the Supreme Court upheld the death penalty as constitutional if proper standards are applied. The court, in a 7-2 vote, said death for murder is not a cruel and unusual punishment as prohibited by the Constitution, but said judges and juries must be required to consider the character and record of the defendant.

Tuesday, the court ruled that a defendant will not challenge his state court criminal conviction in federal courts on grounds police illegally obtained evidence used at his trial.

Omaha police chief Richard Anderson summed the ruling when he said he views the decision as "a big step back to state 'states' rights in these matters."

Finally, on Wednesday, President Ford suspended a ruling that father-son or mother-daughter school events violate civil rights sex discrimination laws.

The Department of Health Education and Welfare has suspended the ruling pending further research by lawyers on whether the practice violates Title IX of the Civil Rights Act.

If the trend develops and continues long enough, we might eventually be able to extricate ourselves from the tangle of government regulations which has been growing at an alarming rate in recent years. — Jim Strayer.

Senator sends Congratulations

South Sioux City J. Alan Cramer, publisher, Dear Al,

Just a brief note of congratulations on your 100th birthday celebration. I hope you enjoy continued success in the publishing business.

Caution urged

Dear Editor:

The truth and a personal, confidential consultation with a doctor or surgeon could well be the most important minutes in a person's life.

The consequences which sometimes follow unnecessary surgery are innumerable. Catastrophic disability, spinal cord injury, scar tissue, inability to walk, loss of balance, loss of control over internal functions, loss of sensation below level of injury, gradual deterioration of muscles and nerves, confinement to a wheelchair, are often complications and risks of surgery.

Needless surgery can mean a threat of turning a lesser injury into a permanent disability. It can also change normal health into a life-long existence of discomfort, pain and misery. Under the doctrine of informed consent a patient may sue for malpractice if a doctor who operates on him without disclosing the risks incurred and possible alternatives. — Arthur E. Carlson.

Liked special issue

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the many residents of the Wayne Care Centre, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the reporters, staff and advertisers who made the Bicentennial edition of The Wayne Herald possible.

Though I personally enjoyed it very much, the smiles it brought to the wrinkled faces of the aged, were a picture, I believe, of the issue recaptured many of the elusive memories of their youth.

To the younger generations it was interesting from a historical view point, to the aged, these were irreplaceable pictures of their youth. — Timothy Boyle, administrator, Wayne Care Centre.

STRAY Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

It's been a couple of weeks since this column appeared and they've been busy ones.

Most of the "busy" came from the Bicentennial events. Roberta Wette, Wayne's Bicentennial chairman, certainly deserves the thanks of the community for the work she did in coordinating and planning the celebration. Countless others worked hard to make the celebration a success and while I can't name them all here, they deserve praise, too. But I think Roberta did an exceptional job as chairman and deserves special credit.

Allen and Wakefield celebrations were also great successes. Between covering the three communities, it made for a busy, and pleasurable weekend for the news staff.

I'd also like to thank everyone who came to The Wayne Herald barbecue. Compliments to the chef, incidentally, go to Vel's Bakery.

Pleasant Task

One of the most pleasant tasks I had during the celebration was helping choose the Wayne County Bicentennial teen queen.

It wasn't easy, however. We had 16 excellent candidates to choose from, and picking a winner was tough. Congratulations go to Dawn Kinslow of Wayne who, along with attendants Tami Kohl of Winside and Judy Janke of Wayne, did a terrific job representing the county in the Saturday parade.

Teacher Resigns

In the rush wrap up coverage following a Monday holiday, I failed to include one story in the last issue. Wayne High biology teacher Verne Mills has resigned from the faculty to accept a position in Kalamazoo (Mich) Community College.

In addition to his teaching duties, Verne has been a leader in local environmental activities. He instituted summer courses for study of the environment in Northeast Nebraska, and his departure from Wayne will leave a vacancy on the board of directors of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

Stuart Man Hired

A Stuart native, Leigh Mueller, was approved last week by the board of education to replace Mills on the Wayne High faculty.

Mueller is a graduate of South Dakota State University Springfield and has taken graduate courses at Black Hills State College at Spearfish, S.D., Colorado State at Ft. Collins, and Central State University at Wilberforce, Ohio.

Employed for the past eight years at Keya Paha County High School Springview, Mueller is an experiential biology and science teacher and football coach.

He and Mrs. Mueller and their three children plan to move to Wayne August.

Recreation Program Successful

The Wayne park recreation program has had a great success this summer. Attendance at the first session was 230, total of 131 children are attending second session which ends July 16.

Roadside hazards serious

Roadside hazards can be a serious factor in automobile accidents. Last year in Nebraska 23 per cent of all fatalities resulted from hitting a fixed object along the roadside.

Common roadside objects that are all familiar with are bridge abutments, poles, culvert markers, signs and sometimes even a tree or mailbox support.

Another roadside hazard that many motorists may not think about is the pivotal irrigation system that dots farms across Nebraska.

Although the irrigation systems aren't necessarily fixed objects, they can be come a roadside hazard. These systems spray large amounts of water across roadways making slick spots that motorists aren't expecting. The excess water on the roadway can cause a slide or skid that may put the unprepared driver in the ditch — or into oncoming traffic.

The Nebraska Highway Safety Program advises that whenever motorists approach an irrigation system that could cause conditions, the driver should use extreme caution. Slow down and be prepared for possible hazardous conditions. — Nebraska Highway Safety Program.

Madden noted recently, "As workers slung by rising taxes press for higher salaries, inflation has risen from two per cent a year in the mid-1930s to 25 per cent today."

"Even though taxes have financed a big growth in public goods, people still like in practice to use their own money, and don't like to pay taxes so government can control 56 per cent of the GNP."

American taxpayers are rapidly being led down the same road, as advocates of big government in Washington persist in efforts to expand the government's role in the economy.

Congress recently agreed to a spending target of $113.3 billion for the 1977 budget year, starting Oct. 1, which is $17.5 billion higher than advocated by President Ford and which creates a deficit of $5.8 billion. The deficit for the current year will be about $7.4 billion.

Meanwhile, the national debt will soon pass the $700 billion mark and go upwards of $45 billion in interest charges alone.

The cost of the Congress targeted budget per U.S. household is $5,533, the largest single item in the family budget. The deficit alone is $679 per household.

How far can we go down this road? Certainly not as far as Great Britain

Great Britain provides good lesson

Have you ever heard of the "arithmetic of happiness?"

It has to do with the work of economists who study the redistribution of income — largely by means of government social welfare programs — and who try to compute what is to be taken from those in the upper income brackets and given to those in lower income brackets.

The figures don't always add up.

Today, more than half of all federal government expenditures are on social welfare programs. Social welfare embraces social insurance, such as Social Security, public aid, health and medical programs, veterans' benefits, education and housing and other similar activities.

Taken together they represent government efforts to achieve social equity by providing means for all Americans to get a good start in life through education and to enjoy some measure of security against the risks of our complex industrial and urban life.

From 1965 to 1973 the cost of social welfare programs nearly tripled, from $77 billion to $215 billion.

The difficult question arises as to how far the productive resources of a nation can be stretched to achieve the purposes of open ended social welfare programs.

But there definitely are limits that can serve as warnings, it is pointed out by Dr. Carl H. Madden, chief economist for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who cites Britain's experience of the past two decades.

In Britain two decades of soaking the rich has left little to soak. Dr. Madden says. The government, in effect, rakes in 56 per cent of the Gross National Product, which is a measure of the nation's goods and services, and redistributes it by means of programs which fall under the umbrella, social welfare.

"Taxes take 25 per cent today of the average worker's salary, up from a negligible percentage in 1963," Dr.

Out of Old

It is the principle of all free governments that the people rule; and as all the people must be subject to the laws, all — including women — should have a voice in their formation. Expanding this novel theory before the Nebraska Territorial Legislature in Omaha on Jan. 8, 1856, was Mrs. Amelia Bloomer of Council Bluffs, recognized orator and exponent of women's rights and freedom in dress.

She was there on the invitation of the legislators — an unusual development itself — to speak on the topic, "Women's Right of Franchise."

The hall was crowded with visitors, many of them curious about her "bloomer" costume — named for the wearer herself — a divided skirt arrangement which billowed around each leg. It was daring attire for the time. She spoke with assurance, dignity, and eloquence, judging from the accolades she received in the local press. The Chronoscope of Council Bluffs said, "A man could not have beat it." The Nebraskan of Omaha thought she was "very much a gentleman." But the franchise and other reforms she suggested were not according to women until many decades had passed, and there are today feminist movements still lobbying for women's rights.

Mrs. Bloomer said that women should not only vote but enter into the law-making and administration processes of government. She concluded her talk by stating, "The enfranchisement of women will be attended with the happiest results — not for her only, but for the whole race. It will place society upon a higher moral and social elevation than it has ever attained."

In mid-March Mrs. Bloomer again took the platform to talk on her various reforms before the Library Association. (Other speakers that year had been General J.M. Thayer on "Free Thought" and J.M. Woolworth on "Emigration.") This time her press notices were not so flattering.

The Omaha Times said she made "some assertions rather too broad for us to sanction. First, because we do not think her physical development equal to the task; secondly, because we do not believe such to have been the design of her Creator; and thirdly, because we love her best as a woman." We most heartily endorse the sentiments of the lecture — that woman should not be looked upon as a drudge or mere plaything — and we desire to see them elevated to that position which is their right — that of companions — but the rugged duties of life belong to man, and to him alone."

Down at Nebraska City, obviously taking a pot shot at Mrs. Bloomer, the News said, "Ladly orators are wont to plume themselves on their large audience — as if the public interest was in the subject — or in the oratrix as a person of eloquence, whereas, in fact simple curiosity is the motive which draws nine men in ten, and twelve women in a dozen — to hear a hen crow."

Other interesting articles about early feminist efforts are today being filed at the Nebraska State Historical Society.

Winside's 18 and under girls softball team kept its win streak alive Wednesday by beating Wayne girls, 9-6.

The victory pushed Winside's mark to 8-0 with two games against Laurel left before the area team may claim the title in the Ralph Bishop League.

Wayne cut the lead to 7-6 with four big runs off four singles and a double. Winside added two runs in the top of the fifth, then held on.

For Wayne, the loss was its third in five starts.

Wayne's victory was peppered by 12 hits, including three base hits by Lisa Nuss.

Testament of a Fisherman

A fish because I love to, because I love the environs where fish are found, which are invariably beautiful, and hate the environs where crowds of people are found, which are invariably ugly.

Because of all the television commercials, cocktail parties, and assorted social posturing I thus-escape.

Because in a world where most men seem to spend their lives doing things they hate, my fishing is at once an endless source of delight and an act of small rebellion.

Because fish do not lie or cheat and cannot be bought or bribed or impressed by power, but respond only to quietude and humility and endless patience.

Because I suspect that men are going along this way for the last time, and I for one don't want to waste the trip.

Because mercifully there are no telephones on fishing waters.

Because only in the woods can I find solitude without loneliness.

Because bourbon out of an old tin cup always tastes better out there.

Because maybe one day I will catch a mermaid.

And, finally, not because I regard fishing as being so terribly important but because I suspect that so many of the other concerns of men are equally unimportant - and not nearly so much fun.

Ponies Hand Wakefield 3-2 Setback

Wayne's Ponies nipped Wakefield 3-2 Thursday for remains undefeated and sole owner of first place in the Ralph Bishop League.

A two out single by first baseman Jeff Zeiss in the bottom of the fifth scored Jeff Sperry from third to destroy Wakefield's hopes of also staying unbeaten and in first place in the league.

Behind the three-hit pitching of Dean Carroll, Wayne pushed its record to 8-0. Wakefield slipped to 8-1.

The locals cashed in two runs in the opening frame off Zeiss' two-run homer. Wakefield answered back with one run in its half of the first when shortstop Rick Guy singled and later scored on an error.

Wakefield knotted the game in the fourth when Tom Preston, who got in via a base hit, stole second and scored on Barry Jones' sacrifice.

Recapping earlier games, Wayne's record against Wakefield is 11-1. Winside 6-0, ripped Carroll, 12-1 and got by Emerson, 8-3.

Trapping, Banding Doves Is Underway

Biologists for the Game and Parks Commission are busy trapping and banding doves in preparation for the upcoming dove season.

According to Bob Havel, Game biologist for Northeast Nebraska, it is hoped that 4,200 doves will be trapped and banded in the state this summer, with hopefully 300 being banded in Northeast Nebraska.

The primary purpose of the trapping and banding, Havel said, "is to gather information on harvest, migratory patterns and mortality of the dove. Band returns in the past have indicated that Nebraska reared birds are harvested by sportsmen in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and as far as Mexico and Latin American."

Although many Nebraskans don't recognize the dove as a game bird, the dove is the nation's No. one game bird by actual harvest figure. It is now hunted in 21 states and provides recreational opportunity for roughly two million hunters annually.

Nebraskans should be looking forward to the upcoming dove season. Early fall is a good time to be afield and dove hunting represents an excellent family activity with wife or son. It also is an outstanding time to teach a young boy sportsmanship and the proper way to handle a firearm.

JEFF ZEISS' helty swing Thursday resulted in a base hit to score teammate Jeff Sperry from third and gave Wayne Ponies a 3-2 victory over previously undefeated Wakefield. Wayne now moves to the top of the pack in the Ralph Bishop League with an 8-0 mark.

Center fielder Doug Vorplank, who had two run-scoring base hits, drove in another run in the third after Nixon came home on a wild throw.

Pat McCright scored twice for Wayne, including one run in the two-run fifth inning.

Restraint Is Important In Lawn Care

As summer approaches and daily temperatures exceed 90 degrees Fahrenheit and nightly low temperatures hover around 70 degrees F., the quality and performance of many Nebraska lawns begin to decline.

This is because most lawns are comprised of cool season turfgrasses such as Kentucky bluegrass. Kentucky bluegrass prefers soil temperatures ranging between 60 and 70 degrees F. for optimum growth. As the daily temperatures climb into the 80's and 90's a general decline in turfgrass performance occurs due to high temperature stress.

What can be done to improve turfgrass growth during high temperature periods? There are a few management practices that enhance turfgrass growing conditions during the warm summer months. However, one of the best rules of thumb is to practice restraint. Avoid trying to force the grass at this time. Most of the management needed to improve turfgrass quality and performance during high temperature stress periods should have been done in the spring and fall when cool weather is more conducive to growth of Kentucky bluegrass.

In some cases in Nebraska, warm season turfgrasses such as zoysia are grown. Different management techniques should be used on the warm season species. Early to midsummer is the time to promote their growth.

...our dollar spent at home does a $4 or $5 job for our community (all of us)

Some dollars that get into our local moneystream will pass through ten or a dozen hands before getting swapped for something or some service somewhere else. Others get carried away sooner. Money experts say the average turnover of dollars in a community like ours is four or five times.

Which means that $1 which is carried off somewhere else before its time will take away with it $4 or $5 in trade, wages, local taxes, bank deposits and other enrichment.

HUNTING FOR TREASURES
If you need new furniture, but feel the pinch in your pocket, it's time to go hunting! An old Parson's table covered with multi-colored paint spots and two inches of dust may be hiding in a corner of your attic, and you might find a slightly battered barrel top trunk at the local goodwill store.
There is hope for discarded items, if you have an open mind. You must see something not for what it is, but for what it could become.
A few tips would help you get the most for your money when buying secondhand furniture. Bargain antiques and other unloved rejects may be found at garage sales, church bazaars, junk dealers, flea markets, auction, attics and basements. You might even try the city dump.
It would help to know a few characteristics of historic styles. Don't get stuck paying an outrageous price for a piece that's only a cheap reproduction.

Be sure to select furniture in good condition. It's not worth it if the piece costs as much as the original price to repair. Also, think twice before attempting to repair a popped spring of patch a large dent, unless you know what you are doing.
Non-upholstered furniture is relatively easy to examine. Points to look for are finish, sturdiness, screws instead of nails, and dust panels between drawers.
Secondhand upholstered pieces can be misleading, since many parts are hidden. Check the exposed sections first. If they are in good shape, chances are the inside springs, filler, etc. are too.
The challenge and fun is yours when choosing old furniture. Your recycled pieces will no doubt be more meaningful, as they best represent your taste, time, and skills.

In California, it was estimated that passage of Proposition 13 restricting the development of nuclear power generating plants would add one million people to the unemployment rolls in that state between 1980 and 1990. The California Economic Development Commission said, "The adoption of Proposition 13 would substantially inhibit future economic growth in California and would represent a disaster for the working men and women of this state."

Report Shows State Farm Exports Doing Well

The value of the exports of agriculture commodities from Nebraska's farms and ranches continued to hold up well during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1975.

Writing in the July issue of "Business in Nebraska," the monthly publication of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Dr. Edward L. Haus, wahl associate director, reports that preliminary figures released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture show that both 1974 and 1975 were excellent years for exporting the states' agricultural products.

Export sales in 1975 were at nearly $910 million, or at a level 76 per cent above that of 1973. However, the total dollar volume of 1975 exports originating in Nebraska fell by about four per cent from 1974. Nebraska's $910 million volume represented about four per cent of the U.S. volume and 14 per cent of the combined volume of a seven-state West-North Central region.

From 1973 to 1975, Nebraska experienced the greatest percentage increase in total exports of any of the state of the West-North Central region. Also, of the state decline in exports from 1974 to 1975, Nebraska's four per cent drop was the smallest.

Closely following Nebraska's upward movement was Kansas which, although having a much larger volume, gained relatively about the same as Nebraska. Nebraska's gain improved the state's position in the region, with its share of regional exports rising from 12 per cent in 1973 to 14 per cent in 1975. This was during a period when the region's share of U.S. exports was declining from 34 to 32 per cent. Thus during this period, Nebraska has enhanced its already strong position, both in the region and the nation, as an exporter of agricultural products.

The feed grain group, with 43 per cent of the state's export value, and the wheat group, with 31 per cent, together contributed nearly three-fourths of the value of the state's export sales in 1975. They had combined shares amounting to 72 to 77 per cent in 1973 and 1974.

Exports of meat and meat products contributed less than three per cent of the total in 1974 and 1975. This was not because of any decline in absolute amount of such exports, but rather because of failure to keep up with the expansion of exports in other commodity groups. When meat and meat products are combined, however, with lard and tallow (3.8 per cent) and hides and skins (2.4 per cent), about nine per cent of the state's total exports come from the animals grown or processed in the state. Some decline has occurred, however, in the relative importance of this group, which has seen its share drop from 12 per cent in 1973.

It is too early to be able to report on the state's export activity for the period ending June 30, 1976. Developments at the national level, however, can be viewed as highly relevant and indicative of what is to be in store for the state's agricultural products producers. One writer in the June 1976 issue of Agricultural Outlook, a publication of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, was of the opinion that "U.S. agricultural exports are now expected to total about $21.9 billion in fiscal 1976, slightly above the $21.6 billion of fiscal 1975. Expected record feed grain, wheat, and soybean exports will make up the increase and will represent about 90 per cent of the total tonnage of U.S. exports."

Speedy Breakfast

MOST PERSONS wouldn't find breakfast too enjoyable if they were carried to the table in a wheelbarrow and forced to gulp down the meal in a matter of seconds. But that's just what Guy Gard, seated, had to do to help his team pick up a few points during the breakfast relay of the Almost Anything Goes contest at Wakefield last Sunday. Coaching Gard is teammate Cindy Johnson.

Breakfast Was Never Like This

SUSIE KOBER, right, and Carol Clark aren't fixing a leisurely breakfast at home. They're in the middle of the Wakefield ballpark racing against each other to prepare a plate of breakfast and pour a cup of juice to take back to the male teammate who must eat the meal, drink the juice, jump in a wheelbarrow and be hauled back to the starting line before his opponent. The breakfast relay was just one in a series of events during the Almost Anything Goes contest, part of Wakefield's Fourth of July celebration last Sunday.
