Local Youths Win Big At Nebraska State Fair

Dixon County team members won the top three places enroute to the county's second-straight team championship in the Nebraska State Fair 4-H grass and weed identification contest Saturday.

The Dixon County team of Vern George of Dixon, Roger Stage of Laurel and Lori Von Minden of Allen received a score of 290 out of a possible 252 points.

The Adams County team took second place with 208 points. Lancaster County's team took third with 184 points.

Fourth place went to York County with a score of 177 points. A second team from Lancaster County won fifth place with a total of 164 points.

Individual top 10 scores were: Roger Stage, 75 points; Lori Von Minden, 74 points; Doug Nienhueser, 73; Brian Stonecipher, 70; Soil Vollman, 69; Darryl Torske, 65; Sheir Vollmar, 61; Tim Trumble of Springfield, representing Sarpy County, 59; Steve Costello, 59; and Kim Siebert, 58.

The top possible individual point total was 84.

Anna Borg of Dixon was one of three Nebraska 4-Hers to win a trophy in the horticulture division. Her entry was a box of plants in a cast-iron tuffite.

The Wayne County 4-H dairy judging team placed fifth, and team member Kris Anderson was ninth in the individual standings.

Other state fair results include:

My, How Times Have Changed

Times have changed for Wayne State College students, a look at an 1899 enrollment card reveals.

The former Nettie Kilion of Wakefield, now Mrs. R.A. Bunn of Beaverton, Ore., first enrolled at Nebraska Normal College in the last year of the 19th century. Her brother, Jewell Kilion of Wakefield, recently visited the 92-year-old Wayne graduate, and returned with a copy of her original enrollment card.

Instructions on the card are: 1. Show this card to teachers on entering class. 2. No student should be absent from any class or chapel exercises without an excuse from the President (who was J.M. Pile). 3. Money may be left on deposit with the President of the College or with any of the city banks. 4. No student will be allowed to drop a study or take up any study without permission of the President.

That probably doesn't sound too stiff when compared with today. But reasons for which the card could be revoked include: 1. Absent from classes without a proper excuse. 2. Visiting halls of saloons. 3. Visiting dances. 4. Any conduct not proper for ladies and gentlemen.

If that makes it sound like social life might have been a bit dreary compared with today's standards, there are a couple of provisions which might sound pretty good if reinstated today. The term was 10 weeks long then. Tuition was $1.25 a week, and room and board, "if not paid in advance" cost $2.40 a week.

Electric Leases Yield Dollars for Communities

Nebraska communities have realized $1,536,736 as a result of agreements leasing their electrical distribution systems to the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD), according to Ralph Beerman of Dakota City, member of the NPPD board, of directors.

Area communities included receiving money as part of the annual payments made by NPPD under terms of the lease agreements are Allen, $2,911; Belden, $1,281; Concord, $1,135; and Dixon, $696.

The payments were made for the first half of 1976, Beerman said. Communities may use the money as they wish.

NPPD operates the electrical system and makes all additions and improvements to the property to maintain efficient service in communities under the leasing agreement. The power company pays the communities 10 per cent of the adjusted gross revenues realized within the corporate limits.

The money turned over to the communities does not include the annual five per cent in lieu of tax payments required by Nebraska statutes.

In addition to the money returned to the communities, the leasing agreements provide for a one-third discount on the electricity consumed by governmental agencies within the corporate limits.

Local Enrollment Is Down

Total enrollment for elementary students in the Wayne-Carroll school system is higher than last year, but below the 1974 level.

Both the Middle School and High School show a continuing trend toward declining numbers, as does the system overall.

The Carroll elementary school has 25 students this year, one less than a year ago and nine below the 1974 enrollment figure.

The Wayne elementary school has 252 students, compared with 237 in 1975 and 248 in 1974. Total elementary enrollment is 277,

Court Awards Back Pay To WSC Ex-Professor

A college professor dismissed from Wayne State College has been awarded a year's back salary by a district judge.

The Associated Press reported that district judge William Blue ruled that Robert Brady is entitled to $10,400 as payment for the salary he lost during the 1973-74 school year.

Brady was dismissed in June, 1973, in an attempt to reduce operating costs after the legislature cut the WSC budget.

Brady appealed to Lancaster County District Court in July 1975. Blue ruled against Brady and for the college.

Brady appealed to the Nebraska Supreme Court. The high court ordered the district court to make a damage award to Brady.

'Chip' Carter Visit Is Called Off

Jimmy Carter's son 'Chip' was scheduled to speak in Wayne Thursday during a tour of Nebraska, but that appearance has been canceled according to Wayne County Democratic party chairman and state committee man Allen O'Donnell.

The younger Carter was scheduled to speak Thursday afternoon in the Wayne State College Student Union as part of his father's presidential campaign.

O'Donnell said filming requirements of a CBS news team accompanying the tour dictated dropping the Wayne stop from the tour, so Carter could speak longer elsewhere.

The candidate's son is scheduled to arrive in western Nebraska Wednesday with stops at North Platte and Kearney. Thursday he will speak in Norfolk, at the Iowa Beef Producers plant in Dakota City, and will attend a picnic rally beginning at 6 p.m. at Scentic Park in South Sioux City.

O'Donnell said tentative plans are to reschedule the Wayne visit for sometime in October.

Pender Is Host For Hog Show

The Pender Livestock Auction Market will be the location for the Northeast Market Hog Show, Sept. 18.

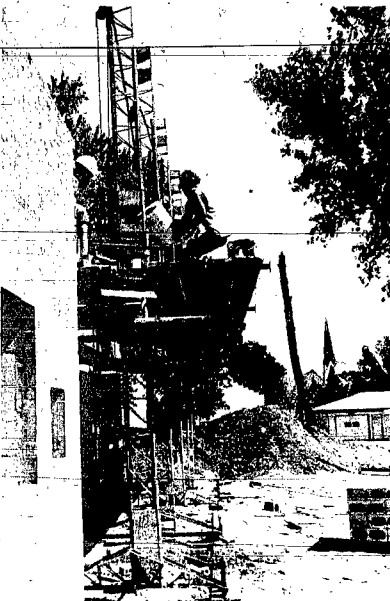

The contest is open to pork producers, 4-H and FFA members from Dixon, Dakota, Thurston and Wayne Counties. Over $300 in trophies and premiums will be awarded.

The competition will immediately follow a judging contest. The judging contest will consist of 4-H FFA and adult divisions with awards in each.

Each entry in the market show must consist of two market pigs and an individual owner may enter a maximum of two pigs of two. Hogs should weigh between 190 and 240 pounds. All pigs must be weighed and in place before 10 a.m. on Sept. 18.

There will be both a crossbred and purebred division. Pre entry is not required.

A complete list of the rules governing the contest can be obtained from directors of the association or from one of the four county agents. Directors include: Dakota County, Larry See PENDER, page 12

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS were busy last week on the new Wakefield National Bank buildings. The new buildings will provide 4,000 square feet of floor space and will include a drive-in window.

Expo Canceled

The Wayne Chamber of Commerce has decided to cancel the Fall Expo which had been scheduled for Sept. 17 and 18.

Chamber manager Howard Witt said conflicts with other community activities make it unfeasible to have the home and fashion show this fall.

The last similar event in Wayne was in the spring of 1975.

General Election Nears

It's Not Too Early to Register

The Nov. 2 general election date is sneaking up fast and county clerk Norris Weible said anyone eligible to vote who hasn't registered should do so soon.

The following persons should register for election, Weible said:

- Previously registered voters who have moved to another precinct.
- Previously registered voters who have changed their names.
- Anyone 18 or older who has not registered previously.

Registration can be completed at Weible's office in the county courthouse during regular office hours between now and Nov. 2.

Anyone living in Wayne County who knows they will not be in the county on election day can cast their ballot ahead of time at Weible's office during regular hours between Sept. 28 and 4 p.m. on Nov. 1.

Persons with a legal residence in Wayne County but living out of state can apply for an absentee ballot, Weible said. Parents of students or military persons can apply for absentee ballots for their children. Deadline for application is Oct. 29. Absentee ballots must be notarized, as having been cast prior to 8 p.m.

Walls Are Rising

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS were busy last week on the new Wakefield National Bank buildings. The new buildings will provide 4,000 square feet of floor space and will include a drive-in window.

Pre-School Lab Now Accepting Applications

Applications are again being accepted for attendance at the Wayne State College Pre-School Experience Laboratory.

Laboratory sessions will meet each Monday and Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 20 through Dec. 8 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Bentback Hall of Applied Sciences. A fee is charged.

Mrs. Margaret Hansen, director of the lab, said anyone who had their child's name entered on a waiting list last spring should reapply.

Nelson Wins Tractor Pull

Doug Nelson of Wayne won the 5,000 pound super stock class in the Cornhusker Champion Tractor Pull Sunday at the Nebraska State Fair.

Nelson's win in Lincoln follows an Aug. 22 victory at the Colorado State Fair where he won first in the same division.

The Wayne man will take a shot at a world's title next week. Nelson has entered the 5,000 pound super stock class in the 20th World Tractor Pull at Farmstead, 76 in Lake Crystal, Minn., Monday through Thursday, Sept. 16. He will be competing for a share of a $40,000 purse.

Farmstead 76, the official Bicentennial salute to American agriculture, will also feature world horse pulling competition and national horse showing contests, horseshoe pitching, and a 55-acre outdoor agricultural museum.

Exon Appoints Wayne Woman

A Wayne woman is one of nine members appointed Friday by Gov. J.J. Exon to the new Special Education Appeal Board.

Dorothy Ley, Wayne-Carroll school board member, will join eight other persons on the board empowered to act on appeals by parents or guardians who believe a child is placed in an inappropriate educational program under the state's special education law for handicapped students.

Gov. Exon said Dr. Anne Campbell, education commissioner, will serve as an ex officio board member.

Petition Drive Succeeds

Thomas Carey of Ponca Friday said he had received notification from the Dixon County clerk that two petitions which he had circulated listed a sufficient number of valid signatures to place two issues on the ballot for the November general election.

The issue will give voters an opportunity to decide if they wish to change their county government from its present supervisor form to a commissioner system such as is used in Wayne County.

Basic differences are in number — seven for supervisors, three for commissioners — and in organization of townships.

Under the commissioner form of government, townships are not organized as governmental subdivisions. The county commissioners are responsible for overseeing maintenance of all rural roads in the county, and may levy up to eight mills in property tax for that purpose.

The other change proposed by Carey would change the basis of electing the county governing board to an at large system. Each board member, whether commissioner or supervisor, would be chosen by the entire electorate of the county, rather than by only the voters in his district.

In a previous interview, Carey said impetus for the two petition drives was provided by what he called unequal treatment of districts under the present system. Carey specifically said he thought the district which elects board chairman Doyle Hansen receives preferential treatment. See PETITION, page 12

Youngsters Pitch In To Help MD Telethon

A half-dozen Wayne youngsters were so impressed with the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon aired on Labor Day that they decided to see what they could do to help the fund raising effort.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Reeg, Debi, eight; Robb, six and Charlyn, three, watched part of the telethon on KCAU television channel nine from Sioux City Monday morning and decided to begin their own imprecisely door-to-door canvass, which lasted throughout the afternoon, their parents reported.

After a break for dinner they also spent part of the evening knocking on doors, and collected a total of $33 which was contributed to the muscular dystrophy fund through KCAU-TV.

At the same time, three other youngsters were also touched by the telethon broadcast and they, too, decided to pitch in and help.

Rhonda Ostendorf, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Ostendorf, and Kelly O'Donnell, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen O'Donnell, worked together in collecting $87.80. Jeri Langston, See TELETHON, page 12

Guard Names Recruiter

A Wayne National Guardsman, Ken Wagner, has been appointed as a full time recruiter for the Guard.

Wagner, a 1964 graduate of Tilden High, served in the Air Force from 1965-69 and joined the Wayne Army National Guard unit in February.

Wagner has attended Wayne State College as a 50-hour art major and works only six hours of earning his bachelor of fine arts degree. He said he plans to complete the degree requirements in the future.

The appointment as a recruiter places Wagner on active duty military status as a Specialist 4. He will be working throughout Northeast Nebraska to recruit new members for the Wayne and other Guard units.

An intense recruiting effort in the spring attracted enough new members to the Wayne unit to replace members due for discharge this past summer, but the unit remains seriously understrength.

Wagner said attractions offered by the Guard include pay-

Optional and Required Services Provided by Six-County ESU-1

Now that schools have convened for the year one organization in Northeast Nebraska will be busy providing services for 25 kindergarten through 12th grade school systems, plus a number of rural schools.

Educational Service Unit 1 (ESU-1) was established through LB 301, passed in 1965 after introduction by state senator Ross Rasmussen, now executive secretary of the Nebraska School Boards Association.

The legislation established 19 service units, with the intent of providing supplementary services as requested by school districts. Each service unit area had the option of voting on retention of the units, and the number in the state was reduced to 17. ESU-1 survived votes in 1966 and again in 1968, said administrator Harry Mills.

Mills was superintendent of the Wakefield school district when ESU-1 was formed, and remained in that position while serving as part time administrator during the service unit's first year. He has been full time administrator since 1967.

Mills is a 1950 graduate of Kearney State College, received his master of science degree from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1959, and received his six-year school administration certificate in 1969.

Originally established to provide services which schools wanted but found too expensive to provide themselves, the role of service units changed somewhat in 1974 with passage of LB 403. That legislation mandates a number of services which schools must provide either through their own staff or through contract with an outside agency, usually the service units.

Mandated services include speech and hearing therapy, psychological testing, physical therapy aid to the specially handicapped, and instruction for the trainable mentally ill.

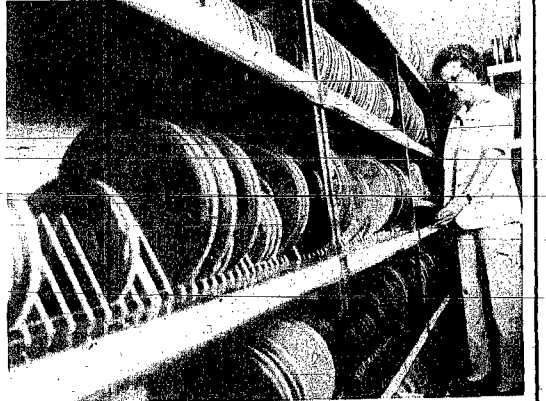

A staff of about 50 provides these services to schools in the ESU-1 area which covers Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Knox, Thurston and Wayne Counties. Administrative headquarters are located in Wakefield, the approximate geographic center of the service unit area. Headquarters for the various service divisions are located on the state college campus in Wayne.

Mills said there have been problems with implementation of LB 403. It was initially understood to mean that the service unit would provide the mandated services for schools wishing to contract with ESU-1, with the state reimbursing the service unit directly.

A later interpretation of the law dictated that the schools would reimburse the service units, and in turn be reimbursed for 90 per cent of the cost by the state. During the first year, however, schools were reimbursed at about 83 per cent. Mills said, and received about 70 per cent of the costs for mandated services incurred during the past school year, because the Unicameral did not budget enough money to meet the costs. The possibility of a deficit appropriation has been discussed but that won't be decided until the legislature reconvenes.

In addition to services required by LB 403, the units provide other services as they are requested by the school districts. Mills periodically meets with superintendents of the district involved to discuss what supplementary services are needed.

One such service popular from the inception of ESU-1 has been cooperative purchase of equipment. Each district See ESU-1, page 12

ARDITH MILLS searches for a film requested by one of the schools served by ESU-1. The service unit has 750 films, plus 60 on order, which schools can check out, paying only the postage fee.

Early Breaks, Stout Defense Help Wakefield

By DAN VODVARKA

Wakefield cashed in on two first half scoring opportunities and then played some stout defensive football in the second half to notch a 14-0 win over Lyons Friday night.

In the season opener for Nebraska prep football teams, the host Trojans used two Lyons' errors in the first half to build a 14-0 lead. Then in the second half, a tough Trojan defense led by the likes of Dave Gustafson, Carl Domsch, Tony Henschke, Dan Byers and Greg Simps on put the clamps on any Lyons' scoring attempt.

The win puts Wakefield at 1-0 going into its game at Allen Friday. Last year, the Trojans decked Lyons in the season opener 12-6 and Allen 40-0 in the next game, but went on to finish at only 2-1 on the year.

"With that in mind, Wakefield coach John Torzon praised his griders after their first win but warned about this week's challenge. "We can't allow ourselves to overlook Allen a bit," Torzon pointed out. "We have to play them on their home field." He added:

"Looking back on the win over Lyons, Torzon had praise for his defense. The Trojan coach pointed out that this year he is again rewarding red shirts in practice to the defensive starters. "Tonight the red shirts seemed to take real pride in their play on defense," he said.

Torzon also lauded his offensive team's play with special praise for the charge of the offensive line. "The point total was not indicative of the game. I felt we completely dominated the action," he said.

"In a first half that saw a total of seven turnovers by both ball clubs, Wakefield came out on top of the first game jitters. With just 21 left in the first quarter, Lyons' running back Kent Larson fumbled and Loren Bartlett recovered for the hosts on the Lyons' five-yard line. It took just one quick burst off of the left side for Byers to score the opening points of the season and Gustafson chugged his way into the end zone for the extra points as Wakefield led 8-0 after one period.

Early in the second quarter the Wakefield defense again picked up a big turnover as Simps on latched on to a deflected Lyons' pass and returned the ball to the visitors' 25-yard line. From there the winners marched to pay dirt on six plays with Byers getting eight yards and a touchdown on a fourth and six play up the middle. The PAT was no good but Wakefield was on top to stay 14-0.

The second half was just hard-nosed football with the Wakefield offense playing ball control. During the middle part of the half, Wakefield drove on the ground from its own 15 to the Lyons' five without scoring. But the Trojans used up 6:40 on the clock with 17 plays and left Lyons deep in its own territory. Wakefield kept the pressure on and drove to the Lyons' three in the final minutes of the game but an interception in the end zone stopped any more Wakefield insurance points.

Eagles Stomp Indians, 27-0

Senior running back Denny Uhl ran for 130 yards Friday night, including a pair of Allen touchdowns, to lead his Eagles to a 27-0 whipping of conference rival Winnebago.

Uhl broke loose for a 50-yard jaunt on the Eagle's second possession of the first period to put his team in front 6-0 before Brent Chase booted the ball through the uprights for a 7-0 command.

Still in the same frame, Uhl capped Allen's second scoring march with a four-yard burst and quarterback Ted Ellis ran into the end zone for the two-point conversion to make the half time score, 15-0.

Allen quickly scored again in the opening of second-half action when Chase zipped across to paydirt from four yards out and defensive lineman senior Jack Warner later pounded on a Winnebago fumble in the Indian's endzone.

Chase also was the leading defender with 13 stops and Uhl had 10.

ONE OF the few holes in the Wakefield defense is found by Lyons' running back Kent Larson (44) during Friday night's prep clash at Wakefield. Larson got by Wakefield defenders Carl Domsch (60), Craig Nelson (72) and Brooks Myers (22). It was a rare successful offensive play for the Lyons, however, as the stiff Wakefield defense held the invaders to a total of only 52 yards.

Wayne, Winside Spikers Face Each Other Tonight

Wayne and Winside volleyball teams will square off tonight (Thursday) at 7 at the Blue Devils' gym in the second night of action this week for both clubs.

Wayne, fresh off a win Tuesday night over Stanton, will be aiming for its second straight victory to add to its second-place finish in last week's Beemer Invitational.

Coach Mavis Dalton's club toppled Stanton of the West Husker Conference, 15-11 and 15-6 behind the strong offensive and defensive play of senior Steph Dorcsey. She had 11 serve points.

Dorcsey also was the leader during the first night of play in the Beemer Tournament Thursday.

Saturday night in semifinals action, Sydney Mosley and Lisa Nuss teamed up to serve 10 points each for the win, 16-14, 10-15, 15-4. Kelly Fevrevt was the leading spiker against Beemer with 14. Dorcsey was fabbed for her defensive play.

In the finals Friday, Wayne lost to Winsler-Pilger, 10-15 and 5-15.

Also against Stanton Tuesday night, freshman and reserve teams won. Although no score was available, the freshmen took two of three sets. Behind the 12-point serving of Chris Brink and the sharp play of Sheri Lawrence, the reserves won 15-8 and 15-7.

Laurel Spikers Face Randolph

Laurel's volleyball team returns home tonight (Thursday) against NENAC powerhouse Randolph in the third conference match of the young season.

The Bears of coach Dwight Iverson will carry a 1-1 record into tonight's game after suffering their first loss Tuesday night at the hands of another NENAC toughie Plainview.

At Plainview, the hosts won 15-12 and 15-4. Plainview's B team also came out on top with a pair of 15-9 scores. In the varsity sets, Iverson pointed out that Kelly McCoy, Cheryl Abts and Doreen Hansen played well.

It was the play of Abts, Elaine Guern and Patti Stark which sparked Laurel to a season opening win over visiting Neligh, 15-5 and 15-10. Abts served 14 of the team's 30 points, Guern was the top spiker and Stark covered the court, Iverson noted.

The reserve team also was victorious, slaying two 15-9 sets behind the 14-point scoring of Hix and the good floor game of Roxi Kraemer.

Pitching for HJC

A member of Wayne's 1974 state American Legion baseball team, pitcher Dave Hix, is on the pitching staff of the Hutchinson Junior College baseball team in Hutchinson, Kan.

Hix, who signed a letter of intent before the Legion's sweeping win over Crofton for the Class C title, will take part in the school's 30-game fall schedule and the 40-game spring and tournament schedule.

Hix is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Hix of Wayne.

THERE ARE a number of small Class C and D high schools in the area which would be better off if their school boards would drop 11 man football in favor of eight-man.

The reason pointed out by several grid coaches is the dwindling number of players who turn out for the sport. Examples: about 25 players each have reported at Newcastle and Allen.

It doesn't make sense to play an 11 man team schedule with those numbers and expect to play good ball. No doubt there are going to be injuries, and any injury to a club that small usually means sure defeats simply because of the lack of enough players.

The decision to drop from Class C or D to eight man is optional, explained Nebraska School Activities Association executive secretary James Riley. "Our position is that if Class C or D schools aren't fielding an adequate number of players to play competitively, they should think of the safety of their players and perhaps go to eight man," Riley said in a telephone interview last week.

The only drawback for a Class C club to make the change is that it would lose its eligibility to play into the state Class C playoffs. However, a team which has few players likely wouldn't be a candidate for those playoffs.

Riley pointed out that if a school declares which route it is going, it must play the majority of its games in that division.

THE FIRST question which popped up at Thursday's Second Guesser's meeting was "Is Jim Seward here? Seward, who is the head basketball coach at Wayne State, has a notorious reputation for being a consistent winner of the weekly drawings.

As it turned out Seward was present along with about 30 other persons, but he did not claim the prize. Last week's jackpot went to Bob Carhart. After several boos and hisses, Carhart replied: "I couldn't happen to a nicer guy."

Perhaps an explanation is in order. Each person who attends the weekly noon meetings at Jeff's Cafe is asked to slip a quarter into the basket along with a piece of paper with his name on it. The winner receives half of the amount; the rest goes to the Second Guessers.

Turning to the business side of the meeting, club president Bill Workman told members and their guests that the club intends to become more active in college and high school athletic programs this year.

To start off the list of projects, several club members met with members of the College basketball team Tuesday night at Bressler park for a old' fashion steak fry. The idea, which was borrowed from the annual steak fry for the month, All Stars basketball team, was to give players and club members a chance to get better acquainted.

Plans are to hold similar meals for participants in other sports. There won't be firm this year for the pre-season football feasts, but members are hoping to line something up before the start of the season next year.

ALREADY HEADED for the press is a 25-page booklet for fans attending sports activities at Wayne State. According to the person in charge of this project, Dan Gardner of Wakefield, the booklet is made possible by the many advertisers both in Wayne and surrounding area towns. The books are designed so that an insert can be placed inside to give fans a roster lineup of both teams and a little history of each school.

The books will be used for most college sports and will be available to Wayne high officials to hand out at their games.

INTERESTED in knowing more about Second Guessers? To start it's an organization of men who support high school and college athletics. The group meets every Thursday noon and the cost is $2.25 for the meal.

The meeting offers a chance to meet people and learn more about high school and college sports from the coaches of both schools.

Grid Contest Starts Next Week

Football prognosticators it's time to sharpen those pencils!

The Wayne Herald and local merchants are sponsoring a weekly football contest, starting in Monday's issue.

A $25 gift certificate will be awarded to the person who picks the most winners. In case of a tie, a tie breaker score will be used.

Entry deadline is 5 p.m. Friday. Persons may get their entry forms by clipping them out of the paper and dropping them off at any participating merchant or at the Herald.

The winner will be announced in Thursday's paper.

Athletes of the Week

A pair of Wayne High athletes grab the spotlight in this first week of accolades for the prep "Athletes of the Week."

They are seniors Mike Wieseler and Stephanie Dorcsey, who were instrumental in their teams' victories in opening games.

A driving 200 pound fullback, Wieseler led rushers with 46 yards and two touchdowns and was one of the leaders in tackles among Devils' defenders who held South Sioux City scoreless.

Wieseler present on both the offense and defense was a major factor in the Devils' opening 19-0 victory, observed Wayne High coach Don Keogh.

Standing at only 5'2, Dorcsey packs a lot of whallop on the volleyball court. As expected she led in scoring during opening play in the Beemer Invitational and during See ATHLETES, page 11

Membership in Wayne Kiwanis Club reached 63 Tuesday with the induction of two new members.

They are Bill Dickey, who is an officer at First National Bank, in Wayne, and Aaron Butler, a former member who rejoined the club after a long absence.

During the meeting, club secretary Vern Fairchild was awarded a pin for his perfect attendance for the past four years.

Guest speaker for the weekly meeting was Wayne High volleyball coach Mavis Dalton. Mrs. Dalton, who has been head coach since the sport started four years ago at the high school, has a total of 60 players out for the freshmen, reserve and varsity teams. The group includes 24 freshmen, 20 sophomores, 11 juniors and five seniors. Only one returning letter winners, senior Stephanie Dorcay, is back from last year's club which won the Osmond West Husker and Class B district tournaments. Book Offers Tips for Trees

Trees help people in many ways, so it's important for people to help trees when they become sick from wounds and diseases.

A new publication, "Rx for Wounded Trees" from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Service details symptoms that may indicate development of decay in a tree.

The booklet contains 21 color illustrations showing examples of common tree care problems and what should be done to correct them.

Unslightly and hazardous trees don't just happen — they often are the result of improper care and neglect. Many times people don't realize their trees are sick until it's too late.

The result may be property damage or personal injury from falling limbs or even entire trees. The time to start a tree care program is when the tree still is healthy.

Proper treatment can help minimize damage caused by decay, preventing the waste of many good trees and valuable wood.

"Rx for Wounded Trees" is the latest in a series of booklets from the Forest Service which provide general information on a wide variety of uses and types of care for trees.

"Rx for Wounded Trees," AIB-387, is available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402, for $1.35.

Other books in the series, "Your Tree's Trouble May Be You," AIB-327, ($1.30) and "A Tree Hurts, Too" (90 cents), are also available from the Government Printing Office.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Anna Marie Kreifels

JUTE FIBERS HAVE SHORT LIFE

Persons who enjoy crafts should be aware that jute fibers begin to deteriorate within about five years. Some of these fibers will shred completely within 50 years.

Jute's rough texture, soft natural colors and low cost attract many craftsmen. It knits easily, making it a favorite for macrame work.

Jute is a cellulose fiber containing a high concentration of lignin which makes jute differ from other plant fibers such as cotton, linen and ramie.

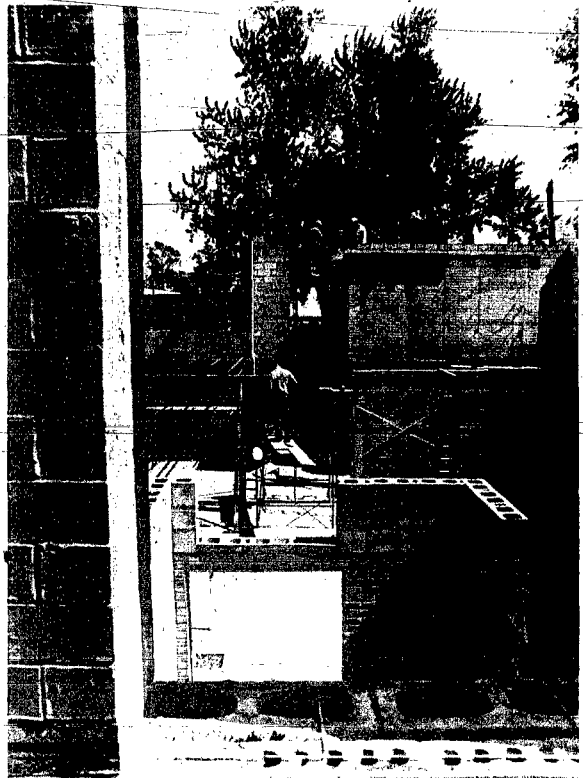

Dampness quickens the deterioration of jute and normal use will make the fibers brittle. Jute is particularly sensitive to acids and pollutants in atmospheric conditions.

All these factors contribute to the popularity of jute for short term commodity items such as cord, string and gunny sacks. Craftsmen, however, who want their works to last should use supplies made of more durable fibers.

In museum collections, wool rugs hooked on a jute foundation made in the 1930's are now becoming a mass of lumpy yarn. Jute tapes used for chair webbing and for hanging tapestries 20 years ago are shredding.

Physical damage of jute art works can be controlled by limiting bending, touching and moving, but there is no way to lessen chemical deterioration.

Hearings Set on Extension Bill

A series of hearings has been scheduled around the state to discuss LB 800, a bill designed to strengthen the Nebraska agricultural extension service.

Locations in Northeast Nebraska are: Neigh at 1:30 to 3:30 in the Courthouse Annex meeting room in Fremont at the Holiday Lodge at 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Both of these meetings are on Thursday, Sept. 16.

"We encourage all persons in the state of Nebraska who are interested in maintaining a strong, viable, effective Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Nebraska to attend these meetings," said Dr. Leo Lucas, director of the extension service.

The bill was introduced in the 122nd session of the Nebraska Legislature and was then assigned to an interim study committee. It includes: updating the language of the present statutes in an attempt to bring them in line with present federal regulations, provisions stating that all voters may participate in the election of board members at general elections, and making sure programs are available to all persons who wish to take advantage of them, Lucas said.

Because of the inability of many extension offices to meet rising costs or to find sufficient agricultural agents or home economists in their county or area, the legislation is permissive in nature, making it possible to increase the annual amount of tax funds to be used in support of extension programs at the county level.

The Cooperative Extension Service is currently supported through federal, state and county funds. "There are approximately 48 counties which are approaching, or have already reached, the upper limit of 14.28 percent of the county government, or of the six-tenths of one mill or $15,000, whichever is greater, for extension programs," Lucas said. He explained that many extension boards cannot meet the increasing costs of operating the offices, due to the current inflationary period.

Other public hearings on the bill are Sept. 13, Tecumseh, Sept. 14, North Platte, Sept. 14, Scottsbluff, and Sept. 15, Grand Island.

Social Security Records Are Available Free

People can get help, free of charge, in getting information from their social security records, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

"Some private organizations are charging fees to help people get information from government records," Branch said. "But you don't have to pay anyone to help you get information from your social security record. Any social security office will be glad to help you without charge."

Under the law, people generally can get information about their name and social security number in records kept by the Social Security administration.

"You must specify which system of records the information is in," Branch said. "But people who want to know what's in any social security office will help you determine where the record you want is located. They'll also tell you how to ask for the information you want."

Copies of information that can be photocopied from social security records are free up to $25 worth — generally 250 pages, according to Branch. "Over that amount," he said, "photocopies cost 10 cents a page. Copies of information that can't be photocopied are furnished at cost."

People can get information about how to get information from their social security record by calling, writing, or visiting any social security office. Requests for specific information must be made by a letter over your notarized signature — or in person after you've proved your identity," Branch said.

The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The Norfolk social security office is at 1310 Norfolk Avenue. The phone number is 371-1595.

ESU-1 Film Library Is Popular Service

submits a list of items they wish to purchase. Mills and his staff compile the lists into a catalog which is then let out for bids. Because of the volume of items, cost of the equipment is substantially lower than if each school let bids individually.

For example, Mills said, 16 mm projectors are bid at about $385 through the cooperative purchase arrangement, but would probably cost the schools about $780 each if the schools bought them individually. Savings of nearly 50 per cent are common, Mills said, because bidding becomes very competitive when a large volume of items is offered. Savings statewide amount to more than $1 million, he added.

A staff of six nurses also provides services to many of the schools, conducting vision and physical testing and maintaining school medical records.

Special instruction for students with learning disabilities (LDS) is available. LDS students have an IQ, considered normal, but have difficulty learning because of some type of disability.

A new LDS program being offered through ESU-1 this year makes available at the parents' option, to discover possible learning disabilities and take corrective action before the child enters school. The pre-school LDS program extends Project Predict and Prevent, developed last year by the Wayne-Carroll school system.

Another important service used heavily by schools in the ESU-1 district is an extensive film library. The unit owns 750 films and has another 60 on order. The films (95 per cent are in color) cover every area of curriculum at all age levels. Schools may check the films out, paying only the cost of postage.

About 300 to 400 films are ordered each week. Each film is individually inspected on a special machine as soon as it is returned to insure it is serviceable before mailed out again.

Other supplementary services include a laminating machine to preserve instructional materials, equipment for producing transparencies used on overhead projectors, and a staff consultative system to help prepare state reports required by LB 403.

The service unit's budget is provided through a one-mill property tax levy, the maximum allowed by state law. Total budget for 1976-77, approved by the board of directors June 28, is $689,940, compared with $472,953 in actual expenses for 1975-76, and $608,735 budgeted for last year.

Instruction will account for the bulk of this year's budget, $490,000. Other budgeted expenses are: administration, $48,340; operation of plant, $11,600; services other than instruction, $43,000; maintenance of plant, $4,500; fixed charges, $15,500; capital outlay, $65,000; miscellaneous expenses, $12,000.

Income, by counties, is estimated at: Cedar, $55,000; Dakota, $45,000; Dixon, $32,000; Knox, $63,000; Thurston, $28,000; Wayne, $45,000.

In addition, Pierce County will contribute about $2,200 and Antelope County, $2,000. Mills explained that because the majority of the students in Randolph and Creighton schools districts, respectively located in Pierce and Antelope Counties, live within the ESU-1 district, the unit moves the two district residents pay the one-mill levy to ESU-1, rather than the service unit responsible for the rest of the two counties.

Governing ESU-1 is a 10-man board of directors, with each of the counties electing one member. The remaining four members are elected at large.

The term of office is large four years, with members elected at large and those elected by county alternating for reelection every two years. Running for election this year, by county, are Berneal Gustafson, Wakefield, Dixon County; Junius Forabee, Thurston County; Dr. Gene Bigelow, Wayne County; Dave Hays, Cedar County; and Dr. Veryl Weisford, Knox County. All are incumbents. No one has registered for the Dakota County post.

At large members, who will be up for reelection in 1978, are Bill Weese of Hausa, Bill Norvell of Laurel, Clair Hausen of Coleridge, and Kenneth Olds of Wayne, chairman of the board.

EDNA GUSTAFSON and Bonnie Clay operate one of ESU-1's laminating machines, used to preserve instructional materials.

Patrol superintendent responds to criticism of drug control force

CAPITOL NEWS
LINCOLN — Col. C.P. Karthaus, Nebraska State Patrol superintendent, responded to claims of misuse of undercover drug agents by calling for a legislative hearing to allow him to refute the charges.

The request for a hearing was sent to the Unicameral's Judiciary committee.

The same committee had earlier received a report compiled by two Lincoln attorneys, Kirk Naylor and Dennis Keefe, in which transcripts of court testimony and statements by agents indicated control problems.

The report said agents were converting drugs they had bought in connection with investigations to their own personal use and were dipping their fingers into a special fund set-up to finance patrol drug buys.

"We claim no perfection, but only dedication to the protection of all citizens, especially our youth, from the ever-increasing menace of illegal drug traffic," Karthaus said in his letter to the judiciary chairman Roland Liedtke of Lincoln.

Naylor, in turning the report over to the committee, had called for "minimal reforms," included were more stringent controls over undercover agents and a prohibition against using ex-convicts as agents.

"We shall persevere in our efforts under the law, unless contradicted by Nebraska, State Legislature," Karthaus said on that subject.

Karthaus's letter was written following two days of meetings with his boss, Gov. J.J. Exon.

Says Was Threatened

Naylor even claimed that one of the agents who gave him a statement had been threatened for talking about the situation.

Karthaus said he questioned motives and summed up the report this way:

"We are hopeful that our documentation will refute what I consider irresponsible charges, half truths and untruths by two criminal defense attorneys who specialize in the defense of those accused and convicted of violations of Nebraska drug statutes."

"It should be understood that any crippling of investigative efforts by the patrol and other enforcement and investigative agencies would be beneficial to the clients of these two attorneys."

Sen. Loran Schmitt of Bellwood, a member of the Judiciary committee, suggested upon receipt of the report and before Karthaus's letter was written that a hearing should be held on drug law enforcement.

He said it was time to take a look at the whole situation because he was not satisfied that the patrol was going after the drug problem.

However, Schmitt indicated strong concern about tampering with the patrol's undercover network of 150 to 200 agents. He agreed with Karthaus's letter that such tampering might inhibit law enforcement efforts.

No Special Sessions

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh has abandoned his efforts to call the Unicameral into special session in order to cut government spending.

He tried to initiate a special session the day the State Board of Equalization met in emergency session and upped the statewide sales tax rate from 2.5 to 3 per cent and the income tax rate from 15 to 17 per cent.

DeCamp said most senators were indifferent or offered reasons on why no session should be called that he said were kind of scary.

The reason given most often was that the various agencies were planning on a budget approved earlier this year and it would be a shame to take the money away now.

Also cited was a contention that education spending should be cut and since education was a major portion of the budget, no cuts could be made.

Another reason given was that it is about time taxes increased.

Both the sales and income tax rates are all-time records.

Those reasons "spell trouble," DeCamp said, because they indicate the senators are more worried about the bureaucrats than they are about the taxpayers.

"When senators say they are more concerned about hurting bureaucrats than they are hurting the taxpayer, then they are more influential than Mr. Taxpayer and average citizen," the senator said.

DeCamp needed 10 signatures on petitions in order for Secretary of State Allen Beermann to poll all 49 lawmakers on the issue.

Only five, including DeCamp, signed the petitions. The others were Sens. Richard Marsh of Milligan, Robert Clark of Sidney, Loran Schmitt of Bellwood and Otto Kime of Valentine.

Beatrice Standoff

An out-of-court settlement was reached in a lawsuit filed against the state over the unnecessary number of patients at the Beatrice State Home.

"That was last year and officials now report there is little activity on that front, even though it looked as if the Unicameral's refusal to fund a special patient review panel called for in the settlement might touch off another round.

The purpose of the lawsuit was to cut the home's population and move patients to community treatment programs.

But State Institutions director Jack Cleaveanger reported few have been moved to community programs and legal sources said the U.S. Justice Department has pulled back. The justice department joined with attorneys representing a group of parents with children at Beatrice in filing the lawsuit.

It seems that the State of Maryland left the justice department needed congressional permission to get involved in such lawsuits and an eastern court agreed.

On the community program front, Cleaveanger said it seems those programs just will not accept patients transferred from the Beatrice home.

The community agencies cite money shortages as the reason.

Cleaveanger said they probably do have money problems. But he also said he felt they could accept at least a few patients. He noted the Unicameral did provide $1 million to help finance treatment costs at the community level for those transferred from Beatrice.

If the lawsuit does open up again, Cleaveanger said he would try to bring in as parties those community agencies so that any court decisions could be imposed on them directly instead of through his office.

First step to market is important one

It's not news to Nebraska farmers and ranchers that the state's rural farm-to-market road system is inadequate to the needs of modern agriculture and deteriorating at a rapid rate.

The problem is common throughout the United States where attention has focused for the last 20 years on interstate and urban area construction. It is estimated that 34,000 bridges on the federal-aid rural highway system are too narrow or in poor condition, and costs of road and bridge construction and maintenance have multiplied under today's inflationary pressures.

County budgets have been bumping-up against mill levy limits and their rural road and bridge construction programs have been trimmed and delayed over a long period of years. Bridges built for team and wagon traffic don't begin to carry the load limits demanded by today's big tractors, trucks, stack mowers and other large equipment. It's not an exaggeration to say that if load limits were strictly enforced much of this state's $4 billion per year in agricultural production could never get to market.

More than seven per cent of food costs is spent on transportation. For farm trucks and other equipment have to take longer, more costly routes to market, the extra expense eventually must show up in the consumer's price of food.

Adding to the pressure on the state and national farm-to-market road system is the abandonment of service on thousands of miles of railroad lines which once served the small towns and rural areas. Much of the movement of grain from "country elevators" now must go by truck to terminal points and in shipments of fertilizer, fuels, equipment and other supplies necessary to keeping the nation's farm production going must come by truck rather than rail.

The recent STAR (Strength Through Agriculture) report from the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources touched briefly on the transportation problems of the state's agriculture as follows:

"Nebraska's transportation complex has more than 70,000 miles of surfaced roads, seven major and two minor railroads, water transportation by barge on the Missouri River and 342 airports. As in the past, the transportation of agricultural products will continue to be one of the limiting factors for Nebraska's agriculture."

"Agriculture relies heavily on rail and highway transportation. Higher energy costs and competition with coal shipments from western coal deposits will have negative effects on the movement of grain and livestock. Periodic shortage of grain cars and branch line abandonment also restrict transportation possibilities.

The trend throughout the Midwest has been toward multi-car rail rates for grain shipment and abandonment of branch line rail service. Larger, subterminal grain elevators have evolved at the expense of smaller country elevators. The Nebraska grain and farm supply industry and others should be giving serious thought to adjustments arising from potential rate changes and railroad abandonment."

The STAR report addresses itself to the big picture as well it must. But legislators and government executives and planners must not forget the strictly local problem in the counties of roads and bridges that must be improved and kept serviceable if farm commodities are to make that first vital trip from the farm or ranch gate to an improved highway leading to the initial collecting and shipping point. —M.M. Van Kirk, Nebraska Farm Bureau.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786.

Writer says 'save the tyrannosaurus rex'

Remember the Tyrannosaurus Rex? It was that large, erect, carnivorous dinosaur with the small, grasping front paws and fearsome set of teeth (somewhat reminiscent of the Internal Revenue Service).

I sometimes think of him (her? it?) when we are being enjoined to preserve this or that endangered species, at any cost. In that context, it is worthwhile to remember that Tyrannosaurus Rex disappeared from the face of the earth with out any help at all from mankind, and still more worthwhile to consider how grateful we may all be for the fact that we are therefore unlikely to meet one on a dark night.

I don't want to imply that we should be blind to the wanton destruction of either nature's creatures or nature's beauty. Far from it. Conservation is of great personal concern to me.

But I do think we should exercise a little more humility in our estimates of man's impact on the environment. Not all changes in the environment are caused by man, nor can—or should—they all be prevented by man. Further, not all of the changes that we have caused are changes for the worse, which seems almost to be an automatic assumption in some circles these days.

These points were made with grace and insight by the great biologist and humanist Rene Dubos, in a lecture delivered at Pepperdine University last spring. The lecture was published as an article in the Aug. 1 issue of Science magazine, and in the Aug. 3 edition of the Congressional Record.

Professor Dubos reminds us that "ever since Neolithic times, human life has taken place in managed environments." He mentions parts of England and France where the "natural" beauty of the countryside is in fact the result of careful tending over so many generations that people have ceased to be aware of the essentially artificial nature of their environment.

In many parts of the world, he says, "the prodigious and continuous efforts of settlers and farmers have created an astonishing diversity of ecosystems that appear natural only because they are familiar, but that are really of human origin."

"The natural channels are not necessarily the most desirable," he says, "either for the human species or for other species. It is not true that 'nature knows best.' It often creates ecosystems that are inefficient, wasteful and destructive."

Professor Dubos believes that "human beings can profoundly alter the surface of the earth without despoiling it and they can indeed create new and lasting ecological values by working in collaboration with nature."

"The earth," he says, "is to be seen neither as an ecosystem to be preserved unchanged nor as a quarry to be exploited for selfish and short range economic reasons, but as a garden to be cultivated for the development of its own potentialities of the human adventure. The goal of this relationship is not the maintenance of the status quo, but the emergence of new phenomena and new values. Millennia of experience show that by entering into a symbiotic relationship with nature, humankind can invent and generate futures not predictable from the deterministic order of things, and thus can engage in a continuous process of creation."

"I'll cast my vote with Professor Dubos, naturally — Richard Leshner, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

OBSERVATIONS

Let's scrap FCC

I heartily agree with one idea advanced locally last week, while I strongly disagree with another.

The first has to do with regulation of the electronic news media by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), while the print media doesn't have to contend with any such regulatory body.

Taking a purely mercenary point of view, as a newspaper man I say let's do away with the FCC.

Why? It would probably increase their competition and eliminate some of ours, or at least reduce its effectiveness.

How? The FCC controls the number and location of radio and television station licenses. It also assigns frequencies for radio and channels for television. If the FCC is eliminated, anyone could establish a radio or television station anywhere, any time, on any frequency. That would probably result in a mish-mash of shoddy fly by night outfits competing with legitimate stations, and in some instances, using the same frequencies.

That doesn't happen with FCC control. Licenses are strictly controlled, protecting legitimate broadcast operations and in many instances, particularly in smaller communities, granting what amounts to a monopoly so far as dollars spent for local broadcast advertising are concerned.

The FCC has also acted on numerous occasions to force print news when a newspaper publisher owned a radio station serving the same area and no other source of local news was available.

I'm not saying I agree with every decision made by the FCC. But common sense dictates that one recognize the difference between the print and electronic media. To do otherwise is to play the old apples and oranges game. An FCC-type regulatory body just isn't necessary for the print media, because anyone can start a newspaper whenever and wherever they wish, without interfering with publication of existing papers. (Although papers with competitive idia Grove, Iowa is a good example of a small town with two weekly papers.)

Regulation is necessary for efficient use of the airways for the benefit of the public. I'm willing to bet that if the FCC were eliminated today, those broadcasters who were crying the loudest against it yesterday would be the first to cry for its return tomorrow.

I think the electronic media are too important to let that happen.

That may sound funny coming from a newspaper man, but it really shouldn't. I readily recognize the role played by radio and television in informing the public. At the same time, I'm confident enough in the role played by newspapers in accomplishing that same goal that I don't feel the need to carry on a continuous backbiting campaign against our electronic competitors. (If seems ironic indeed that, locally at least, printed material plays a significant role in the attack against newspapers. Someone must have some faith in the print media.)

As for a "full-service" news medium, there ain't no such animal, if you will pardon an example of bad grammar.

After all, when was the last time you saw a picture on radio? Or could go back and listen to a television newscast again. The way you can pick up the newspaper and reread it?

All the media serve a useful function. Newspapers, even daily sheets with several editions a day, cannot hope to provide the up-to-the-minute news provided by the electronic media. On the other side of the coin, radio and television simply do not have the air time to devote to in-depth coverage that the print media do.

That is one of the basic tenets taught in beginning journalism classes in colleges. Anyone who claims to have an education in background in journalism who tries to tell you that it is radio and television of news medium was either sleeping in class, or is trying to fool the public — Jim Strayer.

Council called frugal

Wayne

Dear Editor:

The Wayne city council is indeed frugal. They strive to protect your interests and conserve every tax dollar they can. The vote to endorse the Highway 35 Improvement project is an excellent example.

The city council appears to feel that unless they unequivocally endorse the improvement project today they might find themselves having to pay tomorrow. They fear that the bricks will wear out and shock absorber sales will thus zoom. Time would then force them to bear the cost to surface or repair seventh street with local tax dollars. A cost, they must feel, can be avoided.

What they would rather see is the State of Nebraska doze down hundreds of roads, place trucks within feet of the doors of families and erase thousands of dollars of property values from homes and businesses. We would then have a new four-lane highway of concrete and asphalt nicely dividing Wayne into north and south similar to what the interstates do in large cities.

Optimists, with the bricks on seventh street last another 25 years? Government officials, how many dollars have you spent fixing potholes on Seventh St. in the past ten years? Anyone want to vote on turning Bressler Park into a concrete parking lot?

Oh, yes, do you live in Wayne along Highway 15? Did you know that those bricks out there are deteriorating fast and they might have to bring those trucks and that concrete pavement right outside your front door? — Concerned Property Owners: Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Benson.

Wayne

Dear Editor:

The Wayne city council is indeed frugal. They strive to protect your interests and conserve every tax dollar they can. The vote to endorse the Highway 35 Improvement project is an excellent example.

The city council appears to feel that unless they unequivocally endorse the improvement project today they might find themselves having to pay tomorrow. They fear that the bricks will wear out and shock absorber sales will thus zoom. Time would then force them to bear the cost to surface or repair seventh street with local tax dollars. A cost, they must feel, can be avoided.

What they would rather see is the State of Nebraska doze down hundreds of roads, place trucks within feet of the doors of families and erase thousands of dollars of property values from homes and businesses. We would then have a new four-lane highway of concrete and asphalt nicely dividing Wayne into north and south similar to what the interstates do in large cities.

Optimists, with the bricks on seventh street last another 25 years? Government officials, how many dollars have you spent fixing potholes on Seventh St. in the past ten years? Anyone want to vote on turning Bressler Park into a concrete parking lot?

Oh, yes, do you live in Wayne along Highway 15? Did you know that those bricks out there are deteriorating fast and they might have to bring those trucks and that concrete pavement right outside your front door? — Concerned Property Owners: Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Benson.

Eighteen-year-old Kim Mrsny of Wayne is the latest winner in the weekly Birthday Bucks promotion in Wayne. Miss Mrsny, who was at Fredrickson Oil Co. won herself $25 in Birthday Bucks last week when her date was the closest to matching the winning date of Sept. 25, 1957. She was born on Sept. 27.

She can spend the prize money just like cash in any one of the participating Wayve businesses. Had she matched the winning date, Kim would have won the grand prize of $375. As a result of no one winning the grand prize is now worth $400. Tonight! (Thursday) some lucky shopper will have a chance to win the consolation or grand prizes. It's easy to be a winner, no purchases or registration are necessary. However, a person must be present in a participating store when the date is announced. Selecting last week's winning date was Clarence Kuhn of Kuhn's Dept. Store.

discuss irrigation monitoring equipment. Pipe in the foreground, with gauge showing on top, is used to test the rate of flow for irrigation systems. The extension field day was held at the Loberg farm where irrigation, insecticide, and seed variety tests were conducted this year.

Experiment Results Revealed During Extension Field Day

A farmer can't always tell from looking at the top soil how much moisture is available for his crop. Wayne County agent Don Spitzke said during a field day at the Glenn Loberg farm north of Carroll Sept. 1.

Spitzke and extension engineer Steve Pohl discussed the results of an irrigation experiment at the Loberg farm with the audience attending the field day. Extension entomologist John Witkowski and extension agronomist Russell Moomaw also talked about the experiments they have been conducting at the Loberg farm.

The irrigation experiment involved installation of monitoring equipment to keep track of the amount of moisture available for use by the crop. Gypsum blocks with wires attached were buried at 6-, 12-, 24- and 36-inch depths. The moisture-absorbent blocks register electrical resistance when current is passed through them. Resistance varies depending on the degree of saturation, allowing an accurate measure of soil moisture content by using a meter.

Moisture was measured before planting and irrigation began before the crop went in, saturating the soil down to about five feet. Each foot of soil can hold about 2.4 inches of available water, Spitzke said.

With the amount of rain received this summer, the irrigation system could not have applied enough water during the growing season to provide the optimum amount for growing, Spitzke said. The reserve provided by saturating the soil before planting helped to make up the difference.

Experience with the monitoring setup showed that even after a rain, the soil below the surface can be extremely dry and surface moisture can be deceiving.

Loberg confirmed that the appearance of the field was deceiving at times and said he might not have applied enough water without the system. "That could have hurt the yield," he said, adding that he will continue monitoring his irrigated cropland, using either the electric metering device, or probing the soil at various depths.

Pohl displayed a portable water meter which can be used to check the rate of application by irrigation systems. The agricultural engineer said testing the number of gallons per minute is important because a system might not always pump at its rated capacity, so farmers could be applying less water than they think.

Witkowski has been conducting an experiment at the Loberg farm to test the efficiency of a variety of commercial applications in controlling corn root worm.

The tests that recommended chemicals still work well in controlling the insect pests, Witkowski wanted to see if root worms show any tendency toward developing a resistance to insecticides which have been used extensively in the past. The tests did not conclusively prove the resistance theory, Witkowski said, although some pockets developed where it appears that may have been the case. In general, he said, all chemicals performed fairly well when recommended rates of application were observed.

Moomaw explained now a test plot for 70 varieties of commercial seed corn was set up on the Loberg farm.

Seed companies can have up to three varieties tested, paying a fee of $30 a year for each variety, for each test plot. The extension service tests seeds at several locations in the state.

Each variety at the Loberg farm was planted in four separate plots, Moomaw said. Averaging the yield of the four replications helps take into account variations caused by different types of soil.

Each plot was marked out, hand planted and staked for identification. The field day audience has an opportunity following discussion to look at any of the test plots.

Moomaw said the plots will be hand harvested, with a sample of each type weighed and tested for moisture content. Results of the yield test will be available later this year in a bulletin published by the extension service. Anyone wishing to receive a copy of the report can leave their name at Spitzke's office in the Wayne County courthouse and one will be mailed when available.

Moomaw said this is the first year the Northeast Station at Concord has had an irrigated seed test plot. A pair of other Northeast Nebraska test plots, one at the station and one in Knox County, will not be harvested this year, Moomaw said. "They're both dryland, and they're both dried up," he explained.

U.S.D.A. Wants Better Ear Tag System

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Beef Carcass Data Service (BCDS) is confronting an "education job," based upon results of a recent survey of those using the service in Nebraska according to Dr. Jim Gosey, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension beef specialist.

The four-year-old service sponsored in Nebraska by the Nebraska Beef Cattle Improvement Association (NBCIA) utilizes serially numbered plastic orange shield-shaped ear tags in cattle to collect carcass data on yield and quality for producers and feeders following slaughter.

Gosey said lost and slow return of data forms were the major complaints of survey respondents.

"The only thing that comes through is that our investigators are the basic principle of the program," he said. "All agreed that they need and want the data, but they want a better delivery system."

As a result, he said, he has written a letter to the director of the USDA's livestock division reporting the survey's results, listing packing plants identified as having lost data and urging the department to do a "better job of educating and working with federal inspectors and graders emphasizing the value of the program."

The Nebraska Beef Cattle Improvement Association is planning to compile a list of state and "Missouri River slaughter" plants, their phone numbers and the names of their USDA inspectors and graders to allow area producers to forewarn plants that they are bringing BCDS tagged cattle to market.

That proposal resulted from a survey finding that indicated the return rate on data forms rose 74 per cent when producers alerted plants prior to shipment of BCDS tagged cattle and maintained ownership of their cattle until they were ready for slaughter, Gosey said.

Gosey conducted the survey as recording secretary for NBCIA, which cooperates with the USDA in distributing the 50 cent ear tags.

"There was a significant enough difference so that we could recommend that producers alert plants in advance," Gosey said. "When the plant is alerted, it isn't as likely to ignore the tagged cattle."

"Realistically, I know lost data can't be reduced to zero, but I do think it could be cut to 20 per cent. I think the inspector or the grader, is the key person in the chain since in many plants, the inspector is not in the best location on the kill floor to transfer the tag," he said.

He said of the 232 data service participants, 82 per cent responded to the survey, which he called the first large comprehensive study of the nationwide service's operation.

Nbraskans currently own about 13 per cent of the BCDS tags sold in the United States, he said. Making the survey participating state in the nation.

Of the 19,311 tags covered by the survey, representing 96 per cent of the tags owned by cooperators polled, 3,484 had not been installed yet, 2,299 were in cattle not yet slaughtered and 588 either were lost or removed before slaughter.

Gosey said that the 12,970 tags actually in cattle's ears when they were slaughtered, only 55 per cent of the data forms were returned to the producer.

Further, he said of more than 13,032 tags on animals slaughtered in federally graded plants, about 40 per cent of the data forms never were returned.

But he said the figure changed markedly when producers alerted plants prior to shipment of tagged cattle and maintained ownership of their cattle until slaughter ready.

"The returned rate was 76 per cent when they alerted plants, but only 52 per cent for the 55 respondents not alerting slaughter plants. In both cases, plants were staffed by a USDA inspector and grader.

Meanwhile, the return rate was only 22 per cent for cattle sold as weaned calves as compared to 58 per cent when sold as yearlings and 59 per cent when sold slaughter ready, he said. Again, both figures were obtained in plants staffed by USDA personnel.

"This seems to indicate that if producers do not change ownership after the tags are applied, they'll have a better chance of getting the data returned," Gosey said.

One respondent agreed: "There are no problems when ownership is maintained until slaughter. The problems arise when ownership is changed several times after weaning."

According to the survey, 10 per cent of the 84 cooperators they sold their tagged cattle as weaned calves, 13 per cent sold them as yearlings and 77 per cent sold their cattle slaughter ready.

He said some of those polled also said they think feeders resist buying calves with ear tags because they think processors will be reluctant to buy the finished cattle.

"The whole program is predicated upon cooperation, and some producers think plants are not willing to cooperate," Gosey said.

Typical criticism on this count were the following from Nebraska cattlemen.

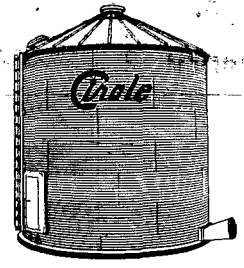

"Most plant managers don't share our interest in retrieving carcass data and I feel if they ever came to share our interest in improving cattle genetically, See BETTER, page 5

Priorities Important in Saving Lawn

Most Nebraskans need go no farther than their front lawns to see the effects of the drought experienced in the state. The home landscape usually has a wide variety of plants and university of Nebraska experts say most are susceptible to some form of drought injury.

Brent Hoadley, district extension horticulturist, points out that a plant's response to drought may be as little as a slowing of growth, or it may be a loss of leaves and burning back of tender new growth.

The specialist recommends that watering priorities be established to insure that costly trees and shrubs survive the dry weather. Hoadley also has several suggestions for care of drought-damaged lawns:

- Do not fertilize trees and shrubs. Do not initiate new growth. Gradually ease into the fall and winter.
- Control disease and insect problems which may add further stress to lawn and landscape plants.
- Do not prune hedges, materials nows. The new growth will not harden off before the winter season.
- After several hard frosts this fall, mulch your landscape plantings. This will help protect crown areas of plants weakened by drought stress. Thoroughly soak the ground around landscape plantings late this fall before the ground freezes.
- An antidesiccant or anti-transpirant could cut down on further moisture losses from evergreen if applied in late fall or early winter.
- Do not waste water in your landscape maintenance program. Apply water only as fast as the soil can absorb it.
- Billbug damaged lawns need watering more frequently just to stay alive.
- Dormant lawns around homes and outbuildings can be a severe fire hazard.
- Fall plantings (lawns and landscape plants) will need regular watering.

Stubble Helps Save Moisture

What can a dryland farmer or rancher do to mitigate the effects of the present drought? One of the few positive actions available was suggested at a meeting of the Nebraska Grain Marketing and Utilization Committee by Dr. D.G. Hanway, chairman of the agronomy department at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

His suggestion was to farm, where possible, in such a way as to conserve every drop of moisture possible for next year's crops. One way, he said, is to leave as much stubble as possible on the ground to catch and hold snow and reduce runoff when it does rain.

"There was more moisture last spring in fields with standing stubble than in filled fields," he said. "If your forage supplies are not critical when you cut drought-damaged or scraggy corn for silage, cut it high, he advised. Any extra snow that can be held the return rate would improve." Another wrote "we found that to get a high percentage of data back that one of our people had to be at the plant to see that the tags were transferred and the data collected before the carcasses were shipped out."

Gosy said one producer even suggested making non-return of data a federal offense.

"Taking the data shouldn't greatly slow down the line at a grain processing plant," Gosy said.

He said compiling the data at stationary rail plants is even less bothersome since graders move through the cattle of their own pace rather than having the animals move by on a chain.

The survey also found that a per cent of those responding think price discrimination and reluctance to bid are practiced against ear tagged cattle, Gosy said.

One producer wrote that "a major shortcoming is the inability of producers or the reluctance of buyers to accept information received on data forms in useful bargaining on market prices."

In any case, he said, the "wisest bag" of comments will spur an emphasis on education and cooperation with the USDA and local and state feeders and cattlemen groups.

"Obviously, a large number of USDA and packing plant personnel are cooperating with producers in the BCDS program and we sincerely appreciate their efforts," Gosy said. "Our mission now is to convince additional people that their program is needed and wanted by producers and would benefit the total beef industry."

American, late in adopting the fork, possibly used knives until after the Civil War. Then special fish and dessert forks were fashionable, and ice cream was eaten with forks.

SILAGE COVERS

Visible top spoilage on trench and stack silos may not appear to be great enough to justify a plastic cover. But some recent studies show that there were losses on uncovered trenches.

With excellent packing, the difference in top spoilage on alfalfa silage was not great enough to justify covering with plastic. When unseen losses (gaseous to seepage losses) were evaluated, a weighted plastic seal proved to be an excellent investment.

In addition to preserving more silage, sealing resulted in a silage that was more palatable. Dairy cows fed the sealed silage ate more silage and produced more milk than those fed silage from the unsealed silo. The difference in the quality of the silage was not detected by either chemical analysis or digestibility studies.

ELM LEAF BEETLES

Elm leaf beetles are about one-fourth-inch long and are yellow and black with a black stripe near the outside of each wing cover. Both the adult and the slug-like larvae are severe defoliators of the American and Chinese elm. Beetles in homes can be picked up with a vacuum cleaner or sprayed directly with a household spray bomb containing either pyrethrum, diazinon or malathion.

FACE FLIES

Face flies closely resemble house flies except they are slightly larger and darker than the house fly. In the fall they enter buildings to hibernate. The best control is to prevent their entry, but the "fly swatter" and several cans of an aerosol bomb containing an insecticide such as one per cent DDVP or one per cent Dibrom should help. Hanging 20 per cent DDVP resin strips in attics, one per 1,000 cubic feet also will help.
