Learning disability (LD) students served by Education Service Unit-1 are capable of reaching the same academic goals as their classmates, they just need to take some different pathways to get there.

Donna Hirt, director of the learning disability division, explained that students served by herself and other resource teachers have average or above average intelligence, but require different teaching methods to reach their full potential.

Possible learning disabilities are brought to the unit's attention most often by teachers who perceive that individual students may not be doing the work they appear capable of.

If parental permission is given, the ESU-1 psychological testing unit and LD division administer tests to determine if a learning disability does exist.

If that is the case, a resource teacher will then begin working to develop methods of instruction, suitable for the student.

Not all schools in the service unit employ the services of the resource teachers. Those that do either have them work directly with the students, or work with the regular classroom teachers to develop alternative teaching methods.

Learning disabilities vary on an individual basis, Mrs. Hirt said, but often students have difficulty in dealing with abstract ideas, or need a formal framework of organization for their studies.

In dealing with those problems, emphasis is often placed on use of visual materials or concrete objects to teach fundamentals before progressing to abstract concepts.

For example, younger children may use cards with raised letters to learn the alphabet. Being able to touch, as well as see the letter involves the whole student, Mrs. Hirt said. She added that such methods are a teaching aid to students with learning disabilities and their classmates alike and are often used as supplemental teaching aids for the entire class.

Because it is fundamental to education, considerable attention in the LD program is paid to the language arts. Techniques successfully employed there can then be carried over into other areas.

Developing an LD program can mean employing some good traditional teaching methods as well as introducing new ones. Students having difficulty with reading often benefit from phonics, the study of letters and letter groupings and rules that govern them.

Many children can learn to read by the sight-word method, Mrs. Hirt said, but many students with learning disabilities can't. Phonics can help them, and may also benefit other students.

Ideas for special materials come from educational magazines, conventions, other teachers, and past experience. Many of the materials suggested or employed by resource teachers can be made by teachers. That helps hold down costs and allows the teacher to adapt them individually.

Materials used include mini-charts, maps, letter cards, and folder game lessons.

Some schools have provided training in LD teaching methods for their teachers and prefer that the teachers apply the special techniques, rather than having resource teachers work directly with LD students. The advantage is that the special methods are applied throughout the regular class time.

Other schools prefer to have resource teachers work directly with students on a regular basis.

Whichever method is used, the goals are the same: to allow every child to perform in school to the best of his or her ability.

MULTIPLICATION GLOVES shown here by Donna Hirt are one of the special teaching methods used by resource teachers to help youngsters with learning disabilities.

Wayne County residents have once again succeeded in surpassing the goal set by volunteers of the county unit of the American Cancer Society for their 1976 crusade.

A total of $4,765 was collected in the county, nearly $500 more than the $4,275 goal set by county chairman.

A breakdown of contributions in the county includes $707.50 from Wayne businesses; $1,076.59 from Wayne residents; $31.14 from Hoskins; $115.57 from Winside, and $99.23 from Carroll. Rural contributions in the county amounted to $1,184.70, and memorial contributions came to $921.

Publicity chairman Mrs. Lester Hansen said $28, from Wayne County residents was sent directly to the American Cancer Society's unit in Omaha. County crusade chairman was Mrs. Clifford Johnson of Wayne. Mrs. Lester Hansen of Wayne was in charge of rural contributions and Keith Mosley, also of Wayne, was downtown chairman.

Other chairmen taking part in the crusade were Mrs. Fred Gildersleeve of Wayne, memorials; Mrs. Rudy Longe of Wakefield, education and Mrs. Dorothy Kabisch of Wayne, service. Mrs. George Macklin of Wayne served as county treasurer.

Although the actual drive is completed, Mrs. Hansen said cancer contributions are accepted year-round.

800 Musicians Expected

Approximately 800 band members are scheduled to appear at the Wayne State College Band Day, Saturday, Sept. 15 according to band day director Dr. Ray Kelton.

Arriving around noon, musicians from 14 area high schools will stage a mass band rehearsal, perform in an afternoon parade and evening program ceremonies, and provide half-time entertainment for the Wayne vs. Northwest Missouri State home game.

The Wayne State College band will be featured in the parade and will lead off nighttime activities in Memorial Stadium with a fanfare, the Wayne State fight song, and a rock rendition, "Sweet Home."

United Way Drive Has New Twists

The United Way drive in Wayne will kick off this year's fund-raising drive Tuesday with several new twists.

The 1976 drive, which is aiming to fund nine different helping organizations with a goal of $15,000, will start at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday with a breakfast for the business community members only.

Unlike past years, the campaign will be divided into two drives, one for the business community and the other for residents in Wayne.

The decision to split the drive was made by the nine-member board of directors earlier this summer in an effort to better canvass the community, said board president Dick Manley.

Like previous campaigns, the drive will extend over a four-week period. The first two weeks will be geared towards the business community and persons employed at Wayne State College, city schools, and city and county governmental agencies.

The second two weeks will begin Oct. 5 with a residential See UNITED WAY, page 6

Winside Okays Hike in Rate For Electricity

Residents in Winside will notice a 10 per cent increase in their electrical rates when their September billing comes out next month.

The village board during its September meeting okayed the hike as a result of a "100 per cent increase in inflation," said village chairman Dallas Puts.

Electrical rates for the first 20 kilowatt hours will be 12 cents. See RATE HIKE page 6

Wayne Crime Rate Lowest in State

Of the 32 cities in Nebraska with a population of over 5,000, Wayne ranked the lowest in the number of major crimes reported in 1975, according to figures released by the Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

Crime rate statistics are based on the number of murders, manslaughters, rapes, robberies, burglaries, felony assaults, larcenies and motor vehicle thefts reported to police. The statistics are compiled by the commission.

In Wayne, a total of 25 major crimes were reported to police. Most of the reported crimes, 17, were larcenies.

The number of major crimes in Wayne during 1975 (4.2 per 1,000 population) was a marked decrease from 1974 when Wayne had 67, or 14.7 crimes per 1,000 population. The reason for the decrease, said police chief Vern Fairchild, was "aggressive patrol" by his staff of seven officers.

Crime reported in Wayne County also was among the lowest in the state. Reports from the sheriff and police offices show that there were about four crimes reported for each 1,000 population in 1975. Of the 84 counties which reported crimes, Wayne ranked 58th.

Larcenies again headed the list in the number of crimes reported in the county. During 1975, 27 of the 44 reported crimes were thefts, the reports show, however, that figure is far below the 83 larcenies reported in 1974.

The number of major crimes increased both in Dixon and Cedar Counties. Eighty-two crimes were reported in Dixon County in 1974, compared to 101 for 1975. The jump represents a 14.5 per cent increase, according to the report.

In Cedar County, the crime rate rose from 1.4 per thousand to 5.8 per thousand for 1975. The number of crimes reported in 1974 was 52. The following year, 65 major crimes were reported. Dixon County's increase in crime boosted them to 22nd among the counties reporting. Cedar County was 58th.

The city with the highest rate of crime in the 5,000 and over category was South Sioux City. The Northeast Nebraska community of 8,992 averaged 85 crimes per 1,000 population. Omaha was second with a rate of 60.3, followed by North Platte. See CRIME, page 6

Wakefield School Bid Let

A Beatrice firm last week was awarded the contract for construction of the new Wakefield junior-senior high school.

C & R Construction's base bid of $919,000 was the lowest of six firms bidding for the project. Ote Construction of Wayne submitted the next lowest bid of $957,524.

A groundbreaking ceremony is scheduled for 1 p.m. Tuesday, in accepting the construction bid, the Wakefield board of education voted to include a pair of alternate bids, for an enlarged shop area, and for higher quality lockers. Those alternatives bring the total contract price to $963,045.

Estimated construction time is 330 days.

School district voters May 11 approved a $990,000 bond issue to finance construction of the new school, which will be located adjacent to the present elementary school.

Adult Smokers Tapering Off, Teenagers Are Puffing More

Smoking appears to be on the decline in Wayne County, but only among adults.

Among teenagers, especially girls in the 13 to 17 age group, it is increasing.

Such are the findings, based upon nationwide surveys conducted by governmental and private health organizations. They point to a marked drop in the percentage of adults who continue to smoke cigarettes and a cutback in consumption on the part of many others.

—Their figures show, for the United States as a whole, that only 39.3 percent of men over 21 are smokers now, as against 42.2 percent in 1970 and 52.4 percent in 1954, when the Surgeon-

General's anti-smoking campaign began.

As for the women over 21, some 28.9 percent now smoke, compared with 30.5 percent in 1970 and 31.5 percent in 1964.

Quite different is the trend among younger people. The number of girl smokers in the 13 to 17 age bracket has increased by a half-million in the last five years. One-fourth of them smoke, and of these, 40 percent consume more than a pack a day.

In Wayne County, based upon a breakdown of the figures, approximately 1,004,000 packs of cigarettes were sold in the past year. The findings are from data compiled by the Public Health Service, the American Cancer Society and others.

Related to Wayne County's population over age 18, the consumption was at the rate of 168 packs per person. Elsewhere in the United States, by way of comparison, the average was 198 packs and, in the West North Central States, 176.

The attitude toward smoking, by those who indulge and those who do not, has changed considerably in the last few years. The Public Health Service finds, among the smokers themselves, there have been more determined attempts, some successful and some not, to stop See SMOKING, page 6

Chamber Names Board Members

The board of directors of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce Wednesday named three new board members.

They are Glen Ellingson, Darrell Moore and Steve Schumacher, who will replace Roy Hurd, Willis Meyer and William Workman when their three-year terms expire in January.

Ellingson, one of the latest businessmen to join the Chamber, owns and operates Ellingson Motors Inc. in Wayne. Moore works for Marra Home Improvement and Schumacher is part owner of Hixcox-Schumacher Funeral Home in Wayne.

Before the new members take their seats on the nine-member board, the Chamber will hold its election of officers for the 1977 year during its Oct. 13th meeting. Positions which will be open are president-elect, occupied by Hurd; Nelson, who will replace Hurd as president, and treasurer, now held by Meyer.

Also on the board are Larry Johnson, Al Whiting, Gerald Bolenkamp, Dean Pierson and Charles Surber. John Johnson, Nelson and Whiting's terms expire at the end of next year; Bolenkamp, Pierson and Surber end their terms in 1978.

City Taxi Will Begin New Hours

New hours of operation for the Wayne city taxi go into effect today (Monday).

City administrator, Fred Brink, said the taxi service will switch to an afternoon schedule, operating from 1 to 4 p.m. Hours had been 9 a.m. until noon, Brink said, but surveys have indicated that the taxi would be used more if operated in the afternoon.

The city taxi was operated on a 40-hour a week schedule when initiated but usage during a six-month trial period was not sufficient to warrant full-time service, the city council decided.

The new hours of operation will be effective Monday through Friday each week. Telephone number for the service is 375-1733.

Pastor, Wife Honored For Two Occasions

Members of the Theophilus Church held a dinner Sunday, Sept. 5, honoring the Rev. and Mrs. George Francis.

The occasion marked Francis' 50th wedding anniversary and the 25th anniversary of his ordination. Rev. and Mrs. Francis were married Aug. 24, 1946, and were ordained on Aug. 18, 1951.

Mrs. Francis, the former Wilma Wondercheck of Atkinson, received three years of training for the ministry at Milwaukie, Kan. On Aug. 24, 1946, she married George Francis of Spencer. The couple was married by the Rev. G.M. Hubby, a former pastor of the Wesleyan Church in Wayne.

Following her marriage, Mrs. Francis attended her fourth year of schooling at God's Bible School in Cincinnati, Ohio, where Mr. Francis was in his second year of training. After attending God's Bible School for two years, Mr. Francis finished the remaining four-year course by correspondence.

On Aug. 18, 1956, Francis was ordained together at Ansley Campgrounds.

Pastor and Mrs. Francis ministered at Page from 1948 to 1953. From 1953 to 1956, Rev. Mr. Francis was pastor at a church in Plattsmouth and Rev. Mr. Francis ministered at LaPlatte.

Rev. Mr. Francis pastored at Tryon from 1956 to 1958 and at Napoleon from 1958 to 1960. From 1960 until 1964 he was pastor at a church in Neligh. From 1964 to 1970, Rev. Mr. Francis served a church at Venus and Rev. Mrs. Francis was minister in a church at Page.

UN-L Specialist Will Introduce Program to Improve Family Relationships

Representatives of area home extension clubs will be attending a workshop in Wayne on Wednesday, Sept. 22, aimed at developing programs to improve family relationships.

The all-day meeting will be held at the city auditorium. Registration is from 9:15 to 9:45 a.m., and lunch will be served.

The meeting, which has the theme, "Enriching Family Relationships—Impact '77," is being co-sponsored by the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs.

Sign-up meetings will be conducted at Grand Island, Omaha, McCook, Crete, Chadron and Broken Bow, bringing together representatives of more than 2,000 home extension clubs in the state.

Dr. Ron Daly, extension family life specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will be conducting the workshops.

"I intend these meetings to be strategic planning sessions," Daly said. "Participants will be exploring a variety of programs we have available in our extension family life program and developing a plan to use these programs in their local clubs and communities."

The auxiliary program of learning materials developed by Daly, entitled "Enriching Relationships," it discusses ways of building stronger relationships with friends, relatives or business associates, and are designed to be presented to a group by a leader.

"Another program to be discussed will be 'In Touch.' This is a series of four half-hour television programs developed by Daly. The series stresses ways husbands and wives can communicate more effectively and actually involves married couples working with Daly. The program is scheduled to be aired in 1977.

The extension family life specialist said meeting participants will be planning local programs such as family life fairs, poster contests and other activities that carry out the theme of enriching family relationships.

"No one in Nebraska is isolated from the many problems facing families today," Daly emphasized. "When you talk about issues such as divorce, alcoholism, and simply the changing patterns of family life, you're really talking about problems that have an influence on every family in the state."

Mrs. Robert Elliott of Hartington, family life leader of the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs, is assisting with workshop arrangements and will be welcoming participants. County and area extension home economists and other resource persons will also be in attendance.

More information about the "Impact '77" workshop is available at the local county Extension office.

Patterson Accepts CSIC Post

Dr. Norris Patterson of William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., has accepted the position as commissioner of the Central States Intercollegiate Conference, Dr. Brendan McDonald, president of Kearney State College and conference president, announced Friday.

Dr. Patterson, who was appointed to the position effective Sept. 1, has retained his position as chairman of the physical education department and assistant development officer at William Jewell.

"We anticipate that Dr. Patterson's duties as commissioner of the Central States conference will not be so demanding that he will have to relinquish his present positions at William Jewell," McDonald said.

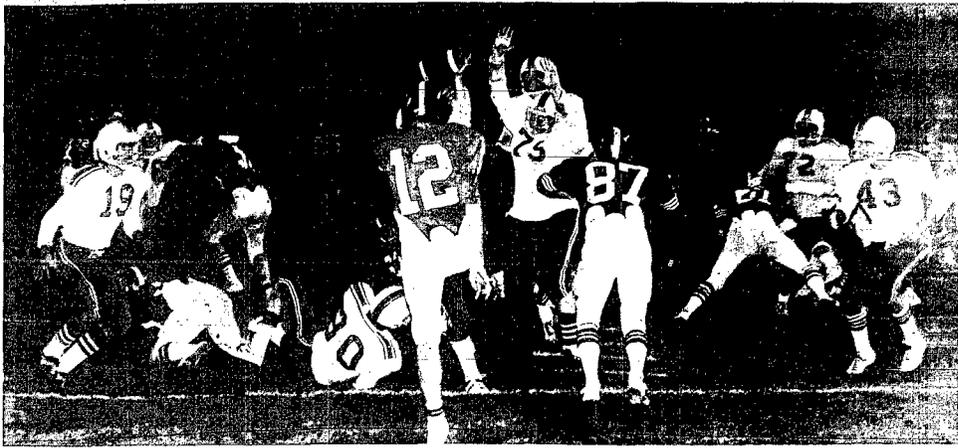

"Since we in the new conference are affiliating with NAIA and following NAIA guidelines as we form the new league, and since we have previously associated with the NAIA for more than a decade, we feel fortunate in obtaining a man of his stature to become the league's first commissioner."

Dr. Patterson is athletic director and football coach at William Jewell for 19 years (his football team's record—131-28-8) athletic director at Emporia State one year, and athletic director at United States International University (Calif.) for five years before returning to William Jewell in 1975.

"Patterson is known to thousands of NAIA basketball tournament spectators, coaches and players as he has worked at the annual March championships for more than 30 years. Last March he was presented the Frank Cramer Award at the tourney for "the man who has contributed greatly to the annual tournament."

Members of the Central States Conference include Missouri Western, St. Joseph; Missouri Southern, Joplin; Kansas members Washburn, Topeka, Fort Hays State, Emporia State, Kansas State, Pittsburg, and Nebraska's Kearney State and Wayne State.

This year the conference members will compete for championships in football, and basketball for men, and volleyball and basketball for women. Additional championships for men and women will be conducted if live or more of the conference schools participate.

Passing Game Proves Fatal for Devils

By DAN VODVARKA
The word is out this fall about how to move the football against the Wayne Blue Devils — pass, pass and then pass some more.

A week ago Blair invaded Memorial Stadium on the Wayne State campus and shocked the hosts with three touchdown passes and a 21-0 win. Friday night, West Husker Conference, Jeff Beckman threw one better as the Gators burned the Devil pass defense for four touchdowns and a 28-21 win.

The Devils, now 1-2 on the year, have allowed seven touchdowns through the air in three games and none on the ground. The Gators picked up their first win of the season and are also now 1-2. The Wayne coaches will now have two weeks to try and regroup their forces as the Devils have an open weekend coming up with a trip to Tekamah Herman on Oct. 1.

Wayne coach Don Koenig pointed to Wayne's inability to get to Beckman consistently with a strong rush as Wayne's biggest problem with Wisner's passing game. "He (Beckman) was also a much better passer than we had thought," Koenig pointed out. "He was a lot more accurate than we expected."

The second loss of the season for the Devils all but eliminates them from any playoff contention. "It's been a long time since we have lost two games in a row and it looks now like our role the rest of the season will be that of a spoiler," Koenig pointed out.

On the steady arm of junior signal caller Jeff Beckman, the invaders moved for 239 yards through the air Friday in stunning the Devils.

Wayne struck pay dirt as early as possible as senior Mark Brandt returned to the opening kickoff up the middle for 85 yards and six points to open the game. The return was his second long TD scamper of the young season for Brandt. Tom Nissen booted all the PAT's for the hosts.

Brandt's stunning run, however, didn't impress Wisner much as the Gators marched 67 yards on five plays the first time they touched the ball with Beckman hitting 185-pound junior end Jeff Heindorf for the final 12 yards and a TD. Mark McGill handled the kicking honors successfully for the Gators all night.

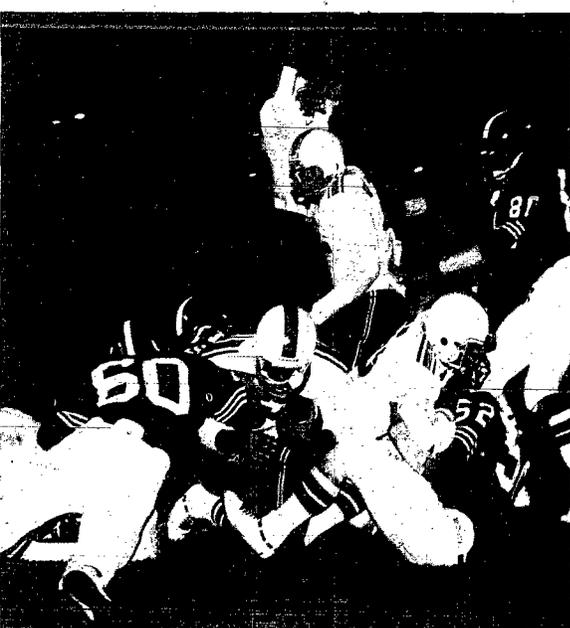

Minutes later the Gators were again back in business after a short Wayne punt and a good return put the ball on the Wayne 31. Two plays later Beckman was back to pass and this time it was 170-pound junior end Jim Raabe's turn as he snagged a pass between Wayne defensive backs Mark Victor and Brad Emry for a 27-yard TD pass.

After an exchange of the ball, Wayne began the longest drive of the night as the Devils marched 66 yards in just under seven minutes on 17 plays to score on a Tom Ginn quarterback sneak and tie the game at 14-14 with 7:21 left in the half.

Beckman and company, however, were still content with going to the locker room with a tie at half. Taking the ball on their own 41, the Gators marched to score before the half on 11 plays with a Beckman to Raabe pass getting the final nine yards and the points. Beckman in the first half hit on seven of eight passes for 125 yards and three touchdowns.

Emry got a big break for Wayne early in the third quarter when the sophomore picked off a Beckman pass and returned it to the Wisner 20. Six plays later Ginn snuck over from three yards out to knot the score.

Late in the third period Wisner forced Wayne to punt out of its own end zone and the Gators got the ball on the Devil 31. From there Beckman drove to Gators to the 20 where he WAYNE'S TOM GINN dives in for Wayne's second touchdown of the night during second quarter action. The Blue Devils quarterback scored twice Friday night on quarterback sneaks but could not stop Wisner-Pilger from pulling off a 28-21 upset of the host Devils.

Freshmen Topple Pierce

Runningback Jeff Zeiss scored two touchdowns and Hugh Jaeger added another Thursday afternoon to lead Wayne freshmen to a 20-6 drubbing of visiting Pierce.

Zeiss scored the Blue Devils' final touchdowns on plunges of four and five yards. The speedster put Wayne's second six points of the first period on the scoreboard with a five-yard run, capping a 42-yard drive in 12 plays. With minutes left in the game, Zeiss dove into the end zone to cap a short drive.

Jaeger opened Wayne's scoring three times into the game when he took a handoff from quarterback Jeff Dion and followed his line on an end sweep which covered seven yards.

The frosh scored their only two-point conversion following the last touchdown when Danny Mitchell zipped across the goal-line.

"It's always good to win your first game," said coach Curt Frey. Thursday afternoon the freshmen encounter Emerson-Hubbard at the Pirates' field.

Guessers' Top Selections

Myers Blocked Punt, Field Goal Lifts Trojans to Win

Senior Brooks Myers scored on a blocked punt and booted a 13-yard field goal Friday night to lead unbeaten Wakefield to a 9-0 upset win over visiting Dodge.

Myers put the Trojans on the scoreboard with about 15 minutes left in the opening frame when he blocked a punt by Dodge's Tony Uher on the Pirates' five-yard line and ran it in for a 6-0 lead. The margin stayed the same for the remainder of the half after a pass from Myers to Dan Gustafson missed its target on the two-point conversion attempt.

Myers kicked the ball through the uprights for the final score. "We don't care about the (state playoff) standings," said Wakefield boss John Torczon after his club racked up its third shutout victory. "All we're thinking about is Madison next week," he added.

Praising Dodge's offense, Torczon noted that the 21-191 rates are a fine team. "We just made some breaks and hung on for our life."

The first break came in the first period when the Trojans opened the game with two nifty aeriels for a 54-yard gain and first and goal situation for Dodge's nine-yard line.

A halfback pass from Byers to Jeff Simpson covered 30 yards before sophomore quarterback Todd Swigart came back with a 24-yard aerial to Wes Lueft. A Dodge interception ended the goalfine thwarted Wakefield's first chance to score. But the defense dug in to force Dodge to punt on fourth and long where Myers stepped in to score.

Wakefield's defense played havoc with Dodge's air game as the Trojans picked off three of Stiefensmeier's passes. Byers grabbed his second interception of the night when in the fourth period he made a one-handed theft, good for 11 yards and a first down on the Pirates' 14-yard line. Earlier, freshman Scott Hallstrom nabbed a pass and returned it 23 yards to Dodge's 28-yard line.

Byers and Myers combined for 109 yards rushing. Byers, who scampered 54 yards in the final minutes of play, collected 67 yards on 16 carries and Myers, who kept Wakefield in this game in the first half with 40 yards on six totes, finished with 42 yards on eight carries.

Defensively, Torczon credited the plays of Byers and sophomore Tony Henschke who had 12 and 10 takeaways each. Craig Nelson and Myers had seven each.

NU Grid Fans: Watch Where Cars Are Parked

Remember, football fans, if you park your vehicle illegally on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus while you attend a game in Memorial Stadium, chances are that it won't be there when you return.

The low-in policy to remove illegally parked vehicles will be enforced again this year, according to John Duve, NU parking coordinator. The policy was started last year to assure the availability of emergency service to the University area and to minimize the damage done in previous years to University and city property.

"With the population of the NU Lincoln campus exceeding 100,000 on any given football Saturday, the potential for emergencies is much greater," Duve said. "It is of the utmost importance that emergency personnel and equipment have free access in cases of such emergencies as heart attacks, personal injuries, and fires during the game."

Vehicles parked on the grass, on sidewalks, in driveways or in other posted illegal areas will be towed away and impounded. They will be released when the driver appears at the holding lot, 1100 North 17th St., and pays the $25 towing fee, Duve said.

Most University parking lots are open to football fans at noon. In addition, 250 stalls at 21st and Vine and 2500 stalls near the western edge of the fairground at 14th and Military are recommended parking areas. The athletic department provides free bus service from the lots near the fairground to and from the stadium beginning at noon.

"We had excellent cooperation from the fans last year," Duve said. "During the seven games, 159 cars were towed by university police."

Oil divestiture outlines

If you don't think life is complicated, the teacher said, challenging his class to thoughtful speculation, think a moment about the lowly function of the traffic light.

That was some ago, of course.

Today, if you want to speculate on complexities, the historic landing of the U.S. unmanned spacecraft on Mars is hard to beat. After an 11-month voyage, the three-legged Viking settled softly on the rocky terrain. Within minutes it began sending sharp photographs back to earth over a distance of 213 million miles.

Space scientists understand how radio signals accomplish this magical feat. We don't. Happily, we can go about our daily business, marveling over the entire mission fully confident the scientist knows what they are doing.

But can we trust our politicians to know what they are doing when they begin meddling with the structure, operations and finances of one of the world's most vital and technically advanced industries?

Yet, this is precisely the kind of blind faith Americans are asked to place in Congress, which is thinking of breaking up the nation's 18 largest oil companies into hundreds of separate companies.

Called vertical divestiture, the proposal would put an end to integrated companies and the current system's economies from the smooth flow of oil production from the oil wells to consumers in a series of coordinated activities.

Major companies would be forced to pick a single segment of activity — production, refining and marketing or transportation — and to stay out of other or face possible fines up to $1 million for each violation.

There is no blueprint or precedent for such a vast undertaking.

According to the Minority Report of the Senate Judiciary Committee, the financial, physical and technological ramifications are mind-boggling. In 1974, the 18 companies had total assets of $163 billion, long-term debt of $21 billion, gross operating revenues of $208 billion and operating costs and expenditures of $168 billion.

Some three million stockholders hold $81 billion worth of stock and are uncertain as to what will happen. The jobs of nearly 700,000 workers also are involved. They want to know: Who will end up working for whom? Where? For how much? What about pensions?

Some 104 refineries producing 11.4 million barrels of petroleum products a day somehow must be reorganized at a time when the nation's need for an uninterrupted flow of energy was never greater.

Not only the oil companies but business generally is alarmed. What business is next? Will it be television? Computers? Autos?

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States calls the proposed divestiture a "way station" on the road to nationalization of industry.

If Congress passes the bill, the Chamber predicts:

Even more shortages of energy supplies.

Higher prices for petroleum products.

The beginning of piece-meal dismemberment of other major industries.

The public must ask itself if Humpty Dumpty comes crashing down, can Congress put him back together? — U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786.

STRAY Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

Let me tell you, folks, it's darned embarrassing having to tell the doc you're having trouble with a knee because you went to a disco Saturday night.

It's like this: I've got this tick knee which has bugged me on and off since I was about 10. Kay and I spent last weekend in Lincoln, marrying off one of her cousins. Saturday night her sister and her friend took us and Kay's brother and wife to one of their favorite watering holes. Had a good time dancing, but Sunday morning I could hardly walk.

It wouldn't be so bad if I had a really good reason for it. It might be a nice conversation piece if I could limp around for awhile and explain "I got that in the big game against so-and-so back in '66," or claim "Cape buffalo nipped me on my last safari just before I dropped the bighorn."

But somehow it just doesn't sound as good as say "Yeah, I really wrecked the old knee at a disco last weekend."

It was an interesting weekend in other ways, too. Kay drove to Lincoln, and got warned about her head foot on the way out of town.

After we got to Lincoln Friday night, I dropped her off at her brother's place. She gave me the address of the church and I took off for wedding rehearsal. (I was a groomsmen.)

Trouble is, she wrote D St. when she should have put B St.

Needless to say, I didn't find the church in time for rehearsal. I did find a fellowship hall and a nice group of people, but they didn't know anything about a wedding.

During a couple of hours "remember what" at the wedding reception we recalled exploring the Little Blue River, riding our bikes down a back road so we could find dud fire crackers beneath a highway overpass and light the powder, and the time I stepped on a wood pecker's beak.

I hasten to add that the bird was no longer attached, apparently having fallen victim to some neighborhood cat or other. Funny thing is, Don thought he was the one who had suffered the punctured foot. Sympathetic him, perhaps. That's what you call real friendship.

Ah, but it's fun to remember.

As long as I'm on the subject of discos, I might as well admit: they are not for me, anyway.

First, I really can't get into disco music. It all sounds the same to me. (I hesitate to admit that, "cause I seem to remember my parents telling me the same thing a few years ago.)

After a lengthy absence from the dance floor, Kay asked her sister's fella "Aren't you going to dance any more."

"Sure, as soon as they play something I like," was his reply.

Kay's brother and I looked at each other incredulously, and asked the same question. "How do you know when they're playing something you like?"

There were a couple of bright spots. I didn't do anything wrong during the wedding. Afterward, at the reception I discovered the presence of my oldest friend.

He had been in another wedding shortly before, then came to the reception for the one I was in. Turns out his wife is a cousin to the bride.

Kay had her usual laugh when we called each other "Jimmie" and "Donnie" but then, we have been friends since we were three.

I can still remember that first meeting. Don's parents had moved in across the street from mine, and Mom took me over to meet the new neighbors.

We both hid behind our mothers and sort of peaked around, but we were more or less thrown together and soon became inseparable.

We spent most of our Huck Finn days together — that period in our adventure was everywhere and time had little meaning, much to the chagrin of our mothers.

Heading South

I'll be renewing some more old friendships by the time many of you read this. You might have noticed the car cartoon in the weather box on Thursday's front page said "Back in two weeks."

I won't be gone quite that long, but my vacation starts this week and I'll be turning the editorial reins over to Bob Bartlett.

Kay and I will be heading for country where they say "Y'all" and eat grits and biscuits with red-eye gravy for breakfast. Scheduled stops include St. Louis, Memphis, Nashville, Bowling Green, Ken- and Ft. Knox, where Kay was born and has relatives.

Just hope I don't have any trouble getting her to wear shoes again after we get back.

At any rate, we're looking forward to it, and we'll see y'all in a couple of weeks.

Labor strikes add to food costs

The selective blindness of so-called "consumer protection" groups "who remain oddly silent when labor strikes leave thousands of tons of fresh fruit to rot on the ground" has been scored by a national farm leader.

Alton Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, speaking before a citizenship seminar at Brookings, S.D. said that many consumer-protection groups are "little more than fronts for organized labor."

"They do not reflect consumer views or offer true consumer protection. Rather, they reflect the aims of organized labor and serve its causes by their conveniently controlled tunnel vision, and strange silence, whenever food price-boosting actions are made by labor."

"Their credibility is destroyed by consistent failure to investigate, or to make public disclosure, of the lion's share of the growing food marketing spread taken by labor," Grant said.

The loss of thousands of tons of ripe fruit and vegetables due to the teamster strike at processing plants in California, Grant said, will touch another round of retail food price hikes for peaches, apricots, pears and tomatoes in the months ahead.

The farm leader added that labor already accounts for 51 per cent of all farm food marketing costs, with packaging the next largest cost at 12 per cent, followed by transportation at 8 per cent. He said "if no coincidence" that some of the professional consumer advocacy groups and federations have labor unions as members and sponsors.

"When have you ever seen a report from a consumer 'protection' group — by any name — pointing out the increased living costs to all consumers caused by union featherbedding, makerwork rules, or excessive wage demands without increased productivity?" Grant asked.

"The convenient blindness extends to inflation which robs the poor, those on fixed incomes and retired people," Grant said. He noted that many consumer advocates strong support expanded programs of deficit government spending, which he called the prime cause of inflation and high living costs.

"Why, in all of the so-called accountability projects aimed at others, have we not heard of one aimed at the actions of labor monopoly, of big government? Instead, fingers are pointed elsewhere — at farmers, or industry," Grant said.

used at the late election. We plead guilty to the charge and propose to do the same, thing again. If the occasion offers, and anyone wishes to pay for that kind of work. Previous to the election we received orders for a great variety of tickets, some ten or eleven different styles, and the persons ordering them paid for the same. We believe in equal rights, and one privilege every citizen has, to-wit: the right to vote for the man or men of his choice, and if he wishes to save time to do so. We shall always print anything ordered with our facilities, which does not come in conflict with the law, just as long as we have a printing office and anyone can be found willing to patronize it in this particular instance. None of the printing was done in secret or with closed doors, and no particular kind of ticket was issued without being seen by one or more who was adverse to at least a portion of the same."

Addison, one-time newspaperman in Madison County and at Chadron, was director of the Nebraska State Historical Society in 1923 when he described ballot-printing procedures as he recalled them before passage of the Australian Ballot Act.

"Forty years ago the Republican County Committee of . . . (Otoe) county ordered forty thousand republican tickets printed, dividing the job between the five republican newspaper in the county. Present day voters are thus reminded of the system of furnishing ballots unknown to many of them. The editor of the magazine (Sheldon) well remembers receiving an order for his share of the tickets in the form of tickets in Madison county nearly forty years ago and of waiting two years for his pay." — Nebraska History, January-March, 1923.

YOU AND YOUR CAR

By the Automotive Information Council

A motorist no longer drives by gas alone.

For most of the four score years that the automobile has been on the American scene, an owner has been able to cruise to any destination at any time — as long as there was fuel in the tank, oil in the crankcase, liquid in the radiator and air in the tires.

Today, just isn't that simple anymore, says the Automotive Information Council. The car manufacturers, as well as the independent service people who help keep the cars running, try to lighten the responsibilities of their customers.

However, the driver of today has taken on responsibilities that were never even considered by his father or grandfather. Of course, safety and traffic laws have always been associated with proper motoring. But, until a half dozen years ago, who worried about pollution? And if he had only been in the last couple of years, World War II excepted, that we had to wonder if the gasoline supply might be running low.

Today's driver can probably continue to go his way and forget about clean air and the evaporation of fuel but he's only grounding himself. Unless he takes on added responsibility, the government is ready to step in and severely limit his mobility.

A steady gas rationing play limiting the average licensed driver to 10 gallons a week has been readied in the event overseas supplies stop flowing. There is talk of closing gasoline stations on weekends and parking bans in urban areas where space already is at a premium.

Nobody really wants rationing and it's hoped the public will conserve fuel on a voluntary basis. Nobody wants impure air either and here again the 125 million American motorists can do their part. It's really very simple to comply and enhance your driving pleasure in the process.

The magic word is "tuneup" but there is nothing mysterious about it. Your car will run farther on less fuel and it will run cleaner. The payoff in your wallet or purse is obvious.

Tuning your car is not an expensive operation. The average cost to have it done is $40 and many car owners can do the job themselves.

Voting for political candidates a century ago was not the precise operation it is today. Before the passage of the Australian Ballot Act of 1891, Nebraskans voted in general elections by ballots which encouraged party irregularity and sometimes intimidation or corruption. A "straight ticket" ballot containing only partisan candidates was privately printed by each party county central committee. Should a voter oppose a candidate on his list, he "scratched" the ticket by pen-ciling out the offensive person's name.

Independent politicians might even prepare a "split ticket" with a combination of candidates from the established parties or from no party at all. Ballots were carried to the polling place by the individual voter. In the absence of printing facilities, ballots might be hand-written.

In 1891 the Legislature passed the Australian Ballot Act "to promote the independence of voters — at public elections, to enforce the secrecy of the ballot, and to provide for printing and distribution of ballots, at public expense." All party slates were printed on a single sheet, but still candidates of each party were listed together in long columns. A blank column was provided for write-ins. X's in squares or open spaces following candidates indicated the voter's choices. It was assumed that more discriminating voters might result by giving "good" men on all tickets a better chance of election.

The Nemaha County Granger at Auburn in March of 1891 believed the new law was the answer to all election irregularities. "The Australian ballot bill," he suggested, "such as have been in the habit heretofore of acting the part of ward politicians, strikers, hired men, etc., that they would better crawl into a hole when election day comes and pull the hole in . . . for the first thing, you know you will find the violations of law that you have heretofore winked at will confront you in a shape that will make your teeth chatter."

By 1897 the Legislature moved back to a more partisan position by passing the "blanket ballot" law to provide for a circle and emblem of the party (eagle, Republican; rooster, Democrat; rose, Prohibitionist, etc.) at the head of each party's slate. By placing an X in the circle, the voter could once again cast his ballot "straight." He could, of course, choose from among candidates in different columns, but this was difficult for unsophisticated (or even illiterate) voters who found no difficulty remembering an eagle or a rooster. Later the ballot was again modified and candidates for a special office were placed together with the party name after each. A special compartment with party names and circles was provided for those wishing to vote a straight ticket. This type of ballot remained in use in Nebraska into the 1920's and some states still permit its use.

Political reporting has always produced newspaper readership, and many papers in territorial and early statehood years were little more than partisan sheets — as files maintained in the Nebraska State Historical Society attest. An example of electioneering showing a remarkable degree of independence was reported in the Red Cloud Chief on Oct. 31, 1871, by Editor C.L. Mathew.

"I hear it stated that some two or three parties were considerably indignant because we printed 'split tickets' to be

Maskenthine Flood Control Dam Completed

Formal inspection of the flood control structure on the Maskenthine Flood Control and Recreation Area was held September 3, 1976, at the site one mile north of Stanton, Nebraska.

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District General Manager Steve Oltmans reviewed the project with Soil Conservation Service Engineers Merle Yelkin and Syd Haakenstad, and General Contractor, Theisen Brothers of Norfolk, Nebraska.

The structure required the movement of over 200,000 cubic yards of earth fill and more than fourty acres of grass seeding.

The funding for the $300,000 flood control structure is being shared by a 75 per cent grant from the Resources Development Fund administered by the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission and 25 per cent by the Lower Elkhorn NRD.

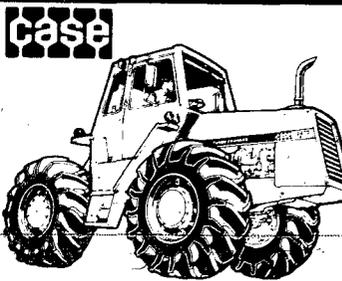

The NRD is now watering the new seeding to insure its survival in the general drought conditions in Northeast Nebraska. Recreation development will continue through 1977 and 1978.

U.S. Farms Big by Japanese Standards

Anyone who thinks the price of Nebraska farm land has been climbing out of sight in recent years should take a look at some Japanese rice land — at $13,000 an acre.

Of course, a 10-acre farm is considered fairly large, according to Hajime Sano, a Japanese farmer staying with the Dwayne Rethwisch family west of Wayne as part of an international

Four-H Youth Exchange (IFYE) program.

Sano is from near Amomri, about 500 miles north of Tokyo on the northern tip of Japan's main island, Honshu.

Hokkaido, Japan's northern most major island is 30 miles away across the Tauguru Straits.

The Sano farm is located in roughly the same latitude as Nebraska and Sano revealed that the weather is similar, although somewhat wetter and colder than here.

Winter temperatures drop to as low as 30 degrees Fahrenheit below zero and there is plenty of snow for skiing in nearby mountain.

Summer highs are in the 95 degree range and average precipitation is around 1,000 centimeters, or roughly 39 inches.

The 21 year old visitor will continue farming with his father until he returns home in October. The Sano farm is 14.8 acres, mainly rice and eggplants. By Japanese standards, that is a large farm.

Until a couple of years ago, the Sano's planted individual rice seeds by hand, but now use a drill. Harvesting is done with small combines with two, three or four foot cutters.

Most of the harvesting on smaller farms is done by cutting either by hand or with a cutter, then shocking the grain and threshing it.

Eggplant seeds are raised in a greenhouse and sprouts are planted in the field.

Rice is combined at about 22 or 25 per cent moisture content, then dried to 15 or 16 per cent. Rice yields about 2,400 kilograms or approximately 5,280 pounds per acre. Average price is around $30 for 100 pounds.

The average farm is about four acres, Sano said, with anything more than 10 acres considered large. By the same token, a 30-head beef operation is big.

Live weight prices are generally from $4 to $5 a pound. Production costs, however, are also expensive compared with American prices.

Diesel fuel costs about 80 cents a gallon and gasoline sells for $1.50 a gallon.

Sano arrived in the United States May 19 to begin his six-month IFYE tour. He was a guest on a number of California farms until August when he arrived in Lancaster County. Since then he has attended a 4-H camp at Halsey, and stayed with a Thurston County farm family.

At the creek, he will return to the Rethwisch family will attend an IFYE host family weekend camp at Halsey, Sept. 27 through Oct. 9. Sano will stay with the Jim Volk family at Bathie Creek. He will then meet a fellow IFYE traveler in Chicago, stop at Niagara Falls, N.Y., New York City, and Washington, D.C. before beginning the journey home Oct. 21. A four-day stopover in Hawaii is scheduled.

From Sano's revelations about Japanese farming it is understandable that the size of American farms is amazing. Commenting on a farm in California,

Sano said, "A 2,500-acre rice farm? I don't understand."

The young Japanese farmer is a graduate of the Amomri Prefectural Kangi High School, and has been affiliated with the 4-H for four years.

HAJIME SANO, touring farms as part of an International Four-H Youth Exchange program; is interested in mechanized farming and is shown above examining a silage cutter (left) and with host Dwayne Rethwisch, looking at a feed wagon. American farms and machinery are huge by Japanese standards.
