

'Key to Getting Improvement District Rolling is Harmony'

ROBERT CARHART

The feeling among members of the five-man committee for the downtown improvement district is that the priorities are set to begin upgrading the business district.

Number one on their list is "new sidewalks and second is parking." However, another priority has crept up from last week's meeting with businessmen — settle the shifting feelings by businessmen who argue that parking should be first and new sidewalks second.

Tuesday's meeting attended by 30 businessmen erupted into a divisional battle about which project should top the list for improving the downtown community.

Committee co-chairman Robert Carhart of Carhart Lumber Co., said in an interview Friday that he feels the priorities should be left. All through earlier meetings this summer with city businessmen the feeling was that new sidewalks were the most important item to consider, Carhart said.

The problem now is that some are not seeing the total picture of new sidewalks, he went on. Included are new lightpoles, curbs and gutters which will determine what is going to happen to Main Street and side streets, he said.

Co-chairman Roger Nelson echoed Carhart's feelings that the priorities should remain the same. He said the parking problem will take more study. In the meantime, businessmen could get the ball rolling to improve the downtown shopping area by building new sidewalks.

Contractor Kenneth Scott of Osceola told the group of businessmen that work could begin as early as April if they decide to go ahead with the project of building new storefronts. For that reason, Nelson is urging businessmen to settle their differences before the committee presents its final list of recommendations to the city council for approval.

"We are seeing too many communities of our size which are going downhill" because of the lack of downtown improvement," Nelson said.

making plans now, development of the business area might end up being pushed back several years.

"Walking through the open house at Wayne Federal (last week) made me aware that people do like nice things and will take care of them," March observed about the recent completion of the savings and loan association's new facility located on the southeast corner of Third and Main Streets.

March noted that sidewalks are real important now. Parking space also plays an important part. "With Sioux City and Norfolk surrounding us, more people are going to be aware of traveling to newer shopping areas" rather than shopping in Wayne," March said, pointing out that Wayne shouldn't wait too much longer to start work on downtown improvement.

The other two committeemen, Dale Gutshall and Dr. Wayne Wessel, agree that sidewalks and parking were high on the lists of priorities, but weren't ready to make sidewalks the No. one topic.

Dr. Wessel, a local dentist, said the committee must first have a program which is acceptable to a large majority of the downtown businessmen. "While storefronts, streets, sidewalks, parking, etc., are important I feel attitudes and pride in an area are also quickly noticeable," he emphasized.

"Many people fear change, especially when they don't have any idea what that change may bring or what it may cost. To remove these fears, we must have factual information available to all persons involved, and we must have input from all concerned persons so that all questions can be considered," Wessel added.

Besides creating more parking places and building new sidewalks where necessary, Wessel also said businessmen should look at methods of dressing up existing storefronts, agree on types of signs to be used for storefronts and use suggested types of frontage for new construction so that it would blend with or be compatible with existing structures.

Gutshall, who owns Dale's Jewelry, was leaning towards parking as his first priority, and new sidewalks as second.

He felt that the major problem right now is to help some persons overcome some of the misunderstandings about the project.

A Pair Of Firsts

TWO WEEKS ago the nursery at Providence Medical Center lie quiet with no newcomers echoing their first views of life. But that stillness took an abrupt change last week when a total of seven babies crowded the new facilities. The new arrivals marked a first for the year old hospital in two ways. It was the first time there have been that many babies in the nursery at one time and the first time for twins. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Terry Rohan of Newcastle were twin boys, Ryan Patrick and Michael Matthes. Holding Ryan Patrick is Sue Powell, a registered

About 65 tons of chopped hay were lost in a fire Thursday which broke out about 7:30 a.m. on the Eldon Bull farm, two and three-quarter miles southwest of Wayne.

Firemen from the Wayne department battled the blaze for two and a half hours. They were called out again about 11:30 a.m.

No estimate of damage was given. Cause of the fire was spontaneous combustion.

'Prestige' Plates Are Blooming

By BOB BARTLETT
If you happen to be driving in or around Wayne County and bump, oops, I mean pass a car, and notice the word IRIS on the license plate, it's not the name of the driver.

IRIS refers to a hobby which Wayne resident Roger Nelson took up a few years ago. Nelson grows flowers and his speciality is, of course, irises.

But Nelson is just one of a growing number of Wayne County residents who have taken to purchase the so-called "prestige plates" instead of the conventional plates which use numerals to identify the car and its driver.

Fact is, the number of persons who own the prestige plates in Wayne County has doubled this year, staying well ahead of the state trend.

"People like to see their name or something they've created," said county

Fall Results in Broken Leg, Foot

A Wayne woman, Mrs. Hank (Glenda) Overin, suffered a broken left leg and a broken bone in her right foot Wednesday night inside the city auditorium.

Mrs. Overin was attempting to retrieve a volleyball from the first row of the auditorium seats when she caught her foot and broke a bone. Her left leg was broken below the knee when she fell to the floor.

According to a spokesman of the Wayne Provident Medical Center, Mrs. Overin was expected to be released over the weekend.

Campaign '76 Overin: United Way Funds Are Big Help

What would be the effect if funds from Wayne United Way to the city recreation program were reduced? Who would it hurt the most?

There's only one answer, reflected Hank Overin, the person in charge of city recreation activities since the early 1960's — everyone who participates in the program.

Hank estimates that there are over 300 youngsters who take advantage of the program sometime during the year and an additional 100 adults who are active in adult recreation programs offered.

To reduce the $3,000 the recreation program hopes to get from this year's drive would mean a possible reduction not only in the quality of the programs, but perhaps the number of programs, too.

Although the bulk of the cost of the recreation program is funded through city taxes, Hank pointed out that the money from Wayne United Way is needed to help pay for newer equipment, such as helmets for grade school and junior high players will be needed by the year 1980.

"We've been told by the state that the city will have to get new types of helmets by that date because they are safer for the youngsters," Overin said.

Costs will range between $15 to $20 per helmet. Take that figure times 50 and that comes out to a pretty good chunk of money.

Funds from Wayne's campaign will help to defray part of the cost in addition to helping pay part of Hank's wages and those of his helpers he hires throughout the year.

What does the city recreation program offer youngsters? A variety of activities from the beginning of each school year right through the following summer.

About 415 youngsters are taking part in this year's football program open to youngsters from the third to the eighth grade. Overin said. Another 250 people from second graders up through adults, will take advantage of the basketball offering this winter and some 168 youths seven years old and older likely are to participate in baseball activities next spring and summer.

Also offered during the year are softball for youths and girls basketball, softball and golf.

In addition to helping fund the recreation programs, funds from United Way also helps keep the Middle Center open to local youths who are looking for a place to have fun and meet their friends.

Located above the fire hall, the center is a club for youngsters in grades five through nine. It offers such activities as pool, ping pong, foosball and pinball. It also has facilities for boxing, wrestling, weightlifting and the like, and a color television set is available for watching.

The center is open from 7 to 10 p.m., Thursday through Saturday and on days when recreation activities are rained out.

All of these activities are offered to local youths free, Overin emphasizes, and youngsters outside the city can participate in a whole year's activities for a single fee of $10.

A reduction in the United Way fund to the city recreation program, however, could also mean that everyone, including city residents, may have to pay $10 to play. What that boils down to it if it should happen, Overin pointed out, is that only those families who could afford to pay would be involved in city recreation.

treasurer Leon Meyer when asked about the influx of persons who are willing to spend the extra $50 for the license plates.

"I took a Dale Carnegie course and the most important thing they told us is that people like to see their name — people just want to have something no one else has," Meyer theorized.

This year there are 12 prestige plates registered to automobile owners in the county. Most of the plates are self-explanatory, but there are a couple which require some background knowledge.

For instance, John Kay of Wayne uses the work MOVOR on his plates. Kay, for those who don't know, moves houses.

Dr. William Kosbor of Wayne is an optometrist. Naturally, his plate reads VISION. You can't tell by his last name, but Joe Nuss of Wayne is Irish and the word he uses on his plates is, you guessed it, IRISH.

A Wayne couple, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Larson took a different approach when it came time to selecting their prestige plates. They each drive their own car and apply named their vehicles HIS and HERS. They also have another car with the plates PEG — the name of their dog.

Other prestige plates in the county are TED for Theodore Stork, owner of Wayne Radio Station KTCR; SURBER for Harold Surber, owner of Discount Furniture in Wayne; FSB which stands for Farmers State Bank in Carroll; MLO for Mrs. Phil (Myrtle) Olanson of Carroll Securities Inc.; and DUFFER, which is short for the L.H. Duffer Cafe in Wayne.

Meyer said there are several persons who have picked up applications for the special plates and he expects the number of prestige plate owners to go up even

What's in a name? Depends on what you're looking for

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN—What's in a name? It seems there is a lot involved, according to the head of the Nebraska Health Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics.

Freda Thies says there are two groups of people who are more than just a little bit interested in names. One group wants one they have no legal right to and the other wants a name there is not legal provision for.

Does that sound odd?

Actually, said Miss Thies, it is all very simple.

On the one hand, some people want the name of someone else because they might gain a bit in age or a whole new identity.

On the other hand, people who are married and unmarried are doing things about names for their children that just haven't been done before.

The main concern, she said, is the group interested in assuming an identity not really their own.

"This is happening more and more often," she said.

Sometimes they are caught. Miss Thies said she has no idea how many get away with it.

For example, she said one day a young woman came in to get a copy of her soon-to-be husband's birth certificate for marriage license purposes.

A check revealed that the birth certificate couldn't have belonged to the young man involved because the child born with that name was born dead. Miss Thies said she investigated further and talked with the young man.

"He admitted he learned how to do this by watching '60 Minutes' on television," she said.

Last season, the CBS network investigative reporting crew wanted to know just how hard or easy it was to obtain a completely false identity by getting government agencies specializing in names and identities to issue them various cards, certificates and letters.

They found it relatively easy because in the states they checked there was no cross check between births and deaths, for one thing.

In Nebraska, it appears the reverse is true.

Miss Thies said another time a young woman came into the office and asked for a birth certificate. Upon checking, the person who belonged to the birth certificate had been dead for 15 years.

Then there is the new name craze.

Miss Thies said an increasing number of mothers want their children to have their maiden name, or a hyphenated version of it.

Sometimes, the parents are not married, yet they want the child to have the father's last name.

A man even decided to change his last name to that of his wife.

"I don't think we much care who calls who what," remarked Dr. Henry Smith, head of the Nebraska Health Department, "but we should have some guidance so that when someone needs help with records we can give it."

As a result, a special legislative committee of the State Health Board will look into the matter to see if any corrective legislation is needed to clear up any questions that might arise in the future.

hearing on the state of the State Fire Marshal's Office.

One suggestion came ringing through. It should be removed from the realm of politics.

The office is now under the direct control of Gov. J.J. Exon, which a representative of the Nebraska Association of Public Employees said creates all kinds of problems.

For one thing, said Roger Schultz, association executive director, those who work for the agency when there is an opening, especially at the top, is to bring in someone from the outside.

Ace Backer, former North Platte chief of police, quit the job and brought in Martin Dineen.

Schultz said when Dineen quit, or was forced out by opponents in and out of the Unicameral, there were people who worked as deputies who should have been considered for the post.

But the administration's response was that no one would be promoted from within the department.

"Let's take it out of politics. I'd like to see it outside the governor's office because of the political pressure that can be and is brought to bear" not only on employees, but in enforcement, he said.

The committee considered the idea of making the office a separate agency, but Senator Herb Duts of Colverburg said that presented a few problems too. "I don't want the fire marshal's office to get like OSHA," Duts said, referring to claims from across the state that the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration is an uncontrolled beast.

because of the political pressure that can be and is brought to bear" not only on employees, but in enforcement, he said.

Drain's comments were made as a group of industries were seeking extensions to deadlines for installing pollution control equipment. The deadline, technically, was July 31 of this year for all industries.

But Drain said some times such hard and fast deadlines can't be imposed. He noted pollution control equipment is both costly and sometimes very hard to get.

John Harris of McCook, a member of the State Environmental Control Council, said outright abuses should be quickly investigated and dealt with. He urged Drain to keep the council informed on whether those granted short-term exemptions deliver on their promises to clean up.

Drain said right now there is only one business, a processing plant, which isn't about to comply with clean-up orders. He said unless the owners can give a good reason for not complying, the plant would be shut down.

Drain did not reveal the name of the firm he was talking about.

When my husband George was running for President, even he wasn't sure where to register to vote.

OBSERVATIONS

Guest Editorial:

You can make it better

There are other participants in a political campaign besides candidates. The other participants are called voters, also sometimes called citizens or taxpayers.

These days many of us citizen-taxpayer's are disillusioned. Yet we know this country of ours has enormously complex problems to solve, at home and abroad. And we know we've got to get on with the job. But we can't get on with it if we're apathetic — and if politics and government are the object of our universal contempt!

Given the hard tasks ahead, I want to offer some friendly advice to my fellow citizens.

My first bit of advice: Get your chins up off the floor! Americans are problem solvers by nature, not defeatists. We don't look good sitting around grumbling. It's not our style. The past dozen years have been hard on us, but we've been through tough times before. We're built to take it. If we've got problems, let's tackle 'em.

The second bit of advice to my fellow citizens is "Don't turn your back on the drama of this political year." Politics is a necessary part of the business of self-government. If you don't like the way it's conducted, make it better. If you don't like the way politicians behave, make them shape up. There are some fine politicians — support them. Be active as a citizen. Stand up when your name is called. If it isn't called, stand up anyway. Your responsibility doesn't end with election day. It begins there. Self government isn't a ball game on TV which you can watch passively, and if you don't like it, switch to another channel. There isn't any other channel, or any other ball game. And the guy at the bottom of that piecup is you, the citizen taxpayer.

My third bit of advice is: "Don't imagine that citizens are powerless." We may be disillusioned, but we have a kick like a mule. Consider what citizen pressures have brought about in just the past three years.

We have thrown the old corrupt system of financing Presidential campaigns out the window. We are witnessing the first Presidential election campaign in history in which big donors have been ruled out as a major factor. The President who walks into the White House on Jan. 20, 1977 will not owe anything to the fatcats.

Citizen pressure has recently brought about the most far-reaching reforms in the House of Representatives in more than half a century. Congress has taken historic measures to alter the seniority system and to open its activities to public view.

And we've had in the past three years, in response to citizen demands, the biggest wave of reform in the state legislatures since the nation was founded. A half dozen years ago, most experts would have agreed that the state legislatures were pretty poor specimens of free self-government. Now almost every single state has adopted one or more "accountable government" measures.

These are big, big changes, and they all came about because citizens fought for them. — John Gardner, chairman for Common Cause.

Perhaps speed limit should be revised

Dear Editor:

Once in a while a combination of circumstances happens which seems to warrant a little further consideration, and this is one of them. I have no "bone" to pick with anyone and am simply reacting to numerous statements, made to me by others.

The subject is the 15 mph speed limit approaching Providence Medical Center from the West, along the east side (Providence Road) and 10th St.

The campus we know is posted at 15 mph, and we all know that very few observe it in its entirety. The east end of 10th St. has a stop sign at Hillcrest Road corner. Traffic headed west, with "Parking Except between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m." on the north side — usually one or more cars are there, too.

I have made three trips weekly (some times more) to the hospital and really never paid too much attention to it until I noticed that the council which had been asked to revise the speed limit and refused to do so.

About this time I overheard conversations to the effect that they (drivers) were all city or campus officers in that area. Whether they were all city or campus officers was not stated, but it could have been both very easily.

On top of this, in conversation with the Sisters connected with the hospital, I discovered that some of the workers also had been "warned." No one to my knowledge has been actually ticketed for this offense, but have been simply stopped and "had a heart to heart" talk with the officer. One person riding a bicycle had been informed the limit was exceeded on the downhill portion.

If this is true, it would seem that there would be better usage of our police authority than simply harassing people. It also suggests that perhaps the city council could direct a little more attention to the problem — unless it is to be considered as the federal 55 mph speed limit, and disregarded entirely.

I suggest the council take their cars and drive the area, and discover just how difficult it is to maintain a 15 mph limit in the areas in question, and consider if "yield" signs could replace several stop signs. — G.O. Macklin.

'Autumn' Wins for Local Lass

A sophomore and a poet at Wayne High School, Lori Sherlock, had her composition, entitled "Autumn," published in the Randy Jaroch poetry section of last Sunday's Omaha World-Herald.

Lori, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sherlock, recently won first place in the Bicentennial poetry contest sponsored by the United Presbyterian Women of Wayne. Lori's poem

Autumn
Autumn comes and leaves start falling
From the trees they make their flight
Tumbling from the topmost branches
Crisp and golden beams of light

In the park, abandoned swing sets
Shed a tear but do not cry
Children sit behind closed school doors
Thinking, "Why did summer die?"

Football games are new excitement
Points are scored and cheering starts
Time flies by and it's homecoming
Banties lit by human hearts

Walking-home one day from school
While flakes rest upon my shoulder
I tilt my head up towards the sky
I've grown another season older.

Two Wildcats Among CSIC Leaders

Two Wayne State College grid-deries are among the leaders in this week's Central States Inter-collegiate Conference grid statistics.

Running back Kirk Gardner is fourth in rushing with an 82-yard average per game. The conference's leading rusher is Larry Barnes of Missouri Southern. Barnes is averaging just over 150 yards a game in leading Missouri Southern to the conference lead with a 1-0 loop mark and an overall record of 0-2.

In the punting department, Mike Green of the Wildcats is sixth with a 33.9-yard average per punt. Green has punted 18 times in two games. Craig Wagner of Kearney State leads the conference with a 43.2 yard average. Wayne stands fifth in the loop with an overall mark of 0-2. The November 20 contest at Kearney State will be the Wildcats' only league game in the newly organized conference.

WAKEFIELD'S SHUTOUT string of 13 consecutive scoreless quarters came to an end with 9:31 left in the second quarter Friday night as Madison's Craig Wheeler (83) gets in for the score. Wheeler gets some blocking help from Jim Jensen (82) on Dan Byers (25) of Wakefield. Meanwhile Trojan defenders Scott Hallstrom (83), Carl Domsch (60), Doug Starzl (39) and Craig Nelson (72) watch the TD.

State Trappers Facing Changes Ponca Hands Allen First Loop Defeat

Nebraska trappers will find a few changes in the 1977 trapping regulations.

According to the Game and Parks Commission, trappers who buy permits in 1977 will find that fees have increased from $3.50 to $7 for resident trapping and from $100 to $200 for non-resident trapping. In addition, residents over 16 and non-residents will have to purchase a $7.50 habitat stamp in order to trap after Jan. 1.

One way to forestall the increased cost of the trapping permit however, will be to buy one before Jan. 1, since the trapping license is good from July 1 through June 30 instead of Jan. 1 through Dec. 31 as most other permits.

Why the additional $7.50 for a habitat stamp? The purpose of the stamp is to buy, lease and develop land for wildlife habitat. This is habitat all wildlife species use, both game and nongame and is a small price to pay for the right to hunt and trap in generations to come.

McClain: Some Lands Are Off Limits to Hunt

Many public lands in Nebraska will be available to waterfowl hunters this year, but some lands also come under special restrictions when waterfowl seasons open, reminds Chet McClain of the Game and Parks Commission's Resource Services Division.

Most state recreation areas open to hunting on Oct. 1, except for heavily used sites around boat docks, camping areas and the like. And most special use areas are available to hunters whenever seasons are open. But some state lands also serve as waterfowl refuges, where no duck or goose hunting is allowed. Some are closed to all hunting, and still others are closed to all public access," McClain said. With light goose season opening on Oct. 2, followed by the dark goose season Oct. 9 and duck season in general Oct. 14, knowledge of special area regulations is important to hunters.

Areas where hunting is restricted include legislative refuges along rivers, where no hunting is allowed within 110 yards of either bank.

Wakefield Shutout String Ends

Madison Cashes In On Trojan Errors

By DAN VODVARKA
Invading Madison found out Friday night how much it had to bend Wakefield's rugged defense before the Trojan line would break.

The third time proved to be the charm for the Dragons as Madison used three Wakefield mistakes late in the second half to pull out a 14-6 win in a West Husker Conference battle. The Dragons moved their West Husker mark to 2-1 with

Walthill Blanks Wakefield JH

Walthill junior high gridder Wednesday shut out Wakefield, 18-0, to hand the Trojans their first defeat in two games. The winners scored in the first quarter and held on for 6-0 half time. Late in the fourth period they added two more TDs. Wakefield had one touchdown called back in the first frame Wednesday the area team heads to Emerson.

the win and are 3-1 overall this fall. Wakefield suffered its first loss of the campaign and is now 3-1 overall and 0-1 in loop play. Friday the Trojans journey to Wisner Pilger. Friday's contest also stopped the Wakefield Shutout string at 13 straight quarters. Madison was the first team to score on the Trojans this year as the invaders opened the game's scoring with a TD with 9:31 left in the first half. Wakefield head coach John Torczon praised his red shirt defense for a "super game."

"We were just wore down physically by their size. But our kids still reached down at every opportunity to try and keep them from scoring but we made too many mistakes," he said. Topping Torczon's list of Trojan defenders were Carl Domsch, Jerry Echtenkamp, Dave Gustafson, Dan Byers, Blaine Nelson and Tony Henshke. The Wakefield-coach also lauded the efforts of Greg Simpson who went both ways all night. "Torczon was also happy with his offense's performance against a large Madison defense that used a seven or eight man line all night. The Trojans were hurt by injuries as running back Dave Gustafson sat out the whole second half and back Dan Byers was carried off the field in the third quarter with an ankle injury.

The contest was free of mistakes and tied 6-6 until the final minute of the third quarter when Wakefield punter Brooks Myers misplayed a snap from center and was caught on the Trojan 14 yard line with time running out in the third period.

But Madison was caught for a clip on their first play from the 14 and then the Trojans dug in. During the next four plays, Wakefield poured through and sacked Madison quarterback Jerry Schmidt three times

Getting in on the sacks were Trojans Domsch, Echtenkamp and Nelson. With the sacks of the quarterback, Wakefield held on down back after a short field, Doug Starzl lost the ball and Madison was back in business on the Dragon 48. Again the Trojan defender's dug in and eventually forced a fumble and Wakefield's Domsch recovered on the Trojan 37.

With six minutes left in the contest, however, the Trojan defenders were still not out of the woods as rain began to fall and three plays later Starzl again couldn't find the handle and Madison recovered the Trojan fumble on the Wakefield 40. From there the invaders launched their winning drive as they moved the ball into score on four plays and one pass interference penalty 190 pound halfback Wendell Rowley went the final five yards for the six points and Schmidt hit his 200 pound fullback Doug Hartner for the double PAT to seal the victory. Another mishandled punt in the field two minutes of the game ended all of Wakefield's hopes. After a tough, even first quarter, Madison drove 70 yards on 12 plays to score the opening points of the game. With its huge running backs, Madison rushed the ball down the field and scored on a four yard pass from Schmidt to Craig Wheeler.

Wakefield bounced back on its next possession and drove 75 yards on six plays for the tying points. The big plays of the drive were long scampers by Brooks Myers. On third and eight from the host's 27, Myers broke off of a trap play 12 yards and then minutes later used the same trap play to go 39 more yards for the score with 2:26 left in the first half. Torczon pointed out that the trap play was worked well all year and added, "We got good second and third efforts from Brooks on both plays."

Myers finished the night with 178 yards on the ground to lead Wakefield.

Mills Sparks Rally As Wakefield Wins

Robin Mills ran off eight consecutive, successful serves to rally Wakefield to a two-set win over Invading West Point in volleyball action Thursday night.

The hosts trailed 11-4 in the first set of the varsity match Thursday before Mills stepped to the line and ran off her string of serves. Once in the lead, Wakefield held on to win the opening set 15-11 and then take the second set and match 15-8.

Mills finished the night with 11 serving points and five sets. Lisa Paul, Lynn Holm and Mary Ann Hanson all added four successful serves for the winners. Holm also led Wakefield with seven spikes while Mary Kober had six.

Wakefield coach Ernie Kovar praised his spikers' comeback. "We struggled a little bit early in the match but set and spiked well in the second set," Kovar pointed out.

In the two earlier matches of the night, West Point dominated as the invaders won the freshman match 15-3, 15-5 and the reserve match also went to West Point 15-9 and 15-5. The Wakefield frosh are now 0-4 on the year and the reserves are 0-5.

Matches Reset

Winside's head volleyball coach Cathy O'Connor has announced that the prep volleyball games slated between Stanton and Winside for Thursday night have been postponed.

The contests will be played October 14 in Winside. The next action for the Wildcat spikers will be Thursday at Wausau.

Putting on the Stops

WAYNE'S defensive unit puts the clamps on Pierce's runningback during a reserve football game Monday at Wayne State's Memorial Stadium. The JV's held the invaders to eight points while the offense racked up 20 points for the Blue Devils' season opening victory.

Second-Half Surge Lifts Cats

Runningbacks Ed Morris and Mitch Pfeiffer combined for 233 yards rushing and scored all of Winside's points Friday night to lead the Wildcats to an 18-7 victory over Lewis and Clark Conference divisional rival Hartington.

Pfeiffer, who ran 33 times for 118 yards, scored both Winside touchdowns in the second half to erase a 7-6 halftime deficit and give Winside its second win in the West half of the conference and its third overall against a solo loss.

The Wildcats of coach Ron Peck took a 6-0 lead with 1:57 left in the first quarter when Morris, a junior, broke 16 yards to paydirt, capping an 85-yard march on the Cats' first drive. All three attempts to run in the extra points failed.

Just before the half, Hartington answered back with a pass from quarterback Dean Milander to Tom Goetz, good for 31 yards and a Hartington score. Milander booted the ball through the uprights for a 7-6 comeback. "We were down at the half, but I'm glad we had what it took to come back in the second half," Peck said.

On the last play of the third period Pfeiffer scored from two yards out, ending a 40-yard march which was set up when Winside's defense shut off Hartington's attempted kick. In the fourth period, Pfeiffer went 14 yards to score.

Winside's punting also was a bright spot for Peck as kicker Wayne Smith punted twice for 67 yards. Peck also pointed out that after the game, officials congratulated the coach on the fine showing of his offensive line.

Brad Langenberg, Bill Thomak, Dan Brockman and Pfeiffer were the leaders on defense. Langenberg had 12 stops, Pfeiffer has seven, and Thomas and Brockman had six each.

Commission Okays Major Changes in Fishing Laws

The Game and Parks Commission's seven-man board of commissioners made some major changes in fishing regulations for the 1977 season.

One of the changes was a statewide reduced daily bag and possession limit of six and 12 respectively for walleye. Also approved was a 12-inch size limit for walleye in Lancaster and Douglas Counties only.

Fisheries biologists feel that lowering the limits from eight daily and 16 in possession would help to distribute the catch of walleye more equally among anglers.

The 12-inch size limit on walleye is intended to give immature stocked fish a chance to grow before being harvested.

In other action, the commissioners voted to reduce the bag limit on northern pike to three fish daily and six in possession in waters east of Highway 281, including Carter Lake near Omaha. A 20-inch size limit an daily bag and possession limit of one and two fish respectively, was imposed on the muskellunge and tiger muskellunge in all waters of the state.

Also approved was a suggestion by commissioner William Lindeken of Chadron that the size limit on bass be removed in the western part of the state. The Big Springs Jct. at the east by Highway 83 from the South Dakota border, south to North Platte and then north of Highway 30 from North Platte to the Big Springs Jct. at the Colorado border.

The 12-inch size limit on bass was retained on Lake McConaughy, Lake Ogallala, Ft. Robinson State Park, Nebraska Recreation Area, Merritt Reservoir and Walgren Lake. In eastern Nebraska, the 12-inch size limit on bass was extended to include Carter Lake near Omaha.

In other action, the commissioners voted to allow year-around muskie and arrow fishing for gamelish on the Missouri River only, with the exception of the oxbows of the Missouri and Lewis and Clark Lake. These waters continue to have a July 1 through Nov. 30 season.

Anglers on Valentine and Crescent Lake National Wildlife Refuge Lakes will be able to use parts of dead fish or minnows for bait in 1977. Whole fish, either alive or dead will not be permitted for use as bait, as in the past.

Fishermen at the Two Rivers and Robinson fee fishing trout areas will find a reduction in daily limits from five to four fish in 1977. Rising costs and limited hatchery space were cited as factors influencing the decision by fisheries personnel.

Also included in the new fishing regulations was a provision allowing the use of a minnow seine in Lake McConaughy to take gizzard shad only during the months of February and March. Another change set a throat limitation of 36 inches for legal dip nets, and the season for underwater spearfishing for gamelish was extended two weeks and changes the season opener to July 15 instead of Aug. 1.

A prohibition on the use of limb lines in lakes and reservoirs was added to the regulations banning the use of float lines in the same areas. A spokesman from Nebraska Trophy Fish Unlimited, a fishing club, expressed concern over the misuse of this method of fishing and for the safety of boaters fishing in areas where these lines are being used. This regulation applies only to lines attached to trees and not bank lines.

Consider these facts

... and check first at home before you trade

1. As often as not you will find the best services and prices at home. You're a prime customer here; not just part of a mob.
2. A substantial part of your home merchants' margin on sales to you goes to help you support community facilities that benefit you—fire and police protection, schools, churches, etc.
3. Local business provides jobs for your neighbors, your children if they'd like to live near you, and—perhaps even you.
4. Your trade keeps people here to supply your emergency needs.

'College Yearbooks Are Coming Back'

Call it a fad or nostalgia, but colleges located in Eastern United States are once again rejuvenating the publication of yearbooks.

There's no single reason, said John Haberman of Intercollegiate Press to members of Wayne Kiwanis Club Monday, but students on campuses are showing interest again and it looks like that interest could spread.

Haberman said two major reasons for the decline in the number of colleges publishing yearbooks were the time students had to spend away from their studies to compile the book and costs.

"The purpose of a yearbook is to keep true historical records of sports, clubs and activities of the school year," he pointed out, adding that apparently students feel they need to record such events.

On the high school level, some schools are having trouble raising enough revenue in the form of advertising sales to finance the publishing of yearbooks. Haberman said this is a crisis particularly for smaller schools.

The prices of yearbooks continues to climb between 8 to 10 per cent each year and talk increases among high school students to drop the annual publication. But, somehow, students manage to show interest in having one each year, Haberman noted.

The cost of funding a yearbook usually is split between advertisements and students' fees.

Intercollegiate Press, which also makes and sells graduation announcements, is undergoing a major change in its designs of announcements, Haberman went on.

Students today want designs which are bold and flashy, he said, and they want the copy inside to be "1" copy instead of the traditional announcement of graduation by the parents.

SPEAKING TO Wayne Kiwanis Club Monday, John Haberman of Intercollegiate Press said that colleges in East are bringing back the tradition of yearbooks on campus.

Prestige - Honor Guest

To get a plate, a vehicle owner picks up an application at the county treasurer's office and makes their first, second and third choices for the word used on their plate. Owners are limited to six letters in any combination or three letters and three numbers. Only passenger cars are allowed to carry prestige plates.

Initial cost is $50 plus $15.50 and car taxes. After the first year the price for renewal is $25 plus $15.50 and taxes.

Four years ago when the plates came out there were 500 vehicle owners in Nebraska who displayed the new innovations. Now that figure has swelled beyond 2,000 and it looks as if the number of drivers with those prestige plates is going to increase.
