Ticket Demand Prompts Extra Elizabethan Dinner

Demand for tickets to the fifth annual Elizabethan Christmas Dinner has been so great this year that an additional dinner has been scheduled, this one a matinee.

The additional dinner and performance by the Madrigal Singers will begin at 1 p.m., Dec. 12, in the North Dining Room of the Wayne State College Student Union.

Tickets are available at the Fine Arts office on the WSC campus. No telephone reservations will be taken. About 214 seats are available for the afternoon event.

Other dinners, on Dec. 9, 10, 11, and 12 are nearly filled.

Tree Lighting To Usher in Holiday Season

As in past years, Wayne State College Faculty Wives and Women and members of the Student Activities Board at Wayne State will hold a Christmas tree-lighting ceremony at the campus Willow Bowl.

Lights will be turned on at 7 p.m. for the ceremony. This Thursday and will remain on throughout the holiday season.

The public is invited to attend the lighting ceremony. Dr. Lyle Seymour, president of Wayne State College, will extend the welcome. Dr. Cornell Runestad will lead singing of Christmas carols and each dorm will present Christmas selections.

Santa Claus will be on hand to distribute treats for youngsters. Hot chocolate and cookies will be served afterward.

Co-chairman for the ceremony this year are Mrs. John Struve and Mrs. Charles Kay.

Local Musicians Participate in Youth Symphony

The newly organized Youth Symphony of Northeast Nebraska will present its first concert Dec. 5 at 3 p.m. at the junior high auditorium in Norfolk.

The orchestra includes young musicians from 10 Northeast Nebraska communities.

Pollster To Appear at WSC

George Gallup Jr., president of the news-making Gallup Poll, is scheduled to appear at Wayne State College, Dec. 6, at 8 p.m.

Ramsey Theatre in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center is the location for this WSC Special Program. Tickets will be sold at the door.

Princeton and Oxford educated, Gallup is famous for his expertise on public opinion surveying in the United States. He has traveled throughout the country, gathering information for polls and surveys.

Gallup was first editor of the Gallup Poll in 1953, climbing to his present position as president.

The famous pollster is also a member of several groups associated with the Gallup Poll. These include board of directors of the Roper Opinion Center at Williams College, member of the American Association of Public Opinion Research, and a member of the World Association of Public Opinion Research.

He is also on the board of religion in American life, Quill and Scroll Society, formerly chairman of the board of advisors of Stuart County Day School of the Sacred Heart, Princeton, and is on the board of the Gilbert and Sullivan Association of Princeton.

Gallup also co-authored "Church Survey Manual" with John Davies, and has one work on the way concerning the 1972 presidential campaign, co-authored with Carl Kavalec.

Lectures for Gallup cover several facets of poll research. Some of these areas are: "The mood of the American people — See GALLUP, page 2.

Speaker Grateful for Restored Vision

Members of the Wayne Lions club heard a first-hand account Tuesday night regarding the importance of some of the work done by the organization in Nebraska.

The main project for the Lions International organization is sight conservation. Mrs. Helen Nemecek of Albion, introduced by sight conservation chairman Al Reeg, spoke at the Wayne Lions club 15th anniversary dinner, telling the history behind the three cornea transplants she has had at the Nebraska Lions Eye Institute.

The Eye Institute, built and supported by Nebraska Lions clubs, is the only facility in the state capable of performing cornea transplants.

Mrs. Nemecek said that a few months before her first granddaughter was born she learned that her mother had an incurable disease which would eventually result in blindness. She learned that she had the same symptoms which had been apparent in her mother's case, but kept the information to herself for four years.

A friend whom she finally confided in provided the name of a specialist and extracted a promise from Mrs. Nemecek that she would arrange an appointment.

Mrs. Nemecek said she still balked at telling her husband about her suspicion that she might have the same vision-imperating disease as her mother because she feared the financial consequences of surgery for her family of six children, the oldest 14 at the time.

Describing one of her symptoms, seeing halos around lights, however, got Mrs. Nemecek an immediate appointment with an eye specialist and she informed her husband of the appointment.

Her case drew considerable attention, Mrs. Nemecek said, because it was the first reported instance that indicated the disease might be hereditary.

The specialist said Mrs. Nemecek would need a cornea transplant, and her name was placed on a waiting list at the Eye Institute. The wait can be long, Mrs. Nemecek said, because of the scarcity of persons willing to donate their eyes after death. Her six-month wait for the initial transplant seemed especially long, she added, because she had to inform someone who could be reached by the Eye Institute where she would be every minute of the day.

Transplants must take place within a matter of hours after the eye is removed and it was imperative that Mrs. Nemecek be contacted as soon as a cornea became available so she could make the trip from Albion to Omaha in time.

The first transplant was completed about six months after Mrs. Nemecek's appointment with the eye specialist.

Unfortunately, her body eventually rejected the transplanted cornea and a second transplant was necessary about 18 months after the first.

Mrs. Nemecek said tissue matching techniques developed since then have eliminated many of the rejection problems in cornea transplants. She later had a third transplant, receiving a new cornea for her other eye. She now has 20/20 vision in one eye without glasses and vision in her other eye is corrected to 20/20 with glasses.

Cornea transplants are now about 90 per cent successful, Mrs. Nemecek said, although vision isn't always restored to the extent hers was.

The recovery period after a transplant is long and can be particularly arduous for a mother of six. Mrs. Nemecek said. From 10 to 30 stitches are necessary in the colored portion of the eye. Because of the sensitive nature of the operation considerable care is taken to protect the eye. Sutures remain in place for about six months, Mrs. Nemecek said, and she practically had to stay in bed for the entire period to protect the transplanted tissue.

Mrs. Nemecek's mother was eventually able to have a transplant. Her vision was restored for a period but she eventually went blind again this time because of See VISION, page 5

THESE BALLOONS, 140 of them, launched Tuesday by Wayne State College Students, carry special messages — art objects and letters asking the finder correspond with the students who sent them. It was all part of a conceptual art event in an art appreciation class.

Art Project Is Up in the Air

By JIM STRAYER

Complaints about fingers numbness by near-freezing temperatures gave way to cries of "Hey, that's kind of neat!" and "Look at 'em go, mine's ahead," Tuesday afternoon when 140 brightly colored balloons were released from the Wayne State College football field.

The balloons carried art objects rather than any sort of scientific instruments, and for a good reason. The project was part of an art appreciation class taught by Wayne High School and WSC graduate Pearl Hansen.

The class is a required course for all WSC students. Many of the students who take the class don't have any particular leanings toward art, so it sometimes is difficult to generate a great deal of enthusiasm, Miss Hansen said. The balloon project was designed to change that.

The launching of the multi-colored, helium-filled balloons was itself art, Miss Hansen said — conceptual art.

She explained that conceptual art doesn't necessarily deal with any particular tangible object nor is it necessarily permanent in nature. As the name implies, it deals with a concept, in this case, using the brightly-colored balloons as a vehicle of communications.

Pairs of students attached some type of art object to their balloons. Items included small paintings, sculpture, poems, creative writing, or whatever struck one's fancy. Along with the package went a letter, explaining the project and asking for some sort of reply from whoever finds the balloon and its gift from the sky.

Did the students appreciate as art the concept of launching 140 balloons at the same time from a football field atop a windy hill on a chilly November afternoon? An observer might not have thought so at first. Filling 140 balloons took a considerable amount of time and a quick trip to Norfolk for an extra cylinder of helium delayed the project. Fingers and toes grew numb as the 220 students waited for the launch signal in temperatures near the freezing mark.

Revenue Sharing Rising

Wayne County will be receiving more money from Washington during the next four years, via revenue-sharing, than it has in the immediate past.

The reason is that Congress has voted, and the President has approved, a bill calling for the payout of $25.6 billion, to be distributed among the states and their counties, cities and other subdivisions.

The amount, to be paid out of general revenue, is to cover the period from Jan. 1, 1977 to Sept. 30, 1980, which is just prior to the next Presidential election.

It breaks down to about $6.8 billion per year, or some $150 million a year above the present annual rate.

The State of Nebraska and its localities are scheduled to get $42 million of this sum in 1977. The payments will continue at the same rate in 1978 and 1979 and during the first nine months of 1980, according to figures released by the Treasury Department.

Of this total, Wayne County and the entities within the county stand to receive approximately $239,000 a year, assuming a statewide distribution related to population.

Some states are to get proportionately larger shares of the money than others. Mississippi will collect the most, $47.86 per capita, and Florida the least, $24.42. The average, nationally, is $31.49. Nebraska will be getting $27.16 per capita.

The differences are attributed to local needs. Communities with big financial problems are to receive larger shares than more affluent ones.

Until now, there have been limitations on the way the funds could be spent. It had to be for specific public purposes.

Under the new law, there will be no more restraints. Beginning See REVENUE, page 5

Landfill Again on Agenda

The Wayne city council Tuesday night will discuss downtown improvement and alternatives for replacing the landfill now in use.

The council has authorized engineers to make a survey of the downtown area in order to provide accurate cost estimates on proposed improvements including new sidewalks and curb and gutters.

The landfill now operated by the city will be out of space by next summer, city officials have predicted. Alternatives now being considered by the council are construction of a transfer station to compact refuse for transportation to the Norfolk landfill, or making arrangements for a private party to operate a landfill. The only person so far to respond to the latter proposal has been Vernon Russell, a councilman and private refuse service operator, who said he would be interested in operating a private landfill if the city would agree not to operate one for the next 10 years.

A public hearing on a community development block grant is scheduled for 8 p.m. Other agenda items are published in advertisement elsewhere in this issue of The Wayne Herald.

Job Representative In Wayne Tuesday

Chuck Parks, representative for Job Service of Nebraska, will be in Wayne Tuesday at the county courthouse.

Anyone wishing to talk to Parks about possible employment can see him in the basement of the courthouse between 9:30 and 10:30 a.m., or call him during that time at 375-2288.

Artists' Symposium Scheduled

The Wayne State College Student Union and art department will be host Dec. 1 and 2 for three artists who will conduct a symposium on contemporary artists working in-craft media.

The three artists — Noreen Christian, Catherine Eargason and Mary Kester, have studios in Omaha at the Craft Studio Alliance, are co-founders of the Old Market Craftsman Guild, and are members of the Artist Cooperative Gallery.

Each of the three has exhibited their works regionally, both in group and one-person shows.

The symposium will include lectures and demonstrations on contemporary crafts, art as a profession, and design-and-techniques in each of their respective mediums.

Mrs. Christian is a University of Illinois graduate and has been a professional potter and jeweler for six years, since she moved to Omaha. Her work combines a variety of materials and techniques, integrating several disciplines into the finished product.

Mrs. Ferguson has also worked professionally as an artist for six years, following her graduation from Creighton University. Work of the Sioux City native currently centers around her line drawings, screen printed onto fabric. She uses the fabric prints as the nucleus for wall hangings and soft sculpture.

Mrs. Kester works with fiber, weaving, knitting, coiling and crocheting into firm shapes with heavy texture and color without compromising the soft nature of the fibers chosen. She See ART, page 5

ESU-1 Is Host for Advisory Meeting

Educational Service Unit-1 will be host Dec. 10 for a regional advisory meeting of the Developmental Disabilities Council.

The Developmental Disabilities Council is a division of the Nebraska State Department of Health. The Dec. 10 meeting will begin at 11:30 a.m.

The council recently granted $4,000 to the information and Referral Service of Nebraska, located in Lincoln. A number of other agencies in Nebraska provided $20,000 to match the state and federal appropriation.

The referral service has a statewide toll-free number — 800-742-7594 — which anyone may call to inquire about autism, epilepsy, cerebral palsy, mental retardation, and severe dyslexia.

The goal of the referral service is to bridge gaps in service by providing information and referral to available services.

4-H Youths Visit Ag School

Several Wayne and Cedar County 4-H'ers are the guests today (Monday) of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln School of Agriculture.

The tour is the third annual trip to the agriculture school, offering youngsters a first-hand look at educational opportunities there.

Wayne county agricultural agent Don Spitzke, who accompanied the 4-H youths, said agriculture school dean Dr. Ted Hartung will conduct a special four for the group. Several guides will accompany the 4-H'ers on visits to heads of various agriculture departments on the Lincoln campus, including animal-science, agriculture engineering, economics, and education, forestry and horticulture, and food science.

ASCS Ballots Are Due Soon

Wayne County farmers are reminded that ballots for the ASC county committeeman election must be received by the ASCS office no later than Dec. 6.

Ray Butts, director of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service said ballots will be counted and a winner determined Dec. 8.

Nominees for the three-year term on the ASC committee are incumbent Morris Hansen of Winslow, Dean Owens of Carroll and Vernon Blumer of Hoskins.

Winner of the election will join two other county committee members: Aiden Johnson of Wakefield and Ralph Olson of Carroll.

The county committee is responsible for overseeing implementation of U.S. Department of Agriculture programs in the county.

Five 'Cats Make NCC Dream Team

Five Wayne State football players are among 23 named to the Nebraska College Conference All-Star team for 1976, by vote of coaches. Three other Wildcats received honorable mention.

Chosen for the offensive unit were tackle Mike Dunklau of Wakefield, the Wayne defensive stars: tackle Duane Carlson of Hooper, end Gary Kraljcek of Gretna and back Ray Wagner of West Point.

The honorable mention selections from Wayne State are split end Maurie Mintken of Gretna, guard Tom Elafros, Omaha, and defensive back Bill Koll, Omaha.

Six of the 23 all-stars are repeaters, all from conference champion Kearney State. Three of them — Dave Burke, Al Schwelger and Mitch Johnson — are on for the third year; three others for the second time, Craig Wagner, Bob Feurar and Kim Summers.

A seventh man is on the team for the second year, but at a different position. Duane Fritz of Chadron State was an end choice last year, but is cited this time as punter.

Mintken, a first-team end selection in 1975, as Wayne's all-time record pass receiver, dropped to honorable mention this year. Statistically, he had a modest — for him — year, partly because Wayne depended less than usual on passing and partly because Mintken was a marked man, regularly attracting at least two defenders.

Kearney dominated the all-stars with 10 players. Chadron had seven, Wayne five, Peru one.

Tradition

These kids surprise me, we're not going to have a very sound defense."

The main area Wakefield has to improve in order to set up its defense is quickness. On the boards, the Trojans should be pretty tough with the help of Johnson, Myers and Echtenkamp. As Coble pointed out, "They're pretty rugged around the basket... they're not afraid to get their noses bloodied."

Looking at the West Husker Conference, the coach noted that Madison and Emerson-Hubbard should finish 1-2. Right now Coble isn't worried about how his team will finish in the standings; just Wakefield's first two games of the season.

Thursday night the Trojans open their season at home against Allen followed by a trip to Winside the following night. In last year's season opening games have been easy victories, but the picture may change this season.

"I have a good deal of respect for (Allen coach Jim) Koontz. He can't help but be better this year. And Winside, well that (Cliff) Tillma dealt us fits in reserve play. I expect the same thing this year," Coble said. Assisting Coble will be Ernie Kovar.

Wakefield's schedule: December 2, Allan, 3 at Winside, 10 at Wisner-Pilger, 17 at Lyons, 21 Coleridge, 27-28 Holiday Tournament at Emerson-Hubbard.

January — 4 Stanton, 7 at Oakland-Craig, 14 Walthill, 15 at Pender, 21 Madison, 22 at Laurard, 28 West Point, 31 Feb. 4 West Husker Conference at Columbus Lakeview.

February — 11 at Homer, 12 Emerson, 18 at Ponca.

Also playing for Wakefield are:

Vision

Her mother was happy to have had her vision restored, even for a brief period, Mrs. Nemecek said. "She remarked about how much greener the trees were than she remembered. I guess that after 12 years without being able to see, the memory dims."

Because of her experiences, Mrs. Nemecek has become devoted to the Lions organization efforts toward sight conservation. She had volunteered her time in recent years to work at the Nebraska Lions exhibit at the Nebraska State Fair in Lincoln, urging people to volunteer to donate their eyes for transplant after death.

"We need more education about what it means to have a transplant," Mrs. Nemecek said. "You would be amazed at the reasons people give for not being willing to donate their eyes after their death so that someone else can have their vision restored."

She said the waiting list for cornea transplants at the Nebraska Eye Institute is always long. The waiting period could be reduced if more people were willing to donate their eyes.

Date Stoltenberg, president of the Wayne Lions Club, was master of ceremonies for the 15th anniversary dinner at the Wayne Vets Club, attended by about 160 persons.

Lion Gerald Bofenkamp, president-elect of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, welcomed guests to the event. Stoltenberg introduced a number of dignitaries attending the dinner including Lions district governor Jim Lothquist of Laurel, Norfolk Lion Club president Richard Maguire, past district governor Cleo Sharer of Wayne, past district governor Leston Alexander of Hooper, and district governor Clarence Lommers of Monroe.

Stoltenberg conveyed congratulations from Clifford Dahl living in Loveland, Colo. Dahl organized the Lions club while living in Wayne.

Awards were presented to seven Lions still active in the club who were among the original 38 members who signed the charter 15 years ago: George Goblirsch, Charles Deneski, Richard Alenci, Wes Pflueger, Alfred Koplin, Bill Kemp and Clarence Boling.

Another Wayne Lion, Harold Maciejowski, received a special award for having been a member of the organization for 25 years. He was a charter member of the Lupin City club and his membership there and in Wayne totals a quarter of a century.

Guest speaker, introduced by Pflueger, was Keith Roll, a Norfolk Lion and member of the extension team which helped charter the Wayne club. Historian, club historian, touched upon highlights of activities of the club during the past 15 years.

NTCC Students To Register Early

Early registration for second semester credit classes begins today (Monday). It was announced today by Will Medow, dean of student services at Northeast Technical Community College, and will run through Dec. 7.

Medow said, early registration assures students a place in the classes of their choice and shorter waiting lines for registration than during the formal registration day on Jan. 5. Early registration also provides the college with the opportunity to offer additional classes for which there is a demand, Medow said.

Students currently attending NTCC, high school seniors finishing at mid-term, and other persons planning to attend second semester classes may register early. Credit classes are scheduled to begin Jan. 6.

A wide range of evening credit classes are also planned for second semester, include some not previously offered in the evening. Included in the evening offerings are biology, secretarial science, criminal justice, business, history, math and others.

For further information on the day or evening credit classes, contact student services office, 371-2020, Ext. 223.

Meetings Held at Center

Forty-eight Wayne Senior Citizens were at the center Tuesday afternoon for the monthly dance and sing-a-long.

Music for the dance was furnished by the center's Bobbles and Bubbles band. Alma Spittiger accompanied the sing-a-long, which was led by Mathilde Harms and Anton Pedersen. Pedersen sang "Home Sweet Home" in Danish.

Harry Wert was honored with the traditional birthday song.

Helping him furnish refreshments were Virgil and Cordelia Chambers, Pearl Griffith and Alma Spittiger.

Magnus Petersen donated several books to the center's library collection, including "Port Afrique" by Bernard Victor Dryer, "A Taste For Violence" by Brett Halliday, a new Michael Shayne mystery and several condensed Reader's Digests.

The next dance and sing-a-long will be at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 28.

The Rev. Larry Ostercamp, pastor of the Evangelical Free Church in Wayne, was at the center last Monday afternoon to conduct the Bible study of the 18th chapter of Acts. Sixteen attended.

A youth group from the Evangelical Free Church, accompanied by Pastor Ostercamp, will give a slide presentation, entitled "What is God in Your Christmas," for the next Bible study. Tentative date is Dec. 13 at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Thomas McDermott of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Wayne gave the sermonette at the Senior Citizens Center Friday, Nov. 19, with 10 in attendance. Alma Spittiger accompanied the singing of hymns.

The next sermonette and sing-a-long will be on Friday, Dec. 17, at 2 p.m.

Ten persons attended library hour at the center Thursday, Nov. 18. Mrs. Judy Blendenmer showed films, entitled "Wild Life and Scenic Areas" and "Higher Country."

New books, brought by Mrs. Blendenmer to the center, include "Miss Bishop," "Mariska," "Doc Graham" and "The Barrymores."

Distributive Education On Decline in Nebraska

Enrollment statistics for 1976 reveal a decline in the number of students participating in the Distributive Education (DE) programs throughout the state of Nebraska.

An article in the November issue of "Business in Nebraska," published by the Bureau of Business Research, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, focuses on the general nature of the DE program and examines recent enrollment figures.

Enrollment data, furnished by the State Department of Education, indicate a declining trend in enrollment during the past three years. Writing in "Business in Nebraska," Charles Bare noted the most dramatic drop has occurred in the adult education segment of the program. Adult Education enrollment in DE has decreased 61 per cent, from 1600 students in 1963 to 629 students in 1976.

Secondary and postsecondary enrollments have also declined, but not nearly as dramatically as in the adult segment. The "special needs" segment of the DE program shows a slight increase in enrollment.

The article points out several hypothetical reasons for the declining enrollment, including a shortage of qualified DE teachers and the phasing out or elimination of certain component programs at the local level.

Improvement in the nation's economy during 1975 and 1976 was cited as one possible reason why DE teachers either leave the teaching field or new prospective teachers decide not to teach after graduation. The article indicates that when the economy improves, teachers with business backgrounds are often lured away from the teaching field by higher salaries available in business.

'Oldies but Goodies' Is Concert Theme

"Oldies but Goodies" is the title for the December concert of the Wayne State College Band and Jazz-Rock Ensemble. The concert is set for Tuesday, Dec. 7, at 8 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre of the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center.

The concert should appeal to all types of folks, young and old, according to Dr. Raymond H. Kelton, conductor of the Wayne State band. The theme "Oldies but Goodies" ties in with the Bicentennial year, he says.

The concert is free, open to the public.

Included in "Oldies but Goodies," the concert band will play such pieces as "Orlando Padadrino — Overture" by Haydn, "Light Cavalry — Overture" by Suppe, and a contemporary piece "Scaramouch — Symphony No. 3 for Winds and Percussion" by Snoeck.

A descriptive piece "Midnight Fire Alarm" by Lincoln Krance uses actual sound effects to depict the sounds and commotion surrounding a real fire. The WSC victory bell will serve as a fire bell and a siren borrowed from the Wayne police department will also be used.

The music that started rock and roll kickin' in the 1950's will head off selections by the Jazz-Rock Ensemble. "Rock Around the Clock" arranged by Freedman DeKnight is the first selection by the ensemble.

Other tunes include a Buddy Rich favorite "Wack Wack", and "Big Band Milestones" featuring the sounds of Glenn Miller in "A String of Pearls", "Lil' Darlin'", a Neal Hefti favorite, and a Tommy Dorsey hit "Opus One".

Dr. Robert Johnson, professor of communications arts, will serve as narrator for the program.

Besides the regularly scheduled concert, the Concert Band and Jazz-Rock Ensemble have chosen pieces from the program for a concert tour Dec. 2 and 3. Performing in area schools, the following is the tour schedule with performance times:

— Thursday, Dec. 2: Emerson-Hubbard, 8:30 a.m.; Scribner 12:30 p.m.; Tekamah, 2:30 p.m.
— Friday, Dec. 3: Underwood, Ia., 8:45 a.m.; West Monona School in Onawa, Ia., 12:30 p.m.

Students, Businesses Benefit From SBI Assistance Program

Ten Wayne State College senior students are assisting in the U.S. Small Business Administration's Management Assistance Program, known as the Small Business Initiative (SBI), according to Dr. William Fagan, SBI coordinator for WSC.

The one- or two-member teams will be counseling seven small businesses this semester and either next semester. The businesses are mostly retailers; however, two of the cases are farm supply and equipment concerns.

The program enlists students from selected collegiate schools of business to counsel small business persons in their area. "We are pleased to have Wayne State College and Dr.

Fagan participate in the program for the third year," said The students participating are Ray Moreland and Greg Schultz of Norfolk; Paul Prusa of Howells; Pat Lenihan of Council Bluffs, Iowa; Eldaan Reinke of Neligh; James Utesch of LeMars, Iowa; Harry Burduss of Pekin, Illinois; Greg Hudec of Walthill; Chris Cople of Bancroft; and Dave Rylander of Wayne.

Dr. Bill Randall, SBI Nebraska director. Nationally, the SBI program includes approximately 385 colleges and universities, and is entering its fifth year of operation. During the first year, a prototype program was developed at Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas. Regionally, both Kansas State University at Manhattan and Wichita State University were pilot projects and are now beginning their fifth year of participation. "The SBI program enables students to keep in touch with the real world, and allows the small business person to benefit from the latest developments in business administration," said Dr. Fagan.

Work-Study Aid Is Available Through VA

Veterans who need financial help to continue full-time schooling under the GI Bill may be eligible for increased benefit payments under the Veterans Administration's "work-study" program. James Smith, director of the VA regional office in Lincoln, said eligible veterans may earn as much as $625 per semester by working a maximum of 250 hours for the VA under this program.

In the VA work-study program, selected veterans enrolled in schools under VA education programs hold part-time jobs in the agency. In many cases, these jobs relate to or complement the veteran's field of study.

He said that some veterans in the work-study program will assist other former servicemen as members of the VA's "outreach" program, which is designed to acquaint veterans with various GI Bill benefits. From the beginning of the work-study program in April, 1973, nearly $27 million has been paid to veteran-student participants. He said the number of participants in the program increased from 13,500 in fiscal year 1974 to 47,680 in fiscal year 1976.

Veterans interested in further information about the VA work-study program should contact the VA regional office in Lincoln.

A Long Job

IT TOOK workers from the city light department and an Omaha firm three days to unload and install two new transformers at the Wayne power plant last week. The project started Monday morning when two semi-trailer trucks individually brought in a transformer weighing close to 30 tons. By Tuesday both were in place and Wednesday night they were hooked up.

Concert Text Will Tell Biblical Story

The annual Christmas Concert by Wayne State musicians seems to always draw a crowd, and this year should be no exception. Seventy-three voices in the Wayne State Concert Choir will sing out a tale of Christmas in "Zion's Kingdom Is Come," set for Sunday, Dec. 5, in Ramsey Theatre.

Beginning at 3 p.m., the concert is open to the public. The concert text is taken from the lamentations of Jeremiah, entitled "The Ways of Zion Do Mourn." The audience hears a story — Biblical events up through the birth of Christ. First, Jerusalem is afflicted. "The ways of Zion do mourn Jerusalem is gone into captivity because of great affliction. The old men no longer sit by the city gate, nor do the young dance and sing."

"The children are silent. The hearts of the people are faint, their eyes are gone dim. Jerusalem is gone into captivity because of great affliction." But then come hope and the promise of a birth of a heavenly king. "Behold I shall give to Jerusalem one that brings good tidings."

Believers were persecuted. "But the enemies of the kingdom of Zion were not at rest. There were many who sought its destruction and persecuted its believers. The mightiest of these was Saul, who led a cruel persecution against the churches in Judea and Samaria."

But Saul is struck down by God's mighty hand. "Saul, Saul! Why do you persecute me?" Then Zion's Kingdom is Come — the King is born. "For now is born the divine Christ Child; let all sing and rejoice this day."

Hoskins Firemen Contain Farm Timber Fire

The Hoskins fire department was called Wednesday afternoon to contain a timber fire at the Fred Bargstadt farm seven miles north and two miles west of Hoskins.

Fire chief Herman Opfer said the cause of the fire was not determined but said Mrs. Bargstadt had dumped some ashes near the site of the fire and said that was considered as a possible cause.

Firemen poured 1,000 gallons of water on the fire but were unable to extinguish fires burning inside hollow trees. Bargstadt asked the fire department to return Wednesday night when sparks from the still smoldering timber began blowing. Firemen were able then to topple the burning trees and extinguish the fire. No property damage was reported.

Bellevue College Honors Deceased WSC Professor

MRS. J.R. JOHNSON of Wayne spoke Nov. 17 during the dedication of the Bellevue College students union building in honor of her late husband, a retired Wayne State College professor and department head.

Mrs. J.R. Johnson of Wayne was guest of honor Nov. 17 when the student union building at Bellevue College was rededicated in honor of her deceased husband, a noted Nebraska historian and retired Wayne State College professor and social science department head.

"My whole family is so proud of this building," Mrs. Johnson said. "It reflects the close relationship that my husband and the students felt for each other. Bellevue College is not only where the student counts, but where the faculty counts with the students."

Dr. Johnson taught at Bellevue College for four years following his retirement from WSC. Rededication of the student union marked the expansion of the building to twice its original size. It is now the Dr. J.R. Johnson Student Union. Also attending the dedication was Mrs. Johnson's daughter, Jan, editor of The Bellevue Guide.

'Christmas Star' Returns to WSC

Midwesterners from all around may travel only a short distance this December to celebrate Christmas with the stars. Wayne State College offers this opportunity through its traditional planetarium show "Star of Christmas."

The show begins Wednesday, Dec. 1, at the Fred G. Dale Planetarium, located in the Carhart Science Hall on campus. "Star of Christmas" will be shown each Wednesday at 7:30. Sunday matinees at 3:30 up through Dec. 19.

Car Rump, associate professor of earth science and geography, is director of the planetarium. Persons requesting special showings of "Star of Christmas" should contact him as soon as possible.

A program description states that "Star of Christmas" is a "way of redirecting people to the real meaning of Christmas. Like 'Amahl and the Night Visitors' and 'The Nutcracker' it reminds you that yes, Virginia, there is more to Christmas than figuring out what to get great-aunt Tillie and logging all those cards to the post office."
