

Survey Reveals Parents' Attitudes Toward School

Wayne-Carroll schools superintendent Francis Haun said he believes parent questionnaires recently returned to the school system are valuable, pointing out some things the system should focus on and improve.

Haun presented a report on the questionnaires at the board of education meeting Monday night.

Parents were nearly unanimous in their endorsement of parent-teacher conferences as a method of improving home-school communication. All 109 Middle School parents answering the questionnaire approved of the conferences and 163 Elementary School parents approved. One respondent did not answer the question.

Parents are also apparently interested in keeping up on school activities. Asked if they receive the Wayne Herald to see announcements and articles concerning their school, 99 Middle School parents responded yes and 10 said no.

Most Middle School parents said they feel welcome when they visit the school, although four said no and three had no opinion. All but two elementary parents answered yes to the question. One said no and one didn't respond.

Large majorities of parents of both schools also said they feel classes taught at the schools meet the needs of students and that buildings now in use meet students' needs. Overwhelming majorities also indicated the feeling they can cooperate with schools with questions or suggestions.

Among Middle School parents, the majority responded as large when asked if they feel teachers contact them when there is a problem, but 57 answered yes, 23 said no, and 22 answered "some."

Totals on the same question for elementary parents were 131, yes; 17, no; and 13, no response.

Negative answers were in the majority on one question asked parents of both schools. According to the questionnaire, parents don't favor having soft drink machine in the schools. Results for that question are: yes, 14; no, 71; no response, 17.

Elementary school parents said they feel staff members have established a good learning environment with 161 answering yes and three giving no response.

Elementary school parents apparently aren't sure just how good a job the schools do in preparing their students for Middle School. A majority of the parents answering the questionnaire, 100, gave no response to that question; 53 answer yes and nine answered no.

Parents were split regarding the need for a special art instructor for elementary students. Those favoring such a measure held a slight lead over those disapproving, 67 to 61, while 32 gave no response.

The self-evaluation survey of high school parents was conducted with a different type of questionnaire. Parents were asked to answer some questions with a rating scale, were asked about their children's likes and dislikes regarding classes, and general feelings about school.

Tabulating the questionnaire allowed school administrators to draw some conclusions, including:

- Most parents feel they are well informed.
- Rules, procedures and other information are fairly well transmitted to parents.
- Parents feel the staff has established a good learning environment.
- The present evaluation system for students needs to be studied.

- More opportunity is needed for parents to participate in planning programs.
- Parents feel they can contact the school concerning programs or problems, but few have actually done so in the past two years regarding programs.
- Parent-teacher conferences and telephone calls are the most common means of contacting schools.
- Subjects enjoyed most are science, English, German and math.
- Most difficult subjects include English, math and introductory to physical science.
- Most parents feel their children enjoy school.

Wakefield Schools Will Contract for Computer Service

The Wakefield board of education Monday night voted to contract with the Milton G. Waldbaum Company of Wakefield for computer services for accounting and payroll.

Superintendent Dr. Gary Bennerotte said the state education department is requiring all schools to begin next year using a programmed budgeting system. Computer services are the best way to implement the system because of its complexity, he said.

Wakefield will be the first school system to contract with the Waldbaum company for computer service. Bennerotte said, adding the company will probably offer the service to other schools.

Board members also heard reports from science teachers regarding the curriculum they use.

The Wakefield schools are in the process of self-evaluation for the North Central accrediting agency. Dr. Bennerotte has initiated the half-hour curriculum reports at school board meetings in order to give board members an opportunity to ask questions about various materials in use.

The board also approved bids for 26 basketball uniforms for next year. A total of 26 uniforms will be purchased at $45.50 each.

Boy Scouts Will Collect Papers

Boy Scout Troop 175 will collect old newspapers Saturday morning beginning at 8 o'clock. Newspapers should be tied in bundles no more than 12 inches high and placed on the porch or curb for pickup.

Twine for bundling papers may be obtained at Gerald's Decorating Center or at Carhart Lumber.

In cases where pickup involves special problems, donors should contact paper drive chairman Dr. Bob Zahniser at 375-3466.

Renewals Due

Automobile dealer license plates must be renewed by Jan. 1. Wayne County Treasurer Leon Meyer said Tuesday.

Other license plate renewals will be due after New Year's Day.

Meyer said most vehicle owners will be renewing their plates in January or February. Those were the months last year for renewing license plates.

Under Nebraska law now, plates are always renewed the same month in which they were first issued. Owners who have purchased different vehicles since the first two months of last year will renew their plates during the month when they were received.

Owners not sure when they should renew can check the sticker on their plates.

WAYNE HIGH School bandmaster Ron Dalton has been selected by the American School Band Directors Association to receive the Outstanding Young Band Director of the Year Award, which will be presented at the school's Mid-Winter Concert, tentatively scheduled for Feb. 13.

Wayne Bandmaster Wins Title

Wayne High School band director Ron Dalton was so surprised at the telephone call he received Sunday night from Atlantic City, N.J., that he called back Monday to verify it.

Officials of the American School Band Directors Association (ASBDA) telephoned Dalton Sunday night about 8:30 local time to inform him that he had been named at the organization's national convention to receive their Outstanding Young Band Director of the Year Award.

"I called back Monday to make sure I hadn't imagined it or something," Dalton said.

The bandmaster was named state winner in September and last week it was announced that he was the winner in an eight-state region. He competed against five other regional winners for the national title.

Dalton said he feels the award is a reflection on a great many people, not just himself. Support from the school board, school administration, faculty and staff, parents and booster organization, students, and the community are all vital to a good band program, he said.

"We've got everything going for us here," he said. "I think the award is a reflection of the support the band receives."

To be eligible for the award ASBDA members must be nominated by another band director, and then send in a resume of their teaching career and a tape of the band they are directing. The tape of the Wayne High band was recorded last May and forwarded for state competition. See BANDMASTER, page 8.

Attendance Sparse At Hearing on Plan

Public attendance was sparse at the hearing Tuesday night on the proposed comprehensive plan for Wayne County being reviewed now by the joint planning commission.

Only seven persons in addition to county officials showed up for the meeting. icy roads may have contributed to the small attendance, but Dave Wright, consultant for the State Office of Programming and Planning, said it has been his experience that the public is usually more concerned about zoning and land use regulations than they are the county comprehensive plan, which is not regulatory in nature.

The planning commission has started looking at model zoning regulations. Wright said they would probably begin at their next meeting in January to formulate zoning regulations.

The comprehensive plan is designed to provide a guideline for future development within the county based on current conditions and projected changes. The plan, after final adoption, will be forwarded with the planning commission's recommendation to the county commissioners and to the town board of Winside, Carroll, Hoskins and Shiels.

Those governing bodies will then decide whether or not to accept the plan.

Wright said that adopting the plan will not commit the county or its municipalities to carry out any of the recommendations in the plan. It is designed to serve as a guideline reference source, covering topics including land use, community facilities, transit. See ATTENDANCE, page 8.

Middle School Musicians Present Christmas Concert

The seventh and eighth grade choir sang "The Lord Is My Strength and My Song" and "God of Great."

Wayne-Carroll schools will be getting a new instructor next semester for educable mentally handicapped classes, replacing Cindi Peterson.

The school board Monday night agreed to hire Patricia Kintner, a Harlan, Iowa, native, to take over the EMH class.

Miss Kintner is a 1972 graduate of Harlan (Iowa) High School and will receive her bachelor of science degree this month in secondary education and special education from the University of Iowa.

Miss Kintner has worked with handicapped children while in high school and was a camp director. She has also worked as a nurse's aide.

Deputies Investigate Three Accidents

Wayne County sheriff's deputies have investigated three accidents since Saturday but report no injuries in any of the mishaps.

Benjamin J. Martin of Pender was eastbound on Highway 35 about 9:30 Saturday night when he struck two calves, killing one and injuring the other. Estimated damages to the animals amount to about $325.

Martin's car sustained damages in excess of $250, according to the investigating officer's report.

A car driven by James Moseley of Genoa Monday night struck in the rear a car driven by Roger Fredrickson and belonging to Rodney Warlick, both of Wayne.

According to the report, Fredrickson and Moseley were both northbound on Highway 15 north of Wayne at about 10:15 p.m. when Moseley attempted to pass the Fredrickson vehicle. At the same time Fredrickson began making a left turn into Fredrickson Oil Co., about one and three-fourths miles north of Wayne.

Moseley attempted to pull back into the right lane of traffic to avoid a collision but hit the right rear of Fredrickson's car.

Both vehicles sustained damages in excess of $250.

Lorlie Haglund of rural Wayne was eastbound on Highway 35 about two and one-quarter miles east of Wayne when she hit an ice patch and lost control of her car. The vehicle left the road, travelled down an embankment and through a farm fence.

Damages to the vehicle were estimated to exceed $250.

Gallup Says Volunteer Spirit is 'Sleeping Giant' in United States

Pollster George Gallup Tuesday night said a spirit of volunteerism among young people in America is a sleeping giant, one which perhaps should be roused on an inaugural day.

Gallup, president of the Gallup Poll published regularly by some 150 newspapers in the United States, said America's young people want to do something to improve the nation and suggested that President-elect Jimmy Carter might do well after he is inaugurated Jan. 20 to consider reviving the idea of people 18 to 28 years old serving their country for one year, either in the armed forces or in organizations designed to improve social conditions.

Many Americans have favored such a plan for three decades, Gallup said, and suggested it is an idea whose time is long overdue.

Gallup began his address at 8 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre on the Wayne State College campus as part of the college's special program series.

Gallup, educated at Princeton and Oxford, became editor of the public opinion poll in 1953 and since has become president of the company.

Americans today are most concerned about the economy, Gallup said, adding that this is normal in times of peace. Americans are more pessimistic about the economy than they were earlier this year, he added.

Gallup observed that while Americans individually might not possess a great deal of expertise about the economy, in the aggregate, as expressed through surveys, they quite often prove to have a more accurate view of current economic conditions than economists.

That was the case in 1974 when a survey revealed that the American public expected the economy to get worse while experts were predicting an upswing. The public was proven right.

After the economy, Americans are most concerned about crime and lawlessness, Gallup said. This is a dramatic change from 25 years ago when crime and lawlessness didn't place among the top 20 subjects most on American's minds.

Gallup pointed out that statistically one in three Americans living in a large city will be mugged, robbed, assaulted or subjected to break-in a 12-month period. Figures for the nation overall are one in 10.

Despite worries about crime and the economy, Americans have been gaining confidence in the nation during the past three years, Gallup said, pointing to that as one accomplishment of the Ford administration.

The pollster said surveys indicate that Ford's bid for reelection to the presidency was fatally stalled by the second nationally televised debate with now President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Up until that time, Ford had made a tremendous comeback in popularity polls closing the gap for a 33 percentage point spread after the Democratic convention to a virtual tie at polling time.

Gallup attributed the comeback to Ford's winning back Republicans who defected after the president defeated Ronald Reagan for his party's nomination, and because the public began feeling that Carter had moved farther to the left, not appearing to be as fiscally conservative as he did in the spring.

Ford's comeback is even more remarkable when it is considered that registered Democrats outnumber registered Republicans, three to two in the nation, and that independent voters generally lean five to one toward the Democratic party, Gallup said.

Ford's momentum stalled after the second debate and pessimistic economic reports in the closing days of the election also hurt Ford's campaign, the pollster said.

Americans liked the debates, Gallup said, in fact, according to him, they were about the only thing Americans did like about the campaigning. He said seven in 10 Americans watched the debates and there was no drop-off in viewership after the first telecast.

Most Americans want to see the debates become a permanent part of the election process, but favor sweeping changes otherwise in presidential campaigning.

A majority of Americans surveyed would like to do away with the system of state primaries, replacing it with an open national primary which would be conducted on the same day throughout the nation.

In addition, Gallup said, the public wants to see shorter campaigns, limit spending, do away with the electoral college, vote for the vice president, dignify political conventions, and limit the terms of congressmen and senators.

As Gallup sees it, money is the root of many political problems. The price tag for election and retaining office is high and prevents many capable persons from running for office, according to Gallup.

He said his company surveyed individuals listed in "Who's Who in America" and discovered that one-fourth would run for the Senate if it didn't cost so much.

The public feels it is time to revamp the election process so the best people in the nation can rise to the top, politically, Gallup said.

Gallup said a world poll, including 90 per cent of the "free world," revealed some interesting trends.

See GALLUP, page 8.

SPECIAL PROGRAM speaker Monday night at Wayne State College was George Gallup Jr., president of the Gallup Poll, published by some 150 newspapers in the United States. Gallup explained polling techniques and discussed what surveys have revealed about attitudes in the United States and throughout the world.

Hoskins Woodcraftsman Marking 85th

A life-long resident of the Hoskins community, Frank Martin, will observe his 85th birthday Sunday, Dec. 12, with an open house reception at his home from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend the event, which is being hosted by Martin's son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Martin of Stanton.

Martin, who lives alone, spends most of his time in his workshop where he makes articles of wood, including lamps, baskets and toys, and his most prized possession, an eight-horse team of Clydesdale horses which he drew from a newspaper photograph, cut out of wood and painted. The horses are hitched to a handmade wagon and have been displayed at several Hoskins stores. At the present time he is busy making hall trees and mirrors from horse collars.

In addition to his woodwork, Mr. Martin enjoys working in his spacious garden during the summer, from which he shares produce with his friends and neighbors, and takes special pride in his flowers, especially the roses.

Martin has one son, three grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Free Lance Designer Will Give Pattern Tips

Willia Stapleton, certified sewing instructor and free lance designer, will be in Wayne next Wednesday, Dec. 15, to introduce the newly developed Sunburst pattern making system.

The public is invited to attend her program at Hotel Morrison, 120 W. Second St. Classes begin at 10 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. A $4.50 lecturer's fee will be charged.

Mrs. Stapleton has spent many years teaching progressive sewing, starting with the layout of the pattern through to advanced tailoring, including men's and women's knits, jackets and coats.

A native of McCook, she moved to Kansas with her husband 25 years ago and, until recently, owned Willia's Custom Design Studio in Oberlin, Kan. She has attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Kansas State University in Manhattan, majoring in design, tailoring and home economics. She is also a graduate of the National School of Dress Design.

"Many seamsstressesses," said Mrs. Stapleton, "are self-taught and are conscious of a 'home-made' appearance in their garments. Too often professional sewing and pattern alteration instruction of a highly technical nature is needed to give the home sewer the tailored look."

Mrs. Stapleton has designed and made up special garments for professional performers, including rock groups. She also taught three classes daily, five days a week, as a certified sewing instructor, and has worked with the extension service and judged 4-H shows.

GET THE FIT BEFORE YOU SEW!!

Willia Stapleton grew up in McCook, Nebraska, but has spent the last 25 years with her husband in Oberlin, Kansas. She began her career as a certified Singer Sewing Instructor, teaching three classes daily, in her classes, a student began with the pattern, and step-by-step, was instructed completely through to the finished garment.

Willia next became a free lance designer and opened "Willia's Custom Design Studio" in Oberlin, Kansas. Professional performers in the theatre and night club groups and those desiring special gowns for wedding parties came from hundreds of miles to Willia's Studio. On the local community level she has worked with the Extension Service and judged 4-H shows.

"I love to work with people," Willia says, "I truly enjoy free lance designing, traveling and working with whom, where and when I want to, without the pressures of running a business. Young people control fashion today - they determine what sells. Wherever you shop, everywhere you look in a fashion magazine or pattern book, you see this youthful influence. Mature persons have much difficulty finding suitable, suitable ready-made clothes, and even more difficulty finding garments that fit."

The young have their fitting problems, too. It all means that millions more women (and men, too) are now sewing who never sewed before.

"The increase in those creating home tailored garments requires 'simpler' methods, especially with modern fabrics which eliminate many techniques formerly required with totally natural fibers."

At her lectures, Willia will be giving tips on alterations to commercial patterns, showing how anyone can make a pattern simply and make that pattern fit. She will be introducing a new pattern-making method and will be giving many tips on design.

Have a Safe Holiday

Beautifully decorated holiday homes can turn into a blazing deathtrap more reminiscent of "Dante's Inferno" than "The Night Before Christmas."

By using a little common sense and following some simple tips, holiday season fires can be avoided.

Experts point out that wood burning stoves are being used in more and more homes now and deserve special attention during the holiday season. While the stoves are a pleasure to use and can provide an important secondary heat source, they should be installed and operated according to local building codes and the manufacturer's directions.

It's also important, the experts agree, to keep all decorations, wrapping paper and other combustible materials away from the stove. Wrapping paper shouldn't be burned in stoves or fireplaces, but should be discarded in a metal trash can or garbage bag and immediately taken to the outdoors for collection.

Here are some easy-to-follow tips relating to Christmas decorations:

— When using a real Christmas tree, select a freshly cut one and keep it properly watered. Keep the tree outdoors until you're ready to decorate.

— After taking the tree home, cut off the end of the trunk diagonally at least one inch above the original cut. Make sure the tree is placed in a sturdy container and check the water level frequently.

— Other decorations should be kept as fire-safe as the tree. Curtains should be pulled back at least six inches from electric lights displayed in windows.

— Whenever possible, purchase decorations made of non-combustible materials. Decorations such as manger scenes covered with untreated cotton "snow" or hay-filled mangers should not be used.

— When replacing burnt-out bulbs, make sure the light string is unplugged first.

— The switch used to turn on tree lights should be located some distance away from the tree and the electrical outlet should not be located under the tree.

— Use only electric lights labeled by a recognized testing laboratory. Check all light strings to make sure they are in top notch condition, with no frayed cords.

— Never leave lights on when no one is home and unplug them before retiring for the night.

— Don't use candles or other open flames around a Christmas tree or any other combustible materials. A Christmas tree can quickly become a torch.

In the last few years, dependable, comparatively inexpensive smoke detecting devices recognized by respected testing laboratories have been produced which can save lives at Christmas and anytime.

Don't take any chances. Fire is unforgiving; a quick killer that doesn't give second chances.

A PAIR of area high school grapplers, Neil Wagner, top, and Carl Domsch, went through some scrappy matches Saturday before they won their weight divisions in the finals of the eight-team Wayne State High School Invitational. Wagner, of Winside, pinned Pender's Paul Pauley in 3:22 to win the 155-pound title and put his team standing for the first time. Pender won the final two matches to take home the team trophy while Winside finished second. Wakefield, which took third was led by Domsch who is flipped by Norfolk Catholic's Tim Otto before the 138-pound Trojan matman won his match by the score of 5-4.

Winside's Rally Falls Short Pender Prevails as Tourney Winner

There were 114 matches, and it took 113 of them before Pender edged out Winside for championship of Wayne State's eight-team High School Invitational Wrestling Tournament Saturday.

Ken Siebrandt's decision on 185 pounds put Pender out of reach, leaving heavyweight Glen Koski to frost the Pender cake in match No. 114.

That lifted the Pendragons to 144 1/2 points while Winside scored 138. Wakefield finished third at 93 1/2, followed by Norfolk Catholic, 87; Norfolk junior varsity, 82; Hartington, 69 1/2; Butte, 58; Wayne junior varsity, 25.

Pender and Winside both went into the championship round with six entries. Although Winside emerged with four champions, Pender with only two, the Pendragons prevailed on the strength of more placings. They had nine, including four seconds and a pair of thirds. Winside took two seconds, one third and one fourth.

Results in the championship round:
98 — Rick Bowers, Winside, d. Mitch Osborn, Norfolk Catholic, 9-2. 105 — Tom Anderson, Winside, d. Terry Sohler, Norfolk JV, 4-1. 112 — Scott Prenger, Norfolk Catholic, d. Steve Warneke, Norfolk NV, 9-0. 119 — Tom Lechtenberg, Butte, d. Bill Glissman, Pender, 8-0. 126 — Kevin Cleveland, Winside, d. Mark Malmberg, Pender, 7-0. 132 — Rob Huber, Norfolk JV, d. Roger Reich, Pender, 3-2.

138 — Carl Domsch, Wakefield, d. Tim Otto, Norfolk Catholic, 5-4. 145 — John Schulte, Norfolk Catholic, d. Brad Langenberg, Winside, 11-0. 155 — Neil Wagner, Winside, pinned Paul Powley, Pender, 2:36. 167 — Dave Gustafson, Wakefield, d. Laverte Miller, Winside, in overtime, 5-2. 185 —

Ken Siebrandt, Pender, d. Don Brush, Hartington, 5-1. Hwt. — Glen Koski, Pender, d. Doug Starz, Wakefield, 6-2. Consolation finals for third place went this way:
98 — Jeff Brudigan, Norfolk JV, pinned Larry Hank, Wayne JV, 3:28. 185 — Bill Newton, Wakefield, d. Lyle Lamphear, Hartington, 5-3. 112 — Jeff Richardson, Butte, pinned Steve Oberg, Wakefield, 2:39. 119 — Byron Wacker, Wayne JV, d. Dave Peterson, Norfolk JV, 5-4. 126 — Craig Brewster, Butte, d. Lyle Borg, Wakefield, 4-3. 132 — Mike Evans, Hartington, d. Brent Miller, Winside, 13-8. 138 — Phil Sorensen, Pender, pinned Galen Jueden, Hartington, 19-145 — Mike Kai, Pender, d. Mike Ludemann, Butte, 7-3. 155 — Chuck Sherrer, Wakefield, d. David Dally, Norfolk JV, 6-2. 167 — Mike Hastings, Pender, pinned Steve Ludemann, Butte, 4:28. 185 — Mitch Pfeiffer, Winside, d. Dean Sharp, Wakefield, 7-2. Hwt. — Scott Rose, Hartington, pinned French, Norfolk JV, 3-42. Tournament director Doug Barry said he heard numerous favorable comments on the event, prompting him to begin planning another one next year.

Travelers should be careful not to overdo. After a whole day of driving, shopping or sightseeing, you should spend another just relaxing, especially if you're traveling with children.

Injury, Fouls Hamper Winside Against Stanton

The loss of two starters on Winside High's girls basketball team led to the Wildkitten's downfall Monday night when the visitors fell behind in the final period Stanton, 27-24.

Before the contest started Lisa Longnecker suffered a sprained ankle and was benched the entire game. In the final stanza, Winside's center junior Paula Hoemann exited the game with her fifth personal. Stanton wiped out a 21-17 Winside lead with a 10-point barrage in the opening game for both clubs.

Winside's cold night shooting was reflected in the team's 17 per cent from the floor and low percentage from the free throw line, making only 10 of 32 attempts.

Krist Duering led coach Kathy O'Connor's club in scoring with nine and rebounding with 12.

The reserves also ran into bad luck, falling 33-29. In an earlier contest, Winside's freshman defeated Stanton, 12-1, in a game which went only two quarters. Joan Bowers and Kim Lage led the frosh with four points each.

Wildcats Grab Tourney Title; Robinson Is VP

The basketball Wildcats of Wayne State had considerable reason for cheer when they returned from Maryville, Mo., Saturday.

They won Northwest Missouri State's inaugural Ryland Milner invitational tournament. Their top-scoring forward, Wayne Robinson, Denver senior, earned most-valuable honors as one of five all-tourney selections, and freshman Bob Kelly of Carroll, Ia., also rated all-tourney.

And the Cats had a 3-0 start. A check of the records shows Wayne had not been 3-0 since the 1969-70 championship year.

But the Wildcats had a stiff challenge to that record scheduled Wednesday night when Doane College Tigers were to play a 7-30 game in Rice. Doane returned most of the players who won the Nebraska NAIA championship last year.

The Wayne-Dana clash is the Wildcats' last home game before their Christmas Holiday Tournament. Saturday they will play Missouri Western at St. Joseph, then finish pre-holiday action at Midland Tuesday.

The Wildcats won a pair of highly-contested battles at Maryville. First they squeaked at Tarkio uprising in Friday's opening round, then they came from behind to edge host North. See WILDCATS, page 8.

Honorable Mention

More accolades have been given to members of Wayne State's football team.

Last week the Omaha World-Herald singled out five Wildcat players who were named honorable mention in the paper's annual grid selection from Nebraska's small colleges.

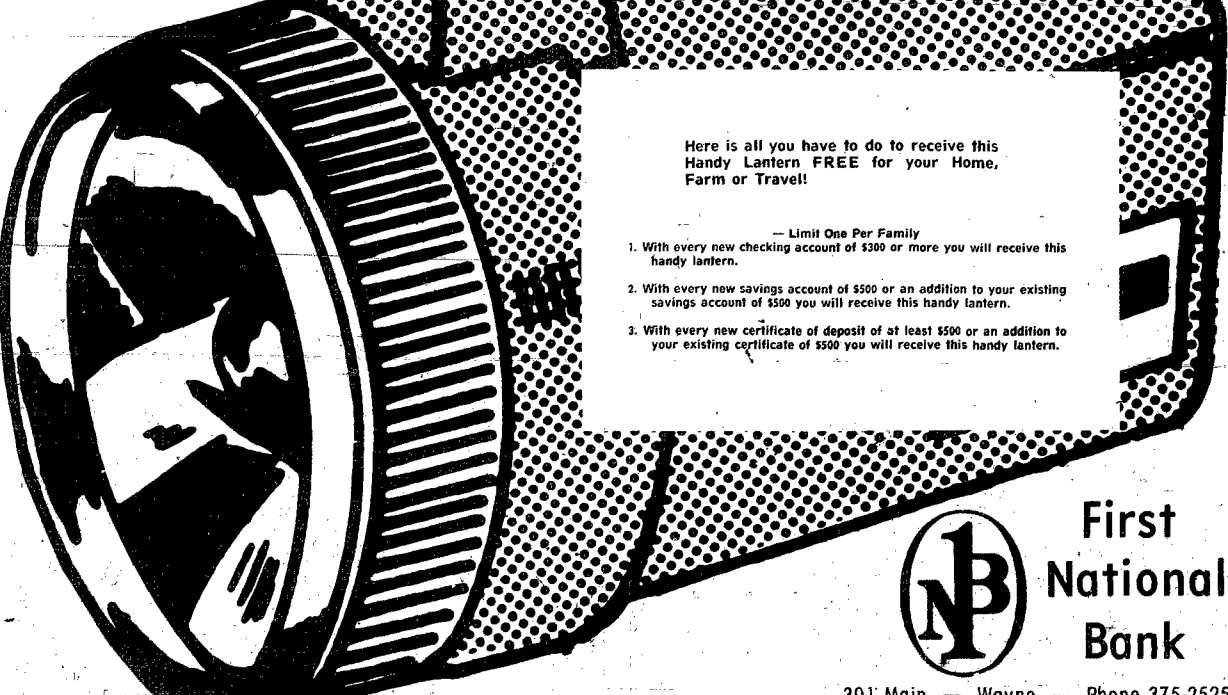

Offensively, end Maurie Mintken and tackles Al Koski and Mike Dunklau were picked along with defensive lineman Bob Kraljcek and back Ray Wagner.

Eagles' Defense Shuts Off Host Laurel

Allen's defense put the clamps on Laurel's scoring in two crucial periods Monday night as the girls of coach Steve McManigal chalked up their season opening win, 34-24.

Allen held the home quint to only three points in the second stanza and five in the last period. Meanwhile, the Eagles poured in 12 points in the second frame for a 16-7 halftime command and tossed in 10 more in the final period.

Senior Lori Erwin provided the scoring leadership in the second half with six of her game-high 12 points. Both she and teammate sister Susie had six after two quarters.

"Our defense was the key to the game," admitted McManigal. "We kept them out of scoring range and made them take the low percentage shots." Senior Cheryl Abts led Laurel scoring with nine points, most of those from the outside as the Eagles' 1-1-3 zone defense prevented Laurel from driving in to score.

Allen controlled the boards with 27 caroms. Lori again was the leader with 13 followed by Stacey Koester with seven. The win gives Allen a 1-0 record going into the game tonight (Thursday) at home against Winnebago. Meanwhile Laurel even's its mark at 1-1 after Saturday night's 53-30 beating of conference rival Crofton.

In that game, coach Ev

Jensen had three players, in double figures: Elaine Guern, Roxann Gade and Abts had 12 each to lead scoring.

Laurel's junior varsity stands at 2-0 with wins over Crofton (33-27) and Allen (22-6). Deanna Manz had 14 against Crofton and Lisa Galvin had eight against Allen for top scoring.

Athletes of the Week

Allen coach Jim Koonitz was faced with a dilemma after his team's first home win in three years Friday night over Coleridge.

His problem: Which player should be nominated for the Herald's "Athletes of the Week" honor?

Should he push senior Denny Uhl or junior Tod Ellis, both instrumental in the Eagles' good showing against Wakefield

DENNY UHL
Allen High School

Thursday and the 48-43 win over Coleridge the next night? Rather than mull over the situation, the second-year head man decided to hand it over to the Herald's sports staff. Their selection: Uhl.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Uhl of Allen earns the honor for his 16.5-point average for both nights, including 24 in the 65-61 loss to Wakefield, and better than eight rebounds a game.

"Denny supplies us with something which can't be measured in the stat books. That's leadership," Koonitz pointed out. The coach added that Uhl has taken over leadership of the team on the floor with his fine ball control.

Uhl's leadership became apparent in the last half of the Coleridge tilt after he was benched with three fouls in the first two periods. He made four of five charity tosses which "kinda salted the game for us," Koonitz said.

For the night, Ellis was second-high scorer with 10 big points and was the leader on the boards — two big reasons the coach felt he might share this week's award with Uhl.

In addition to participating in basketball, Uhl also lettered in baseball and football. Is a member of the student council, A Club and senior class president.

Prep Picks:

Colvin: I See Good Things

The kind of improvements Winside made from Thursday night's 60-36 drubbing by Ponca to Friday night's 43-35 edging by Wakefield leads coach Sam Colvin to believe that there are a lot of good things in store for his young Wildcats.

"If I can get them to believe in their defense, I'm sure the offense will come later," the first-year head man pointed out. Colvin explained that there's not much publicity given to the defense, everything is centered on the offense. He hopes his club can turn that kind of notoriety around.

Big changes from the two games were the reduction in turnovers and increase in rebounds. He attributes those changes to the team's hustle and desire.

Winside started the season with only one returning letterman from last year's good season: He's senior Cliff Tittema, who still stands out as a leader this season. Strong prospects named are Wayne Smith, Chuck Mann, Skip Deck and Bob Petersen, once he recovers from a broken nose he suffered Friday against Wakefield.

With the continued team effort Colvin feels his quint should have a good shot at Friday night's second home court battle against Wynot.

Last week's record was 8-3 for 73 per cent.

This week's selections (winners in boldface):
Boys: Friday — Laurel at Hartington CC, Wayne at South Sioux City, Wakefield at Wigner River, Wynot at Winside, Bancroft at Allen, Saturday — Columbus Lakewood at Wayne, Tuesday — Wayne at Laurel, Winside at Osmond, Allen at Newcastle.

Girls: Tonight (Thursday) — Norfolk at Wayne, Winnebago at Allen, Wakefield at Emerson Hubbard, Tuesday — Winside at Osmond.

Gals Get 'Sweet Revenge' Over Lincoln Quint, 67-60

It was victory for revenge according to Wayne State women's basketball coach G.I. Wiloughby. In state competition last year the Wildkittens lost to UNL by only two points in overtime.

So Tuesday, the Cats clawed back, defeating the Lincoln girls by a 67-60 final score.

Coach Wiloughby termed the Wayne-UNL scrap a "super" win for the Wildkittens. "We finally got things clicking tonight," she said, referring to a working offense, good defense, and overall team effort.

Wayne began the scoring effort with a 4-0 lead in opening minutes. But from then on it was back-and-forth scoring. Wayne finally climbed to a 20-16 lead at the end of the first half.

Wayne's top scorer Connie Kunzmann of Everly, Ia., made a valiant scoring drive completing 21 of her 30 points in the first half. Pat McKay of Knoxville, Ia., was second on Wayne's scoring list, she contributed 19 points for the Wildcats.

The second half revealed a closer battle, the Huskers gaining on the Cats to grab the lead. Foul trouble was "crucial" for the Lincoln girls, losing top scorer Janalee Crouch and a 6'7" player, Jeanne Boiler early in the second half.

Wayne held a steady lead in the last five minutes to beat the Lincoln players 67-60.

Last Sunday, the Wildkittens soundly defeated Midland Lutheran College 75-56. Kunzmann, again, was high scorer for Wayne with 24 points, followed by McKay with 18.

Wayne started out in the lead and was never behind, leading the Warriors at half 31-23.

Wakefield Trips Ponca by 44-27

Behind the second-half scoring of Lynn Holm and Kathy Schwartz, plus a strong defense, Wakefield overcame a one-point halftime Ponca lead to chalk up its first win of the season, 44-27, Monday night at Ponca.

Holm, who took scoring honors with 14 and led rebounding with seven, scored eight points in the last two periods while Schwartz contributed four of her six points.

Wakefield was trailing 19-18 going into the second half when the Trojanettes applied a stiff defense to limit the host Indians to a total of eight points.

Winside Matmen Stop Pender

Winside High grapplers chalked up their first win of the season Tuesday night by knocking off powerhouse Pender at Pender, 30-18.

The victory comes on the heels of Saturday's Wayne State High School Tournament where Pender finished on top and Winside was second.

The big difference Tuesday night was the addition of Bryan Svoboda at 185. Svoboda, who missed Saturday's action because of a leg injury, handed Ken Siebrandt an 8-2 defeat.

As a result of Svoboda's return, coach Ron Pickett moved Mitch Pfeiffer up to heavyweight which he stopped Gien Koski, 4-0.

Results:
98 — Rick Bowers, W, decided Craig Thompson, 5-0
105 — Tom Anderson, W, decided Jerry Glissman, 7-3
112 — Bill Glissman, P, won by forfeit
119 — Don McQuistan, P, decided Scott Mann, 15-0
126 — Kevin Cleveland, W, pinned Mark MalMBERG, 2-59
132 — Roger Reich, P, decided Brent Miller, 12-0
135 — Mike Kal, P, decided Eric Vahkamp, 6-0
145 — Brad Langenberg, W, decided Phil Sorenson, 3-0
155 — Neil Wagner, W, won by forfeit
167 — Laverie Miller, W, decided Mike Hastings, 1-0
Reserves

Boroff Named Coach of Year

Claire Boroff, football coach of Kearney State, has been chosen NAIA District II football coach of the year.

His selection by his fellow grid coaches at the district meeting last week.

Boroff, in his fifth year as head coach of the Antelopes, has a 35-11-0 record including a 9-1 record this year.

His teams have won the Nebraska College Conference champions each year he has been head coach. This year the Antelopes tied for the championship in the newly-formed Central States Intercollegiate Conference.

When playing with children, request seats near the bulkhead that divide the first class and tourist class sections. You pay no more, but the youngsters will find more room for playing.

TURN BACK the pages to the 1975 World Series between the Boston Red Sox and Cincinnati Red Legs. It's the fifth game of the series and Cincinnati is up to bat. With a runner at first, a Cincinnati batter bunts. Boston catcher Carlton Fisk attempts to grab the ball slithering on the ground but can't because Fisk claims the batter obstructed him. Result: runner on first rounds second and is safe at third.

The person in the spotlight had to be homeplate umpire Larry Barnett. He said there wasn't any obstruction, despite protests of Boston plays, fans and sportscasters.

After the booing and jeering by Boston fans, Fisk fans still are upset. So upset in fact that Barnett's disputed ruling brings him a letter warning that if he did not make up a $10,000 bond, the sender would "put a .38 caliber bullet in your head."

That example of the pressure placed upon a professional referee or umpire is extreme, but it's just one of the glimpses of a referee's life outlined in an article in the December Reader's Digest about "Referee: Roughest Role in Sports."

Described as the plucky, perceptive autocrat wearing "prison stripes" or "mortician's blue," the referee has to be a special breed of man to excel at the most difficult job in all of professional basketball, baseball, football and hockey: officiating the game.

The article by Bill Surface points out that the referee has to be a defective with superior vision and must retain his composure while absorbing almost unbelievable psychological and verbal punishment.

Correct quick decisions are vital in the professional world of refereeing. He also must be strong physically and shrug off frequent pain.

THAT ARTICLE started out by talking about a referee in the National Basketball Association and the pressures he's under. I would think that basketball would be the toughest to officiate because the fans are right there and see the calls.

According to referee Ron Jones, having the fans breathing over an official does put a lot of pressure on him. Often times a fan will say that officials are controlling the game by calling too many fouls, but that just isn't so, Jones said.

"The referee controls the physical aspects of the game but not the tempo. That's up to the offense and defense," he explained. Jones noted that referees have to control the physical portion of the contest because "that's what the rules say."

Jones, who has worked high school and college games for about 10 years, believes that this year will be more exciting for basketball fans now that dunking has returned to the sport. Dunking was taken out of the sport several years ago as a safety measure.

BACKPEDDLING: Allen High's Lori Erwin was selected by the Sunday Journal-Star sports staff as one of the top girl players in Class D basketball in a special basketball edition about a week ago. The 5-9 senior is the only girl the paper picks from this area. As a team, Allen is predicted to finish third in the state in Class D. Top favorites are Trenton and Nelson.

In boys basketball, Class C Laurel is rated fifth in the pre-season polls. Ahead of coach Joel Parks' Bears are two familiar area clubs, No. three Tekamah-Herman and No. eight Madison.

INTERESTED in seeing Wayne High's varsity grapplers take on the alumni? If enough "oldtimers" show up, the event is the person to see. Steve is trying to line up such an event, but he needs to have some volunteers by Friday, Dec. 10.

Bandmaster — Gallup —

then on for regional and finally national judging. "The kids feel pretty good about the award," Dalton said. "It's a reflection on them." Along with the little goes a special plaque and a $1,000 prize. A delegation of the ASBDA will present the award to Dalton at the school's Mid-Winter Concert, tentatively scheduled for Feb. 13. Dalton said his plans now are to use the prize money to attend professional workshops and clinics, including a bandmaster's convention in Houston, Tex., and a workshop at North Texas State University at Denton next summer.

Dalton became band director at Wayne Middle School following his graduation from Wayne State College in 1968. During his senior year he received the Osborn Outstanding College and University Senior Scholarship and was a charter member of Kappa Kappa Psi fraternity at WSC.

In 1969 Dalton became Wayne High bandmaster, handling programs for both junior and senior high music. Since his second year his duties have included grades nine through 12.

Dalton has also been director of the high school orchestra for four years and has worked with numerous rural district students on beginning band instruments. The bandmaster credits his early success partially to inheriting a fine band with a great deal of tradition. In Class A district competition the concert band has received a superior rating from every judge for the past eight years.

The stage band has also been rated superior each year, and out of 118 solo and ensemble entries during that period, 91 have received superior ratings and 27 have been rated excellent. No entry has received a rating below excellent during Dalton's tenure.

The marching band has been a consistent superior performer in the Peoria District Marching Festival at Lincoln, having received five superior ratings in the past seven years. The band currently has four consecutive superior ratings.

In 1973 the Wayne High musicians comprised the only Nebraskan district concert band in the Cotton Bowl parade in Dallas, Tex., and one band member participated in the Rose Bowl parade as a member of the McDonald's All American Band.

The Wayne High stage band has twice placed second at Midland Jazz Festival at Fremont. In 1973 the Wayne musicians captured top honors in that contest.

In addition, several students under Dalton's direction have been named to "all star" groups at various contests. Dalton was guest conductor in 1971 at the WSC Music Camp and four years ago organized the West Husker Conference Junior High Band and Small Ensemble Festival. He has been director of the festival since then. Last year he was a member of the State Marching-Band Festival panel and has served on other Nebraska State Band Association committees. He is now NSBA secretary.

Troth replaces Robert Moore who resigned his post at the end of the 1973 school year. In other action the board agreed not to use the computer services ESU-1 for figuring payroll checks.

In the survey of 70 nations, Gallup revealed, interviewers discovered that there is a steady decline in religion among certain Western European nations. "Christianity is in trouble," Gallup said.

He added that two alarming trends were discovered in developing nations. Among countries in that category, the nations generally want to move to the cities and this is causing havoc in many nations, Gallup said. He added that developing nations must take steps to keep people in rural areas.

Also, he said, people in developing and underdeveloped nations tend to favor large families. Those two trends are reversed in industrial nations, according to the poll. People developing in the world are favoring smaller families according to projections from the survey, and most people don't like living in cities.

For example, Gallup said, only 12 per cent of people surveyed in America said they would remain in large cities if they had their choice.

Gallup said efforts are now being made to include Iran, Curtin nations in the world-wide poll, and predicted that in 10 years the world opinion will be measured in the space of an hour. Survey results will be transmitted via satellite to a central unit, he said. Questions will be presented at the beginning of a television program and results will be received and compiled within an hour.

Gallup said he sees some bright spots in results of public opinion surveys. There has been a decline in numbers of people who would object to voting for a minority candidate. He credited the change in attitude to the growing level of formal education in the country.

The speaker also offered his insights as to how conditions can be improved. If each parent would spend 10 minutes a night before their children go to bed talking over the day's activities, it would be the most valuable time they could spend, he offered.

In addition, Americans should keep informed about what is going on. Surveys indicate some serious gaps in knowledge.

Gallup warned that more attention should be paid to planning careers. Half of Americans surveyed indicate they would like to go into other lines of work.

Communication with leaders is also important, Gallup said, and he urged people to express their opinions, perhaps through letters to newspapers, and to congressional delegates. Gallup said there would be a number of benefits to his proposal for a one-year service commitment for the nation's young people.

If it would provide for a frontal attack on social problems he said, it would be part of the educational process. Young people would gain experience in the real world, could receive special training, get a chance to plan their careers, get some work experience, and mix with other people from diverse backgrounds.

poration, housing and environmental impacts.

Hopefully, studies made of existing conditions in those areas and projections of future conditions will prove helpful in future decision making for town and county governing bodies.

One item was deleted from the plan as a result of the hearing. Merlin Reinhardt asked the planning commission about assurances that changes made by them would be incorporated in the final draft of the plan. He inquired about item discussed at a previous meeting.

The commission checked their copies of the plan and discovered that they had discussed but had not agreed to delete a recommendation that application be made for a County Health Department Demonstration Program.

If such a program were adopted by the county commission through the state legislature funds for one year for a county health department. After that, it would be up to the commissioners to decide if they wanted to continue financing the program with local tax dollars.

Planning commission member Fred Mann made a motion to drop the recommendation from the plan. The motion carried.

The commission, at its next meeting Jan. 5, will review the plan and will discuss a report by Wright regarding review of the proposal by other state agencies.

Copies of the plan will remain available for public inspection at the county clerk's office, at the Farmer's State Bank in Carroll, at Voss Investment in Hoskins, and at the Winside State Bank.

The planning commission decided to make arrangements for the plans to those locations to be checked out to the public. In addition, copies of the individual chapters are available at the county clerk's office.

The planning commission Tuesday night accepted the resignation of Phil Olaisen of Carroll as commission member west Missouri, 89-87. Coming off a 47-43 deficit at halftime, Wayne slipped behind Northwest by 10 points midway through the half. A steady climb followed as Wayne's balanced offense broke the Bearcat defense.

Robinson contributed nine points in that surge, and Kelly hit two straight fielders to give Wayne a first lead, 87-85, since mid first half. That came with 1:15 left. Northwest tied with 30 seconds to go. Wayne took time out at 14 seconds. And with three seconds to go, Gary Billings caught the Bearcat defense wide open for a layup from the top of the key — 89-87.

Both teams finished with five players scoring 10 or more. But Robinson's game-high 26 proved the difference. Mark Olsen hit 18, Kelly and Billings 12 each, Dale Meyer 11. Friday night Wayne zoomed from a 46-41 half lead to as much as 14 points, then hit a chilly spell while Tarkio closed to an uncomfortable two points, 75-73. No more of this, said the Wildcats, and they blanked the Owls thereafter while climbing to 82-73 in the last two minutes. Robinson led the Cats with 18 while Kelly scored 17, Meyer 12, Graceland College beat Tarkio for third in the men's division, Tarkio women dominated Northwest Missouri for the coed title, and Northwest Missouri defeated Graceland women for third.

and chairman. The appointment of Bob Johnson by the Carroll town board to replace Olaisen as a board member was accepted by the commission.

Action was deferred on selecting a new chairman. Mern Mordhorst, vice-chairman, said he is willing to continue as acting chairman until a new chairman is elected, but said he thinks the chairman should be from somewhere in the county outside of Wayne. The City of Wayne already has a comprehensive plan for property under its jurisdiction.

Mordhorst, a member of the Wayne planning commission, was appointed to act in a liaison capacity. He said that because the City of Wayne is not included in the comprehensive plan he thinks the chairman should be from outside the city. The county planners agreed to elect a new chairman at their next meeting.

Salary Increase Top Priority At Trustees Meeting

A faculty salary increase was number one on the list of priorities submitted to the State College Board of Trustees at a meeting in Kearney last week-end.

The four state college presidents unanimously agreed that faculty adjustments merited more funding than other requests.

Wayne State College requested $85,841 for faculty adjustments. Also, under new and expanded programs, WSC requested $62,000 for improvement of the institution and curriculum development.

Other requests by Wayne were $20,000 for the rental of Rice Gymnasium for educational purposes, $35,200 for the women's athletic program, and $32,590 for the hiring of counselors.

Other items of importance at the meeting concerned the formation of one-time instruction grants for state college faculty and the development of a cooperative education program involving Wayne State and three other educational agencies.

The instruction grants, proposed by Anne Campbell, Nebraska Commissioner of Education and Board member ex officio, will be drawn from the special fund which was established in July and earmarked by the board for possible innovative projects.

The grant will have direct impact on classroom instruction, said Mrs. Campbell. Their goal, according to a statement by the personnel and policies subcommittee, "to assist faculty by recognizing and/or helping faculty strengthen instruction for students attending Nebraska State Colleges."

Colleges will be expected to submit guidelines to the board concerning submission of grant proposals. The grants, open to all state college faculty, members will be implemented in September 1977.

WSC president Dr. Lyle Seymour, announced the formation of NEWUS, a cooperative educational effort of Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk, Wayne State College, the State Department of Education, and the University of Nebraska. (The abbreviation uses the initials of the supporting agencies.)

According to Seymour, WSC and Northeast Tech currently have cooperative programs, but it was decided to expand the cooperative effort to include the four agencies. NEWUS will serve a 22-county region.

Goals of the program are: —To provide lifelong learning to people in Northeast Nebraska.

—To promote greater and more efficient cooperation in providing effective services by the participating organizations.

—To meet perceived needs and to assist in the solution of the identified problems of people in Northeast Nebraska by utilizing the full range of available knowledge, research and experience, and by involving all interested and capable parties. Including the local public school districts in Northeast Nebraska, and —To initiate additional credit or noncredit courses, seminars, workshops, conferences, and other programs — to respond to requests of Northeast Nebraska citizens.

Board member Robert Walker of Kearney commended Seymour for the NEWUS project.

Concerning legislative bills, board members agreed to be represented at public hearings for LR 36, a resolution concerning the coordination of post secondary education. Lou Ninger of Kearney State College stated that state colleges should be excruciated from LR 87, an act requiring just cause for dismissal of teachers.

The board approved the appointments of part time instructors at WSC for the second semester. These include: John Corcoran, Norman Nordstrand, Mrs. Kathleen Tooker, Mrs. Marilyn Lesh and Don Koenig.

The appointment of Gloria Lessman as a graduate assistant in the English department was also approved.

Faculty from WSC receiving doctorates were announced: Peter Black, assistant professor of sociology, has received his PhD from the University of California; and Bruce Domazlicky, assistant professor of economics, completed his final oral exam for the PhD from the University of Wyoming.

Sixteen appointments were approved for continuing education workshops and two resignations were accepted. Ms. Carol Laffon, instructor of foreign languages, has resigned effective Dec. 18. Ross Graham, graduate aid, has resigned effective Nov. 17.

'Trip Was Just Fantastic' Allen Lass Back Home From Pageant

Lori Von Minden's week-long stay in Tulsa, Okla., for the Miss Teenage America pageant was like something most girls dream of, whether they be youngsters, teen-agers or adults. It was exciting.

LORI VON MINDEN

"It was just fantastic. It was like being treated like royalty," the 17-year-old Allen lass gleamed. "Everywhere we went we had police escorts, cameramen taking our pictures and reporters asking us questions. It really felt good to be important for a week."

For Lori and 46 other teenagers from across the nation, the week-long activities leading up to the crowning of a new Miss Teenage America were a dream come true.

From the minute she stepped off the plane in Tulsa on Friday, Nov. 19, Lori said, there were plenty of things to do and places to see.

Some of the activities included rehearsing for the nationally televised finals at the end of the week, visiting Oklahoma Farrer College, taking in a rodeo, going to a carnival, meeting master of ceremonies, famed comedian Bob Hope, and touring Oral Roberts University where the pageant was staged.

Each contestant was escorted by a members of the pageant committee from the different district levels. Georgian Bailey of Sioux City was Lori's escort. Sioux City is where Lori qualified for the all-expense paid trip to Tulsa.

Although the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Von Minden wasn't among the eight finalists, she did earn herself the nickname of "Singing Sue" during a CB party one night. She and the rest of the girls had to give their "handicraft" during an impromptu talk over a make-believe citizen's band radio. Because her's was judged the best, Lori won a small AM radio.

"Not being among the finalists didn't disappoint Lori. Fact is she felt sorry for the eight girls vying for the title because they were excluded from the rest of the girls from Thursday to Saturday to prepare for the crown-

"They missed all the other parties, meeting other people and seeing other sights," Lori pointed out.

Miss Teenage Dallas Rebecca Reid, was named Miss Teenage America and captured a $12,000 four-year college scholarship. Crowning this year's royalty was reigning queen, Cathy Durden of Honolulu.

Lori's first trip on an airplane made her a firm believer that "flying is the best way to travel." Making her flight more memorable was the good following of well-wishers from Allen who were present at the airport in Sioux City to send her off and greet her on return.

Lori will have other memories of the trip as years go on. Besides the new friends she made, she has two jumper suits, an evening gown and a pair of shoes each of the girls wore during the contest.

But Lori does have one problem. Somehow her flight more than of another girl got mixed up. Lori's hoping to get them back, but she's not too sure when. The other girl lives in Germany.

Debaters Compile 6-3 Record in Tournament

Compiling a 6-3 tournament tally, Wayne State College debaters made their best showing to date in a "Nervous Novice" tournament Dec. 1 in Lincoln.

The tournament included 30 debate teams representing seven Nebraska colleges. As the "Nervous Novice" name implies the debaters were of equal experience.

Gathering the most points for Wayne were Aaron Hilkeman of Norfolk and Mark Placek of Bruno. The pair chalked up three wins and no losses to tie with four other teams for the first place affirmative team. Juli Burney of Hartington and Marie Welch of Hastings were next in the point line. Down by only one point, their record closing at 2-1. Doug Coffey of Columbus and Joe Helm of Auburn, Ia., brought in one win and two losses to arrive at the 4-3 figure. Jay VerLinden, WSC director of forensics, said he was pleased with tournament results. "It showed we can compete very favorably against other teams with equal experience," he said. He noted that two of the Wayne teams had debated at only one other tournament while the third had never debated at the college level.

Next on the agenda for the WSC forensics squad is the University of Northern Colorado Forensic Foreeze tournament, scheduled at Greeley, Colo., in January.

EYE ON SAFETY

An estimated 41 percent of visual impairments due to injuries occur in and around the home. Caustic alkalis and acids, such as those contained in household cleaning products, can cause serious chemical burns to the eyes—in the case of aerosols, compounded by the force of the contact. If eye contact occurs, hold the eyelids open and flood the eye immediately with water, continuing for at least 15 minutes. Then see a doctor.
 The best defense against glaucoma (which accounts for one out of seven cases of blindness in the U.S.) is an eye exam every two years after age 35. Glaucoma screenings, a major community service of The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, are an important means of detecting signs of this disease and educating the public.

Legislative committee considering bill to protect laborers

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN — The Unicameral became concerned during this year's sessions about employers who leave the state without paying their employees and decided to do something about it.

The labor committee is considering a bill that would give the state labor commissioner the leverage he needs to pry the money loose.

In agreeing something should be done, state labor commissioner Gerald Chizek said the victim is most often young.

Because they are young, he said he felt it is only right that government step in with a helping hand.

"We have to show concern on the part of government for these young people if we are to build integrity," Chizek told the committee.

The labor commissioner cited several examples of the kinds of problems he runs into involving young workers. In one case, an employer owes $27,000 to some 300 young people. Another, a group of college students is still waiting for the $25,000 owed in wages. Chizek said that as long as the employer stays in the state there are some things that can be done.

"We can at least get $1.60 an hour," the minimum wage, for them, he said.

The real problem involves those who leave the state.

"We cut them on the phone and all we get is garbage. They know there isn't a thing we can do unless they come back into the state," Chizek told the committee.

That doesn't mean there aren't any real problems with those in the state. Chizek said while his department could get minimum wages paid, that doesn't really help those who were promised more than $1.60 per hour.

The labor commissioner said there is one employer in the state who promises $2 an hour to new employees. But when check time arrives, it isn't there.

"Then he tells them something about a training period," Chizek said.

He said he and his staff have contacted that particular employer at least nine times and there really doesn't seem to be any way his employe tactics can be changed.

The committee has in its hands a proposed bill that would give Chizek the power to go to court on behalf of an employe.

The proposal, if introduced in some form, would be known as the Nebraska Wage Payment and Collection Act.

Any time an employe is fired or he quits, all wages owed would have to be paid at the end of the next regular pay period, or two weeks, whichever is sooner.

The proposal, drafted by the committee staff, would also allow the labor commissioner to enter into agreements with other states so he could go after those who leave Nebraska.

Court Rules On Plea

Is a no contest plea to a criminal charge the same as a guilty plea? Generally, it has the same effect because either plea means there will be no trial and there is little real dispute over the facts.

But there are still some technical differences.

The Nebraska Supreme Court was asked to consider one possible difference.

Max Abramson, Paul Capell and Wayne Womonehit were all convicted of violating Omaha's gambling ordinances. They all entered no contest pleas. Then they appealed contending there was no way for the court to accept their pleas.

The cases involved misdemeanor crimes. Attorneys for the three argued that federal law governs the use of wiretaps. Wiretaps were used to gather evidence against the trio and the attorneys said Nebraska law allowed that to happen.

Therefore, they said, the law is unconstitutional.

The supreme court did not reach the constitutional issue.

"The only issue here is whether a plea of (no contest) waives the right to test the statute's constitutionality," the court said. The court noted in the case of a guilty plea the defendant waives the right to procedural and statutory defenses as well as procedural and statutory defenses. A guilty plea is alike on the matter of giving up certain defenses.

New Adjutant General

Nebraska will get a new adjutant general on January 1.

Maj. Gen. Francis Winner was fired by Gov. J. J. Exon because of what many called a prank.

A black National Guardsman was the subject of what some call a mock hanging. The guardsman was Dan Briscoe, 22, Lincoln.

It seems that little was done about the incident when it occurred last May. The prank involved Mississippi guardsmen. In fact, Exon said Mississippi troops were the "only people directly involved."

Exon called on Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch to investigate. Finch said he would welcome any official investigations into the matter. He said he already has "an impartial report" from his adjutant general.

"The report contained substantial evidence this was a spontaneous prank, although an ill-conceived one," Finch said. "I do not condone such conduct and have issued strict orders against similar activity in the future."

Exon wasn't pleased.

"I hope some action can be, and should be, taken in Mississippi," Exon said.

As far as Winner's handling of the matter, the governor said it was simply a matter of untimely response. He said by that he meant there was no immediate response on the part of Nebraska guard officials.

State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, the Unicameral's only black member, has called for investigations by federal authorities. He contends the incident was demeaning and his comments later figured into a change in the training schedule so that Nebraska and Mississippi troops would not mix again.

OBSERVATIONS

Congratulations

Congratulations are in order for Wayne High School band director Ron Dalton for his selection as national Outstanding Young Band Director of the Year honors.

Dalton's bands have consistently shown their quality, both in competitive events like the Pershing Marching Band Festival in Lincoln, and in programs presented for the entertainment of the local citizenry. The band always adds that something extra to parades, celebrations and other events.

Dalton's achievement is one everyone should feel proud of. It's another visible reminder of the quality education offered by the Wayne-Carroll school system. — Jim Strayer.

Message getting louder

Chadron now claims the dubious honor of having Nebraska's first chapter of Posse Comitatus, a national organization. Stanley Campbell, chairman of the Chadron group, said the posse isn't a vigilante organization but will resort to whatever means necessary, including use of firearms, to prevent what they believe are violations of the Constitution when law enforcement officials fail to take what the posse perceives as proper action.

"Priority issues, Campbell said, will be efforts against the International Revenue Service and 'tax cuts' that would allow the wealthy to avoid paying taxes."

To Campbell's claim that the posse isn't a vigilante organization, one can only say "A rose by any other name..."

We first became aware of the national Posse Comitatus organization a couple of years ago, but didn't think much about it. Chadron is a long way from Wayne County, but the chartering of the organization in Nebraska brings a point a little closer to home, one which government officials should pay a bit more attention to.

Basically, people are becoming fed up with government interference with their lives. Legions of bureaucrats set countless confusing and contradictory rules, citizens learn more and more how little privacy they have from the alphabet agencies such as the FBI, CIA, IRS, or what have you.

At the same time, growing numbers of people feel the government fails to protect the normal, productive citizen while revolving door courts continue to send repeat offenders back into the streets to contribute to crime statistics, and individuals like Gary Gilmore and groups like the Symbionese Liberation "Army" become cult heroes.

Crowds stand and cheer at movies like "Death Wish" about a man who decides to do what the government apparently can't or won't and dispenses "justice" on his own terms from the muzzle of a revolver.

We certainly don't condone that type of action. The made-for-television movie "Revenge for a Rape" shows the other side of the coin — a man who sets out to right a wrong and takes three lives, only to discover they were the wrong ones.

The Posse Comitatus philosophy of defending the Constitution when they think proper authorities aren't deteriorates quickly when carried very far. If one organization can interpret the Constitution and enforce it as they see fit, it seems only logical that other groups with conflicting views can do likewise. Extend the principle of each individual and you have anarchy.

Despite their faulty reasoning, organizations like Posse Comitatus might do some good, not because of actions which they might take, but because of the message they deliver. People want the government to do what it was initially designed to do — serve the people, instead of pursuing the current trend which is leading in the opposite direction. Hopefully the right people will hear and heed the message before it is too late. — Jim Strayer.

Access to seabed mineral wealth delayed

Mysterious nodules lying on the floor of the ocean contain immense reserves of iron, manganese, nickel, cobalt, copper and perhaps other minerals, worth at least $3 trillion. The implications for a world worried about mineral shortages are obvious.

Unfortunately, the right to develop these resources at the lowest possible cost to the consumer is in danger of being bargained away in a vain attempt to placate Third World radicals. Here's the story.

The Fifth Session of the UN's Third Law of the Sea Conference ended Sept. 17. Fitting the pattern of previous sessions of the 3rd Conference, dating back to 1973, the delegates could agree on little except to reconvene, and thereby at least preserve their own jobs.

The sixth session will also take place at the UN in New York in May, 1977. The cause of the general deadlock is the inability of developing and industrialized countries to agree to a formula for exploitation of deep seabed minerals. Few delegates have indicated optimism that a solution can be found in May, with some admitting that another session resulting in no progress toward developing an international seabed regime might just kill the entire exercise.

Progress in all areas towards a broad sea law treaty is dependent on resolution of the deep seabed minerals issue. All parties, including the U.S. government, are urged to make substantial contributions to the mining of nodules found on the deep seabed.

At present, the U.S. is the only country with the underwater technology to "mine" the nodules. And the technology belongs to private companies, not to the government. Several U.S. firms are interested in deep sea mining. Nevertheless, the developing countries, banded together in the Group of 77, have demanded that the UN seabed authority establish its own mining operation, called "The Enterprise." This proposal has been accepted by the U.S. However, the Group of 77 also wants the seabed authority to have the power to dictate where private seabed mining firms compete with The Enterprise may conduct operations, and the authority to restrict production so as to protect competing land-based mining operations. In other words, the authority to fix prices. The U.S. has rejected these proposals, and has demanded that private mining companies have guaranteed access to the seabed and freedom to exploit assigned areas. The U.S., in attempts to compromise, has offered to share the seabed equally with The Enterprise, to share a portion of profits from seabed mining with all nations through the UN authority, to extend financing and technical assistance to The Enterprise, and even to renegotiate the entire arrangement after 25 years in response, the Group of 77 may be delaying, hoping for more concessions from the new U.S. Administration.

Moderates within the Group of 77 are known to agree with the U.S. position, but the radicals retained sufficient strength to dictate the Groups' position through the last day of the session. Some observers have speculated that the Group of 77 may be delaying, hoping for more concessions from the new U.S. Administration.

The U.S. does have an option in the form of legislation, beyond the UN conference. But exercise of it would be at the expense of further antagonizing the developing world. Already reported by several congressional committees in the Deep Seabed Hard Minerals Act (S. 713, H.R. 1270) which has been held back from floor consideration pending an outcome of the Law of the Sea Conference.

This legislation would unilaterally license U.S. firms to conduct for at least 15 years deep seabed mining, the license being effective against any other firm subject to U.S. jurisdiction or the jurisdiction of any state which reciprocally recognizes such U.S. licenses. If licenses should suffer loss of rights under a subsequent multilateral seabed treaty ratified by the U.S., the U.S. Government would compensate the licensees for their investment (minus profits). Approval of this or similar proposals as an expression of congressional exasperation with UN efforts to establish a legal regime sanctioning orderly deep seabed exploitation could sabotage the Law of the Sea Conference. The Sixth Session next May will probably occur before congressional patience expires, but the Sixth Session could well present the last chance for the conference which has, by now, almost become a semi-annual institution. Success in at least some areas is a necessity, as the alternative may be international anarchy with respect to marine resource exploitation.

Ironically, the "Third World" countries that are holding up agreement have the most to lose if the conference falls apart through their intransigence. Seabed minerals would then be mined by those with the skill, resources, efficiency and daring to do the job. And maybe that's not such a bad idea — Richard Lester, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Korean affair is dubbed greatest scandal

By CHARLES THONE
First District Representative
The Korean affair now unfolding will be America's greatest political scandal! Future repetition of one aspect of this scandal can be prevented by enactment of a measure I will introduce when Congress convenes in January.

The U.S. Department of Justice and federal grand jury probe now in progress indicates that South Korean agents poured millions of dollars into bribes, gifts and contributions to perhaps as many as 90 present and past members of Congress and other federal officials.

Incredibly, one House subcommittee chairman has admitted receiving more than $5,000 in reelection campaign contributions prior to 1975. The campaign reform law we passed in Congress in 1975 finally, made such foreign "campaign" donations illegal.

Many members of Congress have what they call "office accounts." These accounts are used to pay for some of the expenses that members have between campaigns.

At the present time, there is almost no federal regulations of such accounts. Corporations and unions are forbidden to contribute to federal campaigns, but some members of Congress accept such donations for their "office accounts." One House subcommittee chairman has admitted putting $4,000 from Korean sources into his office account.

The bill I will introduce will outlaw such so-called accounts.

At present, there isn't even any law requiring Congressional members to reveal whether they have office accounts. These accounts are not reported nor subject to any audit.

The very idea of a member of Congress soliciting funds and then not reporting the donors nor the purposes of the gifts is scandalous. The so-called office account must be abolished — with swift action on my proposal.

Three of Five Getting Payments Are Women

Three out of five adults getting monthly social security payments are women, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk. "About 27 million people 18 and over get social security payments," Branch said, "and about 16 million are women. Over seven million women get retirement benefits based on their own social security work records. That's over 20 times as many as in 1950."

A working woman can retire as early as 62 and get reduced monthly payments on her own record. Or she can wait until she's 65 and get full benefits as well as Medicare coverage. "But if she's entitled to higher benefits as a wife or a widow on her husband's record," Branch said, "she'll be paid the higher amount."

"The working woman also has disability and survivors protection from social security," he said. "If she becomes severely disabled and isn't expected to be able to do any work for a year or more, she and her family may be eligible for monthly cash payments from social security. After she's entitled to social security disability benefits for 24 consecutive months, she is eligible for Medicare."

Over 614,000 children get monthly social security payments based on their mother's work records, according to Branch. "A child entitled to benefits based on the mother's record can get payments even though the child's father may be working at a full time job," he said.

CB's Elect New Officers

The Wayne County CB's Monday night met for their annual Christmas party and election of officers. Serving in 1977 will be president Dennis Janke, vice President Paul Dangberg, secretary, treasurer Randy Surber, and public relation officer Ray Butts.

Group leaders elected are Ron Wriedt, Stan Hansen, Gary Kay, Ron Doring, and Will Baier. The Wayne County CB's comprise a local citizens band radio group organized by the Civil Defense department to perform community assistance activities. Main purpose is to act as spotters and to perform communications functions during tornado alerts.

Outgoing president Ray Butts said the group is available to assist with any activities related to club functions. Meetings are conducted the first Monday of each month.

Nebraska Feeders Pass Resolutions

The Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association approved a resolution last week recommending the adoption "without material change" of a proposal consolidating the American National Cattleman's Association and the National Livestock Feeders Association.

The state's feeders took the action during the closing session last week of the 33rd annual convention at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel, Dec. 1.

If accepted by the boards and members of the nation's two largest livestock organizations at their respective national meetings in February, the consolidation would become effective on Sept. 1, 1977.

The first step toward consolidation occurred Oct. 18 when a joint study committee, after several months of deliberation, approved preliminary plans for merging the two groups into a National Cattleman's Association representing 275,000 professional cattlemen.

During an earlier session of the plan earlier in the day, John Klosterman, a feeder from David City, said the proposed consolidation maintains the four principles for which the National Livestock Feeders Association fought.

"It's a pure organization and only one name," Klosterman said, "and only one name." Klosterman said in detailing the proposed merger. "It's made up of members who run the show, directors are elected by affiliates and policy is made from the ground up — it's a grass roots organization."

He said the new organization, if founded, would attempt to represent and speak for all cattlemen nationally in public and economic affairs; "defend and perpetuate" the free enterprise system and provide economic and other helpful management information to members.

The adopted resolution said the responsibility for representing the livestock industry has expanded recently, and both organizations have similar goals and objectives.

"If (the consolidation) is properly structured, there would be significant advantages to a single, unified organization," it stated. The resolution asked local associations to help inform their members of the provisions of the proposed consolidation.

The feeders also adopted a resolution offered by Melvin Kuska, a cattle feeder from Fairmont and vice president of the National Livestock Feeders Association, declaring the intent of the state group to be a "Plan A" affiliate if the consolidation is approved.

Plan A is a "package membership" plan under which members pay dues to both national and affiliated state associations.

Kuska said he recommended the resolution because it would allow Nebraska, which has been part of the package dues payment plan, to maintain its current payment structure. It also would give the state an advantage over the other payment plan when representation on the 136 members board of directors is determined.

The feeders also voted to keep the state organization a three-species group representing cattle, swine and sheep producers. The proposed consolidation permits state associations to continue representing other livestock besides cattle if they choose.

In other action during the group's business meeting, William Krejci of Fairmont was chosen president of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, and will serve a two year term.

Also elected were Rowland McClymont of Holdrege, first vice president, and Max Kellough of Friend, second vice president.

Herb Albers, Jr. of Wisner, McClymont, Krejci, Wayne Hendrickson of Kearney and Klosterman were elected as national directors.

Kuska was chosen as the group's representative to the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation and the group's representative on the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation and James Beiler of Lindsay was selected as his alternate.

Among other resolutions adopted unanimously by the feeders were:

—Full support of the Ag-40 group and others working to adequately finance the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources (IANR) at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

—Maintenance of necessary revolving funds important to the buying and selling of research project animals and feeds by IANR and a statement that the Institute should, whenever possible, purchase Nebraska livestock for research projects.

—Support for a regional veterinary college, urging the livestock industry, UNL, and state government, to "move ahead in a unified effort to work out the remaining financial and administrative problems with other states involved." It also urged that resources devoted to any future regional veterinary college not dilute current efforts to upgrade ongoing or postpone establishment of new IANR programs.

—No expenditure of public funds for development or promotion of Gasohol until economic self-sufficiency and return is assured.

—Establishment of an "energy study committee" with sufficient agricultural representation to determine energy needs and priorities.

—The feeders urged the state group to support development of an educational program within the proposed committee to "create an awareness of this impending energy crisis."

—A series of labor union resolutions including opposition to federal intervention designed to curtail the right-to-work law through agency shop legislation, and support of the National Livestock Feeders Association's attempts to exempt farmers from the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 and the extension of union laws to agricultural employers and employees.

—Failure to support any legislative extension of the Nebraska registered brand inspection area to include the entire state since brands are available to livestock owners in non-brand areas.

—"Strong" support for territorial protection of the state's rural public power districts.

—Support of legislative enactment of an amendment to the Environmental Protection Act and development of guidelines for the best practicable management of livestock feeding operations.

—Continuation of "aggressive opposition" to extending state regulations to include livestock truckers and hauling livestock in transportation legislation.

—Establishment of policy guidelines for marketing and determining prices of livestock and feed grains that oppose legislative proposals or other moves forcing farmers to join marketing or bargaining associations or groups; encouraging processors, handlers and distributors to engage in livestock production or feeding; encouraging production for the domestic market of an imitation or substitute for red meat; or which contribute to a change in the status of farmers from that of "an individual entrepreneur."

The proposal included the approval of open marketing and price determination for livestock and feed grains; support of group action to concentrate supply and buyers for competitive forces to work effectively in establishing equitable prices; recognition of the "possible applicability" of voluntary membership in bargaining associations, especially in commodity open contracts; and high priority to retaining freedom of choice for individual operators.

—Opposition to discontinuing the marketing of diethylstilbestrol because it would increase consumer meat costs.

—"No objection" to continued use of collective terms on feed tags, which was passed in a split vote.

—"Vigorous opposition" to the importation of meat or meat products from countries not having equal meat inspection standards or which allow the use of pesticides, antibiotics or feed additives currently banned in the United States.

—Tighter control over the transportation and importation of all livestock semen to prevent spread of diseases and control semen quality.

—Opposition to the establishment of brucellosis quarantined feedlots for feeding of brucellosis-exposed animals.

Only one of the 23 resolutions was defeated by the feeders. It called for spending funds from a proposed national beef checkoff program contained in the Beef Information Act to areas showing the greatest returns to the livestock feeding industry. The proposal was dropped because the checkoff programs won't be voted upon until late spring.

DON C. SPITZE
WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

One of the most difficult decisions any boy or girl in high school has to make is choosing a career. The more exposure to career opportunities these young people have, the better chance they have of making a good decision.

Last week I took nine 4-H'ers to visit the School of Agriculture at the University in Lincoln. These 4-H'ers had an opportunity to visit with the Dean of Agriculture about scholarships, costs, requirements and some opportunities available to graduates in agriculture. Those making the trip included Harley Greve, Vincent Knieise, Mike Rethwisch, Craig Nelson, Cindy Bull, Laura Haase, Barrie Nelson, Linda Anderson and Becky Owens.

The 4-H'ers also visited the departments of horticulture and forestry, food science, animal science, agricultural economics and agricultural engineering, agricultural education and entomology.

Several department heads told about the severe shortage of graduates with agricultural degrees. For instance the 4-H'ers were told that in vocational agriculture there were five jobs waiting for each graduate. They believed that this shortage would continue for five or more years.

4-H'ers in School of Agriculture While we were touring the animal science department we watched some experimental work being done with hogs. One of the helpers in this department was a former Wayne County 4-H'er, Steve Gramlich, a sophomore in agriculture working toward a degree in animal science and agricultural education.

Another former 4-H'er in the school of agriculture is Doug Straight, a freshman in the school. Mike Rethwisch will be enrolled in entomology next fall at the university.

Wayne County has several 4-H'ers who are attending the school of home economics at Lincoln including Sheryl Anderson and Rane Knieise. Cindy Bull will also enter the School of Home Economics next fall.

Plants and People Psychology and growing of plants seem to me to be a strange combination of subjects to be studying in college. But the instructor who visited with the group in the department, has such a degree and even has a name — therapeutic horticulture.

It has been found that the growing of plants can be a real help in rehabilitating people who have mental problems. Hence the marriage of psychology and horticulture. This is a new career field that has a lot of possibility, but it also points up the difficulty a young person has of making a career choice among the many available.

Volunteers Make a Difference There are over 140 volunteer 4-H leaders in the Wayne County 4-H program. It would be impossible for me to estimate how much of their time is given free to the 4-H program each year. An even more impossible task would be to place a dollar value on all this time given.

As Bill Caldwell, state 4-H leader said at the recent 4-H leaders banquet if a 4-H leader could keep just one boy or girl from becoming a ward of the state the tax money saved could more than pay for our entire county extension budget for one year. And who could put a value on the many small contributions each 4-H leader makes.

One Person Makes a Difference Caldwell, told me after the 4-H leaders banquet he would never even finish high school if it weren't for the encouragement of his 4-H leader. And now this man has a Ph.D. and is state 4-H leader and assistant dean at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. So a 4-H leader can have an influence on their 4-H'ers that will last for a lifetime.

PROFESSOR C.R. Fenster, agronomy specialist at the University of Nebraska Panhandle Station at Scottsbluff, has developed a new experimental drill designed to plant small grains under no or limited tillage systems through heavy crop residues.

New Small Grain Drill Developed

C.R. Fenster, Extension agronomist at the University of Nebraska Panhandle Station at Scottsbluff, has reported on a new drill for seeding small grains through heavy residue. Speaking at the 1976 North Central Weed Control Conference held in Omaha Tuesday and Wednesday, Fenster discussed the design of the new drill which he developed in cooperation with the Deere and Co.

Pointing out that recent experimental data have established without question the merits of no tillage or limited tillage for crop production, Fenster specified the requirements built into the new machine.

Seeding in heavy stubble with residues of up to 2,000 pounds per acre requires a drill with at least 24 inches of clearance between the hoe operators, and at least 18 inches of clearance from the top of the hoe standard and the frame of the machine. Row spacings of nine to 14 inches have been effective in producing optimum yields of wheat. With these spacings a rolling coupler should be used to cut through the residue. Rolling coulters of at least 18 inches are needed to cut through 5,000 pounds per acre.

Such large rolling coulters require considerable weight to penetrate with about 400 pounds needed per coulters. Good design of the hoe operators for penetration can reduce this weight somewhat, particularly if they are rigidly attached to the frame of the drill or coulters. The operator for placing the seed in the soil must be designed to penetrate moist soil with sufficient soil cover to get good emergence and stand. Soil needs to be packed firmly over the seed so that a seed press wheel is needed to press the seed firmly into the moist soil.

According to Greek historians, the builders of the great pyramids in Egypt did it on a diet of onions and garlic.

Agronomist Tells Results Of Herbicide Injury Study

Studies measuring herbicide injury to soybeans and weed control in two conservation production corn systems were described by a University of Nebraska-Lincoln agronomy researcher at the 1976 North Central Weed Control Conference here Tuesday through today (Thursday).

Russell Moomaw, district agronomy specialist at the UNL NorthEast Station at Concord, described injury to soybeans from herbicides at three Nebraska locations as "slight and at acceptable levels for economical production."

Herbicide performance was strongly affected by rainfall patterns in 1976 and varied considerably between the three test locations (Clay Center, Concord and Lincoln).

Rainfall was lacking at Concord for herbicide activation. As a result, at this location pre-plant incorporated herbicides were superior to the rainfall-dependent pre-emergence treatments in broadleaf and grass weed control and soybean yields.

Of the herbicides selected for volunteer control at Lincoln and Clay Center, linuron was weakest, metribuzin was superior, and bentazon intermediate. At all locations, a number of herbicide treatments resulted in soybean yields comparable to the handweeded check plots, indicating the availability of effective broad spectrum weed control herbicides for soybean production.

Weed control was also studied in two conservation production corn systems over a three year period at Concord. The systems studied were till-planting and slot-planting, both systems being designed to plant into the ridge of the old crop row. Since weed seedlings are usually established in the undisturbed field before corn is planted with the till or slot planters, preplant weed control herbicides are recommended. Applications of 2,4-D and paraquat were combined with pre-emergence herbicide treatments that were either row banded or broadcast.

Till-planted corn resulted in more mechanical tillage and less dependence on use of herbicides. Maximum corn yield was obtained in the till-plant system by use of an herbicide band over the corn row with one cultivation, and without use of 2,4-D for preplant weed control.

In contrast, slot-planting resulted in less soil disturbance with the planter but required more herbicide. With slot-planting, application of 2,4-D followed by a broadcast application of a good pre-emergence herbicide and two cultivations produced best corn yields. Based on these experiments, conservation production corn systems are available to corn producers which, with good management, will maintain good yields and conserve resources, Moomaw said.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Joycelyn Smith

For your child's safety, Santa will need to be a share toy shopper. When eyeing toys for Christmas this year, durability, washability and quality construction along with educational, and fun aspects for the child need to be considered.

Safety features are a must, especially for young children. Toys often are a temporary leeching ring so painted surfaces should be guaranteed non-toxic. Toys must endure being tossed, dragged, rolled, pounded and jumped on. Examine a prospective purchase carefully to be sure surfaces are smooth, edges are rounded, and seams and joints are tight. Make sure there are no moving parts which can be removed and swallowed.

It is better to avoid metal toys until a child has good muscular control and eye motion perspective. Then choose heavy gauge metal with smooth turned edges. The longest loved toys are those that invite imagination and creativity. Building blocks link creativity with dexterity training. Toys which feature push-and-pull or put-and-take actions are popular for toddlers. Push toys are many times preferred over pull toys for toddlers just learning to walk since they many times bump into objects in front of them while watching the toy behind them.

Toys that are highly durable and well constructed may cost a little more. But besides having built in safety factors, they usually perform well and last longer.

It may be easy to become confused in the toy department because of the multitude of choices. However, much confusion can be eliminated by keeping your checkpoints firmly in mind. The age and interests of the child, the learning skills provided by the toy, plus the construction, safety, sturdiness and washability of the toy should be your determining factors on any tour through Santa's workshop.

Fur Trader's Life Still Means Hazards

By JIM STRAYER

Operating a fur trading post today might not be as rough or dangerous an occupation as it was in the days of the likes of Jim Bridger but it still has its hazards and means putting in some long, hard hours.

In fact, since opening their new fur house in Concord Nov. 7, Bill Moore and 26-year-old Bill Jr. have worked every day except Thanksgiving and most of those days start at 8 a.m. and last until 10 p.m. or later.

Other family members are helping with the business too. Bill Jr.'s brother, Fred, an ex-boatman's mate out of the Navy since April, is working as a skinner. He hopes to save enough money to finance studies at Open Bible College in Des Moines, Iowa. Fred wants to receive his bachelor of arts degree at the college and to be ordained in the Pentecostal Church.

Bill Jr.'s wife, Rayme, also learned how to use a skinning knife this year, apparently quite well.

"She's the fastest skinner we've got," her husband said with a grin. "We can't keep up with her."

Rounding out the payroll is younger brother, Dennis, 13.

Bill senior has been in the fur business for more than 30 years. He worked to Sioux City from Missouri and moved to the Strange Brothers Fur Company for 23 years until the company went out of business in 1972.

The elder Moore began with the company as a skinner and warehouse worker, then later went on the road as a buyer. Strange Brothers asked him to take over as foreman while they were in the process of closing down their operation.

After that, Moore went into the fur buying business on his own, trading out the back of his pickup.

Bill Jr. started accompanying his father on buying trips when the younger Moore was 13 and began then learning the fur trade. He learned skinning while working in fur houses in South Dakota and Montana. Fred helped out when his father became an independent buyer in 1972.

Then the Moores made trips, mostly in Nebraska, buying a truck load of furs or carcasses and selling the pelts to the highest bidder.

The elder Moore was content to keep operating in that fashion, but his younger namesake had different ideas.

"I figured it was time to change or get out of the fur business," Bill Jr. said. "The way the fur business is today you need volume and you have to get big. You can't get big operating off the back of the truck."

"I felt we needed a fur house. That way you are an established business," he added.

The father and son partnership of B and B Fur Company began construction of the 24 by 36 foot fur house in August and were ready for business by Nov. 1 when the fur season was getting underway.

Partners taking turns making fur-buying trips, they are also getting pelts from four other buyers including Richard Behmer of Hoskins. Other buyers operate out of Verdell, Spencer, and O'Neill in Nebraska. The company also obtains pelts from Iowa and South Dakota from buyers who have permits for those states.

Fur prices have climbed by leaps and bounds in recent years. Bill Jr. said. He recalls selling racoon pelts for a $1.50 six years ago. This year a top-quality pelt from a large coon will bring $27 at the B and B fur house.

Coyote pelts are also valuable. One of the right color and top quality will bring as much as $50. Most of the better coyote hides come from farther west in the state, Moore said, because those pelts are of the more desirable light color.

Coyotes taken in Northeast Nebraska have more red in them and don't bring quite as high a price—but are still valuable.

The company also buys fox, badger, muskrat and mink hides. Moores have even paid for one porcupine this year, mixed in with a load of other pelts obtained from one of their outside buyers. B and B definitely is not looking for any more of the prickly critters, Bill Jr. said. "Have you ever tried to skin a porcupine?"

The young fur merchant said there is another animal he, not too surprisingly, refuses to put a skinning knife to. "We'll buy skunk hides if they're skinned and stretched, but we won't skin them here." Skinning usually begins at 8 o'clock in the morning and continues until furs brought in that day are stretched for drying. Now, in the height of the fur season, that means work days usually extend until well after sundown. Since opening Nov. 1, about 4,000 racoons and some 600 coyotes have passed through the doors at B and B. That amounts to about $150,000 paid out to trappers and hunters.

FRED AND BILL Moore Jr. examine coyote pelts drying for shipment. B and B Fur Company, owned by Bill and his father. About 600 coyote pelts and 4,000 racoon pelts have been shipped out from the Concord fur house since Sept. 1.

A good banker or backer is essential to a fur trader, Bill Jr. said during an interview while the post was under construction. The profit margin isn't anywhere near as great as some people who sell fur there seem to think.

"I make a living in this business," Bill Jr. said, "but I'm not getting rich. If I was, I wouldn't spend 14 hours a day out here skinning."

Skinning is still mostly hand work, although automation does help speed up the process somewhat. After part of the fur is peeled down, an electric-powered winch is used to separate the pelt the rest of the way from the carcass.

Pelts are scrapped and stretched on hangars to dry, then shipped east to a company which does tanning and finishing work before the fur is marketed. Carcasses are sold to a rendering plant.

Foreign sales account for a big part of the fur trade. "If we had to depend on U.S. demand, there would be no fur market," Bill Jr. revealed.

One facet of the fur trade probably hasn't changed much from the old days. "I still take a good eye to survey a pelt and name a price."

Experience is the best teacher, Bill Jr. said. "Everyone makes mistakes, and they're not cheap. You learn pretty fast."

B and B is taking steps to ensure they don't encounter another type of loss—theft. The trading post has no windows and only two doors. It was designed that way for easy security. A pressure-sensitive alarm system will be installed on both doors so that any tampering will warn the junior partner, whose home is located directly behind the fur house in Dixon.

Other measures include security lights, already installed, and possibly a store-to-intercom system which would transmit any sounds from inside the post. In addition, Moore said, he's a light sleeper and often is up several times during the night to soak muscles aching from a long day of skinning.

He has good reason for his caution. During the days when the fur company was still a business-on-wheels he and his father were subjected to a couple of unsuccessful hijack attempts.

Once, in South Dakota, an attempt was made to run the younger Moore's pickup off the road. Three men in a car apparently found the sight of bales of fur in the back of a truck too much temptation to pass up and Bill Jr. and his wife spent a few anxious minutes before the would-be road agents gave up.

After that, father and son went out together, traveling in tandem in their pickups, but even that measure didn't deter a later attempted heist, this one on an interstate highway. Luckily, Moore's kept their cargo that time, too.

Despite those kinds of hazards and the long in-season hours, Bill Jr. figures he'll stay in the fur business as long as the market is good. In fact, if prices hold steady, B and B will probably build onto the trading post before next year, doubling its floor space.

It's a good business, Moore said, for both him and his suppliers. The fur trade gives local people a chance to make some extra money by harvesting a resource. With 130 licensed fur buyers in Nebraska, he figures fur sales are making a contribution to the state's economy.

Good prices have sparked considerable interest in trapping and hunting and Moore said he's happy that business has been brisk. At the same time he wouldn't want to see fur-bearing animals eliminated. He doesn't think that will happen, adding that he was glad to see a season set for racoon hunting.

Meanwhile, a lot of time in the skinning house is ahead for the Moore clan. The season for good pelts extends on into March. The family plans to take off for Christmas and New Year's Day, but outside of that, it's a seven-day-a-week job until the season ends.

Bill Jr. said he will continue to be self-employed in the summer, working at carpentry and other jobs. But first he has some plans.

"When the fur season is over, we're going to take a vacation."

Birthday Bucks Climbs to $375

The amount in this week's Birthday Bucks goes up another $25 to $375, thanks to no one winning the grand prize last week.

A Wayne man, Ross James, came closest to picking up the top prize money when it was discovered that his birthday of March 16, 1902 was the closest to the date of April 14, 1902, drawn at random by Don Sherry of Sherry Bros. Inc. and announced at 8:15 Thursday.

James, who was in Wayne Vet's Club, would have won the $350 in Bucks just in time for Christmas shopping if his date would have matched the date drawn.

Tonight (Thursday) another lucky shopper will have a chance to win either prize if he or she is present in a participating Wayne business when the date is called. No registration or purchases are necessary to be a winner.

Census Bureau Polling Farms

Information about farm work done for pay during the past year and about migratory farm work will be collected by the Bureau of the Census in this area according to Richard Burt, director of the bureau's regional office in Denver.

The director said that interviewers will visit a sample of households here during the week of Dec. 13-17.

The farm work questions are in addition to the ones asked regularly in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Results of the monthly employment survey provide data on conditions in the labor force, prime indicators of the economic health of the country. For example, in October the survey indicated that of the 95.3 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 87.8 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 7.9 per cent, up from 7.8 in September but substantially below the recession peak of 8.9 per cent reached in the second quarter of 1975.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

A Change of Pace

Quimpo, Jane Edmunds, Scott Havener, Holly Mallette, Jay Stollenberg, Lisa Nuss, Don Straight, LaVonna Sharpe, Mark Shufelt, Gwen Preston and Jay Hummel. Gema Giese played the piano and music instructor Larry Stratman was the director.

Dixon County Sends Threë To FB Confab

Three members of the Dixon County Farm Bureau were in Lincoln this week for the 1976 state Farm Bureau convention. Duane Koester, Dale Jackson, both of Allen, and Harold George of Dixon were among other state representatives who were voting on the Bureau's policies on land-use planning, environmental controls, taxes and other farm programs. Earlier last month, the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation held a state policy development meeting in Kearney. Representing the Dixon County group were Ed Fahrholz, Vern Jones and Carl Armstrong. Armstrong is the national affairs chairman.

Allen Board Rehires Engineering Firm

The Allen town board Monday night rehired Duane Upton of Consolidated Engineers of Norfolk as the village's street superintendent. The board also learned that the village received a $1,100 grant from the Environmental Protection agency. The money will be used to help retire the sewer debt, said village chair man Ken Linafelter.

Fire Quickly Out

Members of Wayne's volunteer Fire Department quickly extinguished a brush fire about one mile east and a half south of Wayne about 7:15 p.m. Friday. According to fire chief Dick Karn tumbleweeds caught fire when they wrapped around an exhaust pipe of a truck operated by Glen Nichols of rural Wayne.

Thought for Today

By Rowan Wittse

"To try too hard to make people good is one way to make them worse. The best way to make them good is to be good, remembering well the beam and the mote..."

George McDonald

The lot of the reformer is not a happy one. Few people are reformed by getting-meaning friends who lecture and exhort others to better behavior. "Do as I say and not as I do" is not an effective technique, as most parents will attest.

It's not always easy to set a good example. Just a trace of hypocrisy cancels all efforts. You simply can't criticize nor reform anyone, even children, when you exhibit the same fault, however small the degree.

We recognize the preference of some for minimum, not-traditional services. We can supply exactly what any family wishes and at an acceptable price.

Ak-Sar-Ben Announces Show Line-Up for 1977

Rich Little, the Carpenters, Henry Mancini and Vikki Carr will be among the feature entertainers scheduled to appear at Ak-Sar-Ben during 1977 according to Sydney L. Cate, shows chairman.

Two spring member shows will be held in March and April with a third scheduled for early August.

Also, to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the world's largest 4-H livestock exposition, Roy Rogers, Dale Evans and The Sons of the Pioneers will appear at the '77 Ak-Sar-Ben World Championship Rodeo.

Cate also announced a change in the family show format. Instead of two family shows as in the past, Ak-Sar-Ben will offer one main family show attraction featuring a major star and variety of outstanding acts.

The member and family show package is available at Ak-Sar-Ben members only. Thoroughbred racing, the Ak-Sar-Ben Rodeo and Holiday On Ice will again be offered on a reduced-price basis to members. New member sales for the 1977 membership drive will begin Jan. 3. However, 1976 members will receive their renewal applications this week.

The Rich Little Show will open the Ak-Sar-Ben entertainment season, March 22-27. The Carpenters (Karen and Richard) will appear April 19-24. Following the races, Henry Mancini and Vikki Carr will perform Aug. 27. To be announced later will be accompanying attractions for both The Rich Little and The Carpenters shows. All shows are again scheduled Tuesday through Sunday. Performances begin at 7:30 each night with matinees set for 2 p.m., Saturdays and Sunday.

In conjunction with its 1977 activities slated for the Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum, Ak-Sar-Ben announced that more than 5,500 new, theater-type, cushioned seats will be installed at a cost of $450,000. The new seat project is scheduled for completion prior to the first member show in March and is part of a Coliseum expansion program which will provide additional restrooms at the north end of the facility plus a new first-aid room.

A 1977 Ak-Sar-Ben membership, which allows two adults admission to Member Shows plus the entire family for the Family Show, and reduced-price tickets to the rodeo, ice show and the races, will remain at $18.

"Our 1977 show lineup, coupled with the added comfort and convenience to be provided by our Coliseum expansion program, will offer the best entertainment value we have ever been able to put together," Cate said.

Just the Boost United Way Needed

ADD ANOTHER $100 to the growing United Way campaign found in Wayne, thanks to members of Wayne High School's student council. Last week council president Bill Marr, right, represented the check to campaign president Dick Manley to help boost the total amount even closer to the goal of $13,000. According to campaign secretary

Marilyn Carhart the figure as of Friday stood at $11,200, including a $50 donation by the school's chapter of the National Honor Society. Last week it was reported that the drive had reached $12,453, but the total has been incorrectly added.

CONCORD NEWS / Mrs. Art Johnson 584-2495

Advent Luncheon

Sixty women of the Concordia Lutheran Church held their Advent Luncheon last Thursday evening with a special committee serving.

Following the meal the LCW Naomi Circle gave a devotional program entitled "Our Heritage of Christmas Customs" from seven different countries. Members read Scripture verses and Christmas customs from New England, New Amsterdam, Germany, Scandinavia, the Spanish Southwest, Italy and French America.

Tables were decorated in each country's customs. Group singing of Christmas carols from the countries added interest.

The closing was a responsive reading of Psalm 96 and a prayer.

Society Has Christmas Party
The Women's Missionary Society of the Evangelical Free Church held its annual Christmas party at the church last Thursday evening with 24 attending.

The program entitled "This is Christmas" was given, including devotions, speakers and Christmas carols, reminding members of the true meaning of Christmas, decorations, cards and giving. Christmas is for Christ.

The committee decorated with beautiful Christmas decorations and served salads and nut breads. Secret prayer sisters were revealed by a gift exchange.

Children's Christmas Party
The Concordia Junior Mission Society and lower grades Sunday school children met Saturday afternoon at the church to pack boxes of Christmas cookies and candy for some Concord residents.

Twenty boxes were distributed while the children went caroling. They were served a warm lunch by the LCW Mary Circle when they returned.

The Sunday school children will bring sacks and suckers to the Sunday school Christmas program to be sent to the Lutheran Navajo Indian Mission and hospital in Chinle, Ariz.

Hostess Is Honored
Birthday guests in the Brent Johnson home Sunday evening honoring the hostess were the Dean Bruggemanns, Laurel, the Ernest Swansons, the Arthur Johnsons, and the Marlan Johnsons. The Doug Kries and Carla Johnson called with birthday greetings after the Luther League caroling.

Return to Florida
The Tim Kletters, Panama, Fla., returned home Saturday after spending two weeks visiting their families in Concord and Laurel.

Visitors From Minnesota
The Evan Petersons, Pipestone, Minn., were Sunday evening and overnight guests in the Arvid Peterson home. They will spend a few days visiting relatives.

They were Monday forenoon guests in the Oscar Johnson home and dinner guests with the Glen Magnusons.
