Youngsters Invited to Easter Egg Hunt

Palm Sunday, April 3, has been set for the annual Easter egg hunt sponsored by two Wayne State College organizations.

The Chi Omega sorority and Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity will again this year sponsor the hunt for children in the sixth grade and younger.

The hunt will begin at 2 p.m. in Bressler Park in Wayne. The activities will move to the North dining room of the WSC student union in case of inclement weather.

Prizes and candy will be awarded in various age groups for youngsters finding the most eggs and having the best costumes.

Sound Test

HEARING tests were given Friday as part of the kindergarten roundup for youngsters who will be entering Carroll elementary school next year. Mary Kasten from Educational Service Unit-1 is shown here, testing Jennifer Isom, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Isom.

Students Qualify for State Speech Meet

Wayne High School will send eight students to state speech competition in Kearney, April 1, after they earned superior ratings in the District III speech contest at Wayne State College and Wednesday.

Wayne High School also rated second in the Class A division with 86 total points, preceded by Norfolk Catholic with 97. Plainview ranked third with 81, then West Point Catholic with 77.

Those from Wayne earning superior, who will go to state, are: Kris Anderson and Mike Rehwisch for original public address; Shannon O'Donnell for informative public address, and the following people for oral interpretation of drama: Mark Shuffell, Garth Hagerman, LaVone Francis, Laura Blenderman, and Penny James.

Miss O'Donnell and Shuffell also earned superior ratings for duet acting. In the Class B division Norfolk again captured first place, this time Norfolk Catholic High School with 98 points. Cedar Rapids followed with 79 and a close third place went to Wakefield with 78 points.

Wynol finished fourth and Newman Grove fifth with 77 and 76 points respectively.

A superior in after dinner speaking earned a trip to state competition for Class B in Kearney April 2 for Saralyn Sundell, along with these other Wakefield students: Tammy Carlson for extemporaneous speaking, Penny Roberts for original public address, and Terry Sampson for interpretation of prose.

From Allen, Lori VonMinden and Darcy Harder earned superiors for interpretation of poetry. Joni Kramer for original public address, and Shelly Prescott for interpretation of prose.

More than 425 high school students attended the District III speech contest, according to WSC professor, Dr. Bob Johnson, in charge of the event.

Schools attending in Class A were: Norfolk Public High School, Wayne, Laurel, Plainview, Stanton, West Point Central Catholic, Stanton, Madison, Hartington Cedar Catholic, Pierce, Crofton, Pender, Creighton, Wisner-Pilger, South Sioux City, Emerson-Hubbard, and Randolph.

Those entered in Class B were: Norfolk Catholic High School, Wakefield, Allen, Homer, Bancroft, Hartington, Beyer, Cedar Rapids, St. Edward, Walthill, Macy, Ponca, Elgin, Osmond, Battle Creek, Wausa, Wynof, Newman Grove, Bloomfield, Clearwater, Coleridge, Rosalie, and Winnebago.

UN-L Singers to Perform

Rock and folk music as well as show tunes will be featured Tuesday night when the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Scarlet and Cream Singers perform in Wayne.

The 16 vocalist-dancers and a three-member instrumental combo will perform at 7:30 p.m. at the Wayne High School lecture hall under the auspices of the Wayne High stage choir.

Ray Miller, UN-L school of music faculty member, selected the singers and instrumentalists from undergraduate auditions last spring. The Scarlet and Cream Singers have been designated the unofficial "ambassadors of song" for the NU Lincoln campus since their existence. They have appeared in a number of major cities throughout the United States and at a variety of events sponsored by Nebraska alumni.

"We will feature many selections of current popularity," Miller said. "As well as show tunes and old favorites which will show the flexibility of the Scarlet and Cream Singers in terms of presenting a totally appealing performance."

"We have developed a number of shows on the most popular music of yesterday and today," Miller continued, "and together with this group's natural and profound ability at showmanship, we can provide exactly the right program for every audience."

Tickets purchased in advance will cost $1 for students and $2 for adults. Door prices will be $1.25 for students and $2.50 for adults.

County Planners Meet Tuesday

The Wayne County joint planning commission will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 in the county courthouse.

The regular monthly meeting had been scheduled earlier in March but was postponed to allow members to attend a land use planning seminar.

The planning commission will continue work in preparation of establishing zoning and land use regulations for Wayne County.

The meeting will convene in the district court room and is open to the public.

This Winter Driest on Record

Recent precipitation has helped somewhat in relieving the drought conditions which have prevailed in Nebraska, but a report by the Conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln shows just how serious conditions are.

The five-month period from October through February, for example, was the driest in 46 years for Northeast Nebraska.

The period was also the driest on record for the Panhandle, Central, East-Central, South-Central and Southeast regions of the state. The second driest in the Southwest region, and the fourth driest in the North-Central region.

For the state overall, there has been only one drier winter in the past 46 years — the winter of 1965-7.

At least one long cold spell has been experienced this winter over much of the state but it was offset somewhat by warm periods at other times.

The statewide winter temperature averaged seven-tenths of a degree below normal. Heating requirement as computed by heating degree days were 1.5 per cent above normal, ranging from three to 10 per cent above normal in the east to about seven per cent below normal in the Panhandle.

The official weather observation station in Wakefield recorded 41 of an inch in February, 36 of an inch below normal. Norfolk recorded .81 of an inch, .03 above normal.

Precipitation in the 13-county Northeast region has averaged 1.01 inches during the October-February period, 3.54 inches below normal. The amount received is only 22 per cent of normal.

The region overall received .45 of an inch in February, half of normal for the month.

The average daily high at Wakefield was 44.3 degrees and the average daily low was 15.6 degrees. Average temperature for the month was 30 degrees, 5.5 degrees above the average monthly temperature for the period of 1941-70. Highest temperature recorded at the Wakefield station during February was 68 degrees on Feb. 21. Low for the month was minus six degrees on Feb. 17.

Norfolk recorded an average daily maximum of 44.4, average daily minimum of 17.3, and average temperature for the month of 30.9, seven degrees above normal.

Norfolk's high for the month, recorded Feb. 21 was 70 degrees. Low, recorded Feb. 1, was one degree below zero.

The public is encouraged to attend this event featuring cultural entertainment, food, and information. With the exception of food prices, "Foreign Culture Day" activities are absolutely free.

Participants are working on last-minute details now, preparing costumes, decorating booths, and gathering cooking equipment for foreign cooking demonstrations. The French Club is staging last-minute rehearsals for a special children's puppet show.

Films are arriving from foreign embassies and film companies, and cultural groups from throughout Nebraska and Iowa have promised lively entertainment for Foreign Culture Day.

Former Nebraska governor and U.S. ambassador Val Peterson of Wayne is scheduled to give the opening address and welcome at 11 a.m. in the WSC student center.

Through his travels, Peterson has noted the importance of cultural observance and sharing. In his talk, he will stress that this interchange of people may someday encourage learning from each other as a benefit for all mankind.

The former governor will also emphasize the importance of multiple language and cultural knowledge in his remarks. One of the saddest things in the

Downtown Improvement Moves to Design Stage

Engineers will begin designing a project to renovate Wayne's downtown business district as the result of action Thursday night by the city council.

The special meeting was scheduled so the council could direct Bruce Gilmore and Associates, engineering consultants, as to just what should be included in the project.

Items dealt with specifically by the council included closing alleys, narrowing sidewalks, and installation of planters.

Councilman Jimmie Thomas broached the subject of closing alleys on Main St. in the improvement district, saying a new truck on order should solve firefighting problems which the council had feared might result from closing alleys.

Vernon Russell opposed closing any alleys, saying such action would create problems from trucks making deliveries. However, a motion was made to close alley entrances on Main St. between Second and Fourth Street and Russell was unable to muster enough support to defeat the measure. Leo Hansen and Sam Hepburn joined Russell in voting against the motion.

The council also approved narrowing from 13 to 10 feet sidewalks on Second and Third Streets between Logan and Pearl Streets.

Downtown improvement committee chairman Roger Nelson said the committee recommended the modification to provide a wider traffic way and additional parking spaces which could be created by changing the angle at which cars are parked.

Sidewalk on the east side of Pearl St. between First and Third Streets will be renovated but retains the same width. A 10-foot wide sidewalk will be built off the west side of Logan St. between Second and Third Streets.

Most sidewalk in the district, except new concrete installed at True Value Hardware and Wayne Federal Savings and Loan, will be removed according to the way the project is now proposed. The item previously criticized from Andy Manes, owner of Andy's Pizza. He told the council his sidewalk is good and doesn't need to be removed.

An engineering representative at the meeting told the council he thinks an engineer and members of the council and downtown improvement committee should talk to each property owner and explain why sidewalk, some which he said is sound, should be replaced. Installing new sidewalk throughout the district will ensure uniform appearance, grade and elevation, he said.

The council explained that the action they were taking Thursday was to tell the engineers what features they want incorporated in the design. The council will review the design and be able to dictate modifications and vote on whether or not to accept the design and authorize advertising for bids. Property owners will have an opportunity then to protest any features of the design. Manes was told.

Bruce Gilmore indicated the design would probably be completed in about a month. If the council approves it and gives authorization, advertising for bids could begin two to three weeks later and the project could be completed this year, Gilmore said.

Other features given tentative approval are installation of sidewalk planters. Nelson said the committee is recommending two 36-in. diameter planters per block on each side of sidewalk. Planters would be installed adjacent to areas now marked as "no parking" zones.

Also approved for incorporation in the design is installation of conduit which would be capable of accommodating wiring for street lights now in place if it becomes necessary to put the wiring underground.

Councilman John Vakoc also asked that the design include proposals for some ornamental masonry. Vakoc said he thinks some beautification should be considered for the project in order to set Wayne's business district apart from those of other communities. Beautification shouldn't be overlooked if it won't be too expensive when compared to the overall cost of the project, he said.

The council also discussed appointment of assessment for construction costs but city attorney Budd Bornhoff said the council could make no commitment in the matter.

The downtown improvement committee is recommending that sidewalks be paid for as a special assessment by property owners with most of the remainder of the project paid for as a general obligation of the city. Engineers said that would indicate property owners would bear the cost of about 47 per cent of the project, estimated at a total of $174,000. Bornhoff emphasized, however, that no division of cost can be established until the project is complete.

The council met for the first time in its new chamber on the second floor of city hall, and had an opportunity to try out a new voting machine built into the room.

Each council member presses a "yes" or "no" button, votes are locked in and then shown on a lighted wall display activated by the city clerk.

Schools Plan 'Roundups'

Carroll youngsters Friday took part in the first of several 'roundups' in Wayne County for children who will be entering school for the first time next year.

In addition to giving parents an opportunity to enroll their children, the roundups also provide an opportunity for specialists to test vision, hearing and development.

Parents should bring their children's birth certificates and immunization records to the roundups scheduled for the following dates:

—March 25, West Elementary School in Wayne. Families whose last name begins with the letters A-L should attend the morning session from 9:11 a.m. Families whose last name initial is in the M-Z group should attend the 1:30 p.m. session.

—March 26, Perkins Public School in Wayne. 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

—March 28, Windsor public schools, 9:11 a.m. Regular kindergarten classes will not meet on that date. Parents of children born between Oct. 15, 1971 and Oct. 14, 1972 should attend.

—March 29, Perkins Public School, 1:30 p.m. Parents undecided about sending children to kindergarten should make arrangements with school officials for having their children tested.

Cancer Society Fund Raiser Starts Today

Volunteers who will be helping with the American Cancer Society fund raising drive in Wayne County are invited to attend a kickoff meeting today (Monday), according to local Cancer Society spokesman Donna Hansen.

Volunteers will meet at 1:30 p.m. in the Woman's Club room in the city auditorium to pick up materials for the campaign slide. Cancer society representatives will attend the meeting to explain how the drive is conducted and what the money will be used for.

Mrs. Hansen said it is important for all volunteers, especially area chairmen, to attend the meeting and pick up kits. Anyone who wants to help with the drive is welcome to attend, she said.

North Platte Ex-Mayor To Seek GOP Nomination

A former North Platte mayor is scheduled Wednesday to announce formally his intention to seek in Republican nomination for governor of Nebraska in the 1978 primary race.

Wayne County Republican chairman Kent Hall Friday said he had been notified along with other GOP county chairmen that North Platte insurance man Robert Phares will formally announce his candidacy at 9 a.m. Wednesday at a conference at the Omaha Press Club.

Phares will then embark on a tour of a number of Nebraska communities where he will tell him through Wayne Hall said Phares' schedule will prevent him from stopping in Wayne but appearances are scheduled for Norfolk and South Sioux City. Phares will be at the Norfolk Daily News conference room at 10:30 a.m. and at the Marina Inn in South Sioux City at 1 p.m.

Phares is president of Phares and Thomas Agency, a North Platte insurance agency.

STEP Starts Tonight

The first of a nine-session STEP program will begin tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Wayne High School library.

STEP — strategies toward effective parenting — is designed to teach techniques and strategies for dealing with the problems of elementary age children.

The nine-week course is being offered by the Wayne-Carroll school district and the Region IV Mental Health Association.

The course is open to all parents. Cost is $22.50 but Wayne High counselor Curt Frey said parents can attend the first meeting to learn more about the course with no obligation.

USDA Offices Will Display New Quarters

The Wayne County U.S. Department of Agriculture service center will show its new quarters to the public during an open house Thursday from 2 to 7 p.m.

Three USDA agencies, the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Soil Conservation Service, and the Farmers Home Administration, were previously located in separate offices. The agencies are now located in a single building at 120 Logan St. in Wayne.

Reason for the move, according to USDA officials, is to provide one-stop service for farmers. The consolidation move also allows the three offices to pool equipment and personnel.

Refreshments will be served throughout the open house Thursday.

Boys State Selection Announced

The Wayne American Legion post has announced its selection of representatives for the 1977 Boys State camp, June 5-June 11 in Lincoln.

John Keating, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Keating of Wayne will represent the Wayne Post.

The alternate selection who will attend if Keating is not able is Brian Haun, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Haun.

The Boys State camp is in its 37th year of sponsorship by the American Legion. The camp is designed to provide training to "functional aspects of citizenship" according to the Legion. The event offers students an opportunity to view the functions of various state offices.

Keating, a Wayne High junior, has been active in several sports, is a consistent honor roll student, member of National Honor Society and the student council, was sophomore and junior class president, has been active in vocal music and was cast in the recent Wayne High musical production "Little Mary Sunshine."

He is a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Wayne.

What do we do about the biscuit gap?

by Sanford Gottlieb

I have discovered the nuclear-age equivalent of the nail for the lack of which the battle was lost. It is shortening the fatty substance you need for baking. It seems that this country's civil defense officials have been obliged to throw away the biscuits in the fallout shelters because the shortening has become rancid. Nobody changed the biscuits in the shelters since the early 1960's.

However, says an official of the Civil Preparedness Agency, there's evidence the Russians are stocking foodstuffs in their civil defense shelter. Thus we may expect to hear soon that a "biscuit gap" has opened.

Actually, the "biscuit gap" is only one sector in the "civil defense gap." The current budget time alarm being sounded by some cold warriors is that the Soviet Union is going for military "superiority" and preparing to survive a nuclear war against the USA. To buttress these charges, a covey of military and civilian hawks has been fluttering around with frightened cries about a Soviet civil defense buildup.

These folks read Soviet civil defense manuals, and conclude that the Russians are planning to evacuate their cities in case of emergency. Just imagine the scene: millions of calm, able-bodied Soviet citizens walk out of their cities to designated places in the countryside, while the less able-bodied are provided with transportation.

Soviet collective farmers are responsible for receiving this mass migration. The farms must fill out forms to let Moscow know which city dwellers they will receive, how these people are to arrive and where they will be housed. What then? Work brigades will cut a trench in the earth, bunding to the manual, tie brush in bundles, stuff it into the trench, and cover it with earth. In this way a shelter for 10 persons can be built in 11 hours. So sayeth the ministry in Moscow.

Seasoned American reporters in the Soviet Union such as Hedrick Smith of The New York Times (now head of The Times' Washington Bureau) and Peter Osmond of The Washington Post pool-pool Soviet civil defense preparations. Osmond, for example, reported last November that workers in a much-praised factory who were responsible for civil defense preparations did not know what they were supposed to do at the alarm signal.

One has only to ask some simple questions to test the likelihood of evacuation and relocation of scores of millions of Russians. What form of transport would carry the young, the elderly, the handicapped? How long would it take millions of the able-bodied to walk to the countryside? What about dogs and cats? What would happen if the Soviet Union ran out of shovels? What would the American government think if millions of Russians moved out of their cities? What would the Chinese think? And, if nuclear war occurred, what would the survivors come back to?

The Joint Congressional Committee on Defense Procurement, which has studied Soviet civil defense, will come to twin conclusions in a forthcoming report. First, no nation can survive a nuclear war as a functioning society. Second, the Soviet Union is no different in this respect from all other nations.

I'm writing a new civil defense manual. It's called "No Place to Hide." Mr. Gottlieb is the Executive Director of SANE.

STRAYEr Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

If you happened to have been tuned into Channel 3 on your CB Saturday night, March 12, you probably got the impression that a whole flock of folks were lost.

We were, sort of. About 40 of us were split up into teams and embarked on a "treasure hunt."

Which might seem like a dersh silly way for a bunch of adults to spend a Saturday night, but it was fun, despite some problems.

For example, one club would have sent my squad looking for School District 53. There is no District 53 in Wayne County, but then, what can you expect from a couple of guys with names like Vukoc and Vopalsensky.

Have to give credit where it's due, though. Some of the clues were pretty ingenious, considering. For example, one instruction was to take a certain number from a road sign—square it, subtract that from the prefix for the Randolph phone exchange—327—and end up with the Main St. address where the next clue could be found.

That, of course, is the First National Bank. Everything was going pretty smooth, but I became a bit worried when Wayne's finest cruised by in a squad car and saw me snooping around the bank with a flashlight.

I didn't get stopped then, but that clue led us to TSC and an officer naturally became suspicious when he spied a car plugged up in the Merchant Oil Co. driveway and a character poking around behind the tire rack. Luckily, he believed our story and we went on our way.

Knock, Knock?

Our last stop was at Alice's where we were instructed to tell each other a knock-knock joke before receiving our reward in the form of liquid refreshments.

We were a little embarrassed about walking in and telling knock-knock jokes, but that wasn't bad, considering. One four-member team, including my better half, had to go into the Gem Cafe and order a brew—and four straws. Another squad understandably failed to carry out its instructions—to sing a round of "Row Your Boat" in the ladies restroom at the Valley Squire.

One team went slightly off course and ended up in Pilger, returning only just before we were ready to turn out the St. Bernard. But one squad was given a task that might have made Hercules balk. They carried it out, however, and deserve some recognition for performance above and beyond the call of duty. Their chore? Walk into Andy's, accost the owner and whisper "Pizza Hut" in his ear. That takes guts.

YOU AND YOUR CAR
By The Automotive Information Council

A Midwestern parts manufacturer is turning down orders on a daily basis for converter pipes to eliminate or bypass the catalytic converter, the Automotive Information Council reports.

The respected producer has no intentions of filling that order pipeline. However, the demand points up the misconceptions that have centered about the catalytic converter since they generally became standard equipment on all new cars beginning with the 1975 models.

With very little effort, it would be easy to round up a number of automotive engineers who would insist that the catalytic converter has been the best friend a 1970s car engine ever had. Prior to their installations gasoline economy was on a downhill curve. The problem was that reductions in emissions had to be made in the engine. As emissions went down fuel consumption went up.

The catalyst made "miles per gallon" a respectable phrase again. Simply, it meant that the carbon monoxide (CO) and the hydrocarbons (HC) could be eliminated in the exhaust system. The engine again could be tuned to deliver greater efficiency and economy with a good deal of the dirty work left to the catalytic converter.

Those first catalysts caused some public concern. First, there was a worry that the petroleum industry would not be able to supply unleaded gasoline on a wide front. Leaded fuel destroys a converter. For that reason, filler necks on the cars and gas station pump nozzles have a smaller diameter. That eliminates the possibility of pumping leaded gas into an "unleaded" car. As far as availability is concerned, unleaded is rapidly becoming the volume leader.

There were also a pair of bum raps against the catalyst. One said they smelled like rotten eggs and another labeled them a potential source of grass fires. It was later discovered that the catalyst did smell if carburetor settings were changed to too rich a setting. About those brush fires, a report from the Society of Automotive Engineers says an overheated exhaust system—with or without a converter—can ignite grass under rare conditions.

The converter, of course, has made our air cleaner. How clean? Roughly 80 percent of the pollutants that came from the automobile of about a decade ago have been removed. The converter didn't do it all but it played a big part.

Down the road we may get three-way converters that eliminate oxides of nitrogen, an third pollutant. The research goes on.

the next generation will thank you for it.

OBSERVATIONS

Raising some questions

The Wayne-Carroll board of education at its last meeting voted to purchase a new school bus and to take bids only from businesses within the school district.

The reasoning behind the decision is clear: spend school district dollars with businesses subject to the district property tax levy. The board is certainly within its rights to do so.

The action does raise some questions, however:

—Would an additional bidder possibly encourage more competitive bidding?

—Should a business just outside the district be eliminated from bidding, even though its owner and most employees do live within the district and do pay property taxes which support the district?

—Why is this particular business not barred from supplying other items to the district?

—Is it proper to restrict from bidding a business which has provided driver's education automobiles for the district? — Jim Strayer.

Nebraska

The first Nebraska state capitol built in Lincoln (1868-69) was replaced by a second less than twenty years later. The December 30, 1888, Daily Nebraska State Journal on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society explains: "It did not require many years to demonstrate the unfitness of the (first) building for the permanent houses of the offices of the state. The walls were badly constructed and soon gave signs of disintegration. The outer courses of stone were affected by the weather and began flaking off. The workman had been hastily put together and for several years spent its whole time in warping and shrinking. Then the capitol removers were always active. Bills poured in at every session to relocate the seat of government... The old structure was a continual menace to the city, and it was felt that the capitol would never be safely anchored here (Lincoln) until the state officers and the legislature were given a house worthy of the dignity of the state."

Governor Silas Garber's January 8, 1879, message to the legislature contained a recommendation that a new building be erected and suggested a levy for a capitol building fund. The Journal continued, "One of the most bitter fights of that session was over this question. On Saturday, January 9, 1879... Representative (Milan H.) Sessions of Lancaster County introduced... a bill... providing for the erection of a wing of a new capitol, and appropriating the sum of $100,000 therefor. At once a tremendous noise was made by the opponents of Lincoln and the towns desirous of becoming the seat of government. Every kind of argument that could be found was used against the measure... The necessity of economy was brought forward constantly by the opponents of the bill.

"The friends of the measure were sleepless. Harder and more effective work has never been done since the first legislature was organized. The citizens of Lincoln, as a matter of course, were the principal champions of the bill. A committee of fifteen businessmen had been appointed to look after the interests of the city, and from these an executive committee of five, with (Thomas) P. Kennard as chairman, was selected. Mr. Kennard and his lieutenants were present nearly every minute of the daily sessions from the time the bill was introduced until it was passed. Thirteen test votes were taken during the progress of the bill; and although there were always voters enough, it never happened that there was any to spare. That it was necessary to do a great deal of log rolling is not denied, but the unsafe condition of the old building and the impossibility of fixing upon a better location than Lincoln for the capital formed the best possible argument in favor of the bill with fair minded legislators.

The bill provided that the erection of the new wing be supervised by the Board of Public Lands and Buildings, assisted by committees from the senate and house. (The present unicameral legislature was not adopted until 1934.) The board met June 4, 1879, and invited architects to submit plans. A design by W.H. Wilcox of Chicago was finally selected and W.H.B. (William) Stout, Lincoln, was awarded the contract for construction. Work progressed more slowly than anticipated: the west wing was not finished and occupied until November, 1881.

Representative N.C. (Newton C.) Abbott of Lincoln introduced a bill in January, 1881, for the erection of an east wing of the capitol. His bill appropriated an additional $100,000 for the building and the architect of the west wing was invited to furnish the plans. Architect Wilcox complied and the contract for construction was again awarded to W.H.B. (William) Stout. The two wings when completed were nearly identical.

A Feb. 27, 1883, bill provided for the demolition of the first capitol and the erection of the central or main portion of the new building. Again W.H.B. (William) Stout was to construct the building. J.S. Gregory was awarded the contract for the demolition of the old structure.

The newspaper continues: "The foundation walls were laid in the fall of 1883, and the corner stones of the structure was laid with a great deal of ceremony on the 15th of July, 1885. From that time forward the work progressed steadily, until the huse is now finished, and one year before the time specified in the contract."

In spite of some noticeable flaws (including a crack in the south wall of the west wing caused by the breaking of an arch over an old sandpile), the State Journal approved the building: "There is nothing about the capitol as it stands of which the state need be ashamed... The structure, with all the defects which may be pointed out, would not discredit any western state, and would be an ornament to any western city."

By 1919 the second capitol building was no longer large enough for the state's needs and the Nebraska Legislature initiated proceedings to build a new capitol as a memorial to Nebraska's World War I soldiers. The new design by Bertram Goodhue of New York City allowed for the existing building to be used until space in the new structure was provided by building around the old capitol in sections. Although it could scarcely equal its replacement, the second capitol building served the state well for the construction cost of approximately $750,000 and helped to permanently fix the seat of state government in Lincoln.

The marriage of Christine Colwell, daughter of Mrs. Irene Ave of Hoskins, to Robert Dike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dike Sr. of Norfolk, was solemnized in 2:30 p.m. rites March 13 at Mt. Olive Lutheran Church in Norfolk.

The Rev. Marvin Ulmer officiated at the double ring ceremony and Lucille Schwede was organist.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Loren Dunklau, the bride appeared in a formal-length gown of lavender double knit in an empire style. She wore a white picture hat and carried a cascade of lavender carnations and yellow carnations.

Member of honor was Vicki Hartman of Winslow, who wore a formal-length fashion of yellow double knit, styled similar to the bride's. She wore a picture hat and carried a single lavender mum. Attending the bridegroom was Rodney Eberhardt of Norfolk.

Guests were ushered into the church by Wayne Cary of Norfolk and candles were lighted by Jewell Dunklau of Hoskins.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Ave wore a floor-length dress in mint green.

Mrs. Dike wore a lavender gown, also in floor length. Both had corsages of yellow daisies and lavender carnations.

Kathy Reed of Norfolk registered guests and Lucille Schwede arranged gifts for the reception, which was held following the ceremony at the Hoskins Fire Hall for about 65 guests.

Mrs. Cliff Belhune of Carroll cut and served the wedding cake, which had been baked by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Clarence Schlines of Pierce. Shirley Brummels of Pierce poured and Judy Hartman of Hoskins served punch.

Waitresses were Gaylene and Becky Wagner of Plainview. Ladies assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. Ronald Hoffer of Hoskins and Mrs. Everett White of Norfolk.

The bride is a student at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk. The bridegroom, a graduate of Norfolk High School, has been employed at Dale Electronics in Norfolk.

Speaker Rebukes TV Violence

Violence as portrayed on television got a strong rebuke from Dr. Carol McLaughlin, Morningside College English professor who spoke to "the Wayne Kiwanis Club Monday."

The professor has television connections himself as he conducts a weekly interview show on Sloux City KTVI in addition to teaching duties. Dr. McLaughlin said violence on TV assaults humane values in which a great number of Americans believe. But unfortunately, he said, the shows featuring violence gain their high ratings mainly in New York, Los Angeles, Washington and other big cities where violence is a fact of living. It is not a way of life in smaller cities, and their residents tend to dislike TV violence, he said, citing a recent street interview conducted in Wayne by KCAU-TV of Sloux City.

End of the Line

YOUNG AND OLD alike gathered in Wakefield Tuesday to take a look at an Incomotive (left). Special ceremonies were conducted in observance of the last train to leave the Wakefield depot (top right). Progress, of a sort, caught up with the Wakefield branch line. Changes in the transportation industry reduced shipping on the line, according to the Chicago and North Western Transportation Company. The company last year decided to close the line because it was no longer profitable. Conductor for the last train was Ernest Winegardner (bottom right). Winegardner has been on the Wakefield branch line run for more than 31 years and lived in Wakefield until about 10 years ago. Now a Sioux City resident, Winegardner will continue to work as a conductor, but won't be coming back to the Dixon County community, at least not by train. Howard Tell, a railroad official and Wakefield native, was guest speaker for the ceremonies which ended more than 80 years of rail service to Wakefield.

Registration Deadlines Near for Courses

Registration deadlines draw near for five Wayne State College continuing education extension courses scattered throughout Nebraska and Iowa.

Two courses with Friday deadlines are currently open for applicants; likewise three more with March 25 deadlines.

Blair is the location for "Principles of Specific Learning Disabilities", a workshop scheduled for March 25, 26, 27 and April 30. The course, offered for two graduate credit hours, deals with identification of the SLD children and a basic understanding of the SLD area.

Instructors for the course are Dorothy Ley, director of summer courses in SLD sponsored by WSC, Educational Service

Unit 1 and Wayne Public Schools; and Gary Vopalensky, ESU 1 audiologist.

Clean Owens, previously curriculum modifier in the Wayne Carroll school system, will lead "Curriculum Modification for the SLD Child", scheduled for the same dates with the same deadline for registration.

Menlo, Iowa, is the location for this course dealing with identification of curriculum modification techniques as they relate to SLD children. This course is offered for two graduate credits. Corrections For Berger Obituary

In the obituary write-up for Mrs. Emma F. Berger, which appeared in Thursday's Wayne Herald, it was incorrectly reported that Mrs. Berger resided with her daughter and son in law, the Rev. and Mrs. Charles C. Sherwood, for the past 13 years.

The article should have read that Mrs. Berger had made her home with the Sherwoods for the past three years. She died there Feb. 22.

She was married to Fred Berger on Feb. 22, 1911. The couple resided at Winside until 1919 when they moved to Murdo, S.D. to some unimproved land which they prepared for farming. In 1936 the couple moved to Custer, S.D. where Mrs. Berger worked in the public school lunch program and was active in community projects.

Funeral services were held at San Diego, Calif., and at the McColley Funeral Home in Custer, S.D. She was buried Feb. 26 alongside her husband at Custer.

Lower Elkhorn NRD to Offer Irrigation Scheduling Assistance in 1977

A program to keep an eye on crop water use (evapotranspiration) to assist irrigators in scheduling their irrigations for the most efficient use of water and fuel and still maintain maximum yields receive the green light this month by the Lower Elkhorn NRD and the Cooperative Extension Service, University of Nebraska.

The cooperative program will provide the water use on a day-by-day basis so that irrigators can use the checkbook approach to determine if the crop has used sufficient moisture to warrant another irrigation of it rainfall has supplied the needed crop water.

In order to use the system to its fullest, several items are needed.

- 1) A water flow meter on the well to keep track of the actual amount of water applied. Approximately cost — $475 installed.
- 2) Moisture blocks and meter to check the actual soil moisture conditions to be sure that the soil is not getting wetter or drier than optimum. A good check on the actual situation in your field. Meter — $150, plus 16 blocks at $2 or $32.

3) Rain gauge on each quarter section, summer storms are extremely variable and can make an inch or more difference in the rain you get on each field. A good rain gauge is only about $5.00.

For more details and information on irrigation scheduling and management, check with the offices of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District or your local Extension Service Office for these NebGuides:

- a) Charting Corn Irrigation of Deep Silt or Clay-Loam Soils.
- b) Sprinkler Irrigation on Sandy Soil.
- c) Scheduling Irrigation by Electrical Resistance Blocks.
- d) Anti-Pollution Devices for Applying Chemicals through the Irrigation System.
- e) Fertilizing through Center Pivots.

Lands for Conservation Option Open in the Lower Elkhorn NRD

Difficulty in getting contractors during the short spring and fall construction seasons for building terraces and waterways have prompted the Directors of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District to develop a one-year program to open lands during the months of June, July and August for conservation construction for a $40-acre payment.

Provisions of the Program are:

1. The entire field in the program must be terraced and waterways shaped and seeded during the contract to be eligible for the program. The land under contract will be limited to the smallest area that is practical to include the practices installed.
2. The contract payment will be $40.00 per acre. The land may be planted to cover or a crop before or after construction of the terraces and waterways. It is permissible to harvest or pasture the crop.
3. Land terraced will be farmed on the contour, through the land may be seeded to legumes or grasses and legumes as part of the normal rotation. If the land is used as pasture or rangeland, the payment under the contract must be returned to the Lower Elkhorn NRD.

4. The maximum contract for any operating unit will be 60 acres.

5. Only land requiring terraces to meet the permissible soil loss under the soil loss formula is eligible and must be a part of a conservation plan for the entire farm. Terraces and waterways must be maintained for minimum life span of ten years or so long as the current owner has control of the land, whichever time is less.

Lower Elkhorn NRD Director John Hansen of Newman Grove who originally suggested such a program noted that locating contractors during the busy construction seasons in the spring or late fall has been a problem and this program would provide yet another incentive to landowners to install adequate land treatment to control erosion to acceptable levels and yet allow cooperators to construct terraces, waterways, etc. without suffering a financial loss during the year of construction.

Anyone interested in full particulars on the Lands of Conservation Program is encouraged to contact the Soil Conservation Service Office in their county to see how this conservation option can fit into their farming operation.

Lower Elkhorn NRD Directors Provide Leadership in Statewide Positions

Recently, two Directors of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District were selected to represent resources interests.

Clinton Von Seggern of Scribner was selected as the Board's Representative for the Elkhorn River Basin on the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission. Von Seggern, a long time board member of the Dodge Soil and Water Conservation District and Lower Elkhorn NRD will be serving a four-year term on the Commission. The Natural Resources Commission is the liaison agency with NRD's on the state level with responsibility for soil and water conservation, flood prevention, and watershed protection. The Commission is guided by fifteen Directors, one each from the twelve river basins in the State plus one Director representing each of the areas of groundwater, surface water and municipal supplies.

Richard Hahn of Norfolk was elected as president of the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts, an association to represent and assist NRD's in resources management. Hahn has served the Association as Vice-President for two years and will hold a four-year term of office.

The Association is extremely active in the drafting and support of legislation in the natural resources field and works closely with interested state and federal levels of government plus local natural resources districts.

Both Directors are not only providing outstanding leadership to the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District but also to resources management statewide.

Board OK's Purchase Of Uniforms
 The Allen board of education Monday night approved purchase of new football and girls' and boys' basketball uniforms for next year.
 A proposed update of school board policies was presented to the board by schools superintendent Virgil Ferguson. The board will review the proposal for possible action later in the spring.
 Ferguson also informed the board the school district has received the remaining of its state aid money for the 1976-77 school year, about $2,300. Payments were delayed then because the state didn't have sufficient funds to meet state aid commitments.
 The board voted to continue classes designed to meet special vocational needs and discussed the possibility of expanding the program.

Artist Intrigued by Patterns
 Charles Eastman loves art. He's intrigued by patterns and repetition, influenced by military surroundings, interested in people's thoughts as they are revealed when viewing art.
 Eastman, who like to be called Joe, is the assistant professor of art at Kearney State College. His works are currently on display in the Nordstrand Visual Arts Gallery at Wayne State College.
 His paintings, his drawings, his sketches, reflect his influence. His art has evolved from a period of abstract expressionism to his current involvement with geometric abstraction.
 Even his paintings of biplanes are a series of geometric shapes fitting neatly into his artistic pattern.
 And military surroundings influenced these paintings.
 "I grew up during World War II when camouflaged airplanes would fly over our house. Since that time I used the idea of camouflaging canvas with paint. With camouflage an artist must set up a shape and decide to make every inch of it different on the same canvas. Everything is standardized into the same shape, same color, and same distance apart."

Eastman has attended the University of Colorado in Boulder, the University of the Americas in Mexico City, and the California College of Art and Crafts in Oakland, Cal.
 He received his BFA from the University of Denver, his MFA from the University of Northern Colorado and his MFA from Mills College in Oakland, Cal.
 His creations have been displayed extensively in such locations as the Joslyn Art Museum, the St. Louis Art Museum, and the Nelson Gallery in Kansas City.
 Eastman recently returned from Texas A&M University where he served as artist-in-residence for a semester. On his way back to Nebraska his trailer, containing new paintings, was hit from the rear by another vehicle, damaging frames on some of his artwork.

Since that time Eastman has been busy with repair work. His show at Wayne State will be the first time to display his new paintings.
 Describing his work as intellectual, Eastman tries to place time and space on a two-dimensional surface. He achieves this effect with a spray gun containing a pressurized mist of acrylic paint.
 His patterns are repeated over and over without the use of harsh lines.
 Eastman's work will be on display in the Gallery through Friday. A reception honoring the artist will be held on that date from 7:30 p.m. in the same location. The public is invited to attend.

The recently remodeled Nordstrand Visual Arts Gallery is located on the second floor of the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center. Hours for viewing are 8 a.m. through 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Recording Star Is Headliner For WSC Show
 A combination of folk, rock, and classical music will flow through Rice Auditorium, Tuesday when Mary Macgregor and Shawn Phillips present a concert at 8 p.m.
 Wayne State College students will be admitted free.
 Macgregor, a budding artist in the folk-rock field, is famous for her recent high charted album "Torn Between Two Lovers." Music has been her love ever since early childhood.
 Throughout grade school she studied piano, music theory, and violin. In high school and college, Ms. Macgregor worked as a folksinger and played with a 14 piece band.
 Her big break came in 1974. After an eventual climb to lead singer in the folk-rock group, Sunlending, Macgregor took a job as a backup singer with Peter Yarrow. From then on she was known, and began recording with America Records.
 Phillips, who possesses a rare four-octave voice range, sings about the major themes in his life — health, love, and clarity. Guitar self-taught in Greenwich Village, Phillips also plays the star.
 He recorded two albums in London, has lived in Italy. A lanky Texan, he practices yoga regularly. His music is a mixture of rock, and folk, and classical.

Council
 City administrator Fred Brink said the next regular meeting would be in Woman's Club room in the city auditorium, but added the council should then be able to pass an ordinance changing the location of meetings and start using the new carpeted and paneled chamber for subsequent meetings.

Plan for 217,000 more people at breakfast tomorrow

Today, the world consumed 155 million bushels of grain... 1.2 million tons of red meat... and 1 million tons of milk and eggs. Tomorrow, 217,000 more of us will crowd around Mother Earth's breakfast table.

Feeding them takes research...and you

Where will the food come from? Well, since they aren't making any more land, farmers will have to produce more from the land they've got. And today's record yields are going to have to be commonplace tomorrow.

The bulk of research into greater soil, crop and animal productivity comes from land grant colleges and testing stations. We need more research. Much more.

The business of agriculture is your business, too. So support the need for more agricultural research. And get to know the farmers in your area.

It's the best way we know to celebrate Agriculture Day '77.

Business notes...

The Service Station
Leroy Parrish Jr., 18, of Wayne, has enlisted in the U.S. Air Force's delayed enlistment program.

Parrish, a senior at Wayne High School, is the son of Leroy Parrish Sr., of Wayne. He will enter active duty May 25 and has selected the electronics career area for training after completing basic military training school at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

According to Parrish's Air Force recruiter in Norfolk, the time that Leroy spends in the delay program will count towards his longevity pay raises when he enters active duty.

Health Tip

There's nothing more that terms to a better than a well kept yard, well-trimmed shrubs, and well-tended flower beds. Likewise, a vegetable garden that produces a bumper crop of tomatoes, turnips, and green beans is most flattering to its owner — and a good sustenance. Unfortunately, all too often it is painful for its participants.

Before garden buffs get up in arms and wrap a garden hose around a writer who would even suggest that working with Mother Earth could be anything but the most productive and satisfying hobby in the world, let me explain.

Gardening and landscaping are great, if you recognize that they are activities that produce certain body stresses, if you recognize your own physical limitations, and, if you do them with good sense as well as enthusiasm.

Most people hibernate all winter. Then, at the first sign of spring, try to make their lawns or gardens the most attractive on the block—all in one day. They dig, dig, dig, trim, trim, trim... lift, lift, lift... bend, bend, bend. The result is such, such, such. Their backs hurt, their muscles ache, and they wonder why.

Doctors of chiropractic, whose health-care services emphasize the structural integrity of the body and concern for those health disorders related to the spine and nervous system, offer the following "golden rules" of gardening:

- Warm up your muscles to a task a few minutes before you embark on a tough project.
- Don't bend over for long periods of time without taking standing breaks.
- Don't lift more than you can handle.
- Wear clothing that does not restrict or confine your movements.
- Wear flat, comfortable shoes that offer firm support.
- Use the proper tool for each job.
- Avoid becoming overheated or chilled.
- Avoid iced drinks when overheated.
- Avoid doing your work in an awkward position.
- If you injure yourself or have aches and pains, see a health specialist immediately.
- As a preventive measure against health disorders which result from a strained or sprained spinal column, have periodic chiropractic spinal examinations.
