

Attorney Says Water Ownership Is Irrelevant To Regulation

Ownership of ground water is an emotional issue but the question of public or private ownership of underground water supplies is irrelevant to controlling water usage, a water law specialist said Wednesday at Wayne State College.

David Aiken, University of Nebraska Water law specialist, said the government can control how water is used, regardless of whether or not legislation is passed declaring water resources as public or private.

Water in Nebraska is similar in that sense to soil in Texas, Aiken said. Property owners in the Lone Star State may own the mineral wealth under their land, but the state still has the right to control how much oil is pumped, and to restrict the number of wells. The same principals apply to underground water in Nebraska.

Aiken was one of the guest speakers at a conference on water sponsored by the WSC Public Affairs Institute.

The attorney said he believes the Nebraska Unicameral in the next five or ten years must put together legislation which considers surface and groundwater as a single source.

There is ample evidence of the relationship he said, pointing out that in some areas, irrigation from underground aquifers can lower water levels in streams, while in other Nebraska regions, particularly in the Platte River valley, irrigating from surface water supplies can actually raise underground water tables and cause problems.

A law established in Nebraska in 1895, dedicates surface water to the people and established a permit system — the appropriate system of administering surface water rights.

Two systems govern who has first rights when surface water supplies are limited: the priorities system dictates that the person with the earliest permit has first right for surface water, but a preference system establishes three priorities — domestic, agricultural and industrial — in that order.

Nebraska has no law regarding minimum stream flows and surface water users are allowed to pump streams dry.

Aiken said he disagrees with the view of surface water law held by the state Water Resources Department. It is the department's view that it must issue pumping permits, even though streams may already be over appropriated.

There has not yet been sufficient public pressure for minimum stream flow laws, Aiken said.

Where underground water is concerned, Aiken said, courts restrict groundwater usage on the land it is pumped from, and can't be wasted.

The state Groundwater Management Act does give local Natural Resources Districts authority to establish control areas in which they can allocate the amount to be pumped for irrigation. NRDs can also establish a moratorium well drilling in control areas, although such action must be approved by the state. The trend in Nebraska has been toward local control of water supplies because of the varied geology of the state, Aiken said.

Also participating in the conference were Nebraska Secretary of Agriculture Glenn Kreuscher who spoke during a morning session on "The Nebraska Farmer and His Water," Dr. Wayne Hall, director of the University Council on Water Resources; John Hansen, a Newman Grove farmer and a director of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD); Mrs. Roberta McGowan, a representative of the Nebraska Water Resources Association; Ken MacKichen, director of a U.S. Geological Survey team; Steve Ottmans, LENRD manager; Don Spitzer, Wayne County agriculture extension agent, and Bob Warrick of Meadow Grove, president of the Nebraska Sierra Club.

Following Aiken's afternoon address which began at 1:30, each of the panel members had an opportunity to offer their views regarding Nebraska's water resources. Some of their comments were:

WARRICK: Clear running streams are a valuable resource and the state must recognize the importance of protecting wildlife and of recreation uses of water. The state should adopt agricultural policies which limit the use of water and continued development of irrigation on marginal land should be discouraged.

Corporations should be prohibited from owning farmland, the Sierra Club president continued, and land should be farmed by the people living on it. Warrick said corporate farming in the O'Neill area has mined water (pumping from underground supplies faster than it is replaced) and now corporations are asking for a federal subsidy for dams to provide water to continue irrigation. Crops irrigated with water from federally financed projects compete with farmers who finance their own development, Warrick said.

SPITZER: Up until the past couple of years, there was no reason to be concerned about efficient use of water, the county agent said. Emphasis was on maximum yield per acre, based on the assumption of unlimited water and low fuel costs.

There is now a large incentive to make the most efficient use of water, Spitzer said. There is tremendous interest among local farmers in making the best use of available water and the University of Nebraska Extension Service is shifting emphasis in that direction.

OLTMANS: It doesn't make sense to issue permits to pump from streams already over-appropriated, the LENRD manager said, and the Department of Water Resources should initiate legislation to end the practice of unlimited permits. He also commended Spitzer for experimental projects he has conducted in irrigation scheduling.

KREUSCHER: Discussion of water use is just beginning, the state ag secretary said, and it will become a hot issue. Anyone who can't stand the heat had better stay out of the Unicameral the See WATER, page 10

Neihardt-House Dialogist Announced

Any professor teaching Native American Studies at the nation's leading university would be expected to be rich in knowledge of the American Indian.

But when that professor is part Chippewa and Ojibwa, has a doctorate in the History of science, and publishes paper after paper on the Indian implementing scientific and historical knowledge, then the professor should rank among the top Indian experts.

Such is the description of Clara Sue Kidwell, associate professor at the University of California at Berkeley, who will serve as the House-Neihardt dialogist at Wayne State College, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Sponsored by the WSC Center for the Development of the Humanities, Ms. Kidwell will appear at Wayne State. The first was poet William Stafford who spoke April 2 at a Sigma Tau Delta regional convention.

Proposed in 1966, the Wayne State Foundation recently revived the House-Neihardt Dialogues, based on a dialogue and criticism tradition established by Nebraska's poet laureate and based on a dialogue and criticism. See NEIHARDT, page 10

Wanted: Men for 'Batter Battle'

Several Wayne area women may find their kitchens sprinkled with flour and dotted with cake frosting during the next week and a half as men practice their baking skills for the second fund raising "Battle of the Batters" to be held in Wayne.

The event is being held April 20 and 21 at Peoples Natural Gas Co. to raise funds for the March of Dimes.

The local chapter of the National Foundation for the March of Dimes has contributed $700 toward the purchase of an infant warmer for Providence Medical Center in Wayne.

Merle Rise, chairman of the Wayne County March of Dimes chapter, said that money raised from the all-male cake bake will be used to help pay the total $2,500 price for the equipment, which was installed when the hospital was built.

Rise said businessmen, employees and area farmers will be called on to take part in the cake baking contest. Mrs. Kenneth Haller and Mrs. David Swanson will be calling on area farmers, while John Dorcay and members of Wayne State's Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity will sign up businessmen.

About 80 contestants should be signed up by the time the bake-off starts, Rise said, adding that he hopes the sale of the cakes will raise approximately $800.

Coordinators of the event are Mrs. William Corbit and Mrs. Kenneth McQuistan.

The cake baking will take place at Peoples Natural Gas Co. beginning at 6:30 a.m. each day, with contestants allowed an hour and a half to finish their entries.

Contestants have to bake their cakes from scratch, and no cake See "BATTER", page 10

Speaker to Discuss Check-Off Proposal

Nebraska Feeders Association secretary Paul Johnston will discuss a proposed beef check-off program during a beef information meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Wayne city auditorium.

Beef producers will soon vote on the proposal to allow 30 cents per $100 in beef sales to be collected to finance beef research, consumer and producer information programs, and promotion and market development programs.

Extension beef specialist Vernon Krause will share the agenda with Johnston, discussing small grain silage, including best stage to cut small grain for silage, data on its feeding value, and comparative value of harvesting small grain for grain or silage.

The Beef Research and Information Act which would authorize the check-off program if approved by producers, is the result of nearly two years of effort on the part of cattle See CHECK-OFF, page 10

Fund Drive Continues

Windside's nondenominational youth group, KIDS, and the Windside Community Club are hoping to substantially bolster the fund started recently in Windside to help defray expenses of hospitalization and heart surgery for Jay Morse.

KIDS, which stands for Kids Interested in Doing Something, is planning to sponsor a car wash and bake sale on Saturday, April 16. Sponsors of the group are Mr. and Mrs. Gary Farrrens.

While residents are purchasing the goodies at the Windside Co-Op, they can have their car washed at the old filling station, located between the post office and Witt's Cafe.

Community Club members have made plans to sponsor a benefit card party and old-fashioned box lunch auction Sunday evening, April 17, at 7:30 in the city auditorium. Admission is one box lunch per couple.

Morse suffered a heart attack in July 1976 and has been unable to work since. He recently underwent heart surgery in Omaha.

Contributions for the Morse fund can be sent to Windside State Bank, Farmers State Bank in Carroll, Commercial State Bank in Hoskins, and the First National and State National Banks in Wayne.

Containers for contributions have also been placed in Windside business places.

Bar Association Urges Comment On State Courts

The Nebraska State Bar Association will conduct a public hearing on the Nebraska court system April 19 in Wayne.

A bar association spokesman said Wayne County residents are invited to attend the meeting, beginning at 8 p.m. in the county courthouse in Wayne.

The hearing is part of a major study of the state's court system being conducted by a special committee of the Nebraska State Bar Association. The Wayne hearing is one of many being conducted throughout the state to allow citizens to make known their criticisms and suggestions on the judicial system.

Anyone who cannot appear in person can submit comments in writing to: Court Study Committee, 1019 Sharp Building, Lincoln 68508.

Madison attorney Philip Trine will conduct the hearing.

Kreuscher: Water Supply in Jeopardy

No other state has Nebraska's potential for water usage, Nebraska Secretary of Agriculture Glenn Kreuscher said Wednesday during a conference sponsored by the Wayne State College Public Affairs Institute.

But even though the groundwater (water stored beneath the earth's surface) supply is plentiful, the tools and resources needed to utilize Nebraska's "blue gold" may make access economically unattractive, Kreuscher noted.

Rising costs of energy needed to pump the stored water might make it unfeasible to develop some groundwater resources for irrigation, the state ag secretary noted.

"We might run out of energy before we run out of water."

Proper irrigation scheduling can help Nebraskans conserve both energy and water, Kreuscher said. "We have learned that correct scheduling in the use of water can save a great deal of energy and a great deal of water."

He said Nebraskans can learn from China, a nation he cited as a leader in irrigation and crop production. In some areas of China with climate similar to Nebraska's, farmers produce two crops a year and in warmer climates may produce as many as four crops annually, Kreuscher said.

Wakefield Man Takes Own Life

A 20-year old Wakefield man died of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound Friday afternoon, according to Dixon County sheriff's deputy Allen Van Buskirk.

Dennis P. Byers' body was discovered by a passing motorist in a ditch along a county road one mile north and about two and one-half miles west of Wakefield. His car was parked on the road nearby.

Van Buskirk said Byers' death was the result of a gunshot wound, apparently self-inflicted.

Byers is survived by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Byers of Wakefield, a brother, Dan, a sister, Di Lynne, and his grandmothers, Mrs. W.L. Byers and Mrs. Elmer Fleetwood, all of Wakefield.

Services are pending at Bressler Funeral Home in Wakefield.

cher said. The Chinese have reduced the maturity of their wheat crop by two to three weeks, conserving moisture and energy and escaping weather damage, he noted.

The state's top agricultural official warned that Nebraska's water supply might be jeopardized in the future if out-of-state buyers are allowed to purchase See KREUSCHER, page 10

Nursing Home Bond Election Is Tuesday

Laurel voters go to the polls Tuesday to decide a bond issue proposed to finance construction of a 50-bed municipal nursing home.

Petitioners gained the necessary number of signatures to call for the special election. Amount of the bond issue is $837,500, either for construction of a new building or purchase and remodeling of an existing one.

A mill levy on property within the city limits would be used to raise the money to retire the bonds. The cost estimate includes land acquisition, construction, equipment and furnishing, sidewalks and drives, and fees and funds.

Contractor Is Suing City

A Milford electrical contractor has filed an $18,000 lawsuit against the city of Wayne, alleging he is due damages stemming from a 1973 contract when his firm installed a 69 kilovolt line tying the city electric system with Nebraska Public Power District.

Named in the suit filed by Eugene Kremer, owner of Gene's Electric in Milford, in addition to the city are Kent Hall, who was mayor then, and Ivan Beeks, Vernon Russell, Darrel Fuelberth, Carolyn Filler, Ted Bahe, John Vakoc and Jimmie Thomas, who were city council members at the time.

Bahe and Beeks have since left the council.

Kremer alleges in the suit that the city was negligent in that it failed to obtain right of way clearances for the line from owners of adjacent property and that it failed to provide suitable materials for the job.

The alleged negligence resulted in extra work, including extra wire stringing and setting of insulators twice, the suit alleges, claiming that services performed were worth in excess of $34,000 while payment amounted to slightly less than $16,000, leading to a claim for $18,350.77 plus interests and other costs.

City administrator Fred Brink Friday said the contract for construction of the power line was originally let for about $19,000. He acknowledged that the city administrator, John Addison had not initially obtained the necessary easements.

The contract price was not paid in full because some work on the project was not finished, Brink claimed.

After completion of the project, Kremer claimed an additional $4,900 for extra work in clearing right of way property. See CONTRACTOR, page 10

Allen Beerman Is Dixon-Cedar Bureau Guest

Nebraska Secretary of State Allen Beerman will be the guest speaker at the 20th annual Cedar-Dixon County Farm Bureau banquet April 11.

Tickets for the dinner, which will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Wagon Wheel Steak House in Laurel, are available from Dixon and Cedar County Farm Bureau board members.

The dinner will include musical entertainment and nearly two dozen door prizes provided by local businessmen.

FFA Dinner Set for Friday

The Allen FFA chapter will hold its annual awards banquet Friday night at the high school auditorium. The potluck dinner starts at 6:30.

Awards will be presented to The Star Greenhand, Star Chapter Farmer and honorary chapter members following a talk by guest speaker John Kait, a former state FFA officer.

Also following the dinner, the chapter will install its new officers for the upcoming year.

Tickets are on sale from any club member at $1 per person.

Superintendents Elect Mills

Educational Service Unit-1 director Harry Mills of Wakefield was confirmed as president of the Northeast Nebraska School Superintendents Association at its annual spring meeting Wednesday in Norfolk.

Osmond school superintendent Delno Fuelberth was elected as president-elect and Deryl Lawrence, Wayne State College director of special services, was elected to continue in the position of secretary-treasurer.

Mills announced the appointment of several committee and the group made tentative plans to hold the fall meeting in October on the WSC campus.

Dr. Robert Cox, president of Northeast Technical Community College at Norfolk, welcomed the superintendents associations to the campus, site for the meeting. Dr. Ralph Weaver, South Sioux City schools superintendent, current association president, presided over the meeting.

State Commission On Aging Plans Wayne Meeting

The needs of the elderly will be discussed during a meeting in Wayne Thursday sponsored by the Nebraska Commission on Aging.

The meeting, which will commence at 2 p.m. in the Wayne city auditorium, was scheduled to provide the commission with information for long-range planning, according to Joceli Bull of Wayne, a member of the commission and director of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center.

Ready for Action

THE WAYNE CITY council Tuesday night will meet in regular session for the first time in its new chamber on the second floor of the city hall. At left, city administrator Fred Brink is seated in one of the council member's chairs, testing out the new voting machine, shown in the background. Council members will record their vote by pressing a button. After all votes have been cast, city clerk Bruce Mordhorst will throw a switch and votes will register on the light wall panel. Shown are six "yes" votes lighted in left column and two "no" votes in right column. Brink built the voting machine at a cost of about $25 from available materials. The council members will be seated at a built-in desk shown above, in two wings, with the major, clerk, administrator and attorney seated in the center section. A microphone at each seat is connected to a public address system and three recording jacks are also available for use by the news media. In addition, connections are available for KWSC broadcast of the meetings over Cablevision Channel 10.

OBSERVATIONS

Recycling advocated

Charley Thone has written to President Carter, urging incentives for recycling of materials, an issue which deserves support.

Why? If for no other reason, conservation of energy. As Congressman Thone points out, it takes 20 times more energy to produce a pound of aluminum from bauxite ore than from recycled aluminum.

If recycling of paper were increased from the current level of 22 per cent to 50 per cent, it would save 180 million trees a year.

Trees are a renewable resource, of course, but the fuel used in logging, milling and transportation isn't.

"It takes about 40,000 pound of minerals each year to maintain each American in his present standard of living," Thone said. "Most of these minerals must be imported from abroad. If we are to continue to be the richest nation in the world, we must learn to use these minerals over and over, rather than regulating them to the dump after one short use."

Thone is resubmitting to Congress his proposal that federal tax discrimination against those who use recycled materials be ended. He is asking the President to consider it as part of his energy proposals and at the same time is suggesting that the administration advocate giving businesses accelerated depreciation for installing cycling equipment equal to that given for installing anti-pollution equipment.

Dr. Glenn Seaborg, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, says we must build a "recycle society," using materials indefinitely. Congressman Thone agrees with Seaborg and we think he's right. — Jim Strayer.

Out of Old

Nebraska

J. Sterling Morton, founder of Arbor Day, did not stand alone in his efforts to promote tree planting. In 1856 Robert W. Furnas, later governor of Nebraska, started his nursery at Brownville and planted 50,000 apple trees. There were others concerned with the environment, and in September, 1869, the Nebraska State Horticultural Society was organized to promote tree culture.

Although the belief that trees would induce greater rainfall was the chief motive for planting trees, other strong incentives were fuel, fruit, windbreaks, and beauty. But trees remained a scarce commodity on the Nebraska frontier, so much so that stringent laws were passed for their protection. In his latest book "Conquering the Great American Desert," published by the Nebraska State Historical Society, Professor Everett Dick of Union College said that during the 1870's "if you had something against your neighbor, it was safer to whip out your gun and shoot him than to cut down his trees. You could plead self-defense when you shot someone, and often a killer got away scot-free; but no such subterfuge could be claimed by a tree mutilator. It was the penitentiary (up to ten years at hard labor) for him, according to the law."

During the 1890's Charles E. Bessey, a longtime professor of botany at the University of Nebraska, fought for his dream of foresting the Sandhills and also inspired others. Dr. Rosalind Morris of the Department of Agronomy, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, relates that one of his (Bessey's) students addressed the State Horticulture Society in 1897. The student — 23-year-old Kearney County farm boy Rollins Adams Emerson — urged the beautification of stark, rural surroundings:

"You began, perhaps many years ago, the most important undertaking of your life, the one in which every true man is sooner or later engaged; you began the making of a home. You worked with a will, and in time you had a home. Then you wished to improve it; you wanted to give your family better advantages; you would do both when you had more money. You worked harder than before. You hurried from morning till night day after day, year after year, in the rush of a busy western life, you seem to have forgotten the real purpose of your work; you have come to believe that all you are here for is to work. You have become so accustomed to your way of doing that it suits you perfectly; and you do not see why others dislike it so. But remember the monotony of your life is broken by variations: You work takes you to all parts of your farm and of the surrounding country as well. But how about the one whose chief source of pleasure must come from what she sees in one small dooryard?"

Emerson then went on to describe the dreary outlook of the farmer's wife: "Outside the house is a yard, a more or less grassy spot, with a good many weeds and some holes where the hogs have rooted. There are few trees, no shrubs. The house stands bare, without so much as a vine to cover it. Near the door are a few small flower beds, with half their beauty destroyed by being fenced in with laths and pieces of boards to keep them from the hogs. To the left stands two or three small posts which together with the corner of the house, form a support for a clothes line. A little farther from the house and to the right, the sunflowers are growing up about an old wagon, some plows and a broken mowing-machine. Next comes the hay stacks, set so as to hide the only view of the tree-lined valley beyond. Some times above the stacks can be seen the smoke of the train as it crosses the valley and buries itself in the trees and the cut on the other side. To the right of the stacks is the barn, a heap of broken fence boards near it. And beyond all, the hill — only the sky beyond that."

"Do you wonder that the mother loses heart, and that even inside the house there is less cheer than there was once? Does it seem strange that the boys find more pleasure on the streets of the country town near them than they do at home? I wonder why, when older, they have learned to look down upon farming as something fit only for ignorant, unambitious men?"

Emerson received his degree in 1897 and served as chairman of the Horticulture Department and horticulturist in the Experiment Station at the University of Nebraska from 1899 to 1914. He later returned to his native New York (his parents had moved to Nebraska in 1880) and spent 33 years at Cornell University in Ithaca. His biography "Rollins Adams Emerson (1874-1947): Horticulturist, Pioneer Plant Geneticist, Administrator, and Inspiring Student Adviser," by Rosalind Morris, is in the library at the Nebraska State Historical Society.

Bessey's dream of foresting the Sandhills became reality in 1902 when President Theodore Roosevelt set aside reserves in Thomas, Blaine and Cherry counties totaling 206,028 acres.

Writer: please knock

Dear Editor: I am wondering whatever happened to the old policy of knocking before entering someone's house? I have repeatedly had meter readers from the natural gas company walk into my house before knocking and announcing their presence. I find this to be very disgusting. Employes defend Theatre Manager

Dear Editor: The employees of the Gay Theater would like to reply to the people who talk and do not know what they are talking about. It is true that the print which we received of "A Star is Born" was edited and spliced in various places. The fact is that we received the print in bad condition. (Approximately 99 per cent of the splices in the print were there before we put it on the screen.) The major part that we cut out, about one and one-half minutes at the end of the show, was done because the film was so damaged that it would not even go through the projector. We feel that placing the blame on Jack March and his staff was unjustified. As a matter of fact, Mr. March tried on numerous occasions to obtain a new print. The reply that he received was that Wayne was the smallest town where the movie was showing and that no other print was available at the time. It seems to us that if Mr. March is to receive any criticism at all it should be in the form of a compliment for booking the film as soon as he possibly could. The next time any complaints are to be made (no matter what the subject matter is) please have enough courtesy to research the subject before you subject anyone to public ridicule. Thank you. — Tim Maier, Doug Zoucha, Gary Wilkinson, and other employees of the Gay Theatre.

STRAYEr Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

I'm making in a claim for hazardous duty pay this month — for taking pictures at the annual Easter egg hunt at Wayne State College.

There I was, on one side of the room with my camera focused in, waiting for the event to begin. On the other side of the room, facing me, were about 4,000 four-year-olds, farin' to go.

They were confined behind a rope while one of the sponsors explained the rules. But I got nervous when the crowd kept surging up against the barrier and this one little kid kept yelling, "C'mon, drop the rope and let us go. Drop the rope."

For a minute there, I thought I was going to get to record history, if I survived; what would probably become known as the Great Easter Egg Riot of '77."

Then the thought occurred to me: What happens when they drop the rope and stampede begins and I'm right in the path. My breath grew short, all the high points of my life flashed before my eyes (if only took a split second), and I visualized a banner head in the Thursday edition: Tots Treadle Editor in Annual Egg Hunt.

Then the rope dropped, the youngsters charged, I snapped a couple of pictures, and it was all over. I had survived and the floor which had been littered with foil-wrapped candy eggs was clean as a whistle.

Seriously, the egg hunt was fun for the kids and their parents, the sponsors, and yes, even news photographers. The sponsors deserve credit for organizing the egg hunt, the kids for being well behaved, and parents for the most valuable quality, patience.

someone will answer. "Good afternoon, Wayne Herald."

"Yes, Wayne there?"

"Wayne? We don't have anyone here named Wayne."

"Oh, well, then, let me talk to Harold."

"We don't have anyone here named Harold, either."

"Who am I talking to?"

"This is The Wayne Herald."

"I do know anyone named Harold. I was trying to call Wayne."

"I am afraid you don't understand, sir. This is The Wayne Herald."

"I see. Well, then, let me talk to Mr. Harold."

"That type of call, usually is long distance, from people who haven't had contact with us before. At times, it is our number, not our name, which causes the problem."

Like many businesses, we have a telephone number which ends with two zeros. Supposed to be easy to remember and all that. Trouble is, it can be a bit confusing if a confident caller gets mixed up on the second digit, or misdials it.

Our number is 375-2600 and the Bank Clinic number is 375-2500. Imagine my surprise when shortly after joining the staff I took a call from someone wanting to schedule a whirlpool bath.

We also get loads of calls from people wanting to know if their car is done. The Corvett Auto number is 375-3600.

And one day, we even took an order for a canned spray. I haven't got that one figured out yet. The Wayne Greenhouse number is 375-1555.

Works Both Ways

If those calls are a bit confusing for our staff, I can just imagine what it must be like for others to receive some calls intended for us.

"Say, can you keep my name out of the court news?"

"I have a little item I'd like to put on

RURAL DELIVERY

By AL SMITH

Motion necessary for stable society

By JOHN W. GARDNER

There is validity in the widespread apprehension today. An era is ending. Known landmarks are fading. We are leaving a familiar world behind.

The instinct of us humans to stabilize our environment — both outer and inner — inevitably leads us to invest our institutions with a sense of permanence, of sacredness, of challengeable rightness. This human need for stability leads over the years to an institutional rigidity that is essentially anti-nature. Nature is tumultuous, moving, changing, always in flux. Things are being born, maturing, adapting, competing, surviving, dying. One thing waxes, another wanes. Things ebb and flow.

Humans create organizations and societies to serve their shared purposes, and then gradually rigidify those institutions as though in a vain attempt to shut out the tumult of nature. But nature wins. Eventually, in trying to shut out the great ebb and flow of life, societies and organizations smother themselves.

Almost no one is hostile, in principle, to the idea of renewal. Why is it so difficult? Partly because decay starts from within. When individuals close their minds, stop learning, become set in their ways, it is not as a rule — because anyone forced, them to do so. They are impelled by inner needs or failings. So it is with nations. Nations aren't pushed into senility and oblivion. They die of their inner rigidities.

In short, one must look for the villain within — within oneself, within one's society. That's no fun. That is why the critics who tell us that our trouble is may be fiercely resisted. As a general thing, we do not know ourselves and don't want to. It isn't that we can't find the truth that will save us. We run from it. We cry "Where is the voice that will tell us the truth?" and clamp our hands over our ears.

We shout "Show us the way!" and shut our eyes apprehensively.

Those who understand what we must do in order to avert self-destruction are unwelcome because they tell us to rearrange things within ourselves or our society that we have no intention of rearranging. There's nothing more unwelcome than a savior when you're not ready to be saved.

The status quo is a fabric not easily unraveled. There are precedents, traditions, customs, written codes and unwritten rules. Some are still useful, and others are the petrified remains of something that was once useful. There are procedures, techniques, methods and standards, some still sound, some long outworn. There are arrangements that cannot easily be changed because to change them would alter the distribution of power and wealth. There are institutions that cannot be overhauled because their long existence has conferred on them a certain sanctity.

Renewal involves both continuity and change. The continuity of the generations and of traditions makes possible change that doesn't descend into chaos — or veer wildly in directions no one had foreseen.

Societies change in ways that are closer to organic growth than to mechanical restructuring.

A healthy society is one in which, at any given time, some things are being born, some things are flourishing in maturity and some things are dying. At the time of World War I, air and automobile travel were in their infancy, railroads were in their prime, and the horse-drawn buggy was headed for extinction.

Innovation, decay, renewal and death occur in parallel — affecting different parts within the system. So it is in the body of a living thing. At any given moment, some cells are dying, some are coming into being. So it is with plants in a garden. A vital society is one in which the forces making for disintegration and death are more than balanced by new life, growth and health.

It is often true that the only way to conserve is to innovate and change. And it is also true that the only stable society is the society in motion.

A former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, John Gardner is the Founding Chairman of Common Cause.

Wakefield, Pender Sweep 2nd Trojan Invitational

By BOB BARTLETT
Ernie Kovar isn't a man who uses a lot of clichés, but the old adage of "Let them speak for themselves," aptly applies to the performance of his girls team in repeating as winners in the second annual Wakefield Invitational.

Prior to the Thursday meeting at Wayne State's Memorial Stadium, Kovar listed Pender as the team to beat among the 15 entries in the girls division of the boy-girl invitational. He reasoned that in past years Pender has always produced strong teams, and this year was no exception.

Kovar, however, didn't boast about his girls squad which ran neck and neck with Pender throughout the day before the Trojanettes started cleaning up in the afternoon finals to take home the first-place trophy. A standout in the Wakefield pack was triple winner Robyn Mills who won the long jump, 100-yard dash and ran the winning leg on the 4X100 relay race.

Prather's 39 Guides Wayne To 2nd Place
A birdie and five pars lifted Wayne High golfer Si Prather to a nine-hole total of 39 to lead his team to second place in a home triangular Wednesday at the Wayne County Club. The Blue Devils shot a 192 for four golfers to finish behind Oakland-Craig with a 176 and ahead of third place Emerson-Hubbard with 209. Prather made his birdie on the par-four fourth hole, a distance of 313 yards. His score for nine holes landed him second place among individual golfers. On top was Oakland's Steve Peterson, a freshman who shot a 37.

Bob Bornhoff shot a 46. Dave Claussen had a 53 in his first time at varsity play and Jay Stoltenberg ended up with a 54. See PRATHER'S, page 5

Mills went 17.1 in the long jump—almost a foot and a half over her best performance—and edged out Laurel freshmen Paula Chase at the line for a 11.7 clocking in the 100. She had herself a fourth first-place medal until she was disqualified in the 200 for stepping on her boundary line four times. The limit is two.
The junior also established two meet records, and helped to set a new mark in the 400 relay. Two other marks which fell were in the mile run and the 80-yard low hurdles. Lori Erwin of Allen ran the mile in 5:40.4 and Cheryl Nelson of Wakefield ran 1:17 in the hurdles. Pender's second place in girls coupled with a first place in boys gave the Pendergones the overall team championship award with a combined total of 193 points. Emerson was second with 139½ followed by Wakefield at 101—the only clubs to score above 100 points. Pender only had three boys win their events; four placed for second-place for Oakland-Craig, which was powered by a pair of double winners, Roger Moderow in the 100 and 220, and Dan Enstrom in the 400 and 800.

NW Missouri Tags Wayne For a Pair

Wayne State's softball team lost a pair in their home opener Thursday when Northwest Missouri State women tagged the Wildkittens 12-3 and 13-9. The visiting Bearkittens enjoyed a seven-run second inning to gain their big margin in the opener, outhitting Wayne 10-6. Karen Doeschot took the loss before second-inning relief by Patty Lenihan. Lenihan finished that game and continued into the third inning of the second game when Doeschot returned to the mound during a four-run Northwest uprising. Another seven-run inning up the Bearkittens ahead, 13-2, in the top of the sixth. Then the Wildkittens went on a six-run spree in the bottom of that frame, cashing a series of hits and leaky Northwest defense. Fired up, the Wayne gals retired three straight batters in the seventh and set out to add another big inning. They scored once, but Northwest defense See MISSOURI, page 5

CLASS C Powerhouse Wakefield scooped up its share of individual and team first-place medals Thursday to win the girls division of its own invitational. Not to be forgotten is another triple-winner, Nelson, who also ran on the winning 4 x 200 relay, along with Murphy, Rouse and Mary Kobar, and won the 80-yard low hurdles. On the bottom, from left, are individual area winners, Lori Erwin of Allen in the mile, Paula Chase of Laurel in the 400 and Stacey Koester of Allen in the high jump.

A MIDLAND player scrambles back to first base just in time to foil a pick off play by Wildcat hurler Jim Auck in the first game of a twin bill at the Cats' diamond. Wayne broke a 4-4 deadlock in the first match to win 5-1. In the second contest, the host kept the momentum going with a 6-2 rout.

Pair of Wins Brighten Wildcats' Mark to 8-12

Two baseball victories over Midland Thursday brightened Wayne State spirits after the Wildcats took two whippings from the University of Nebraska Wednesday at Lincoln.

Net result is an 8-12 record as the Wildcats go against another Big 8 team today (Monday), Iowa State at Ames.

Coach Larry Schultz rates Nebraska much improved since last year when Wayne split two games against the Cornhuskers.

This time UNL beat the Wildcats, 6-1 and 13-2. In the opener, Wayne made a close game of it until the bottom of the sixth. With Roger Saul on the mound and defense effective, the Cats trailed by 2-1 until UNL, with two outs in the sixth, scored four times. Steve Russell relieved Saul, gave up a double, then retired the Huskers.

In the nightcap, Nebraska jumped on four Wayne hurlers for 14 hits, only two of them doubles. Wildcat defense went errorless against this onslaught, in contrast to the five first-game errors.

Starter Bill Schultz took the loss before relief in the fifth, Nebraska up 5-0.

Came Thursday and the Wildcats, playing at home, were ready for vengeance against somebody, and they pounced on Midland for four first-inning runs, sparked by a Steve Klein-smith triple, good for two RBI.

A fourth-inning two RBI triple by Don Hasenkamp spurred a five-run spree to finish the scoring. Jim Auck pitched the route, scattering eight hits.

Dewey Edgar also went the full game for a two-hit nightcap while Wayne bats connected a dozen times. Including Hasenkamp's second triple of the day. For the day he hit 4-6, to break a veking slump, uncommon for him. Designated hitter Bernie Minarik hit five times in eight trips.

Wayne Hangs on in 10-9 Thriller over Logan View

A game-saving throw out from center fielder Aaron Nissen to home plate and a run-scoring single by Steve Bodensedt Friday gave Wayne High a 10-9 win over a scrappy Hooper-Logan View team.

After Logan View's Kim Sommers scored on a run-scoring single by first baseman Von Segren to tie the score at nine apiece in the top of the sixth, Von Segren tried to make it home on a hit by Eric Wagne but fell short on a on-target throw by Nissen to retire the side.

Then Bodensedt put Wayne in front to stay with his third RBI of the afternoon on a single to score catcher Kevin Murray who tripled.

Bodensedt was instrumental in getting the Blue Devils off the ground in the seven-run second frame for a comfortable 9-3 lead.

The shortstop rapped a two-run triple off starting Hooper hurler Mike Braun. Earlier a pair of sacrifice hits by Jeff Zeiss and Nissen accounted for two runs. Tom Ginn, who later scored on a wild pitch, drove in one run on a single and Al Nissen added another via a two-bagger.

All was not safe for the Devils, however. Starting mound ace Dennis Carroll got into trouble at the start of the third by loading the bases on a pair of hits and a Wayne error before he walked first baseman Galen Heilshur to score the first of five Hooper runs in that frame.

With the score 9-4 and the bases still loaded, coach Mike Mallette called on first baseman Vic Sharpe to take over the pitching duties, but Sharpe too

Sharp's Solo Fires Up Wakefield in 9-8 Win

Wakefield got the last say Wednesday afternoon when it came to hitting home runs and posting a victory.

Playing in their first game of the season, the Trojans rallied with a four-run sixth inning, then held on in the final seventh to nip the home team, 9-8.

Leading the visitors was catcher Doug Starzl who opened the sixth with a solo home run down left field line which started Wakefield's go-ahead charge for a 6-7 score.

Bancroft had the first say when it came to getting round-trippers. The Bulldogs, who trailed 4-3 after four, jumped back into the lead with a three-run explosion in the fifth off the hot bat of John Tiedtz, who connected with a high curve ball and sent it sailing over the wall. "That was our only bad mistake," pointed out coach Joe Kline about relief pitcher Doug Starzl who was credited with the win.

Starzl came in the game in the bottom of the fifth with one away and threw two frames, giving up three runs, six walks and striking out three. Joni Kline finished mound duties in the half-rallying seventh when Bancroft had runners at second and third with one away.

Kline struck out his next batter and watched cleanup hitter Steve Plambeck bounce out to short for the save.

"I was really happy with the play of starting pitcher Brad Jones," Coble said. His control is a lot better than last year. "As we saw it, Bancroft was just hitting the good pitches." Tim Wagner went five frames for Bancroft before Terry Bergmann took over. Bergmann was credited with the loss.

Bancroft '9' Blasts Allen in 1st Frame

Wipe out that first inning and it would have been a whole new ball game, said a lamented coach Gary Trough after his Allen '9' Wednesday dropped a 9-0 season opener to host Bancroft.

The Bulldogs played havoc with Eagles' pitcher Todd Ellis, scoring all their runs in the opening frame of a three-run homer, triple, double and two Allen errors.

LaMont Pagels delivered the three-run blow with no outs to put Bancroft in front 3-0. A triple with two on upped the margin to 5-0 before a pair of Allen miscues in the outfield and a double accounted for the rest of Bancroft's scores.

"With the exception of the first inning, I was pleased with the play of our team," Trough said. Bancroft, page 10

HAVE YOU NOTICED...

YES NO

The color of your face matches your car when you have to keep cranking the ignition to get started on mild mornings?

The engine sounds like it has indigestion when idling?

Your car's exhaust is so dirty the neighborhood housewives give you the lynch-mob look as they hand up the laundry?

When you accelerate to pass, your car reacts like a three-legged turtle?

Your car is giving you less mileage and enjoying more gas?

You constantly find yourself the centre of attention because your car stalls frequently in traffic?

Our Service Manager has aged considerably since you last saw him?

If you circled yes to two or more of these questions, this is your car's subtle way of telling you... "I Need a Spring Tune-Up... Now!"

GRADE SCHOOL youngsters from Dixon peer into a make-shift incubator to see some new-born chicks being raised by other class members under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Bob Taylor and Mrs. Phyllis Dirks. Hatching the chicks is part of a 4-H embryology project students from three other Dixon County schools took on about three weeks ago. Schools at Ponca and Emerson also each got two dozen eggs to hatch over a 21-day period. During that time the youths learned to take care of the eggs by maintaining proper temperature and humidity. After the eggs are hatched, the chicks will be returned to the Kendall Knudsen farm near Maskell.

pointed out after he brought in relief pitcher Brent Chase in the second inning. Chase gave up only four hits in six innings while he fanned five Bulldog batters and walked one. "He did a fantastic job... makes me wish I would have started (the game) over again," the coach added.

Twice Allen had the bases loaded, but failed to produce any runs. With no one out in the top of the fourth, Brent Chase and Brad Chase were on first and second, respectively, and Kregg Rahn on third. A double play by Bancroft shattered Allen's scoring hopes when Kevin Hohenstein hit the ball to Bancroft's pitcher who fired the ball to home for the tag out. Kenny Hohenstein grounded out to end the frame.

In the top of the seventh, Allen again had the bases loaded, this time with two outs.

choice for a 9.8 count.

"After the second inning the game should have been over," Mallette pointed out. "Herman (Carroll) didn't do that bad (on the mound), he just didn't get any help from the rest of the team," the coach added.

Wayne committed four of its five errors in third and gave up one hit in what could have been a lot more trouble for the young squad.

Sharpe settled down after the third to play what Mallette called pretty good ball. Sharpe struck out eight Hooper players, including three straight in the fourth frame.

Wayne's hitting got off to a good start in the first game of the season. The Devils had 10 connections, including two each by Al Nissen, Bodenstedt and Carroll.

Another plus for the locals was their attempt and completions of six base thefts, while defensively, Wayne never allowed Hooper one theft.

Wednesday the Wayne club heads to Homer for a double-header.

Missionary Speaks

next couple of years, he advised. There will be a completely different approach to using water, he predicted.

HANSEN: The LENRD board member said the public should also "put the heat" on natural resources districts, but at the same time asked for citizen participation in NRD affairs.

Local control of water will work if resources districts receive support and input from residents, he said.

The Newman Grove farmer also introduced his concept of farmers as resource managers. Farmers in the past have done a good job on fulfilling that role, he said, but they must be given some economic flexibility if they are to continue.

If isn't fair to ask farmers to implement conservation practices if that will mean economic failure, Hansen said, and that is why he supports the concept of national conservation programs.

HALL: "Nebraska has come a long way from 100 years ago when it was called The Great American Desert," Hall said. "There is much to do now lest it become a desert" again.

Hall said Indian water rights will be an important consideration in regulating usage, adding that it will be up to the public to bring about acceptable water use regulations. Politicians want to be in front of the people, he said, but not very far in front. "If you want them to move, you have to push them."

At April Meeting

Missionary Mabel Sundell was guest speaker at the April meeting of the Central Social circle, held Tuesday at Jeff's Cafe. She was introduced by program leader Mrs. John Gathie.

Twelve members attended the meeting and responded to roll call with their most memorable Easter.

Mrs. Arlen Tietz will entertain the club May 3 at 1:30 p.m.

mixes will be allowed. Ingredients for the cake and icing can be pre-measured, but must be mixed at the bake-off. Cakes can be mixed by hand, or with an electric hand mixer.

Each baker furnishes his own utensils, equipment, ingredients and display plate.

Rise sized ornaments and decorations, which will be the basis for judging, may be made prior to the bake-off, but must be arranged at the gas company office.

He emphasized that the men will bake and decorate the cakes themselves and won't be able to get assistance from their wives, girlfriends or relatives.

Plaques will be awarded to the cake with the best March of Dimes theme and the cake with the cleverest occupation theme. A trophy will be given for the best over-all cake.

The cakes will be judged by Mrs. John Mohr and Ted Blendenman, both of Wayne.

Cakes will be sold Thursday evening, April 21, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at Peoples Natural Gas Co. donating their time for the auction will be auctioneers Stan Baier and Orville Lage, both of Wayne. Vel's Bakery is donating the cooling racks.

Rise said men who want to participate in the fund raiser, but are not contacted, can call him at the State National Bank, 375 13th. Men may also contact the coordinators of the event, he said.

producers, organizations, and Congress. If the check-off program is approved by producers, a Beef Development Taskforce will be established to set up rules and procedures to operate the program, subject to approval by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The referendum will be the responsibility of local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, although the Agricultural Marketing Service would handle most USDA responsibilities under the Act.

Producers eligible to vote are those who owned cattle during the designated 12-month period prior to the referendum. Beef producers must register at least 10 days prior to the referendum in order to vote. In order for the beef check-off to be approved, at least 50 per cent of the producers who register must vote and a two-thirds majority of those voting is required for approval.

Based on an expected beginning assessment rate of three one-hundredths of one per cent of the value of each animal slaughtered, nearly $0 million will be generated in the program's first year of operation. An estimated 1.8 to 2 million farms in the United States would be affected.

A Chicago investment firm, Merrill Lynch, Fenner, et al, recently attempted to purchase 50,000 acres of cropland because of its investment potential, Kreuscher said. National farm and commodity groups raised protest against the proposal and the company dropped the idea, but Kreuscher said the attempts points out the need for Nebraska to protect its natural resources. He questions whether the state would be protected by adequate legislation if other state attempt to buy tracts of land for water exportation.

vast tracts of land for the purpose of exporting water resources.

He painted a scenario of all-rich Texans buying property in Nebraska, then drilling wells and pumping millions of gallons of water to their home state via pipeline.

Texas is one of two states which outranks Nebraska in irrigation development and groundwater supplies in some areas of the state have been depleted. Texans have already started looking elsewhere for water and Kreuscher suggested the possibility of tapping Nebraska aquifers isn't all that incredible.

Efforts are underway at the national level to determine if it is feasible to divert water from rich areas such as Nebraska to deficient areas, such as Texas and the Southwest, said Dr. Wayne Hall, director of the University of Nebraska Council on Water Resources, one of the panelists at the water conference.

days in informal visits with students, will talk to classes, and accompany a busload of students to the Neihardt Center in Bancroft.

The Berkeley professor will also weave words from Neihardt's "Black Elk Speaks" and other Indian literature into a formal talk Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center. The public is invited to attend.

A graduate of Muskogee Central High School in Muskogee, Okla., Ms. Kidwell went on to receive her B.A. in letters from the University of Oklahoma, and an M.A. and Ph.D. in the history of science there also.

Professional experience began with a part time teaching position at a junior college in 1966. Since then she climbed the ladder to instructor of history in Missouri, coordinator of publications in Washington, social sciences chairman in Kansas, assistant professor in the American Indian Studies Department in Minnesota, to her present position at Berkeley.

Ms. Kidwell has received two fellowships and is a member of several committees and organizations from the American Civil Liberties Union Indian rights committee to the editorial board of "The Indian Historian."

Her publications have not only dealt with the Indian, but reflect her scientific and historical background, too. "The Indian Historian," "The Early History of the Compound Microscope" and "American Indian History: A Survey" are examples of her mental diversity.
