

Average Debt Is $2,200

To what extent have Wayne County residents been utilizing the installment credit available to them in their recent stepped-up spending for consumer goods?

How large is their debt load, relative to income, and how well are they managing it?

As in other parts of the country, there was an upturn in consumer spending in recent months, especially in December, causing the debt load to expand considerably.

From the standpoint of business, this was a good sign. It was a solid indicator of an economy that was on the rise. People were again in the marketplace for new cars, washing machines, furniture, refrigerators and other costly goods and services.

Because most of it was bought on credit, as usual, the increase in the debt load reflects the increase in consumer buying.

Nationally, according to figures from the Federal Reserve Board, consumer credit at the beginning of the year was at a three-year high, nearly $179 billion. It was 10 per cent more than a year earlier. Auto buying was the chief reason.

In Wayne County, based upon average earnings and spending locally and upon the national findings, the amount of installment debt outstanding is estimated at $2,200 per family.

In general, the debt load is equivalent to about one-seventh of disposable income.

That is the average. Some families have bigger obligations than that and some have much smaller ones. There is a small proportion that buys for cash.

Morse Fund Boosted $185

Two fund raising events in Winsde, sponsored by the KIDS youth group and the Winsde Community Club helped boost the Jay Morse heart fund by about $185 last weekend.

KIDS, which is a non-denominational youth group, held a car wash and bake sale all day. See MORSE, page 12.

March Rainfall Above Average

Rainfall in Northeast Nebraska was more than two inches above normal, according to the conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The weather station at Norfolk recorded 3.58 inches during the month, 2.21 inches above the average for the past 25 years. The station at Wakefield recorded 2.22 inches, 2.74 inches above average.

Average rainfall for the region overall was 3.6 inches, 2.12 inches above normal and 243 per cent of the region's average March rainfall.

Total amount for the region in the October-March period was 4.8 inches, 1.23 inches below normal, or about 80 per cent of the amount usually received.

It was a bit warmer during March in the region.

Wakefield recorded an average daily maximum of 52.3 degrees Fahrenheit and an average daily low of 30.4 degrees F. Average temperature for the month was 41.4 degrees, 7.7 degrees above normal. The high temperature recorded at Wakefield was 71 degrees; the low was nine degrees.

Herald Rewarded for Community Service

The Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben Saturday night presented an award for outstanding community service to Wayne Herald publisher Alan Cramer, during the 103rd annual Nebraska Press Association convention in Lincoln.

The Herald was cited for its support of the Wayne downtown improvement project, and for coverage and editorials regarding support of the Wayne County Historical Museum which opened in July.

In addition to providing continuing news coverage as the downtown improvement proposal developed, and editorial comment urging support, the

and has no installment debt at all.

As for the Wayne County population as a whole, the amount of such debt outstanding at the beginning of the year was approximately $6,058,000, it is estimated.

The largest part of it consisted of loans for car purchases. Most of the rest was for other consumer buying, for personal loans and loans for home repair and modernization. Mortgage loans, charge accounts and single payment loans are not included. They do not fall into this category.

Some 15 per cent of the average local family's after-tax income, or about $180 per month, is needed to meet the installments on its debts, it is calculated.

Motorcycle Taken

A motorcycle belonging to Jasopak was reported missing from his residence one mile south and one-half mile west of Winsde.

The 1965 Norton SS-500 bronze-colored motorcycle was taken from a building, sometime between April 11 and Monday, Sopak said.

The Wayne County sheriff's department also reported a one-car accident which occurred about 1:45 a.m. Monday. Richard Cary of Wayne was eastbound on a county road one mile north and about three-fourths of a mile west of Wayne when his car left the road and went into a ditch.

Cary was not injured in the mishap. The car sustained damages to the right side in excess of $250, according to the deputy's report.

An Allen High School senior is working this week with nine other Nebraska students on two energy projects in the office in Washington, D.C., of First District Representative Charles Thone.

Hearing Officer Told Courts Too Sluggish

The Nebraska court system moves too slowly at times, causing the taxpayers inconvenience and costing money, Madison attorney Phillip Trine was told during a meeting in Wayne Tuesday night.

Trine conducted the meeting as part of a study being done by the Nebraska Bar Association to find out what changes are needed in the judicial system. The Bar Association court study committee is holding similar meetings throughout the state.

The meeting in Wayne was sparsely attended with the handful of people including county commissioner Merlin Beierman and his wife, clerk of the district court Joan Ostrander and associate county judge Luverna Hilton and her husband.

Aside from those public officials, one Wayne woman attended the meeting to register a complaint that the court system moves too slowly.

It took four years to bring a suit for damages to court, she said. She received a judgment about one year ago but it was set aside and the waiting began anew. In the meantime, she is unable to settle her husband's estate with the outcome of the suit pending.

Beierman said from his vantage point as a county commissioner that delays in criminal cases are expensive to the taxpayers. In one case which she described as pretty much open and shut, the accused was kept in jail for 30 days before going to trial, then was released on probation. There was no reason for the person to be held that long, Beierman said, and the taxpayers shelled out $1,100 in costs for 24-hour surveillance while the convicted felon was free to return to California.

Beierman suggested that the court system be changed to allow county judges to hear less serious felonies and another suggestion was made that county and district courts be combined into the uniform court system. Now, all felony cases are filed in county court, then bound over to district court for trial.

Questions for uniform sentencing were also raised and the practice of allowing some people to "work out" their fines was criticized. Beierman said surveillance is again the problem. It costs the county $25 a day to keep an eye on those allowed to work in lieu of paying a fine, he said.

About 160 undergraduate and 15 graduate students will be candidates for degrees, Dr. Seymour said.

'Stater' Named All American

The Wayne Stater, weekly newspaper of Wayne State College, received an All-American rating for its fall term editions in 1976.

The rating is the highest given by Associated Collegiate Press (ACP), a Minnesota-based organization which judges hundreds of college newspapers each term.

Editors of the fall Stater are Laura Castleberry, a 1975 graduate of Hastings High School and daughter of Mrs. Barbara Castleberry; and Leon Jones, a 1972 graduate of Primm High School in Iowa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon B. Jones.

Stater advisor Dick Manley said the All-American rating requires what ACP calls marks of distinction in at least four of the five judging categories. The Stater earned distinction in coverage and content, writing and editing, editorial leadership and opinion features, and in physical appearance.

The ACP judge, summarizing his rating, commented, "The Wayne Stater is a fine newspaper. Content is, I am sure, stimulating for your readers."

Waterbury Students Headed for Allen?

Enrollment at Allen schools is expected to increase by from 19 to 35 students in grades kindergarten through eight this fall, according to school officials.

The students, who now attend classes in Waterbury, probably will make the move into Allen school district next fall if the school board accepts them.

The possible increase is due to the dissolution of the Waterbury district during a special school meeting last week. By a count of 34-11, voters in Waterbury agreed with the school board's decision to dissolve the district after board president Tim Beacom told a gathering of about 60 persons the reasons for dissolving the district are the current debt of $10,000 and increased operating costs.

Beacom explained that the increased costs would result in a hike of the present mill levy of 77.32 mills. The high mill levy, he went on, is partially due to land being transferred out of the district each year. It is believed that more land will be transferred out of the district in the coming year.

This transfer of land, coupled with increased operating costs and new state regulations for equipment would have forced the mill levy even higher, Beacom said.

Approximately 40 students will see WATERBURY, page 12

Club president Robert Jordan will preside over the meeting and introduce guests and address speaker, Dr. Max Lundstrom, vice president for administration at Wayne State College.

Presenting the students for the honors will be Wayne-Carroll High School principal Don Zeiss.

Tickets for the dinner will go on sale at the door for $4 per person.

Accreditation Team Surveys WSC

WSC president Dr. Lyle Seymour Monday said the team was scheduled to conclude its visit Wednesday, meeting with college officials. Each team member will summarize his findings.

The team will complete an evaluation report which will be returned to WSC for any substantive corrections. Dr. Seymour said. The team chairman will then compile a report which will be submitted to the NCASC council. Council and WSC officials will meet July 23-24 when the council will take action on the report, grading continued accreditation for the college.

WSC has been accredited by the association since 1917.

The college this year also received full accreditation from the National Council for Accred-

Thought for Today

By Brian McBride

"Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years; people grow old by deserting their ideals..."
Samuel Ullman

The Chinese revere their ancestors and respect the wisdom that comes with age but we tend to worship youth. No one wants to grow old and Ullman assures us that aging does not come automatically with the years.

Youth is characterized by ideals by dreams of things as they should be, attainable or not. No one grows old as long as they dream and plan for the future. Old age comes when we exchange our ideals for cynicism and apathy, whatever our age in years.

Tractor Pulls Sharing Spotlight With Pickup Meets

WITH ONE first and two third place trophies already under his belt, Fineran hopes to continue his string of success this summer during pickup pull meets in South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska. With the exception of Sunday's good weather, the 24-year-old Dennison, Ia. native hasn't been able to get in the practice time lately because of the needed rainfall over the past couple of weeks.

Move over tractor pull enthusiasts: make room for a new breed of pullers who are sweeping the interests of many Midwesterners.

The name of the sport is pickup pulls, a fast-growing hobby which is attracting a lot of pickup owners and drivers in the Nebraska and Iowa regions.

If you don't believe it's true, ask the man who knows, Wayne's own Kevin Fineran. He has the experience and the trophies to prove it.

The veteran of two years really got his collection of awards started Sunday with a season win and a couple of thirds during a meet at Sioux City. Piloting his 400-cubic inch Lincoln engine in his Ford truck down the 300-foot strip, the 26-year-old Dennison, Ia. native won the 7,000-pound class and came in third in the 5,000 and 4,000-pound divisions. Why is there such an interest in the relatively new sport? Almost everyone with a pickup, and a little time to modify it can get involved, Fineran pointed out.

The sport usually has a good-sized following because, in Fineran's words, the spectators can easily identify themselves with a person driving a pickup rather than a tractor.

"Everyone doesn't have $20,000 to invest into buying and modifying a tractor. Besides there's a lot more pickups on the road today," he quipped.

Rebuilding a pickup for pull contests isn't cheap. Fineran declined to say exactly how much it costs, except that the amount is "several thousands of dollars."

Helping to defray the big expense is Kevin's "secret" parner, his boss, Roy Hurd of Roy Hurd Ford-Mercury where Kevin is service manager.

Not all the work of rebuilding the pickup rests with Fineran. He has a lot of help from Roger Niemann and guys around the shop who once in a while chip in to work on the 1976 three-quarter ton red pickup.

Last year Kevin and his crew toured 31 pulls in Nebraska and Iowa, but only cashed in for $400 — hardly enough to start to pay for the pickup. This year he hopes to change things around, and so far it looks like he's off to a good start.

Kevin gives a lot of credit for his interest in the sport to hometown folks in Dennison who have been "bragging" that they are the top pickup pullers around. "Getting involved in pulling is mostly a lot of fun, but there is a lot of competition going on," Fineran noted. When he revs up his engine for the long trip down the strip, Kevin has only one thing on his mind — open up the engine. "Every track is different. Some have soft spots, but you just have to think about making it to the other end of the strip."

Some of the modifications on the four-wheel drive truck include replacing the drive shaft, U-joints and drive train with parts from Army trucks which can take the "framendous pressure" coming off the engine.

There are a number of area drivers from Emerson, Stanton and Norfolk who are showing a growing interest in the sport, Fineran pointed out. Even his wife, Diane, follows Kevin to some of the meets although she isn't too particularly happy about the name her husband has tagged onto his vehicle — "Diane's Distress."

Wildcats Capture Track Win

There was joy in Wayne State track camp Saturday. The Wildcats inaugurated their new all-weather track and won in a five-team field.

Now they have another opportunity for action today (Thursday) in the Wayne State Invitational, the first event starting at noon, with both men's and women's teams competing.

Sixteen men's team and eight women's have said they will compete.

Colleges entering both teams are Doane, Dordt, Westmar, Northwestern, South Dakota-Springfield and Wayne State.

Men's teams also are coming from Kearney State, Morningside, Dana, Hastings, Midland, Peru State, Buena Vista, Sioux Empire, Platte and Southeast Community College.

Concordia and UN-Omaha will send women's teams.

Men will compete in the usual 17 events. The women will have the same events, except that the longest run is 3,000 meters instead of 5,000 and they will not do the 400 intermediate hurdles, the pole vault and the triple jump. Their 100-meter hurdles will be low instead of the highs that men run.

Coch LeRoy Simpson said the meet will go, no matter what the weather.

The Wildcats won six of 17 events in Saturday's meet and picked up enough other places to post 83 points. Trailing in second was Midland with 62, followed by Morningside, 56; Peru State, 36; Dana, 15.

Chip Hagerman achieved a difficult double win for Wayne as he took the 1,500 and 5,000-meter runs. In fact, Wayne swept all the individual races from 400 up, with Don Rinehart winning the 400-meter dash and See WILDCATS, page 6

Back-to-Back Wins Boost Allen

A pair of tight wins over some tough competition this week may be the edge coach Gary Troth has been looking for to spark his Allen High Eagles into a baseball darkhorse in Northeast Nebraska high school ranks.

The Eagles Monday clipped a respectable Wakefield 9, 1-0, in a marathon game that stretched eight innings, then came back Tuesday to go seven frames before knocking off Homer, 6-5.

In both cases, the win wasn't decided until the bottom of the last frame when the hosts came up with the big runs to push their overall record to 3-2.

Against Homer, Allen relied on the shaky pitching of Homer's Dave Jenkins to top the visitors with two unearned runs via five walks. But against the Trojans, Allen had to earn their one-run victory with some timely hitting combined with two costly Wakefield miscues.

Mark Creamer got the Eagles going in the seventh by getting on first via an error when Wakefield relief pitcher Dean Sharp missed the pop fly and overthrew first. With one away Brad Chase smacked a ground rule double to left to put runners at second and third before Rayme Dowling hit a field's choice to second and allow Creamer to beat the throw to home for the win.

In the Homer tilt, the Knights scored two runs in the top of the third before Allen countered in their half to take a 3-2 lead. Back-to-back singles by Brent Chase and Dowling and a walk to Kevin Hohenstein loaded the sacks, then Todd Ellis, with two away, conflicted with a double to left to clear the bags.

Wins on the mound boosted Brent Chase's record to 2-0 while his brother, Brad is 1-1. In 18 innings, Brent has given up only two runs.

Troth also credited the fielding of left fielder Hohenstein for his defense which stopped many Wakefield's threats with runners in scoring position in the first, second, fourth and seventh frames.

"They (Wakefield) were hit. See ALLEN, page 6

Town Team Meeting Is Monday

The Wayne town team will hold an organizational meeting Monday night at 7:30 in Les' Steakhouse, 120 W. Second.

All players who have graduated from high school in and around Wayne are invited to attend the meeting. Wayne, which belongs to the eight-team Northeast Nebraska Baseball League, will open its season on Sunday, May 22.

Cat Golfers

Card Victory

Mark Schram and Steve Erwin tied as medalists Monday in leading Wayne State to a 9-3 golf win over Yankton College, played on the Wayne course.

With four-player teams, Wayne outscored Yankton, 314 to 334.

Schram, of Wayne, and Erwin, of O'Neill, carded identical 36-38-74 scores. Bill Scarborough, of Spencer, Ia., hit 39-61, 80, and Bob Vander Zee, of Sioux City, 42-44-86.

Yankton's entries scored this way: Ron Farris, 44-41-85; Rick Mogren, 39-38-77; Duane Sievers, 39-49-79; Terry Schmidt, 45-48-93.

Playing exhibition for Wayne were Kevin Cuveller, 44-41-85, and Bob Miller, 45-44-89. The Wildcats will meet Kearney State here Friday at 1 p.m., then go to Doane, at Crete, Saturday.

Wayne, Kearney Clash In Twinbill Saturday

Back from a 1-3 western swing, Wayne State's baseball Wildcats await what probably is the year's biggie, a doubleheader here with Kearney State Saturday afternoon at 2.

Kearney represents Wayne's major Nebraska foe at this point because NAIA district playoff chances likely will rest on the outcome Saturday. In the past two years Wayne has beaten Kearney in regular season games to win the Nebraska College Conference. But both years Kearney beat Wayne in district playoffs — which is what the season is all about.

Sunday the Wildcats will shift conferences to host Missouri Southern of the Central States loop, first game at 1 o'clock. Wayne also was scheduled for a Wednesday doubleheader this week at Yankton, conditions permitting.

"Conditions" have been a persistent plague for the Wildcats. Because of rain or wet field at See TWINBILL, page 5 home, they have had three twin bills canceled, and another pair, with UN-Omaha, finally had to be played in Omaha. They have practiced outdoors only three days.

Results: the Cats have played 25 of their 29 games on the road and now are frustrated with a 9-20 record.

The past weekend, rain delayed a doubleheader with NCC foe Chadron from Saturday to Monday. Wayne did play the University of Northern Colorado on schedule Sunday and came out with two losses, 10-2 and 10-4.

At Chadron it was a split, Wayne winning the first, 8-6 in eight innings, losing the second, 1-0. The win broke a string of seven losses.

At Greeley, the Wildcats "played well against a fine team," coach Larry Schultz said. It was simply a case of being outmanned by superior talent, he added. The Bears rattled 25 hits in the two games, 14 in the first, and harassed the Wildcats with tricky base running.

Schultz, who earned bachelors and doctors degrees and served as an assistant coach at Northern Colorado, noted that the Bears have been to the College World Series more times than any team except Southern California. The UNC coach owns the best winning record of any U.S. mentor currently in the game, Schultz said.

At Chadron, Wayne gained a 6-6 tie in the top of the first game sixth inning. Then in the top of the eighth, a single by Don Hasenkamp and successive doubles by Mike Soderberg and Brian Polberg, produced the winning runs. Relief pitcher Neil Blohm held the Eagles hitless and runless in the bottom of the eighth to claim the win.

In the nightcap, Chadron's leadoff batter reached first on an error, then scored on a single another error and a sacrifice hit — the game's only run. Chadron spaced out five Wayne hits to preserve the win.

Rain Halts Bears' Bid For 1st Win

Rain in the top of the seventh inning Monday dampened Laurel's bid for its first win of the season as host Bancroft pulled out a 6-4 squeaker.

The Bears had runners on second and third with no one out when rain forced both coaches to end their contest, leaving Laurel with an 0-1 record.

Doug Thompson started on the mound for Laurel and Gordie Kardell later took over, but neither could stop the Bulldogs' potent bats.

Bancroft blasted four runs across the plate in the bottom of the third for a 4-2 command. Al Pagels led Bancroft with a two-run triple right after teammates Butler and Bargmann each connected for a base hit.

Laurel took a 2-0 lead after three on Thompson's run-scoring double in the first to drive home Ron Gadeken, who also doubled. In the top of the third, second baseman Cleve Stolpe singled, advanced to third on a two-base error and came home on Gadeken's sacrifice fly.

The Bears chalked up two more runs in the top of the sixth on a bases-loaded double by catcher Shannon Hopkins with no one out. Bancroft's pitcher Tim Wegner shut off Laurel's chances to score any more runs.

Weather permitting the Bears were scheduled Thursday afternoon to play Allen at Laurel.

Allen Gunners Take Aim at State Shoot

ALLEN'S five-man trap team captured first place Saturday at the Norfolk Gun Club high school shoot. Next meet for the quint is state Friday and Saturday at Doniphan. Aiming their sights for that win are, clockwise from center, Todd Ellis, Mark Hanson, Denny Uhl, Stan McAfee and Brad Chase.

Residents in and around Allen usually can tell when the state high school trap meet is close at hand. There's plenty of "noise" in the air and a lot of anticipation that the high school has another good shot at bringing home state awards.

If the school's performance at last Saturday's Norfolk Gun Club high school shoot is any indication of how well the Eagles might perform at the state meet in Doniphan, then it's almost a sure bet that Allen will bring home some type of trophy.

Allen came home with five awards, including four individual trophies and the overall team award from the five-team meet at Norfolk.

The first-string team of Brad Chase, Stan McAfee, Todd Ellis, Mark Hanson and Denny Uhl recorded the score of 420x500, seven shots better than second-place Madison with a total of 413.

Leading coach Cliff Jorgensen's gunners individually were class winners Hanson in C with a score of 86x100, Kevin Hohenstein in D with 77 and Peg Taylor who captured the girls division and placed fifth overall in C with a 65. Earning a second-place trophy was Uhl with an 85.

Also shooting for Allen and their scores: McAfee 87, Kenny Hohenstein 74, Ellis 73, Keith Brentlinger 56, Gary Karlberg 48 and Grace Luschen 44.

Unlike past years, Allen won't be able to defend its girls title with only three girls making up a five-girl team. As a result, Jorgensen is relying on individual shooters to come through in the heated competition for state honors.

CHIP HAGERMAN jubilantly breaks the tape for the 1,500-meter win in the WS meet. Later he won the 5,000. foot.

WH Cindermen Finish Sixth

Wayne High cindermen placed sixth place out of a field of 16 teams Tuesday at the Randolph Invitational. Totaling 19 points, Wayne had five finishers among the top six event placings. Individually, Brad Emry was fourth in the triple jump at 42.8 and fifth in the long jump with a mark of 19.5. Jerry Lessmann grabbed fifth in the 100-yard low hurdles with a time of 22.2. The foursome of Brian Haun, Kelly Hansen, Emry, and Lessmann placed third in the 400 relay at 47.2 and fourth in the 800, 1:37.8. The two-mile team of Hansen, Dave Hamm, Jon Ley and Jeff Backstrom was sixth with a time of 9:03.8. Columbus Soosik ran away with the meet, scoring 112 points.

Wildcats

Andy Myrtle, the 800 run, Wayne took the first three places in the 400 as Cliff Switzer and Tim Cumber followed Rinehart. Also winning for Wayne were Kevin Peterson with a 14.0 pole vault and Jerry Kruger with a 6-4 high jump. Peterson came close to clearing 14.6, which would have eclipsed his own recent WS record 14.3. The fact that Wayne's renovated track is 400 meters meant the beginning of a new era in metric records here. Times no doubt seemed strange, especially to visiting runners because Wayne's track is the only metric Nebraska or several states around.

Distances in two events — long jump and triple jump — seemed even stranger. Clerks measured these jump in meters, the winners logging 6.88 and 13.60 meters, respectively. Weathers cooperated in Wayne's first home meet since 1969. It was delightful — about 75 degrees, partly cloudy, little wind. Had there been rain, the meet could have proceeded on the asphalt running and jumping surfaces.

Awards Presented

Thirteen high school students, winners of the John G. Neihardt Creative Writing Contest, were honored at a banquet Saturday during a Creative Writing Workshop held in their honor at Wayne State College.

The students, who submitted samples of their creative writing in January and February, were judged by area high school teachers and upper division Wayne State English students.

Marie Supper of St. Francis High in Humphrey won first place in the contest receiving a $150 scholarship to study at Wayne State College. Sr. Colette is her instructor.

Receiving $100 scholarships for second place in the Creative Writing Contest were Sue Backes of Lindsay and Tamara Hult of Blair.

The largest number of third place winners came from Pierce High School with the student under the instruction of Diane Volk and Alaska Reed. These students, who received book awards, were Lisa Amundson, Barb Christensen, Lane Handke, John Norris, and Mike Ronspie, all of Pierce.

Other third place winners included Betty Herman of West Point.

Karla Hohense of Blair and Lynette Nelson of Newman Grove, also earned third places. Others on the third place list were Kris Saafeld of Columbus, and Marjorie Scheuneman of Schuyler.

About 45 people attended the banquet Saturday preceded by the workshop for students and a Creative Writing Seminar for teachers. Students were first videotaped on the campus television station WSC at the beginning of the workshop.

Other activities included viewing a performance of the improvisational theatre group at Wayne State and touring the John G. Neihardt Center in Bancroft.

In the seminar for instructors, developments in teaching imaginative writing were discussed along with the definition of imaginative writing and creative writing classroom activities.

Funeral services were to be held today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. at the Peace Church of Christ, rural Hoskins, with the Rev. Galen E. Hahn officiating. The body was to lie in state at the Wiltsie Mortuary, Winside, until time of service. Burial was to be in the Pleasant View Cemetery, Winside.

Ida Bronzynski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Niemann, was born at Winside on Feb. 17, 1892. She married August Bronzynski on Dec. 29, 1915, at the Theophilus Church, rural Winside. The couple farmed near Winside until 1968. They moved to Hoskins in December 1974. Bronzynski celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary in December 1975.

Survivors include two sons, Alfred of Hoskins and Clarence of Winside; two brothers, Ed and Florenz, both of Wayne; nine grandchildren and five great grandchildren. She is preceded in death by her husband in 1976, her parents, three sons and one brother.

Robert (Bus) Good Jr.

Funeral services were conducted at the United Methodist Church in Allen Wednesday morning for a lifetime resident of the Allen community, Robert (Bus) Good Jr., age 66. The Rev. K. Waylen Brown officiated at the funeral, and pallbearers were Bob McCord, Vernon Ellis, Clarence Jeffrey, Maynard Hansen, Ray Brownell and Dale Furness. Burial was in the Eastview Cemetery at Allen.

Good, who was born Sept. 27, 1910, at Allen, died Sunday at his home. He was the son of Robert P. and Hattie Warner Good.

He married Violet Bader on June 22, 1934, at Sioux City. He lived in Allen his entire lifetime, operating Good's Garage until his retirement, and had the International Harvester dealership. He was affiliated with the Allen Methodist Church, was a member of the Masonic Lodge No. 236-AF-AM and served for many years on the village board and fire department.

He is survived by his widow, Violet; two sons, Larry of Sioux Falls, S.D. and Robert III of Torrance, Calif.; his mother, Mrs. Hattie Good of Gladstone, Ore.; two sisters, Mrs. William LeVeve Perrin of Lake Oswego, Ore. and Mrs. Gilbert (Kathryn) Brodgen of Gladstone, Ore.; and two granddaughters.

Alice Ivarsen

A former resident of Wayne, Mrs. Alice Ivarsen, died April 3 at the age of 67 years. Funeral services were held April 6 at the Romsdal Lutheran Church in South Dakota, with burial in the Romsdal Cemetery.

Mrs. Ivarsen was born April 20, 1909, at Beresford, S.D., the daughter of John and Martha Farstvedt Thompson. She received her education in schools in the Beresford, S.D. area and on Sept. 24, 1929 was married to Clarence Dullerud at Beresford.

The couple made their home at Wayne until his death in May 1932. She re-married to Beresford and on June 9, 1937 married Magnus Ivarsen. They farmed near Beresford. Following her husband's death in 1961, Mrs. Ivarsen continued to make her home on the farm.

She was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran Faith and was a lifetime member of Romsdal Lutheran Church where she was active in Ladies Aid.

She is survived by four sons, Roger Dullerud of Sioux Falls, Marvin Ivarsen and John Ivarsen, both of Beresford, and Glenn Maurice Ivarsen of Sioux City; two daughters, Mrs. Lauren (Lila) Rhude of Tucson, Ariz. and Mrs. John (Irene) Rezac of Sioux Falls; her mother, Mrs. Martha Thompson, and her brother, Herman Thompson, both of Beresford; and 13 grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her father, one brother and one grandson.

Faculty Art Reveals Variety of Moods

From a kicky, laughable aluminum chicken to a simple, soothing line drawing, the creations in the newest Wayne State College art show represent such a variety of moods that just about everyone should be interested.

The show, by WSC art faculty members, includes pottery, drawings, and paintings by Marlene Mueller; sculpture and drawings by Pearl Hansen; and paintings and drawings by Richard Lesh; and sculpture by Ray Replogle.

The artists will display their work in the Nordstrand Visual Arts Gallery until Friday. Each portraying a distinct, individual style, the artists all show excellent craftsmanship in their specialized fields in art.

Carefully placed lines express a great deal in drawings and paintings by Lesh. Well-balanced composition in drawings such as "Utica" and his mixed media painting "Montana IV" creates a calming and spacious effect.

Metal scrapings and springs embedded in "Montana IV" bring vitality and mechanistic quality into the painting, but the sketchy, textured line gives a more humanistic, natural and artistic feeling.

Simple lines can also come together to force a static feeling as Lesh illustrates in his painting "Lodgegrass." As the title implies, metal scrapings lodged between heavy lines produce a feeling of tension and uneasiness.

Another unutilized sculpture topped with a peacock head, grapes and golden forms has enough delicacy and simple charm to be pleasing to the eye. Rather than gaudy, the piece is magnetic, subdued gold tones drawing in the viewer.

Intricacy, intensity, and craftsmanship are apparent in drawings and paintings by Marlene Mueller. Painstaking detail is carried on in her dot-filled painting "Sonnambullistic Sky Scape," while her drawings are rendered to near perfection.

Two of her drawings "The Prophecy" and "Into the World Came..." suggest underlying meaning, both mysterious and questioning the future and the past.

Ms. Mueller's examples of raku pottery are full of shimmering greens and rusty reds with a loud but pleasing soft sheen. A pushed-in-pushed-out appearance of her stoneware reflects a desired handmade look, while her porcelain pieces seem polite, pretty and delicate.

The use of soft images, interesting subject material, and defined composition make her group of photos interesting. Plus rural settings should be of interest, especially to Nebraskans.

Earth's products are only highlighted by Ray Replogle when he emphasizes wood's artistic grain, nature-produced cracks, and when he turns lusterless metal into a brilliant, shining form.

His artwork can appear nature-like and soft, but can also seem plastic and strong such as in a bronze, polyester and an unutilized resin piece.

mentioned the following schools were represented in the Business Competition Day: Allen, Dodge, Howells, Laurel, Newcastle, Norfolk, North Bend Central, Oakland-Craig, Osmond, Plainview, Schuyler, South Sioux City and Wausa.

Language Survey Distributed

A questionnaire testing foreign language awareness of Northeast Nebraska people is currently under distribution in Norfolk as the first phase of a program initiated by the Center for the Development of the Humanities of Wayne State College.

The questionnaire, evaluating citizen awareness of foreign language and cultures, extent of foreign language instruction, and awareness of personal ethnic backgrounds ("roots"), is being generally distributed in Norfolk's two high schools, Northeast Community Technical College, and shopping centers in Norfolk.

Dr. Robert Zahniser, foreign language professor at Wayne assisting in the survey, said the Norfolk survey is the "pilot for the total program" intended to plan a regional study program of foreign languages.

Funded by a grant from the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities, the project entails four surveys within the Northeast Nebraska region, four area workshops in different quarters of the region, and a weekend seminar at Wayne State College.

The Norfolk survey marks the first of the four projected surveys and will be followed up with a workshop scheduled for April 30 in Norfolk. According to Zahniser, "laymen, educators, and interested citizens" should be in attendance at the workshop, discussing the outcome of the Norfolk survey.

James Becker, chairman of the foreign language department of the Malcolm Price Laboratory School at the University of Northern Iowa in Cedar Falls, will serve as foreign language consultant at the meeting.

Becker has developed several community foreign language programs in Iowa. He met with members of the WSC foreign language department and foreign language consultant Lorraine Strasheim in February to begin implementation of the program.

Miss Strasheim is the coordinator of school foreign languages at Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind., and the president of the American Teachers of French Association.

Other surveys have been proposed for fall dates, according to Zahniser, with South Sioux City earmarked as one location for the questionnaire. Other locations have not yet been determined.

The WSC Center for the Development of the Humanities received the $6,000 grant from the Nebraska Committee last fall. The following counties are targets for the proposal: Madison, Wayne, Dixon, Thurston, Burl, Cuming, Stanton, Pierce, Antelope, Knox, Cedar and Dixon.

Almost every day we hear words like this. Our energy supply isn't going to last, we must learn to conserve our precious energy, use less natural gas, use less electricity and gasoline. If everyone cuts back just a little all over the United States it would make a high savings on our energy supply.

The following merchants and businesses want to do their part by shortening our store or office hours. Just 30 minutes five days a week will make quite a difference, if lots of businesses will take part, maybe we can start a trend.

Tax commissioner keeping close watch on returns

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN— Nebraska lawmakers, back at their desks after a five-day spring break, will have to make a lot of big decisions during the remaining weeks of the session.

The first round of extended debate on state aid to schools, capital punishment and the criminal code was expected to end just a day or two before the budget bills come before the legislators.

Speaker Roland Luedtke of Lincoln says he's generally pleased with the progress made during the first 40 days of the 90-day session, although he admits there have been occasional frustrations.

More than half of the more than 500 bills introduced have been killed, passed or withdrawn. Nearly 100 other measures are being held in committee. Many bills awaiting action on the legislative floor will be held over until next year. Knowledge that measures can be laid over until the following session takes some of the pressure off the lawmakers during a 90-day meeting, Luedtke said.

One of the frustrations of the speaker has been the lengthy discussion without final decisions on a number of bills, including the soda pop, anti-litter and food tax credit proposals.

State's Economy

State tax commissioner William Peters has kept a closer than normal watch on the Revenue Department's mail in recent days.

He has been interested in learning whether the envelopes contain checks, instead of state income tax refund requests.

The state's receipts this fiscal year have been running about $30 million below projections, and the administration was hoping the final rush to beat the income tax filing deadline would help make up some of that deficit.

Peters said it might take until Arbor Day before he has enough figures to estimate with some degree of assurance whether sufficient money came in to meet the state's cash flow needs through the fiscal year which will end June 30.

The figures will also be important to the legislature during appropriations considerations for next fiscal year.

Because the income tax rate rose retroactively last year, the expectation was that more Nebraskans than usual owed money to the state when income tax returns were filed.

Governor's Pledge

Gov. J.J. Exon has pledged an investigation into what the Washington bureaucracy may have overlooked when it turned down a Nebraska request for federal aid.

Prompting the governor's promise was the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration's rejection of the state's application for financial help after a snow and ice storm caused an estimated $5 million in damages in western Nebraska.

The federal agency said the Rural Electrification Administration may provide loan assistance to the rural electric cooperatives and publicly owned utilities, "except for the Nebraska Public Power District which can obtain other funding at rates comparable to REA loans."

One observation of the agency was that each of the rural electric cooperatives has substantial working capital. It also suggested the costs of the restorative work could be passed on to consumers through rates increases.

Exon said the monetary reserves consist of funds committed for various projects and are not cash available to meet emergencies.

The governor said he suspects all of the facts were not given proper consideration and that he plans to consult with several of the smaller REAs that were particularly hard hit.

Lawsuit Filed

Former Gov. Robert Crosby has filed a lawsuit in district court at Lincoln aimed at proving Nebraskans did not delete from the constitution a provision authorizing the state to receive federal funds to aid sectarian schools.

Crosby believes that provision was not disturbed last November when voters approved one part of a constitutional amendment and turned down the other part.

Acting as counsel for the Nebraska Catholic Conference, the former governor said he disagrees with the attorney for the Nebraska School Boards Association, Kelley Baker, who claims supporters of the first part of the amendment "got more — or less — than they bargained for."

In an article in the association's magazine, Baker said that while backers of the first part of the amendment were changing the constitution they "eliminated the state's constitutional authority to receive federal flow-through funds (to aid sectarian schools) and distribute them according to terms of the federal grants."

Everything would have worked out, according to Baker, if both parts of the amendment had passed because the section dealing with flow-through money was deleted from the constitution in the first part of the amendment and reinstated in the second.

The problem was that the second part of the proposal did not receive voter approval.

Crosby doesn't agree with Baker's view, arguing that the language Baker says is now out of the constitution "should still be there because voters rejected the second part of the amendment." That is the "point of the lawsuit," he said.

There was nothing on the ballot to indicate the language Baker claimed was deleted would be struck out of the constitution, Crosby said, "I don't see how anyone could read that ballot and say voters intended to drop that language," he said.

Attorney General Paul Douglas and Crosby agreed that the matter will have to be resolved in the courts. Douglas, describing the question as "very difficult," said he welcomes a lawsuit to clarify the matter.

Crosby said the flow-through provision has not been used since its adoption in 1972. So far, he said, no one has needed it "but we think we may have to use it some time."

Expert Witnesses

Two Nebraskans went to Alaska recently to testify before a joint legislative committee about the merits of the Unicameral system. Making the trip were Dr. Robert Sittig, a University of Nebraska political scientist, and Dr. Jack Rodgers, director of research for the legislature.

Both said Alaska could change to a Unicameral although much difficulty because it has a harmonized system of government and would have to make relatively minor structural changes.

In an election last year, a slight majority of Alaskans supported a proposal for a one-hour legislature.

Nebraska is the only state with a Unicameral.

No need to rush water legislation

Nebraskans have no reason to be complacent about the need for conservation of their surface and groundwater resources, but there is no need to panic and rush through highly restrictive, spur-of-the-moment legislation as some sources have been advising.

Exceptions might be made relative to riparian water rights and protection of stream flows, but as a general rule, the condition of the state's water resources is such that remedial legislation can await the promised introduction of a comprehensive water legislation bill by the Nebraska Legislature's Public Works Committee in the 1978 session.

A comprehensive report entitled, "Groundwater Levels in Nebraska, 1975," has recently been published by the U.S. Geological Survey and the Conservation and Survey Division of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources of the University of Nebraska. The report is commended to every person interested in the water situation in this state.

The report, based on years of continuing study and monitoring, provides an analysis of the groundwater levels in all parts of the state and pinpoints the trouble areas where there is need for immediate concern. Consider that there are an estimated two billion acre feet of water in Nebraska's underground storage system and that an estimated five million acre feet of water was pumped out for irrigation in 1975. Consider too that 1974-1975-1976 were years of extreme drought posing unusual demand for irrigation water, and one can more easily comprehend that there is no need to halt all irrigation development as some have proposed.

The bad news in the report is that the average water-level change between the fall of 1974 and the fall of 1975 was downward in 82 of Nebraska's 93 counties. In most counties where declines occurred, the average change was less than one foot; in only 10 counties was it more than one foot. The greatest declines occurred in Box, Bute and Chase counties where the average water level change was a little more than two feet.

The report states that the large-scale use of groundwater for irrigation has caused significant declines in water-levels in the Big Blue River Basin, Platte River Valley, Mica Valley (Valley County), O'Neill area, Imperial area and Alliance areas. Natural Resources Districts have authority to be monitoring the situation and recommending conservation and control measures in such areas.

The information contained in the report is not something brand new. It is just that it is getting much more attention and concern now. The U.S. Geological Survey and Conservation and Survey Division inaugurated a state-wide water-level measurement program in 1930. Water-level data from over 3,400 observation wells (representing more than 14,000 water-level measurement sites) are collected in 1975 for comparison with previous annual collected statistics. Those observation wells are located in all areas of the state.

There are areas where there is extremely slow recharge and these are the ones where the future of extensive groundwater use is definitely limited and critical. There are others where one good above-normal year of precipitation provides immediate restoration, and according to the statistics, may provide an increase in the water-level. In others, such as the Tri-County area, the water-level has risen above pre-development levels, thanks to the artificial recharge from surface water brought in through the Tri-County canal system.

The ideal situation for the future is to continue irrigation development in those areas where water levels can be maintained over an indefinite period, and to restrict development where underground sources are definitely limited as to supply and recharge capability. — M.M. Van Kirk, Farm Bureau Federation.

Labor shot at Carter uncalled for Early this month the leaders of the AFL-CIO fired a shot across President Carter's bow, charging him with being pro-business. What's really getting to them, however, is that the President is not pro-union enough to suit them.

Take, for example, the "vise" that triggered the labor explosion: The President's decision not to seek mandatory import quotas for low-cost foreign shoes. Both labor and management in the U.S. shoe industry wanted protection from foreign competition. How, then, can the President's action in this case be described as pro-business? Actually, it was pro-consumer.

On the other major economic issues to date the President has shown a commendable sense of balance. His proposals to stimulate the economy call for more deficit spending than business would like to see, and less than organized labor wants. His $2.50 minimum wage recommendation is higher than business thinks wise and lower than labor thinks needed. His "hands off" attitude toward the common site picketing bill permitted each side to present its best case to the House, which then settled the matter on its merits. And so on.

As you can see from the above, we certainly don't agree with all of Mr. Carter's policies, any more than the AFL-CIO does. But I do want to give the man credit for trying. He seems gradually to be focusing on inflation as the number one problem. That's good news, because inflation is equally the enemy of business and labor, consumer and wage earner, Republican and Democrat, conservative and liberal, rich and poor.

Fears of inflation — and uncertainty about government tax and regulatory policies — have inhibited business investment in new plant and equipment. It is from such investment that we get both new jobs and gains in productivity. And it is from improved productivity that we get unflationary increases in our standard of living. Fighting inflation deserves a top priority because everything else depends on the success of that effort.

OBSERVATIONS

We will help, but . . .

Floyd Kalber, newscaster for NBC's Today Show, Saturday at the 103rd Nebraska Press Association convention, appealed to newspaper editors and publishers to support their brethren electronic newsmen in securing editorial freedom.

Kalber pointed out that the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), through its power of licensure, has been able to impose restrictions on broadcast news, while the print media enjoy much broader protection under the First Amendment.

He is right, of course. Radio and television stations must renew their licenses every three years and the threat of loss certainly must have a chilling effect.

We do believe radio and television stations and networks should have the same freedom of the "press" enjoyed by the print media. We always have, despite the impression readers may have gotten from an editorial which previously has appeared in this column.

We said at that time that the FCC is necessary to the broadcasting industry and that regulations can at times benefit stations.

We were referring to technical controls such as frequency assignments, limits on the number of licenses issued, and authorized power and hours of operation. Those types of controls, we believe, are necessary because of the technical nature of broadcasting. Without those types of controls, there would be too much chance for interference, for example, with nearby stations operating on the same frequency.

We also believe that the limited number of licenses can be an economic advantage to stations. Consider, for example, the number of radio stations in Northeast Nebraska compared to the number of newspapers.

However, we have never supported the idea of FCC editorial content controls such as the equal time doctrine.

We believe broadcast journalists should enjoy the same freedoms that we in the newspaper business operate under. And we're flattered that a TV newsmen of Kalber's stature has asked for our industry's assistance in securing those freedoms. We think most newspaper men are certainly willing to help. But Kalber's address raises a couple of questions.

First, if the situation were reversed, would the broadcasting industry come to our assistance? Second, why haven't broadcasters done more to ensure their own editorial freedom?

Because, frankly, we believe it is a problem the broadcasting industry could solve. Not local, independent stations, perhaps. But the three major broadcast networks represent a tremendous concentration of power.

Kalber said many "fair press" restrictions have been imposed by the FCC because of pressure from minority groups seeking free air time. What would happen, we wonder, if the top executives of the three networks finally got fed up with FCC restrictions on editorial content, and decided to do something about it. They could, for example, agree to contribute to a programming until restrictions are lifted.

The pressure which has been exerted in the past by minority groups would be nothing compared to the outcry which would arise from the American masses deprived of their daily dose of soap operas, game shows and cops-and-robbers mayhem.

The idea, admittedly, is an extreme one. As we said before, it is a complex problem. But it does serve to illustrate that the networks have tremendous powers to fight FCC editorial controls if they are willing to risk some lumps along the way.

Why haven't they done so? Money, for one thing. Curtailing programming would represent a tremendous loss of advertising revenue. But, what price, freedom?

Another answer is that newspapers are primarily a news medium, while broadcast casting is primarily an entertainment medium. Upper echelon newspaper officials are newsmen, while top network officials are corporate executives.

Look at it this way. Take away the news function, and newspapers cease to exist. Take away the news function from the broadcasting industry, and a profitable entertainment medium remains. As we said before, it is flatter that broadcast newsmen turn to print newsmen for support in their fight for editorial freedom. They are probably more closely allied with us, in that respect, than with network officials to whom news is only one function of their industry. We're willing to do our part because we believe the First Amendment freedom of the press includes electronic journalism. But we do think the broadcast industry (and it should be emphasized that we are talking about the major networks acting in concert, not independent stations acting individually) probably has sufficient power to secure its rights, if it is willing to fight for them. — Jim Strayer.

Call it blackmail?

Dear Editor: What do you call it when the Omaha Indian Tribal Council comes into the Walthill Bank — and gives the banker one week to see to it that the business people order the Walthill Citizen Newspaper not to print anything critical about the Indians or they will be boycotted with Tribal Police cars purchased with your tax dollars?

I call it blackmail. Do we have freedom of the press or don't we?

How can the federal government allow such discrimination against the non-Indians by Indians with our tax dollars when no one else can get by with it?

Why do non-Indians have to be afraid to speak out in Thurston County against reservations becoming sovereign nations? Surely we have some rights too, if hope. — A Concerned Citizen.

Corn Grade Changes Proposed

Proposed changes in corn grading standards by the United States Department of Agriculture may be affected by research being conducted by the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

There are five grading areas in USDA corn grading standards: test weight, moisture content, broken corn and foreign matter, total damage and heat damage. The proposed changes would affect the standard of broken corn and foreign matter.

According to Dr. Dean Linsenmeyer, assistant professor of agricultural economics at UNL, present corn grading standards may be outdated. "The USDA will hold off on making a decision for changes (in corn grading) until fall, so we're trying to get all of our data together before that time," he said.

Linsenmeyer said, that although the history of corn grading standards is a long one, the standards themselves have remained relatively constant.

"The Chicago Board of Trade set standards during the turn of the century, however, most of the corn sold at that time was destined for food processing. Now about 75 per cent of the corn going through the market is used in animal feeds," Linsenmeyer explained.

He noted test weight and moisture content "doesn't make much difference in animal feed over the range of the current production patterns. There is little correlation in nutritional value and pounds per bushel, under current standards, in studies conducted on poultry and pigs, yet farmers are still being discounted when they sell," he said.

Other standards should differ in application today when corn is used for animal feed, rather than food processing, Linsenmeyer said.

Charms 'N Farmers
The Charms 'N Farmers 4-H Club met the evening of April 11 in the Dennis Greunke home. Six answered roll call by naming a favorite flower.

The group recited the pledge. New members are Angela, Debbie and Christie Thies.

A discussion was held on old and new business, and on a speech contest. The group worked on project booklets. A cooperative lunch was served. The next meeting will be April 25 at 8 p.m. in the Joe Mundil home, with roll call to be the name of a favorite horse.

Kim Schlueter, news reporter.

Spring Branch

The Spring Branch 4-H Club met the evening of April 4 at the Hoskins Public School with 20 members and their leaders attending. Stanley Walde was a guest.

Shirley Kleensang presided and opened the meeting with the 4-H pledge and the flag salute. A discussion was held on the Nebraska Holstein Show to be held in Wayne on May 11.

The club plans to purchase trees and benches for the town and will meet with the town board for further discussion. Refreshments were served by Dianne and Russel Puls.

The next meeting will be at the Public School on May 2. Karen Wittler, news reporter.

"There is evidence that higher levels of heat may yield better digestive qualities in corn. Also, there is no distinction made between cracked kernels and dirt or rocks, under present standards. Cracked kernels don't hurt the quality of livestock feed. The Iowa Development Council has found that some foreign matter, such as soybeans, which are collected in the foreign matter screen may have a higher nutritional content than the corn itself," he said.

With respect to such evidence, Linsenmeyer said he thought farmers should be discounted on the basis of the products their corn is ultimately used to produce.

"The testing procedure in Nebraska includes collection of samples of corn at 20 country elevators across the state. The grain samples will be analyzed chemically and physically. We'll be checking the corn as it comes into and leaves the Nebraska elevator, the terminal and the gulf port," Linsenmeyer said.

He said one of the more important tests includes putting the corn through eight different sized screens. "Some of the foreign matter (in the corn) may be really fine and may be lost somewhere in shipping," Linsenmeyer said. The researchers will try to determine the best screen size to recommend to the USDA and present evaluations of what effects a screen size change will have on producers and buyers.

Linsenmeyer said the same tests are being conducted at the University of Illinois. He added that although the USDA decision will be made in the fall, the study would be repeated using freshly harvested corn in fall 1977.

Musk Thistle

Description — Musk thistle is also known as nodding thistle. The deep reddish purple flowers are large and attractive. The head is solitary on the end of the stem and nodding or hangs down as it grows in size. The thistle is primarily a biennial. The deeply cut (segmented) leaves are dark green with a light green midrib. There is a grayish-green area at the outer edge of each spine-tipped leaf segments. The leaves extend onto the stem, giving it a frilled appearance. The plant is relatively free of hairiness. Plant height varies between two and seven feet.

Musk thistle may produce as many as 20,000 seeds and germination may run as high as 95 per cent. Blooming starts with the terminal head the first week in June and continues until mid-August.

Control — Use 1.5 to 2 quarts of 2,4-D per acre. Treat rosettes in late fall or spring before flowering stalks lengthen.

Special Remarks — Never let a plant go to seed because of the extremely high seed production. Mowing present seed production must be done within two or three days after the beginning of flowering in terminal heads. Spraying has limited effect after musk thistles bolt (flower stalk elongation) so timing of spraying is very important. This year musk thistle should be sprayed before May 15th.

MUSK THISTLE

Caution Urged in Buying

In the face of mounting concern regarding outbreaks of pseudorabies in Nebraska swine herds, producers are being advised to not purchase breeding stock from livestock auctions and to take more stringent sanitation measures in disposal of dead pigs.

Feeders pigs may be purchased from co-mingled sources such as auctions and feeder pig brokers, but must be handled with care to reduce losses from pseudorabies and to protect against spread of the disease to the buyer's community.

Dr. Bill Ahlschwede, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension

swine specialist and one of a number of Nebraskans who attended a national meeting on pseudorabies in Ames, Ia., recently, said prevention through good management practices is the best possible tool hogmen have at present in avoiding the economically costly disease. Although pseudorabies, known to veterinarians as Aujeszky's Disease, has been around for "a century or so," Ahlschwede said, it has become a serious concern to the swine industry only in recent years.

Some areas of Iowa have experienced pseudorabies in 25 per cent of swine herds, with pig mortality as high as 75 to 80 per cent, the swine specialist said. Cases of pseudorabies are known to be present in Nebraska, but the level of incidence is not clear at this time, Ahlschwede stated.

Reasons thought to be behind the current virulent attack of pseudorabies include a possible change in the virus causing the disease, and a more relaxed attitude on the part of the producers in taking precautions against spread of animal diseases in general, Ahlschwede said.

It is likely that pseudorabies is present within large auctions under present circumstances, and because of this, producers would be well advised "not to bring pigs home from a sale barn," Ahlschwede said. He said transport of pigs is probably the biggest single factor in the spread of pseudorabies over large geographical areas, with farm-to-farm spread aggravated by animals feeding on dead pigs or tissues.

In addition to encouraging producers to buy breeding stock and feeder pigs directly from other producers, coops or testing stations which can assure pigs See CAUTION, page 7

USDA Asks for Comments

Producers of barley, corn, grain sorghum, oats, rye and wheat would be able to get Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) loans through eligible marketing cooperatives under a proposed regulation change announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The proposal follows a USDA announcement of April 4, in which Secretary Bob Bergland listed a five-point program including establishment of a farmer-owned food grain reserve for the 1976 wheat and rice crops.

Eligible cooperatives presently may obtain on behalf of producer members CCC loans on cotton, honey, rice and soybeans.

The Department's proposal, published April 12 in the Federal Register, would amend Part 1425 Cooperative Marketing Associations Requirements for Price Support and Part 1421 General Regulations Governing Price Support for Grains and Similarly Handled Commodities.

In making the announcement, Department officials described the action as "an extension of our present policy insofar as cooperative marketing organizations are concerned." It is expected that farmers will be provided alternate marketing opportunities and a basis on which cooperatives can render greater services to producers, the officials added.

Written comments on the proposal may be submitted to the Director, Grains, Oilseeds and Cotton Division, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, USDA, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013. All submissions must be received by the Director not later than May 12.

"SERVING YOU IS OUR BUSINESS"

High Producers Need High Energy

With high genetic ability comes the need for rations and feeding systems which will let the cows milk to their potential, according to dairy specialist, Don Kubik.

Whether it comes from forage or grains we need a high quality balanced ration, particularly for the high producers.

Many times the approach has been to try to meet the needs of the high producing cow by simply feeding more grain. This is an expensive way of trying to furnish the needs of the high producers and also difficult because of the time required for the cow to consume this much (40-50 pound grain) in the parlor. For most dairymen this is impossible or too much bother so it does not get done.

The direction to go then is to high quality roughage, Kubik said. In order to get enough energy into the high producer, only high quality roughage can be used. The reason is that when we are getting maximum intakes the digestibility of the feeds fed is decreased. That is, the same ration fed to cows producing 35 pound milk daily can use 15 per cent more feed value per pound of ration fed as compared to the high producer consuming two or two and one-half times as much feed.

Energy

When balancing a ration for the high producing cow, only high quality roughage can be used or the ration will be short on calories or energy. The other areas where the normal ration is deficient for the high producer is protein and minerals.

Protein

Cows producing over 65 pound milk need 16 per cent more in their total ration, roughages plus the grain ration. When corn silage is the principle roughage See ENERGY, page 7

It was announced that the Wayne zone Christian growth workshop will be held April 26 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Concord. Thank you letters were read from the Bethesda Lutheran Tentative plans were made for a family night on June 12. The event will be discussed at the next meeting.

This and That... from YOUR COUNTY AGENT

Surfactants are additives to help emulsify, disperse, or wet liquids. They are used to improve herbicide performance and are added to the factory. Manufacturers have many different surfactants before choosing one of their formulations. It is not advisable to add surfactants to a herbicide unless the manufacturer suggests it on the label. Extra surfactants added to herbicide formulations are more likely to increase crop injury and reduce herbicide performance rather than improve herbicide performance.

this means the grain ration may have to be over 21 per cent protein. On the other hand, when high quality alfalfa is the primary roughage the grain ration may only need to be 10-12 protein.

Muddy Feedlots

Everyone appreciates the moisture we have had this spring, but one thing we could do without are muddy feedlots.

A three-year California study showed that mud reduced daily gains 25 to 37 per cent and increased the feed required per pound of gain to 33 per cent.

Both losses were reduced sharply when a dry place was provided for rest. Gain was reduced 10 per cent while conversion efficiency dropped 4.7 per cent.

The purpose of the study was to compare the effects of mud, wind and rain on beef cattle performance. Tests were held during the winter months, but air temperatures were relatively mild.

Rain reduced beef production more than wind, but less than mud.

Weed Control in Alfalfa

How do you intend to control the weeds in spring-sown alfalfa? Will you increase the seeding rate of alfalfa and try for a dense stand for weed competition or perhaps use a nurse crop such as oats, or will you try using a preplant application of Balan, Eptam or Tolban, three chemicals that can be used for weed control in alfalfa?

This last alternative has worked well in herbicide trials. Broadleaf weeds generally are not a problem in establishing alfalfa (the first cutting usually takes care of them), but grasses can come back.

Balan, Eptam and Tolban are three herbicides which may be applied before planting alfalfa. These herbicides must be incorporated into the soil with a disc before planting. Both will give annual grass control, but are weak on broadleaf weeds. Balan is applied at the rate of 3 to 4 quarts per acre; Eptam at the rate of three and one-half pints per acre and Tolban at the rate of one to two pints per acre.

Early legume injury may occur with Balan and Eptam.

are free of pseudorabies; Ahlswede said the best sanitation practice is "to quit throwing dead pigs on the manure pile."

While pseudorabies does not infect humans it can be contracted or carried by dogs, cats, raccoons, coyotes and other wildlife. The admonition to burn, render or bury dead pigs goes for both infected or non-infected herds, Ahlswede said, because of the ability of other "vectors" such as dogs, to become infected and shed the virus during a four-day period before they die, or to carry dead pigs infected with pseudorabies into contact with a clean herd on a neighboring farm.

Reports Available On Nursing Care

People can get information about the quality of care furnished by hospitals, skilled nursing facilities, and other providers of Medicare services by visiting the Norfolk social security office at 1310 Norfolk Avenue.

Available information includes deficiencies noted by the latest Nebraska surveys as well as the providers' plans for corrective action. According to Dale Branch, social security district manager.

The surveys are made from time to time to see if providers are meeting Medicare health and safety standards. Providers surveyed also include home health agencies and independent laboratories.

The survey information is open for public inspection. Copies of as many as 50 pages can be obtained free of charge. When more than 50 pages are requested, copies are available at 10 cents a page, Branch said.

Medicare helps pay for the health care expenses of people 65 and over, of disabled people under 65 who have been entitled to social security disability benefits for at least 24 consecutive months, and of many people with permanent kidney failure.

The Medicare program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Social Security representative Barbara Winter will be at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center from 9 a.m. until noon on Tuesday.

Final Dates Announced for 'Archive Project'

Sunday and Wednesday, April 27, mark the final dates for area residents to catch a glimpse of the future as they travel through the galaxy and witness a remarkable search by residents of the Milky Way.

Persons may take this imaginary trip in the final presentation of "The Archive Project", the first science fiction show offered in the Fred G. Dale Planetarium at Wayne State College.

"The Archive Project" has been described as "a thought-provoking science fiction journey through the galaxy. It takes place far in the future when representatives of all the civilizations in the Milky Way search for a universe beyond their own."

The presentation has been favorably received due to the dramatic nature of the plot, visual sequences, and sound track according to Carl Rump, planetarium director.

"The Archive Project" will be presented at 3:30 p.m., Sunday, and 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, in the planetarium located in the Carhart Science Hall. A showing was also scheduled for Wednesday, April 20, at 7:30 p.m.

Although these will be the final shows available to the general public, area schools and public service organizations will be able to schedule special presentations through May 27.

All planetarium shows are free to the public.

'Liking Yourself Is Important To Good Mental Health'

WILLIAM FAGAN

Being comfortable with oneself and the persons around him are two of the essential ingredients to a person's good mental health, said Michael LeCluyse, director of community education at the Northeast Nebraska Comprehensive Mental Health Center in Norfolk.

LeCluyse pointed out to members of Wayne Kiwanis Club Monday that many of people who are uncomfortable with themselves often turn to alcohol or drugs and sometimes suicide to avoid the problem.

Teenagers in high school often are dissatisfied with themselves because they are divided between being an individual or conforming to their peer groups. This tendency of division often leads to the use of drugs, LeCluyse added.

While in high school, youngsters should be making up their minds whether they want to be someone or "let everyone and everything around me take control," he said.

The important thing a person should understand about himself is not to overestimate or underestimate himself, the director added.

Once a person is comfortable with himself, he must learn to be comfortable with others.

around him, LeCluyse pointed out as the second step in having good mental health.

"Part of mental health involves being with other people," he explained. The missing element in a person-to-person relationship is the expression of need for another. "To give as well as to take is an important step in good mental health," LeCluyse said.

The third ingredient to good mental health is a person's ability to meet the demands of life.

In paying tribute to Kiwanians, LeCluyse noted that members have "been a tremendous help in developing good mental health," through their programs to help people help themselves.

Prior to LeCluyse's talk, the club added Dr. William Fagan to its membership roles. A retired colonel in the Marine Corps, Dr. Fagan recently joined the Wayne State staff where he teaches business.

Dr. Fagan and his wife, Anne, have two daughters who live in California.

Following his retirement from the service six years ago, Dr. Fagan has taught in four educational institutions.

4-H'ers Complete Embryology Project

Four-H special activity members in Ponca, Dixon, Emerson and Woodland District IV recently completed a 4-H embryology project.

Each school was furnished an incubator with 24 eggs to hatch. Students were involved in various learning activities as they took care of the eggs during the 21 days of incubation.

Each class was able to watch at least one chick being hatched. Teachers participating in the project were John Street, Ponca Public School; Margaret Ankeny, Woodland District IV; John Mattingly, Emerson Elementary; and Mrs. Robert Taylor and Mrs. Phyllis Dirks, Dixon School.

Form Ramblers

An organizational meeting for the Ramblers 4-H Club was held at the Hoskins Fire Hall Saturday morning.

The newly organized club has 11 members, and leaders are Mrs. Irene Ave, Mrs. Kenneth Elkins, Mrs. Ron Hofferer and Mrs. Jerry Lee.

Projects were discussed and the group elected officers: they are Randy Piiger, president; Ronnie Hofferer, vice president; Donna Christensen, secretary-treasurer, and Zita Lee, news reporter.

someone or "let everyone and everything around me take control," he said.

The important thing a person should understand about himself is not to overestimate or underestimate himself, the director added.

Once a person is comfortable with himself, he must learn to be comfortable with others.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Anna Marie Kreifels

SEW A SWEATER KNIT

You can make sweaters, jackets or dresses with a hand-knit look by sewing with sweater knits. Select your pattern and fabric so they will be compatible. Look for and learn to use the stretch gauge provided on pattern envelopes.

For stretchability, use polyester or polyester core thread. Seams may be stitched with straight or zig-zag stitch, or any stitch which will sew the seam and overcast seam edges in one operation.

Sweater knits are already bulky, so try to avoid any extra bulk. To finish seams, stitch seam allowances together 1/8 to 1/4 inch from seamline and trim off excess seam allowances. Some horizontal seams may need to be taped to prevent stretching.

Sleeves on sweater knits may be stitched to the bodice before sewing underarm seams. No ease stitch is necessary in the sleeve cap area. Just pin the sleeves in place. Then sew with the bodice side up, stretching the bodice section so the bodice just fits the sleeve cap, but don't stretch the sleeve. After the sleeve seam is stitched and finished, sew underarm seams.

The blind hem stitch done by machine may be used to stitch hems. Neck, wrist, and waistline edges may also be finished by ribbing.
