Service will provide needed technical assistance to implement projects. The irrigation water management practice was developed earlier this year by Wayne County extension agent Don Spitzke, Olson added.

Hander, charged with the shooting death of Leroy Drayer, also of Laurel, is being held without bond in the Cedar County jail. He was denied bond Thursday, a court spokesman said.

The Laurel man is alleged to have shot Drayer Saturday May 14. Drayer was discovered across the street from his home at about 11 o'clock that night.

Home Ownership Means Tight Budget for Many

Some people say it's the little things in life that count most. Like going to the movies, a weekend at the lake or a new outfit.

The old rule of thumb said you could afford to pay two and one-half times your yearly income for a home. But the American Bankers Association is now saying that's too steep for a borrower.

The first step is to put down your take-home income by month. Count only your regular paycheck, excluding overtime and bonuses. If both spouses work and plan to continue doing so, then count both incomes, she says.

Memorial Day at the turn of the century was marked by many types of community observances. Memorial services were held, of course, and graves decorated, especially those of soldiers.

Red Cloud . . . The day upon which the people of the union remember the loved ones who fought and were tried and true in the late civil war was celebrated with unusual interest in this city today owing to the fact that the unveiling of the monument erected to the memory of the late Congressman (W.A.) McKelighan was to take place at the time.

Geneva . . . Memorial Day was observed and the program previously arranged by the committee was fully carried out. Rev. P.C. Johnson of Holmesville, Neb., was the speaker of the day.

Alliance . . . Memorial Day was properly observed here today after a two hours interesting program at the Plean theatre. Capt. W.R. Akers was the chief speaker.

for the Alliance team by a score of 7 to 2. A ball will be given tonight. Long Pine . . . Memorial Day was observed here with more than usual earnestness. The chief exercises were held at the Methodist church which could not hold the crowd and many had to stand outside and look through the window.

Seward . . . A slight shower at daylight this morning laid the dust and cooled the atmosphere, making the day all that could be desired for Memorial Day exercises. The business part of the town as well as private residences, was profusely decorated with American flags and bunting.

Fremont . . . Memorial Day was fittingly observed in Fremont by a program of ceremonies carried out under the auspices of the G.A.R. and the Woman's Relief Corps (Civil War veterans' organization and its women's auxiliary).

A large number of girls dressed in white helped to decorate the graves. At 1:45 this afternoon a street parade formed on Fifth and F streets and marched through all the main highways of the city. An exceedingly large crowd was in town and both sides of all the streets along which the parade passed were lined with spectators.

President Carter's goal of a 10 per cent decline in gasoline consumption by 1985 easily can be achieved by a combination of auto industry planning and better public motoring habits, the Automotive Information Council said.

The industry already is committed to a downsizing program of most car lines over the next three years that will remove several hundred pounds, the 600-member industry trade association reported.

In addition to peeling the pounds off, a number of popular car makes, the companies will be introducing small models below the size of the compact segment of the market. New engines are on the horizon including diesels. Electronic devices, assuring more precise use of gasoline, are nearing the production stage.

STRAYEr Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

Hate to sing the blues again, but we like to keep our readers happy, and sometimes that is a matter of a little understanding on their part of what we're up against.

So get a copy of the calendar for May for your particular school, then multiply by five. You should have a pretty fair idea of the type of schedule we look at this time of year, where schools are concerned.

The point? It's a busy time and it isn't unusual to have several events on the same night. We can't get to all of them, so if we don't make it to yours, it isn't because we don't like you, as some people seem to think.

It just struck me that the preceding paragraphs are a lot like some of the institutional television advertising which has become popular the past couple of years.

'Thought You'd Like to Know' I mean the ones in which a function of the company involved is depicted and then at the end the narrator says "Octopus Conglomerate thought you'd like to know."

The other format which has also come into vogue is similar but the emphasis is on "We're people helping-serving-building for people."

But I guess those commercials are better than the Doublemint Twins.

Getting Worried This probably sounds strange, but I think I'm going to start sleeping with a machete under my bed.

Now let's admit it, men, I'm not the only husband who feels like he's stepping into a jungle when he walks through the front door.

I didn't get worried, though, until Kay brought home another plant a couple of weeks ago. She said she found it in a trash can and decided to rescue it.

At least it looks like something from a science fiction movie. It's ugly, it has long, pale looking stems covered with scarlet fuzz. It seems to be indestructible. A stem broke off and was left on a counter.

I dream about waking up in the middle of the night to find our apartment choked with ugly, fuzz-covered stems all hopes of escape cut off, and those stems slowly creeping closer. My unrest, no doubt, is the result of an overactive imagination, nurtured by a steady diet of science fiction books to which I became addicted at the age of 13.

Just in case, though, where can you buy a machete?

Auto council says energy goal within easy reach

President Carter's goal of a 10 per cent decline in gasoline consumption by 1985 easily can be achieved by a combination of auto industry planning and better public motoring habits, the Automotive Information Council said.

The industry already is committed to a downsizing program of most car lines over the next three years that will remove several hundred pounds, the 600-member industry trade association reported.

In addition to peeling the pounds off, a number of popular car makes, the companies will be introducing small models below the size of the compact segment of the market. New engines are on the horizon including diesels. Electronic devices, assuring more precise use of gasoline, are nearing the production stage.

Meanwhile, there are 134 million vehicles on the road today and most of them will be around for the next several years. Owners easily can do much more to save fuel in those products. AIC lists three areas where motorists can cut the nation's gasoline appetite — the use of the car, the operation of the car, and the care of the car.

Use — For short distances to the school, the church or the shopping center, ride a bike, ride a bus or better yet, for your health, walk.

Plan multi-stop local trips ahead. Backtracking costs you fuel and time.

Carpool. A vehicle with two riders is twice as energy efficient as a car with one. Sharing the ride isn't just for going to work. It can be applied to shopping trips, meetings, the theater, school, the airport, church, the sports stadium — even on vacations.

When possible, drive when it's dry. Wet pavement demands more power to reach a comfortable speed. Snow and ice use even more gas because of slippage.

Avoid traffic jams. If you schedule permits, drive during late morning or early afternoon when vehicle flow is light.

Operation — Observe the speed limit of 55 miles per hour. For every five miles per hour over 50, there is a loss of one mile to the gallon. Actually, the most economical speed is 45 mph. More fuel is consumed below 35 than at 45.

A steady foot on the accelerator can do wonders. Last summer an auto company and a gasoline refiner invited 21 auto writers to drive three cars on a controlled track. Under identical conditions and procedures, one car registered a range of 27.5 to 29 miles to the gallon among the group. The distance was only 2.5 miles so the difference in fuel use over a long track would have been great.

Idling. You car delivers zero miles to the gallon when the motor is running and the wheels are not. Just 30 seconds of idling consumes as much gasoline as you might use to start your car. Next winter, try to remember that the modern engine does not require a warming period. Just start and drive. Fast starts. Don't stomp on the accelerator when the signal turns "green."

Sudden surges of power take a big gulp of gas. Sudden stops don't do your gasoline expenses any favor either. Try coasting to a halt.

Most urban signal light systems are programmed for an uninterrupted traffic flow. If you can gauge your speed to make the green light (not the yellows), miles per gallon will improve.

Use the trunk for luggage. Piling suitcases on top of the car increase wind drag, uses more gas. Take fewer clothes on vacation and save money. Don't use the trunk for year around storage.

Summer time is the best economy time. Your car requires less power in warmer weather. The difference between 20 to 70 degrees in fuel economy on a 20-mpg car is about 1.5 miles to the gallon.

Accessories are an important part of motoring but can cost money, especially when they are not needed. Air conditioning can be turned off and vents opened when the outside temperature is in the comfort range.

Engines. A four or a six cylinder engine normally needs less gas than a V-8. But if you own a big car the engine should be large enough to assure efficient and safe driving. In some cases, an underpowered large car will use more gas than a car with the recommended larger engine size.

Transmissions. A manual transmission, operated by an experienced driver, can produce up to eight per cent better gas mileage than an automatic in city driving. With a manual, shift from low to high as quickly as possible. Low, or first gear, uses 30 per cent more fuel than second gear and second uses 15 per cent more than third.

Aviation. Higher axle ratios provide more power, but lower ratios save gasoline because the lower the axle ratio number, the fewer number of times the engine rotates.

Two or more cars in your garage? Drive the car that gives the best gas mileage whenever you can. In most cases, that would be the smallest car.

Pick your routes. A trip over broken or patched pavement can cost you a 20 per cent fuel penalty. Urban drivers even might save fuel by avoiding the freeways at certain times. Despite stops for traffic signals on off-expressway streets, freeway jams can increase fuel consumption as much as 50 per cent.

Tires. Underinflated tires can waste up to a gallon out of every 20 gallons of gas. Read the owner manual for your car. Follow the recommended "squeggle" less with the pavement, run cooler and smoother and deliver three-quarters of a mile per gallon more than most other tires.

Brakes. If the brakes drag, your car is using more fuel. And never drive with your foot on the brake pedal until you are preparing to stop.

Transmission. Under normal conditions, the transmission provides excellent service for a long time. But, if it is slipping, you are using extra fuel.

As the public does its part to help reach the President's goal of making America less dependent on foreign oil sources, the auto industry and the replacement market will be doing their share to design products that will be more energy efficient. Some of these efforts already have come to pass.

The 1977 models on the market average about 18 miles to the gallon. That compares with a 17.6 average a year ago, 15.8 in 1975 and only 14 miles to the gallon in 1974.

The Automotive Information Council believes that united efforts of the car buying public and the car making industry can achieve the President's goal of reduced gasoline consumption without raising fuel taxes that could raise gas prices another 50 cents a gallon.

Weekly gleanings.

OBSERVATIONS

OSHA change welcome if true

The lead headline in the May 19 issue of the Lincoln Journal read "OSHA shifting its emphasis to 'common sense priorities.'" If it's true, praise the Lord. The Labor Department announces it is going to focus more resources on serious occupation disease problems and to eliminate or simplify unnecessary regulations of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).

Mosley, Wieseler Named Top Athletes at Wayne High

Three seniors and a junior scooped up the top awards Thursday night during the annual athletic convocation at Wayne High School.

Junior Sydney Mosley and senior Mike Wieseler were chosen as the outstanding athletes of the year and a pair of seniors, Stephanie Dorcey and Aaron Nissen, were named recipients of this year's Moller Memorial plaque.

Among the accomplishments which earned Mosley this year's honors was the gold medal she won for winning the Class B state high school long jump. She also was very instrumental for coach Curt Frye's girls basketball team and was named the Most Improved Player on the volleyball squad. Sydney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Mosley of Wayne.

In addition to earning conference honors in football, Wieseler was named co-captain of the year's squad and was selected as the Most Improved Player on the basketball team. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Wieseler of Wayne.

Selection of the Moller

SIX WAYNE athletes who received some of the top awards during Thursday night's convocation were, clockwise from center, Stephanie Dorcey, Mark Brandt, Aaron Nissen, Si Prather, Mike Wieseler and Sydney Mosley. Mosley and Wieseler were named the school's athletes of the year; Nissen and Dorcey received the Moller Memorial and Brandt and Prather each received plaques for participating in three individual sports for all four years.

In addition to presenting monograms and pins, coaches for each individual sport also named most valuable and most improved players.

In football, senior Mark Victor earned both honors, according to coaches Ron Carnes and Don Koenig. Aaron Nissen also grabbed the title for most tackles and was co-captain.

Basketball coach Bill Sharpe handed out three awards to senior Tim Koll, who was picked as the Most Valuable Player, and leading rebounder and scorer, Vic Sharpe who finished fifth in the state in his weight class. Another junior, Kelly Hansen, finished the year with the most takedowns, 25, and the most escapes, 28. Fastest pin went to freshman Dan Mitchell.

The senior winning the Most Valuable Player award in baseball without a doubt from the coaching staff or teammates who nominated him, was Doug Carroll. Honorary captain went to Nissen.

quently, picked up the Most Valuable Player honor. Teammate Dave Hamm was the "hardest working player," Hansen noted. Senior Terry Lessmann earned honorary captain.

In girls track, freshman Jane Edmund was named the Most Improved and sophomore Sandra Jacobmeyer the Most Valuable by coach Mavis Dalton. Stephanie Dorcey was selected honorary captain both for the track and volleyball.

Earning the MVP award in volleyball was Kelly Frevert while Sydney Mosley was the Most Improved.

Special plaques were presented to senior Mark Brandt and Si Prather for participating in three sports during each of the four high school years.

In appreciation of his 10 years as head football coach, students presented Al Hansen a portable radio followed by a standing ovation for the retiring coach. Hansen, 49, last week announced that he was going to step down. No special awards were presented in golf or cross country. Letter winners are:

3 YCC Camps To Open in NE Nebraska

Three new Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) camps have been authorized at the last minute for Northeast Nebraska, according to Bill Janssen of the Game and Parks Commission.

The new camps were made possible when President Carter recently signed legislation doubling the scope of the National YCC program. In Nebraska, this makes possible camps at the Omaha Indian Reservation at Macy, the Winnebago Reservation at Winnebago, and the Santee Reservation at Santee.

Sponsored jointly by the U.S. Department of Interior and Agriculture, and coordinated in Nebraska by the Game and Parks Commission, the YCC Program employs young Nebraskans ages 15-18 in conservation work on public lands. They will earn $2.30 per hour for 30 hours' work each week, and receive conservation training for 10 hours. Workers at the three Northeast Nebraska camps will commute to work each day, since lodging will not be provided.

With work scheduled to start on June 13, time is short for recruiting the 108 workers needed for the three new camps. Applications must be at Game and Parks Commission headquarters in Lincoln by noon on June 3 to be included in a 2 p.m. drawing. Application forms are available from high school principals and guidance counselors, local job service offices, affirmative action groups and tribal offices.

Golfers Place

High winds Sunday haphered the scores, but apparently didn't hamper Wayne golfers from being among prize winners at the Stanton Invitational.

Six local golfers placed among the 126 who competed in five flights. They are Dick Berry, Lyle Hansen, Val Kienast, Jim Marsh, Harold Schroeder and Ken Whorlow.

Ellis Tournament Draws 13 Teams

Thirteen teams, including two of the top American Legion clubs from South Dakota, will make up the largest roster for the sixth annual Chuck Ellis Memorial Tournament at the Wakefield ball park.

The six-day tourney kicks off Friday with a two-game slate pitting Sioux City Heelan against Wayne at 6 p.m., followed by the Sioux City North-Wisner matchup at 8.

Wakefield and Norfolk collided in the first of two games Saturday evening. Wakefield plays at 6, then Sioux City West meets Pender-Bancroft at 8. In the only game Sunday, West Point plays Emerson-Hubbard at 2 o'clock.

Three teams which didn't see action in the first two days of tournament play get into action Monday and Tuesday.

Aberdeen, which was runner-up in South Dakota, takes its 11-man veteran crew against the winner of the Wakefield-Norfolk game at 5:30 p.m. Omaha Creighton Prep (Roberts) plays the winner of the Sioux City West-Pender game at 7:30 and Sioux Falls (49-10) takes on the winner from the West Point-Emerson at 4 o'clock Tuesday. Championship game is at 6 p.m. June 1, right after the consolation round at 5.

Top Athletes at Allen

LORI ERWIN and Denny Uhl were named as Allen High's Athletes of the Year Thursday during honors convocation at the high school auditorium. Both award winners were selected this year as members of the Herald's All-Area girls and boys high school basketball teams. In addition to basketball, Lori played on the girls volleyball and track teams. Denny participated in football and baseball.

Memorial Meet

It's official. The annual Memorial Day golf tournament at Wayne Country Club has been postponed. No date has been set for the replaying tournament which usually kicks off golf play at the club, according to officials. Also postponed is the Men's Invitational Tournament for club members on June 25-26. Both meets had to be delayed because greens are still recovering from winter kill sustained this year. The postponement of the Memorial Day tournament, which was scheduled for Sunday, June 5, means that the first meet at the country club will be the annual Open on July 10.

 for camps sponsored by the Bureau of Indian Affairs requires that half of all the jobs be filled by applicants of American Indian descent. The other half can be filled either by Indians or non-Indians. The jobs will also be equally divided between young men and women. Due to the special makeup of the crews and the short time on filling the jobs, special instructions will be issued with each application. These special instructions should be followed carefully. There will be 26 positions at the Santee camp, 32 at the Winnebago site and 50 at Macy. Applicants for the program must have no history of criminal or anti-social behaviour, must be physically able to do the work, and must have necessary work permits and a social security number.

'Just a Few More Seconds...'

GRADE SCHOOL youngsters at West Elementary School in Wayne got a chance recently to show their riding skills during a bike contest at the school. The idea was to ride a bike through the obstacle course in the longest period of time possible. Kevin Koenig and Lynell Billheimer did just that to win the boy and girl divisions. Kevin, left, carefully maneuvers his two-wheeler through two barricades on the last leg of the course while a group of his buddies get ready to jot down his time. Dennis Otte does the actual writing as his friends, from left, Carl Urwiler, Brad Moore, Cory Leseberg, Steve Overin and Darin Barner, look on. Koenig's winning time was just over four minutes and thirty seconds; Lynell was clocked just under three and a half minutes.

Course Focus Is Electronic Media

School once may have meant following a 12-grade plan, treading through a stack of books, and receiving information from "teacher," but education comes in different forms these days as radio, television, and other forms of electronic media become increasingly helpful in teaching.

A Wayne State College workshop June 6 to 21 called "Radio and Television in Education" will instruct in implementation of media in education.

The workshop, on the WSC campus, will also emphasize the use of instructional materials for training in industry. With enrollment limited to 20 participants, "Radio and Television in Education" will be held from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, with mornings free for preparation. Labs are scheduled in the evenings Monday through Thursday.

William Hagerman, assistant professor of communication arts at WSC will teach the course. Hagerman, a media consultant, has also led in designing materials for the Nebraska Educational Television Council for Higher Education and is researching computer supplemented instruction. Hagerman said the course will stress basic theories of program design and try to apply those to audio and televised instruction.

Aural media will be used with professional broadcasting techniques for music systems, audio-cassette instruction, and sound for TV, film, and slides.

Instruction will also center around the use of the audio control console to produce with audio tape and discs and with live studio production.

Video can be used in industry and education for programmed instruction and discussion programming, Hagerman said.

Preplanning, scripting, direction, performance, and validation will be the five areas covered under media production. Application of the latest research findings will also be stressed in learning theory, attitude change theory, instructional design methods, an interactive instruction.

Housing will be available at WSC during the course. Persons interested in the course may obtain rates and further information by writing to the WSC broadcasting department.

'Hike in Law Enforcement Costs Well Worth It'

Law enforcement is going to cost taxpayers a bit more in the future but Gene Morris figures it's well worth it.

Morris, who is an instructor at the Law Enforcement Training Center in Grand Island, told members of the Wayne Kiwanis Club, Monday that taxpayers will be sharing the cost of funding the training program once federal funding runs out.

Right now $1 out of every fine goes to the center to train policemen for duty in Nebraska. Coupled with money with federal input, and that about covers the present costs, Morris said. But by 1980, when federal funding is all gone, more and more funds will have to come from taxpayers, and that "means an increase in taxes," he emphasized.

The center, which received the go-ahead from the state Legislature in 1969 to start, offers a seven-week training course for all new police officers. The 300 hour course covers such topics as program administration, administration of criminal justice, practice and procedures and legal aspects of law enforcement. Starting on Jan. 1, 1972, all new police officers as of that date must take the course, Morris noted.

Although the program is geared towards first-year officers, Morris pointed out that there are courses for sheriff departments and state patrolmen. However, the patrol has its own training center, he added.

Overall, the program stresses how a policeman should talk his way out of a situation instead of using force, such as a shootout, to settle a grave situation, Morris said. The Wayne police department, under chief Vern Fairchild, is one of several departments in the state which has a chief who qualifies as an instructor at the Center and can offer his men training on the job.

Before the start of Monday's business meeting, club president Bob Jordan reported that he and three members, Dan Sherry, Leon Meyer and Fairchild, and their wives, attended the Nebraska-Iowa Kiwanis district convention Friday and Saturday at Lake Okoboji in Northwest Iowa.

HELPFUL HINTS TO PAINT YOUR HOUSE

ALLIED LUMBER CAN HELP YOU WHEN IT'S TIME TO PAINT

HOW MUCH PAINT DO YOU NEED?

Multiply the distance in feet around the house by its average height plus 2 feet to get the square feet of surface to be painted. One gallon of finish usually covers about 450 square feet, but check the label on the can of paint.

WHEN TO PAINT

The outside temperature should be 50 degrees F. or higher. Do not paint too early in the morning before dew or frost has evaporated. Avoid, if possible, painting over hot, sun-heated surfaces. Start on the shady side of building and follow the sun around. Do not apply oil base paints over damp or wet surfaces. Avoid painting before an expected rain or late afternoon.

Still can't figure out how much paint you need? Contact Manager Tom Ostermeier and he will personally come and measure your house and give you a Free estimate on the amount and cost of paint for your house.

ARE YOU READY TO TAKE THE PLUNGE?

Thinking of playing the stock market? You could win! And then again, you could lose. Either way, it's a gamble. And it is an extremely high risk and dangerous gamble when it's your life savings at stake.

Before you take the plunge, give it your serious consideration. Carefully weigh the pros and cons. In a savings account, the gamble is eliminated. Your money will grow at a steady rate... and it will be there whenever you need it.

If you decide to make the plunge, keep a healthy portion of your money in a savings account. Then you can have the best of both worlds. Enjoy the thrill of adventure AND the confidence of security.

The NRD Board That Is Sincerely Concerned About Proper Resources Development!

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District has scheduled a series of three "Irrigation Hotline" Workshops to give irrigators an opportunity to learn how to use "Hotline" crop water use information.

Several alternative methods of using the "Hotline" information, determination of soil water holding capacity will be covered by Extension Irrigationists and the Soil Conservation Service.

The Workshops will be held:

8:00 p.m. May 23, 1977, Wayne City Auditorium

8:00 p.m. May 24, 1977, Norfolk, King's East Ballroom

8:00 p.m. June 2, 1977, West Point City Auditorium

AGENDA

Soil-Water holding capacity for Hotline Scheduling
Evapotranspiration — What's that?
Methods of determining soil moisture.

What do you need to schedule irrigation?

What is it worth to schedule irrigation?

Practice runs on irrigation scheduling.

If you are planning to schedule from the "Irrigation Hotline," you cannot invest two hours any better than making the "Irrigation Hotline" Meeting in your area.

Club Plans to Visit Museum

Members of the Hillcrest Home Extension Club are planning a picnic in Wayne June 21, followed with a tour of the Wayne County Historical Museum.

There are eight pupils in the school. Officers are Gene Rethwisch, Delmar Eddie and Glenn Loberg.

Mrs. Glenn Loberg and Mrs. Dave Jager took the students to Ponca Tuesday where they enjoyed a picnic dinner and spent the day in the park.

Trict 75, located four miles North of Carroll, and teacher Mrs. Dave Jager held a picnic dinner last Sunday.

Members turned out for the meeting Tuesday with hostesses Mrs. Leo Jordan, Mrs. G.E. Jones presided and the hostesses reported on the previous meeting.

Roll call was "What I Enjoy Most About My Retirement."

Members discussed plans to attend the state convention at Norfolk in June and a film, "Bicentennial Tapestry," was shown.

Ten at UPW

Ten members were present when United Presbyterian Women met Wednesday at the church fellowship hall. Guests were Mrs. Gladys Sellon and Mrs. Frank Keyser, both of Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Leonard Pritchard presided and Mrs. Len Jones reported on the last meeting. Mrs. Esther Batten read the treasurer's report and was in charge of the lesson, entitled "Offering Ourselves." Mrs. Jones accompanied for singing of "Amazing Grace."

Honor Host

The Don Harmeiers were guests May 14 in the Dale Stoltenberg home, honoring the host's birthday.

Oregon Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keyser and Mrs. Gladys Sellon, all of Portland, Ore., spent May 15-19 in the Lem Jones home.

They all were supper guests Monday in the Eddie Jones home in Norfolk, and visited Tuesday afternoon in the Earl Davis home.

Joneses and their guests joined Mrs. Bob Newman and Ryan of Wayne for supper in the Robert Haberer home, at Crof.

Musical

The setting: all takes place in a section of a city before and during an inauguration.

The rowdy, raucous, uproariously amusing story is told through the eyes of beggars, thieves, and corrupt officials of a sad and vicious society. In this society, members prey upon each other and those more fortunate than they.

Members of a Musical Theatre Performance class make up the "Three Penny Opera" cast. All rehearsals, set constructions, and costume production, have been wrapped into three weeks, the length of post session, when the Musical Theatre class was scheduled.

Home

Subtract the cost of the new house from the amount you have left over for housing and all other living expenses. If you think you can live comfortably on what's left, you're probably in a pretty good position to buy the home, she says.

Remember, however, that it's hard to reduce your living standards, advises the specialist. "If you choose to buy when the financial facts show there's little left for living, sacrifices will have to be made." The costs of such sacrifices versus the benefits of home ownership will have to be weighed carefully, she says. "Be sure to ask yourself — Is It Worth It?"
