Damage Repaired

All damages resulting from a vandalism incident at Wayne's Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne have been repaired, a cemetery association spokesman said Monday.

Vandals in November tipped over or otherwise damaged 25 stones in the cemetery.

Cost of the repairing the stones was $615. About $540 was received in contributions to repair the damage. Additional contributions can be left at the Wayne banks.

Siren Test Is Friday

The monthly testing of Wayne's Civil Defense sirens is scheduled for 1 p.m. Friday.

All three signals will be allowed to run for only one minute, with a one-minute pause between each test.

Sirens will be tested in the following sequence:

—Alert, used for disaster warnings, including tornadoes, both high and low tones on for one minute.

—Fire, both high and low tones alternating every ten seconds.

—Attack, both high and low tones on for ten seconds off for ten seconds.

Normal time sequence during actual use would be a full three minutes for each signal, police chief Vern Fairchild said.

"Since this is for testing purposes only, we will shut off the siren on each signal after one minute so the public can quickly determine the difference between a test and an actual alert," Fairchild said.

Twister Clips Several Trees

A small twister Saturday touched down near the Elvis Olson farm six miles east of Wayne, clipping several trees on both sides of a county road.

The State Patrol reported the damage about 6:30 p.m. Saturday after a thunderstorm swept across Wayne County, dumping more than an inch of rain and pea-size hail, according to a spokesman from the National Weather Service in Norfolk.

Rainfall in Wayne amounted to just over two inches as of Sunday morning. In Winside, the total was 2.30 inches.

Wooded Acreage Decreasing

Timber acreage in Nebraska has been declining since 1955 and assistant state forester Dick Gavitt of Concord is conducting a survey of five northeast region counties to find out just what the decline in wooded land has been.

Gavitt said the survey to be completed this summer is part of a statewide project to tabulate how many acres remain in timber. The project is about one-third done, he said.

Wayne County was included in the survey of the Lower Elkhorn River area last year. The report shows about 440 acres remain in timber in the county compared with 700 acres in 1955, a decline of about 37 per cent.

A preliminary aerial photograph survey has been completed for the five counties included in this summer's field project. The photographs indi-

Keith Knudsen received a four-year scholarship to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln presented by the NU Board of Regents. It was one of 250 such scholarships presented in Nebraska this year.

Recipients of the Haskell Awards, presented annually to teachers selected by the graduating class, were Mildred Monk, fourth grade teacher, and John VanAussdal, high school speech instructor.

Two members of the Wayne National Guard unit were among 15 men commissioned second lieutenants Saturday at the Nebraska National Guard Military Academy at Camp Ashland.

Roger Wortman of Wayne and Terry Bailey of Blair have both been assigned as officers with Wayne unit, Company A, First Battalion, 134th Infantry.

Wortman is currently attending Wayne State College and Bailey is a former WSC student. They were commissioned after completing 12 months of weekend and summer training at Camp Ashland.

Wortman received a special honor during the ceremonies, accepting an award as most improved cadet.

Another new officer will be joining the Wayne unit around the first of June. Captain Raymond Volk of Norfolk is expected to assume command of the company. Current commander, Captain Paul Sum, will be assigned to the 134th Infantry's First Battalion staff.

About eight men of the company will depart June 4 for two weeks of training at Ft. Carson, Colo. Company A administrator Dennis Spangler of Wayne said the remainder of the unit attended annual training in February at Camp Roberts in California.

Educated people are losing sight of the goals of education, both during the time spent in class and on the job, said Dr. Anne Campbell, speaker at Wayne High's graduation.

Through education, man should learn more to help others. In other words, create a better life for one another, she told an audience of 1,800 Monday night.

Beneath the shade of the trees at Wayne State's Willow Bowl, the State Commissioner of Education questioned those professional people who seek monetary gain and neglect the needs of their fellow man.

"We produce too many people who put professionalism ahead of helping others. Indeed, we scramble to place a scapegoat instead of blaming ourselves," Dr. Campbell noted.

"Life needs people who are richer on the inside than the outside, who have the capacity to discover," she said.

Dr. Campbell emphasized the need for members of the graduating class to realize the purpose of their 12 years of education and the education life will give once out of the classroom.

"Each graduate has received the tools needed to develop the skills to make the transition from education to training," she said.

Dr. Campbell, who graduated from Wayne State College in 1959 with a master's degree and 10 years later received her doctorate from the University of Nebraska, said that through education a person learns to make choices, adapts to the needs of life and understands why the necessity of work and education.

Downtown Project Takes Another Step

Wayne city council members should have final plans and specifications for the downtown improvement project in their hands for consideration at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday night, May 31.

The council Tuesday night in a special meeting approved preliminary drawings and gave engineering consultant Bruce Gilmore the go ahead to draft final plans and specifications for the project so the council can consider authorizing advertising for bids.

The vote on the motion to authorize final plans and specifications was unanimous, although councilman Vernon Russell questioned whether the step should be taken without an engineer's estimate of cost.

Gilmore explained that state law requires that an estimate be given before the project can be advertised for bids. He said an estimate will accompany the final plans and specification.

'Challenge Is to Achieve'

Commencement speaker Dr. Donald Keck issued a challenge to the 55 graduating seniors at Wakefield Tuesday night.

Before a crowd of almost 1,000 at the town ball park, Dr. Keck told the graduates that "if your generation can do as much as the past generations have done, then you will do a lot to improve the world."

The director of continuing education at Wayne State College was speaking of the past five generations whom he calls, "The Achievers."

"It was during their lifetimes that they built this country into one of the most prosperous nations in the world, he continued.

"It is your parents' grandparents who are the remarkable people. Truly, they are the achievers," he said.

Over the past five decades they have increased life expectancy by 50 per cent, Keck said.

They have made a healthier world for all to live in by greatly reducing the fear of epidemics which could wipe out a country, Dr. Keck went on.

Those generations have lived through history's greatest depression and determined that it would not happen to you, he said.

Bank Has New Night 'Cashier'

The State National Bank in Wayne will be implementing a new addition to the banking business.

Starting today (Thursday) the bank will be demonstrating its "Bankers' Cash Dispenser" which will offer customers the opportunity to withdraw money after banking hours.

Bank vice president Bob Jordan said that the demonstrations will be held over a two-week period to give everyone a chance to see how the machine operates.

In conjunction with the demonstrations, bank employees will be dressed in western-style outfits to accent the Western Roundup theme.

"There are quite a few times when people need cash but it's too late to go to the bank to get it. Instead of bothering a merchant to cash, say a $25 check, he can get the money just by inserting his Banker's card into the machine," Jordan explained.

Guard Commissions Two

Two members of the Wayne National Guard unit were among 15 men commissioned second lieutenants Saturday at the Nebraska National Guard Military Academy at Camp Ashland.

Roger Wortman of Wayne and Terry Bailey of Blair have both been assigned as officers with Wayne unit, Company A, First Battalion, 134th Infantry.

Wortman is currently attending Wayne State College and Bailey is a former WSC student. They were commissioned after completing 12 months of weekend and summer training at Camp Ashland.

Hospital Auxiliary Has Final Meeting Friday

The final meeting of the year was held Friday afternoon at the Woman's Club room by the Wayne Community Hospital Auxiliary. Twenty members were present.

President Mrs. Robert Bentack announced that the annual fall bazaar has been set for Nov. 5. Mrs. Bentack said persons are needed during the summer months to begin making articles for the bazaar. Members who would like to work on a committee to make items, or who would like to give a cash donation, should contact Mrs. Bentack or Mrs. Carl Lentz.

Mrs. Robert Casper opened Friday's meeting with two thoughts for the day, entitled "Thought of Friendship" and "Thought for Each Day."

Mrs. Lillian Berres reported 70 paid-up members. Mrs. Julia Haas announced that 35 cards were sent to the sick during the month of May, and Mrs. Minnie Ulrich reported that four baby cards were sent.

Members voted unanimously to purchase a spectrophotometer for the Providence Medical Center. The machine will allow the quick analysis of blood chemistry, which otherwise must be sent away and often take four or five days to get back.

President Bentack announced that the Hospital Auxiliary will be participating in a disaster program with the Providence Medical Center.

Norfolk Hosting State Meeting For Extension Club Members

Representatives from 2,000 Nebraska Home Extension clubs will be gathering in Norfolk June 9 and 10 for the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs (NCHEC) annual meeting.

The two-day conference will feature workshops on Extension programs for the coming year and personal enrichment workshops. A number of pre-convention tours will be offered to points of interest in Norfolk and surrounding areas on June 8 and the morning of June 9.

Officers for the coming year are to be selected and awards for outstanding Extension club work will be given. Also to be awarded are scholarships for homemakers as well as students.

According to Mrs. Alvin Scheve of Battle Creek, NCHEC president-elect and program chairman of the annual meeting, the theme of this year's conference is "Creative Woman-Homemakers of Today." Mrs. Vic Aulsebrook, president of the Nebraska Council, will preside over the two-day event.

Keynote speaker for the June 9 program will be Ann Kaiser, editor of Farm Wife News, a national monthly magazine for rural women, with circulation of more than 165,000. She has been with the magazine for the past five years and has also served as coordinator of the national Farm Women's Forum held in Wisconsin last November.

Two other speakers to address the convention will be Opal Mann, assistant administrator for Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Marge Seim, member of the Harrington Homecraft Club in Cedar County.

Poppies Net $253

Mrs. Hattie McNutt, chairman of poppy sales in Wayne, announced that $253.48 was collected during the sale last Thursday in Wayne's business district.

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary met at the Vet's Club to make poppy wreaths to decorate the graves of veterans on Memorial Day. The group also made tray favors for the month of July at the Providence Medical Center.

Mann will discuss national issues and thrusts in Extension work and Seim will provide a humorous note with her talk, entitled "The Not Impossible You."

A series of personal enrichment workshops will involve participants in a number of social issues and homemaking skills. Topics include how to be a shrewd shopper, decorating with flowers and plants, creativity with children's clothing, death and dying, solar energy, and child abuse.

Additional conference workshops will aid Home Extension Club members in planning programs for their local clubs. The sessions will emphasize family life, citizenship in action, cultural arts, membership growth and paramedic skills.

The Madison County Extension clubs are hosting the entire event, with assistance from Extension clubs in Antelope, Boyd, Cedar, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Holt, Pierce, Stanton, Thurston and Wayne counties.

Beckenbach-Dwinell Married May 14 at Redeemer Lutheran

MR. AND MRS. MARTIN DWINELL

Pollie Lynn Beckenbach, daughter of Mrs. Nadie Beckenbach of Coleridge and the late Fred Beckenbach, and Martin Jis Dwinell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Butts of Wayne and the late Dean Dwinell, exchanged wedding vows in a 7:30 p.m. ceremony May 14 at the Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Guests, registered by Edith Beckenbach of Coleridge, were ushered into the church by Wayne Butts of Wayne, Dean Wagner of Bloomfield and Loy Hetrick of Fremont.

Anita Ortman of Omaha sang "Sunrise, Sunset," "Evergreen," "For Baby, For Bobbie" and "One Hand, One Heart," accompanied by Pam Milander of Coleridge. The Rev. S.K. deFreese of Wayne officiated at the double ring rites.

LeRae Beckenbach of Coleridge attended the bride, and Tim Wert of Wayne was the bridegroom's attendant. Candlelighters were Jeff Hetrick of Fremont and Nancy Beckenbach of Coleridge.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Gary Hetrick, chose a floor-length gown of white organza adorned with Cluny lace. The high rise, fitted bodice featured a V-neckline enhanced with lace and pearls. The long, bishop sleeves, which ended in a ruffle cuff, were also accented with lace. A wide self ruffle and lace edged the hemline of the skirt, which flowed into a chapel-length train. The bride's mantilla veil was caught to a semi-Camelot headpiece covered with Cluny lace, and was edged in matching lace. She carried pink roses and blue carnations accented with baby's breath.

The bride's attendant wore a floor-length gown of pink polyester, styled with a square neckline and bows at each side of the waistline. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a corsage of daisies and carnations.

The bridegroom wore a white tuxedo and his attendant was attired in a blue tuxedo.

The bride's mother wore a blue polyester dress with pink accessories and the bridegroom's mother selected a blue polyester double knit, also accented with pink.

Janey Hetrick of Fremont served as hostess to the reception held in the church basement following the ceremony. Jan Butts of Wayne arranged gifts.

Janet Hartman of Longmont, Colo., and Betty Schamp of Erickson cut and served the cake. Gwen Meyers of Longmont, Colo., poured and Shirley Bremer of Scotia served punch.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Hyannis High School. The bridegroom graduated from Wayne High School in 1976 and plans to join the U.S. Navy in September. He is presently employed by Hesse Construction, Norfolk.

The couple took a wedding trip to the Black Hills, and are making their home at Rt. 1, Apt. 5, Pierce.

Homer Again Favored in NNBL, But Watchout for Wayne, Newcastle

Action in the eight-team Northeast Nebraska Baseball League unfolds this Sunday in the start of the long two-month season.

Defending champion Homer goes after another season crown when it travels to Allen-Martinsburg; Newcastle, which tied the Homer squad for the season award but lost its bid for the playoff championship, ventures to Wakefield; Wayne goes to Bancroft to take on the Pender-Bancroft team, and Dakota City plays host to Ponca.

Again this year Homer is the favorite to remain kingpin, but the champs are expected to get a lot of flak from Newcastle, Wayne and Dakota City, coaches agree.

Both Homer and Newcastle finished the regular season with 11-3 records while Wayne and Allen rounded out the top half with 9-5 and 7-6 records. Wakefield was sixth with a 4-9 mark.

League secretary Merlin "Lefty" Olson concedes that Dakota City may be the surprise club of the league, and Allen will be tough, also. The weak sisters in the league, he feels, are Ponca, Wakefield and Pender.

Wayne coach Don Goeden already has his starting lineup for Sunday night's opening battle. His veteran infield will consist of Fritz Weible on first, Terry Luft on second, Steve Hix at short and Larry Rabe on third. In the outfield will be Dakota City transfer Mike Green, Ray Nelson and Bob Nelson. Pitching duties for the first game will be shared by Lyle Blevins, a lefty, and Earle Overin. Behind the plate will be Mike Meyer.

Goeden feels that his crew is ready for Pender, a club which the coach notes will be a challenge. "We'll have a winning season if we keep healthy and stay away from softball," he emphasized.

Allen coach Neil Blohm was unavailable for comment.

At Wakefield, coach Max Gross is uncertain whether he wants to continue as the head man, according to Olson. As a result the Wakefield-Newcastle game may not be played Sunday, Olson added.

Regular season games will be played on Thursday and Sunday nights, unless they are rained out. In case of a rainout, the home team is responsible for rescheduling the game 10 days after the original date.

A total of 14 games are slated from Sunday through Thursday, July 21. Sandwiched in the middle of the season is See HOMER, page 5

Wayne Hosting Sanctioned Tennis Tournament in June

Some of the top tennis talent in the state and surrounding areas is expected to enter the first annual Wayne Open Tennis Tournament June 25 and 26 at Wayne State tennis courts.

The tournament which is the first in the city to be sanctioned by the United State Tennis Association, will be divided into 10 categories, said director Tom Roberts.

"We expect a lot of the big names in amateur tennis across the state to be here now that our club and the tournament are sanctioned," Roberts explained.

Members of the newly-formed Wayne-Tennis-Club will conduct the two-day meet, slated to start at 8 a.m. Saturday, June 25. Doubles will start at 1 o'clock.

Trophies will be awarded to the first and second-place finishers in men's open singles, women's open singles, men's 35 and over singles, women's 35 and over singles, and men's 45 and over singles. Also, trophies will be awarded in the three men's doubles divisions, women's doubles and mixed doubles.

Entry fee for sanctioned players is $5 for singles and $4 each for doubles. Each player is limited to two events. Entry blanks are available by writing to Roberts at 512 Valley Dr. in See WAYNE, page 5

Rain Halts Special Olympics Again

OVER 400 youths from around the state converged on Wayne State's Memorial Stadium for the running of the annual State Special Olympics. Despite threatening skies Friday, the youngsters were able to complete first-day activities, but rains Saturday morning forced them to halt the affair. The meet had all the makings of the summer Olympic meet held in Montreal. Before the start of activities, the contestants marched around the oval, displaying hometown banners. Heading up the march were a group of women from Offut Air Force Base in Omaha. Then came the ceremonial lighting of the torch with two runners sharing the distance over three-quarters of the track before the actual lighting.

Ellis Tourney Starts Friday At Wakefield

Legion teams from Wayne and Wakefield jump right into baseball action this week when they play in the 13-team Chuck Ellis Memorial Baseball Tournament at Wakefield.

Wayne takes on highly-rated Sioux City Heelan Friday night at 6 and Wakefield goes against Class A toughie Norfolk Saturday night at 6.

A win for both area teams would put them into the semifinals on Monday and give them a chance to vie either in the consolation or championship games Tuesday.

Director Paul Eaton has lined up some of the top talent in the area and surrounding states. From South Dakota comes state runnerup Aberdeen with 11 returning starters, and Sioux Falls, which boasted a .9-10 mark last season.

Backstop / Bob Bartlett

AFTER READING in Sunday's Omaha paper that my favorite driver from Lincoln, Joe Saldana, was in the running for a position in the Indianapolis 500, I was all primed up to glue my eyes and ears to the rerun of the race Sunday night on television.

"But wouldn't you know it, Lil' Joe got bumped off the list of 33 drivers in the final runs Sunday to cancel those hopes."

Last time I saw Joe was in Lincoln during the middle and late 1960's during my college days when I often hung around the dirt tracks in Lincoln and Eagle just to watch him duel another top driver in the Capitol City, Lloyd Beckman.

Those two really had some good matches as they weaved in and out of traffic and ended up in a head-to-head battle for first, right down to the wire. Joe was relatively new to the Lincoln scene, so naturally he was a favorite underdog to knock off Beckman in his supermodified tagged "4".

Saldana, who qualified Saturday at 26th with a speed of 184.596, was the third driver Sunday to be bumped out of the race.

The Indy rookie no doubt would have had a good following cheering for him, both in his homeland and at the track.

CLOSER TO HOME: No doubt one former Wayne resident who will be at the Indy track is former pastor of St. Mary's Church, Father Paul Begley. Every year he makes the trek to the 500 along with his brothers who own a fire equipment company in Omaha.

It's easy to spot him. He's the bald-headed man in the dark suit clinging on to an extinguisher.

I remember phrasing his appearance on TV just that way after he returned from a race several years ago. His reaction: Just a smile.

P.S. Father Begley's favorite driver, Billy Yukavich, made the finals and should be a strong contender.

NO MAKE-UP date has been set for the Ike's fishing derby, postponed Saturday due to the weather.

According to derby co-chairman Dick Ditman, members will meet sometime next month to set a date. We'll pass along the new date later.

THE WAY coach Hank Overin sees the race in this year's Ralph Bishop league, Wayne, Emerson and Wakefield are the favorites in the Midgets and Bancroft, Pender and Wakefield look to be the strong horses in Juniors.

Sizing up his team's chances of being a contender in the Junior ranks, Overin pointed out that "We'll have to go like hell just to keep up with the group. If we don't we'll be the strong team in the league — holding 'em up."

THREE AREA clubs tried to get into the League, but were voted down. Lyons, Winside and Hubbard wanted to field Junior teams only because they didn't have enough players to form Midgets. For that reason League board members fixed their requests to join.

"We're willing to go nine or 10 Midget teams if we can get them to bring Legion teams also," Overin pointed out. The League wants to increase the number of Junior teams in order to cut down the traveling for other clubs seeking more games, he added.

Junior High Boys Rate First in Loop

Truck Tipped;

Driver Not Hurt

Ray Street of rural Carroll was not injured when the truck he was driving left the road and tipped over Tuesday afternoon. Street was westbound on a county road two miles north and a little over one mile east of Wayne at about 12:25 p.m. when the accident occurred.

The driver told the Wayne County sheriff's department he was attempting to pull down some loose insulation from the truck cab roof when the vehicle's wheels went off the south side of the road.

He was unable to regain control and the truck rolled off the left side of the road, tipped on its side and dumped out six cows and six calves. One calf was injured. Damage to the truck was moderate.

Class Moving to Copenhagen

"A particularly significant academic program in Copenhagen" will be offered this summer according to Ed Elliott, vice president for academic affairs at Wayne State College.

Former governor and ambassador Val Peterson will highlight the academic program with lectures along with former U.S. Information office Norman Nordstrand. Three-time Nebraska governor Peterson served as the American ambassador to Denmark in 1957-61 and to Finland in 1969-73.

Peterson is currently the distinguished professor of political science and Public Affairs at Wayne State College.

Nordstrand, former cultural attaché of the U.S. Embassy in Norway and then director of the information service and public affairs office in the United States Embassy in Denmark, lived over 15 years in Scandinavia.

He will serve as a special assistant and advisor for the Scandinavian tour scheduled for June 15-July 22.

Currently 37 persons are attending the Scandinavian Institute according to Charles Kay, director of international education. Students will stay for 14 days at Herning on the Jutland peninsula, journey to Oslo and Bergen, Norway and spend several days in Copenhagen. Here students will be able to visit the Lord Mayor of Copenhagen, the Royal Danish Foreign Ministry, and the United States Embassy in Denmark.

Throughout their travels students will have the opportunity to hear prominent speakers from the political and academic Scandinavian world. Included will be members of parliament, officials from the ministries of government, and leading professors from the universities.

The first International Education program to England and Scotland is about ready to get off the ground with 32 persons attending according to Kay. This program offers a seven-day stay in Edinburgh, two days in the historical city of York, and 14 days in London.

A special feature, five days of unlimited free travel, will let the students roam as they will throughout Scotland and England. Participants will be off Tuesday, May 31, returning June 28.

After England and Scotland travelers take off, 19 persons will be off to Germany, where the academic program will locate in Bingen, Germany. A variety of excursions have been planned from this spot, including Frankfurt, Heidelberg, and Bonn.

This year an optional trip to Bavaria and Austria will also be offered in the institute running from June 8 through July 7.

Both travelers to Germany and to Spain (June 28-July 26) will be given a special treat this year — an afternoon and evening in Paris, France.

The Spanish Institute is the only program still open for more participants. Persons interested should contact Charles Kay in the International Education Office in the Hahn Administration Building.

Twenty-five persons are currently signed up for the trip including a two-week grand tour of Spain's historical cities and 16 days in Valencia, location of the academic program.

This year an optional three-day tour is offered under the Spanish program to Palma, de Mallorca, an island 200 miles off the east coast of Spain.

This would allow working adults to complete a bachelor's degree while remaining in Norfolk."

Thought for Today
By Rowan Wiltse

"He is the happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home..."
Goethe

A man's home may be his castle but it won't bring him much happiness unless it is a peaceful sanctuary, a place where he can get away from those daily trials and problems that everyone has.

A peaceful home is one where family relationships are dependably loving and considerate. Everyone in that home draws strength from the warmth of the atmosphere that prevails. The peaceful hovel of the peasant is a happier place than the turret-ridden castle of the king.

Our years of service to this community have been characterized by total integrity, dignity and good taste. You may call us at any hour of the day or night.

Churchwomen Host May Mother-Daughter Tea

A Mother-Daughter Tea was the special event in May for the Women of the Wakefield, Covenant Church.

The evening meeting opened with a welcome by Mrs. Malcolm Jensen and a flute solo by Dianne Minola. Mrs. Elmer Carlson read Scripture verses on light and darkness.

The theme "We Seek to Cast Bright Shadows" was brought out vividly with shadows cast on a sheet to reveal the various ways our lives touch others.

Narrators Mrs. Francis Muller and Mrs. Myron Olson spoke of shadows one can't prevent or escape, as young Kristine Swigart jumped rope and cast play shadows.

Daughters of the mothers, in grades kindergarten through fourth grade, sang "Jesus Bids Us Shine," and "This Little Light of Mine."

Silhouettes of three generations, "Mabel Fleetwood," Mrs. Paul Byers and Dilynne Byers, brought to memory the distinct impressions loved ones have cast into each of our lives.

Sue Gardner and Sharon Crossdale sang "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."

A shadow of a crude cross appeared as a symbol of the place where one must each stand for forgiveness, strength and purpose in life. Heidi Carlson sang "Beneath the Cross of Jesus."

As the program concluded the prayer of each individual was to cast the very best shadow through this life she possibly can. Patty Minger sang "Trust and Obey," and Mrs. Nell Peterson closed with prayer.

Recognition was given to the oldest mother, Mabel Fleetwood, the youngest mothers, twins Jeanette Hassler and Jeanene Hassler, the youngest daughter, Sarah Everingham, daughter of the Ken Everingham, and the mother with the most children and grandchildren, Mrs. Milton Gustafson.

Lunch was served from a table decorated with spring flowers and a mother and daughter doll casting shadows on the table cloth.

Hostesses were Mabel Fleetwood, Mrs. Paul Byers, Mrs. Marlow Gustafson, Mrs. Melvin Hanson, Mrs. Gilbert Sharp and Mrs. John Viken.

Woods —

 farmsteads, along with their windbreaks, have been cleared for planting.
 In addition, Gavitt said, economics have dictated that farmers cultivate as much land as possible.
 The result has been less wooded acreage available for timber, wildlife habitat, and recreational uses.
 People are planting trees, Gavitt said. In fact natural resource districts last year assisted with planting of some three million seedlings on private land in the state. Plantings, however, just haven't kept pace with removals, Gavitt said.
 The forester said there is an encouraging note for people concerned about the decline in woodland areas in the state where Arbor Day originated. Gavitt said he thinks the rate of tree removal is slowing and probably not too much more clearing of timber areas will take place.

Downtown —

 will be a new sidewalk on Main St. within the downtown improvement district, with width remaining as it now; narrower, 10-foot sidewalk on side streets in the district, and 42-inch wide curb and gutter. Alleys on Main St. between Second and Fourth Streets will be closed according to plans now.
 The council received but did not discuss results of a survey conducted in the downtown area regarding display of merchandise on sidewalks.
 The issue was raised at the last meeting and is expected to be included on the regular agenda Tuesday night.
 A total of 30 questionnaires was distributed to downtown merchants with 25 responding; 11 favored sidewalk displays, 13 were against, and one was neutral.
 One of the 11 positive responses, nine preferred a three-foot area for display, one preferred a two-foot area, and one had no preference.
 Comments in favor of sidewalk displays included:
 —Merchandise should be displayed on the sidewalks if it is done in an orderly manner.
 —It is impossible to operate a business without putting rental items outside on the sidewalks.
 —Let us run our businesses without interference.
 —Anything that can be done to promote business and produce sales is an asset.
 Comments against sidewalk displays include:
 —Sidewalk displays take away from the beauty of the city, especially when a new downtown improvement plan is underway.
 —The displaying of merchandise on the sidewalks would make the downtown area look like a gigantic rummage sale.
 —If the merchants cannot find room in their own establishments, they should build on.
 —Why should merchants be allowed to display merchandise on the sidewalk when the city or state would not allow some people to put anything on the front of their building more than 18 inches long.
 —Displays should be allowed only during "Dog Days" or during special sidewalk sales by all merchants.
 —There are too many blind people who we must be concerned with.
 —Side streets should not be affected by this.

Criminal code revision passed after lengthy reading

CAPITOL NEWS
LINCOLN — It took nearly six hours to complete the job, but the task of reading every word in nearly 800 pages of Nebraska's revised criminal code was completed recently in the legislature.

After the voluminous material has been read, the lawmakers gave it their final stamp of approval and sent it along to the governor for his perusal and consideration.

Passage of the legislation marked the first comprehensive revision of Nebraska's criminal statutes in more than a century and capped more than six years of work by the Unicameral's Judiciary Committee.

The new code won't go into effect until July 1, 1978, and it is a certainty it will be revised before that date.

The legislators have scheduled further study of the code this summer and will call on members of the legal profession and the public to get ideas on how it should be amended.

In addition, a seven-member code review committee was set up by the legislature.

Speaker Roland Luedtke, who was chairman of the Judiciary Committee while the new code was being developed, said final passage of the four bills needed to cover all the changes in the criminal statutes was gratifying. He said the years of hard work had been rewarded by the acceptance of many of the committee proposals.

Several times during the lengthy debate of the code, it was Luedtke who spoke out against further delay of a vote on the legislation. His argument was that every senator had plenty of opportunities to acquaint himself with the revisions that were being proposed.

He also emphasized the Judiciary Committee had sought the advice of many experts and had held numerous public hearings before preparing the bills.

The hottest debate on the code was triggered by its sections on abortion, drug abuse and sexual assault.

Little was done on statutes dealing with gambling, but Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln said an interim study will be devoted to that area.

Budget Debate

As far as overall spending recommendations were concerned, Gov. J. James Exon and the legislature agreed this year was a time for fiscal restraint.

While they differed on some specifics, the legislators and the governor proposed spending about the same amount next fiscal year in the operation of the state's government.

During debate of one of the budget bills, Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora argued the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources has been "at the end of the trough" in the allocation by the legislature of funds for salaries and improvement.

But he was unable to muster enough support for a $598,000 addition to the budget for the institute next fiscal year.

Kremer cited a dozen areas in agricultural education and research that he thought worthy of extra funds. But his amendment to add the money lost on a 19-19 vote.

At the suggestion of Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, the lawmakers did approve additional money for the fight against pseudobabies, an animal disease that has been common in much of the state this spring.

The senators turned down on amendments that would have increased the state's appropriation for technical community colleges by $800,000 but several days later approved a $300,000 hike for those schools.

About $14 million in capital construction funds were authorized for various state agencies. Only about $3.7 million of the total would come from the state's general fund. The remainder would be furnished by the revenue sharing trust fund and the cigarette tax.

Turned down was a proposed amendment that would have earmarked $2.3 million for construction on the maximum security unit of the State Penal Complex in Lincoln.

It was obvious during the debate that some of the legislators are miffed because construction has not begun on penal facilities that were authorized several years ago.

It appeared some of the planning made at that time may be outdated because prison populations have increased significantly. There are several hundred more inmates at the penitentiary than were anticipated when the plans were drawn.

Sunshine Reversal

The legislature recently did an about-face on implementation of the Nebraska Political Accountability and Disclosure Act.

The lawmakers reversed a previous decision to delay the effective date of the act one year.

The governor had advised the senators he would veto a delay in implementation and some of them said the law should be in effect before the 1978 primary and general elections.

The bill, known as the "Sunshine Act," provides guidelines, rules and regulations governing all political activities in the state.

Those who supported postponement of its effective date argued it would be difficult, if not impossible, to implement without more amendments. They said the legislation was hastily drawn and would require numerous revisions.

One of the last changes tacked onto the measure provides that lobbyists won't have to keep receipts for food and drink expenditures of less than $25. They will, however, still have to account for such spending.

Road Signs

The legislators changed their minds on an amendment to a budget bill dealing with removal of road signs that do not satisfy federal regulations.

First, the legislature approved an amendment that would have precluded the State Roads Department from spending about $250,000 to tear down billboards not in compliance with federal guidelines.

They later rescinded that action, but a day later approved still another revision under which the Roads Department may spend only $50,000 to take down the signs.

Primary sponsor of the $50,000 amendment was Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, who believes none of the signs should be destroyed.

The reason the matter was up for discussion was that some of the senators feared the state might lose $5 million in federal road dollars if the state refused to comply with the wishes of the federal government.

DeCamp and several of his colleagues said they believed the threat that some of Uncle Sam's money might be withheld was nothing but a bluff.

They noted the Federal Highway Administration threatened for several years to withhold funding from Nebraska if the state did not enact motorcycle helmet legislation—but never followed through with any kind of action.

Carter Social Security reform rapped

The Social Security system is now paying out more money than it is taking in. And if nothing is done, the situation will get worse.

There is no dispute about these points, which are easily verified mathematically. But what to do? Over that there is plenty of argument.

The range of choice for a solution is equally easy to see: Find more money somewhere or reduce benefits.

The Carter Administration has proposed to do a little of both. First, the growth rate of future benefits (not present benefits) would be reduced. Second, more money would be raised by two key changes in the financing system.

Revising the benefit formula is an excellent idea, and not nearly as pinch-penny as it sounds. Thanks to an oversight in earlier Social Security legislation, the level of benefits at retirement is now being increased so rapidly that many people retiring around the turn of the century would be eligible for pensions higher than their pay.

The proposed fix is to freeze the size of the pension at about the same proportion of pay as it is now, increasing it in the future only to keep up with inflation. In other words, future Social Security beneficiaries would do as well proportionately as present beneficiaries, but no better. I doubt if many thinking people will object to this first change. It is certainly not to the advantage of Social Security recipients to "break the bank" with demands of pensions larger than the working generation is able to pay.

The second part of the Carter package — the financing changes — will be much more controversial. The Administration wants to raise more money by increasing the proportion of the tax paid by employers on behalf of their employees (the total tax is now split 50-50 between the employer and the employee), and by permitting the use of general revenues under certain circumstances.

I accept the need for a small tax increase to protect the system. And business is willing to pay its share. But I do not like the Administration formula.

Any government program that invites us to vote ourselves money from the public treasury is dangerous. It is dangerous because there will always be politicians around who promise — as Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Califano is now promising — that the money can be created out of thin air. And there will always be voters around ready to accept this welcome news. But inflation is the price we pay for that money from nowhere, as most people are beginning to realize.

The Social Security program was designed to prevent our generous impulses from leading to disaster. The key safety device was tying taxes to benefits. When Social Security benefits went up, Social Security taxes would have to be increased correspondingly, on both employers and employees. Thus, the discouragement caused the taxpayers would act as a check on the politicians' urge to buy votes by handing out more money. This is why we should retain the 50-50 partnership in tax payments.

Even with that checkrein, Congress has been too liberal with the benefits schedule, which is part of the reason the Social Security system is now heading for insolvency. (The lower birthrate of recent years is the other big reason for trouble. There will be fewer workers in the future to support more retirees.)

You can imagine, then, the added danger of removing the only inhibition to complete financial irresponsibility in the management of the system. And that is, in effect, what the Administration proposes: Take the extra money from places where the voter won't feel it directly — general revenues and corporate income. The indirect effects of such a policy — inflation, unemployment, economic stagnation — are not easy for the average person to connect with their causes.

Well, I think this shell game is unwise at the least, if not patently immoral. Social Security is too important to too many people to make of it a political football and an economic nightmare. — Richard Lester, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Rural-urban division said exaggerated

The division between rural vs. urban voting blocs in the Nebraska Legislature has been exaggerated during the current session in debate over several of the major issues. . . . the state aid to education bill and the personal property tax exemption bill.

State senators debating a bill on the floor are very much inclined to use oversimplifications which may sound good to their constituents. A freshman senator from Omaha has repeatedly in this session contended that the people of the Lincoln and Omaha area pay the major portion of the sales and income taxes in the state and are subsidizing the rural areas of Nebraska unfairly. On the losing side in an amendment vote on one of the measure he warned the outstate senators, "You're doing it to us now, but in another three years there will be another reapportionment of the Legislature and we'll do it to you."

Several of the outstate senators on occasion have pointed out that a portion of the sales tax credited to a hub community are paid by the people of the trade territory who come there to shop because of the greater availability of goods and services offered. Certainly the businesses and industries of the state's major trading communities understand and appreciate this business, which many times comes from across state lines from Iowa, Kansas, and other adjacent states.

What is pure fallacy is for a senator from Omaha, or Scottsbluff, or Lincoln, to take those sales tax figures and claim credit on a per capita basis for his community. It is equally a case of "juggling the figures" to take the state income tax figures from such centers for the wealth of a region and say, "Look what our people are paying in income taxes as compared to you people out in the rest of Nebraska."

Such claims are irritating to the rural agricultural interests of Nebraska and they deserve to be challenged as basically demagogic and uninformed. But in reality, the split between urban and rural senators is not as great as that threat about "in three years we're going to be able to do it to you."

The margin between outstate senators and urban senators has been shrinking steadily for many years as the population has shifted to the major cities of the state and particularly to the metropolitan areas. It has been and will continue to be a fact of life and an object of concern. But one has to keep some perspective. Although there are fewer farmers and ranchers, the agricultural industry has grown in a period of 10 years from a $2 billion per year industry to a $4 billion per year industry.

The spinoff in related manufacturing, distribution and supply industries provides many thousands of jobs throughout the state. As the economic health of Nebraska's agriculture goes, so goes the economic health of the entire state economy, including the state's tax revenues. Every Chamber of Commerce in Nebraska would admit this and have the figures to verify it. So would every major newspaper, radio and television station and turning to the marketing analysis developed for its sales department.

In actual voting in the Nebraska legislature there is rarely a clearly defined bloc of "rural vs. urban." Observers of legislative action know that Omaha and Lincoln senators regularly split among themselves on many issues, especially when it involves an issue peculiar to the boundaries of their own city limits. And rural senators split on issues confined to outstate conditions.

"What is good for Nebraska" generally is good for all Nebraskans because rural and urban interests actually are so entwined and interdependent that they cannot be isolated one from the other. — M.M. Van Kirk, Nebraska Farm Bureau.

OBSERVATIONS

A waste of time

Nebraska voters in the last general election rejected a proposed constitutional amendment which would have rescinded a requirement that all bills be read in their entirety before final passage.

The Unicameral last week spent six hours reading some 800 pages of the revised criminal code before passage. It was the first comprehensive revision of the state's criminal statutes and the job certainly wasn't done overnight. The revision was a long, carefully considered process which sparked plenty of debate.

The senators still were forced to waste a day in a too short legislative session while readers droned on at a barely audible pitch, merely to satisfy an antiquated rule. Retention of the rule was the will of the people. But we supported the amendment which would have done away with the final reading, and the reciting of the criminal code, we think, illustrates that keeping the rule was ill-advised. — Jim Strayer.

Reflections on board decision

Dear Editor:
About eight weeks ago when I learned that the Winside board of education had voted 2-3 against the motion "not to renew" my husband, Ronald Peck's, contract, I felt angry and resentful.

School board member Harlin Brugger moved not to renew coach Peck's contract and Dennis Bowers seconded this. I believe that anytime someone votes to remove a person from his position that the person doing the voting should at least have enough sense of fair play to state a reason. This was not the case with Mr. Brugger or Mr. Bowers.

After the annual evaluation of teachers at Winside High School, the administrators told Mr. Peck that they had recommended to the board that his performance both as a teacher and coach was satisfactory and that his contract should be renewed. In spite of this, Mr. Brugger and Mr. Bowers voted to terminate his contract.

It seems ironic that two people who have never been trained in the field of education or who have never coached high school students a day in their lives can find so much fault with a teaching veteran of fourteen years, who for eleven years has coached successful athletic teams. It is also unbelievable how these gentlemen can disagree with the recommendation of professional administrators, considering the fact that neither board member has observed a classroom session or an athletic practice.

Incidentally, if we are considering coaching records, coach Peck coached his football team at Winside to an 11 win, 7 loss record. His wrestling team of 1976 placed second in the state, and in 1977 it placed third — hardly a record to warrant termination of a contract.

This then would imply some other reason for these two gentlemen's votes. If the best education is a "cheap education" then perhaps Mr. Peck's masters degree could be the reason for the negative votes? If neither of these items is the problem, then let us hear the actual reason.

In the past eight weeks we have decided to leave Winside. And in putting the action of the board in perspective, I realize that there is only one way to view the situation. Coach Peck is only another in a chain of teacher-coaches with whom certain members of the Winside board have been dissatisfied.

In 1975-76 both the head and assistant basketball coaches were dismissed from their coaching positions. As a result, these men left Winside, leaving the science department without a physics or chemistry teacher for a whole semester.

I wonder if the members of the board who are so concerned with coaches and their records are even aware of the purpose of athletics in the public school? Do they know what the responsibilities and pressures of working with young adults actually are? Have they ever organized a program directing high school students doing anything, let alone teaching them to execute the skills of a sport and also keeping the "sidelines" happy. I have been a coach's wife for eleven years. I have watched Coach Peck develop teams and help to mold the lives of young men in four schools prior to Winside. Each time coach Peck has resigned before, the school boards have expressed regret in seeing him leave.

My main concern in this matter is to question if the members of the school board who would fire coaches each time things are not done their way are really representing the wishes of the people who have elected them, and who pay the taxes which support the schools. Since we have decided to leave Winside, many people have expressed the view to us that they "hate to see coach Peck go." Coach Peck has secured another coaching job and is definitely leaving. But for those of you who have expressed regret at his leaving, I hope that you will remember this when contract time again comes and yet another teacher-coach may be under the fire of the school board.

Take time to contact the school board members and express your views as citizens who are concerned about the overall education of your students. Another suggestion to help improve the situation: Next time you find yourself in the voting booth and a new board of education members is to be elected, ask yourself what kind of representation you want for your school? Is "saving a dollar" a worthy platform; is keeping the downtown "sidelines" happy a significant purpose for seeking election?

The best criteria for choosing school board members is to do a little inquiring before you mark the ballot to try to determine which of the candidates is going to be concerned about keeping the quality educator in the system and which one is capable of rising above the influence of people who sometimes want to change things without knowing exactly what they are doing.

Teaching is a profession which requires a great deal of dedication and ability. Some people in education probably do simply as a job; this is not the case with coach Peck. He keeps at it because he truly loves what he is doing and "gives it everything he has." This is why I have stated my views in this letter.

Education needs people who are this dedicated, but with the kind of record the Winside school board has in firing coaches, we will see more and more of the good teachers and coaches leaving the profession for occupations which are not so dependent on uninformed individuals to do the "voting" on their jobs. — Mrs. Ronald Peck.

'Public kept in dark'

Dear Editor:
Like in so many cases the general public is kept in the dark of a governmental decision. You have been reading and hearing on the news the government would like to stop the delivery of mail on Saturdays. This letter pertains to this possibility and is the view point of a concerned citizen.

The postal service management claims it can save thousands of dollars a year by stopping your Saturday mail delivery. This is fine, for I'm a strong believer in saving money, especially when it's taxpayers' money, but it is worth giving up the service?

When the United States Postal Service went into effect it eliminated smaller post offices, reduced the work force and the hours of the working employees, to help curb the cost, but in doing this it has cut out much of the service to the public.

The postal service has eliminated many letter carriers in the past few years by forced retirement and adding to the routes. Now non-delivery of mail on Saturdays? If this ever becomes law it would put many postal employees out of work. The government would spend more than it is trying to save on unemployment.

Also, once Saturday delivery is discontinued the public possibly will never get it back, the service would be lost. It could delay your mail three days. The postal service was never designed to make money. It was made up to be a service to its people.

We as citizens have very few services left. I would not like to see the delivery of Saturday mail stopped, so I urge you, the American people to write your Congressman (Charles Thone) to protest the discontinuation of Saturday mail delivery. Let's keep one of the few services we have left.

Sincerely — Paul A. Telgren.
Thone's address is: Congressman Charles Thone, U.S. House of Representatives, Rayburn Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Top Prize Still Goes Unclaimed

Still waiting to be claimed is the $750 jackpot in the weekly Birthday Bucks promotion. No one last week could match his or her birth date with the winning date of Jan. 20, 1891, but a Wayne man, Walter Lerner, came close.

Lerner was born on Dec. 15, 1891, good enough to win him the $25 consolation award. He was shopping in Doeschler's Appliance-Sales and Service last Thursday night when Bill Lueders of Bill's GW drew the winning date.

To be a winner, a shopper must be present in a participating Wayne business when the date is drawn. Tonight (Thursday) shoppers will have that chance to win if they are in a store for the 8:15 p.m. drawing.

WSC Names 282 To Honor List

Wayne State College students earning high grade point averages for the winter term 1977 were recently named to the honor roll by registrar Virginia Wright. Two hundred and eighty-two students made the academic list with grade point averages of 3.50 and above.

A perfect grade point average is 4.0. Seventy Wayne State students earned this top grade rating. The juniors seemed to be the brainiest bunch of students with 94 of the third year students composing a large part of the honor roll. Twenty-seven of these students earned perfect grade point averages. The freshmen followed next with 80 students on the list and 16 earning perfect grades for the winter term.

Fifty-nine sophomores and 49 seniors made up the rest of the honor roll. Of these figures, 11 sophomores and 16 seniors earned perfect grade point averages. Geographically the majority of honor roll students, 227, came from Nebraska. From Iowa came 45 WSC students who made the honor roll. Nine other students on the honor roll came from the following states: Colorado, South Dakota, California, Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

Wives May Qualify For Payments

Working wives who become disabled sometimes don't realize that they may be eligible for social security disability payments even though their husbands are working, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk. "Under the law," Branch said, "a wife and her children can get social security disability payments on her work record regardless of her husband's earnings—if she has worked long enough in jobs covered by social security. The children can get payments until they're 18, or 22 if they're full-time students in school and remain unmarried. A working wife facing a long-term disability should get in touch with a social security office without delay to get information about applying for disability benefits," he said. Social security pays monthly benefits to eligible workers under 65 and their families if the worker is severely disabled and not expected to be able to do any substantial work for a year or more. Payment generally starts with the 6th full month of disability. To be eligible for social security disability payments, most workers need six and one-half years of work under social security with five years of it in the 10 years before they became disabled. For workers disabled before 31, the requirement ranges down to as little as one and one-half years of work, depending on age.

Fire Management Is Changing

Fire has been used as a cleanup tool for centuries on a variety of scales, from "slash and burn" agriculture to clean land for crops down to the present where wheat stubble is burned after harvest and the homeowner burns the day's trash in the backyard.

Management of fire as a "servant" is changing under the pressures of more restrictive air pollution regulations, according to Donald Westover, extension fire management coordinator for the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"An ever-increasing number of wildlife resulting from careless open burning also has prompted additional regulations of this activity," the University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist said.

Three types of regulations now limit the uses of fire by rural and city residents:

—Ordinances by municipalities and counties. Many large municipalities and more populated counties have ordinances which prohibit or restrict open burning within corporate limits.

—Rule 11 of the Nebraska Air Pollution Control Rules and Regulations states, "no person shall cause or allow any open fires." This rule has six exceptions; two of which say: 1. agricultural burning can be done by the landowner on his own land; and 2. burning household refuse on residential premises by the people residing there is permissible provided there are 10 or fewer dwelling units on the premises, and there are no local ordinances.

—State fire marshal's burning ban. Frequently, after extended periods of dry weather, the state fire marshal imposes a state-wide ban on all open burning. When the ban is in effect, open burning can be done only with the permission of the local fire chief.

After determining that open burning is legal, there are safety considerations to take into account, Westover said.

Hazardous burning may be caused by winds over 10 miles per hour. Winds of this speed are capable of picking up and carrying pieces of burning material, which may start fires outside the controlled area, he noted.

Burn trash in a burning barrel worn on the top. The barrel should be free of holes in the side and the area around the barrel should be cleared down to bare soil five feet from the barrel, Westover recommended.

"Locate a debris pile to be burned away from buildings and other high hazard areas," he said. Plowing a fireline a minimum of three feet wide around the debris is recommended and sufficient equipment to fight the fire should be available, according to Westover.

He said large scale burning should be attempted only by persons knowledgeable in fire behavior. Field burning is not advisable or even beneficial as it robs the soil of needed organic material. Alternatives such as plowing under or stubble mulching may be wiser, Westover said.

A six-foot fireline around the field is sufficient and the burning should be reported to the local fire department to avoid a false alarm, Westover said.

DON C. SPITZE
WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Wayne County 4-H is trying something new this year. It's called a 4-H Ambassador Club. All 4-Hers who participated in the Wayne County Timely Topic Speech Contest in 1977, received a purple ribbon and are willing to give their speeches at other meetings are on the 4-H Ambassador Club speakers roster.

The following 4-Hers are on the 1977 speakers roster: Kris Anderson, Wayne; Judy Bauermeister, Wayne; Cindy Bull, Wayne; Dawn Droscher, Wayne; Marvin Hansen, Wayne; Braine Johs, Wayne; Todd Manulak, Wakefield; Mike Rethwisch, Wayne; Barbara Svoboda, Pender; Barbara and Bruce Wichman, Pender.

These 4-Hers are eager to give their speeches at various organizations. If anyone is interested in providing an opportunity for the 4-Hers to speak just contact the Extension Office and I'll send you a brochure and explain how these youngsters can be obtained.

solve special problems they might encounter in their project such as correcting incorrectly mounted beetles, straightening of wings of moths and preventing mold of collected insects.

These two slide sets, along with a script, should be very useful in teaching other 4-Hers about 4-H entomology.

Bake Sale
The Teen Supremes, Wayne County junior leaders, have just completed two bake sales. This is part of their money making projects. They use this to support many worthwhile 4-H projects in the county.

4-H Club Week
A number of Wayne County 4-Hers will be attending 4-H Club Week June 7-10 at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln. Youngsters from throughout the state meet on the campus to learn more about state government, industry, the university, as well as have a lot of fun.

Those 4-Hers who plan to attend include Carla Berg, Anita Sandahl, Mike Finn and Sheila Gramlich.

Congratulations
Mike Rethwisch, a very active Wayne County 4-H'er, recently received a Daniel Bestor scholarship for use in attending the School of Agriculture, University of Nebraska. Mike will be enrolled in entomology this fall.

A former Wayne County 4-H'er, Steve Gramlich, who is now attending the School of Agriculture at the University of Nebraska has received an Ak-Sar-Ben scholarship for the 1977-78 school year. Congratulations to both of these students.

Slides
If anyone visited the parking lot of the courthouse shortly before noon on May 19 they would have seen me busy taking pictures of Mike Rethwisch.

Actually I wasn't interested in taking pictures of Mike, but of his insects. Mike has been state 4-H entomology champion and I took 72 photo slides of his showing how to properly mount insects.

The first set of slides were entitled "Basic Mounting Techniques." In this set of slides Mike demonstrates how to mount butterflies, beetles, true bugs, flies, wasps, and grasshoppers to name just a few.

These slides are being prepared as a teaching tool. They will be shown to other 4-Hers so they can learn more about the 4-H entomology project and mounting techniques.

Mike and I did another set of slides on special problems in mounting. These sets of slides are for teaching 4-Hers how to increase emphasis is being placed on the economics of irrigation under increased water scarcity, according to a report through the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"Water Resources Research in the Department of Agricultural Economics, 1963-77" also emphasizes legal aspects of implementing water policy alternatives, according to J. David Aiken; UN-L Extension water law specialist. The report summarizes results of past research as well as citing current water studies.

Water Report Available

In general, Aiken said, the department's research has dealt with the evaluation of policy alternatives associated with water management. Research efforts have focused on the economics of irrigation, the economic evaluation of water projects, and legal-institutional research.

Copies of "Water Resources Research in the Department of Agricultural Economics, 1963-77" (Report No. 76) may be obtained by contacting the Department of Agricultural Economics, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Scabies Problem Is Concern

The possibility of cattle scabies spreading in Nebraska is a continuing concern for livestock producers, a UN-L Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources spokesman said this week.

Dr. Charles Francis, extension veterinarian, said the danger of spread from infected herds is very remote, for these herds have been quarantined and are being treated under the supervision of state and federal veterinarians. However, he noted that there has been some spread from the recent Dawson County infestation in spite of strict quarantine.

"The real danger of spread is from importing cattle infested with the mites," Dr. Francis said. Scabies spread from imported cattle can best be controlled by dipping the animals before admitting them to the feedlot or herd. Livestock producers without dipping facilities can make prior arrangements with veterinarians or feedlots that do custom dipping. Spraying and pour-ons will not control the mite that causes scabies — it will only slow the pest down, the veterinarian warned.

Severe scabies infestations cause extensive economic losses to the producers, and for this reason, it is a reportable disease, he continued. "Some livestock producers however, attempt to keep their scabies infestations from coming to the attention of regulatory agencies concerned with control. In most attempted cover-ups, it costs the individuals more through reported treatments and weight-gain losses," Francis said. Stockmen should be assured of a health certificate from the seller before agreeing to purchase cattle, he added.

Persistent licking, rubbing or scratching of cattle should alert the producer to the possibility of scabies being present, Dr. Francis said. Most commonly the mites causing scabies multiply most rapidly and produce the most severe skin lesions during fall, winter and spring. They become less active in the summer and symptoms will disappear.

"With humid conditions, however, summer activity of mites may be great enough to cause clinical symptoms. Symptoms of mite infestations will appear again in the fall when the temperature becomes cooler," he said.

In certain African tribes a woman may not use words appearing in the names of her in-laws.

UN-L Agronomist Makes Herbicide Recommendations

Herbicides applied at crop planting time may not always work — too well, — said Russell Moomaw, district extension agronomist at the Northeast Station.

Lack of rainfall, poor seedbed conditions, and other factors may be responsible for the poor weed control, Moomaw said.

Some rescue type postemergence herbicide treatments can be used on row crops, he noted. Beginning with corn, Atrazine is labeled for application on emerged corn and weeds. Grass weeds should be one inch or less in height for good kill. Addition of crop oil is recommended when using Atrazine postemergence. Bladex 80 per cent wettable powder is also labeled for postemergence application on corn. Apply Bladex only through the four leaf stage of corn. The liquid Bladex formulation is not cleared for postemergence application on corn. Crop oil should not be used with Bladex. Both Bladex and Atrazine work best as postemergence sprays when rainfall occurs after application.

Grain sorghum can also be sprayed postemergence with Atrazine for grass and broadleaf weed control. As on corn, best kill on weeds can be expected if grass weeds are one inch or less in height. Crop oil should also be used when spraying Atrazine postemergence on grain or forage sorghum.

Both corn and sorghum can be sprayed postemergence with 2,4-D for broadleaf weed control. Moomaw said, 2,4-D should be applied through the eight-inch corn height. Drop nozzles should be used for corn taller than eight inches. Use of a surfactant should not be used with 2,4-D on corn because of increased potential for corn injury, Moomaw said.

Only Basagran is recommended by the agronomist for post-emergence broadleaf weed control in soybeans. He advised consulting the label for correct height of weeds to be killed. Basagran will be effective only if weeds are in the right growth stage.

Small grains are making rapid growth. In nearly all cases, small grains are too close to flowering stage now for applying 2,4-D on them. The best bet now is to wait until after the head is developed, Moomaw said, then try and knock down any severe weed infestations that may interfere with grain harvest.

The next meeting will be June 8 at 7 p.m. in the home of Tiffany Wilkie.

Randall Runquist, news reporter.

"Consumer groups are not 'after' the farmer . . . we're natural friends, not natural enemies," the chairman of the Agricultural Council of America, (ACA), told more than 50 persons attending a meeting of the Nebraska Council on Public Relations for Agriculture in Lincoln Friday.

Dale Hendricks of Bloomfield, Iowa, a dairy farmer, told the agrribusiness, agriculture, government and education leaders of the Nebraska Center that consumers are critical of cooperatives and farm commodity groups, because consumers don't understand the two types of agriculturally-oriented organizations.

While stoutly defending the needs and aspirations of agriculture, Hendricks was sympathetic to the frustrations of consumers.

Noting that farmers can't ignore consumer groups, Hendricks said, "I do not resent consumers being in high levels of government, referring to Carol Foreman, a consumer advocate named assistant secretary of agriculture by the Carter Administration.

Hendricks said he had heard some observers express the opinion that Foreman will be "the most influential person in USDA . . . and I believe it."

The Iowa said farmers have waited too long for something to happen. "We're going to make it happen," he said, referring to the formation of the ACA in 1973 and its initiation of major nationwide programs "since that time to bridge the gap between farmers and consumers."

One of the most successful programs, he said, has been the "Farm Line," a toll-free telephone number which allows any lay person to talk to a panel of experts about farm-food problems. Hendricks said the Farm Line on May 24 will involve Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, members of his staff and some Congressmen manning the phones from noon to 4 p.m.

Hendricks cited four steps he believes are needed to achieve prosperity for the agriculture-agribusiness sector:

—Any increases in wages for organized labor must be tied to increased productivity to help stave off "mushrooming inflation." Turning to Waterloo dairyman and Nebraska State Grange, master Ed Andersen, Hendricks said he would like to see "a dairy farm run under the auspices of labor and see how much milk would cost . . . it would take three shifts to get the cows milked."

—Noting that "we must help consumers rearrange priorities," Hendricks said consumers must be informed of the interdependence for mutual benefits between the farms and consumers.

—Government must be made to recognize that its primary function is to protect the citizenry and not to rule it. At the conclusion of his talk, Hendricks ripped into the increase in government regulations faced by agriculture, vowing to help "bring sense to insane rules and regulations . . . being heaped upon us without any thought to the future." Hendricks said he thinks "the time is ripe for an attack on (excessive) rules and regulations."

—Farmers must be assured of a primary incentive to produce food and fiber but the needs of consumers must be kept in mind.

In order to get to where they are today, Hendricks said "farmers have had their shoulders to the wheel so long, that when we looked up we saw that someone else was driving."

'Just Testin' the Water, Mom'

ALTHOUGH THE actual opening of the city municipal swimming pool is still a week away, these three Wayne youngsters decided they just couldn't wait to test the water. The youths discovered, in their judgement, the perfect testing ground Sunday afternoon east of Wayne. According to Jeff McCright, left, what started out as just an "innocent" wade through the foot-deep water turned out to be swimming match after his other two companions, Steve Overin, center, and Chris Wieseler, took a vow that if one of them felt the rest would follow suit. The splashing around was fun while it lasted, they admitted, but getting out of the cold water was a different story. Photo by Barlett.

NTCC Schedules Summer Classes

Summer classes at Northeast Technical Community College are scheduled to begin June 6. The five-week summer semester offerings this year include 49 credit classes and 10 non-credit, personal interest, offerings, an increase from the 1976 summer semester.

Although the vocational programs are currently in advanced levels, two electronics courses are being offered this summer: "Semiconductor Technology" and "Semiconductor Circuit Analysis," a lab course. Other credit offerings include seven evening courses, more than in previous summers. Evening classes include photography, "Principles of Marketing," economics, history and others by arrangement. Daytime classes, offered primarily in the morning, include biology, real estate, accounting, English, math, music, American politics, typing, speech and many others. Formal registration for the summer semester, which ends approximately the second week in July, will be held June 6. However, those wishing to register prior to that date should contact the Student Services office for enrollment in the credit classes.

Non-credit classes this summer include the motorcycle clinic air-conditioning set-up and troubleshooting, firearm safety, medical terminology for physical therapy aides, babysitting, home canning and food preservation, and others. Starting dates for these courses range from May 25 to August 2. Persons interested in any of the non-credit courses should contact the Community Services Division at NTCC.

The "Credit in Escrow" program, in which a high school student may enroll in a college-level course with the credit held until graduation from high school, remains in effect for this summer. For further information, contact the Admissions Office.
