National Guard Strength Down

Army and Air National Guard manpower levels are slipping to an alarmingly low level in the United States, according to the National Guard Bureau in Washington, D.C., and Nebraska is no exception.

With a federally mandated combined strength of some 65,000 for the Army and Air National Guard, recent strength reports reveal a manpower deficit of some 33,000 men and women.

Nebraska Guard strength has been slipping since early 1975, a spokesman said. Army Guard strength in the state is now at 72 per cent of the authorized manning, and Air Guard strength is at 83 per cent. This adds up to a total manpower deficit of 1,324 in Nebraska.

First sergeant Dennis Spangler, administrative and supply technician for the Wayne National Guard armory, said the unit's strength is now at four officers and 79 enlisted men. That puts the Wayne unit in the 40 to 50 per cent of authorized strength category, Spangler said, probably ranking it among the lower one-third of Nebraska Army Guard armories.

The Nebraska Guard last year had discussed the possibility of closing the Wayne armory if the manpower level didn't increase. That doesn't appear likely now, Spangler said, but he added that the entire Nebraska National Guard organization will probably be re-evaluated if the manpower picture doesn't improve by the end of the year. A massive national public relations campaign is being developed to draw attention to the problem, according to public information officer Major Leonard Krenk.

He said a recruiting and retention campaign is being planned by the National Guard Bureau, with all states participating, during June, July and August.

Spangler said he has not yet been notified what shape the campaign will take locally but indicated a full time recruiter will be dispatched from Omaha to work in the Wayne area. An open house at the Wayne armory, probably in August or early September, is under consideration.

In a recent policy letter the chief of the National Guard Bureau, said federal funding support of the Nebraska National Guard, as well as to other states, will be reduced in line with strength deficits. The intent, a spokesman said, is to channel available funds into states with the most need based on their higher manpower levels.

The manpower problem in Nebraska and other states is "very real and severe," according to Major General Edward Binder, Nebraska adjutant general.

"With the increased emphasis on the Army and Air National Guard, as well as other reserve components in the total defense structure, the problem demands our immediate attention," the general said.

Injuries Slight In Two Mishaps

An 11-year-old Howells youth was taken to Providence Medical Center Thursday afternoon following a bicycle accident on Seventh St. in Wayne.

Tim Renner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Renner, was spilled from his bicycle when his foot caught in the spokes of the front wheel. The youth was staying in Wayne with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Samuelson.

Mrs. Samuelson said Renner was not seriously injured in the mishap and would be released from the hospital Saturday morning.

Duane Bargholz of Wayne was injured slightly Wednesday afternoon in an accident at Logan Valley Implement Co. Manager Gary Pick said Bargholz was backing a windrower off a truck when a wheel slipped, overturning the machine. Bargholz was kept overnight at Providence Medical Center for observation and released the following day without any apparent serious injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

GARY WEST

Assistant Joins Wayne Physicians

"The idea is to assist the physicians, not replace them," Gary West said of his occupation.

West is a graduate of the University of Nebraska Medical Center physician's assistant program and has been working with Wayne doctors Walter and Robert Benhack of Benhack Clinic since May 8.

The Primrose native graduated from Cedar Rapids High School in 1971 and attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln for three years, studying to be a physical therapist. In 1974 he transferred to the NU Medical Center in Omaha and entered the physician's assistant training program, which was started the preceding year, 1973.

About 60 students have graduated from the program since it began, West said, and about 80 per cent have stayed in Nebraska with many opting to work with general practitioners in smaller rural communities.

The physician's assistant program is a four-year study course leading to a baccalaureate degree. Students must have completed 44 hours of undergraduate study in selected areas including chemistry, biology, English, math and social studies before they are eligible for the physician's assistant program.

The first 10 months at the NU medical center are spent in the classroom, with the final year devoted to experience in clinical settings, West said. Students must complete a four-month preceptorship in order to graduate.

West worked under the supervision of Dr. John Ruffing of Hemingford during his preceptorship.

Since receiving his degree in 1976, West had worked for the Family Practice Corporation, O'Neill prior to moving to Wayne.

What do physicians assistants do? One thing they do not do is practice medicine, West emphasized. "We work under the doctor's supervision."

But while there are limitations to what assistants can do, the scope is broad. "We can do anything the physician feels comfortable having us do, and which we feel comfortable doing without restrictions," West said. That includes handling many simpler medical problems, West said, freeing doctors to devote time to more serious cases.

West said examples of some of his duties include performing normal children's health checkups like six-week examinations, following up on blood pressure tests with people who have hypertension, sewing lacerations, seeing patients with ailments such as colds, sore throats and ear aches. When they encounter something they see ASSISTANT, page 8

Thursday Events Will Prepare 4-H'ers for Fair

Market weights will be sheared and lambed at the fairgrounds Thursday for all Wayne County 4-H sheep members, county agent Don Spitze said.

The weighing and shearing is scheduled from 8 until 11 a.m. There will be a charge for each lamb sheared.

Wool will be contributed to a pool with proceeds from the sale being used to purchase sheep equipment for 4-H use. Lambs due 4-H, page 8

Optometrist Will Join Dr. Koeber

Wayne will have a new optometrist July 1, Dr. William Koeber said Friday.

Dr. David Kincaid, a native of Columbus, will join Dr. Koeber in practice at his office at 313 Main St.

Dr. Kincaid is a recent graduate of the Illinois College of Optometry at Chicago. Dr. Koeber said, and has worked as a hospital optometrist during summer months while attending the college.

Dr. Koeber's son, Don, is now attending the Chicago optometry college and tentative plans are for him to join his father next summer following graduation. Dr. Koeber said.

Wittig Will Move To Main St. Location

Al Wittig, owner of Wittig's Food Center, now located at 117 W. Third St. in Wayne, said he will lease a 70 by 120-foot section of the building for his grocery store.

The building, to be constructed by Simpson's Structures of Norfolk, will be located on the east side of Main St. between Fifth and Sixth Streets.

Another downtown merchant, who will lease a 70 by 70-foot section of the building, did not wish to be identified until details of the lease have been completed.

The steel building will be energy efficient, Wittig said, insulated and designed to recirculate heat from freezer generators and another equipment to help heat the grocery store.

The new quarters will provide 8,400 square feet of space for the grocery store, 3,900 more square feet of floor space than the 50 by 90-foot building which now houses the food center. Wittig said he plans to expand his frozen food and fresh meat sections. The grocer said he will continue to operate a bakery in the new location.

A paved parking lot at the building site will provide space for 66 cars, he added.

Wittig said a starting date for construction has not yet been determined but he hopes to be able to move into the new building in the late fall or early winter.

Wittig, who owns the building in which his store is now located, said he has no plans for use of the building at this time.

Merger Request Denied Pending Decision by State

The Wayne County school reorganization committee Thursday by a 3-2 vote decided against recommending approving a request by rural school District 83 to merge with four other districts, pending a recommendation by the State Reorganization Committee.

The state committee must take action on the request within 40 days, county schools superintendent Fred Rickers said.

The state committee will return the request with its recommendation for final action by the county committee, which will then have 15 days in which to make its decision.

Only four students are attending this year at District 83, located 13 miles west and one mile south of Wayne. There are less than eight sections of land within the district, Rickers said.

It is proposed that parts of the district would be merged with Wayne District 17, Winside District 95 R, and rural Districts 51 and 9.

Rickers said the petition requesting the merger was signed by more than 65 per cent of the registered voters in the district. The county superintendent said the merger is mandated regardless of the recommendations of the state and county committees.

Society Editor Wins National Press Award

Wayne Herald society editor LaVon Beckman has received a national award for the "Speaking of People" pages which she regularly writes and edits, the National Federation of Press Women announced Saturday.

The award follows two first place wins in state competition for the 1971 Wayne High graduate. In addition to "Speaking of People," she also won a state award for the Herald's Bicentennial special edition. Those entries were forwarded to the national organization where they were judged with first place entries from 40 state organizations. Miss Beckman received third place in the national contest, for women's papers in non-daily newspapers with circulation of less than 5,000.

In addition to the two first place awards in state competition this year, she also won second place for an interview with AFS fore exchange student Jo Jo Quimpe.

Miss Beckman joined the Herald staff shortly after graduating from Wayne High and became society editor in 1974.

Last year her society page received a first place award in state competition and she received second place awards in combination of media publicity and promotion, and in news writing.

A total of 60 entries from Nebraska were entered in the national competition, according to state contest chairman Eleanor Seberger of Cozad.

Steck, employed by the Wayne County Public Power District, was working on a line seven miles west and one-half south of Attending physician Dr. Bob Benhack said the electrocution knocked Steck's heart out of its regular pattern. However, a crew with Steck managed to keep his heart going by the use of cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Steck, who has been employed by the power district for four years, sustained only a minor burn on a finger, according to a preliminary report.

Final Quarter of 1976

Wayne County Sales Up by Eight Per Cent

Net taxable retail sales in Wayne County during the final quarter of 1976 were eight per cent greater than sales for the same three-month period in 1975, according to the latest figures available from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Bureau of Business Research.

Sales in Wayne County during the final quarter of 1975 amounted to $7,344,000, compared with $7,937,000 in the final quarter of 1976.

Sales in Wayne County, for the entire 1976 calendar year, were 15.8 per cent greater than in 1975.

Of the other four counties in Planning Region 11, only Stanton County experienced a decline in sales when the final quarters of 1975 and 1976 are compared. Sales for 1976 were 92 per cent of the 1975 three-month total. However, retail sales in Stanton County for the entire year were 16.1 per cent ahead of 1975.

Antelope County had a 6.1 per cent fourth quarter increase and a 19.5 per cent increase for the year. Pierce County had a 16.5 per cent fourth quarter increase and a 29.1 per cent increase for the year.

In Region 25, Dixon County fourth quarter sales in 1976 were 14.3 per cent greater than 1975 fourth quarter sales, and the county had a 19.8 per cent increase for the year. Fourth quarter sales in 1976 in Cedar County were only 97.5 per cent of the total for the same 1975 period, but the county had a 14.4 per cent increase for the year.

Knox County also suffered a fourth quarter slump with sales there amounting to 98.3 per cent of the 1975 fourth quarter, but the overall increase for 1976 over the previous year was 13.7 per cent.

Net taxable retail sales for the state as a whole were up 13.9 per cent for the year.

Commodity prices averaged 4.8 per cent during 1976. While Nebraska's population was estimated to have increased by one-half of one per cent in 1976. After adjustment for price increases and population increases, the real volume of retail sales for the state during the fourth quarter of 1976 surpassed the 1975 total by about 8.6 per cent.

Of the state's 26 planning regions, 10 had fourth quarter year-to-year increases in retail sales that exceeded the state's average gain of nine per cent.

Included is Region 11 with an 11.9 per cent overall fourth quarter increase. The increase in sales for the region for the entire year was 19.6 per cent.

Region 25 fourth quarter sales were only four tenths of a percentage point above the 1975 fourth quarter figure, but sales for the entire year of 1976 were 15 per cent greater than for the 1975 total.

According to the Bureau of Business Research, Nebraska's economic output moved upward in February, moving off the stalling, stagnate pattern of the past four to six months. The bureau's index of physical output rose nearly 1.5 per cent to 136.5 in February 1977. The January index was 134.6.

Writing in "Business in Nebraska," research associate Duane Hackmann noted gains were recorded in all sectors of the Nebraska economy except manufacturing. Increases in the Nebraska economy far outdistanced national increases.

The agriculture sector improved in February after six months of decline. On a season-See SALES, page 8

Around We Go

YOUNGSTERS in Wayne have some new playground equipment to use this summer. The city last week installed a new spiral slide (left) and revolving barrel (below) in Bressler Park, and swings near the municipal swimming pool. Park superintendent Vern Schulz said all parks now have playground equipment installed, adding this is the first year any equipment has been added to any of the parks. Selections were based on popularity of items according to sales records of suppliers, Schulz said. Additional equipment may be added to other parks in the city if items prove popular. Costs are $1,979 for the slide, $735 for the barrel, and $372 for the swings.

OBSERVATIONS

Another step forward

Planning which has so far stretched over a year and one-half is nearing fruition with the city council's decision Tuesday night to advertise for bids for Wayne's downtown improvement project. Bidding for bids is a giant step toward actually beginning work on the project and property owners in the district will finally know what the project will cost.

The council and the downtown improvement committee both deserve to be commended for their efforts so far toward making the renovation a reality. Improvement committee members have devoted considerable time developing the plan and have worked long and patiently in arriving at an acceptable plan.

The council has cooperated with the committee and at the same time exercised caution. Governing bodies can be overcautious at times, but approving a project of this magnitude is a responsibility not to be taken lightly. At the same time, the majority of the council has shown its willingness to see the project progress.

The plan approved Tuesday is a good one, representing a sensible compromise. Some items, such as pedestrian lighting, which the committee had proposed are not included. But the new sidewalk, curb and gutter, and underground electrical conduit included in the specifications represent a good basic renovation effort.

At the same time, it includes some items such as tinted sidewalk and planters which would help make Wayne's downtown distinctive if incorporated in the project. The renovation plans are not loaded with frills, but at the same time recognize the importance of an attractive business district.

Additional items such as lighting and mini-parks can always be added after the basic project is done if such action appears to be feasible at a later date.

More will be known after bids are opened as to whether or not it is possible to complete the project this year. Hopefully, that will be the case, but even if it isn't, the future of the downtown renovation seems virtually assured now. It is a project which will benefit the community for years to come. — Jim Strayer.

STRAYEr Thoughts

I enjoyed the television production of the classic play "Our Town" last week. I particularly noted one line of dialogue which I hadn't really caught before in other productions of the play I have seen. It is when editor Webb returns from an out of town trip. He greets his wife and immediately asks, "Were there any mistakes in the paper?"

general said they were unconstitutional. According to LB 46, they must now implement new laws within 10 days of their effective date or initiate court action to determine constitutionality. Officials who don't comply will be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to removal from office.

Senator Elated

I received a call Wednesday from a joyous state senator, Bob Murphy of South Sioux City called to let me know he was successful in obtaining an override of the governor's veto of LB 46. The vote was 35-13.

The bill as passed by the Unicameral combined provisions contained earlier in LB 45 and LB 46. The effect of the law will be to require heads of state agencies to implement statutes passed by the legislature.

State government executives in the past have refused to implement provisions of laws when the state attorney

Compromise

LB 46 as passed was a compromise bill written by the attorney general. It combines provisions which had been contained in LB 45 and Murphy's draft of LB 46, diluting somewhat the original intent of the two laws. Murphy said. The senator added he decided to accept the attorney general's draft, however, in hopes of its passing. Also, Sen. Murphy pointed out, it will be difficult now for the attorney general to declare his own drafting of the bill unconstitutional.

Sen. Murphy said he is not completely satisfied with the bill, but hopes to work with the attorney general and the legislature in the future to produce a "productive, not vindictive" law.

Murphy said he has no qualms about the constitutionality of a bill being tested, but that such decisions should properly be made by the courts, not by the attorney general, a member of the executive branch of government.

Out of Old Nebraska

In this day of high-powered presidential campaigns with every move of the candidates being closely followed, it is well to remember that politics once went at a slower pace. From the newspaper library of the Nebraska State Historical Society comes an account of a day spent in Lincoln by the Republican nominee in 1916. This story of Charles Evans Hughes' visit is from the Nebraska State Journal, Oct. 16, 1916. It took place just three weeks before the election:

"Charles E. Hughes, republican candidate for president of the United States, spent a quiet Sunday in Lincoln, keeping indoors most of the day. The day was damp and a trifle chilly, and an automobile ride planned for the afternoon was not undertaken. Preparing for a strenuous week ahead, one day of which will be spent in Nebraska, Mr. Hughes adhered to a program that called for little action.

"Mr. and Mrs. Hughes attended the First Baptist church in the morning. They drove to the church in a closed car and slipped quietly into a pew half way through the crowd which thronged about the presidential candidate while a plainsclothesman brought up the rear. Quietly as they came the presidential party departed in their closed car.

"Dr. Samuel Zane Batten . . . was for nine years pastor of the First Baptist church here in the city and occupied the pulpit . . . His talk was entitled "The Supreme Issue" . . . With this as a background he attacked the saloon as a blighting institution which man has not as yet abolished. "Nebraska should go dry by a majority ranging anywhere from 15,000 to 30,000 if too many people don't in their anxiety to vote for Mr. Hughes forget to scratch the amendment," said Dr. Batten.

"At the conclusion of the service the crowd which filled practically every seat in the church, surged over to the seat where Mr. Hughes sat. Quickly the people packed the aisle until Mr. and Mrs. Hughes had difficulty in getting out. Then two stalwart ushers stepped in front and opened the way for Mr. and Mrs. Hughes while a plainclothesman closed up the rear. Once outside the party entered their closed car and sped away to their hotel.

"Mr. Hughes spent Sunday afternoon in his room. He did not accompany his party on the automobile tour of the city. Dr. Alexander, Mr. Hughes' physician, felt that the damp air might have an ill effect on the candidate's health, so he remained in his room and rested.

"Today, however, will be a busy one for Mr. Hughes. His special train will leave Lincoln at 7:30 a.m. and arrive at Hastings at 10 a.m. Mr. Hughes will speak there. The train will go to Grand Island where Mr. Hughes will speak at noon. Columbus will be reached by the special at 2:30 where an address will be made and Fremont, next on the list, will be reached at 4 p.m. The party will arrive at Omaha at 5:45 for the second big night meeting in Nebraska. At Fremont Mr. Hughes will be greeted by two hundred Baptist ministers who are to hold a state convention of the church there. The Hughes party spent the night in their special train.

"A dozen newspaper men of the Hughes staff toured the city in four automobiles Sunday afternoon as the guests of Lincoln newspaper men. They visited the state farm, in insane hospital, the capitol, the Lincoln monument, the University of Nebraska and several other points of interest."

YOU AND YOUR CAR

Saving gasoline is not only a red, white and blue effort in these times but can be a help to the family budget. The Automotive Information Council says the city and highway gas mileage ratings of the Environmental Protection Agency are informational but advises that the figures are not realistic in the real world.

EPA tests all the new cars on a dynamometer under controlled conditions. While the great majority of motorists cannot hope to match the government figures, the ratings do provide a comparison of car makes and importantly, how the choice of equipment can affect your mileage.

If you're really serious about a few more miles to the gallon, forego the convenience of an automatic transmission and buy a manual or "stick shift" unit. As a rule, a four or six cylinder engine is more economical than a V-8. However, if the engine is too small for the weight of the car, gas consumption will be less on an engine that is compatible.

Picking an axle ratio for your car has a direct bearing on economy. The lower the number, the better the mileage because the engine works less for each rotation of the wheels. To gain economy by using a lower axle ratio, there will be a sacrifice in acceleration. Experts say the savings are higher in country driving with up to seven percent economy with the available axle ratio.

Radial tires not only last longer than other designs but provide one percent better economy in the city and about three percent on the highway. The reason radials give better mileage is that they run cooler and there is less "wiggling" or scrubbing action with the road surface.

One of the more recent devices, an option on nearly all cars, is the automatic speed control. That unit can save you more than fuel costs. With top legal highway speed at 55 miles per hour, it's a lot easier to avoid a traffic ticket if you preset your speed on that long trip. The control also makes driving a lot easier since your "accelerator foot" is free most of the time.

Driving your car properly also saves fuel. Avoid sudden stops and starts. Don't idle your engine longer than necessary. If possible, drive with the wind at your back. Gas mileage goes down in cold weather. And finally, keeping your car properly tuned is one of the best gas savers for your investment. It's an expenditure that pays you back.

10 Runs in Three Innings Tell the Story

That 'Weak Sister' Label Doesn't Fit Wakefield

The label "weak sister" doesn't apply to Wakefield in the tough Northeast Michigan Baseball League.

Best to call the fleshy nine opportunistic.

Playing in their first regular season league game, the men from Wakefield took advantage of their errors and four wild throws in the last three innings Thursday night to score a 12-6 win over host Wayne.

Before the start of the season Wakefield was tagged as one of three weak sisters in the league by league officials. But the visitors disproved that idea with timely hitting and bad breaks for Wayne.

The winners scored three runs in the seventh inning to take a 5-1 lead which was first thought to be enough to start the door closing on Wayne's chances of winning.

But Wakefield ran into some pitching problems as starter Rob Eaton and reliever Mike Soderberg walked a total of six

Wayne players and gave up a sacrifice bunt by Wayne hurler

Lyle Blevins to score four runs and tie the game.

With the help of an error and a wild throw by Wayne, Wakefield came back in the eighth to score two runs of a single up the middle by Randy Hallstrom to once again take the lead 7-5.

Wakefield continued its scoring surge in the ninth with five runs off three Wayne miscues, a wild throw and a two-run single by Steve Kay for a 12-6 score.

Wayne catcher Mike Meyer scored the locals' last run in the ninth on a two-out double by Mike Creighton.

Both clubs went scoreless in three frames before each exchanged a run in the fourth. Catcher Keith Siebrandt scored Wakefield's first run when he was safe on first via a fielder's choice, stole second and ran home on a wild throw. Right fielder Mic Daehne tied the game when he walked, went to second on a walk by Terry Luff and scored on a throwing error by Eaton.

In the fifth, the visitors jumped back into the lead when Eaton walked, stole second and later scored on a bases-loaded walk by Siebrandt.

After the go-ahead run by

Wakefield, Wayne coach Don Goeden brought in Blevins to replace starter Earle Overin, who gave up only three hits in four and a third frame.

Wayne at Ponca and Wakefield Wakefield bats connected for 10 hits, including three singles in five at bats by leader Siebrandt. Sunday night's state included Wayne at Ponca and Wakefield at Pender.

Laurel's 8 Runs Blast Bancroft Midgets

Laurel Midgets came up with eight big runs in the sixth inning Friday night to topple host Bancroft, 12-5, and boost their record to 2-0.

Laurel got help with a bases loaded walk that made the score 5-4 in favor of Bancroft. The tide continued to turn in favor of the area team as Laurel scored on a single by Shannon Hopkins and back-to-back two base hits by Ron Gadeken and Rusty Gade.

Thursday night the Midgets opened their season play in the Ralph Bishop League with a 4-1 win over visiting Pender.

The winners scored twice in the second inning on a bases-loaded error and a run-scoring single. Laurel added runs in the fourth and fifth on a double by Don Dalton and an infield single by Anderson.

Weisenberg's Juniors (0-1) were Cleve Stolpe and Mark Creamer with two hits in four at bats.

HRs by Ginn PowerLocals To 23-1 Win

Tom Ginn drove in seven runs on two home runs Friday night to power Wayne Midgets to an overwhelming 23-1 thrashing of host Emerson.

The shortstop ripped his first circuit hit in the five-run first inning, scoring three runs. He came back in the 12-run third inning with grand slam to finish with two hits in three at bats during the abbreviated four-inning match.

As a team, Wayne ravaged Emerson's hurlers for 11 hits, including three each by Dennis Carroll and Jerry Goeden.

Although hurler Jeff Zeiss got the no-hit victory, Emerson spoiled the shutout with a run in the third off an error.

The 1-0 Midgets will host Bancroft tonight (Monday) at 7 o'clock.

Emerson Nips Juniors, 9-8, For 2nd Loss

A high pop fly lost in the lights allowed Emerson Juniors to score the go-ahead run in the bottom of the seventh Friday night for a 9-8 squeaker over visiting Wayne.

Shortstop Doug Carroll lost the ball when Emerson's third baseman made the connection to score Steve Belt from second base and hand the locals their second loss in two games.

Both Belt and teammate Hayes played havoc with Wayne hurlers Carroll and Larry Creighton. Hayes had four hits in five at bats to drive in two runs and Belt was three for four, also driving in two runs.

"I was impressed with they (Hayes and Belt) hit the ball," said coach Hank Overin. "They really seem loose at the plate," he added.

A heated discussion between both teams erupted when catcher Dennis Murray hit a high fly ball over the fence for what looked like a home run. However, Emerson officials said the ball went foul despite protests by Overin.

Creighton took the loss for Wayne to drop the Juniors' record to 0-2. Creighton took over for starter Carroll in the sixth inning.

Poor Playing Hinders Allen At Newcastle

Poor playing on the part of Allen stopped the area town team Thursday night from playing even ball with Newcastle of the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League. Newcastle, which breezed to an 8-1 victory, several times would have men on base with two outs and still produce the runs. Top hitter for the winners was Bret Beyler with a two-run circuit-hit in the fourth that gave the home team a 4-1 lead. Both clubs were knotted at one run apiece after the first inning.

NO LONGER is the house formerly occupied by city employe Mert Ellis standing next to the city hall on Second and Pearl Streets. A moving company from Wayne last week transported the huge structure across town to its new location near 13th and Douglas Streets. The house, which was purchased by Sam Schroeder, had to be raised from its foundation during a week long struggle before movers hauled it Wednesday afternoon. The only roadblock came when movers were stopped by a parked car owned by Mrs. Keith Mosley. According to the police department, Mrs. Mosley was protesting the way the movers were trimming the tree branches to move the house. The matter was resolved, the car was moved and the house proceeded to its new location.

Car Strikes Porch
The porch of a home owned by Mrs. Hugo Fischer about two miles southwest of Winside suffered extensive damage when it was struck by a car driven by Kathleen Fry of rural Elgin.

According to a sheriff's deputy report, the Fry vehicle swerved off the road and struck the porch when the driver lost control after attempting to stop for a stop sign on a county road.

The sheriff's department also investigated an accident Sunday, May 29, at the Highway 35 and Winside junction.

A car, driven by Patricia Meierhenry of Hoskins had stopped at the intersection before pulling out onto the highway into the path of a car driven by Leota Verplank of Wakefield, southbound on Highway 35.

The Verplank auto struck the right rear portion of the Meierhenry vehicle, spinning it around 180 degrees.

Both cars suffered extensive damage. Neither driver was injured.

 Construction activity resumed its rapid expansion upward which began last August. Residential and non-building construction were primarily responsible for boosting construction activity nearly 49 per cent above its February 1976 level.
 Manufacturing activity declined slightly in February 1977 from January's revised level. Real output was up above year previous levels, but price changes and employment declines reduced the index below January's level. Part of the decline may reflect work dispute activities in the food processing industry.

Nebraska's distributive sector showed gains above the year earlier level. Employment and retail sales are running above last year's figures but retail sales are subject to revision which could alter the distributive sector index.
 Retail sales for February 1977 were 7.4 per cent above February 1976 after adjustments for price changes.

The outlook for the Nebraska economy continues to be quite good over the balance of this year, Hackman said. The improvement of the agricultural sector during February 1977 is an encouraging sign he added. There are indications that agriculture cash receipts are increasing nationally, which could affect cash receipts of Nebraska farmers. All sectors of the Nebraska economy continue their rather unspectacular but constant expansion. These movements suggest prosperity and continued economic improvement in the months ahead barring any unforeseen economic shocks. Employment is strong and unemployment remains well below the national average.

 West, who is single, said acceptance of physicians assistants has varied around the state, adding that he has been well-received in Wayne.

Going Is Slow in Fight for Pure Water

Nebraska has a pollution problem you cannot see, taste, or smell — contamination of ground water by chemicals from the state's biggest industry, agriculture.

Small amounts of pesticides may be filtering into well water. The State Health Department plans to check that this summer.

The most obvious form of ground water pollution today is contamination with nitrates, a form of dissolved nitrogen that can come from several sources including sewage, livestock wastes, and chemical fertilizers.

Some of the areas hardest hit by nitrate pollution are the parts of the state with sandy soil and heavy irrigation development.

Water is considered unsafe for drinking if it contains more than 10 milligrams of nitrate in every liter. That amount of nitrate can cause a blood disease in infants which sometimes results in brain damage or death. Adults can tolerate higher levels.

Commentary
By DAN LOOKER
Center for Rural Affairs
Walthill

Currently, 45 Nebraska towns have city water supplies which exceed the safe level of nitrate by as much as two to three times. Water in a Central Nebraska well located south of the Platte River has a record for nitrate contamination, according to research conducted by Dr. Roy Spalding of the University of Nebraska's Conservation and Survey Division. In a small area around the well nitrate levels were as high as 245 milligrams per liter. The source was identified by chemical analysis as agriculture fertilizer.

What is the state of Nebraska doing about the nitrate problem?

This year's record is mixed. The Nebraska Natural Resources Commission is currently working with other state agencies and citizen's groups to draw up a state water quality plan which must go into effect by November 1978. The plan, which is required under Section 208 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act amendments of 1972 calls for setting up minimum standards for ground-water. It also authorizes continuing Dr. Spalding's research into sources of ground water contamination in cooperation with the Central Platte Natural Resources District.

The Legislature also took a stab at protecting ground water quality when it passed LB 421, a bill which requires irrigators who apply pesticides through center pivot sprinklers to install a check valve which prevents pesticides from running back into the well when the machine is shut off. State law already required a check valve on irrigation systems used to apply fertilizers and provided for fines of $1,000 to $5,000 for violators. While these laws and administrative procedures lay the foundation for protecting ground water quality, there are other indications that enforcement will be weak. For instance when the legislature expanded the law requiring irrigation check valves on systems used for fertilizer to include those which apply pesticides, it also reduced the fine to a tenth of the original penalty (from $1,000-$5,000 down to $100-$500). That, says Jim Cook, legal council for the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission, may weaken ground water protection.

"In my opinion the things prohibited by LB 421 are virtually unenforceable anyway. I was happier with the penalty high because by its very existence it helps make the law self-enforcing."

Cook explained that there are no special enforcement provisions in the law and that it is enforced only when a complaint is made to the local county attorney.

On the administrative front, the mandate for returning Nebraska's well water to pristine purity also appears weak. The State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) is well ahead of the planning requirements of Section 208 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. The DEC, acting under the authority of the Nebraska Environmental Protection Act, has already drawn up standards for ground water quality. They limit nitrates to 10 parts per million, the same standard now used by the State Health Department for city water supplies. But there's a catch to those standards.

According to Judy Budin, a DEC attorney and to DEC geologist, John Atkinson, areas with already high nitrate levels will be considered ones with "naturally occurring" nitrates (even though the problem dates back to the 1950's, the time when chemical fertilizer application became common.) In the jargon of the Department, those levels are called "background contamination levels" and they could very well be above the level considered safe for drinking.

The department won't attempt to roll back groundwater quality to safe levels, they indicated. "But," says Atkinson, "hopefully we can keep the situation from getting worse."

In spite of laws and administrative action, the problem of contaminated groundwater will be with some regions of Nebraska for a long time.

Clifford Summers, director of the State Health Department's division of environmental engineering, is working with the 45 cities which have contaminated water supplies to bring them up to safe standards. State and federal "safe drinking water" laws require that those standards be met, although small towns without financial resources to do this can get temporary exceptions for up to five years.

Summers thinks most cities will be able to dilute water contaminated with nitrates by drilling wells into cleaner layers of water-bearing rock. But for farms relying on a single water supply from a well in a polluted aquifer, the answer isn't so simple. Groundwater moves more slowly than river water and takes longer to clean itself.

If no more chemical contaminants were added to the land in those areas, how long would it take for the groundwater to return to normal?

"I would just guess that it would take 30-40 years before it gets diluted out," Summer says.

'Moderation Is Key to Top Health'

Of the 1 million persons in the United States who suffer a coronary heart disease, over half or 650,000 die from their attack, a registered dietitian from Providence Medical Center told members of Wayne Kiwanis Tuesday.

Heart disease, said Tama Krause, can be prevented if a person carefully watches what he or she eats. Too many people, she went on, eat what they want when they want it in any amount they want it.

A person doesn't have to sacrifice what he wants to eat to just avoid heart trouble, however, just eat in moderation, Mrs. Krause pointed out.

There are a lot of other factors involved in heart trouble. Signs to check for are high blood pressure, overweight, stress, smoking, diabetes and heredity — all these can be links to heart trouble, she added.

It's important that a person is able to distinguish a coronary from a heart attack, she emphasized. A coronary usually involves blockage of one of the arteries or blood vessels around the heart. A heart attack occurs when part of the muscle in the heart dies.

Usually recovery from a heart attack takes from six to eight weeks, which should be enough time for the heart to repair the muscle to function.
