Rural Wayne Man Wins $25 Prize
 A rural Wayne man, Russell Lutt, won the $25 consolation award in the weekly Birthday Bucks contest last Thursday night.
 Lutt, was at Roy Hurd Ford Mercury when the winning date was announced at 8:15 p.m. His birthday is Sept. 23, 1915; the winning date was Sept. 15, 1915. Had those dates matched, Lutt would have won the $750 grand prize. Drawing the winning date was Joann McNatt of McNatt's Hardware.
 To be a winner, a shopper must be present in a participating Wayne business tonight (Thursday) when the winning date is announced. No registration or purchases are necessary.

IN 1780 the population of the U.S. was 2,781,000.

Payments Increasing

Basic federal supplemental security income (SSI) payments will be increased starting in July to keep up with the cost of living, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

The SSI program pays monthly checks to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled. The amount people get depends primarily on other income they might have and their living arrangements.
 "The maximum federal payment people could receive under the SSI program has been $167.80 a month for one person and $251.80 for a couple," Branch said. "Starting in July, those amounts will go to $177.80 and $266.70."
 People who get SSI payments don't have to do anything to get the raise. Any increases due will be added to checks automatically.

The cost-of-living increase will also be added to social security retirement, disability, and survivors' benefits, starting with checks delivered in July.
 "Social security checks count as income under the SSI program," Branch said. "People who have been getting both social security and SSI payments may have their eligibility for SSI or their SSI payment amount affected by the increase in social security benefit amounts." Branch said.
 People can get information about SSI at any social security office.

Barbara Winter of the Norfolk Social Security Office will be at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center Tuesday from 9 a.m. until noon to answer questions.

Oat Silage High in Nutrients

Oats harvested as silage may produce twice the feed nutrients as that harvested as grain, according to district dairy specialist Don Kubik.

Other advantages of making oat silage are early removal to help the establishment of alfalfa and being able to fertilize for more tonnage as lodging is not as much a concern.

Kubik said some of the questions raised in recent weeks have been, when is the best time to cut oats for silage? What should I expect for feed value? Will I get regrowth if I cut at the boot stage? How do I need to handle it as silage? These are questions that have more than one answer, Kubik said, depending on what you are trying to accomplish.

You need to decide what time to cut based on what you want from the silage and what you are going to feed it to, the dairy specialist continued. For dairy cows the boot stage offers the best feed, having 20 per cent more energy and up to 50 per cent more digestible protein. The protein in the early cut oats will run 12-13 per cent while at the dough stage it will run 7-9 per cent.

The total tons of feed will increase very little if any, when harvested at the boot stage as compared to the dough stage. On the other hand, the most tons of feed nutrients are produced at the boot stage. The only reason not to harvest early is proper fermentation. At the dough stage, enough grain is formed so that there is fermentable carbohydrate for good silage making. When harvested at the boot or flower stage however, either 200-300 pounds grain per ton or some other preservative should be added for proper fermentation. At either stage, good silage making practices should be followed. These include proper moisture, fine chop, rapid filling and good packing.

If you are not interested in the higher feeding value of early cutting or getting the oats off to assist in a new seeding of alfalfa or a regrowth for a second cutting, the dough stage is easier to handle, Kubik said.

Regrowth is highly dependent on moisture soon after cutting more than it is on the stage when it is cut. Regrowth can be harvested either as pasture or a second cutting when moisture conditions are favorable.

This year with early moisture being very favorable and the oats growing very rapidly, lodging and going down were very common where the oats were fertilized. When these conditions occur, harvesting early is almost essential.

To feed this feed to the best advantage, use it on the basis of its feed value. Early cut oat silage can be fed like average to good quality alfalfa and the later cut should be fed like below average alfalfa or prairie hay. A forage analysis used to properly balance a ration can pay many times over in extra milk production.

The best place to feed oat silage on a dairy farm is to dry cows and heifers in order to save good alfalfa for the milk cows. If it is seldom that oat silage will compare to alfalfa hay or silage for milk production.

This and That...
from YOUR COUNTY AGENT

WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

The column this week is copied from the "Insect Letter" from the Cooperative Extension Service and is written by Dave Keith and Bob Roselle, Extension Entomologists. I believe the information is very timely.

Cutworms

Identify this species by the row of five or six small, yellow or white dots down the center of their backs. Variegated cutworms are still present in many alfalfa fields and almost all gardens. If they are about 1 1/2 inches long in alfalfa they have almost finished feeding and control is not indicated. Cutworms one inch or shorter can feed for a week or more, so if regrowth is being held back and small worms are present, one pound Al Dyllox of 1/2 pounds Al Sevin may reduce populations. Apply in 20 gallons of water in the late evening for best performance. In home gardens this insect will feed on almost all vegetables and flowering plants. They feed at night and hide in the soil or under debris during the day. Seldom are they caught in the act. Apply Sevin sprays in infested areas, with enough on the soil around damaged plants to contact worms hiding in the soil.

Grasshopper Bait

An old-time poisoned bait formula with a new insecticide should be effective against cutworms and grasshoppers. It is 2 1/2 pounds of wheat bran (some of the pellet-like breakfast cereals would probably be fine, one tablespoon of 50 per cent Sevin wettable powder; one cup of molasses in one cup of water. Mix the Sevin with the bran thoroughly by shaking in a tight container, then slowly stir in the molasses and water mixture until the bait is damp — but not soaking wet. Scatter on the soil in gardens in the late evening. If grasshoppers are the problem, scatter thinly in the early morning.

Grain Sorghum Project Pays Off

Though developing improved crop varieties usually takes many years after the inception of a breeding program, a grain sorghum improvement project at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln is now paying dividends.

Scientists in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources have cooperatively released to breeders two random mating populations of grain sorghum that are genetically resistant to greenbugs.

The release was cooperative because it is the result of a project including scientists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service (ARS), UN-L Agricultural Experiment Station, Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station and Mayaguez Institute of Tropical Agriculture of Mayaguez, Puerto Rico.

Their reason for using Arizona, Texas and Israel in their program is to test their materials under diverse environmental conditions, both dryland and irrigated.

Dr. W.M. Ross, ARS plant geneticist stationed at UN-L says, "The populations provide breeders with an array of germplasm with which to inbreed for line development, or the germplasm can be further broadened by crossing into male sterile plants in the populations."

In addition, the scientists will have potentially useful breeding lines from another population to look at next summer planted in Arizona, Texas, Israel and Nebraska, he said.

They are using a technique that is relatively new to grain sorghum breeding in an attempt to broaden the genetic base from which hybrids are developed and improve the parent stock available to breeders of hybrids, he said.

"A hybrid is no better than the lines used to produce it, so improved lines are needed if continued improvement of hybrids is to be possible," Ross said.

The technique they are using, which has proved fruitful with corn, is to use a large number of plants, then select superior plants, based on visual appearance, yield, disease resistance, insect resistance, chemical composition or other criteria.

They then recombine these superior plants to form an elite sub-population and repeat the selection procedure in this elite sub-population.

The process is called recurrent selection.

Each cycle of selection should result in an improvement in the lines that can be selected from the population.

They keep a base population through random mating of large numbers of plants without selection so that gene frequencies are maintained and genetic drift minimized, plus providing a yardstick for measuring gains from selection.

One of their objectives, in addition to improving yield, is to improve the protein content of the sorghum.

They get two crops a year by growing the sorghum in Puerto Rico in the winter.

In a four-year test of five different random mating populations, using two commercial hybrids for a check, two of the populations averaged 99 per cent of the average yields of the hybrids in two good years and 92.7 per cent and 88.7 per cent respectively in two dry years.

"More recently developed populations have exhibited even higher yields, and they too should find use in population improvement programs," Ross said.

Hybrid vigor increases yields above the yields of the lines used in the crosses and above the population from which they came.

Engineer: Time to Clean Out Farm Holding Ponds

The increasing frequency of Nebraska's rainfall may require the feedlot operators devote more attention to their livestock waste management systems.

"Brim full" holding ponds are evident on many of the state's feedlots as a result of heavy rains or because rainfall rates have exceeded the 10-year, 24-hour storm for which many livestock waste systems were designed, according to E.A. "Ole" Olson, Extension agricultural engineer at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"These holding ponds must be pumped out as soon as possible to provide storage space for future rains," he said. "In many cases, cropland may already be soaked by recent rains so grass or pastureland may be the best solution for disposal."

"Management of a waste system by the operator is vital to the successful operation of any system," he said.

Olson noted that future damage to waste systems by overflow may be avoided by prompt pumping.

"In areas of recent heavy rainfall, if holding ponds were not empty before hand, they probably overflowed," Olson said. "Pumping is much less costly than the repair of damages caused by overflowing, and it helps prevent overflow from getting into creeks or streams."

Olson said another area that may require attention is the debris basin, where solid wastes may have accumulated around risers that empty the debris basin fluids into the holding pond. Stoppage of the risers will prevent debris basins from emptying properly, he said.

Olson said many debris basins have greater depths of solid wastes than operators realize, and solids should be removed later this summer after they have dried.

Operators whose holding ponds or debris basins have been damaged should contact their local Soil Conservation Service field office for help, he said.

Olson said recent Nebraska Department of Environmental Control figures indicated there are 600 livestock waste management systems in the state.

Cattle Price Dip Predicted

Increasing feedlot placements and higher supplies of pork and poultry are expected to result in a dip in fed cattle prices this summer and fall to between $36 and $38, according to Scot Miller, cow-calf analyst for Cattle-Fax, the marketing service of the American National Cattleman's Association.

But there will be "potential for a slight recovery" in prices late in the year, Miller told members of the Nebraska Stock Growers Association during its 88th annual convention in Kearney Saturday.

"Placements into feedlots have been nearly five per cent higher than last year because of larger available feeder cattle supplies," he said. "This will result in greater fed cattle supplies in July through October."

Miller attributed part of the recent decline in fed cattle prices to about $40 a hundredweight from the top of $44.50 in Omaha about a month ago to "adverse psychology."

"The market overreacted on the top side (of prices) and also has overreacted somewhat late, ly," he said. "Fed cattle supplies remained fairly constant during this period, but as the market weakened, adverse psychology caused undue pressure. Psychology can play a much larger role in markets than some think."

Yearling feeder cattle prices, reflecting the negative influence of the fed cattle market, should decline to the mid-$30s by late summer, "with slight improvement possible by late fall to the high $30s," Miller said.

He also said he expects feeder calf prices, although currently "fairly stable," to drop during July and August before farmer-feeder demand for them devel-

Thought for Today
By Rowen Wiltse

"Manners are the happy ways of doing things; each one a stroke of genius or of love, repeated and hardened into accepting usage."
Ralph Waldo Emerson

Young children, who have trouble enough "minding their manners" might suppose that the rules of polite behaviour were dreamed up by sadistic adults. They seem to be aimed at keeping children busy and out of mischief.

Actually, manners are the happy, pleasant way of relating to each other. They are based on common sense or on love and respect. They become a custom when they have been proven by time and repeated use.

Families of any faith or creed can be sure of perfectly appropriate services when they put their trust in us.

Orchard Hands Laurel Second Loss, 10-5

Orchard's Gale Bly smacked a two-run homer in the four-run fifth and his teammates came up with five runs off five hits in the eighth Sunday night to knock Laurel out of first place, 10-5, in the Tri-County Baseball League.

Schroeder aptly described the fifth frame which put Orchard ahead 5-2. The area club continued to chip away at the lead with runs in the sixth and eighth to trail 5-4. In the sixth, Keith Olsen singled, stole second and made it home on a pair of infield outs.

his second run of the night when he was safe on first via a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on an error.

Kardell Bangs Three Hits

Thompson Tosses One-Hitter to Rip Locals, 11-1

Doug Thompson tossed a one-hitter and Gordie Kardell rapped two singles and a two-run double Monday night as Laurel Juniors handed Wayne its fifth loss of the season, 11-1.

Thompson (1-1) gave up a base hit in the opening frame to shortstop Doug Carroll, but knuckled down after that to halt Wayne's hitting. Wayne spoiled Thompson's hopes for a shutout in the sixth when Al Nissen, who was safe on first on a fielder's choice, went to second on a passed ball and scored on an error.

Kardell got his team off to a quick 3-0 lead in the fourth on a two out two-run single. Kardell came back in the next inning to belt a two-run double in the five-run fifth to all but close the door on Wayne.

Vic Sharpe (1-2) gave up only five hits in seven innings, but had control problems, walking 13 Laurel batters.

The win boosted Laurel's record to 2-2 while Wayne dropped to 1-5 overall and 1-3 in Ralph Bishop League.

Wayne Midgets fared a lot better, picking up their fifth win in seven games with a 7-2 decision over Laurel.

In a contest plagued by mental miscues, Wayne took a 1-0 See THOMPSON, page 5

GOLF was about the only thing that dominated this reporter's weekend ventures to country clubs in Wayne, Wakefield and Lincoln.

Friday night I got in 18 holes at Wayne, Saturday another 18 at Wakefield and Sunday two rounds at Mahoney Park in Lincoln. Should be tired of golf by now, right? No way. I just can't play enough of it.

Saturday's play at Wakefield provided a couple of firsts for both my golfing partner, Steve McManigal, and I. While playing on the par 3 fourth hole, Steve used a nine iron to sail over a tree and sink the ball into the cup, a 109-yard feat. That was a first for him and the first time I've ever seen anyone make an ace.

Actually we didn't see the ball drop into the cup. The tree obscured our view and the only thing we heard was the flag stick rattling. We looked at each other and just wondered. That wonderment ended when we hurried to the green to see that little white ball nestled next to the stick inside the cup.

Steve didn't let that ace upset him too much. He went on to par six holes and collect two bogeys for his best-ever, a 35. Steve's hole-in-one wasn't the first at the Logan Valley course, in Wakefield. Three others, Larry Olson, Randy Johnson and Jim Anderson, each have aced a hole.

WHILE visiting the folks in Lincoln for Father's Day, I stopped off at Mahoney 7 a.m. Sunday to play 18 holes with a buddy of mine Gayle Jensen. Like me, this is his second year of serious golf, and wouldn't you know it he outshot me. After the first nine he led 45-49. If that's not bad enough, he poured it on the second nine with a 42, to again my 49.

Losing to him in sports activities has become a regular occurrence for me. Both of us started bowling in high school and are still active in the game. With a few exceptions, he's been the winner almost every time.

I think I've figured out why he's better. He's a lefty, and left-handers somehow have the edge... at least when it comes to competing against me.

To prove that he's no fluke when it comes to knocking down those pins, Jensen was named to the all-city bowling team Sunday by the Lincoln newspapers.

This is what the Lincoln paper had to say about Jensen: "The only southpaw on the first team (Gayle) maintained a high average of 199, finished second in the city all events and won the city scratch doubles along with Bill Emanuel, sparking the duo with a 704 series.

TOO LATE for a news story: Here are the results handed in late last week for local and area youngsters who placed in the state Special Olympics, May 20 and 21.

First place winners included: Karyn Lindner (50), Cindy Stizman (softball) and MarFaye Marotz (standing long jump).

During the Fremont Jaycee meet June 4, Stizman won the 40, 60 and 140 yard runs.

Backstop/Bob Bartlett

LUCKY FOR Laurel's Don Dalton (7) the throw to Wayne shortstop Dennis Carroll missed its target in the attempted put-out at second base. Dalton had a good night at the plate, collecting two hits in two at bats and scoring two runs. However, those two runs were all Laurel Midgets managed in their 7-2 loss to Wayne Monday night.

EXTENSION NOTES
By Joycelyn Smith

1977 marks the fortieth year that June has been celebrated as National Dairy Month. June was selected as Dairy Month back in 1937 because cows grazing on green grass produced more milk in June.

Milk is the prime source of calcium in our diet. Calcium is essential for bones and teeth. The protein found in milk helps maintain body tissues. Milk's B vitamins, particularly riboflavin, contribute to healthy skin and eyes.

Adults need two or more glasses of milk a day. Children need three glasses while teenagers should drink four glasses of milk daily.

Some people mistakenly believe they should not drink milk while trying to lose weight. Elimination of dairy foods during weight reduction can be harmful to the body. Dairy foods provide a marvelous quantity and quality of nutrients, with a relatively low caloric value.

Many people also claim they can't drink milk because of the much publicized lactose intolerance issue. Recent studies have shown that most persons, even those who had been considered "lactose intolerant" can tolerate milk in normal, one to two cup daily amounts without adverse symptoms.

When shopping, milk usually costs less by the gallon or half gallon. Buy the largest size you can use in five days. Check the date on the carton to make sure you're buying the freshest product.

Once you've left the supermarket, remember bacteriologists say "life begins at 40." They are talking about bacterial life at 40 degrees F. Milk will stay fresher if it is refrigerated at 38 degrees as soon as possible. Close the container after use to prevent absorption of other food odors and flavors and return it to the refrigerator as soon as possible.

Enjoy milk and an array of dairy products throughout the year.

Auxiliary Elects Officers

Floyd Gleason Unit 131 of the American Legion Auxiliary met June 13 with 17 members and one guest.

Election of officers resulted in Donna Stalling, president; Phyllis Swanson, first vice president; Jackie Williams, second vice president; Deenette Von Minden, secretary; Kathleen Lee, treasurer; Marion Ellis, chaplain; Phyllis Swanson, historian, and Pauline Karberg and Carol Schroeder, sergeants at arms.

Gail Hill, Margaret Isom and Kathryn Mitchell were elected to the executive committee and Gail Hill and Norma Smith were elected color guards.

A monetary donation was made to the Norfolk Veterans Home in honor of the auxiliary's gold star mother, Anna Carr, and gold star sister Vida Douglas. A donation of $15 was sent to the department president's project, which is the purchase of a van with a wheelchair lift for the Omaha Veterans Hospital.

A report on poppy day was given by chairman Nola Potter, who thanked members who helped distribute poppies.

It was announced that the department Legion and Auxiliary convention will be held June 24-26 at the Holiday Inn, 72nd and Grover, in Omaha. Delegates from Allen are Donna Stalling, Deenette Von Minden, Phyllis Swanson, Kathleen Lee and Nola Potter. Alternates are Lori Von Minden, Phyllis Rubeck, Vivian Good, Gail Hill and Margaret Isom.

It was announced that the auxiliary's applicant, Marcia Rastede, has been selected to attend the Freedoms Foundation Seminar at Valley Forge, Pa. in July.

Americanism chairman Phyllis Rubeck introduced Mrs. Gary (Carolyn) Mitchell, who recently became a U.S. Citizen. A flag was presented to Mrs. Mitchell, who told about the test and ceremony on becoming a citizen.

Gail Hill presided at a memorial service for Virginia Roberts, with both legion and auxiliary members in attendance. A bronze auxiliary marker was presented to her parents, Jack and Mabel Mitchell.

Hostesses for the June meeting were Esther Koester, and Marion Ellis. The birthday song was sung for Vivian Good.

Daughter Graduates
The Ken Linafelters and Robb, and Ardith Linafelter attended baccalaureate and graduation services Friday afternoon and evening of the Omaha Methodist Hospital School of Nursing.

Linafelters' daughter, Denise, was a member of the graduation class.

coln, the Don Mohrs II and Don III of Pender, the Daryl McGhees and Lloyd of Winnebago, the Leonard Linafelters and Warren of Omaha and the Bill Kiers of Allen.

The clinic is sponsored by the Allen American Legion Auxiliary.

Have you ever considered that it is not always easy: to apologize; to begin over again; to be unselfish; to take advice; to admit error; to be charitable; to avoid mistakes; to think and then act; to keep out of a rut; to make the best of little; to shoulder a deserved blame; to forgive and forget. To strive through a lifetime for such perfection brings its own rewards.
