

Highway from Laurel Due for Resurfacing

The Nebraska Department of Roads (DOR) plans to resurface Highway 57 from Laurel 10 miles north in the fiscal year 1978.

According to the report "Focus on Nebraska Highways," the estimated cost of the project is $1,859,000.

The report lists one-year programs for the fiscal year 1978, which began July 1, and five-year programs for the fiscal years 1979 through 1983.

Five-year programs in the local area include:

—Highway 9 in Dixon County, 14 miles of grading, structures and surfacing, from Wakefield to Highway 20, at a cost of $2,870,000.

—Highway 15 in Wayne and Cedar Counties, 10 miles of grading, structures and surfacing, from Wayne, north at a cost of $2,011,000.

—Highway 15 in Cedar County, five miles of grading and structures, from Laurel to the Concord junction, at a cost of $1,307,000.

—Highway 35 (7th Street in Wayne) one mile of urban improvement, at a cost of $993,000. State Roads Director David O. Coffidge said the Highway Commission approved one-year program is the largest in dollar volume in the department's history.

It exceeds the fiscal year 1977 program by $16 million. The 1978 program cost is $117 million.

The five-year program, listing highway projects in the development stages, totals $442,433,000.

Sioux City Man Escapes Injury

Thrashing Bee Getting Bigger

The Fifth Annual Old Thrashers' Steam Show sponsored by Russell and Carl Johnson of Wayne is scheduled for July 23.

The show this year will take place at the Johnson farmstead just north of Wayne on Highway 15. The show will be expanded this year to include three steam engines which will provide power for thrashing wheat, in addition to antique tractors, cars and gasoline engines. The program might even include a team of farm horses, the Johnsons said.

The event will begin at 1 p.m. and continue through the afternoon. No admission will be charged.

WSC Sponsors Poet-in-Residence

Jim Brummels wants students to know that creative, imaginative writing is a valid mode of self-expression.

"My goal is not to make every kid a poet," he said, "but to show them that it might feel good."

And as the new poet-in-residence at Wayne State College, Brummels will have the opportunity to do that and more.

During the next year he will devote approximately half his time to instructing students at Wayne State College. A variety of programs which will involve him with adults and young people throughout Northeast Nebraska will more than fill the remainder of his working hours.

Brummels will spend 15 days each at Winnebago, Pender, Wakefield and Wayne public schools, familiarizing students with their own creative abilities. He will introduce them to the works of contemporary American poets, many of them Nebraskan poets, emphasizing the literary heritage of this state. Guest poets will visit the schools, and at the conclusion of each residency, Brummels, with other teachers in the school system, will select student writings for publication.

Brummels will also conduct workshops for elementary, middle school and high school teachers in the area. He will be available for consultation by any interested school, individual or community organization. He will teach college-credit classes at WSC, and will be involved in the community writing workshop to be held at the John G. Neihardt Center in Bancroft, and in the second annual Neihardt Creative Writing Contest. Brummels will help select guest artists to visit the area, and he will be available for individual guidance for any area resident, student or not, who wishes to pursue an interest in writing.

Pen Pals

RELATIVES FROM Sweden staying with the Henry Langenbergs of rural Winside are (left to right) Inger Carlsson, her husband, Sven, and their sons Hans and Hakan. Sven's father, Herman Carlsson, and Mrs. Langenberg's father, Walfred "Swede" Carlsson, now deceased, were brothers. The visit resulted from a seven-year long correspondence between Hakan, and Peggy Langenberg (far right). Sven's father lived in the United States for about seven years before deciding to return to Sweden. Walfred, who changed the spelling of the name to Carlsson, and his sister, Mrs. C.E. Nelson of Winside, settled in Wayne County. Other relatives include Mrs. Langenberg's sisters Mrs. Russell Pryor and Mrs. Gibb Dangberg, both of Wayne; Don Carlson and Bill Carlson of Wayne, Al Carlson of Winside and Ray and Bob Nelson, sons of Mrs. C.E. Nelson. All four members of the Carlsson family reside at the home where Mrs. Langenberg's father grew up, and work at a lamp factory in Orsgo, Sweden. The family arrived at New York City June 24 touring there, Washington, D.C., Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Chicago, before arriving at the Langenberg home where they will stay until July 30.

Wakefield Teaching Roster Nearly Full

The Wakefield board of education Monday night agreed to list school district property for sale with an Omaha firm, Etrod and Associates.

Property offered for sale includes the old high school building and shop building, and some land.

The board also discussed purchasing a new bus during the 1977-78 school year. Companies which can provide buses will meet with the board during its September meeting.

Schools superintendent Dr. Gary Bennerette and athletic director Lyle Trullinger at the next board meeting will present recommendations for two new junior high athletic programs, girls volleyball and girls basketball, under consideration by the board.

The board also discussed purchase of new appliances for the home economics room in the new high school building, and agreed to contract with the Milton G. Waldman Co. in Wakefield for computer accounting services. The company now provides computer payroll service for the school district and in September will provide services for all accounting.

New teachers who will join the Wakefield schools in the fall, announced Monday night, include:

—Mrs. Betty Heier, who will teach high school English and speech. She is a Wayne State College graduate.

—Mary Graalum, who will teach high school chemistry and science. A native of Wahpeton, See WAKEFIELD, page 9

Federal Aid Asked For Airport Project

The Wayne airport authority should know by the end of July if a request for state and federal funds for airport improvements has been approved.

Airport authority chairman Stan Morris, while presenting the airport budget request for fiscal 1978, said the board has requested funding for a new paved north-south runway, and extension of an existing east-west runway.

If approved, the project would be financed with 90 per cent federal money, four per cent state money, and six per cent local money.

The Wayne city council approved the $48,700 budget request forwarded by Morris Tuesday night, and agreed to continue a two-mill property tax levy in support of the airport.

Based on tentative evaluation figures, the levy should raise about $19,600. Half of the property tax revenue, about $9,800, will go toward retiring some $22,000 in outstanding indebtedness, incurred before the airport authority was formed.

State law allows municipalities to levy up to one mill for airport operating funds, and one mill for debt retirement.

Other sources of revenue for the airport include hangar rentals, rent of farm ground on the airport property, state allocation funds, homestead allocation monies, and insurance tax.

During discussion of the airport authority budget, councilman Jimmie Thomas brought up a related matter also on the Tuesday night agenda. The Wayne Lions Club had previously inquired about the possibility of city participation in building a restroom and shower facility at the camping park next to the airport.

The park property is owned by the city but came under the jurisdiction of the airport authority when the body was formed. City attorney Kem Swarts Tuesday delivered an opinion that Nebraska case and statute law would prevent the city from using funds to improve the park so long as it is under the airport authority's jurisdiction.

The city is also prohibited from maintaining the park, according to Swarts' opinion. Thomas asked that the airport authority consider returning the property to city council jurisdiction, if such action will not jeopardize the chances of receiving the requested aid for improving the airport. ## Cataloging Computerized For 11 Network Libraries

Eleven Nebraska libraries in the Northern Library Network (NLN) will soon be served by the OCLC (Ohio College Library Center) computerized cataloging terminal which was installed recently at Wayne State College Conn Library.

WSC through a $14,000 federal grant, has developed a pilot program to determine feasibility of cooperative use of the OCLC system and the WSC terminal.

Permanent operation of such a program could eliminate duplication in staff and materials, and would emphasize cooperation between libraries, according to project coordinator Mary Jo Gross and project director Charles Stelling, WSC associate professor of library science.

Libraries participating in the project are Norfolk Public, Columbus Public, Clarkson Memorial, House Memorial in Pender, Piiger Public, Osceola Public, Laurel High School, Wakefield High School, District 57 in Wayne County, Northeast

Technical Community College in Norfolk and Northeast Nebraska Regional Center in Norfolk.

Mrs. Gross has visited each of these libraries to explain terminal use and benefits. During the pilot program each library will be allowed 180 requests. Requests will be fed into the terminal, and in about a week, standardized catalog cards will be in the mail from the OCLC base office in Columbus, Ohio.

The college also expects to have available this summer a printer which will expand services to include production of spine labels, book cards labels and book pocket labels, and which can copy records and duplicate reference lists.

It will have to be determined if participating libraries can assume the cost of the OCLC system after conclusion of the federally funded pilot program in the fall of 1978.

Democratic Committeeman:

House Farm Bill 'Unacceptable'

Farm price support legislation scheduled for a House of Representatives decision Wednesday, July 20, will be unacceptable to Midwest farmers unless a Senate version of the farm bill is approved, Allen O'Donnell of Wayne said Tuesday.

O'Donnell, Nebraska Democratic Party National Committeeman, said failure to enact the Senate version of the bill could put small-farm operators "in a great deal of trouble," particularly young farmers who have borrowed heavily to purchase land.

Minnesota Congressman Richard Nolan plans to introduce an amendment calling for adoption of the Senate bill during floor debate in the House scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, O'Donnell said. The Carter administration, however, has pledged to veto such action and the Nebraska committeeman believes there is little chance the House will approve the amendment unless the veto threat is lifted.

O'Donnell was scheduled to meet with Democratic National Committeemen from six other Great Plains states Wednesday in Minneapolis. He said Tuesday he would urge a unified effort to apply pressure against the White House to withdraw the veto threat. "I'm not optimistic," O'Donnell confided Tuesday.

Unless the House adopts the Senate version, a compromise bill will be drafted in conference committee. Anything less than the Senate version will be unacceptable to family farm owners, O'Donnell said. "Even the Senate version doesn't help that much."

Support prices in the Senate bill are considerably higher than those proposed by the House. The Senate version price support for 1977 wheat, for example, would be $2.90, compared with $2.25 in the House bill. Figures proposed for 1979 are House, $2.47; Senate, $3.10.

"Those of us from farm states know the 'likely consequences' of our state's economies if the House version is passed," O'Donnell said in a letter last week to Democratic National Committeemen members in Kansas, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin. "Not only do farmers lose, but every citizen loses."

President Jimmy Carter, in 1976 said he supports the concept of family farms and a "reasonable" return to the farmer for his work and his products, O'Donnell said. However, he added, Carter favors the House farm bill, which the Nebraskan said "is not reasonable."

O'Donnell said he is also concerned about another policy apparently favored by the White House. He said it is Gov. J.J. Exon's understanding from Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland that if farmers are required to set aside acreage next year, there are no plans now to pay them for idled acres.

"I get the feeling that the administration wants to move toward a totally free market," O'Donnell said. That might be okay if the market truly reflected needs, he added, but the farmer doesn't know from year-to-year what production will be expected of him.

Because of the uncertainties in the farm market, price supports which will help guarantee farmers their cost of production and a reasonable profit are needed, O'Donnell said. Because of difficulties in pinning down actual production costs, most Democrats are going back to the idea of support prices based on parity, he added.

Kraemer-Elton Marriage Solemnized in Rites July 2

The wedding of Melva Jane Kraemer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin L. Kraemer of Wakefield, and David Edward Elton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Elton of Fremont, was solemnized on July 2 at St. John's Lutheran Church in Wakefield.

The Rev. Ronald Holling of Wakefield officiated at the double ring ceremony and Don Kluever of Allen sang "The Wedding Song," "The Wedding Prayer," and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Esther Dersch of Wakefield.

Vases of pastel-colored carnations decorated the altar for the occasion and the pews were accented with multi-colored bows. Candles were lit by Cheryl Nelson, Wakefield and Dave Carlson, Wayne.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, appeared in a floor-length gown of crystal white organza fashioned with a high-rise bodice featuring a sheer yoke and full bishop sleeves accented by Chantilly lace and pearls. The A-line skirt, hemmed by lace and decorated with appliques and pearls, fell into a chapel-length train. Her mantilla veil was also trimmed with Chantilly lace.

The bride wore her grandmother's wedding band and carried a bouquet of pastel-colored daisies, carnations and roses, accented with baby's breath, and entwined with a handkerchief of her grandmother.

The bride's honor attendant was Connie Carlson of Wayne, and bridesmaids were Cindy Spauling of Sioux City, and Diane Kieckhafer and Susan Baker, both of Wakefield. Connie wore a floor-length dress of blue carabell polyester crepe featuring a high waistline and nylon floral-flocked bodice and sleeves. She carried a round nosegay of pink roses, baby's breath and streamers.

The bridesmaids were attired in pastel pink, green and yellow gowns styled identically to the maid of honor's and also carried similar nosegays. Personal attendants for the bride were Cindy Willers of Wayne, and Lois Barrett of Fremont.

Attending as best man for the bridegroom was Jeff Ellerman of Fremont. Groomsmen were Larry Barrett, Fremont, and Stan Haglund and Galen Samuelson, both of Wakefield. Ushers were Norman Slama and Roger Leonard, also of Wakefield.

The men were dressed in black and white tuxedos, with the bridegroom wearing a beige shirt and the groomsmen in pastel blue, pink, green and yellow shirts. The groom wore a pink rose and his attendants wore pastel-colored carnations.

Sheila Willers of Wayne was flower girl and wore a Holly Hobby dress of white satin. Gary Barrett, Fremont, was ringbearer and was attired in a black and white tuxedo and carried a pillow used in past wedding of the bride's family.

Mrs. Kraemer chose a floor-length gown of light blue double-knit with a print flocked jacket and wore a pink rose corsage. The groom's mother wore a blue double knit gown with a lace bodice and also chose a pink corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Haas of Norfolk were hosts for the reception for the couple in the church parlors following the ceremony. The 250 guests were registered by Mrs. Terry Rahm of Allen.

Gifts were arranged by Jo Ann Carlson of Wayne, and Mary Prochaska of Wakefield. Punch was served by Mrs. Larry Will, Wayne.

Dining room hostesses for the reception was Mrs. Arvid Samuelson, Mrs. Paul Borg, Concord, and Mrs. Laurence Ekberg, Wakefield, poured coffee.

Mrs. Larry Baker of Wakefield baked and decorated the wedding cake, and also cut and served it, assisted by Mrs. Alvin Willers of Wayne, and Mrs. Wally Hartung of Hooper. St. John's Couples Club was in charge of the kitchen.

Waitresses were Cindy Rouse, Teresa Henschke, Marlene and Carol Ruzicka, all of Wakefield, and Deb Wert and Gwen Meir, both of Wayne.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Wakefield High School. The groom, a 1973 graduate of Fremont High School, served in the Marines, and is presently employed at Coryell Auto Company, Wayne. After a wedding trip to Missouri, the couple will be at home on a farm north of Wakefield.

Veterans Show How Its Done

THE FINAL foursome in the championship flight of Sunday's Wayne Country Club Open had its ups and downs trying to break par on the final nine holes of the 27-hole match. Eventual Open winner, Bob Reeg, from left, and Larry Berres, show their smooth style which made the veterans strong favorites to win the Open title. Among the challengers in the final nine holes were young bucks Tom Johansen, third from left, and Kevin Cuveller. Johansen took an early lead on the old pros, but couldn't keep up. As for Cuveller, his problems started to mount after the first hole when he dubbed several shots. A total of 38 golfers were entered in the championship flight, but only 25 made the final cut.

Berres Early Charge Falters on Last Hole

Perennial Club Champ Reeg Captures Wayne Open

By BOB BARTLETT
Three-time club champion Bob Reeg added another notch to his long list of victories Sunday by sweeping the Wayne Country Club Open with a three-over-par 111.

The Wayne golfer, who jumped into an early lead with the low 73 after 18 holes, fought off an early charge by Larry Berres of St. Louis, Mo., with a final round of 38 to top Berres and two others tied at 112 apiece.

Former Wayne High golfer Tom Johansen, who was one stroke behind after 18, had the best shot at knocking off Reeg when he birdied the first hole and was on the 480-yard second green in two. But disaster struck when Johansen, now a freshman at Fort Hays State in Kansas, failed to sink his 25-foot putt for an eagle and ended up taking three putts on the par five. Johansen ended the final round with a four-over-par 40.

Gusty winds and winter-damaged greens hampered most of the 180 golfers from making or breaking par on the 6,187-yard course.

Former Wayne golfer Ken Dahl turned in the low nine with his 34 in the final round; Dahl, who is club manager at Beemer, birdied the par four first hole and drew a loud cheer from his followers when he sunk a bird on the 495-yard par five ninth hole to go into the clubhouse with a 27-hole total of 112.

Reeg, Berres, Johansen and

Wayne State golfer Kevin Cuveller made up the last foursome of the 25 golfers who made the final cut; Reeg and Berres were neck-and-neck until the third hole where Berres picked up a par three while Reeg bogied. The one-stroke margin held until the eighth hole where Reeg double bogied while Berres was one over.

Berres, who has a 75 after 18, got into trouble on the last hole and had to settle for a six to end the nine with a one-over 37 and a 112 for the day.

After paring the first hole, Cuveller ran into a batch of problems which eventually left him at 45 for the final nine and 120 for the tournament.

His drive on the second hole only made it to the top of the first hill where it hit a small tree and landed beneath another tree. The junior from Oakland dubbed his second shot for a foot and sent his third less than a 100 yards. After being warned by tournament marshal Ralph Etter to hold down his temper, Cuveller made the green in two more shots and completed the hole in three putts with an eight.

Problems continued to mount up for Cuveller on the 313 yard par four fourth hole where he topped his second shot for 20 yards and finished two over.

Midgets Clip Class A Norfolk for 11th Win

TALK TO anyone of the assistants at the Municipal Swimming Pool about Joan Hochstein as a coach, and chances are you'll get the same reaction.

The 19-year-old blonde generates enough enthusiasm in her young swimmers and the people around her that it almost makes everyone at a swim meet jump in and take part.

"What can you say about her? She's just great. She really gets involved and doesn't mean half way, but all the way," said assistant Kelly Frevert.

Bystanders and parents who attended last Thursday night's home meet against Hartington got a glimpse of what Kelly meant about Joan's enthusiastic spark which ignited the crowd. She was at the starting line encouraging her youngsters running along the concrete walk shouting and yelling and standing at the finish line to congratulate her swimmers whether they won or lost.

Joan doesn't believe in yelling at the kids if they don't win. She wants them to like swimming as something to look forward to and still enjoy.

The sophomore at Wayne State takes that attitude after it was handed down to her at the age of eight when she first started.

Joan's favorite strokes are the back and breast which she used to perform well for the city teams several years back. Now most of swimming at the pool is done at a leisurely pace because her double major at Wayne State takes up most of her would-be practice time in the winter.

Chuck Brewer, who also works with Joan, noted that she'll make a good coach some day. She has the kids cheering and having a good time, he smiled, adding that "she's perfect for the job. She's starting to generate some interest in this town."

With that kind of compliment, Brewer is willing to nominate Joan for Miss Enthusiastic for 1977 in Wayne.

DEFENSIVE TACKLE Mike Anderson of Winside is listed as one of 12 junior returning lettermen to this year's Kearney State football roster. The 6-4, 245-pound lineman will help bolster coach Claire Boroff's group of 70 experienced players who will be going after another Central States Intercollegiate Conference title when the Antelopes open loop play Oct. 1 against Pittsburg State.

I HAD it in the back of my mind that golfer Bob Reeg owned the Wayne

Country Club title more than three straight years, but according to his quipping companion Jim Marsh, three years is right. However, Marsh quickly added, that doesn't include 1977 — "I'm going to beat him this year."

A fired-up Wayne Midget team rocked Class A Norfolk for a 5-1 victory Tuesday night to stretch the home team's winning record to 11-4.

Wayne did all its scoring early in the game. The winners pushed across two runs in the first off an error and a run-scoring single by third baseman Mark Gansbom. In the second, the locals added three more runs with the help of Dean

Carroll's two-run base hit. Norfolk had runners in scoring position in the first two games but were stopped by Wayne's defense. The invaders had runners on first and second in the opening frame when winning hurler Dennis Carroll (6-2) grabbed a pop fly for one out, then got help from his infield to retire the side.

In the second, Norfolk had a runner on third with no one out when the infield picked up two ground outs and Carroll struck out Norfolk's third batter to end the frame.

It wasn't until the sixth the invaders pushed across a run on a base hit.

Pairings Set for District

Pairings for the Class C District 3 American Legion Junior and Midget tournaments were released Tuesday by tournament director Lyle Thomas of Coleridge.

In the Midget division, host Coleridge and Wayne will square off in the opener on Wednesday, July 20, at 6 p.m. Teams from Laurel and Randolph play at 6 o'clock on Thursday followed by the winner of the Coleridge-Wayne game versus Emerson at 8. Championship game is at 6 p.m. on July 23.

Unlike past year, the Junior division will have two representatives. The runnerup also will head for the Area A meet at Wayne since there's no one to represent District 8, Thomas pointed out.

First-round action in the Junior division starts July 20 at 8 between Emerson and Randolph. On July 22, Wayne and Laurel tangle at 6, followed by the winner of the Emerson-Randolph contest going against Coleridge at 8. Finals are at 8 o'clock July 23.

Mike's Picks Up 2nd Softball Championship

Mike's Tavern of Wayne picked up its second tournament trophy of the season Sunday in the Walthill JC's Invitational six-pitch softball meet.

Kim Baker's three home runs and a stout defense enabled

Mike to win the double-elimination tournament, said coach Mike Loofe.

The Wayne team opened Thursday night with a 11-6 win over French Quarters of Walthill and beat Ron's Texaco of South Sioux City, 4-3, Saturday.

During Sunday's final rounds, Mike's topped Clausen Electric of South Sioux, 10-8, but dropped a 12-11 decision to Snyder O'Gorman in the semifinals. In the finals, Mike's won 8-5 over Snyder.

Playing on the winning team were Tom Hagmann, Mic Daehnke, Tim Johnson, Marty Hansen, Brad Wieland, George Loofe, Dan Loofe, Rod Bowder, Tim Robinson and Loofe.

Good Turnout Prompts More Fun Run Meets

The good turnout for the first "Fun-Run" Sunday at Wayne State's oval has prompted members of the newly-formed Wayne Track Club to host another meet.

Twenty runners registered for the meet, about twice as many as meet director Don Rinehart figured would show. As a result, WTC is planning Fun-Runs every other weekend for the rest of the summer.

Next meet is Sunday, July 24, at 7 p.m. Labeled as the WTC Road Race, this meet will offer half-mile, one-mile and four-mile runs. Runners should report at the Wayne County Club parking lot, a half mile north of Wayne.

The runs are open free of charge to everyone, regardless of age, and are free. Certificate awards are presented to all finishers.

Invading Norfolk Blanks Wayne, 7-0

Visiting Norfolk Juniors Tuesday night jumped off to a 5-0 lead in the first inning and went on to score two more runs in the sixth to shutout Wayne, 7-0.

Three RBI singles, including a two-run hit by shortstop Greg Mefford, and two crucial errors put the locals almost out of reach of catching the Class A club.

Winning pitcher Rice did his share on the mound to help Norfolk in the victory by giving up only two hits while whiffing 17 Wayne batters. Vic Sharpe started on the mound for Wayne to suffer his fifth-loss against two wins.

Monday night's Ralph Bishop League contest with Wisner had to be postponed until tonight (Thursday) due to wet grounds.

Nesting Boxes
Provide Shelter
For Bluebirds

"How readily the bluebirds become our friends and neighbors when we offer them suitable nesting retreats!" wrote 19th-century naturalist John Burroughs. His observation seems even more relevant today as aggressive house sparrows and starlings usurp bluebird nesting places, and man with his disdain for tree stumps and dead branches saws them down.

Thus pressed, bluebirds take quickly to boxes, such as this large one (right). Its extra depth protects against raccoons and other marauders. Where predators don't threaten, shallower boxes suffice (diagram below).

In the past five years nearly 1,000 bluebirds were raised in 85 boxes by Dr. Lawrence Zeleny.

Bluebirds prefer open areas with scattered trees. Boxes may be constructed of almost any type of wood, and they should be mounted three to five feet off the ground for convenient monitoring. Fence posts make practical supports; greased metal poles help thwart predators.

An entrance hole 1 1/2 inches wide will bar starlings but not sparrows, which must be evicted. The persistent squatters have been known to return eight times or more before giving up.

Thought for Today
By Rowan Wilkse

"Worry is merely time wasted in unpleasantness. If we practiced mental calisthenics as we do physical exercise, we would purge our brains of this foolishness."
Arnold Bennett

Obviously, Bennett is convinced that worry isn't going to help anything. Maybe he had very little to worry about and thus never learned that it's often rather hard to not worry about impending disasters.

There's little doubt that Bennett is right, of course. Worry is time wasted. It's better that we use that time for working out a plan to solve the problem. Will such a plan work? Let's not worry about that!

Few people are well informed about funerals. We're available to answer all questions including price information. Let us help you.

Clayton is spending some time senators who claimed that the Department had issued too many appropriations (permits to use surface water) and had allowed streams to be pumped dry by irrigators. Parts of all of 30 or more major Nebraska streams or rivers, according to the Game and Parks Commission, went dry last summer.

The DWR argued that it had insufficient money and staff to determine if streams could support requested appropriations. DWR also told the Legislature it had no authority to deny applicants on those grounds. The DWR has the authority to deny applications for appropriations when it is in the public interest. The Legislature will probably act next year, according to Kremer, to make it clear that that authority can and should be exercised when an additional appropriation may cause a stream to go dry. This summer, however, the DWR will continue issuing appropriations regardless of their effect on stream flow.

Kremer also predicts that the Legislature will act next year to give NRDs more "flexibility in outlining" groundwater control areas. NRDs have the responsibility to ask the director of the DWR to declare their area as a groundwater control area when shortages of groundwater require the regulation of water use. Legislation is needed, says Kremer, to make it clear that NRD boards can request groundwater control areas for portions of their districts without having the whole district declared a control area. Kremer said legislation is also needed to set guidelines for NRDs to work together when groundwater problems cross NRD boundaries.

Marion Ball, director of the DWR, is currently reviewing requests to have two areas declared groundwater control areas. One includes the entire Upper Republican NRD (Perkins, Chase and Dundy Counties) and the other lies mostly in the Upper Big Blue NRD which includes all or part of York, Hamilton, Seward, Fillmore, Clay, Saline, Adams, Polk and Butler Counties. The proposed control area also includes parts of the Lower Big Blue, Lower Platte-North and Central Platte NRDs. If groundwater control areas are declared, the NRDs may begin allocating groundwater and, as a last resort, may prevent the installation of new irrigation wells.

Kremer also hopes to pass legislation merging the riparian water rights system into the appropriate system. A riparian water right is the right to use water from a stream on adjacent parcels of land which were sold by the government before 1895. An appropriate right to use water is obtained by receiving a permit from the state. The proposed legislation would require riparian water users (except those using water for livestock or domestic purposes) to request appropriations from the DWR, which would be required to honor the request. Riparian irrigators would be issued appropriations bearing the date on which they first began exercising their riparian irrigation right. In conflicts between appropriators, the user with the earliest permit has a superior right to use the water. Therefore, the riparian irrigat-ors merged into the appropriate system wouldn't be losing any water rights.

The Legislature is necessary, according to Big Springs Sen. Jack Mills, because the state currently can't determine the number or riparian users or the amount of water they are withdrawing from Nebraska's streams. By requiring appropriations, the state will have a record of all surface water users and the amount of water they are allowed to withdraw.

There are numerous other issues that the Legislature must eventually confront, such as the legal relationship between ground and surface water, the ownership of groundwater, minimum streamflow legislation and others. Columbus Sen. Don Dworak is hoping that the Public Works Committee will address these issues next year. If they don't, he says he will introduce minimum streamflow legislation himself.

Reaction to the Legislature's "go slow" approach has been mixed. Loren Schnittgrund, public information director for the Nebraska Water Resources Association, which represents irrigators, an agribusinessman, one-fourth of Nebraska's banks and others, said, "The issue is so complex you have to go slow." However, Bob Warrick, Meadow Grove farmer and president of the Nebraska Sierra Club is unhappy with the Legislature's performance. "Our rivers are going dry and we're mining our groundwater. The longer we wait the more we compound the problem."

Assistance Available For Home Heat Bills

The State of Nebraska has received a grant from the U.S. Community Services Administration to assist low-income residents, with a special emphasis on the aged, to pay last winter's household heating costs, according to the State Department of Public Welfare.

The program being initiated to utilize these grant monies is called "The Special Crisis Intervention Program." In Nebraska, Gov. J.J. Exon has designated the Department of Public Welfare to administer the program. Those who qualify for aid under this program may receive assistance in paying past due heating fuel bills, credits to help pay for next season's fuel bills, and to have their homes weatherized.

The program will run until Aug. 31, but Wayne County welfare director Thelma Moeller said applications should be received at her office by Aug. 22.

Council

In other action the council:
 —Agreed to recommend in favor of approving a Class C Liquor license for Rain Tree Drive. In liquor, which will be located in the building which formerly housed the Bottle Shop. Jon Haase and Ilene Lutt are listed as owners of the business.
 —Approved a motion by Darrel Fudberth to approve sidewalk cutouts to be used as planters in the downtown improvement districts. Cutouts, five to a block with three on one side and two on the opposite side, will be 36 inches square on Main St. and 30 inches square on side streets in the district.
 Also included in the motion was provision for 24-inch wide decorative strips of brick running from building to curb in the district. The strips will be installed over water lines, for decorative purposes and to provide access to water lines. The only bid received for installing the brick strips is for $10,200, from Karl Otte of Wayne. The bid, however, was for 16-inch wide strips requested by the downtown improvement committee.
 The council took no action on a $4,065 bid to border the 43 sidewalk planters with brick, at a cost of $95 each.
 Heard Swartz's opinion regarding use of right of way between streets and sidewalks. A definitive description cannot be stated, according to the opinion, but the property can be used for purposes such as providing public utilities, parking or ornamental landscaping.

 —Discussed but took no action regarding a proposed paving project for a portion of Grainland Rd. The county board had originally proposed an arrangement whereby the county would pay one-third of the cost, the city would pay one-third, and owners of adjacent property would pay one-third. Street commissioner Vern Schulz said the county commissioners are still in favor of the project, but their attorney is under the impression that the county can't authorize the expenditure, and no action will be taken until the matter is resolved.

Endangered Species Agreement Approved

Game and Parks Commission director Gene Mahoney has signed an agreement between his agency and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service regarding the protection and management of endangered and threatened species in Nebraska.
 The document makes the Game and Parks Commission eligible to apply for federal matching funds set aside by Congress for endangered wildlife. This greatly expands the potential of the $50,000 budget for non-game management approved by the Nebraska Unicameral, according to Mahoney.

 The species that will be involved include the peregrine falcon, one of the swiftest and most precise flyers among birds of prey. It is believed to have once nested on the buttes and cliffs of Nebraska's Pine Ridge and Wildcat Hills. Another is the black-footed ferret, an elusive, weasel-like critter that preys upon prairie dogs. The third major beneficiary of the agreement is the whooping crane, the large and very rare wild bird that migrates through Nebraska each spring and fall.

 The added federal money will ultimately allow the Game and Parks Commission to hire personnel to help locate and study endangered species in Nebraska and identify areas of critical habitat, buy or lease critical habitat, and work on re-introduction of peregrine falcons as a nesting bird in their former Nebraska range.

 Mahoney said that the agreement "demonstrates interest and commitment on the part of both the state and federal wildlife agencies in protecting and managing these endangered and threatened species. Cooperation between the Game and Parks Commission and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is essential. Without federal help, we could not mount the kind of program necessary to save these species from oblivion."

Hammock Trade Swings Higher

In the history of get-up-and-go achievers, Europe may have invented the wheel, but the New World invented the hammock.
 Wheels have long since rolled the world around, but now rope hammocks are also stretching toward new horizons. According to a survey by the National Geographic Society, about 100,000 are expected to be sold through 1977 in the biggest year yet of the $5-million American Christopher Columbus and his men were the first Europeans to see a hammock when they landed in the Caribbean islands and walked in on a camp of Arawak Indians taking their ease in "hamacas," as the local word hit the sailors' ears.

 As it turns out, the Arawaks may have been too prone to take life lying down because in years to come they were overrun and slaughtered by island-hopping invaders from South America, the fierce Carib Indians.

 It may have been the hammock-loving Arawaks that James Thurber had in mind when he wrote: "It's better to have loafed and lost than never to have loafed at all."
 Europeans soon learned what the Indian inventors had known all the time: Hammocks, with their loose fishnet weave, were ideal for a cool, breezy rest in the tropics, afloat or ashore.
 Not only that, but they were highly portable. And when it came time for a snooze, all you had to do was unroll it, find two somethings high enough and far enough apart to tie the hammock to, and climb in.
 By the time Britannia and the Royal Navy were ruling the waves, Lord Nelson's men had hammock-racking down to a science. Each far was allowed 14 inches of width for his hammock, now made of tough canvas to survive life on a man-of-war. Space below decks were cramped, but rank still had its privilege: Petty officers got a full two feet.
 Traditionally, a sailor carried his hammock with him, tightly rolled around his sea bag. And, in the days of sail, he might be sewed into it for burial at sea with a cannonball for ballast.
 It took World War II for the U.S. Navy to give up the hammock for the bunk bed on shipboard. Old hands were sorry to see it go, for the hanging canvas hammock fared the ocean motion of a rolling ship as no steel rack ever could.
 On land, the hammock's heyday began in the Gay Nineties with lazy summer afternoons, moonlit verandas, lemonade, and mandolins. Its popularity began to sag with increasing use of air conditioning and the invention of foldup, finger-pitching, porch and lawn furniture.
 Now the hammock is "in" again, not only with a certain nostalgic appeal outdoors, but hung in rec rooms and modern living rooms.
 One family proudly sports a circular trampoline-like hammock where the coffee table used to be in front of the living room fireplace, and one ultimate hammockophile has spanned his backyard with a family-size version measuring 14 by 40 feet.

Approximately 1,250 permits remain for the 1977 rifle deer season in Nebraska, according to the State Game and Parks Commission.

 Prospective hunters are reminded that they must also purchase a $7.50 habitat stamp this year before hunting any game animals or game birds, including big game such as deer and antelope.
 Application forms are available at permit vendors across the state, district offices of the Game and Parks Commission, or the head office at 2200 North 33rd Street, Lincoln.

Two-Run Homers Poet

In Ninth Rally South Stars, 6-3

Paced by MVP hurler Boyd Batenhorst, the North came up with a pair of two-run homers in the top of the ninth Sunday night to down the South in the annual Tri-County League all-star game at Coleridge.
 Batenhorst, who tossed shut-out balls in the last three frames, got his team rolling with a two-run shot for a 4-3 lead before teammate Steve Brosz added another two-run round-tripper.
 Laurel's Bob Weisenberg also had a good night on the mound, digging his three-inning stint. As far as hitting goes, none of Laurel's all-star candidates were able to connect off the South. Besides Weisenberg, also playing from Laurel were John Abts at third base, Nick Danze at catcher, and George Schroeder at first.

Allen's Blohm Still Alive And Sfrong

Rumors that Allen's Neil Blohm was all washed up as a pitcher apparently didn't reach Wayne Sunday night.
 The winging right-hander for Allen-Martinsburg town team threw almost like he did for Wayne State College last spring, lassing those fast balls mixed with the good curves to topple Wayne, 4-3.
 Talk around the area put Blohm on the retirement list with a bad arm, but team spokesman Gary Troth pointed out that the talk just wasn't true.
 "This is only the second game Neil has thrown for us. Sure his arm is sore, but that's only because he hasn't pitched very much this year," Troth said.
 Blohm gave up two quick runs in the first frame for a 2-2 ball game when shortstop Terry Lutt drifted a run-scoring single and later scored on a fielder's choice by left fielder Mike Green.
 Wayne took the lead in the second inning on a base hit by Mike Creighton, 3-2, but saw the game once again tied up in the following frame when Scott-Sagert scored his second run of the game on an error charged to Lutt.
 A bases-loaded walk by Earle Overin issued to designated hitter Bill Shultz in the fourth put Allen in front to stay.

Ponca Drops 17-3 Contest To Wakefield

A lot of hits, walks and errors sums up Wakefield's 17-3 smashing of Ponca Sunday night.
 The hits — 12 in all — were the most player-coach Max Gross saw his club put together in one game. As for the walks and errors, Gross pointed out that Ponca just couldn't put its game intact against his team which moved up to third place in the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League.
 The hot Wakefield nine, which picked up its third straight win for a 6-4 league mark, got off to a good start in the first frame with a solo home run over the left field fence by catcher Keith Siebrandt.
 Wakefield continued scoring in every frame, pushing across as many as four runs in the second and fourth frames to post its second league win over Ponca, which is last in the eight-team loop with a 1-10 record.

Caution Urged in Grain Bins

A sudden rash of suffocation deaths in grain bins in Nebraska-Lincoln points up the need for caution when working in and around the structures, according to Rollin Schnieder, extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Schnieder said that this is the time of year when many people are moving grain in preparation for next year's crop. "There are a number of reasons that lead to suffocation, but the 'bridging over' of grain leads the list," he stated.

Pudding Freeze

- 1 package (4-serving size) Pudding and Pie Filling, any flavor except lemon
- 1/4 cup Sugar
- 2 cups Milk
- 1 container (4 1/2-oz.) Frozen Whipped Topping, thawed

Combine pudding mix, sugar and milk in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Cover surface with wax paper and chill. Beat pudding until creamy; blend in whipped topping. Pour into 8x4-inch loaf pan; freeze 1 hour. Spoon into bowl and beat with hand beater or electric mixer until smooth but not melted. Return to pan or a 1-quart mold, and freeze until firm, 3 to 4 hours. Serve with sweetened halved strawberries, if desired. Makes 1 quart or 6 to 8 servings.

Strawberry Pudding Freeze. Prepare Pudding Freeze as directed, using vanilla pudding and pie filling and folding in 3/4 cup sweetened crushed strawberries after beating partially frozen mixture.

Fruited Tapioca Pudding

- 1 can (8 1/4-oz.) Crushed Pineapple in Syrup
- 1 package (3 1/4-oz.) Vanilla Tapioca Pudding
- 1 tablespoon Butter or Margarine

Drain fruits, measure syrups. Add water to syrups to make 2 cups. Prepare pudding mix as directed on package, substituting measured liquid for the milk. Remove from heat. Stir in butter and fruit. Chill. Garnish with prepared whipped topping, if desired. Makes about 3 and one third cups or 6 servings.

Note: Other canned fruits such as peaches, cherries, sour red cherries or plums may be substituted, using a total of 2 cups drained fruit.

Caramel Almond Sponge au Chocolat

- 1 package (6-oz.) Semi-Sweet Chocolate Pieces or 6 squares (1-oz. each) Semi-sweet Cooking Chocolate
- 2 tablespoons Butter or Margarine
- 1 tablespoon Water
- 1 cup Sugar
- 1 envelope Plain Gelatin
- 1/2 cup Cold Water
- 3/4 cup Scalded Milk
- 1/2 teaspoon Salt
- 1 teaspoon Vanilla
- 1 cup Whipping Cream
- 3/4 cup Roasted Diced Almonds

Heat chocolate, butter, and 1 tablespoon water over hot water until chocolate is partly melted. Remove from heat and stir to blend; cool slightly. With back of teaspoon or pastry brush, coat inside surface of 8 or 9 paper baking cups with thin layer of chocolate mixture. (Allow about 1 tablespoon chocolate mixture for each cup. If mixture becomes too thick to spread easily, thin over hot water.) Place coated cups in muffin tins; chill until hard. Melt 3/4 cup sugar in heavy skillet, stirring until sugar is dark and caramelized. Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup water.

Add caramelized sugar slowly to scalded milk, stirring briskly to prevent curdling. Stir until all sugar is dissolved. Add gelatin and stir to dissolve. Stir in remaining sugar, salt and vanilla. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Whip cream; fold into gelatin mixture along with all but 2 tablespoons almonds. If necessary, chill again until mixture mounds on spoon. Heap lightly into chocolate cups; sprinkle with remaining almonds. Chill until firm. To serve, peel off paper cups; place chocolate cups on serving plate or individual plates. Makes 8 or 9 servings.

- 1 can (1 pound) Cranberry Sauce

Combine milk, sugar and eggs yolks. Beat until smooth. Cook over very low heat, stirring constantly until mixture coats a spoon and thickens slightly. Chill until cold. Gently fold in egg whites, heavy cream, cranberry sauce and almonds. Pour mixture into a freezer container and freeze until firm.

Sweet 'n Tart Shortcakes

- 1 1/2 cup sweetened, cooked Rhubarb
- 1/4 cup Sugar
- Whipped Cream

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Mix biscuit mix, 3 tablespoons sugar, the butter and milk until soft dough forms. Gently smooth into ball on lightly floured cloth-covered board. Knead 8 to 10 times. Roll dough 1/2 inch thick. Cut with floured 3-inch cutter. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Brush tops with cream; sprinkle with sugar and almonds. Bake until golden brown, 10 to 12 minutes; cool. Mix strawberries, rhubarb and 1/4 cup sugar. Split shortcakes; fill with fruit mixture. Top with whipped cream. 6 servings.

Rhubarb Sauce

Report leads to resignation of Peru State College president

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN—The young president of the state's oldest college submitted his resignation recently.

Dr. Douglas Pearson, 37, quit as head of Peru State College, ending more than a week of rumors that he would do just that.

The effective date of the resignation was not announced immediately, but an interim president is expected to fill the vacancy until after the first of the year.

Following a visit with Gov. J. James Exon during which he informed the governor he would resign, Pearson said a critical report by an outside consultant and difficulties with some faculty members were factors in the tense situation that developed this spring on the Peru State campus.

Pearson said that despite the problems, he was encouraged about the future of the school and added he believes he made a "significant contribution" to education in Southeast Nebraska.

Without Peru State, according to Pearson, many residents in that region would be denied a higher education opportunity. During the youthful educator's four-year presidential term he was able to stabilize enrollment at around 800 students.

Late in June, the faculty voted 26-21 to ask for Pearson's resignation.

An out of state consultant spent a day and a half on the campus last spring and concluded there were communication problems between the president and the faculty.

The consultant happened to be on the campus during the height of a controversy over the firing of an athletic coach.

Laetrile Legislation

A recently formed group known as the Nebraska Chapter of Freedom of Choice in Cancer Therapy wants to have a bill introduced in the legislature to legalize the manufacture and sale of Laetrile.

Edwin L. Johnson of Minden, chapter chairman, said the main aim of the organization is legalization of the substance.

Casey J. Iverson of Bessette, secretary-treasurer, told a recent meeting of members that the group had received about $850 in membership fees as well as "substantial pledges to aid doctors or others who are harassed in their use of nutritional substances in the treatment of cancer or any other sickness."

Johnson said he became interested in Laetrile after his wife was diagnosed as having cancer. He said a central Nebraska doctor's use of Laetrile in treating Mrs. Johnson was "fantastically successful."

Some members of the group have not had personal experience with Laetrile, but oppose government interference in what they consider to be private matters.

Schmit Concerned

Sen. Lorán Schmit of Bellwood says he is concerned that the governor apparently has done a 180-degree turn and no longer supports the grain alcohol production program.

The alcohol would be blended with gasoline to make a fuel known as Gasohol.

Schmit said he would also like to have more information on conflicting statements from James Kendrick and William Scheller, University of Nebraska faculty members, regarding the feasibility of proceeding with the Gasohol program.

Scheller is the technical adviser to the State Gasohol Committee and Kendrick is a marketing specialist.

According to Schmit, it is time to resolve the issue and either go ahead with construction of a grain alcohol plant or scrap the program.

The governor's suggestion that more study be given to the Gasohol concept "puts us exactly where we were in 1971 when representatives of the petroleum industry offered the same advice," the Bellwood lawmaker said.

Exon has requested the Gasohol committee to consider making an independent market study because he is concerned about the economic feasibility of the gasoline-grain alcohol blend.

Popcorn Production

Nebraska is expected to retain its title as the top producer of popcorn in the nation this year.

The Cornhusker State has been the leader since 1974 and should continue at least another year even though only 42,000 acres were planted this year, 9,000 fewer than in 1975.

However, the popcorn acreage in both Iowa and Indiana, Nebraska's closest rivals in production, is also down this year, according to figures released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Nebraska produced 165,750,000 pounds of popcorn last year. That was 27.6 per cent out of the nation's total.

Florida town hits bonanza

It sounds like something from Gilbert & Sullivan... or perhaps Al Capp. The little town of Winter Park, Fla., asked the Federal Government for $883,500 to build a new library. The feds replied that Winter Park would have to take $2.65 million. Provided, of course, that the city fathers (and mothers) can think up enough projects to justify the grant.

Not surprisingly, the town commissioners have declared a "state of emergency" to facilitate meeting the federal deadline for production of an adequate wish list of civic projects.

How can such things happen in an administration pledged to a balanced budget? Well, it evidently has to do with the theory that the government can cure unemployment by creating jobs with tax money. The source of Winter Park's windfall is the federal Economic Development Administration, which consulted a formula based on the local rate of unemployment to determine the size of the town's allocation.

So far so good. Besides the library, Winter Park may get some improvements to its streets and sewers, additional recreational facilities, a parking lot for the first department and a second story on the police station. And presumably, some of the unemployed will find work building all of the above. What's wrong with that?

To learn what's wrong, you have to consult the first rule of investigative reporting: Trace the money. Where does the money come from, ultimately? And what are the economic effects of its removal? The money comes from taxes on employed citizens and productive businesses, and from Treasury Department borrowing.

Taking the money from the employed citizen leaves him with less money either to spend or to save. The money not spent (because it goes for taxes) could have been spent for products and services. Producing these products and services would provide work for the unemployed. The money not saved could have been used by a bank to provide loans to start businesses, or expand businesses, or build houses, etc., thus expanding employment.

Similarly, the money taxes away from corporations might otherwise have been spent on expansion, or distributed to the owners and employees of the corporation, who would have increased consumption or savings or both. It might also have been spent on more efficient productive facilities, an anti-inflationary move; or on the development of new products or services for the consumer.

What about Treasury borrowing? The money the government borrows from the national pool of savings is money no longer available to private borrowers to finance new business, etc.

So we see that by "creating jobs in one place, the government may actually prevent the creation of jobs in other places. Even so, the process might be justified if the jobs created balanced the jobs prevented, since it could be argued that jobs are needed most where the government is creating them.

But do the jobs created balance those that are blocked elsewhere? Almost certainly not. Consider the long-term effects of the two possibilities in this case:

—Winter Park gets new civic facilities it can use, but doesn't desperately need. They will not provide many jobs once the construction work is completed. They will add nothing to the city's tax base. But the costs of upkeep will add to the city's annual expense.

—Winter Park does not get the grant. The federal government leaves the money in the hands of taxpayers, or in banks and therefore available to potential borrowers. Private consumption rises. People save more. Businesses expand, creating new jobs. The new businesses and the new workers pay taxes, year after year. Net result: More permanent jobs are created and tax revenues rise too; leaving more money available to pay for new civic facilities (or social programs) without having to raise the tax rate to do it.

Alternative number two is very sound economically. Unfortunately, it has a fatal political flaw: When money is left in private hands to create jobs, no politician can claim the credit for handing it out. And that's why Winter Park may have to take $2.6 million instead of $883,500. —Richard Leshner, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

OBSERVATIONS

A step in the right direction

The Wayne-Carroll School District mill levy for 1977-78 apparently will be about the same as or lower than the levy for 1976-77. Schools superintendent Francis Hahn said a major effort was made not to increase property taxes, because of an anticipated increase in the amount of state aid the district receives.

The anticipated increase should amount to about $80,000 and will be made possible by a $20 million state aid increase appropriated by the Unicameral during the '77 session.

The legislative action was certainly not universally popular among the state's 49 senators and the issue generated considerable controversy and opposition.

Not is the battle over yet. A referendum effort to block the state aid increase is underway, seeking to solicit the 54,000 to 60,000 signatures needed to suspend the 1977 law and put the issue on the 1978 ballot. A similar referendum campaign was unsuccessfully undertaken in 1974.

The District 17 budget is a step in the right direction if the state is to assume a greater role in support of public education. Other schools would do well to follow the example. Regardless of one's view of the issue, increased state education aid can be made a little more palatable if school use the increased financial assistance to hold down local property taxes.

If, on the other hand, schools look at the assistance as a "bonus" and increase mill levies to the same degree which would be required if the additional state funds were not available, it will lend considerable credence to objections raised against the method of financing education. The so-called "state money" is still tax dollars paid by Nebraskans. Holding down local mill levies in no way will make the state aid issue acceptable to all of the state's voters, but failing to do so will make it that much more unpopular. — Jim Strayer.

'Another point of view

By WILBUR GIESE

The drive recently organized with the help of Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus and Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City (according to the Omaha World-Herald) to put LB 33 on the ballot for a November referendum raises some very interesting questions. This same thing was done in 1974, aided by then Senator Ramey Whitney of Chappell.

Since LB 33 deals with broadening the tax base to raise more of the school financing from sales and income taxes rather than property tax, I wonder if there might be some very personal reasons why these three men are so eagerly involved. I wonder if those who are being led by them know the facts.

A quick check of the Nebraska Educational Directory shows Chappell in 1973-74, the year Whitney was active, had an evaluation of about $12 million, with 374 students, and a 30 mill levy. The same book shows Columbus Lakeview (in Dworak's district) with a $27 million evaluation, 292 students, and a levy of about 13 mills.

Compare these figures to Wayne's evaluation that year of $14.5 million, with nearly 1,000 students. These figures show a very favorable situation in those two districts where property taxes are concerned. It would be hard to make any changes which would improve their situation. Combine these facts with the fact that there is no tax on intangibles in Nebraska. I understand this means such things as bank stock, bonds, money, etc. is exempt from any tax other than income when earned, and sales tax when spent.

It would be very interesting to know how much money and what per cent of their wealth these three senators have in bank stocks and other tax-sheltered investments. Bets anyone? Can men who are situated like these must be financially really be expected to represent the average farmer? Certainly a sales-income tax will tap them a little harder. We know any banker with no tax on intangibles is in a nice situation.

When that same money is loaned to the businessman to buy equipment or cattle, the buyer has had to pay tax on what he purchases. This was the idea of passing LB 518, which eliminated the unfair, outmoded personal property tax.

The schools have been financing in the past mostly with real estate, property, intangible and household goods taxes. We have eliminated the tax on household goods and intangibles. LB 518 eliminates the tax on cattle, machinery and business inventory. This leaves us one place to get the greatest share of money for education purposes. That place is real estate. So as not to make it prohibitive to own a home or farm, the legislature wisely passed LB 33 over Gov. Exon's veto (without Murphy's help). The legislature knew we needed a broader tax base than just real estate, and the fairest place to get it was from sales and income taxes, which will catch a few of the big income guys, and the big spenders who paid little or no property tax.

I would like to ask all these senators a question. Where do you think the school operating money should come from. Surely it wouldn't be politically expedient to repeal LB 518, or put taxes back on intangibles. The way you talk, you are against all taxes, yet you keep spending. I think you are really just playing politics. Trying to make yourselves look good while you keep your own personal funds protected. Maybe Dworak wants to be governor?

I for one, think the legislative body acted responsibly and wisely in passing both LB 518 and LB 33. Dworak says they are not connected. How can an intelligent man say that? There is a close relationship: Taxes for educational purposes. If LB 518 stands and LB 33 is repealed, it appears to me that real estate taxes will have to go sky high. Where else is money for schools going to come from? The legislature has acted, let them bear the responsibility. If they are wrong, they will have to correct their mistakes next year. Let their actions stand.

30 years ago
July 17, 1947: Oil mat on Highway 15 from Wayne north ten miles will be patched this summer to put it in shape for another winter. Bids on a new surface for this sector were rejected recently by the state highway department because they were too high. About 100 farmers, businessmen and others interested in small grain experimental work attended a meeting Wednesday evening at the northeast Nebraska regional testing field four miles south of Wayne, located on the Carl Wright farm. Nelle Fox was honored at the Hotel Morrison recently on her completion of 30 years of service with the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company. All of her service has been in the Wayne office.

15 years ago
July 12, 1962: Dr. Gordon Fredrickson, Wakefield, has been inducted in the armed services. This leaves Wakefield with only one practicing physician, Dr. C.M. Coe. Nearly 6,000 residents of Wayne and surrounding counties received Sabin polio vaccine Sunday. The Kiwanis-sponsored mass inoculation was the first of three such events scheduled. A parade featuring five divisions will be part of the 75th annual anniversary of Stanton County's fair at Stanton. Wayne's new city librarian is Mrs. Paul Koplin. She was elected by the City Library Board Thursday.

25 years ago
July 10, 1952: Fire of undetermined origin almost completely destroyed the S.E. Porter fabric store and dress shop in Winside early Saturday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Carlson, Wakefield, moved to Uehling last Tuesday where Mr. Carlson will be in the plumbing business. A new gas stove has been purchased by the Hoskins Trinity Lutheran Ladies Aid society and installed in the Church kitchen. One hundred and sixty-four high school musicians from 47 towns in Nebraska, Iowa and Wyoming have enrolled for WSTC's eighth annual music camp to be held July 27 through Aug. 3.

July 13, 1967: The big week of Wayne State's Summer Fine Arts Camp (July 30-Aug. 6) is approaching and six musicians from Wayne will attend as the result of scholarships given by the Wayne Woman's Club. The Wayne musicians are Bruce Ring, Mary Ellis, Mary Stevenson, Dennis Ellermeier, Jane Owens and Connie Jones. For the 14th consecutive year Ak-Sar-Ben is offering $500 to the county fairs of Nebraska if the fairs agree to match that amount with funds from local sources. The grants are to be used for permanent improvements on the county fairgrounds.

July 11, 1957: Herman Lundberg left Wayne Monday for a six-week tour of Europe. He sailed from New York Wednesday for Stockholm, Sweden, where he will visit a nephew and cousins. He will then take a sight-seeing trip of the southern European countries. Strong winds and hail battered Wayne County Sunday night, damaging crops and buildings and causing a rush of claims for crop insurance. Mrs. Howard L. Jones, Chicago, visited in the Dave Theophilus and T.P. Roberts homes from last Tuesday to Friday.

HAVE A HAPPY DAY

Mr. Whiskers notebook

The chain of life

We voles learn about food chains at a very early age. Uncle Thaddeus told my brothers and sisters and I all about them right before we left the nest. One way or another, all members of a plant and animal community consume the food produced by green plants, which are called food producers and get energy from the sun. Next in line is a group of animals called herbivores, which means plant eaters. Next are the carnivores or flesh eaters, which are also called predators. The last link includes the carnivores that feed on other carnivores. While not all food chains are this simple, Uncle Thaddeus didn't have to remind us that voles are prey for many carnivores. Draw a line connecting these members of a food chain to their main food supply.

Investigations Are Required

People getting supplemental security income payments (SSI) shouldn't feel they're being singled out for investigation when they're contacted during the year by social security representatives, according to Dale Branch, Social Security district manager in Norfolk.
The SSI program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled. "The law requires that eligibility for SSI and the amount of the monthly payments be re-determined periodically for everyone getting payments," Branch said. "It's a routine procedure."
"The Social Security Administration gets in touch with people to get information about income, living arrangements, and other factors that might affect their eligibility for SSI and their payment amounts," he said. "This may be done by a questionnaire in the mail or by personal interview in the home or social security office."
Social Security representatives are glad to identify themselves, according to Branch. "They never ask you to give them money to have something done," he said. "It's their duty to help people — in any way they can."
People can get information about SSI payments by calling, visiting, or writing any Social Security office.

High price supports: help or hindrance

The short-term solution being demanded by many farm groups and political leaders as the answer to current farm problems is higher support prices, but the solution ignores the historical fact in 40 years of farm programs that high support prices add to over-production and surpluses.

Farm commodities are perishable and the big government-held grain surpluses of the 1950's and the 1960's eventually had to be disposed of with resultant declines in the market prices farmers received for their production. The original concept of government farm commodity loan programs instituted in 1933 was to permit producers to hold their crops at harvest time and market them at a later, more favorable time. If market prices rose during the year, the farmer could sell his crop and pay off the loan. If the cash market never rose above the loan value, then the government assumed ownership of the grain under the agency of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

In practice, the loan rate became both the "minimum" price and the "ceiling" price on the commodity as both foreign and domestic buyers knew that eventually these government-held surpluses would have to be fed back into the market. Meanwhile, the farmers production costs continued to advance and his margin of profit declined accordingly.

Right now, the principle is being re-enacted in the dairy industry. Agriculture Department economists warned this spring that higher support prices for milk (effective April 1) would lead to greater production and that has already happened. To maintain the support level, the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) is required by law to enter the market and buy surplus commodities. In May, the CCC contracted to buy 35.4 million pounds of butter, compared to no purchases for the same month in 1976; 13.3 million pounds of cheese, compared to 3.5 million pounds in May 1976; and 63.2 million pounds of non-fat dry milk, compared with 25.3 million pounds in the same month last year. By the end of May, the government had 141.9 million pounds of butter stockpiled without commitments for use and more than 50.2 million pounds of cheese. A year ago, the CCC had no uncommitted inventories of butter and cheese.

Non-fat-dry-milk seems always a problem. The uncommitted inventory of non-fat dry milk was 479.7 million pounds, as of May 31, an increase of more than 100 million pounds over the 374.9 million held the previous year.

Surplus products acquired by the CCC can be donated to schools and other feeding programs and to overseas food aid programs. Stocks can also be sold on the market if market prices rise enough to permit it. USDA officials have estimated that purchases of butter, cheese and powdered milk under the price support program will total about 7.3 billion pounds of equivalent fluid milk at an estimated cost of $740 million during the current market year. This would compare to 3.4 billion pounds equivalent of milk the year before and a cost of about $311 million.

The Economic Research Service in its latest food-outlook report predicted that milk output is likely to rise two to three per cent above the 1976 level and stocks of manufactured milk products will be higher. It also predicted that per capita consumption will increase at a slower rate than production with the entire rise due to government donations.

The problem is not unique to the United States. European Common Market countries operate a highly protectionist system for their dairy industry and in recent years built a mountain of butter and dry milk surpluses. They sold some of the Russians at bargain prices and instituted a program requiring livestock feed manufacturers to use dry milk in place of soybeans as protein supplement. They also seek to unload as much of their dairy surpluses as possible on the American market.

The question is not whether dairy producers are entitled to higher prices for their products more in line with their production costs. Fast is, they have prospered only when demand exceeded production and the market price was substantially above the support price. The question is whether in the long-run higher support prices will prove as counter-productive to the individual producer as they have in the past. . . . and that question applies not only to milk, but to wheat, feed grains, cotton, soybeans, peanuts or any other commodity under a government program. — M.M. Van Kirk, Nebraska Farm Bureau.

Support Rates Announced

Price support loan rates have been announced for small grains and honey, according to Ralph Olson, Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee chairman. The rates are generally higher than last year's rates except wheat.

Loan rates on the grains are: grain sorghum, $2.85 a hundred-weight; barley, $1.42 a bushel; oats, 99 cents a bushel; rye, $1.42 a bushel; wheat, $2.29 a bushel. Honey loan rates are: 33.5 cents a pound for white, 32.5 cents a pound for extra light amber, 31.5 cents a pound for light amber, and 29.5 cents a pound for non-bleachable honey.

Olson explained that loans are relatively simple to obtain. A borrower has to certify as to how much grain is in each bin he wants a loan on. The maximum loan is based on 90 per cent of the certified quantity. Producers can bring in bin measurements if they are not sure of quantities.

Price support loans mature 11 months after the loan month. The interest rate is six per cent per annum. The loan can be partially or fully repaid at any time. Olson cautioned borrowers to repay before removing any loan grain.

Grain stored in a warehouse is also eligible for loan. Producers can bring in the warehouse receipt from an approved warehouse and obtain a loan. The higher loan rates, lower interest rates and lower market prices will increase loan activity in the ASCS office, Olson said.

The Blue Ribbon Winners 4-H Club met Sunday for their annual club tour of all members' homes.

The tour began at the Larry Bowers' home and ended at the home of Kermit Benschhof, where a cooperative lunch was served. The projects of the club, beef, swine and sheep, were viewed.

Discussion at the meeting included how many members would be available to work at the Wayne County Fair, and how many animals will go to the bonus auction.

The group decided to have a picnic July 29 at the fair. It was announced that pen papers were filled out and sent in. Tentative plans were made to have a camp-out sometime in August, passes for the fair were given out.

MORE CORN, SORGHUM, SOYBEANS

Nebraska farmers have planted more acres of corn, sorghum, and soybeans than a year ago. Fewer acres have been planted to oats, barley, rye, edible beans, sugar beets, popcorn, and potatoes.

Corn producers planted 2 per cent more acres than a year ago to reach 7,150,000 acres. This is down from earlier intentions but still the largest acreage since 1953. Acreage expected for grain harvest at 6,350,000 acres would also be 2 per cent larger than last year.

Sorghum growers have planted 2,400,000 acres, or 4 per cent more than last year. This is the largest acreage since 1967. The acreage intended for grain is up 3 per cent from a year ago.

Soybean plantings are up 22 per cent at a record 1,280,000 acres. This is well above the April intentions which indicated a 10 per cent increase over last year.

Wheat acreage for harvest at 3,050,000 acres remains 3 per cent above the 1976 acreage, unchanged from the earlier forecast.

OAT PLANTING DOWN
Oats planted totaled 800,000 acres, down two per cent from last year. Harvested acreage should reach 650,000 acres, or almost two per cent more than a year ago.

Barley plantings are down 19 per cent to 34,000 acres while the acreage for harvest is expected to be down 18 per cent to 31,000 acres.

All hay acreage for harvest is expected to reach 3,985,000 acres, up one per cent from last year. Alfalfa hay acreage is up five per cent to 1,785,000 acres.

Dry edible bean acreage is down 17 per cent to 105,000 acres planted. Extensive replanting has been required in the area around Scottsbluff and Bayard.

Sugar beet acreage, at 75,000 acres, is down 13 per cent from a year ago.

Corn Borer

Weather is one of the reasons for the variability of corn borer infestations. The probability of increased first-brood corn borer infestations is increased when nights in June are warm and calm. This condition allows corn borer moths to be more active, and a greater number of eggs to be laid. Also, warm, calm conditions favor hatching and survival of the young borers.

Vitamin A and Grubs

Cattle deficient in Vitamin A appear to be 50 per cent more susceptible to infestation by larvae of the common cattle grub than cattle fed a normal adequate diet. That's because the parasites can't penetrate the animals healthy skin as easily. On the other hand, animals with deficiencies of vitamin A often end up with dry, thin and scaly skin. This allows cattle grub larvae to penetrate lesions around hair follicles, mainly on the animals legs.

These were the findings observed by researchers in Texas. The results are particularly important to cattlemen who rely heavily on pastures and hay during the winter months. During that time grasses, which are rich in Vitamin A during the growing season lose the vitamin as they cure. Hay can also have poor quality and lose vitamin a because of improper and long storage.

Tests were conducted with 12 six-month old Hereford calves, using a control group and a group deficient in Vitamin A.

Vitamin A made little difference on survival of grubs on animals that had grubs injected beneath the skin by researchers.

Mold Can Mean Poison Grain

There have been reports of moldy corn and milo this spring and summer which may be poisonous to livestock, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln veterinarian.

Dr. Alex Hogg said there are more than 100 species of fungi or molds that produce mycotoxins (poisons).

"Twenty of these toxins cause problems in animals and man. In order to produce enough toxin to cause poisoning, the fungi or molds need some material to support growth such as corn or milo."

Hogg said these molds also need certain temperatures and moisture conditions to produce the maximum amount of toxin. The best conditions for toxin production are warm temperatures and moisture conditions to produce the maximum amount of toxin.

The best conditions for toxin production are warm temperatures and moisture conditions to produce the maximum amount of toxin.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Diane Lindsay.

Karla Otte, news reporter.

would be much more dangerous than grain still left in the field. Of course, as temperatures become warmer, the danger of poisoning from unharvested grain increases," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

Some of the signs a livestock owner might notice that would indicate animals are being poisoned by some of the mycotoxins from moldy feed are reduced growth rates and stunting. There may be loss of appetite and weight loss, dullness, nervous signs and death, Hogg said.

Swine may have bloody scours and the tissues will become yellow; calves may strain severely, causing prolapses; and dairy cows have milk production.

Some of the mycotoxins have the same effects as female hormones, Hogg said. Unbred gilts will have swollen external reproductive organs and enlarged mammary glands. Pregnant gilts and sows may have abortions and infertility.

Other mycotoxins, the specialist said, cause hemorrhagic disease or bleeding in swine. "This problem can be quite dramatic after surgery such as castration. There may also be bloody diarrhea with hemorrhagic disease." Still other mycotoxins may cause deformities of the unborn young of many species of animals, he said.

Animals consuming feeds containing mycotoxins are also less resistant to many infectious diseases.

Another sign in animals that might indicate trouble from moldy feed is a "refusal factor" and an "emetic" or vomiting factor. Animals will either refuse to eat the grain or if they do will vomit the material, Hogg said. These signs are most striking in swine but have been reported in poultry and cattle.

According to Hogg, young animals are susceptible to the effects of mycotoxins than older animals and more effects are noticed in breeding animals than in animals being fed for market. Young pigs seem to be the most susceptible to damage. The decreasing order of susceptibility after young pigs is: pregnant sows, calves, large market pigs, and mature cattle and sheep.

There is no specific treatment for mycotoxin poisoning, but Hogg recommends the following management procedures:

—Remove the source of the mycotoxin.

—Feed a broad spectrum antibiotic to control secondary infections.

—Feed a high energy, higher protein ration that will offset the slower growth rate and stunting.

—Avoid stresses such as cold, wet quarters and excessive handling.

If a livestock producer is concerned about feeding moldy grain, there are some precautions to take, Hogg said.

Any newly harvested grain should be dried to 14 per cent moisture content or lower (13 per cent is better).

Three or four test animals may be penned separately and fed the grain for 10 days to two weeks. The livestock producer should observe these animals closely for signs of loss of appetite, weight loss, diarrhea, unthriftiness and nervousness. If none of the signs appear within two weeks, the producer may assume the grain is safe to use on the entire herd.

Pals and Partners

Ten families of the Pals and Partners 4-H club celebrated their tenth anniversary on Sunday, July 10 at a potluck picnic dinner at the Ponca State Park.

Three charter members were present. They were Lee Echtenkamp, Gary Roeber and Jim Wriedt.

A letter was read from Chris Longe, a former member who is stationed with the navy in Florida.

Mrs. Marvin Echtenkamp read the ten year history of the club.

The afternoon was spent visiting, swimming and hiking.

HELPING HANDS

Helping Hands 4-H Club met July 8 in the Donovan Leighton home. Fourteen members answered roll by telling what they did July 4. Guests were Mrs. Billie Brudigan and Mrs. Allen Schrant. Three leaders attended.

Kim Leighton, president, conducted the meeting. June Meyer led the flag salute. Discussions were held concerning a float for Old Settlers and Wayne County Fair. Lori Jensen gave a demonstration on how to model.

Lunch was served by Kim, Kelly and Kerri Leighton. July 18 meeting will be in the Jim Servan home.

Program Requires Permit to Dam Streams

Phase III of the Army Corps of Engineer's 404 Program went into effect Friday and a permit now must be obtained to dam any Nebraska streams with a waterflow of more than five cubic feet per second (2,250 gpm). University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension water resources specialist Dean Axthelm said. He added that a permit is also required if foreign material such as rip-rap or extra fill is added or dredging is done in a Nebraska stream. Mike Jess of the Nebraska Department of Water Resources said that in some cases where his office's jurisdiction overlaps that of the Corps', two permits will have to be obtained — one from the state and one from the federal government. Phase III is part of a program designed to protect waters and wetland. Besides streams, Phase III affects rivers, marshes and wetlands according to the Corps. Phase I began in 1975 and affected coastal waters, major rivers (including the Missouri) and nearby wetlands. Phase II extended the proclamation further to include tributaries to major rivers (e.g. the Platte, Elkhorn and Niobrara), nearby wetlands and lakes of more than five surface acres. With Phase III including the smaller streams, it extends the farthest yet. The phases are part of the 404 program that Axthelm described "part of a massive U.S. effort to improve water quality." Program 404 refers to Section 404 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972. The Corps said that in cases where work is already in progress in waters under the Phase III restrictions, Corps engineers will determine whether "it is in the public interest to stop the work or allow it to continue while the permit application is being processed." Axthelm said that while he saw no major problems in supervising Phase III, the delay in obtaining permission to begin work on water-related projects may pose a very serious problem to Nebraska farmers and anyone dealing with water projects, such as watershed developments.

Prevention Works Better Than Cure

Farmers who control grasshoppers while they are developing in field margins and waterways will use about half the amount of insecticide as those who wait until the insects have invaded crops, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension entomologist. Robert Roselle explained that grasshoppers are now hatching in large numbers in places like field margins and waterways where they will feed on grasses while the insects are small. As they mature, they will move into crops such as corn, alfalfa and soybeans.

crops by eating plants' leaves," Roselle said. "If the grasshoppers are sprayed before they move into the crops, much less insecticide is used over a fairly small area," he stressed. "It's just good economics to spray early." He advises farmers and gardeners to spray as early as June to catch them before much damage is done. However, for those who have not sprayed it can be done through August, he said.

Standing Water May Result in Fungus Disease

Heavy rains or over-irrigation that cause corn plants less than six inches high to stand in water for more than a few hours may result in a downy mildew fungus disease called crazy top, according to University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension plant pathologist Dr. Dave Wysocky. Although areas that raise corn and have had heavy rains will most likely show some incidence of the disease, it does not usually affect crop production very much, Wysocky said. "The fungus is soil-borne and if corn stands in water more than a few hours, the fungus enters the plants systemically with the water. However, it does not kill the plant, so the disease doesn't show up until the corn tassels or the ears come out," Wysocky said.

He advised that action be taken to control the insects if farmers see eight to 12 grasshoppers per square yard in margins and waterways. "If the population is heavy and these insects are not checked before they invade fields, they can almost destroy

Roselle recommends Diazinon for corn, gardens and around the home. For field margins and alfalfa, he suggests Topoxaphene and Furadan, respectively. He added that Malathion (ultra low volume) is effective for pastures. "The amount of insecticide per acre varies for each product," he said, "and directions can be found on containers."

Information and permit applications can be obtained by writing the Omaha District of the Army Corps of Engineers, P.O. Box 5, Omaha, NE., 68101, or calling (402) 221-4133 or (402) 221-4129. Axthelm said that since some projects do not require permits, if there is any question as to the need for one, it would be helpful to contact the Corps before starting dredge or fill operation.

ASCS Acreage Reporters Start Summer Task

Four Wayne County residents have the summer job of reporting feed grain acreages for the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The four reporters for this summer are Elvis Olson, Lora Dion, Vicky Ostendorf, and Beverly Dangberg. Olson and Mrs. Dangberg did similar work last summer. Ray Butts, executive director of the Wayne County ASCS, said that according to pending legislation, farmers are required to report feed grain acreages in order that any land set aside in 1978 may be based on 1977 plantings. The ASCS makes a spot check of a certain percentage of these reports, which is the job of these reporters. Butts Monday said Olson was helping to train Miss Ostendorf and Mrs. Dion, and after about a half a day of training in the field, they will be ready to go reporting on their own. He added they may work in pairs for a while until they get the hang of doing the field measurement.

ARMED WITH tape measure and stakes, Elvis Olson teaches Lora Dion, center, and Vicky Ostendorf the art of field measurement. These three plus Beverly Dangberg (not pictured) will be reporting this summer for the Wayne County ASCS office.

Coon Creek Members and families participated in the Coon Creek Club tour Sunday. The tour began at 6:30 p.m. at the Robert Thomsen home and ended with a supper at the Leonard Roberts home. Members had an opportunity to view each other's projects. A short meeting was held during which exhibitor's tags were distributed and the county fair discussed. Kent Roberts, news reporter.

Windbreak Improvement Progress Is 'Negligible'

Despite the fact that foresters have planted many Nebraska windbreak acres need improvement, more intensive management or renovation, progress in remedying the situation has been negligible, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension forester. Richard Gavit, at the Northeast Station at Concord, spoke recently before the Forestry Committee of the Great Plains Agricultural Council (GPAC), at a meeting in Albuquerque, N.M.

cooperator also must have no plans to remove the entire windbreak," he explained. Gavit added that cost records were kept of all the work, and that several different treatments were given in each windbreak, in addition to a check area. He explained that work on the projects was done by forestry crews or hired laborers, who removed some trees, girdled others, thinned some and removed entire rows when necessary. Project costs vary greatly, depending on the time that has to be spent. Wishes of the landowners also affects the final cost. Gavit estimated that total tree sales have increased each year over the past few years by 250,000 trees each year. Conifer sales account for 80 per cent of the total.

per cent by acreage, while field windbreaks decreased by 1.40 per cent by acreage for the same time period. Sherman County showed a gain of .4 per cent by acreage in farmstead windbreaks per year from 1970-74, while field windbreaks decreased by .86 per cent by acreage.

Oats Still Important Feed

Oats have played a major role in swine nutrition for many years district swine specialist Bob Fritschen said, but recent advances in nutrition technology have made oats appear nearly obsolete to some. Oats, however, fit into the cropping rotation for many in Northeast Nebraska, he added, and its prevalence continues to find its greatest utility in modern swine diets. There is not complete agreement as to which stage of the life cycle hogs make the best use of oats. For example, in a recent study at the University of Nebraska, three- to four-week-old pigs were placed on diets with either no oats or 20 per cent oats for five weeks, Fritschen explained. While there were no differences in gain or feed efficiency the pigs on the 20 per cent oat diet had a greater survival rate than those on the controls. This speaks well of oats for enhancing livability at weaning time, the swine specialist pointed out. Still, this phase of the life cycle requires only a small amount of feed, so for the producer with a quantity of oats, where is the best place to use it? Finishing hogs from 100 pounds to market weight make the most efficient use of oats when it is used as 20 per cent of the diet, according to Fritschen. There are times however, depending on the price and availability of other cereal grains or energy feedstuffs, when it may be economical to feed at lighter weights or in greater amounts. Also breeding animals make excellent use of oats. While oats are higher in protein than corn, its greater fiber content tends to limit the use swine can make of it, Fritschen said. For more detailed information on how to use oats in swine diets, pick up the bulletin Swine Diet Suggestions from a county extension agent or at the Northeast Station.

There are many things we might tell you about the methods we use in our funeral service. But, after all, it isn't what we say that counts... it is what our clients say. If we can please the families we serve, our own comments about our work are unimportant. Naturally we are pleased when compliments about our funeral service drift back to us.

SOFT JELLY SPOILS FUN

Making jams and jellies can be a fun way to preserve summer fruits. But if those jams or jellies spoil, the fun is spoiled too. There are signs of spoilage that can help the home preserver detect a bad product. One obvious sign of spoilage is a layer of mold covering the contents of the jar. This indicates that the jars were not sealed properly. Testing for a seal before storing is a wise precaution. When mold appears on jellies, the entire contents of the jar should be discarded. Mold may have produced toxins that spread throughout the jelly. An off-odor and flavor will form when yeasts have grown on jelly that is not sealed airtight. This is especially noticeable on jars sealed with Parafin. The yeasts will cause the jelly to break through the parafin and to weep. This jelly is also inedible. Harmless crystals sometimes form in grape jelly. Tartaric acid, present in grapes, may crystallize in the jelly, causing crunchy, glass-like particles. This can be prevented if, when using canned grape juice for jelly-making, the juice is carefully poured so as not to disturb the sediment in the bottom. If fresh juice is used, it should be allowed to stand several days before jelly is made. It should then be strained through two thicknesses of damp cheese cloth. Crystals found in jellies other than grape may mean sugar did not completely dissolve in the juice. Too much sugar may have been used or the mixture may have been cooked too little or too long a time. For more information, ask for the leaflet, "Jellies, Jams and Preserves," E.C. 74-960 at your local County Extension Office.

Auto Damaged

A car driven by Patricia Jenkins of rural Carroll sustained extensive damage Monday in an accident on a county road two miles west and about one and one-half miles north of Carroll.

Mrs. Jenkins was northbound when she met a pickup driven by Harold Wittler of Norfolk at the top of a hill. Both drivers swerved to the right to avoid a collision, according to the Wayne County sheriff's department.

Mrs. Jenkins lost control of her car, which left the road on the east side, then crossed over and went off the west side. There was no contact between the two vehicles, but the Jenkins automobile struck a tree line fence, sustaining damage to both left fenders, the right front fender, a fender apron, and the right front wheel. Mrs. Jenkins was not injured.

Mayor: People Of Wayne Are Spoiled

The problem with the people in Wayne is that they're spoiled, Wayne Mayor Freeman Decker told members of Wayne Kiwanis Club of last week.

"People are spoiled rotten because we have grown up with all the nice things the city has," he emphasized.

What city has a college located in town that offers up to a master's degree and at the same time offers dollar savings for local and area students to attend and brings in between 2,000-3,000 students to help downtown businesses? Decker asked.

The mayor also pointed out that very few towns the size of Wayne have AA accredited public schools. "It's a star in our crown that our schools continue to earn this accreditation," he added.

Decker cited the 82 acres of parks in the city as another attraction and said the fact that the streets are well kept during summer and winter is also something residents take for granted.

Decker labels the city's hiring of Fred Brink as administrator as the "best investment the city has made." In the past the city was operated by city-committee type of government, which Decker considers "horrible."

The mayor gave a pat on the back to the city police force which he said is well trained. Concerning other city employees, Decker noted that they are paid a decent wage and above all have good equipment to work with.

One consolation of the $3.6 million budget this year is that the mill levy can only go up .11 mills by law, he went on.

could cut taxes but that would be a cutback in funds to others," Decker pointed out, referring to the senior citizens center, airport, Wayne State College and the like.

Wayne does have its share of problems, the mayor said. "Street conditions are our biggest problem. There are a lot of streets in need of repairs, including the brick streets which are considered 'sacred' by some."

Decker said that the city's 10-year contract with Nebraska Public Power District to supply electricity has created a lot of conversation. The purpose, he explained, was to clear up a bonded indebtedness.

Returning from the Kiwanis International convention in Dallas, Tex. were club members Deryl Lawrence and Dan Sherry. Both members and their wives made the trip to the three-day meeting which ended Wednesday of last week.

"Sherry, in a brief statement, reported that the gathering turned down a motion to allow women to join the all-male organization by a vote of 4,060 to 700."

Kiwanis Picnic Is Monday

The annual Wayne Kiwanis Club family picnic will be held 6:30 Monday night in the north shelter house at Bressler Park. Costs, club members learned during Monday's meeting, are $3 per adult and $1.65 for children under 12.

During Monday's meeting, club member Dick Armstrong talked his trips in Europe and England following retirement as an engineer from U.S. Steel.

Armstrong pointed out that by traveling the backroads in many of the foreign lands, a visitor will get to know more about the country and its people.

NTCC Registration at 600

About 600 students have registered for the 1977 fall semester at Northeast Technical Community College, according to Will Meadow, dean of student services.

About 400 are freshmen, with 310 of the 400 enrolled in technical programs.

The availability of these figures this soon is due to the new registration process for freshmen which began this year. Group orientation and registration was held during June, with applicants for one of the technical programs being registered each day, Meadow explained.

"This new freshmen registration process helps us to know what our enrollments are in the limited-enrollment programs. We can determine which programs still have openings prior to the beginning of school, and can contact applicants on the waiting list for that program, or notify others interested in the program."

Although the group registration for freshmen is completed, students interested in both technical and college transfer programs are being registered

Wheat Producers Likely To Get Federal Payments

Unless there is an increase in wheat prices over the next four months, area wheat farmers will receive federal payments this fall, according to Wayne County ASC committee chairman Ralph Olson.

"Under the current wheat program, deficiency payments are to be made to producers if the national average market price for the first five months of the marketing year is less than the target price of $2.47 per bushel," Olson explained.

"The preliminary national average wheat price for all farmers was $2 per bushel in June, compared with $2.19 in May. June is the first month of the five-month period used to determine deficiency payments. So, the June price average offers an early indicator that payments will be made to farmers this fall," Olson said.

"Because many wheat farmers are faced with serious economic problems due to low market prices, it's important that the provisions for this additional income source be reviewed for area wheat farmers," Olson added. "This is the first time such payments would be made to wheat farmers under the 1973 Farm Act."

The deficiency payment rate is determined by subtracting from the $2.47 target price the higher of the June-October national average price or the national average loan rate. Using the national average wheat loan rate of $2.25 per bushel as an example, the deficiency payment rate would be 22 cents per bushel.

Deficiency payments to farmers are calculated by multiplying the farm's established yield times the farm's allotment acreage, and multiplying the result times the deficiency payment rate, Olson explained.

"For example, if a farmer has an established yield of 25 bushels per acre, a 200-acre allotment, and the deficiency payment rate is 22 cents per bushel, the farmer's deficiency payment would total $1,100."

All farmers having wheat allotments are automatically eligible for deficiency payments, regardless of the disposition of their wheat. Whether the wheat has been sold, placed under loan with the Commodity Credit Corporation, or is stored on or off the farm, does not have any bearing on a farmer's eligibility for payment, Olson said. However, no deficiency payment would be made on bushels for which a disaster payment is made. Olson added that under farm program legislation currently being considered in both the Senate and the House of Representatives, this deficiency payment provision is being continued.

Wheat farmers who would like to have further information on the wheat deficiency payment provision of the current program relative to their farm should contact the county ASCS office.

HOW TO GET AWAY FROM IT ALL THIS SUMMER AND STILL STAY IN TOUCH.

We all look forward to getting away from work and the regular routine once or twice a year. Here are some tips on how long distance calling can make vacations easier and more fun:

Share your adventures. Half the fun is in the telling. So this summer don't keep your vacation discoveries and adventures to yourself. Take along a list of telephone numbers from home, and stay in touch.

Save gas, time and irritation. Check routes in advance and develop a travel plan. Then make advance reservations by long distance with motels or hotels along the way, or at lodges or at resorts where you plan to spend your vacation. Many motels and hotels have a toll free 800 number for reservations at no cost to you.

If you'll be needing equipment, call ahead and reserve that, too. That way, when you get there, you can really use your vacation as a vacation.

Let Aunt Lois and Uncle Dick know. Friends and relatives along the way will want to see you. But they'll appreciate your visit a lot more if you call ahead to tell them when they can expect you.

Your ticket to travel pleasure. Get a Long Distance Credit Card from Northwestern Bell. The card makes it easy to call from any phone and have the calls charged to your home number.

That way you can avoid the need for having exact change at public telephones. Eliminate long distance charges on your hotel or motel bills. And avoid those awkward moments of "settling up" with friends or relatives for calls made from their homes.

Smile America: Stay in touch by long distance.

TEENS GO JOBLESS

Jobs and teenagers seem to have a difficult time getting together. Summer is the time of year when the jobless rate among teens is especially high.

More than 1.6 million of the country's 7.6 million jobless persons are teenagers. That's one out of every five, and among non-white youths, two out of every five, who can't find work.

The problem does not appear to be lack of jobs. Fast-food restaurants in many areas have trouble getting and keeping help. Construction, packing and warehouse jobs often go unfilled. Farmers are often short handed during harvest season. Other plentiful jobs include home cleaning, yard maintenance, routine office jobs and selling positions.

With plenty of jobs available and many teens seeking employment, the question is why do jobs go unfilled? A recent study involving job counselors, employment agencies and businessmen points to a change in attitude among a great many young people. Teenagers today seem to be more selective, more demanding and less willing to put forth effort toward a job.

A teenager who can't find a job may increase his chances if he develops special skills such as typing, operating office machines, or certification as a life guard. Enthusiasm, persistence, reliability, a well-groomed appearance, and a willingness to do some menial tasks will help teenagers find employment.

A picnic dinner was held Sunday in the John Peterson home to honor the Chan Whitney family of Norfolk, Va., who are visiting here.
