Barbecue, Singing Kickoff Dixon Fair

A free barbecue, horse team judging, horse playdays and country western singing are just some of the highlights going on today (Monday) as the second day of the four-day Dixon County Fair gets underway at Concord.

The 64th annual fair, which started Sunday night at 8 with vesper services in front of the grandstand, will focus on judging 4-H livestock entries today. Judging on 4-H horse entries plus miscellaneous exhibits will take up most of the morning activities, according to Dixon County agent Roy Stohler. Gates open at 8 a.m.

Afternoon events today include 4-H and open dairy judging and 4-H dairy showmanship at 2. Serving for the free barbecue begins this evening at 5:30 and continues until 7 p.m. A booster band from Battle Creek will present a concert from 6 to 7.

Other activities this evening include a horse team judging at 6 and a performance by country western and gospel singer Dennis Yeary at 7:30. An open class horse playday is also scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., and will include junior and senior western pleasure, junior barrel crawl, junior and senior hat race, women's flag race, junior potato race, junior and senior pole bending, junior and senior cloverleaf barrels, four-in-line, baton race and boot race.

Tuesday's events begin at 8 a.m. with 4-H and open class beef judging and 4-H beef showmanship, followed with judging of open class foods, clothing, crops and garden exhibits, and 4-H crops, garden and engineering exhibits at 8:30. Flowers and plant entries will be judged at 9. The Battle Creek Brass Band will perform from 6 to 7 Tuesday evening, with tug-of-war eliminations slated to begin at 7. At 8:30, the Straub Family group will present their Holiday Review. Performing with the group will be Dennis Yeary and Barbara Leigh. The Review has just completed a six-week concert tour in Canada.

The final day of the fair, Wednesday, begins with 4-H swine showmanship and swine judging at 8 a.m. Four-H open class sheep judging and 4-H sheep showmanship begins at 10:30.

A tractor pulling contest will be held at 1 p.m. for all Dixon County residents and persons within 15-mile radius of Concord. At 2, there will be a public dress revue and performances by song contest division winners.

Closing the fair Wednesday evening will be the annual livestock parade at 7, followed by tug-of-war finals at 7:45 and a demolition derby at 8:30. All exhibits will be released at 9.

Dixon County Trio Selected for State

Three Dixon County 4-H'ers were selected to represent their clubs at the State Fair demonstration contest next month.

They are Anna Borg, Anita Fritschen and LeAnn Wood, who earned purple ribbons at the Dixon County contest Monday at the Northeast Station.

The three were among 21 4-H'ers who participated in the annual event prior to the start of the Dixon County Fair this week.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Borg of Dixon, Anna earned her purple for "Trees — American's Treasure." Anita, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fritschen of Concord, gave a demonstration on "From the Stable to the Table." Give Your Furniture a Facelift" was the title of LeAnn's demonstration. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Nell Wood of Allen.

Also receiving purple ribbons were Colette Kraemer of Allen for "The New Look," and Jonathan Wood, both of Allen, for "purple for Us."

The top three winners are eligible for the championship demonstration trophy to be presented to the 4-H winner Wednesday night at 7.

Ribbons also awarded: Blue — Jeanne Warner, Allen, "Swish to Milk"; Gregg Gunderson, Ponca, "Tender Loving Kiffy Care"; Renee Wenstrand, Wakefield, "Measuring Flour"; Todd Heaton, Allen, "Sunday Night Special"; Susan Baker, Wakefield, "Adventures with your Camera"; Karla Stelling, Wakefield, "Seam Finishes"; David Stelling, Wakefield, "Groom that Lamb" and Lisa Wood, Allen, "Terroriums and Mini Gardens."

Red — Sheila Koch, Concord and Kelly Kraemer, Allen, "From Brunch to Lunch," (team demonstration) Donna Rahn, Allen, "Fun Salads"; Suzanne Stelling, Wakefield, "Boiling Eggs"; Wayne Wesley, Concord, "A Picnic Lunch"; Linda Wood, Allen, "Dyeing for Fun," and John Stapleton and Leonard Wood, both of Allen, "I Pledge my Hands," (team demonstration).

'Just Fascinated'

MOST EYES of fascinated youngsters attending a puppet show Thursday were glued on the hand-made characters as members of Wayne State's elementary school speech class presented a free show. The hour-long show at the Willow Bowl featured several well-known programs including Sleeping Beauty, The Three Bears and Little Red Riding Hood. For many of the youngsters (and adults alike), the puppet show was a time to relax and enjoy being young.

Concord Man One of Three Headed for Russia

Does the USSR possess knowledge that could result in higher hog production in the United States?

That's what area swine specialist Bob Fritschen of Concord and two other American specialists intend to find out.

Fritschen, who works at the University of Nebraska's Northeast Station, has been selected to participate in the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) foreign agricultural research exchange program. Also going on the trip are Dr. Ron Miner, head of the agricultural engineering department at Oregon State University, and Dr. Howard Teague, head of the swine nutrition department of the Agricultural Research Service in Washington.

The men will visit the Soviet Union to study the large, state-owned swine complexes, where their study will center on hog housing, nutrition and artificial insemination procedures — one area which the Soviets have excelled.

Fritschen expects to run into some problems while in the Soviet Union involving censorship and unexpected changes in his itinerary.

The trip will begin on Aug. 25 when the men go to Washington D.C. for a briefing session. On Aug. 29 they will arrive in Moscow, where they will spend a week investigating a large swine complex on the outskirts of the city. From there they will travel to small Soviet cities of Corkey, Belgorod and Kharkob, spending a week in each city. The men will return to Washington Oct. 6 for a debriefing session before they return to their homes.

Each member of the trip will submit a written report to the USDA upon return, telling what they learned, and possibly how that knowledge could be used to benefit U.S. hog production.

Fritschen was taken by surprise when he was asked to go on the trip. He had been fishing up in Minnesota, last June, when he got a call from Washington, asking that he make the trip. He believes he was selected because the University of Nebraska has been a leader in the field of swine housing and management. He said Dr. Teague was chosen for his knowledge of nutrition and Dr. Miner for being an agricultural engineer.

Fritschen has had previous experience with foreign swine production. In 1974 he was sent to Taiwan with a group as an advisor on increasing hog production.

According to Fritschen, this trip to Russia is no cultural exchange. His itinerary calls for lots of hard work, and he expects to spend almost every day

Wayne Chamber Manager Will Resign Post Oct. 1

Wayne Chamber of Commerce manager Howard Witt will resign his post effective Oct. 1.

Witt announced his decision last week after the Chamber board approved his resignation date. Earlier this spring, he announced that he would leave his position, but gave no date.

His decision to step down came after the boards of both the Chamber and Wayne Industries agreed to select a joint manager whose main duty would be bringing new industries to the Wayne area.

Witt, who has served as Chamber manager for the past four years, said he intends to stay in Wayne but is unsure of his future plans.

Chamber president Roger Nelson said members of both boards have set up a selection committee and are looking for a replacement.

The committee, composed of incoming Chamber president Gerald Botenkamp, Wayne Industries president Dean

Hike Expected In Winside Levy

Property taxpayers in the Winside school district can expect a jump in their mill levy for the 1977-78 school year if the new budget passed by the school board Monday night goes as scheduled.

The board hiked the operating levy 1.2 mills to $4.09 in order to meet the $634,813.66 budget. The new figure represents an increase of $49,768.66, of which $33,000 was appropriated for salary increases and salary-related items, said superintendent Don Leighton.

Leighton explained the hike in the mill levy is subject to change depending on the outcome of the state aid to education bill. If the bill is defeated, the hike will go into effect.

Also Monday night, the board: —Approved five and reduced meal procedures as required by the state.

—Put high school secretary Jean Gahl on full-time position with no change in salary. Mrs. Gahl, who was contracted for 10½ months, will receive two weeks vacation pay.

—Hired Mrs. Dave Miller as full-time cook to replace Mrs. Bonnie Miller, who resigned.

—Learned that all seven bus drivers have been hired for the school year.

—Reviewed in the board policies and student handbook a proposal by principal Al Schluter to clarify discipline for repeat offenders.

Phelps: Brevity, Cooperation Will Make Drive Go

Brevity and cooperation are the two ingredients George Phelps will use to direct this year's United Way fund drive when activities kickoff later this fall.

Phelps, who accepted the chairman post for this year's drive during a board meeting Friday morning, pointed out to members that he wanted to keep the campaign short and perhaps, in the words of board member Bill Dickey, have a better response.

"I want to solicit the cooperation of the entire community to meet this year's $14,000 goal," he underlined as the main ingredient for a successful drive.

In thanking Phelps for taking command, board president Dick Manly said, "What we have to do is make the drive less work and in less time."

The drive will get underway the first week of October and will aim to collect enough funds to help support Wayne Recreation, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Wayne Senior Citizens, Salvation Army, Arthritis Foundation, Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, Florence Crittenton Home for unwed mothers and Red Cross.

Hoskins Woman To Chair Drive

A Hoskins woman, Kathleen Brockmeier, will direct the Breath of Life campaign in her area.

Mrs. Brockmeier was named last week to head the 1977 drive to fight children's lung diseases by Mark Dorsey, executive director of the Nebraska chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis foundation.

Mrs. Brockmeier will lead local volunteers in Hoskins in raising funds to support research and care for children affected by CF, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis and other lung damaging diseases.

WS Grad of 1927 Donates 'Presidents' Slides

Friday provided a double occasion for Miss Irma James at Wayne State. She attended the 50th anniversary reunion of her 1927 class. But first she presented to the college home economics department her collection of slides which she calls "The Presidents' First Ladies' Gowns."

Last spring she presented the slide show to a campus audience — one of several dozen times she displayed the photographs with her commentary to Siouxland groups.

Dr. Don Catlie and Mrs. Margaret Hansen of the WSC Applied Arts Division expressed "great pleasure" with the gift.

Miss James lives in Sioux City, where she taught 38 years.

She lived in Wayne during her school years until she earned a two-year diploma from Wayne State in 1913 and began a teaching career. She gained her de-greet in 1927 after numerous summers of study.

Carroll Okays Mill Increase

The Carroll town board adopted a $48,465 budget, calling for a 1.3 mill levy increase.

During a special town board meeting July 28th, members were told by auditor Jerry Malcom that the levy will have to increase from 4.7 mills to six mills in order to raise the $1,848 in local taxes to meet the budget.

During regular board action last week, the board appointed Bob Hall to start a committee to locate a new baseball diamond and discussed improving the city dump.

Hearing Thursday

The preliminary hearing date for William Hill of Norfolk, who is charged with first degree sexual assault and felonious assault, is scheduled for Thursday.

The last edition of The Wayne Herald omitted the date.

Wakefield Board Okays Increase

The Wakefield school board Monday night approved a budget for the 1977-78 school year, calling for a 3.3 per cent hike over last year's total to meet increasing salaries and overall inflationary costs.

The board okayed the $623,245 budget, noting that the figure doesn't include $40,000 which might come from state aid to education.

Superintendent Dr. Gary Benenotte said that if the state aid bill becomes law, property taxpayers in the school district may see a drop in their mill levy. Of the 61 mills now designated to the district, 49 are for the general school fund and 12 mills go to the building fund of the new senior high school.

In other action, the board: —Approved George Maly to teach biology and high school science. Maly, a 1974 graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, also will coach junior high boys sports.

—Accepted the resignation of Mrs. Laurie Miller as high school business education instructor if the board can find a replacement.

—Okayed the beginning of junior high girls volleyball and basketball sports on a limited basis.

WSC Graduation: Basic Education Should Offer More than 3 R's

The movement to return to basics in education may largely be a nostalgic one, but to Francis Haun it's a step in the right direction to help improve education today.

Haun, who is the superintendent of Wayne and Carroll schools, told the graduating class at Wayne State Friday that today's students education must offer more than the three R's.

During his 24 years in education, Haun said he has always heard criticism that public schools aren't successful in teaching students "basic skills."

The so-called lack in basic skills has become the big headline in today's newspapers because, in a few cases, parents have charged that their children were given a high school diploma without learning how to read, write, spell or do mathematics, Haun said.

Referring to several magazine articles, Haun pointed out the theme of the new innovations in education the past 20 years aren't working as well as the more basic structures. One study, he went on, found that highly structured programs which emphasized basic skills have been much more successful than open classrooms, particularly in raising the achievement level of low-income children.

"What's more, those children in traditional classrooms apparently acquire greater self-esteem than do youngsters taught in other ways," he said.

Another study by the American Institutes for Research reported that students "enrolled in programs with a more moderate emphasis on innovation and individualization showed the greatest improvement on reading and mathematics tests."

His conclusion: Spending more time on basic reading and language skills in the early grades is the key factor to improving reading abilities of students.

Haun said that the school has to have a solid foundation in the areas of language, math and science in order to "hold up and support the learning process that continues until death."

Schools should be charged with providing that base, he said. However, he went on to say, "which way we are going is not as easy as it used to be for the classroom teacher. There are pressures to emphasize the basics, encourage creativity, guide youngsters toward vocational goals, make school more meaningful, more academic, more permissive, build character and teach moral values... and above all, to do it for less money."

Haun said the most common criticism is that public schools should return to teaching basics, including reading, writing, arithmetic.

'American life styles should be blamed for health ill, not producers'

The nation's livestock, milk and egg producers are being "blamed" by the current fad of blaming the nation's health ills on a high cholesterol diet, a fad based more on assumptions than facts.

Competent medical authorities have been warning for years that the American life style tends itself to over-eating, over-drinking, smoking excessively and lack of physical exercise—all factors which contribute to high blood pressure, potential coronary and other health problems. People are living longer, thanks to medical science and control of contagious diseases, and this undoubtedly contributes to a higher incidence of ills of a degenerative nature.

But in the last five years, there has been great stress applied to an easy out—eliminate cholesterol from the diet. It has become fashionable talk over the bridge tables. Manufacturers of vegetable oil product substitutes for meat, dairy or egg products find it good business not to talk about the nutrients in their products, but simply that "they have lower cholesterol."

Many competent medical authorities have warned that, unless people use extreme care in alternative food combinations, they may find themselves and their families suffering from malnutrition.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board has noted that the senate select committee on nutrition and human needs, with Senator George McGovern as chairman, issued its dietary goals report to the nation early this year and in effect urged Americans to reduce their consumption of meat. The Meat Board points out that health organizations most involved in treatment and cure of diseases discussed in the dietary goals report offered no statements approving the dietary recommendations advanced. In April, the American Medical Association submitted a statement to the committee urging that the dietary goals report not be adopted. Further, the Meat Board has found no indication that any of these organizations were called upon to testify in an official capacity at any of the hearings preceding publication of the dietary goals report.

The harm has been done. Enough people have bought the "pitch" that meat, milk and eggs are somehow bad for them and enough too have joined the "hamburger and coke" generation that agricultural markets have been affected. Per capita consumption of traditional high protein meat, milk and egg products has been declining and market prices reflect that change in eating habits.

Veteran cattle feeders and producers who have lost money for the past three years despite the efficiency of their operations, are pessimistic about the future. Despite cutbacks in cattle herds and feedlot numbers, the cattle market has remained sluggish and at a near break-even point.

They attribute at least part of the failure of the cattle market to respond normally to traditional supply and demand factors, to the cumulative effect of adverse publicity and misinformation against animal-based food products.

Throughout recorded history, civilizations have struggled to rise above subsistence diets to include the enjoyment and benefits of high protein animal products. Better balanced diets have produced a generation of Americans taller, stronger and swifter than their fathers, and with a longer life expectancy.

It will apparently take much research and some hard selling to reverse the current trend and refute some of these nutritional myths that are being foisted on the American people by faddists, opportunists and a senate sub-committee which for some reason put out a report without doing its homework. — M.M. Van Kirk, director of information, Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

OBSERVATIONS

Half an answer is no answer

If you like your share of the federal income taxes and how it is spent —

If you think it is fine that the federal government redistributes 28.8 percent of our national income in the process of spending our tax money —

If you like the idea of taxes held as a club over your head —

If you do, then you will love President Carter's program for solving the nation's long-term energy crisis.

The cost of waging war, even the moral equivalent of war, is staggering. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States and its economists state that the Administration's energy plan requires the largest increase in peacetime taxes in the history of the United States.

The plan calls for massive efforts to reduce U.S. reliance on high-priced, uncertain supplies of foreign oil. To discourage waste and encourage conservation of energy, the plan places large tax increases on industry and utilities that use crude oil and natural gas. In turn these taxes will increase taxes paid by American consumers. The plan also would include provision for higher taxes on gasoline and a special tax on gas-guzzler automobiles.

By 1985 and thereafter, according to the Chamber, these taxes would average $1,320 for a family of four.

According to the Tax Foundation, the average worker now spends two hours and 42 minutes each working day to pay his taxes. He would have to work an additional 45 minutes each day to pay for higher energy taxes, or a total of three hours and 27 minutes of each working day to pay for all taxes.

Moreover, says the Chamber, most of the burden would fall on low and middle-income families.

The Chamber endorses President Carter's conservation goals but says he offers only half an answer to the problem — conservation. The other half is greater production of energy.

Instead of relying on taxes, the Chamber believes the natural forces of supply and demand in the marketplace can achieve conservation and greater production simultaneously. If prices rise with market demands, the Chamber argues, the public will consume less because energy costs more. Producers will be motivated to explore and increase supplies because it is profitable to do so. The Chamber estimates a 6 per cent yearly rise in prices would serve the two-fold purpose of conservation and production.

"The modest increase in prices would cost about $420 per family of four in the form of revenues for gas and oil producers which would then be used primarily for job-creating investment," the Chamber said.

Whereas the White House plan would cost $1,320, or $900 more a year, slow the economy and raise consumer prices by 2.4 per cent said the Chamber, the marketplace approach would increase jobs by nearly half a million and hold the rise in consumer prices to 1 per cent.

STRAY Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

While editor Jim Strayer is finishing up his week of vacation, a temporary addition to the writing staff, Mark Cramer, has decided to try his hand at writing a column.

For the last few summers I have been employed at the Wayne Herald. Until this summer, however, I've always worked in the "shop" section cleaning the press, catching papers, moving large rolls of paper from obscure warehouses to the "shop," and doing jobs that no one else wanted to do. Due to the fact that I got ink all over the layout pages, exposed an entire box of film to harsh artificial lighting, and almost single-handedly ruined a three-unit Goss printing press, the management decided I would do less damage if I was transferred to the "front office."

Already, in my short time working here, I have lost my identity. I have been given a number of names other than my own. The "shop" people refer to me as "spark" (due to an electrical mishap) or "shhnparky old pal" when they want me to buy the next round. In the front, my editor Jim Strayer calls me "rookie" and his assistant Bob Bartlett, with his up-to-date sense of humor, refers to me as "scoop." (Well, he thinks it's funny.) A few weeks ago (in this very column) Jim remarked that I would be meeting many of our readers while reporting on various events around Wayne. The people I get news from for "scoops" as Bob calls them) on a regular basis speak of me fondly as "oh no not you" or "that Cramer kid." I had no idea I was such a charismatic young fellow.

Errors
Despite my reputation for being mechanically inclined (I screw up everything) there are some errors that have appeared in this publication that are not my fault. For instance; last Monday's paper reported that the Allen school board was proposing a budget that would be a $595,000 decrease over last year's budget. Wrong. The correct figure denotes a $13,474 increase. We don't know who wrote that story but I'm glad he's not my accountant.

Memorable Event of the Week

Last week was the third anniversary of former President Nixon's "staff" infection getting the better of him due to the opening of the Watergate and the ensuing flood.

Fills

You may have noticed once and a while that this newspaper (like all newspapers) uses "fills," or "filler" material. You'll find these on pages where the stories aren't quite long enough or pictures aren't quite big enough, and there is some excess space left on the page. Fill material consists of little-known facts, well known clichés, and illustrations that range in interest from boring to mundane. Some of them are a gas — Like the one that said "two wrongs can never make a right," and was accompanied by an illustration of a triangle beating the far out of two squares. Geometric warfare in a small-town newspaper, of all things.

There are a few interesting things, like the fact that disposable diapers are, destroying the biosphere.

Any ideas I've had for more interesting fill material have been shot down. Things like putting in local gossip, or cute little pictures of bunnies and kitties have all failed. If anyone has any real good ideas, please feel free to let us know about them. If they're really great you might even get your picture in the paper, or something.

Tasteful Capitolism Department

A New York firm is manufacturing "Son of Sam" T-shirts.

Gary Gilmore's cousin wants to make a wax likeness of his executed relative and dress it in the clothes Gilmore wore in the firing line. He claims to be doing it because it could "help someone."

The race for the almighty dollar goes on.

The late arrival that Wasn't

The editor-type people around here have been complaining a lot lately about the non-arrival of a new electronic flash unit for our camera. Turns out that the delinquent shipment had been sitting on the front office floor in plain sight for over a week, and no one bothered to open it to find out what was inside. Hope no one ever sends us fresh fruit.

Back to School

In a couple of weeks I have to return to college. There are always all sorts of parties and get togethers going on in the beginning days of a new semester. One in particular that I'm looking forward to is a Saturday night ice cream social celebrating the fact that my college has a no-car policy, a temperance policy, and intervisitation policies between male and female quarters. Whoopee.

Who's protecting worker's right not to organize?

On July 18, President Carter endorsed a package of amendments to the National Labor Relations Act. Not surprising, these amendments won the prompt support of the AFL-CIO, because it is the one who drafted them.

Basically, the amendments are designed to do four things:

One, make union organizing easier, through shorter time periods for representation elections, and other technical changes; two, provide harsher penalties for firms deemed not in compliance with the Act; three, enlarge the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) from five to seven members; and four, authorize federal intervention in the collective bargaining process.

If all that sounds like an attempt to increase the power of the already powerful union, you're reading it right.

Labor Secretary Marshall says the changes are designed to eliminate excessive procedural delays in NLRB operations. If this were the real motive — and the likely consequence — I might applaud the idea. Procedural delays are a problem throughout the federal government, for business as well as labor. But unfortunately, President Carter and Secretary Marshall have made it quite clear that the delays they object to are primarily those which inconvenience the unions.

Take those four points one at a time: First, why is it necessary to make union organizing easier? The real explanation for this change is political. Ten years ago, the unions were winning 60 per cent of their representation elections. Today, they are winning fewer than 50 per cent. So, they hope to gain from the government what they have been unable to win from the workers — shortening the time for representation elections makes it easier for workers to be stamped into joining.

Second, what is the real reason for proposing harsher penalties? It's hard to quarrel with stiff penalties for willful wrongdoing. But labor law is extremely complex and subject to differing interpretation by honest and conscientious people. Given that fact, it's necessary to raise these questions: Are those tough penalties really designed to deter wrongdoing? Or are they designed to intimidate employers in the legitimate exercise of their legal rights?

If an employer has good reason to fear the consequences of presenting his case to his workers, then union organizing will indeed be easier. But not more just.

Third, why enlarge the NLRB from five to seven? This suggestion is presented as a means of clearing up the board's case backlog. But the backlog — which was drastically reduced last year under the excellent leadership of former chairperson Betty Murphy — does not originate at the board level. The trouble is farther down, at the level of the administrative law judges. The board members — individually — have more clerks than the justices of the Supreme Court. They don't need more help.

Expanding the board will not clear up the backlog. Expanding the board would give President Carter more opportunity to influence its decisions.

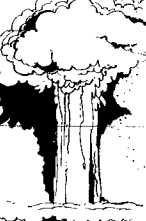

Finally, there is the threat of federal intrusion into the collective bargaining process. If an employer refused to agree to unreasonable union demands, the board would be authorized to grant compensation to employees based on a statistical formula. The compensation would be determined by the board's idea of what might have been obtained by the union had the bargaining taken place. In other words: the board would be able to decide what the contract terms would have been had there been a contract.

This threat would obviously discourage an employer from refusing to cave in to unreasonable union demands — even if the refusal is fully justified and in good faith. Employers would fear that the board's contract provisions would be even worse than those that might be "negotiated" with the union.

Consumers have no reason to cheer such employer capitulation: Higher wage costs usually require price increases to cover them. Nor do the workers have reason to cheer. None of these changes is for the benefit of the individual worker. Rather, they are designed to enhance the power of the unions as organizations and thus, the power of the people who run them. — Richard Lesher, president of U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

YOU AND YOUR CAR

Van pooling could become a way of life for millions of working Americans, predicts the Automotive Information Council.

It is one of the few proposals in the Carter Administration's energy conservation program that has met with little or no controversy.

A first cousin to the car pool, the van operation is a company-financed and coordinated program in which eight to a dozen employees share the ride at a reasonable cost.

Government experts estimate that at least 100,000 barrels of petroleum could be saved each working day of only five per cent of the nation's commuters deserted their one person-one car transportation for the round-trip companionship of their fellow workers.

The advantages to the companies are numerous. It reduces the need for parking spaces. More people are arriving at work on time and absenteeism is down.

Benefits to the employees are even greater. Highway Users Federation estimates the operating cost of one person in a car at 37 cents a mile. That compares with only 5.4 cents a mile in a van with eight riders. There is the additional savings of maintenance on the family car and generally it's a lot easier to let the van driver worry about traffic jams and wintry weather.

The 3M Company of Minneapolis, Minn., is a pioneer of van pooling. It started the program with six vans in 1973 and now has 92 vehicles with ridership approaching the 1,000 per day level.

Compatibility is a key to a successful van pool program. Some operators ban smoking and non-permit alcoholic beverages. The never-on-time rider won't even rate a "good morning" until he mends his ways. He even could be eased out.

While the company provides the cash outlay for the purchase of the vehicle as well as insurance and fuel, the operation is non-profit. Most of those expenses are covered by the rider fees.

Normally, one employee does all the driving and he gets to use the vehicle (at a nominal per mile cost) during non-working hours.

The latest national count on van pooling indicates more than 80 companies — large and small — have a regular program involving about 1,000 vehicles. There are some cases of a single van pool serving two or three companies.

To help push the program, the Federal Government plans to order 6,000 vans to provide a pool for part of its massive payroll.

Laurel Church Decorated for Tuttle-Hirschman Ceremony

Candelabras entwined with greenery and daisies decorated the altar of the United Methodist Church in Laurel for the marriage of Gloria Tuttle and Michael Hirschman.

The Rev. Jim Mote and the Rev. Michael Kelly, both of Laurel, officiated at the 6:30 p.m. double ring rites on Aug. 6. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Tuttle of Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. James Hirschman of Laurel.

Wedding music included "Evergreen" and "The Wedding Song," sung by Kathy Sullivan of Pierce and accompanied by Mary Newton of Laurel. Guests were ushered into the church by Doug Tuttle of Lincoln, brother of the bride, and Bill Sachau of Allen.

Melissa McCright of Seward was flower girl and Christopher Sachau of Allen was ring bearer. Candles were lighted by Jody Lund of Omaha and Susan Duffy of O'Neill.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose to wear a floor-length gown of ivory Quiana with an attached train. The empire fashion was trimmed with Venice lace. Her fingertip veil, trimmed in matching lace, was attached to a Juliet cap. She carried a cascade of roses and daisies.

Maid of honor was Tamara Tuttle of Lincoln, and bridesmaids were Valerie Tuttle of Dixon and Mrs. Bonnie Silvey of Omaha. All are sisters of the bride.

Their floor-length gowns of peach, green and blue polyester cotton eyelet were designed with empire waistlines, rounded necklines and cap sleeves. They wore baby's breath and greenery in their hair and carried a single rose to match the colors of their dresses.

Attending the bridegroom were his brother, Patrick Hirschman of Laurel, as best man, and Tom Sanders of Laurel and Warren Hansen of Alliance, as groomsmen.

The bridegroom wore an ivory tuxedo trimmed in brown, with a rose boutonniere. His attendants wore ivory tuxedo jackets with brown pants and colored shirts to match the bridesmaids' dresses.

Cutting and serving the wedding cake were Pat Schaefer of Laurel and Dorothy Gill of Jefferson, S.D. Mildred Paulson and Rita Lessman of Laurel

SPEAKING OF PEOPLE

Center Observes Anniversary

The Wayne Senior Citizens Center observed its eighth anniversary during the monthly dance and sing-a-long Tuesday afternoon.

During the afternoon, members reminisced about activities at the Senior Citizens Center during the past eight years. The center first opened its doors in Wayne on July 1, 1969.

Dancing the Charleston to the tunes of the center's Bobbles and Bubblettes band were Anton Pedersen, Virgil Chambers and center director Joceli Bull. Anton Pedersen sang a solo, and joined Irv Jones, Virgil Chambers and Charles Bull in singing "Little Brown Church in the Wildwood," with all members joining in the chorus.

Honored with the traditional birthday song were Tena Bargholz, Goldie Leonard, Nellie Brockman, Elda Jones, Herman Reeg and Joceli Bull.

Mrs. John Luschen baked and decorated the cake which centered the serving table. Invocation was by Larry Osnowor.

Furnishing refreshments, in addition to the birthday honorees, were Helene Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Chambers, Mrs. Mathilde Harms, Besse Peterman, Mary Fox, Louise Hoeman, Gladys Petersen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bull, Dorothy Thun, Emma Soules, Lottie Langnecker, Annie Ruebig, Lillie Swinney, Martha Reeg, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Osnowor, Alice Dorman, Rose Heithold, Henrietta Frost and Mabel Sundell. Louise Hoeman received the door prize.

The next dance and sing-a-long will be at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 13.

There were 15 at the Senior Citizens Center last Monday afternoon for Bible study conducted by the Rev. Larry Ostercamp of the Evangelical Free Church in Wayne.

The next Bible study is set for 2:30 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 22. Monday morning, Dr. Ralph Barclay and Wayne State college students Deug Radtke, Bob Rabe, Anne Sextro and Dave Fiola toured the Wayne Senior Citizens Center.

Center director Mrs. Joceli

Bull told about the history of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center and its purpose, emphasizing the many activities and services that are provided for the elderly in the Wayne area through the center.

Senior citizens who helped Mrs. Bull assemble the August Senior Snooper newsletter were Anton Pedersen, Rena Pedersen, Mathilde Harms and Eldon Bull.

Popping Pads Signal Start of Grid Year

Prospective griders from five area high schools will take to the practice field today (Monday), signaling the beginning of the high school football season.

Players will go through the grueling two-day workouts for the first week of practice before most staffs reduce workouts to one-a-day prior to the start of the first season game on Sept. 2.

At Wayne, first-year coach Stew Cline will run his griders at 9 a.m. and again at 3 o'clock for the first two weeks of practice. Cline expects about 35-45 players out for this year's Blue Devil team. Assisting him will be Don Koenig, Ron Carnes and Duane Blomkamp, who will work the first week of fall camp before he begins freshman workouts.

Another first-year mentor, Nick Danze of Laurel, will put his griders to work starting at 9 o'clock and returning to the football field at 2:30. So far 55 boys have signed up for the fall sport, but coach Danze expects between 40-45 to show up. Working with Danze will be Bob Weisenberg, John Jonas and Everette Jensen.

Wakefield head coach John Torczon plans to hold workouts at 8 a.m. and 10:15 a.m. Torczon, who will be assisted by Joe Cable and Wayne State student assistants Lee Mahning and Ed Hula, has no concrete idea how many players will show up the first week because majority of players will be involved in the Dixon County fair.

Although Winside High's new head coach Randy Humpal was available for comment, officials at Winside said workouts will be at 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. at the high school practice field. Humpal will be assisted by Sam Colvin and Jim Haltery.

Both practice sessions for coach Cliff Jorgensen's Allen Eagles will be held in the morning. First practice starts at 7 a.m., followed by a 9 o'clock start for the second session. Jorgensen expects to have over 30 out for practice. His assistant will be Gene Lauritsen.

Midgets' Rally Falls Short in State Final

Wayne Midgets staged a two-run rally in the top of the sixth Wednesday night but came up one run short of Orchard in the finals of the State Class C American Legion tournament at Harvard.

Third baseman Mark Gansborn and second baseman Jeff Sperry crossed the plate on back-to-back bases-loaded walks to whittle Orchard's lead to 4-3 as reliever Kevin Williamson got into trouble. But with two away Wayne couldn't come up with big hit when first baseman Dean Carroll hit into a fielder's choice to end the inning.

Coach Hank Overin's Midgets, who finished the summer with a 20-6 record, took a 1-0 lead when Orchard pitcher Mike Williamson loaded the sacks on walks and hit Dave Schwartz with a pitched ball to bring home lead-off hitter Jeff Zeiss.

Wayne held the lead until the bottom of the second when Orchard scored three runs on a single and several Wayne errors. Problems still continued for Overin's Midgets in the third when pitcher Dennis Carroll gave up a base hit to Randy Erb, who went to third on an error by Dean Carroll and a passed ball. With two men on, Kevin Williamson singled off reliever Tom Ginn to put Orchard in front, 4-1.

Ginn was forced to take over when Carroll got into an argument with an umpire and was ejected from the game, according to assistant coach Steve Hix.

Ginn held Orchard hitless the rest of the game, allowing only seven runners to get on base.

With two out and runners on second and third, Wayne lightened Orchard's lead in the sixth when leadoff hitter Zeiss walked to push home a run. Right fielder Jeff Dion also got on base via a base-on-balls to drive in Wayne's third run of the game before Zeiss was thrown out at third on a fielder's choice by Dean Carroll.

Wayne had two men out in the top of the second when Schwartz singled to spark the Midgets' comeback hopes. Catcher Dan Mitchell, however, popped out to first to end the game.

There's Very Little Time For Young Hunters to Get Their Safety Certificates

The 1977 dove season is opening on Sept. 1, and that leaves very little time for 12-through-15-year-old youngsters to get their hunter safety certificates, says Marion Shafer, conservation officer for Madison, Wayne, and Pierce Counties.

All 12-through-15-year-olds are required by law to carry a hunter safety certificate when carrying a firearm afield, Shafer said. Youngsters who haven't taken the Game and Parks Commission-sponsored course should be getting in touch with an instructor as soon as possible if they're planning to hunt this fall.

For certification, the Commission requires six hours of instruction on gun safety, game law and hunter ethics. The students must pass a written test as well, before receiving their cards. Shafer went on to say that a student hunter must be 12 within the calendar year in which he or she takes the course to be certified. Instructors, he added, normally advertise in local newspapers before holding a course, so prospective students should scan the newspapers to locate classes.

If names are listed, names of instructors will be available soon by county from the Game and Parks Commission offices or through Shafer.

According to the game biologists' surveys on dove migration, Shafer continued, the highest numbers of doves appeared in the state during early September, and gradually declined as the migration progressed until the end of the season.

Dove hunters should also remember that they are required to carry a 1977 Habitat Stamp before hunting or trapping in Nebraska, Shafer reminded.

The Habitat Stamp, along with permit increases that have taken effect this year are part of the Commission's program to preserve and improve wildlife habitat throughout the state — and thereby to improve game populations.

Funds from the $7.50 stamp and the permit increases will go into land-acquisition, habitat improvement on public lands including Commission areas as well as those held by other public entities, and cooperative, cost-share projects with the Natural Resources Districts, Shafer explained.

The cost-share projects will pay landowners for their participation in habitat-improvement practices on their land.

Further information about the habitat program is available by contacting the nearest Game and Parks Commission office, or by calling or writing Shafer at Norfolk.

Wakefield's Pitching 'Key Factor'

Just about every bit of news coming out of the State Class B American Legion baseball tournament at Broken Bow seemed to focus on Wakefield's pitching staff.

Headlines in several daily papers referred to the throwing of Rick Guy, Todd Swigart and Brad Eaton as the reason coach Paul James's Juniors were able to make it to the semi-finals against Beatrice before his team finished up with a very respectable 28-8 record.

Wakefield, which dropped a 4-1 decision Tuesday night to Beatrice, got clutch throwing from Guy in the second game of state play to knock off Sidney, 4-2, and remain alive in the tourney.

Guy, who watched his team suffer its first defeat in tournament play to McCook, 4-3, struck out 11 Sidney batters and didn't give up an earned run.

Monday night Swigart and Jones combined to toss a one-hitter to pace Wakefield to a 1 win over Wahoo. Two crucial Wahoo errors on first allowed Jones and Chuck Wageman to score Wakefield's two runs in the fourth. Wahoo got its run on a solo home run by Tom Virgil in the sixth.

Wakefield took a 1-0 lead over favored Beatrice in the bottom of the first when Wes Luehl singled behind shortstop and advanced on a sacrifice by Jopu Kline and a wild pitch. With two away, Dan Byers connected on the first throw to drive in Luehl.

GREAT MOMENTS IN SPORTS IN A NUTSHELL

Brief Stories Of Long-Remembered Triumphs

A great moment in sports occurred on March 6, 1976 when Toni Innauer of Austria completed the longest ski jump on record — 577 feet 5 inches.

A great moment in sports occurred in the 1976 Montreal Olympics when Rumanian Nadia Comaneci, 14, became the first gymnast to be awarded a perfect score in Olympic games. Up-and-coming American gymnast can eat Butterfinger® and Baby Ruth® snack bars to raise their energy levels.

A great moment in sports occurred on Nov. 5, 1966 when Roger Taylor of Great Britain beat Wieslaw Gasiorek of Poland for the Kings Cup and set a tennis singles record of 126 games. They played for 4 hours and 35 minutes.

Homer Takes Series Lead

A two-run homer by pitcher Dale Martinson in the bottom of the eighth lifted league champion Homer to a 3-1 decision over Wakefield Thursday night.

Martinson blasted the round-tripper over the short right field fence at Homer to drive in leadoff hitter Ev Bradshaw who walked to first.

Chilly Weather Changes Times For Swim Lessons

Due to chilly weather, times for the start of the third session of swimming lessons have been changed at the Municipal Swimming Pool.

Classes will start one hour later for the two-week classes starting today (Monday), said pool manager Jan Zeiss. Lessons will start at 10 a.m. and finish at 1. The pool will open to the public at 2 p.m.

Weisenberg Leads Laurel

Relief pitcher Bob Weisenberg not only throws a swift strikeout ball, but the former Minnesota Twins player also carries a hefty bat.

Weisenberg collected two hits in two at bats, including a solo home run in the ninth, to lead Laurel to a 6-3 win over host Norfolk Thursday night, and put his club in the playoff finals of the Tri-County Amateur Baseball League.

Laurel was scheduled Sunday night to take on the winner of the Crofton-Coleridge match.

Weisenberg got Laurel into scoring position in the seventh, where his team trailed, 3-2. With two away he singled before teammates John Abts and George Schroeder erupted for a double and a triple respectively to score two runs and take a 4-3 command.

Laurel got two insurance runs in the top of the ninth off Weisenberg's shot and double steal by Schroeder, who scored from third.

The big hit for Norfolk was a two-run blast by Mike Polceck in the fifth.

Wheat Survey Still Helpful

Wheat growers whose fields were hailed in June and early July should survey those fields for the presence of volunteer wheat. Shattering of wheat heads by hail when the crop is in the medium to hard dough stage often produces a volunteer wheat crop that can be a potential source of wheat streak mosaic virus infection, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln plant pathologist.

Dr. John Watkins warned that suspected volunteer fields should be destroyed by tillage or chemical means at least two weeks before fall seeding. "The wheat curl mite that transmits this virus disease survives and builds up to considerable numbers during the summer on the volunteer wheat," Watkins said. "They will then move onto the newly planted fall crop and introduce the virus as they feed."

The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist indicated that symptoms generally do not develop until the following spring. "Leaves of infected plants develop light green to yellow streaks, followed by a general yellowing of the field. Individual plants often appear stunted with poorly filled heads resulting in considerable yield loss.

"Fortunately, wheat streak mosaic is relatively easy to control by the destruction of volunteer wheat in these hailed areas," Watkins said. High mite populations will cause the edges of the leaf blades to roll inward, trapping the tip of the youngest leaf. Besides destroying the volunteer wheat, Watkins advises taking the additional precaution of avoiding an early planting.

"Wheat should be planted as late as practical for a particular area. Optimum planting dates for much of Nebraska are between Sept. 15 - 25, the plant pathologist said.

Pathologist: Treatment Can Reduce Seed Losses

Each year seed and soil-borne diseases cause substantial stand and yield losses in small grains and other field crops grown in Nebraska. These losses could be reduced by effectively treating seed prior to planting, according to Dr. John Watkins, extension plant pathologist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"The use of fungicides for the control of seed-borne diseases has been practiced for more than 200 years," Watkins said. "Seed treatment provides an inexpensive insurance against disease organisms that cause smuts, seed decay, or seedling blight."

Common bunt is a very serious disease that not only reduces yields but also the quality of harvested grain, Watkins warned. Federal grain standards designate wheat as "light smutty" if it has an unmistakable odor of smut or if it contains smut balls, portions of a quantity equal to 14 balls of average size in 250 grams of wheat. Samples containing an excess of 30 balls, or their equivalent, in 250 grams of wheat grade "smutty." Grain in these categories will be discounted, he said.

"The recurrence of bunt in Nebraska is unfortunate, since the disease was at one time almost completely eliminated from the state due to the general practice of treating seed with a fungicide. As seed treatment declined, the incidence of bunt has begun to increase," the specialist said.

Seed treatment fungicides registered for bunt control are listed in NebGuides G74-169 and G74-104, available from county Extension offices. "Many of these fungicides are available as planter box formulations in addition to the wettable powder or liquid formulations for use in commercial or on-the-farm treaters," he stated.

Most seed treatment fungicides are listed as protectants, and therefore each seed must be thoroughly coated with the chemical. "Carboxin (Vitavax) is a systemic fungicide for the control of internally seed-borne diseases such as loose smut of wheat," Watkins said.

Watkins urged growers to treat their seed prior to the fall seeding. "Seed treatment not only provides protection from smut infection, but also provides a degree of protection from root and crown rotting bunt. Seed treatment should be considered a routine practice in preparation for each year's planting."

All seed treatment fungicides are toxic and should be handled with caution. In treating seed, manufacturer's recommendations as to rate of application should be carefully followed. Over-treating seed may affect seedling emergence, and under-treating may not control diseases. All seed treatment fungicides are dyed so that treated seed can be easily recognized. All treated seed should be labeled with the name of the material and must not be used for food, feed, or oil purposes, Watkins stressed.

Trinity Churchwomen Plan Guest Day

Trinity Lutheran Churchwomen met Wednesday afternoon at the church social room with 11 members. Plans were made for guest day on Sept. 14 at 2 p.m. Guest speaker will be Lorna Sherwood of Nickerson. Each member is asked to bring three guests. Other guests will attend from Peace United Church of Christ at Hopkins and St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Senior Citizens: Winside Senior Citizens met at the city auditorium Tuesday with 14 present to play cards. president Mrs. Ella Miller presided and coffee chairman was Mrs. Meta Niemlan. Next meeting will be this Tuesday. Dance Scheduled: Winside Volunteer Firemen made plans for their annual dance when they met last Monday evening at the fire hall with nine attending. President Dean Mann conducted the meeting. Committee in charge of the dance, set for Nov. 5, is Ted Heenan, Warren Gallop, and Charles Weible. Firemen are planning to paint the model A fire truck. Committee in charge is Robert Wacker, Warren Gallop and Charles Jackson. The local fire department is planning to host the Elkhorn Valley Mutual Aid meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 27. Plans are being made by George Voss, Russell Prince and Dale Miller.

Auxiliary Meets: Roy Reed American Legion Auxiliary met Monday evening at the Legion Hall with four officers and four members attending. Mrs. Stanley Soden.

Grain Farmers May Be Eligible For Payments: Wheat and feed grain farmers who have no acreage allotments or who have overplanted their allotments for these crops may become eligible for government disaster payments under the Farm Bill agreed to by Congressional conferees, according to chairman Ralph Olson of the Wayne County ASC committee. Under provisions of the conference bill, a farmer who has suffered reduced yields due to a natural disaster may be eligible for a payment based on the number of acres actually planted for harvest, Olson said. In the past, payments were based on the farm's allotted acres. In anticipation of possible adoption by Congress and enactment by the President, and to speed resulting payments to farmers, Olson said, ASCS will begin accepting disaster claims from all farms for wheat and feed grains (corn, sorghum and barley). However, no payments may be made under these provisions until enactment of the farm bill.

Churchmen Meet: Trinity Lutheran Churchmen met Tuesday evening at the church social room with 11 members. Plans were made for guest day on Sept. 14 at 2 p.m. Guest speaker will be Lorna Sherwood of Nickerson. Each member is asked to bring three guests. Other guests will attend from Peace United Church of Christ at Hopkins and St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Three Guests: Mrs. Louie Kahl, Mrs. Robert Jensen and Mrs. E.T. Warnemunde were guests when Contract met Wednesday evening in the Lloyd Behmer home. Prizes were won by Mrs. C.O. With, Mrs. Louie Kahl, Mrs. Minnie Graef and Mrs. E.T. Warnemunde. Next meeting will be Aug. 24 in the Dr. N.L. Diltman home.

Teachers Meet: Trinity Lutheran Sunday school teachers met Wednesday evening at the church. Promotion Sunday was set for Sept. 11. The next meeting will be Sept. 14 at 8 p.m. A study of Ephesians will be held.

OBITUARIES

Mayme Ewing: Funeral services for a former Allen resident, Mayme Ewing, were held Saturday morning in Lyons. She died Aug. 2. Survivors include her widower, Clair, and nephews Fay and Lloyd Bock of Allen.

Norrel Lukken: A former Allen resident, Norrel Lukken, now of Kelso, Wash., died Sunday. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon in Kelso.

Olive Clyne: Olive Clyne, age 88 of Gettysburg, S.D., died July 29. Funeral services were held in Gettysburg with the Rev. Donald Whann officiating. Burial was in the Sacred Heart Cemetery. SUMMERTIME SALADS

Mix, mold or toss it! Every way, it's a salad! Quick to prepare, easy to store, cool and light to eat, and popular with all ages, salads are refreshing summer substitutes for hot meals.

Just what is a salad? Generally, it's one or a combination of vegetables or fruits, mixed any way you like. The most popular are green, vegetable, fruit and molded.

But, whether vegetable or fruit, salads make up a good portion of the American diet. In fact, the average American eats about 23.6 pounds of lettuce and 15.7 pounds of apples each year.

Tomatoes, cabbage and carrots are other popular salad ingredients, chalking up annual per capita consumption rates of 11.8, 9 and 7.2 pounds respectively. Salads can be served as accent, entree, side dish or dessert. For example, the tart, tangy taste of bean salad or other vinegar-dressed vegetables sets off cold meats and sandwiches. For fresh fruit try a salad dressing of sour cream and a dash of brown sugar for a tantalizing taste treat.

Creative seasoning gives all salads a more memorable taste. Five of the most popular flavorings are salt, pepper, onion, garlic and parsley, which can be purchased in a salad seasoning blend. Fennel, anchovy, orange or lemon juice can make salads more zesty.

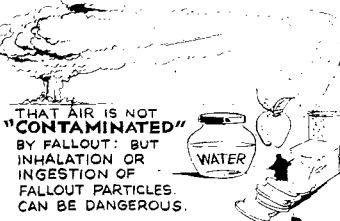

To please the eye as well as the taste buds, vary color, shapes and sizes of different fruits and vegetables.

To keep salads completely cool and moisture free, place them in the refrigerator about twenty minutes before serving.

Heavy Grasshopper Populations Posing Threat to Wheat

Heavy grasshopper populations in Nebraska are posing a threat to winter wheat seedlings, particularly in the Panhandle, north, central and northeast crop districts, according to Dr. David Keith, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist.

"Although the areas previously named are the most seriously infested, locally heavy infestations are scattered throughout the state," Keith said.

"Emerging winter wheat growing adjacent to heavily infested pastures, roadside ditches or alfalfa may be severely damaged, especially on the outside margins of fields," Keith warned.

One of the most effective means of preventing damage is to use a systemic insecticide at planting time, Keith advised. "Granules are placed in the seed furrow with the wheat at planting time and the new seedlings pick up the insecticide through the roots. Grasshoppers feeding on such treated plants will most likely be killed before serious stand reduction occurs," Keith explained.

At present, Thimet 15G is the only systemic insecticide registered for grasshopper control in wheat. Although Di-Syston 15G is legal to use on fall-planted winter wheat, it is not registered for grasshoppers and its efficacy as a control for these insects is unknown. The current registration for Di-Syston includes Hessian flies and green bugs, as does Thimet 15G.

The recommended rate of Thimet 15G is one pound of actual chemical per acre, or a total of 6.5 pounds of formulation applied in the furrow for seven inch row spacing," he said.

He recommended that the pesticide be applied with a grass seeder attachment so the granules fall into the seed furrow. He added that the field margins should be treated for grasshoppers (about 40 feet), since damage is usually concentrated there.

A Farmer's Creed

- I believe a man's greatest possession is his dignity and that no calling bestows this more abundantly than farming.
- I believe hard work and honest sweat are the building blocks of a person's character.
- I believe that farming, despite its hardships and disappointments, is the most honest and honorable way a man can spend his days on this earth.
- I believe farming nurtures the close family ties that make life rich in ways money can't buy.
- I believe my children are learning values that will last a lifetime and can be learned in no other way.
- I believe farming provides education for life and that no other occupation teaches so much about birth, growth and maturity in such a variety of ways.
- I believe many of the best things in life are indeed free: the splendor of a sunrise, the rapture of wide open spaces, the exhilarating sight of your land greening each spring.
- I believe true happiness comes from watching your crops ripen in the field, your children grow tall in the sun, your whole family feel the pride that springs from their shared experience.

- I believe that by my toil I am giving more to the world than I am taking from it, an honor that does not come to all men.
- I believe my life will be measured ultimately by what I have done for my fellowman, and by this standard I fear no judgment.
- I believe when a man grows old and sums up his days, he should be able to stand tall and feel pride in the life he's lived.
- I believe in farming because it makes all this possible.

Guest Attends Meeting

The Immanuel Missionary Society met at the Peace United Church of Christ Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. George Langenberg Sr. was a guest.
President Mrs. Walter Fenske opened the meeting with prayer. Members sang "This is My Father's World," followed with the reading of scripture in unison. Roll call was a Bible verse.
Correspondence was read and three cheer cards were sent.
The president read "The Island in the Pacific" and an article on the American Bible Society. Mrs. Lena Ulrich read "Cooperation in the Christian Nation" and led in prayer.
The Rev. Galen Hahn showed pictures taken during the confirmation class' trip to St. Louis. Christine Lueker read "Japanese Christians in America," and Mrs. Erwin Ulrich had an article, entitled "Local Churches Reach Out in God's Mission." Mrs. Ulrich also read a poem, "Everywhere Across the Land." Pastor Hahn closed the meeting with prayer, followed by a no host lunch.
Date for the next meeting will be announced.

Home to Texas
The Rev. and Mrs. Larry Miller, Lori and Tim, left Tuesday morning for their home at Port Neches, Tex. after spending three weeks visiting the Wall Koehlers at Hoskins and the Alfred Millers at Winside.

Firestone STEEL BELTED RADIAL 721

TORTURE TESTED AT TEXAS PROVING GROUND
The new 721 has withstood the most rigorous tests we have yet devised at our testing facilities in Fort Stockton, Texas.

GREATER RUBBER-TO-STEEL ADHESION
Improved rubber compound assures a stronger bond between rubber and steel for better traction against moisture.

TOUGH SIDEWALL COMPOUND
Special and durable made of copolyester strong and durable. New compound for resistance to curb scuffing and other sidewall blows.

NEW STRONGER STEEL CORD
Our previous tire cord used only five steel filaments. The new cord is stronger, more durable and has 25% more filaments. It's stronger, more resistant to wear and tear.

BELT AREA IMPROVEMENTS
Water top steel belt for greater stability. New rubber compound in belt area for better traction against moisture.

LONG MILEAGE TRACTION AND SAVINGS
Better tread pattern and durability. New compound for resistance to wear and tear. New tread pattern for better traction against moisture.

Five million test miles show that the new Steel Belted Radial 721 will work long and hard for you!

Care Is Needed When Handling New Pesticides

Rashes, blindness and even death may result from failing to follow label directions on pesticide containers, according to Emery Nelson, extension pesticide training coordinator at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Depending on the particular chemical, protective equipment might include a face mask, goggles, rubber boots, gloves and coveralls. Nelson explained that the equipment available in retail or wholesale outlets usually offers adequate protection.

"Nearly 36,000 Nebraska farmers have taken classes from their county extension agents to become certified to apply the restricted use pesticides," Nelson said.

He expatiated that "restricted pesticides" include those that are highly toxic, residual, or applied aerially. Fumigants and pesticides greatly affecting wildlife and/or environment also are restricted.

To buy such chemicals, a certificate must be presented to the seller. It is illegal to disregard pesticide application instructions, Nelson said, and the certification training makes the applicator aware of the laws and dangers regarding pesticides.

"County agents will offer classes beginning in the fall," Nelson said. "To find out exact dates and times, farmers should contact their local county extension office."

Certification will not be required by law until Oct. 21, he said, but training-testing meetings for commercial applicators will begin in September and run through February in different locations throughout the state.

To be certified, commercial applicators must pass a test in one of three categories of classes: research and demonstration; public health or general standards and categories.

Slow and Easy

BIKE RIDING skills are demonstrated by Monica Hansen (left) and her brother Craig (right) as they attempt to manipulate their bikes through a series of wooden blocks, while riding as slowly as possible. These two, along with 4 Her's from all over Dixon County, participated in the Dixon County bicycle rodeo Thursday at Concord. Incidentally, this brother and sister from Concord both won blue ribbons.

DRIVING

All students will register their cars and supply additional information on their motor vehicle. You may not drive your car to school unless it is registered. There will be no driving of the cars during the school day without permission from the administration and from the parents. Students are expected to drive in the proper manner and reports of careless and reckless driving before and after school will be sufficient reason to discontinue your driving privileges to school.

We realize the styles tend to be a problem but we feel that the patrons of the school desire our students to be neat and modest in their dress.

PHYSICAL

The high school students who plan to participate in sports or take part in physical education should have a physical examination. You cannot participate without a physical. Get these physicals out of the way prior to school. You can pick up the doctor's forms at the school office.

Kindergarten students must have a physical. All 7-12 students not participating in athletics must have either a complete physical and an X-ray to participate in physical education or a notarized permit from the parents giving their permission.

STUDENT ATTIRE

Students are expected to come to school dressed in the proper manner. Such things as grooming and attire are of concern.
