Wayne Guard Company Camp Set for February

Some 800 Nebraska National Guardsmen, including those who attend drills at the Wayne armory, will take part in a winter encampment planned as part of the state's tentative training schedule, according to Nebraska adjutant General, Maj. Gen. Edward Binder.

The Nebraska Guard organization is waiting final approval of the plan by the National Guard Bureau in Washington, D.C. but the tentative schedule, according to Binder, is for a two-week training period in February at Camp Roberts, Calif., Feb. 25 through March 11 for the 1st and 2nd Battalions, 134th Infantry, Nebraska Army National Guard.

The units last year followed a similar February training schedule at Camp Roberts, which Binder said was a great success and contributed significantly to the retention of Guard members. The two-week training encampments are traditionally held in the summer months, but this has represented a hardship on many members who farm or have seasonal occupations.

Armories included in the two battalions in addition to Wayne, are Omaha, O'Neill, Norfolk, Columbus, Wahoo, Beatrice, Nebraska City, Falls City, Auburn, Fairbury, Crete, and Hastings.

Other Army Guard units in Nebraska have 1978 encampments scheduled in May and June. Nebraska Air National Guard members will train in Savannah, Ga., in January.

Dennis Spangler, local National Guard administrator, announced that an open house is planned for the Wayne armory from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Details will be released at a later date.

Chapin Music Scholarship Founded

Virginia Chapin, McCain of Winside, who in 1971 donated her father's valuable collection of Indian artifacts to Wayne State College and in 1972 donated $20,000 to the Providence Medical Center, has just made a significant third contribution to college and community. She has donated $5,000 to Wayne State College to endow a scholarship in memory of her mother, Mrs. A.T. Chapin.

The scholarship, to be known as the Monti V. Chapin Music Scholarship, is to be awarded annually to a serious music student for study of organ or piano. Mrs. Chapin, for whom the scholarship is named, was a graduate of the Sherwood Music Conservatory in Chicago. She loved music all her life and taught it until she was 75 years old. She was always most generous in helping any serious student.

O'Donnell Family Will Sponsor Local Telethon

The Allen O'Donnell family of Wayne will serve as local hosts for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon scheduled to air Labor Day weekend on television stations throughout the nation.

The telethon will begin Sunday night, Sept. 4 at 10:30 and continue until 6 p.m. on Labor Day, Sept. 5. Anyone in the local area wishing to pledge donations to the national fund raising drive may do so by telephoning the O'Donnell residence at 375-3461. Family members will pick up contributions at the donor's home.

About $250 was collected in Wayne last year for the telethon. In addition to the O'Donnell family, youngsters helped with the local drive by initiating an impromptu door-to-door canvass. Mrs. O'Donnell said any youngsters interested in helping with the campaign this year can call her to coordinate efforts.

Lightning Strikes On Two Farms

Lightning bracketed a couple of farms in western Wayne County early Monday evening, resulting in some property loss.

A cow on the Erwin Morris farm, 12 miles west and one-half mile south of Wayne, was struck and killed at about 6:30 p.m.

About the same time, a straw pile was struck and burned on the Martin Malchow farm, one-half mile south and one-half mile west of the Morris farm.

Area farmers reported receiving about one and one-half inches of rain Monday night.

Inflation Outpaces Sales Increase

Wayne County merchants during the first three months of 1977 look in more dollars than they did during the same quarter in 1976, but sold fewer goods, according to the University of Nebraska, Lincoln Bureau of Business Research.

According to the bureau's report, the 1977 first quarter dollar volume was 3.7 per cent greater than during the comparable 1976 period, but commodity prices increased by five per cent.

Sales figures for the 1976 first quarter totaled $6,584,000—compared with $6,828,000 for the 1977 period.

Two other counties in State Planning Region 11 showed sales increases in excess of five per cent, and the two remaining counties fell substantially below. Antelope County had a 7.2 per cent increase in dollar volume and Madison county had a 7.4 per cent increase. Pierce County, however, had only 90.8 per cent of the dollar volume in the 1977 first quarter that it experienced in the same period in 1976, and Stanton County 1977 sales fell to 71.9 per cent of the 1976 level.

Dollar amounts recorded in 1977 were: Antelope, $7,424,000; Madison, $39,525,000; Pierce, $9,522,000; Stanton, $2,265,000.

In Region 25, Dixon County shows a slight increase in real volume, with 1977 sales 5.2 per cent above 1976 first quarter sales. For the other counties comprising the region, Cedar County sales in 1977 were 96.5 per cent of the 1976 total, and Knox County sales were 94.7 per cent of the previous year.

Net taxable retail sales in Nebraska overall were $1,479 million during the 1977 first quarter, 4.2 per cent greater than the 1976 figure, but representing a decline in physical

Driver's License Fees Going Up

Nebraskans won't be able to get a driver's license with their photograph on it until after Jan. 2, but will begin paying higher fees for licenses on Sept. 2, according to Wayne County treasurer Leon Meyer.

The Nebraska legislature during the last session passed LB 90, which requires photographs on drivers' licenses, and sets higher fees. The new fee schedule will go into effect at the beginning of September, along with other newly enacted laws which did not carry the emergency clause for immediate implementation.

However, the state is still working on contracts for photographic equipment and new license forms, and the new licenses bearing the driver's photo will not become available until after the first of the year.

Under the new fee schedule, a driver's license issued for four years will cost $7, rather than the $6 fee now charged.

Fees for licenses for less than four years (for new residents who move to Nebraska from out of state, for example) will also cost $1 more than previously. The new fees are: one year, $2.50; two years, $4; three years, $5.50.

Duplicate licenses, in cases where the original is lost, will cost $2 instead of the current $1 fee. Replacement licenses, where the original is mutilated, will increase from 50 cents to $1. See FEES, page 8

Expansion Proposal Clears First Hurdle

The Wakefield Health Care Center Thursday cleared the first hurdle in seeking permission to add a 20-bed wing to the existing 42-bed building.

The project review committee of the Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency (GNHSA) agreed to recommend in favor of the application for an addition, according to Herb Spears, GNHSA project review coordinator.

The GNHSA was established in 1975 and serves 71 Nebraska counties under the direction of a 30-person governing board. It acts in an advisory capacity to the State Health Department, responsible for the final decision in requests to expand nursing home facilities.

Spears said the federal Health Education and Welfare Department (HEW) requires the review process because it wants to avoid overbuilding in the nursing home industry. A sizeable percentage of nursing home costs are reimbursable under federal Medicare and Medicaid programs, Spears pointed out. Overbuilding could contribute to higher nursing home costs.

The GNHSA project review committee considered the application during a hearing Thursday morning at Kearney, and some opposition was expressed to the proposal for expanding the Wakefield nursing home, according to Spears. He said representatives with interests in other nursing care facilities in Northeast Nebraska, and from the Nebraska Health Care Association, an organization of nursing home owners, opposed the addition, contending additional beds at Wakefield could result in vacancies in other area nursing homes.

Wakefield Health Care Center administrator Russel Swigart, however, presented a well-documented case in favor of the addition, Spears said.

Swigart said in a previous interview that the request for an addition was made because of the demand for rooms in the Wakefield nursing home. Occupancy there has been high, he said. See EXPANSION, page 8

Directories Distributed

Northwestern Bell began distributing new telephone directories in Wayne and the surrounding area this week.

Almost 3,200 new telephone books will be mailed to homes and businesses in Wayne. The new regional directories will also be distributed to nearby towns.

Jack Frohloff, Bell's manager for Wayne, said one directory will be sent to each home that has a telephone in the local area. Customers with more than one telephone who have indicated a need for more than one directory in the past will be sent additional books, he said. Anyone needing additional directories can stop in the Wayne office and pick one up.

Frohloff said this year's cover of the telephone directory was created by Lowell Georgia, a professional photographer from Arvada, Colo. Georgia's photographic interpretation of a Nebraska wheatfield came from his photos on "Nebraska: The Good Life," an article which appeared in the March 1974 issue of the National Geographic.

Services Held For Wayne Man

Funeral services for Frank Stech, 21, of Wayne, were conducted Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Osmond with Father Roland Teschke officiating.

An employee of the Wayne County Public Power District, Stech was hospitalized June 2 after he came in contact with a 7,200-volt power line west of Wayne and fell 25 feet to the ground.

He was taken to Providence Medical Center in Wayne and then transferred to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, where he remained unconscious until his death.

Stech, who had been employed by the rural power district for about four years, was a native of Osmond and a 1973 graduate of Osmond High School.

Going, Going, Gone

First Week Of Workouts Are Tough

GOING THROUGH the first week of football workouts are several of the 34 future Wayne High graders who reported to first-year coach Stew Cline and his staff. Among the drills players go through are running through the ropes while others learn to handoff the ball. On the right, coach Cline carefully watches his center and quarterbacks work on the exchange.

Jorgensen Puts Job on Line:

It's .500 or Bust for Allen Eagles

Three years ago Cliff Jorgensen entered the head coaching ranks at Allen High School wondering how his teams would turn out. After two unsuccessful seasons, he no longer wonders. "I've been waiting for this year and now I think we're going to have a winning season," Jorgensen emphasized after reviewing his 35-man squad Tuesday during the first week of practice.

So sure is he Allen will finish above .500 Jorgensen told the school board last spring that his club would be in his contract, or he would hand in his contract.

That's a lot of confidence for one coach, but Jorgensen believes that with his 14 returning lettermen Allen should produce no worse than a 6-3 season.

The measure of how well Allen will do in the tough East division of the Lewis and Clark Conference is in the Eagles' running game. Primarily, senior letterman Brent Chase and sophomore speedster Greg Carr.

Chase, a 5'9", 160-pound bulldog, scored most of Allen's touchdowns during last year's 1-8 campaign and chalked up the most tackles on defense.

Besides having the ability to be a break-away runner, Chase has the size to sneak through small openings in the line and gain five yards at a crack.

Allen's front line is expected to help Chase get through the line quicker. "We've got more depth and size than ever before" which should improve Allen's chances of opening up holes in the defensive line, he added.

Although the starting line positions are still a toss up, senior veteran Steve Johnson and junior Darwin Kluver appear to have good shots at starting with their physical credentials — 6'2 or 6'3, both 185 pounds.

Others in the running are Kevin Hohenstein (5-11, 165), Rick Smith (5-7, 155), Gary Karlberg (5-9, 155), Lin Smith, (5-10, 165), Gary Brownell (5-8, 150) and Robert Malcom (5-6, 145).

Directing this year's team will be senior letterman Tod Ellis, who was at the controls last year until a broken collar bone just before the Homer game sidelined him for the rest of the season. If injury should strike again, the coach will go back to Carr.

Ellis has the good throwing arm for the short passes and occasionally the long bomb, two areas Jorgensen aims to improve to give his Eagles a double scoring threat.

The strong point on defense has to be Allen's linebackers — Chase, Carr and Hohenstein, the coach said. The weakness: defensive ends and secondary.

Although Walthill is picked to repeat as division champs, Jorgensen feels that the race for the league crown will be even among most of the teams.

Allen gets its first taste of league play on Friday, Sept. 2, when it opens at home against Winnebago.

Pitching Problems Plague Wakefield

Homer Hits, Hits and Hits, 30-0

Homer, which has dominated NNBL championship play for countless seasons, did it again Sunday night by thrashing host Wakefield, 30-0, to take home the post-season playoff crown.

The Hawks' coaches Bud Vassar and Ed Mahon did it with relative ease, jumping off to an unbelievable 13-0 lead in the opening frame and piling up 11 runs in the sixth.

The win boosted Homer's league mark to 17-0, including 13 wins in regular season play and two each over Newcastle and Wakefield in post-season action.

After Wakefield lost the first encounter, 3-1, some folks began to think that perhaps Wakefield could come up with some strong pitching to get past Homer and send the game into a third match.

But Wakefield lost its pitching strength when it put Mike Soderberg on the mound in the 3-1 loss. Soderberg did get to see some action in the first frame of the second game, but he was just one of five Wakefield hurlers who tried to stop Homer in the abbreviated seven-inning match.

Rob Eaton started out, but gave up five runs on a double by left fielder Gerald Jackobsen, fielder's choice by catcher Dave Welle and a base hit by third baseman Rick Asplund.

Winning pitcher Lee Westergaard belted one of two circuit hits in the game, slaming a two-run homer over the center field fence off Eaton's replacement, Soderberg.

All total, Homer connected for eight hits in the drawn-out first frame, including a two-run triple by shortstop Dave Gehring. The Hawks finished with 21 hits.

The second roundtripper came in the long sixth inning when catcher Keith Siebrandt took over for relief pitcher Gross. With the bases loaded, second baseman Merlin Berkenpas blasted the ball way over the center field fence for a 29-0 score. At that point, Paul Eaton went to the mound and gave up one run off three back-to-back singles in the seventh.

Eaton, who led Wakefield hitters with two base hits in three at bats, came the closest to breaking the scoring ice. With one away, he singled, went to second on a fielder's choice by Soderberg and advanced to third on a passed ball.

Five-time defending champion Bob Reeg is among the record 98 golfers who will be competing in the annual club tournament Sunday at Wayne Country Club.

Reeg, who has dominated the 27-hole championship play since 1972, will be battling 23 other low handicap golfers for the crown.

Regular 18-hole play gets underway about 9 a.m. and should be completed before the 4 p.m. start of the championship flight, said tournament co-director Jim Marsh. A complete list of tee-off times is posted at the clubhouse.

Trophies and merchandise will be awarded to the first and second place winners in each of the nine flights, and to the top six golfers for 27 holes.

The $8 entry fee includes breakfast and lunch at the club. Wives also are invited to the clubhouse.

THE QUARTERBACK

problem facing Husker grid boss Tom Osborne also seems to be lurking in the Wayne State camp for Del Stoltenberg. Which signal caller to choose for the opening game?

Osborne has five veterans knocking at the door while Stoltenberg sorts through eight candidates seeking to get the nod.

The problems for Del, however, isn't such a headache as it might seem. Of the eight, five are actually in the running, including two veterans, a sophomore, and two promising freshmen.

The only problem really facing Stoltenberg is the lack of playing experience looming over his choices. Kevin Mahlberg is the only senior and appears to be the strongest candidate for the job with his three years of playing. The 5-10, 185-lb. West Point product is a good leader and knows the offense pretty well, the coach noted.

On the other hand, there's a pair of sophomores, Mark Mintken and Denny Wilson, who will get a chance to show their stuff when fall practice opens next week.

Mintken saw some action last season, showing offensive coaches that he has the talent to operate. His problem, Stoltenberg pointed out, is that "he's so darn short (5-9), he has a hard time roving around the bigger people."

Wilson may have an inside to the signal calling job if he proves that he can adjust to varsity ball. After he dropped out of school last semester to join the Marines, Wilson returned "a completely different kid," Stoltenberg noted. "He's more self-assured so we're anxious to see what he's going to do."

Last year the coach felt that Wilson had the potential to do the job since he has the physical characteristics — 6-2, 180. "Mentally, he wasn't prepared, but talentwise he had the strong arm and ability to run with the ball," the coach said, adding that Wilson is high on the starting list this year because of his size and the fact that he played well on the JV team.

Freshmen candidates Rick Lade and Steve Conrad also possess the physical attributes to make them contenders. Lade, who directed Tekamah-Herman to the state Class C-1 playoff title last year, will enter camp standing about 6-2 and weighing 180. "Incidentally, Rick's the only lefty on the signal calling squad."

At 6-2 and 175, Conrad is rated as a strong runner and a better than average passer. The Illinois native is expected to live up to the good playing reputation established by most players out of the Chicago area, Stoltenberg said.

IF FOOTBALL

coaches in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference have their way, the league may be sponsoring a bowl game this year.

During a league press meeting in Kansas City recently, the idea of a bowl game was brought up, and received the okay from head coaches. Now the idea rests with athletic directors and college officials from the eight schools.

The proposal would involve the league winner, or runnerup if the loop winner is invited to the NCAA playoffs, against any non-league school.

Each league school would chip in, say $500, to help defray expenses and the host school would seek a sponsor to meet other costs.

Like other league coaches, Stoltenberg agreed that the proposed bowl game would be great publicity for the winning school and CSIC.

LOOKS LIKE

the Husker and Lewis and Clark Conferences are going to have their share of powerhouses this season, according to a preseason poll conducted

Backstop

Bob Bartlett

by prep writers for the Lincoln Journal-Star newspapers.

In the East Husker, Oakland-Craig and Tekamah-Herman are tabbed to place fourth and sixth respectively. Tekamah won the C-1 title in '76 with an 11-0 record.

In the Lewis and Clark loop, Wausa of the West division is forecasted to rank seventh while East representative Wallhill is picked 10th in the Class C-2 division. Wallhill finished the '76 season with an 8-2 mark — good enough to land seventh.

Writers tab these area players to watch: Defensive tackle Craig Wehrle of Madison; halfback Pat Maxwell and defensive tackle Randy Saxton of Tekamah; middle guard Scott Lindstrom of Oakland; defensive back Russ Ruscher of Emerson-Hubbard and defensive back Merit Friedrich of Wausa.

Running Pays Off

WAYNE STATE long distance runner Don Rinehart finished third among 84 runners in the second annual six-mile road race at Norfolk. Rinehart, who last week ran in the grueling 26-mile, 385-yard marathon in Omaha, plans to continue his weekly running meets in preparation for the upcoming Wildcats cross country season. For his efforts at Norfolk, Don won a trophy and earned a medal for finishing second in his age group. His time was 32:33 — about a minute and a half off the winning time. Other area runners who finished were Kurt Lancaster, Wayne; Alan Johnson, Wakefield; Brian Rubcek, Winside, and Marc Beamer, Wayne.

Early Scoring Powers Laurel To Playoff Win

Jahr Abts bounced out three hits and Bruce Johnson connected for two Sunday night to lead Laurel town team to an 8-6 play-off win over Tri County League champ Crofton.

Laurel struck for the bulk of its runs in the first three frames with the help of six Crofton errors to score seven runs. The winners led 7-0 in the top of the first on a RBI single by winning pitcher Bob Weisenberg and a sacrifice fly by George Schroeder. The error filled second provided Laurel with two more runs before the area team collected three in the third on hits by Jerry Schroeder, Johnson and a sacrifice fly by Rod Erwin.

In the fifth, Johnson got Laurel going with a base hit and scored on a single by Abts for an 8-2 lead. Losing pitcher Rod Hegge put Crofton in contention with a three-run homer of Weisenberg in the bottom of the eighth for an 8-5 ball game. George Schroeder finished out in the ninth for Weisenberg.

"Crofton is a tough place to play," said player-coach Jerry Schroeder. "We were just lucky to get out to a good lead."

Wednesday night Laurel was scheduled to play Crofton at 8:15 in the best-of-three series.

'A Little Nervous'

Wayne's entry in the national Junior Olympics in Lincoln ran into a case of nerves while competing in the long jump.

Sydney Mosley, who will be a senior at Wayne High this year, scratched all three times to be disqualified. Had she completed one jump, Syd guessed that her best effort would have been over 18 feet.

The winning distance was 19-10 1/2, by Sandra Meyers of Windom, Kas.

Goeden Resigns Town Team Post

The coach of the Wayne town team, Don Goeden, announced Monday night that he no longer will manage the club.

Goeden, who has been at the helm for the past two seasons, told board members during a meeting that his decision to retire was based on the growing disinterest by players and fans in the sport. Goeden did agree to join the nine-member board to help with future events.

During Monday's meeting, members set Friday, Aug. 26, as the date for the annual player dinner to be held at 7 p.m. at the Wayne County fairgrounds.

VA Office Now Has Toll Free Number

Nebraska veterans and their beneficiaries may now make toll-free telephone calls to the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Lincoln.

James Smith, director of the downtown Lincoln office, said the service started Aug. 1 through the installation of a Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS) line for all parts of the state except Omaha and Lincoln.

Veterans in Omaha can continue to call the Lincoln VA Regional Office for the price of a local call by using the existing Foreign Exchange (FX) number.

Smith said persons calling on the state-wide WATS line should first dial their access code, which is generally "1" or "112", and then 800-742-7554.

Veterans and their beneficiaries in Omaha can call 221-3291. In Lincoln, the number to call is 471-5001.

Smith said the number for the new WATS service may not yet be in telephone directories. He suggested that persons who misplace or forget the numbers can get the correct number for their area by calling their local telephone office.

The Lincoln VA office is open from 8 a.m. through 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday.

He said that through this new service callers will be able to speak directly to a veterans' benefits counselor at the VA Regional Office in Lincoln. The counselor will be able to provide information and assistance to veterans and their dependents in the VA programs of education and vocational rehabilitation, compensation and pension, insurance, medical care, GI home loans and other VA benefits.

He emphasized that with the new service the cost to the veteran using the special numbers will be only the cost of a local call. The long-distance toll will be paid by the Veterans Administration.

He urged that veterans and dependents in Omaha and Lincoln use the telephone numbers assigned to those cities. He explained that this is necessary in order to free the new WATS line for veterans in other parts of the state who must depend solely on the new statewide WATS system.

"This special service will enable us to give the state's veterans accurate information and assistance promptly," Smith said. "It moves them as close to our VA office as their nearest telephone."

He suggested that veterans and beneficiaries who have been assigned a "C" (claim) number by the VA should give the VA counselor that number when calling. "This will further speed up our service to them," he said.

"It is a fine thing to have ability but the ability to discover ability in others is the true test..."
— Elbert Hubbard

Those who accomplish the most are those who know how to work through others... they must seek and find ability in those whose help they need. The ability to do this is the greatest ability of all.

Most of us will never achieve importance as captains of industry with large staffs of subordinates. All of us, however, can profit by developing our ability to see ability in others. Parents, for example, can develop latent talent in their children if they learn to recognize ability.

When tragedy strikes, your first call should be to us. We can take over most of the burdensome details which must be handled promptly.

said, and there has been a waiting list of from 25 to 30 people for the past four or five months.

Estimated cost of the addition is $260,000. About $200,000 would be financed through municipal revenue bonds. About $70,000 currently in savings would also be available for the project, according to Swigart.

The city-owned Wakefield Health Care Center went into operation on Jan. 21, 1975. Revenue bonds totalling $310,000 financed construction, and another $50,000 was borrowed for equipment.

Swigart said about $305,000 in outstanding indebtedness remains on the revenue bonds. The loan for equipment has been repaid.

The GNHSA project review committee recommended in favor of granting permission for the addition will be presented to the agency's governing board during a meeting scheduled for 10 a.m., Aug. 25, at the Holiday Inn in North Platte.

The governing board's recommendation will be forwarded to the State Health Department for final action. Spears said an appeal could be filed if the Health Department should decide to disapprove the request.

student whether he could pay or not, Mrs. McCain recalled. For at least 25 years, Mrs. Chapin played for services, weddings and funerals in the Methodist Church and in Trinity Lutheran Church in Winside.

In 1977, Mr. and Mrs. Chapin donated the lot for the Methodist parsonage to be built on. Mrs. Chapin joined the Winside Methodist Church in 1971, but in 1935 she was confirmed in the Episcopal Church by the Right Reverend Ernest V. Shaylor, bishop of Nebraska.

Mrs. Chapin was a charter member and first matron of the Order of Eastern Star, Fairchild Chapter 165 and received her 50-year pin in 1952. She was also a charter member and secretary of the first Federated Woman's Club in Winside, organized in 1900, but disbanded in 1950.

Mrs. Chapin died in 1957.

BUSINESS NOTES

Gene Fletcher of Feeders Fertilizer and Chemical Co., in Wayne, joined 90 fertilizer dealers from the states of Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma to gather for the First Chevron Business Seminar at Columbus.

Traveling from home towns as far away as Burkburnett, Texas, they met with Dr. David Downey of Purdue University, West Lafayette, Indiana; Dr. John Marten, Top Farmers of America, West Lafayette, Indiana; Bob Devaney, former head coach and now athletic director, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Dr. Downey's presentations dealt with both business procedures and "people problems."

Dr. Marten advised the dealers on a "bearish" farm production outlook; he related low farm prices to possible farmer cash flow problems and advised dealers on possible government grain support programs, and projected 1977-1978 grain and livestock market prices.

Devaney appeared as keynote speaker at the closing banquet.

Highway Use Tax Returns Due Soon

Most owners of large trucks, truck-tractors, or buses in Nebraska must file a federal highway use tax return by Aug. 31. The tax generally applies to single unit trucks weighing 13,000 pounds or more, to truck-tractors weighing 5,500 pounds or more, to trucks of 9,000 or more pounds equipped for use in combinations, and to buses with a taxable gross weight of more than 26,000 pounds, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Revenue from the highway use tax program assists states in financing the Interstate Highway System, but the tax is imposed on those vehicles using any public highways, city streets, state roads and interstate roadways.

The tax year for the highway use tax begins July 1, and runs through the following June 30.

Fees

Drivers who wish to obtain a license with their photograph before the license expires will be able to receive a duplicate license for $2.

Chances of tearing a license should be reduced when the new licenses are issued. Meyer said they will be laminated, a measure previously prohibited. The county treasurer predicted taking photos and laminating licenses will take more time for his staff, but added they will be difficult to alter.

There will be one drawback to the new system, Meyer said. Drivers now can obtain a replacement license by mail. That won't be possible after photos are required, and licenses can be issued only by the county of residence. That could cause difficulties, for example, for a student listed as a Wayne County residence, but attending school elsewhere who needs to replace a lost license. Meyer said, however, that he is hoping the state will find a way to alleviate the problem before the new system goes into effect.

College Costs Are Increasing

For Wayne County parents who have children bound for college this fall, there is both good and bad news.

The bad part is that college costs have gone up since last year. The good part is that the increase is only about four percent, on average, which is the smallest in five years. In 1976, by way of comparison, the hike was close to seven per cent.

Not that four per cent doesn't represent a substantial sum of money. For the total number of Wayne County students who are enrolling this year, it amounts to an added cost of approximately $43,000, it is estimated.

Wayne County area will be going to college this year. As a result, the bill that local parents are faced with, because of the size of their contingent and because of the higher rates, comes to an estimated $1,067,000.

This is based upon the assumption that half of the students will be going to private colleges and half to public ones.

Included in the cost figures are tuition and fees, room on board, books and supplies, transportation and personal expenses.

According to the Conference Board, "the spiraling cost of college and university education is taxing the ability and the willingness of a growing number of families to shoulder the additional financial burden at a time when the economic value of college degrees is declining and unemployment among college graduates is high."

George Bernard Shaw won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1925.

Guessers Tourney Draws 45 Golfers

About 45 golfers participated in the Second Guessers handicap tournament Friday at the Wayne County Club.

Top prize went to Jim Marsh who fired a 30 with his handicap. Don Keck won the duffer award for his 61, the highest score for a player with a high handicap, and Doug Radtke won the horseshot award for his 36, the lowest score for a high-handicap golfer.

Wayne Sporting Goods provided the trophies and the Guessers supplied food and beverages.

HOSKINS NEWS / Mrs. Hilar Thomas 565-4569

Small Appliances is Lesson At Highland Extension Club

Mrs. Norris Langenberg was hostess for the Highland Women's Extension Club Thursday afternoon. Guests were June Remander of Norfolk, Mrs. Fred Brumets and Mrs. Edwin Brog.

Accidents Involve 4 Area Residents

Four area persons were involved in two separate accidents over the weekend.

Three Hoskins residents were treated and released from a Norfolk hospital following a two-car accident near Norfolk.

According to the State Patrol, a car operated by Douglas Bruggeman of Hoskins hit the rear end of a stalled car occupied by Debra Kingsley of Norfolk about 10:30 p.m.

Bruggeman and two passengers; Renee Anderson and Diane Kruger, were treated and released from Lutheran Community Hospital. Miss Kingsley escaped injury.

Both vehicles were extensively damaged. About 9:15 p.m. Saturday a pickup driven by Jerry Rabe of Winslow collided with a car operated by Glen Olson of Stanton, at a county road intersection near Hoskins. Rabe, who escaped serious injury when his pickup rolled over in a ditch, was treated at the scene, according to the Patrol.

Olson and his wife were taken to a Norfolk hospital by the Hoskins rescue unit and later released.

Mrs. Gerald Bruggeman, vice president, opened the meeting with the collect. Fifteen members responded to roll call by naming a small appliance they use regularly.

The secretary and treasurer's reports were given by Mrs. Orville Borekemeier.

Members were reminded of the invitations extended from the Hoskins Homemakers Extension Club to attend their meeting, which was held Aug. 16. Suggestions for county goals were sent in.

Mrs. Gerald Bruggeman and Mrs. George Langenberg were honored with the traditional birthday song.

Mrs. Lyle Maroltz, health leader, read an article on the nutritional value of zucchini, and Mrs. George Langenberg, music leader, led in group singing.

The next regular meeting will be with Mrs. Lane Maroltz on Sept. 11.

Unit Called
The Hoskins rescue unit was called Saturday evening to take Mr. and Mrs. Glen Olson of Stanton to a Norfolk hospital. Olsons were injured in an automobile accident south of Hoskins.

Barbecue Workers Keep on Serving

SCATTERED RAINS might have stopped some people, but not this girl as she stands in line for the Dixon County Fair beef barbecue Monday night. It rained intermittently throughout the barbecue, but that didn't stop the lines of people waiting to be served. "We'll keep servin' 'em" one worker said, "as long as the rain don't dilute the beans."

Farmers Can Call USDA Newline

Feed lots in the seven major cattle feeding states showed a three per cent increase in July over July of 1976. Nebraska, one of the seven states, showed a seven per cent increase.

These facts were made available on the "Farmers Newline," a toll free number that supplies the latest crop, livestock and farm economic information from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington D.C. The number is 800-424-7964.

The newline, available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, is provided by the combined efforts of the USDA's Statistical Reporting and Economic research services. The reports change at 4 p.m. each week day.

State aid opponents say petition drive success is certain

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN — With the filing of a batch of more than 25,000 signatures, leaders of a drive to force a vote on whether the 1977 law to increase state aid to schools should be activated said they were certain the issue would be on the 1978 general election ballot.

By Aug. 10, the date on which they hoped to have more than enough names on petition forms calling for a vote, the campaign directors said they were sure they would wind up with more than enough.

One of the leaders, Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus, emphasized that many circulators of petitions had their filled out forms in the mail and that these names had not yet been counted.

Another state senator who was active in the campaign, Bernice Labedz of Omaha, said many petition forms were still out in the Omaha area where thousands of signatures had been gathered.

The law would be suspended until after the 1978 general election if enough valid signatures could be collected to force the issue onto the ballot.

The law proposes increasing the $55 million currently being distributed annually to the schools by $20 million a year during each of the next three years.

The controversial statute was enacted in the waning days of this year's legislative session after the measure had been vetoed by Gov. J. James Exon.

Dworak said the petition drive met with success "in spite of the harassment and confusion that was spread throughout the state by education lobbyists."

According to Dworak, "The people of Nebraska said they do intend to use their constitutional right of referendum, and resent those arrogant elected officials who have tried to take away from them."

He described the state aid law, LB 33, as "a spending bill with no guarantee of any tax relief."

Too Many Beds

A study of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare came to the conclusion that Nebraska hospitals have too many beds, too few patients and patients who stay in the hospital too long.

And the director of the Nebraska Health Department's Division of Health Systems Planning, said steps will be taken to correct the situation during the next five years.

But it will be difficult, admitted Dr. Kenneth Diamond. The reason is because most of the overbedding and overutilization occurs in Omaha, he said.

Statistics compiled by HEW show Nebraska ranks 17th nationally in the number of hospital beds per population and seventh in the number of hospital days per population.

With six hospital beds for every 1,000 persons, Nebraska ranks behind only Minnesota and North Dakota in that respect.

Diamond said about four beds for every 1,000 residents would be acceptable under HEW's formula.

The federal agency's study also showed Nebraska's 66 per cent occupancy rate was much below the recommended 80.4 per cent.

Diamond said Omaha was considered a problem area because of too many hospitals and overutilization but that the community of Kearney came out "smelling like a rose." He also expects Scottsbluff will receive a very favorable rating because St. Mary Hospital is being sold to West Nebraska General. Once that transaction is completed, Scottsbluff will have an efficient, unified medical care center, Diamond said.

Lytton Report

Dr. James Lytton, the former Nebraska Penal Complex psychologist, has released a report in which he disagreed with charges he was not doing his job properly at the time an inmate hanged himself.

Lytton was fired as director of the prison's psychiatric care program after the suicide of Donald Routhier.

His dismissal, he argued, "acted as a successful diversion from the real problems that led to the death."

State Corrections director Joseph Vittek terminated Lytton's employment for what Vittek said was the psychologist's minimal contact with prisoners and staff and for his unproductiveness.

At the time he was dismissed, Lytton said the prison system was at fault for Routhier's death. He said he did not read a note from the prisoner because it was not marked urgent. Another employee was responsible for screening inmate requests, Lytton said.

According to the psychologist, the communications system between prisoners and staff is totally inadequate and that was the real cause of Routhier's death. The note in which Routhier requested help took 24 hours to travel 500 feet from the maximum security unit to the clinic, Lytton said.

Sleeping Sickness

The deputy state veterinarian, Dr. Burrell Spahr, says horses in Nebraska should be vaccinated immediately for sleeping sickness.

He said horses are contracting the disease earlier than usual.

Sleeping sickness is mainly a warm weather disease, carried by mosquitoes which feed on wild birds and then transmit the illness to horses. Symptoms include fever, impaired vision, irregular gait, grinding teeth, drowsiness, inability to swallow and paralysis.

There is no specific treatment for the disease but Spahr said proper supportive care and good nursing will help horses overcome mild cases.

Criminal Records

The legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee recently took testimony on proposed state-wide policy that would cover storage and dissemination of criminal justice records.

If the state doesn't develop a policy, federal regulations will go into effect.

Representatives of the news media said the committee it would be much better if the state adopted its own set of standards.

The federal regulations would make it much more difficult for the public to get access to some types of criminal justice information that has been available.

The proposed legislation would make available to the public data on "nonconviction" cases for one year and later in cases when a person is arrested or prosecuted for an offense, runs for or holds public office or permits release of the information.

Court records, conviction information and most other law enforcement records would remain open to public view but investigatory and intelligence files would not.

The most controversial part of the proposed legislation is disposition of "non-conviction" records, according to state courts administrator James Dunlevy.

Firemen's strike sparks heated comments

Did you see those pictures of the people in Dayton, Ohio, watching their homes going up in flames, while the union firemen stood by... on strike? One man's home was destroyed when the Dayton firefighters not only refused to do their duty, but also threatened firefighters from nearby towns who were trying to help him. I don't know of a better illustration of the danger to society posed by public employee unions.

An arsonist who caused property damage, and perhaps even loss of life would be thrown in jail for a long term. A businessman whose negligence caused similar trouble would face civil suits. But the union member gets a raise and more time off. A 6.2 per cent raise in the Dayton case, plus other benefits.

What is it about banding together to extort money from the taxpayers that confers immunity from the law? The final paragraph of the New York Times Aug. 11 story on the Dayton debacle reports: "Despite the existence of a state law prohibiting strikes by public employees, city officials indicated that they would take no disciplinary action." This outcome is rather sadly typical of the way many public officials uphold their responsibilities when confronted by a militant union.

In a curiously worded editorial in the same edition, the Times appears to rationalize such behavior: "Studies have shown that whether strikes are legal or not the decisive question in keeping order. The threat of injunction and punishment are tools in negotiation... In the end, labor negotiations are contests for public support."

The Times deplores "the destruction in Dayton, but for some reason stops short of deploring the process that caused it. I am left wondering how a paper which firmly insists that even a President of the United States must obey the law can now suggest that the law is, for a union, negotiable. Nor is the Times' reasoning internally consistent. The paper's own story makes it clear that the union lost public support in Dayton, and yet won its objective."

I cannot agree with the Times' hand-wringing conclusion that little can be done when public employees choose to strike. First, the law can — and must — be enforced. The "rights" of a union do not take precedence over the rights of all citizens of a community. Contrast the Dayton surrender with the firm action taken last spring by mayor Maynard Jackson of Atlanta. Confronted with a strike by the city's unionized garbage collectors, Mayor Jackson fired them, and hired replacements. If worked. The people still in Atlanta are better off.

Second, smart city administrators can minimize the damage that any one group of rebellious public servants is able to do. Scottsdale, Ariz., for example, gets its fire protection from a private company under contract to the city. If that company's employees struck the company, Scottsdale could simply hire another company. (And incidentally, the private-enterprise route to fire protection costs the citizens of Scottsdale less than public-employee systems of comparable cities.)

It cannot be said too often that public employee unions are not comparable to union in the private sector. A strike in the private sector is a contest between a union and a company. A strike in the public sector is a war between a union and the public.

A union has no more right to hold hostage the citizens of a city than a kidnapper has the right to hold one citizen hostage, or a skyjacker the right of hold a plane aloft. — Richard Lesher, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786.

Eyes are on first water control district

The course of who controls Nebraska's underground water resources in the future may hinge on the success or failure of the Upper Republican Resource District's designation as the state's first underground water control area.

The outcome of Kearney will determine whether local people and local interests will give enlightened support and guidance to their Natural Resources Districts in needed water conservation and control measures or whether by default they turn those decisions and responsibilities over to state or federal government.

Under provisions of Nebraska's Ground Water Management Act passed by the Legislature in 1975, the district must draw up regulations to curb depletion of underground water supplies in the control area which includes Chase and Perkins Counties and that portion of Dundy County north of the Republican River.

A public hearing by the district concerning the regulations must be held within 60 days and the district will have 18 months to implement the regulations.

After Sept. 1, a permit to drill a new well within the control area will be required and such permit will be valid for one year.

That has been a recognized water-short area. Development of center-pivot irrigation systems has been spectacular and pumping has reduced stream flows in the Frenchman River, decreased storage in Enders Reservoir and reduced supplies to surface water irrigators in the Frenchman Valley with long-standing water rights. In addition, water tables in the control area have shown drastic declines.

There are a number of other areas in the state where underground water supplies have shown similar symptoms and other water control designations are likely to be made. The question is whether irrigators, potential irrigators and other users in those areas face their water problems and apply the restraints necessary to protect their long-term interests. The choice is simply, "Do we do something about it now, or wait until the aquifers are pumped dry?"

The trend will be evident at the public hearing and whether those with the most at stake are inclined to recognize conditions as they are and accept whatever restrictions are necessary to correct the situation.

Irrigated agriculture in the Texas Panhandle is slowly, but surely grinding to a halt as the water runs out and farmers and ranchers are forced to return to dry-land crops and rangeland. That will mean severe social and economic dislocations. When the water runs out, it is not just lost for irrigation, but for domestic, livestock, municipal and industrial purposes.

Fortunately Nebraskans in water-short areas have a measure of "lead time," but how much is problematic. If realistic control measures are adopted, applied and accepted in the Natural Resources Districts, crisis situations can be averted.

Inadequate remedies or prolonged delays brought about by lengthy court actions could mean that eventually those who are left without water will turn to the state and federal governments for relief. Purpose of the 1975 law is to permit local and regional people through their Natural Resources Districts to prescribe and achieve their own solutions. It's a good concept but only they can make it work. — M.M. Van Kirk, Nebraska Farm Bureau.

OBSERVATIONS

Water policy important

Water and policy governing its use will play an important part in shaping the future of Nebraska. The following articles were written by authors deeply involved with developing policy for water utilization at the state and federal levels.

'Fears are unfounded'

By CECIL ANDRUS
Secretary of the Interior

Some disturbing rumors have surfaced about the public hearings we've been conducting as part of the Administration's studies on water resources policy. This is unfortunate, because the meetings otherwise have been of great value in exploring the issues.

To be specific, some fears have been expressed by a few that the federal government wants to establish federal water rights, and that "the Feds" are advocating the inter-basin transfer of water.

I want to clear up these false impressions in the strongest possible terms, so the American people can concentrate on the real challenge at hand and not get sidetracked by simulated strawmen.

I do not advocate and have never advocated federal water rights that would preempt or infringe upon state or private rights. And as a former governor, I have always personally opposed moving water from one river basin to another.

Because President Carter recognizes the pressing urgency of the issue, he initially gave us a six-month deadline to complete our water policy study and prepare recommendations he could send to Congress. In his mandate, he directed us to engage in open, honest dialogue with the public, the states, and the Congress, to insure that what we come up with will truly reflect the national interest.

To gather comments, nine public hearings were held in July and August. As chairman of the Water Resources Council, I directed our people to go into these hearings with no pre-conceived ideas. I want the broadest possible range of views from the public on water issues.

As a springboard for discussion, we also published a set of "issues and options" to help trigger as wide a range of views as possible.

Somehow, confusion and misconceptions have arisen on several points as a result of the hearings. I hope that by reiterating the facts and the true purpose of the hearings, I can lay these deliberate distortions to rest.

I repeat that we have no pre-conceived commitment to any of the options being discussed. We included them for discussion purposes only. To have done otherwise — to have left out any option we did not favor — would have defeated the objective of free-wheeling debate on the full range of alternatives. Worse, it would have meant we'd already made up our minds on some of the issues.

I cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of a comprehensive, coordinated water policy. It's an issue too important to be carried out by a handful of "experts" gathered in the marbled halls of Washington. It's an issue which in future years may be as critical as today's energy crisis, and I am determined to get the best thinking, from the largest number of people, before we begin to draw up recommendations, not after.

The only "conclusion" we've reached so far is that we should allow more time to complete the study. I have therefore extended the deadline by 90 days — until January 1978.

This will give us more time to consult with the states, with Congressional leaders and with the Office of Management and Budget, and the Council on Environmental Quality, who are also involved in this effort. More public hearings may be held as the study progresses.

The inter-agency nature of this study, the extensive participation of the public, the full partnership of the Congress in shaping our future resources policy all point to the best possible chance for designing a water resources policy that will serve the needs of all the people.

Everyone should conserve

By LOREN SCHNITGRUND
Nebraska Water Resources Association

During the irrigation season in Nebraska, it is estimated that more than 2.6 trillion gallons of water are used for irrigating crops. That's a rather stunning figure when you consider you can't get a glass of water in some Lincoln restaurants unless you ask for it.

A woman attending a Water Resources Shortcourse in Ord recently heard those figures presented by Don Athelme, extension water resource specialist. Her response was: "I guess I don't have to worry about flushing the toilet too many times during the day."

Athelme was quick to point out that when talking about conservation that you must first look to agriculture, the largest water user by far. But he also emphasized the importance of conservation at home, too. Its estimated Nebraskans use 255 million gallons of water each day.

The Nebraska Water Resources Association urges all citizens to conserve water: the farmer irrigating his crop and the homeowner watering his lawn. Nebraska is blessed with an abundant supply of water. Its imperative that we manage that water supply properly now, and conserve now, so we don't face water shortages in the future.

A recent publication from the Water Resources Center at UN-L said studies indicate irrigators, using proper management and scheduling, could reduce water and energy consumption by nearly 50 per cent. That figure seems high, but few will deny that water and energy consumption could be reduced substantially.

Just as the irrigator may be putting too much water on his crop, perhaps many homeowners are wasting water also. The figure may seem small when comparing domestic use with agricultural use, but its time all Nebraskans became conscious of conserving water, our most valuable resource. — Nebraska Water Resources Association.

Many of the 5,000 people, more or less, living in the little town of Wayne seem to be torn apart and bitter about the downtown improvement project.

I hope asking for an explanation will shed light on this subject.

The following is an excerpt from The Wayne Herald of Aug. 11.

Please, Mr. Vakoc, explain publicly to the masses why you are mandated by the people to do the work, and who are the people.

Thanks for your cooperation. — Willard Blecke.

Silence Could Cost Social Security

Benefit Recipients

The tall, silent hero is big in Westerns, but he's no one to imitate if you're applying for Social Security benefits, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk. Withholding facts from the Social Security Administration could cost you money.

Informing about individual social security records is confidential under the law. "But we are interested in seeing that you and members of your family get all Social Security benefits due you," Branch said.

A worker's dependents are generally eligible for Social Security benefits if the worker is. But sometimes a worker applying for benefits is reluctant to mention retarded children, a common-law husband or wife, or illegitimate children. Withholding such information could deprive these dependents of Social Security checks.

Social Security pays monthly retirement, disability and survivors benefits to eligible workers and their families. State law is generally followed in determining if a common-law husband or wife or illegitimate children are eligible.

Barbara Winter of the Norfolk Social Security office will be at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center Tuesday from 9 a.m. until noon.

Program Offers Challenge

This year was the second one for the 4-H livestock challenge program in Wayne County.

The purpose of the program is to challenge 4-H'ers to excel in four phases of the 4-H livestock program: showmanship, knowledge of project, record book quality and ribbon placement on their animals shown at the county fair. Points earned in each of the phases are totaled resulting in a ribbon placing. Ribbons won at the fair are as follows:

County Loan Rates Vary

County loan and purchase rates for 1977 crop soybeans released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), are based on the national loan rate of $3.50 per bushel — up $1 from 1976 — and vary from county to county to reflect production and utilization patterns and differences in transportation costs.

The national loan rate of $3.50 per bushel is for soybeans of the classes yellow or green which contain 12.8 to 13.0 per cent moisture and which grade not lower than No. 2 on the factors of test weight, percentage of splits and heat damage and not lower than No. 1 on all other factors.

Premiums for moisture content have been increased to somewhat offset increased costs of cleaning and drying soybeans while discounts for some grade factors have been increased to more nearly reflect cash market discounts.

Copies of the 1977 crop soybean county loan rate are being sent to state offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) and are also available by writing to the Grains, Oilseeds and Cotton Division, USDA — ASCS, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

DICK SORENSEN

Sorensen: Slump In Grain Prices

Entices Producers

Declining prices for corn and soybeans may result in a growing number of hog producers in the near future, said Wayne producer Dick Sorensen.

Sorensen, who operated a specific pathogen free (SPF) farm northwest of Wayne, told members of Wayne Kiwanis Club Monday that an increase in hog raisers may not be seen until six months to a year from now, depending on market prices.

The resulting effect if the number of hog producers increase is a drop in profit margin for the raiser and perhaps a decline in pork costs at the market for the consumer.

Sorensen started raising hogs 15 years ago with his dad and has become one of the leading producers in the country. Last week he finished his two-year term as president of the state SPF organization.

"The biggest factor in raising hogs is the cost of feed. If a producer lets his cost for health and labor equal or rise above feed costs, then he'll be in trouble," Sorensen said.

Present feed costs run about 30 cents a pound per animal, well below the 46-cent margin price.

Sheep Producers Join Expansion Program

Nebraska has become the 13th state where sheep producers have decided to enroll in a nationwide effort to disprove a modern economic theory.

The plan is called the Blueprint for Expansion, a program started in 1975 that envisions revitalizing the sheep industry in the next decade by doubling lamb production and increasing wool output by 50 per cent. It was formulated by members of the American Sheep Producers Council (ASPC), National Wool Growers Association, ASPC's Sheep Industry Development Program, Inc., and the national Lamb Feeders Association.

The economic principle is called supply and demand, which generally holds that when supplies increase, prices eventually fall.

But in the case of sheep production, such expansion is necessary to stave off economic disaster, according to Dwight Holaway of Pipestone, Minn., national sheep production coordinator of Blueprint.

"We think our sheep population is so low that the regular rules of economics cannot apply," he said. "If we kept every ewe lamb born for the next 10 years (for breeding), we couldn't possibly supply the domestic demand for lamb or raise our per capita consumption back up to the seven pounds it was in 1945."

"We don't think this expansion will disrupt the market because it will be a planned and gradual growth," Holaway said here recently during the state's kickoff banquet for Blueprint.

U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics indicate that sheep production has dropped by 50 per cent in the last 15 years, and that the sheep population stood at 13,346 million head by the end of 1976.

That decline in production has had "several ominous ramifications for the sheep industry, according to Holaway, among them:

— The closing of lamb packing plants because they are operating at two-thirds capacity or less. Included is the Swift and Co. plant at Scottsbluff, which officials say may close its doors soon because of low supplies of carcasses. "I've been told by packers that they could pay $2 a hundred more if they could run at full capacity," said Holaway.

— High consumer demand for lamb and wool not being met. He said markets on the East Coast could have sold all but 5,000 of the 125,000 lambs killed weekly last year, and said this supply shortage has caused the ASPC's Lamb Council to discourage promotion of lamb products by some retailers.

— An absence of American sheep products on the world market.

During the same period, lamb and wool prices have risen steadily. For the past two years, lamb has been selling for $50 to $70 a hundredweight, while wool has been priced at between 60 cents and 80 cents a pound.

And Holaway said this profitability, if it continues, will provide the key to the Blueprint's expansion plan.

"The sheep industry is in a very enviable position now because there's a tremendous amount of money to be made in sheep," he said. "Today, we have the genetic resources, management technology and nutritional know-how to send 210 pounds of lamb to market per ewe in about 120 days."

Holaway said much of the reason for declining sheep numbers — the glamour of raising cattle — has lessened during a period of lower prices.

"Now, the livestock choices aren't that great," he said. "Sheep indeed are more profitable and there's a renewed interest."

But for the Blueprint to work, he said, producers must start applying new available technology, and increase ewe numbers by keeping more females now being sent to market and exploring foreign sources.

"We as sheep people — and we're not alone in this — are resistant to change because it implies that what we've done in the past has been wrong," he said. "Change involves criticism of the past and certainly a disruption of the future."

"But we have an obligation to our industry."

That obligation, as viewed by Blueprint planners, calls for producers each year to increase sheep numbers by five per cent, lambing percentage weaned by 2 1/2 per cent and lamb weight by 1 1/2 per cent for the next decade.

"The net result would be to increase lamb produced by 100 per cent in the next 10 years," said Holaway.

Blueprint organizers also are attempting to:

— Establish regional telephone auction (two already exist) to attract more lamb buyers and increase price competition, distribute current market information, and encourage better wool marketing and new lamb and wool product development.

— Develop regional research centers and demonstration

Livestock marketing Cooperative, is being used by Iowa producers, he said.

— Provide "factual" information about current predator-control regulations and research, including a lecture and video tape slide program on 48 segments of sheep production, five of which will be available in September.

— Develop regional research centers and demonstration

At Michigan Conference Nebraska Foresters Speak

Two U.S. Forest Service scientists, Dr. Glenn Petersen and Ralph Read, stationed at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, have traced the spread of western gall rust and its effects on young pine plantings.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the American Phytopathological Society meeting in East Lansing, Mich., Sunday through today (Thursday), Petersen stated that nurserymen can reduce chances of infection by assuring that rust is not present on older pines growing in the vicinity of nursery beds. New plantings also should be inspected in the fall of the year planted and the galls removed so that spores of the fungus cannot be dispersed in the spring to spread the disease, the Nebraskans advised.

The practice of soil fumigation, used increasingly to control disease and weeds in greenhouses and nurseries, can have harmful as well as beneficial effects, another Nebraska scientist said Sunday at the meeting.

Dr. Jerry Riffle, U.S. Forest Service researcher, pointed out that nurseries are increasing the use of fumigants because of the high costs of hand weeding and the lack of suitable herbicides and pesticides.

Using broadleaved seedlings of honeysuckle, Russian olive, green ash and buffalo berry, Dr. Riffle showed that the incidence and density of beneficial endomycorrhizal fungus were reduced, thus lowering the growth rate of the broadleaf seedlings to a significant degree.

Dr. Riffle said, "The work points up the need for the development of more selective and thus more suitable herbicides and pesticides for the protection of nursery stock."

Water Policy Study Is Underway

State Senator Maurice Kremer, chairman of the Nebraska Legislature's Public Works Committee, and University of Nebraska-Lincoln officials have announced a cooperative study of the Nebraska water policy alternatives.

The study will have two major components, according to Kremer.

He explained that the first year of the study will discuss "water law alternatives on issues for which specific data are available."

Included in this category are reports on statutory authority of the Department of Water Resources for surface water administration and riparian water right. Statutory authorities of Natural Resource Districts for controlling groundwater withdrawals and other issues also will be explored, Kremer said.

"Analysis of state water policy alternatives will make up the second major component of the study. Research will include hydrology, geology, law, economics, engineering and biology and will be coordinated through the UN-L Water Resources Center.

"The purpose of the second part is to provide the technical information not currently available to analyze policy alternatives regarding several issues including: transbasin diversion, minimum streamflows and conjunctive management of ground and surface water," he explained.

Once the University has prepared the background reports, water policy options will be presented to the Legislature. The Public Works Committee, and eventually the Legislature will then select which options, if any, it feels are appropriate, according to David Aiken, UN-L water law specialist.

Aiken added that the legal studies would be available to the public as soon as they are published.

U.S.D.A. NEWS

Corn production on Aug. 1 was forecast at 603.3 million bushels, unchanged from the July 1 forecast, according to the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Total production, if realized, would surpass by nearly nine percent the previous record production set in 1973. The yield was forecast at 95 bushels per acre, unchanged from the previous month but up 12 bushels over last year. Acres intended for grain totaled 6.35 million, an increase of two per cent over last year's harvested acreage and the largest since 6.5 million acres were harvested for grain in 1960.

Dryland corn production was forecast at 127.7 million bushels, 27 per cent above last year. Farmers intend to harvest 2.3 million acres of dryland corn for grain, 250,000 acres less than last year. Yield was forecast at 56.7 bushels per acre, up 16.6 bushels from 1976. Drought has sharply reduced production prospects in southeastern Nebraska, but in other areas of the state, growth is nearly two weeks ahead of normal and crop expectations are much improved over recent years.

Irrigated corn production was forecast at 476.6 million bushels, 15 per cent above last year. Farmers intend to harvest 4.1 million acres, an increase of 11 per cent over 1976. This acreage represents nearly two-thirds of the acres to be harvested for grain. Yield was forecast at 116 bushels per acre, four bushels greater than last year.

Sorghum Production Down

Production of sorghum grain was forecast at 117.2 million bushels, down two per cent from 1976. Forecast yield per acre stands at 20 bushels, equal to that of 1975 but two bushels below 1976. Acreage for harvest is up one per cent from 1976 at 2.13 million.

Soybean Production up Sharply

Soybean production was forecast at 34.6 million bushels, 66 per cent above the short 1976 crop but five per cent below the 1973 record production. The yield is seven bushels above last year at 27 bushels per acre. Acreage for harvest is the largest on record, at 1,280,000, or 24 per cent above last year.

Wheat Production Same

The Nebraska wheat crop is estimated as a record crop at 106.8 million bushels. The forecast remained unchanged from the previous month and 13 per cent above 1976 production. Yield per acre stands at 35 bushels, up three from last year.

Oats production is estimated at 36.4 million bushels, 35 per cent more than the 1976 crop. The average yield of 56 bushels per acre is a record high exceeding the previous high of 51 bushels set in 1971.

All May Production Up

Hay production in Nebraska is forecast at 7.3 million tons, up 18 per cent from a year ago.

More Cattle on Feed

Nebraska cattle feeders had 110,000 cattle on feed Aug. 1. The inventory was up seven per cent from 1976 and 24 per cent from the low level of 1975.

Feedlot marketing during July totaled 310,000, an increase of 12 per cent from a year ago and 41 per cent from two years earlier. Placements during the month numbered 305,000, a jump of 39 per cent from last year and 97 per cent from 1975. Both marketings and placements were at record levels for July.

Cattle in Seven States Up Three Per Cent

Cattle and calves on feed Aug. 1 for slaughter markets in seven states preparing monthly estimates totaled 6,866,000 head, up three per cent from a year ago and 16 per cent more than Aug. 1, 1975.

Marketings of fed cattle during July totaled 1,442,000, down five per cent from last year but 24 per cent more than 1975. The number on Aug. 1 was above last year in six of the seven states.

Placements of cattle and calves on feed in the seven states during July totaled 1,491,000, a record high for the seven states series. This is 28 per cent more than last year and 31 per cent greater than July 1975. Net placements for the month at 1,436,000 are 29 per cent more than a year ago and 32 per cent above July 1975. Other disappearance totaled 55,000 compared with 56,000 in 1976 and 51,000 in July 1975.

Soil Test Can Save Fertilizer Dollars

Fertilizer decisions for 1978 do not have to be made today — but they should not be put off until next spring, said district extension agronomist George Rehm. The first step in early planning for next year's fertilizer purchases should be taken this fall. A good soil testing program is the all important first step.

With farm prices at low levels, every farmer knows that it's important to keep production costs low. One way to do this, according to Rehm, is to apply no more fertilizer than is needed to produce maximum economic yields. At the same time, adds Rehm, farmers don't want to use a fertilizer program which is not good enough to provide for maximum net profit.

If soil testing is used, fertilizer recommendations are based on the amount of available nutrients in the soil. "This approach to crop fertilization is much more logical than using the same thing that your neighbor used or using the same amount of fertilizer that was applied last year," Rehm said.

Taking soil samples in the fall has several advantages, he continued. Farmers are not usually as rushed in August and September as in early spring. Results will be returned well before the planting season. This gives the farmer a great deal of time to decide on his 1978 fertilizer program. In addition, early planning allows farmers to estimate the cost of the fertilizer program as well as the total cost of production.

Fields that have been planted to oats in 1977 can be sampled now. Alfalfa fields as well as pastures can also be sampled now. Early fall samples can be taken from soybean fields just after harvest. Samples can be easily collected from corn fields soon after the harvest is finished.

Rehm reminds farmers it is important to sample for carry-over nitrogen in fields where row crops will be grown in 1978. Several farmers learned last year that their fields had considerable amounts of carryover nitrogen and were able to reduce the amount of nitrogen applied and thus reduce their fertilizer costs.

Collection of soil samples is not a difficult task. The boxes and easy-to-follow instructions are available at local county extension offices as well as the Northeast Experiment Station at Concord. If soil samples are collected this fall, time and frustration will be saved next spring, Rehm said.

DRIVING

We realize the styles tend to be a problem but we feel that the patrons of the school desire our students to be neat and modest in their dress.

PHYSICAL

The high school students who plan to participate in sports or take part in physical education should have a physical examination. You cannot participate without a physical. Get these physicals out of the way prior to school. You can pick up the doctor's forms at the school office.

Kindergarten students must have a physical. All 7-12 students not participating in athletics must have either a complete physical and an x-ray to participate in physical education or a notarized permit from the parents giving their permission.

STUDENT ATTIRE

Students are expected to come to school dressed in the proper manner. Such things as grooming and attire are of concern.

PUBLIC NOTICES

Every government official or board that handles public moneys, should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it showing where and how each dollar is spent. We hold this to be a fundamental principle to democratic government.

CORRINE MATTSON

$25 BBucks Goes To Wayne Woman

Corrine Mattson is the latest winner in the weekly Birthday Bucks promotion.

The Wayne woman won the $25 consolation award last Thursday night as a result of having the right birth date and being in the right place at the right time.

She was at Gambles Store when the winning birth date of June 26, 1949 was drawn by Pam Garrison of Wayne Vets Club and announced at 8:15 p.m. Corrine's birthday of June 11 was close enough to the winning date and as a result she got the consolation prize. Had her date matched the winning date she would have won the $750 jackpot.

Again tonight (Thursday) a lucky shopper will have a chance to win either prize by being present in a participating store when the date is announced.

You Are Required to Control Noxious Weeds on Your Property

Notice is hereby given this 18th day of August, 1977 pursuant to the Nebraska Noxious Weed Law Section 2-955 Subsection A, to every person who owns or controls land in Wayne County, Nebraska, that noxious weeds standing, being, or growing on such land shall be controlled by effective cutting, tillage, cropping, pasturing, or treating with chemicals or other effective methods, or combination thereof, approved by the County Weed Control Superintendent, as often as may be required to prevent the weed from blooming and maturing seeds, or spreading by root, root stalks or other means.

Upon failure to observe this notice the county weed control superintendent is required to proceed pursuant to the law and have weeds destroyed by such method as he finds necessary, the expenses of which constitute a lien and be entered as a tax against the land, and be collected as other real estate taxes are collected, or by other means as provided by law.

By order of the Wayne County Weed Control Authority. Located one mile east, Block South and Block East, Wayne RUSS LINDSAY, SUPT.
