

Ad Not Appreciated

A handful of Wayne merchants who got some free advertising last week in the Morning Shopper don't appreciate the favor.

The ad read "Attention Shoppers: To avoid being hit, run over or mutilated in downtown Wayne, shop Arnie's, Sav-Mor, Gibson's, Bills G.W., and Diers. Ad paid for by concerned citizens group."

The managers or owners of the five businesses mentioned all located outside of the downtown business district, disavowed any prior knowledge of the advertisement and were displeased that the ad appeared.

Arnie Reeg, owner of Arnie's grocery store, said "I had no knowledge of the ad and wouldn't consider doing something like this."

Dick Keigel, owner of Sav-Mor Drugs commented, "I would appreciate it if someone would contact me before using my name. Most outlying businessmen realize we couldn't get along without a strong downtown business district and we're all pulling for them (downtown businessmen) to have a good improvement project."

Marvin Brummond admitted to placing the advertisement, but said he is not against the downtown improvement project. "I simply feel that what was said in the ad is true," Brummond said, explaining that he thinks the downtown area is hazardous now because of construction work underway as part of a project to renovate the district.

Diers Supply manager Jerry Eureka also disclaimed prior knowledge of the ad, as did Bill GW owner Bill Luaders, who added he doesn't necessarily agree with the sentiments expressed in the advertisement.

Gibson's Discount manager Ken Soden was on vacation Friday, but assistant manager Jim Larson said the store was unaware that the ad was going to be placed, and said it "wasn't really appreciated."

Storm Loss Loans Available

Wayne County has been designated as an area where Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) emergency loans may be made to eligible farmers who suffered losses due to the hail and windstorm on June 30.

Applications for loans to repair or replace damaged buildings or equipment must be filed by Oct. 3. Interest rates on loans for replacement of the primary residence and personal property will be one per cent on the first $10,000, three per cent on the balance, not to exceed $40,000, and five per cent above $40,000.

The termination date for receiving applications because of crop production losses is May 3, 1978. Interest rates on loans to cover losses of crop production will be three per cent up to $250,000 and five per cent above $250,000.

Borrowers must be unable to obtain necessary credit from commercial sources and must have suffered a 20 per cent loss to a major enterprise. A major enterprise is one from which a farmer receives at least 25 per cent of his income in a normal year. When determining eligibility, all cash crops and all feed crops are grouped together as two separate enterprises.

LaVern Ostendorf, local FmHA county supervisor, said applications may be obtained from the FmHA office located in the USDA service center at 120 Logan Street in Wayne.

Trustee Board to Meet in Wayne

Progress reports on two building renovation programs designed to make state funds go further in educational programs at Wayne State College and Kearney State College will be among agenda items for the monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges at WSC Friday.

Dr. Lyle Seymour, WSC president, will report on the project to renovate the Humanities Education Building on the Wayne campus. Dr. Brendan McDonald, president of Kearney, will report on the project to renovate the former TB Hospital at Kearney as the center for the new Kearney nursing education program. It is the only college-based baccalaureate degree registered nurses education program in outstate Nebraska.

Review of the recommended budget for each of the four colleges will be a major item for consideration. A primary concern in the budget considerations will be for upgrading of faculty salaries as a part of the state college system program for academic excellence.

Review of the progress on the "Role and Mission" statements for the colleges will also be a major board item. In an introductory statement to the report, the "Role and Mission" Task Force chairman, Board member

Thone: Bill Should Strengthen Grain Market

Crop target and loan prices included in pending farm legislation should strengthen cash grain prices, Congressman Charles Thone said Wednesday during a visit to the Dixor County Fair in Concord, but he added the ultimate answer to achieving higher prices for grain is to do a better job in promoting exports.

The Republican Congressman, who represents Nebraska's First District, was a leader in a House fight to buck Administration opposition and achieve higher farm support prices.

Some details remain to be worked out on the House-Senate conference report on the farm bill, but crop support prices

NE Station Field Day Will Emphasize Crops

Visitors at the University of Nebraska Northeast Station Field Day Aug. 30 will have a good opportunity to visit with researchers about findings from individual research plots, according to director Cal Ward.

Major emphasis will be on crop production, Ward said, but stops at both the beef and swine research projects will be included on the tours. Three different tours of one to one and one-half hours each will run continuously throughout the day beginning at 10:00 a.m. and leaving from the Farm Operations Center.

Specific tours are as follows:

Tour A — weather station (related to irrigation scheduling), nitrogen rate on dryland corn, swine housing research project, irrigation well capacity and corn plant populations.

Tour B — soil test lab recommendations, soybeans planted in oat stubble, corn variety performance, beef feeding research project.

Tour C — corn borer control plots, soybean variety performance, corn rootworm, control plots, 2,4-D applications to corn.

Julian Canaday, chairman of the board of directors of the Northeast Experimental Farm Association, will report on association activities at a short program at noon.

Wheat Farmers Eligible for Purchase Pact

Farmers who hold 1976 crop wheat that is not under government loan are eligible to sign a purchase agreement with the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) according to Ralph Olson, chairman of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) Committee. A purchase agreement signed before Feb. 28, 1978, commits the CCC to buy 1976 crop wheat next March at the county loan rate," Olson explained.

The loan rate in Wayne county is $2.29 per bushel.

Under the purchase agreement, the producer may still sell the wheat on the open market before the March delivery date. In this case, the producer need only inform CCC of the sale, and the purchase agreement will be voided.

If a producer signs an agreement before Feb. 28, he may also convert the purchase agreement to an extended loan. If the agreement is converted, the wheat would move directly into the food grain reserve program, and the producer would be paid an extra 20 cents per bushel to cover the first year's storage costs.

NTCC Opening Fall Semester

Registration, a picnic, studying and the beginning of classes are all a part of the opening week of fall semester at North-east Technical Community College.

Group registration, for those who have not already registered, is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. According to Will Medow, dean of student services, approximately 813 students have already registered under NTCC's new registration procedures. He anticipates approximately 200-300 registrations during the two registration days, with more to come in during the first two weeks of school. Medow anticipates enrollment for the 1977 fall semester to be approximately 14-1500, the same as NTCC page 10.

An irrigation field day will be held on the Dennis and Harold Ekberg irrigated soybean field Friday at 1:30 p.m. The field is located three miles north, one west and three-fourths north of Wayne.

The field has had its soil moisture monitored by using buried gypsum blocks and a water meter installed on the pump.

Extension specialists will be discussing water use on the farm, irrigation practices, insect problems and cultural methods for producing top yield irrigated crops.

STRAYER Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

The happy camper has returned and frankly, it's been a long time since I was an Eagle Scout. I still know how to put a good edge on a knife, though. Didn't hardly feel it at all when I cut my finger.

Kay and I, plus her sister from Lincoln, and her "baby brother" spent the first couple of days of our vacation camping at Indian Cave State Park, 14 miles south of Brownville. It's a beautiful park located on the Missouri River with lots of wilderness hiking area, horseback riding, and the cave from which it takes its name.

The old eagle eye spotted a perfect campground right away and we pitched our tent and set up camp. What the old eagle eye missed was the sign which said "No Camping, Picnic Area Only."

Important Item

Rather than pack everything back into the car, we just struck the tent with our gear inside, and hauled the whole works about 200 yards to an area where camping is allowed. It went pretty smooth, except we lost a spring clip. It wasn't too important, just hooks the tent onto the frame which holds the whole works up. By then it was dusk, and old eagle eye was having trouble locating the clip. Little brother, 10-year-old Brian, however, proved adept at spotting small objects on the ground, including the missing spring and an impressive menagerie of toads.

Leaves of Three

The most embarrassing moment for yours truly came while walking barefoot in the woods near our campsite, looking for firewood. The undergrowth formed a comfortable cushion for bare feet, until sister Susie asked, "Doesn't poison ivy have three leaves?"

Sure enough, there I was, standing smack in the middle of three-leafed foliage. I headed back for the tent and started rummaging around in the first aid kit for some lotion. Just in case, but I failed to break out so I guess it wasn't the real thing.

Loveable Beggar

We made one new friend at the park, a big loveable old beggar of a St. Bernard. He got to our camp just after lunch but those big droopy eyes were irresistible. He polished off a bag of biscuits and half a jar of peanut butter before ambulating down to a group of picnickers. We thought he might be a stray, but it turns out he belongs to the park ranger and has the run of the park. Guess you might say he's Indian Cave Park's version of Yogi Berra.

The only drawback we found to a beautiful park was the lack of showers. We solved that problem at least partially with a water fight at the pump near our campsite. Aside from the lack of showers, it's a tremendous, scenic park, a real credit to the state and to the Game and Parks Commission. If you don't mind camping a bit on the primitive side, or carry your own facilities in a pickup or motor camper, it's a great place to spend some time outdoors.

Blessed Event

The remainder of our week away from home was spent in Fairbury and Lincoln Wayne area farmers, especially those with dairy operations, might be interested in one experience.

Fairbury Journal-News editor Randy Grosse and I are close friends and accompanied him on a weekend pig assignment. Fairbury dairyman Bill Schultz was so happy, he was almost passing out cigars. A four-year-old registered Holstein cow gave birth to triplet heifer calves. Odds of having triplet calves, Schultz said are one in 7,500, but the odds of triplet heifers are one in 60,000.

The frosting on the cake, however, is that the cow is one of the farmer's top producers, with an Excellent-91 rating and two, 20,000-pound milk records to her credit.

Not a Motion

Catching up on Wayne area news after we returned, I noticed that mayor Freeman Decker was allocated a little more authority, in print, at least, than he really has. He was credited with making a motion. No way. The mayor can suggest or ask for a motion, but he certainly can't make one.

Who's who, what's what?

1. WHAT family in Wayne will serve as local hosts for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon scheduled to air Labor-Day weekend?
2. WHAT is the third significant contribution Virginia Chapin-McCain of Winside has made to Wayne State College and the community?
3. HOW did Wayne State long distance runner Don Rishart finish among 84 runners in the second annual six-mile road race held recently at Norfolk?

4. WHAT examination did Shirley Kraemer of Laurel pass recently?
5. WHEN is the first annual old fashion threshing bee slated at Pierce?
6. WHO from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department recently completed the seven-week basic training course at the Nebraska Law Enforcement Training Center in Grand Island?
7. WHAT will Wayne County Jaycees participate in, beginning tonight (Monday)?

ANSWERS: 1. The Allen O'Donnell family. 2. She has donated $5,000 to Wayne State College to endow a scholarship in memory of her mother, Mrs. A.T. Chapin. 3. He finished third. 4. She has passed the state examination for nursing home administrator and has been issued a license by the Nebraska Department of Health and Bureau of Examining Boards. 5. Aug. 27-28 at the Julius Hoffmann farm two miles north of Hadar. 6. Wayne County deputy sheriff LaVerle "Curly" McDonald. 7. A three-day CPR class at Providence Medical Center.

A DIFFERENT KIND OF PART-TIME JOB.

There are many nontraditional jobs for women in the Army Reserve that pay a good extra income. Call your local unit for details. It's listed in the white pages of the phone book under "U.S. Government."

THE ARMY RESERVE PART OF WHAT YOU EARN IS PRIDE.

Long before the oil embargo of 1974, the automotive industry saw the need to conserve energy and began developing methods of using fuel more efficiently, says the Automotive Information Council. Just as product engineers are designing vehicles to be more fuel efficient, plant engineers are working to save fuel in their manufacturing operations.

One giant manufacturer estimates it has saved 30 trillion BTU's of energy in its plants in the past four years. That is enough energy to provide the total heating, light and other power for 150,000 homes for a year.

Many major companies have set up departments to find ways of conserving the dwindling supply of energy. They range from cleaning office buildings during the daytime to eliminating downtime between shifts when production equipment like paint ovens have to be kept running.

Another saver. Brake shoes and flange are cleaned in one washer instead of two. Steam and electrical energy consumption is reduced.

Some manufacturers have been re-covering and using waste heat. Exhaust heat from a casting operation is diverted to warm an adjacent building.

Computers are helping to manage energy flow. Central control systems automatically shut off equipment, lights, and heating units during slack times and on weekends.

Some companies are on a fuel hunt. One manufacturer owns a new coal mine in Kentucky and plans to start more. A tire company is drilling on its own property for natural gas. One well is supplying half the firm's daily needs in its headquarters city.

The big switch from oil and natural gas to coal is on stream. A tractor company in Illinois plans to reduce its dependence on gas 50 per cent by converting to coal. It is developing a smokeslack scrubber that will permit burning of high sulfur coal from its state. High sulfur coal is a notorious pollutant unless it is handled properly.

While the transportation industry is doing its utmost to curb energy use, those efforts represent less than half the battle. Consumer can do their part by more judicious use of energy in homes and automobiles. Watch the thermostat and observe the speed limits.

DRIVING

We realize the styles tend to be a problem but we feel that the patrons of the school desire our students to be neat and modest in their dress.

All students will register their cars and supply additional information on their motor vehicle. You may not drive your car to school unless it is registered, and there will be no driving of the cars during the school day without permission from the administration and from the parents.

Students are expected to drive in the proper manner and reports of careless and reckless driving before and after school will be sufficient reason to discontinue your driving privileges to school.

PHYSICAL

The high school students who plan to participate in sports or take part in physical education should have a physical examination. You cannot participate without a physical. Get these physicals out of the way prior to school. You can pick up the doctor's forms at the school office.

Kindergarten students must have a physical. All 7-12 students not participating in athletics must have either a complete physical and an OK to participate in physical education or a notarized permit from the parents giving their permission.

STUDENT ATTIRE

Students are expected to come to school dressed in the proper manner. Such things as grooming and attire are of concern.

Dixon Girl Receives Gold Medal.

A senior this fall at Allen High School, 16-year-old Shelley Prescott of Dixon, was awarded a gold medal for her speech Tuesday evening at Norfolk.

The speech contest was sponsored by the Norfolk Women's Christian Temperance Union and was held in the home of Mrs. Dora Werner.

Miss Prescott competed with three other contestants from Norfolk. Her selection was "The Temptation of Jesus, Luke 4: 1-40."

Miss Prescott, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Prescott, became eligible for the gold medal after receiving a silver medal during competition last summer at Laurel. She can now participate with other gold medal winners across the state for a pearl medal.

Survey Shows:

NEN Quail Populations Up 100 Per Cent

Small game hunting in Nebraska should be much improved this fall, judging by recent game population surveys, said George Schildman, the Game and Parks Commission's upland game biologist.

Schildman said that counts conducted by Commission personnel and rural mail carriers across the state show a state-wide increase in quail numbers of 36 per cent, in addition to a cottontail rabbit population "substantially higher" than last year, and pheasant numbers about the same as in 1976.

"The prime quail range in the extreme southeast remained predictably stable, with a modest nine per cent increase. We do not see large increases or decreases in the southeast from year to year, because this is the best quail habitat we have, and the birds are usually in pretty good shape there," he said.

Quail populations in east-central Nebraska showed a 32 per cent gain, while the north-central area was up 67 per cent and the central Platte Valley gained 12 per cent. In northeast Nebraska and the Republican Valley, where quail populations are recovering from very low 1976 levels, gains of 100 and 90 per cent respectively were noted.

Schildman was reluctant to pin down the increase in rabbit numbers to a specific figure. "Conditions for spotting bunnies were very poor during part of the rural mail carrier count, and undoubtedly prejudiced that survey on the conservative side. The counts done by our biologists and other field personnel showed a very substantial gain in rabbit numbers. On the basis of the biologists' data and the data from the days the mail carriers had reasonable conditions, I would estimate that the cottontail population could be 70 per cent above last year's," he said.

Surveys indicated that the pheasant population is about the same as last year, despite a popular belief that ringneck numbers are up, Schildman said. "The rural mail carriers saw 6 per cent fewer birds than last year, and our personnel counted one per cent more, so the two surveys tend to confirm one another. In the 33 years we have been using rural mail carriers for game counts, there have been only two years when that summer survey did not accurately predict pheasant populations that hunters found come fall. It is a very reliable indicator of our pheasant population."

The survey showed pheasants down 12 per cent in the southeast and central parts of the state, down 30 per cent in the Sandhills, and off 18 per cent in the Panhandle. The northeast and southwest registered gains of eight and five per cent, respectively.

Summer surveys on prairie grouse show a 25-per-cent decline, despite good range conditions in much of the Sandhills. Biologists speculate that severe and wide-spread hail in the Sandhills in early summer substantially damaged grouse reproduction.

Data from the summer surveys on pheasant and quail will be considered by Game and Parks Commissioners at their next meeting in Lincoln on Friday when they set seasons on these two species, on waterfowl and on furbearer trapping. Hunting seasons on rabbits, grouse and a number of other species were set at the July Commission meeting.

32 Gridders Report to Wildcat Camp

Enthusiastic and hard-hitting is how Randy Humpal describes his 32 gridders as they prepare for the Winside football season.

Ten lettermen help bolster the Wildcats nucleus which will center on a balanced running and passing game, according to the first-year head man.

Junior signal caller Paul Roberts, who has demonstrated to the staff that his quick thinking may overcome his stature (5-10, 155), will have a veteran line to pave the way for his offensive attack.

Up front are veterans Bruce Smith at center, Tom Koll and LaVerle Miller at guards, Brian Svoboda at one of the tackle slots and Ed Morris and Chuck Mann at ends.

In the backfield are Lewis and Clark All-Conference choices Bill Thomas and Mitch Pfeiffer. Thomas, a senior who earned and Jim Halferty noted. Humpal, who played his high school ball at Butte where he was a defensive safety and offensive end, will vary Winside's backfield by splitting the pro-set formation to give Winside the better run-pass option.

The coach figures that if his team stays healthy, his club will be in the thick of the heated West division race. Right now Wausa is picked by sports writers as the favorite, but Humpal believes the race will involve all seven teams, including newcomer Wakefield.

Agreement

TAKE EITHER

Two men discovered ether as an anaesthetic simultaneously — Crawford W. Long and William T. G. Morton in the 1840s.

WHY IS IT?

— a man wakes up in the morning after sleeping on an advertised blanket on an advertised mattress and pulls off advertised pajamas. Takes a bath in an advertised tub, shaves with an advertised razor, washes with an advertised soap, puts on advertised clothes, sits down to breakfast of advertised coffee, puts on an advertised hat, rides to his office in an advertised car, writes with an advertised pencil. . . Then, he refuses to advertise, says advertising doesn't pay, and then, if a business isn't good enough to advertise. . . he advertises it for sale.

If you believe in your business and want to build it. . .
