

Area Health Care Committee Planned

The Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency (GNHSA) is planning to form a subarea committee to serve 21 counties in Northeast Nebraska, according to subarea coordinator Bill Bigley.

GNHSA is one of more than 200 health planning agencies in the United States established under federal law. According to provisions of the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974, they are charged with correcting many of the deficiencies in existing health care systems.

The GNHSA was established in 1976 and covers about 60,000 square miles in 71 rural Nebraska counties. Its operating expenses are paid through a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, but the agency is incorporated in Nebraska as a voluntary, non-profit corporation and as such is not a governmental agency.

National Guard Open House Set For Saturday

Open house is scheduled for the Wayne National Guard (NG) armory Saturday from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m., according to administrative technician Dennis Spangler.

The public is invited to stop in, chat with Guardsmen and view equipment on display. The open house is scheduled as part of a recruiting effort, Spangler said.

Local NG recruiter Brad Wieland announced a new Guard program designed to attract college students to enlist. Local NG commanders have the authority to enlist college students as privates first class (E-3) rather than as E-1 privates as part of the current "Get Your Guard" recruiting campaign.

The new policy applies to men and women with at least two years of college who have not previously been in the armed forces. A guard official said the strength nationally of about 360,000 in the last year.

Wieland said the program will put more emphasis on getting college students to enlist because the reception on campuses now is more favorable than during the Vietnam fighting. The Guard also wants to increase the educational level of recruits, he added. It recently has been enlisting more recruits without a high school diploma than the Regular Army.

Towns Receive NPPD Payments

Five Northeast, Nebraska towns are among 228 Nebraska cities which recently received payments as a result of agreements leasing their electrical distribution systems to the Nebraska Public Power District.

Hoskins received $2,457.10, Dixon $749.45, Allen $3,385.57, Belden $1,437.50, and Concord $1,277.89. The money represents one-half of the annual payments made by NPPD under terms of the lease agreements.

NPPD operates the electrical system and makes all improvements and additions. It pays the community 10 per cent of the adjusted gross revenues realized within the corporate limits.

The money does not include the annual five per cent in-lieu-of-tax payments required by state law.

Local Telethon Collects $1,300

Wayne area residents contributed more than $1,300 over the Labor Day weekend to the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon, an increase of more than 500 per cent over local contributions last year.

The Allen O'Donnell family again this year headed up the local drive, with plenty of help from local youngsters.

"There is no question about it, the people of Wayne and the surrounding communities opened their hearts and their pocketbooks to the children suffering from muscular dystrophy and other types of diseases," O'Donnell said. The final tally reported Tuesday morning was $1,319.40.

The figure included $980.55 collected through telephone pledges, and $338.85 collected in a door-to-door canvass.

Helping with the door-to-door campaign were Jeri Langston, Lisa McNatt, Penny Page, Debbie Reeg, Bill Sperry, Aaron Woehler, Laura Keating, Vini Johar, Jassi Johar, Kevin McConnell, David Longe, Roger Pilger, and Denise Ahlvers, all from Wayne; Sheila Luedtke, Steve Luedtke, and Shelly Luedtke, all of Wakefield. They will all receive a free pass from the Gay Theatre in Wayne.

In addition to money collected door-to-door, 113 people pledged contributions to the fund raising drive.

Jerry Lewis collected more than $26 million nationwide before the telethon ended at 5:30 p.m.

O'Donnell thanked The Wayne Herald and radio station WJAG for publicizing the local drive, and the First National Bank in Wayne for flashing the telethon phone number on its display sign over the Labor Day weekend.

Heirloom Quilt Wins at State Fair

Years from now, when Cindy Garvin wants to reminisce about her high school days, she will have more than a school yearbook to turn to. She will have a hand made quilt with a square from each of her classmates.

Cindy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Garvin of Dixon, made the quilt for a 4-H home environment project in the "Heirloom Treasures" category. It won the 17-year-old 4-H'er purple ribbon honors at the 1977 Nebraska State Fair.

Although most people think of "old" when they think of "heirlooms," Cindy said she wanted to create an heirloom from scratch for herself and her classmates. "I wanted to have a keepsake of my high school graduation," she said, "and something to cherish over the years."

The result was a brightly colored green and white gingham quilt made of washable cotton polyester material. Each block has the name of one of Cindy's classmates, with an appropriate design of some activity typifying each of them. Included are a basketball and hoop, golf clubs, musical fret, cheerleader pom-poms and a valedictorian's graduation cap.

In the center of the quilt are words which strike a more serious note. "Not merely to exist, but to amount to something." Cindy, who has been a member of the Dixon Belles 4-H club for nine years, said this was her first attempt at quilting. "When it was done, I was really pleased with the way it turned out," she said, "only next time, I'll quilt it by hand instead of machine."

group with guitar entry earned a purple. The club will appear on a taped program tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. on the Nebraska Educational Television Network.

Food exhibit entries earning purple or blue ribbons include: three-jar exhibit — Margie Vahlkamp, Winside, purple; peanut butter cookies — Brenda Wessel, Wayne, blue; Bachelor Bob cookie for hike or bike trip — Mark Borg, Concord, purple; Mark Muller, Wakefield, blue; better breakfast quickbread — Jill Hanson, Concord, purple; John Stapleton, Allen, blue; baked quick loaf bread — Annita Frischon, Concord, purple; Carla Johnson, Wakefield, and Marvin Hansen, Wayne, both blue; entertainment plan — Carla Berg, Winside, blue.

The Wayne County Pleasant Valley club earned a purple ribbon in the 4-H promotion booth competition. The Dixon County Pops Partners earned a blue ribbon.

A Dixon girl, Anna Borg, won two blue ribbons in forestry display competition, one in the classification requiring samples of winter twigs, leaves, and seeds and another for her leaf print scrapbook.

Home environment category winners include: Luncheon set — Loree Rastede, Concord, purple; Do You Remember? — Illustrating art — Kathy Stage, Laurel, blue; Illustrating a country — Anita Sandahl, Wakefield, purple; "Thigamajigs and Doodads" textile accessory — Lynette Hansen, Wayne, and Sheila Gramlich, Carroll, both blue; storage unit or item — Paula Chace, Laurel, purple; article made or finished — Terri Melema, Wayne county, blue; newly made or refinished — Cindy Garvin, Dixon, purple.

Care Center Addition Approved

Final approval was granted Sept. 1 for an addition to the Wakefield Health Care Center.

Bert Casaral of the State Health Department division of hospitals and medical facilities said the division board had met and concurred with the recommendation by the Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency in favor of granting the request.

Federal regulations require Health Department review and approval for additions to health care facilities.

The decision clears the way to add a 20-bed wing to the existing 42-bed nursing home, adjacent to the Wakefield Community Hospital.

Hospital and health care center administrator Russel Swigart Thursday said negotiations had been completed with one property owner for part of the land on which the addition will be located. Negotiations with a second property owner are not yet completed, he said, adding that he does not foresee any difficulties in acquiring the necessary real estate.

The Care Center Board has been interviewing architects, Swigart said, and it is hoped ground for the project can be broken in the spring. At the earliest, the new wing will go into operation about a year from now, the administrator added. At the latest, it will probably open in January 1979.

The additional rooms were proposed in response to demand, according to Swigart. He said the nursing home has had a waiting list of 25 to 30 applicants for several months.

Estimated cost for the addition is $260,000. About $200,000 would be financed through municipal revenue bonds with the remainder available from funds now in a savings account.

Swigart said the addition will be relatively inexpensive on a per bed basis because support facilities such as the kitchen in the existing care center will be adequate to serve residents in the addition.

The city-owned Wakefield Health Care Center went into operation on Jan. 21, 1975. Since then a $30,000 loan for equipment has been repaid. About $395,000 in indebtedness remains on some $310,000 in revenue bonds which financed the original construction.

District 17 Student Roster Shows Drop

Enrollment in the Wayne-Carroll School District for the school year which began last week is nine below last year's total and 50 below the 1975-76 number.

Total enrollment this year is 923, according to figures compiled by schools superintendent Francis Haun.

The 1976-77 total was 932 and the 1975-76 total was 973.

There are more seniors in high school this year — 104 — than last year, but other high school classes are smaller. Comparative totals, with the 1976-77 figure appearing first, are: freshmen, 101, 95; sophomore, 107, 100; juniors, 106, 101.

In all, there are 400 high school students now enrolled, compared with 395 last year.

Middle and elementary school totals are below last year's figures. The Carroll elementary school has 23 students; two less than last year. Numbers in this year's classes are: kindergarten, 4; first grade, 8; second grade, 3; third grade, 8. There are no fourth graders at the Carroll School.

The West Elementary School total is 244, compared with 252 last year. Current numbers are: kindergarten, 44; first grade, 66; second grade, 34; third grade, 45; fourth grade, 55.

For the two elementary schools combined, there are only 48 kindergarten students this year, compared with 72 last year, while there are 74 first graders this year, compared with 40 last year; 37 third graders now compared with 53 a year ago; 53 third graders compared with last year's 52, and 55 fourth graders compared with 60 a year ago.

The Middle School total now is 247 compared with 252 last year. Compared on a class by class basis, with last year's totals first: fifth grade, 46, 53; sixth grade, 56, 47; seventh grade, 78, 68; eighth grade, 72, 79.

There are also nine trainable mentally retarded students enrolled in the school system this year.

Food Service Classes Set

Two Food Service Program workshops are planned for September and October in Norfolk, O'Neill and Wayne.

The workshops are co-sponsored by Northeast Technical Community College, Providence Medical Center and the O'Neill Public High Schools.

"Introduction to Quantity Food Preparation," Unit 5 of the Food Service Program, will be offered weekly, Sept. 12-26 at NTCC, Sept. 14-28 at Wayne, and Sept. 17-24 at O'Neill. This workshop is designed to give basic information about standardizing recipes, portion control and work simplification.

The second workshop, "Purchasing Food and Equipment," Unit 10, will also be offered weekly, Oct. 1-8 in O'Neill, Oct. 3-24 at NTCC, and Oct. 5-28 in Wayne. The program will focus on purchasing forms and records, written specifications and buying procedures for both food and equipment.

The locations and day and time schedules are the same for both workshops. In Wayne, the workshops will be held at the Providence Medical Center, Wednesdays, 2-5 p.m., in O'Neill at the Public High School, Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Monday evenings, 7-10 p.m., at NTCC. A minimum of 10 students at each location is needed for each workshop.

The Food Service Program is designed for food service personnel working in restaurants, schools, hospitals, nursing homes, or anyone else interested in food service. Instructors for both workshops will be Nancy Hoffmann, R.D., Consulting Dietician for area nursing homes and hospitals, and Marie Maas, Food Service Assistant Director at the Norfolk Regional Center.

Persons interested in enrolling in these workshops should contact Lydia Drda at NTCC for further information, or to pre-register.

Wayne County Included In 10-State CD Exercise

A statewide test of the Civil Defense (CD) warning system will be conducted on Oct. 4 according to an announcement made by local CD director Pat Halley.

In a number of communities throughout the state, sirens will sound and in other locations broadcasting stations which are a part of the Emergency Broadcast System (EBS) will broadcast a special message when the "warning" is received. The general public is not expected to take any action during this exercise.

The outdoor sirens will sound when the simulated attack warning is received. In an actual attack, the warning signal, a three to five minute wailing tone, means people should go immediately to the nearest public fallout shelter or take cover in the best protected location in their homes or place of work. The sirens in Wayne will sound for only one minute for the test. People would also be encouraged to turn on their radios and listen for essential emergency information.

The exercise will begin with a message from the Civil Defense National Warning Center located at the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) Headquarters near Colorado Springs, Colorado. The message, which will go to ten states, will inform "the recipients" that a "checkerboard" exercise is in progress. "Checkerboard" means that the exercise is for a simulated attack on the United States.

The message will be received at the state and local warning points simultaneously via special telephone lines that are part of the National Warning System. Warning points will pass the "Checkerboard" to officials and organizations on their alerting lists.

Mayor: Reward Still Stands

City property has been subjected to a continuing onslaught of vandalism and theft, according to Wayne mayor Freeman Decker, and he is hoping local citizens can help stop the destruction.

The city council previously approved a $300 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone responsible for stealing or damaging city property, Decker reminded, and the offer still stands.

Vandalism has been particularly expensive for city taxpayers recently, Decker said, pointing to the recent spray painting on the city water tower. It cost the city more than $3,000 to have its two water towers painted, and now it will cost another estimated $200 to $300 to have obsolescences either removed or painted over.

In addition, Decker pointed out, there has been a rash of vandalism to street signs, often apparently run over by cars, are pulled out and stolen. Each sign costs the city about $40, Decker said.

He urged anyone with information about such acts to contact the Wayne police department. Information will be kept confidential, he said, and informants can collect the $300 if their reports lead to an arrest and conviction.

Street Widening Okayed

Deadline pressure and other complications caused the Wayne city council to abandon plans for an improvement project this fall on south Main St.

The council, meeting in special session Friday night, decided against going ahead with a proposal to install new curb and gutter on Main St. from First St. south to the point where concrete paving previously installed by the State Department of Roads (DOR) begins.

The DOR is now planning to cover the brick Main St. from the concrete paving, north to Seventh St. Tentative starting time is early in October and some council members said they thought the deadline would not allow sufficient time for the south Main St. project.

The project plan grew from a proposal presented at a regular meeting to smooth out Main St. where it had been patched up after railroad tracks had been removed. City administrator Fred Brink proposed leveling out that section of street before the asphalt paving overlay is completed, to avoid a hefty bump in the street.

From there the council decided to see if it would be feasible to install new curb and gutter on south Main St., and scheduled the Friday special meeting to review plans and specifications so advertising for bids could begin as soon as possible, with the hope that Gill Construction, now involved the improvement project in Wayne's downtown business district, would take on the south Main St. project.

South Main St. businessmen also attended Friday's special meeting to learn what effect the project would have on them, if it had been approved. They were informed that the city could not include new sidewalk with costs assessed to property owners, without forming an improvement district.

Councilman John Vakoc said he could see no way the city See STREET, page 10

Grocery Store Expansion Planned

Some details remain to be worked out, but an addition is planned to Bill's G.W. grocery store at 517 Dearborn St. in Wayne.

The city council Friday approved a request to vacate an alley, clearing the way for an addition on the south side of the existing grocery store building.

City administrator Fred Brink Friday said his information indicated a 50-foot addition is planned, with a portion-to-house a laundramat.

Store owner Bill Lueders Tuesday said an addition is definitely planned. The grocery store will be expanded, he said, including some additional freezer cases, but nothing is definite regarding other businesses to be located in the building.

Lueders said, he will be the owner.

The council approved the request to vacate the alley with provisions for utility easements and that Lueders bear any costs for moving electric lines.

Penalties, Fumbles Aid Cards over Devils, 28-0

By BOB BARTLETT
Invading South Sioux City snapped a 19-game losing streak that stretched over two seasons Friday night when the Cardinals took advantage of 130 yards in penalties against Wayne, two costly Blue Devil fumbles and a pass interception to rack up a 28-0 shutout.

The Cardinals of second-year coach Dave Lee pounced on two Wayne miscues in the first half for a 12-0 lead and proceeded in the second half to pick apart the Devils' secondary for a 62-yard touchdown bomb.

Card signal caller senior Kurt Anderson rifled the long shot to his favorite receiver, senior split end Tom Voss, who grabbed the ball over the outstretched arms of Wayne's Brad Emry and took the ball into the endzone for an 18-0 lead with 6:28 remaining in the third period.

Two minutes later South Sioux made the score 20-0 when the Cards pushed the Devils deep in their territory with the aid of 20 yards in penalties, catching quarterback Tom Ginn in the endzone.

Penalties, pointed out head coach Stew Cline, hurt his Blue Devils. "There's really no excuse, except perhaps I just haven't got the job done," the first-year head man said.

Cline concluded that perhaps his squad isn't as good as he earlier thought, but he doesn't feel that Wayne is out of the running towards a good season. "Some people really showed that they are players who won't quit. This squad will show what kind of character it has when it plays Blair Friday," he added.

Lost the Handle

RUNNINGBACK Kelly Hansen (30) loses the handle on the football as a South Sioux defender attacks from behind and strips the ball out of Hansen's hands during the closing minutes of first half action Friday night. Troth: We Have to Work On Passing Game to Win

Working on the serving game will be the next step for coach Gary Troth and his Allen Eagles, as they prepare for their fourth match of the young season Tuesday night at Ponca.

Serving has been the one area the Eagles have fallen down, the first-year coach pointed out after his troops lost to Wynot Tuesday night 7-15 and 12-15 in the first round of the Wynot tournament.

Allen did come back to claim third place with 17-15 and 15-4 wins over Macy for its first win in three matches. Freshman Lisa Erwin dished up seven points and senior Cheryl Koch had 11 in the first win.

"Our floor game looked pretty good, but we did have problems serving," Troth said.

Allen opened the season last Thursday night at Winside, but ran into some stiff serving by Krisi Duering and spiking by Paula Hoemann and Kathy Thomas to fall 15-10 and 15-2.

The Eagles also had their share of problems in the reserve and C team games, dropping both.

Rest of Allen's schedule:
September — 19 at Bancroft, 26-27 at Newcastle.
October — 4 Winnebago, 11 Newcastle, 18 at Homer, 20 Walthill.
Roster:

Almost Perfect

TEN YEAR bowling veteran Linda Janke opened the season last week with an amazing 286 game. The Wayne kegler who average 165 last season, put together 10 strikes to record her best game ever. She also rolled games of 188 and 157 for a 631 series. For her efforts, Mrs. Janke received a $200 check from Red Carr, who offers $200 to any female bowler who rolls a 279 or better in league play, and a watch from the BPAA.

'Bago Stuns Allen Eagles In 16-14 Win

Upset-minded Winnebago pulled the victory of the night in the tough East division of the Lewis and Clark Conference Friday night with a come-from-behind 16-14 nipping of host Allen.

The Indians used a seven to nine-man front line on defense to cool down the Eagles' potent running attack, then went to its ground game in the second half to score both touchdowns and a pair of two-point conversions.

After a pair of touchdowns were nullified on a clip and fumble, Allen regained its strength in the closing minutes of the first half to put six points on the board. Quarterback Tod Ellis lofted a five-yard pass to Kevin Kraemer after Ellis hit Bart Gotch for a 45-yard aerial to keep the drive alive.

Trailing 16-8 with :22 left in the game, coach Cliff Jorgensen's club whittled the lead to 16-14 when Ellis rifled a 40-yard strike to Greg Carr for the TD and Brent Chase took the ball in for the extra points. Allen's attempt to get the ball back on an onside kick failed.

Poor punts in the second half hobbled Allen's chances of getting out of its territory and consequently setup Winnebago's scoring drives. "We made some foolish mistakes which really hurt us, but I guess I have to take the blame for some of those," Jorgensen said.

Chase led Eagle runners with 51 yards on 11 carries and also was the top defender with 20 tackles and two assists.

Scrappy Portwood Pilots Wakefield To 24-6 Victory

Sophomore Von Portwood ran for two touchdowns and threw for another Friday night to lead Wakefield to a 24-6 victory over visiting Wausa.

Playing from his halfback position, Portwood unloaded a 12-yard aerial to Blaine Nelson to tie the score at six apiece with about five minutes left in the first half.

Portwood turned on the speed in the final stanza with two ground attacks for 12 points and finished the night with 69 yards on 11 carries. A 15-yard play by the scrappy, 140-pound runner early in the third put coach John Torczon's Trojans ahead 18-6. Portwood capped a 47-yard march late in the game with two tates for 24 yards.

Wausa took the lead 6-0 on the second play of the first quarter after Wakefield coughed up the ball on the 30-yard line and eight plays later the Vikings scored on a one-yard plunge by senior Raymond Rogers.

Wakefield's defense, led by Craig Nelson, Blaine Nelson, Chuck Sherer, Verdet Ekberg and Tony Henschke, put the clamps on Wausa's scoring from that point.

A fumble recovery by Jeff Simpson in the third quarter set up Wakefield's go-ahead touchdown. Quarterback Todd Swigart found Dean Miller all alone for a 17-yard pass and a 12-6 lead.

Cantaloupe, a variety of the muskmelon, with a sweet and fragrant taste, originated in Asia.

The flesh of a cantaloupe may be salmon, pink or green colored. The salmon color is the most prevalent.

Sweetness, fine texture and pungent aroma are the characteristics of a good cantaloupe, and are found only in well-matured melons. It is difficult to distinguish a ripe melon, however, there are two clues worth observing. The outside or netting should be well raised, coarse, and grayish. The stem-end scar, where the melon was attached to the vine, should be slightly sunken, smooth and well-calloused. When half the scar is only slightly sunken and the other half is rough, the melon was picked at "half slip," or before it matured on the vine. The melon should have no soft spots in the skin.

If melons are ripe, refrigerate. Melons can be stored at room temperature until ripening is complete.

Cantaloupe can be frozen. Use firm, ripe melons, and cut in halves. Scoop out the seeds and peel. Cut into three-fourth cubes or balls. Place in plastic bag or freezer container. Seal, label, and freeze. Serve before completely thawed. Melons become mushy if completely thawed.

Thought for Today
By Rowan Wiltse

"The whole art of teaching is only the art of awakening the natural curiosity of young minds for the purpose of satisfying it afterwards."
Anatole France

Human beings have a habit of doing what we like to do and putting everything else off as long as possible. So it is with learning. Youngsters who detest multiplication tables can hardly be kept from learning how to ride a skateboard.

There is some purpose connected with every school subject. . . some advantage to be gained from it. The best school teachers know this and inspire the desire to know more in their students, thus making the learning process easier.

It's best that you get to know us before you need us. Won't you stop in and get acquainted? No obligation.

 In addition to granting authority to commanders to award E-3 rank to college students, the program allows accelerated promotion to corporal or specialist four (E-4). Students with three or more years of college may be promoted to E-4 upon completion of six months service. Those with a college degree may be promoted to E-4 after four months service. College students who enlist under the program must take basic and advanced individual training and meet the qualifications for their particular military occupation.
Health —
 control policy for the agency. Between 51 and 60 per cent of the body must be health care providers. Board members serve without pay except for travel expenses.
 The agency's most important job, according to GNHSA officials, is to assure equal access to high quality health care at a reasonable cost. It will attempt to consolidate and eliminate weak, ineffective programs which directly affect rising health care costs.
 It is also responsible for recommending approval or disapproval of applications for new health services or medical facilities projects. For example, the GNHSA project review committee and then its governing board recently reviewed a request by the Wakefield Health Care Center for a 20-bed expansion before recommending that the State Health Department approve the request.
 The subarea committee planned by GNHSA will be responsible for recommending services needed within its boundaries, assessing health service resources in the area, recommending priorities regarding specialized needs of the area, advise the GNHSA on ways to discourage unnecessary programs and to encourage coordination of services, and assist in integration of health care planning.

 A public hearing is scheduled for Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk to begin organizing the subarea committee. The meeting will be in the McClay Building on the NTCC campus.
 Counties served by the subarea committee will be Wayne, Dixon, Antelope, Boyd, Boone, Brown, Burr, Cedar, Cherry, Colfax, Cumming, Holt, Heya, Park, Knox, Madison, Nance, Pierce, Platte, Rock, Stanton, and Thurston.
 The GNHSA is soliciting names of candidates from each county to serve on the committee. Both consumer and health care provider candidates are needed.
 Agenda items include election of an interim chairman, introduction of the Northeast Nebraska subarea coordinator and a description of his duties, a report on the status of the subarea committee, and a question and answer period. The meeting is open to the public.

Citizens group claims victory in state aid referendum drive

CAPITOL NEWS
LINCOLN — The Citizens for Lower Taxes organization has claimed victory in its efforts to force onto the 1978 general election ballot a vote on the 1977 law that would increase state aid to schools by $60 million over a three-year period.

The group needed 45,130 signatures to place the question before the voters and named in more than 63,000. Some of the names will be declared invalid for not satisfying legal requirements. Even so, it appeared to longtime statehouse observers there would be enough to suspend the law until the voters have spoken.

Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus, who was among those who spearheaded the petition campaign, immediately called for the State Board of Equalization to trim the sales tax from 3.5 to 3 per cent.

The tax was raised one-half per cent recently to generate the funding that the 1977 school aid law would have required. Governor James Douglas vetoed the law as enacted, had promised he would ask the board of equalization to roll back the sales tax, if the petition drive was successful.

Exon said later he may recommend that this year's one-half per cent sales tax increase be returned to Nebraskans in the form of a 1978 tax reduction.

He said he will present his proposal to the equalization board in November if current revenue projections hold up. The governor also said he may suggest a reduction in the tax rate at the November meeting.

The extra half per cent in the sales tax rate will raise an estimated $10 million to $12 million between July 1 and Jan. 1.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly has suggested that revenue should be impounded, pending the outcome of the referendum vote. But Exon said it would be better to give the people a break than place the money in escrow.

Senator Gerald Koch of Ralston and several education leaders have also suggested it might be advisable to work for an end to all state aid to schools in an attempt to point up how much the state's contribution affects property tax rates.

Koch admitted the idea sounded negative. "But obviously the people don't realize the relief state aid provides to the property tax," he said.

Exon said the action Koch advocated would be irresponsible and recalled Exon supported raising the aid from $35 to $55 million during the 1973 legislative session.

The State Education Department said it would seek an attorney general's opinion on how to distribute this year's aid payments.

Al Bielen, the department's finance director, said the department is guessing a successful petition campaign would eliminate the $20 million planned for this year in increased state funding and also the distribution formula set out in the 1977 law.

Bielen said the department will probably have to revert to last year's distribution formula but that it wants some advice from the attorney general on just how to proceed.

Stadium Proposal
 In a couple of years there may be another 8,000 seats in the University of Nebraska football stadium, which currently accommodates about 76,000 fans.

A citizens group studying expansion ideas voted 4-2 recently in favor of adding the 8,000 seats.

That proposal will be presented Sept. 9 to the Board of Regents.

Coach Tom Osborne cautioned against building more than 8,000 seats. He explained that "everybody knows it's human nature that people tend to go with the front-runner."

Nebraska could experience a 35 to 40 per cent attendance drop if the Cornhuskers had several losing seasons, Osborne said. But he quickly reminded the study committee he isn't expecting that to happen.

Athletic director Bob Devaney who initially opposed a stadium addition, said he changed his mind this spring when a "market test" brought in 20,000 advance ticket requests.

Devaney said the funding mechanism would have to be worked out but that a $1 per ticket surcharge appeared to be a likely possibility.

It will cost about $400 to finance each new seat.

Former State Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, who was chairman of the citizens group, opposed its recommendations. But he said he would present them "with objectivity" to the regents.

The group also voted to have the regents ponder the advisability of adding 1,450 seats to the enclosed VIP section in the pressbox area. Those seats could be expensive and would be sold on a subscription formula similar to the one utilized when the present VIP section was constructed.

Tax Receipts
 According to a University of Nebraska business publication, Nebraska's net general fund tax receipts during fiscal 1977-78 should exceed $500 million for the first time.

The university's Bureau of Business Research said the estimate was based on separate forecasts by the university and the Nebraska Revenue Department.

The department predicts net tax receipts totaling $529.6 million, a bit higher than the bureau's estimate of $512.2 million.

The bureau said the main reason for the difference in the forecasts was the variance in projected gross sales and use tax receipts and noted the forecasts were prepared on the assumption that a 3.5 per cent sales tax and an 18 per cent income tax would be in effect during the year.

It cautioned that agencies and individuals making revenue forecasts keep in mind the volatility of Nebraska's farm sector. If farm prices remain depressed farm income will decline and this will have an adverse effect on non-agricultural sectors, the bureau said.

Sales and income tax revenues could also fall below expectations if the farm economy doesn't brighten up, the bureau said.

Potential Nominees
 The next election is some months off, but the political pot continues to boil.

Lincoln attorney Don Stenberg recently announced he is a Republican candidate for nomination for the office of lieutenant governor.

It's likely he will have a lot in competition.

Three state senators, Donald Dworak of Columbus, Herbert Duis of Gothenburg and Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia are thinking about getting into the race.

A former state senator, P. J. Morgan of Omaha, has said he has been under some pressure to get involved, especially by Republicans who believe having an Omahan on the ticket would give it balance and strength.

Morgan says, however, he is 95 per cent sure he won't be in the race.

Dworak had frequently been mentioned as a potential candidate but has said he might shoot for the First Congressional District nomination if Congressman Charles Thorne doesn't seek re-election.

Duis, who has been in the legislature 13 years, reportedly is talking about the race privately.

Rasmussen thinks his farming and ranching background would strengthen the GOP ticket. He said he will not announce his plans until late November.

Woman Appointed
 A Burwell woman has become the first of her sex appointed to the State Game and Parks Commission.

She is Shirley Meckel who was named by Gov. J. James Exon to succeed Kenneth Zimmerman of Loup City whose term expired.

"Mrs. Meckel is an avid hunter and fisherman and is keenly interested in our continuing development of our state parks," Exon said when making the appointment.

Improvement Program
 Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln predicts that Nebraska's new correctional improvement program could have "a very long-range historical impact."

During a daylong session to inaugurate the program, more than 75 persons were briefed on the history of corrections in Nebraska.

The legislature appropriated more than $1 million for the project which provides for examination of several areas of correctional services, including inmate labor, activities, health care, community-based facilities, chemical dependency aid, staff training and program planning.

Support urged for ERA

Dear Editor:

This is addressed to women. I do not care who you are. You can be fat, lean, black, yellow, white, or purple. I don't care what religion you are. I don't care whether you come from the upper or lower side of the tracks. You are a woman and since the beginning of time immemorial you have had to fight for the rights that you now possess.

The majority of you have fought silently from within the home to be treated as a human being. A minority of you have been more vocal publicly and so the spotlight has fallen on your shoulders. A few of you have even fought to prevent the great mass of womanhood from ever having any lawful rights whatsoever.

In Washington, D.C. on Feb. 27, thousands of you marched down Pennsylvania Avenue in support of the Equal Rights Amendment on the 75th anniversary of women getting the vote. (There was a time, gals when some of you tried to prevent that.) Two suffragettes in their 80s marched the entire 45 minutes and linked arms with women half their age. God bless those two far-sighted little old gals — for they are truly women.

Ever since Eve gave the apple to Adam (and he, poor ignorant soul took a bite) you have been maligned. You have been and are still being sold in many parts of the world. You must wear the veil in many parts of the vast lands of the Arabians. You are confined to the home in many other lands of the old world and used only for child-bearing or work. You have been told so often throughout the ages that you are evil, that some of you actually believe it.

The Equal Rights Amendment isn't only for you here in the United States. Oh, yes, it will benefit only you before the law courts. But, it speaks to all women in all nations telling them that they, too, can someday be as free as you are. It gives them courage, faith and hope that their lives also can be bettered. They will look to you for guidance in the future in the fight to liberate themselves. If American women can gain this freedom, these other less-fortunate women will feel they can unlock their chains one by one in their far-away lands.

I hate to admit it, but a great many of you fail to do any footwork on this ERA issue even though you secretly back it. You sit placidly by and listen to the minority — the verbal women — harangue you on the issues pro and con. You allow them to do your footwork and sway your opinions. Then once you take a point of view, you hold it to forever. I am asking all of you to take another look at the amendment now. It is so short, beautifully said, and so very simple. It says simply that you will have equal rights under the law of this great land.

It does not say you will share rest-rooms with men. It does not say you will be inducted into the army. It does not say you must throw away your bras and girdles. It does not say any of the things its opponents are saying that it says. It simply says you will have equal rights under the law.

Men in this country (especially the vast majority of the legislators) would gladly pass this bill but they are afraid of you — the women who speak so vehemently against it. They are afraid for their jobs. They realize this bill will free them, too, from the ancient prejudices of the past — that they and they alone must bear the responsibility of decision — making on vital issues.

All women, whether you work in the home or at a job, have benefited from this push to bring equal rights under the law to all women. I have worked for 25 years outside the home. I have experienced the vast changes (in salary and attitude) that this movement has brought about. I have worked beside men for one-fourth the salary in the Fifties to almost par with them today. It has not been an easy battle, but slowly and surely, women have been striding forward.

Now the Equal Rights Amendment is hitting snags in its passage through the legislatures of the land. Concerned women are again having to work for equal rights under the law in attempting to get this amendment accepted. Some issues are vital: A majority of women feel that they should not have to go to court to request guardianship of their own children if their husband dies. They feel these children are theirs; they gave them birth, and as the man does not have to do this if the woman dies, neither should the woman. Also, women feel that if the husband dies, they should become the full inheritor of what together as man and wife they have earned. If the woman dies, it is the man's. If he dies, the woman has only one-third — the rest is the children's. These are only a few of the rights this bill would straighten out. It would also straighten out men's rights — the right to raise the children if a mother is incompetent and proven so in a divorce settlement. Many mothers — face it gals — are not fit to raise their own children. If the mother is not fit, let that stable, wonderful guy she married raise them if he is the more capable. Rights concerning pension and Social Security benefits would be straightened out also. Let us both — man or woman — have equal rights under the law.

I cannot understand why some of you are afraid of these equal rights. I cannot fathom why you allow elements of this movement to be mocked. One feminist does some silly thing like burn her bra on the court house steps in some urban city and you shake your head and laugh as newspapers report it and say, "See, that is what those radical women liberals are doing. I don't want any part of that." Why do you allow one woman's indiscreet act to detract from the vital issues of this amendment — equal rights under the law?

I, as a woman, mother, homemaker, and worker, have waited years for equal rights under the law. I have heard of countless times where a woman was left almost destitute because her husband had not made a will protecting her against her own children. Fundamentalists point to the Bible and quote where it says "Women are subject to their husbands." I ask you to look and study one of the greatest teachers of all time — Jesus Christ. Study what he said. We are all one in his eyes. He came to change the law, not to stamp it unchangeable. We are human beings and as such should have these equal rights.

Okay, so you are still against it. Then at least do this. Begin questioning, thoroughly these women who are trying to defeat the ERA. Don't sit placidly by and allow them to say anything to defeat this bill; make them prove what they say. They are tampering ideologically with your human rights. They are interpreting these words of the amendment as they see fit. Question them.

I hope sincerely that all of you will take another reasonable look at this amendment. I know if more of you would give it more concentrated and intelligent thought, you would throw the power of your voices behind it. I know that in the end, "right will prevail." Thank you — A wife, mother and job-holder of Northeast Nebraska.

OBSERVATIONS

Limit should be enforced

Councilman Vernon Russell and this writer haven't been known for throwing kisses at each other, but, unbeknownst to the public, we have engaged in civil conversation on numerous occasions, and even find ourselves in agreement on various issues from time to time.

One such issue is expenditure of municipal funds in excess of $5,000 without advertising for bids. The law is clear on the subject: bids are required for expenditures above the $5,000 level, and the law should be complied with.

The responsibility for compliance ultimately lies with the council. It is elected to make city policy; the administrator is hired to carry it out. If the administrator fails to comply with regulations, it is the council's decision to provide direction to correct the situation.

The issue is less clear cut where expenditures of less than $5,000 are concerned. Deciding how much authority an administrator should have is a ticklish question. Requiring prior council approval for every expenditure necessary for day to day operation of the city government would unnecessarily bind the administrator's hands, resulting in costly inefficiency. At the same time, a governing body abdicates its authority when too free a hand is given.

That it is difficult to draw a line was evidenced by the council's vote on a proposed ordinance to limit to $2,000 expenditures which the administrator could authorize without prior approval of the council. The tally was split evenly, with one council member from each ward voting for and one voting against the ordinance.

We suspect the administrator possibly would not have found the law all that distasteful. It would somewhat limit his ability to carry out his professional duties, but at the same time, it could eliminate responsibility for making some decisions, bouncing the ball back in the council's court.

Hypothetical example: the city has an opportunity to obtain a quantity of 10-inch sewer line for $4,000, a considerable savings over normal prices for the amount involved. The administrator knows the city is going to need the pipe for a project scheduled to begin in a couple of months. He can save the city some money, but the decision must be made today.

Obviously, a special council meeting cannot be called every time a situation arises calling for a $4,000 expenditure. Should the administrator buy or not buy?

To the average taxpayer, $4,000 is a sizeable chunk of money. At the same time, the decision probably isn't a major one of an administrator charged with responsibility for a city with a $4 million budget. It's one of a myriad of details he handles every day. But a $2,000 limit would mean he doesn't have to decide. The responsibility is off his shoulders, at the taxpayer's expense.

It makes sense to leave such every day decisions up to a well qualified administrator — and we believe Wayne's administrator Fred Brink certainly falls into that category.

At the same time, the taxpayer is entitled to a careful review of administrative actions and when elected officials think changes are needed to best serve the public, direction should be provided.

Regarding city expenditures, careful scrutiny of claims is called for. The $5,000 limit for expenditures without advertising for bids must be enforced. That may prove costly for the city in some cases, but it is the law, and little latitude exists for circumventing it. — Jim Strayer.

Revenue Committee Schedules Hearing

A public hearing to be held by the Unicameral's Revenue Committee has been announced by committee chairman Orval Keyes.

According to Keyes, the hearing will be held at the Villa Inn in Norfolk Sept. 21 at 7:30 p.m. Senator Keyes indicates the Norfolk hearing is a "test" hearing. "I want to give people the opportunity to talk to the Revenue Committee in person, and the only way to do that is by holding meetings but if the Norfolk hearing isn't well attended I am going to assume people aren't interested in talking to us." Keyes went on to say "this may not be a fair way to decide these things, but the hearings cost tax dollars to run and requires a financial sacrifice on the part of the Senators. I won't waste either to just go through the motions for appearance sake."

Keyes indicated hearings in Scottsbluff, Ogallala, Broken Bow, Columbus, McCook, North Platte, Grand Island and Beatrice will be held in October if the Norfolk hearing is successful. An agenda for the Norfolk hearing will be announced next week, according to Keyes.

While lawns are fertilized in early September, most plant material shouldn't be. Strawberries, fruit trees, ornamental shrubs and trees may not survive the winter if fertilized in late summer.

Don't prune plants in late summer or early fall. Wait until the severe weather of winter has passed before you prune. Pruning plants not either results in new growth which is winter killed or the back on the newly pruned wood.

WINTER PROTECTION OF PLANTS

It won't be long before freezing temperatures so it's time to consider which plants require winter protection. Roses and strawberries are two plants which require protection.

Winter injury is caused by the drying out of plant tissues or from direct low temperature injury. Regardless of the cause of the injury, tissue turns brown or black when injured.

Mulching can reduce the chances of winter injury. For roses one of the best mulches is loose crumbly soil that drains well. Don't use a heavy, poorly drained soil such as clay for mulch. After freezing temperatures have defoliated the plant mound up the soil around the base of the plant to a high of 10 to 12 inches. Soil from the rose bed should not be used for mounding the plants. Bring it from another spot in the garden.

After mounding, thoroughly water the rose bed. As a substitute for soil, one can use loose compost or aged sawdust. Don't use leaves, grass clippings or any type of materials that exclude air which will promote disease. Once the mound is frozen, you can provide additional protection by covering it with straw or evergreen boughs.

For climbing roses, mound as above. One can protect the long canes by laying them on the soil and covering them with three or four inches of soil, straw, or evergreen branches. The more winter-hardy climbing roses can be wrapped with burlap, heavy paper or other materials that insulate them from the winter box and the cold winds.

Grain Loan Rates Increased

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has raised the national loan rates for feed grains (barley, corn, oats, rye and sorghum). Wayne County ASCS director Ray Butts said. The increases are effective immediately.

Below are the new loan rates and those previously announced for the 1977 crop and the 1976 rates. All figures are stated per bushel.

Crop	New Rate	Previous Rate	1976 Rate
Barley	1.63	1.50	1.22
Corn	2.00	1.75	1.50
Oats	1.03	1.00	.72
Rye	1.70	1.50	1.20
Sorghum	1.90	1.70	1.43

According to acting Secretary of Agriculture John C. White, the action was taken in response to the "severe cost-price squeeze that is now adversely affecting many farmers." The raises are identical to those stipulated in the proposed 1977 Farm Bill currently before the Congress.

USDA's Commodity Loan Program is administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) through its county offices. Producers who have already put their 1977 crop feed grain under loan can obtain an additional disbursement, based on today's announced increase, by contacting their county ASCS office.

The loan rates for Wayne County are as follows: corn, $1.97 per bushel; grain sorghum, $3.20 per hundredweight; barley, $1.55 per bushel; oats, $1.01 per bushel; rye, $1.62 per bushel; soybeans, $3.41 per bushel; wheat, $2.29 per bushel.

Vaccine Distribution Stalled

Officials at Norden Laboratories, Inc. in Lincoln are finding that winning federal approval two months ago to sell their pseudorabies vaccine interstate was just the first step in making it available to all segments of the nation's swine industry.

Perhaps just as important is the debate now underway on the definitions of the words "exposed" and "affected" livestock.

A new proposed set of rules designed to help prevent the spread of pseudorabies probably will be published by Oct. 1 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS). According to Dr. John W. Walker of Hyattsville, Md., APHIS senior staff veterinarian.

"We feel we're getting down to the nitty gritty now," he said in a telephone interview. "There will be some extensive rewording of definitions, expanding on the ones we have."

The rewriting resulted from comments received from and consultation with several swine industry representatives. Walker said. Most recent were objections submitted by purebred breeders Aug. 9 during a meeting with APHIS officials in Des Moines, he said.

As originally proposed by APHIS in the May 27 issue of the "Federal Register," livestock would be classified as having been exposed to the viral disease if they had been in contact with an affected or vaccinated animal, or had been vaccinated with a pseudorabies-live, weakened or inactive virus.

It defined as affected livestock any animal that has reacted positive to an official pseudorabies test or from which pseudorabies virus has been isolated, or which has been diagnosed as having the disease by a veterinarian.

Under the original rules, animals judged by a serum virus neutralization blood test to have been exposed to or affected by pseudorabies would be prohibited from crossing state lines, except to be transported to market. Pseudorabies, or Aujeszky's Disease, attacks the central nervous system of swine, its natural host, as well as other livestock and wildlife. It can cause high mortality in suckling pigs and impair the reproductive performance of sows by decreasing fertility and causing fetal death.

Although refusing to speculate on details of the new proposed rules, Walker said the "very hard" original definition of an exposed animal likely will be eased somewhat.

"I can't go into specifics now because we're still evaluating the comments we've received paragraph by paragraph; anything I'd say wouldn't be the final product," he said. "But I do hope we can get these (rules) out within the next month."

After they are published, Walker said, the public will get a second chance to comment upon them—this time probably for about 30 days. Few changes are anticipated, though, because of the extensive reworking the originally proposed rules are receiving, he said.

The original definitions "would have effectively limited use of the vaccine in interstate feeder pigs and breeding operations," said Dr. Al A. Lidolph, director of Norden's Quality Assurance Division. "It would have been like placing an embargo on the product."

The reason is that the company's vaccine, called PR-Vac, contains a modified-live strain of the pseudorabies virus, according to Dr. E. Thomas Thurber, Norden veterinarian and research clinician.

USDA officials have warned farmers to carefully consider whether to use the vaccine because pseudorabies antibodies in vaccinated swine produce blood test reactions identical to those of infected pigs.

Lidolph said he expects some "softening" of the originally proposed rules, with a distinction made between infected pigs and vaccinated swine that are blood tested negative for pseudorabies before they receive the shot.

"The (originally) proposed regulation provides no relaxation of restrictions for vaccinated swine, and in fact penalizes those who vaccinate by classifying their swine as exposed animals and then advertising that status by requiring ear-punch identification," he said.

"This would greatly reduce the financial incentive to vaccinate and undercut the effectiveness of one of the primary methods of reducing the incidence and spread of pseudorabies," Lidolph said.

Walker said the possibility of making such a distinction is "certainly one of the things we're looking at," although he declined to predict what differentiation, if any, will be made.

Lidolph said he is encouraged by what he called increased sales of and minimal restrictions on the vaccine in the 20 states currently authorizing its use, and said it could have an impact on the future federal rules. Those states are Arkansas, California, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

"Basically, a state permit to sell the vaccine is required, and it must be dispensed by a qualified veterinarian," he said. Most states also stipulate that the vaccine be used only in endemic or high risk areas, and require that Norden submit monthly sales reports to state animal health officials, he said.

In Nebraska, regulations currently state that producers can obtain the vaccine only from a licensed veterinarian, who must see VACCINE, page 5

Savings Is Field Day Catchword

A dozen research sites, most emphasizing various facets of crop production, were at the Northeast Station at Concord Aug. 30.

Savings, both of farmer's incomes and natural resources, was the catchword of many of the field day's speakers.

With dwindling fossil fuel supplies, the days of "cheap nitrogen" fertilizers soon may be over, said Dr. Dewin Penas, district extension soils specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. He said more efficient application of nitrogen to crops will be forced by lower supplies and higher prices.

"Certainly, there are acres where we have growers with a buildup of nitrogen in their soils, and they can cut back on nitrogen use," he said. "But they shouldn't do it without testing their soil."

"Of the total amount of money spent for fertilizer, most is spent for nitrogen," Penas said. "Therefore, it's important that nitrogen recommendations for all crops be accurate."

He noted that previous University tests have shown that accurate nitrogen recommendations can't be based solely on surface soil. Subsoil samples also should be taken, at least to two- to three-foot depths, he said.

Penas said samples should not represent more than 20 acres of land. Between 15 and 20 surface soil samples and five to eight subsoil samples should be taken, he said.

Summer sidedressing of nitrogen fertilizer for row crops usually has proven to be superior to fall or spring applications, regardless of chemical form, Penas said. He said the difference is more apparent at lower application rates.

"Not only has this been noticeable in the year of application, but the carryover nitrogen effect has been greater than with earlier application times," he said. "Thus, losses are minimized by delaying application to a time when crop roots are actively absorbing nitrogen from the soil."

Researchers said increased irrigation of non-sandy soils in northeast Nebraska has been responsible for two new projects.

An irrigation scheduling hotline now is in operation in Wayne County, utilizing a weather station erected at the Northeast Experiment Station, according to Jud Morin, UNL district extension irrigator.

Two other scheduling hotlines where we have growers with a buildup of nitrogen in their soils, and they can cut back on nitrogen use," he said. "But they shouldn't do it without testing their soil."

Each irrigation scheduling system utilizes information to provide telephone data on crop water use, he said. Morin said the weather station monitors total wind run, maximum and minimum temperatures, solar radiation and relative humidity.

The information is fed into the University's Agriculture Computer Network (AGNET) to calculate actual consumptive water use.

Morin said the $1,500 station has a 20- to 30-mile radius north to south, and a 40-mile radius east to west.

Another irrigation study in its first year is designed to determine if corn plant populations should be matched to the pumping capacity of the well to provide maximum profits, said Dr. George Rehm, district extension agronomist at the Northeast Station.

He said three water application rates—400, 600 and 800 gallons a minute—are being tested on a 20-acre cornfield. It appears that 22,000 to 24,000 plants per acre are needed for profitable center pivot irrigation in the area, he said.

Rehm said data so far indicate that about 75 per cent of the corn seeds planted emerge as plants. He said he has a "hunch" that the plants emergence rate may be related to speed of planting, and said he recommends planting seed at 4 1/2 m.p.h.

In livestock operations, it appears that hogs can be reared more profitably in modified open front finishing buildings than in conventional energy intensive, environmentally regulated buildings, according to Jerry Jensen, livestock technician at the Northeast Station.

He said tests last winter indicate that the modified open front structure, which has no heaters or fans, has a wider temperature range than an environmentally regulated building.

High temperatures in the modified open front building average 64.7 degrees F. compared to 70.8 degrees F. in the environmentally regulated building, while lows were 47.1 and 65.6 degrees F. respectively.

But Jensen said there was little difference in performance of pigs raised in the two structures, with feed efficiency being identical and average daily gains only .04 pounds less in the modified open front building.

The research indicates that pigs can "climateize themselves to a larger range of temperatures than first thought," he said.

"Our objective is to raise pigs with the least amount of outside energy," Jensen said. "We'll use that extra energy to keep ourselves warm instead of the animals."

Research results on several insect pests that can damage a producer's profit picture seriously also were prevented.

SPOTLIGHT ON WEEDS
BY DON C. SPITZ, WAYNE CO. EXTENSION AGENT

DESCRIPTION — Hemp dogbane is a member of the milkweed family and may be confused with common milkweed during the vegetable growth stage. It is a perennial and reproduces by roots and seeds. Hemp dogbane initiates growth each year from crown buds or from roots. The above ground portions are the results of one year's growth.

The foliage is bright green in color during the growing season changing to a yellow-brown in the fall. The tough, smooth stems are erect and branches near the top give the plant a bushy appearance. Smooth, oblong leaves are opposite on the stems, and have very short petioles. Small greenish-white, bell shaped flowers are produced in dense clusters which generally are at the ends of the branches.

Flowering occurs from late June through August. Each flower produces two brown, slender, sickle-shaped pods which may be two and one-half to four inches in length. The pods produce about 200 small, spike-shaped, reddish-brown seeds which have a tuft of soft, silky hairs at one end.

CONTROL — In corn fields, use one quart of 2,4-D plus 1/2 pint of Banvel after September 10th until Dogbane leaves turn yellow. Dogbane in small grain stubble can also be treated in September.

SPECIAL REMARKS — Dogbane is difficult to kill so plan to treat two or three years in a row. 2,4-D is much more effective with the Banvel. When dogbane leaves have turned yellow, treatment will be of little value.

HEMP DOGBANE

Natural Drying Recommended

A combination of unusual weather conditions and insect and disease difficulties could create a two-pronged problem for farmers this year.

Farmers are faced with the choice of late harvest to reduce drying costs, versus early harvest to reduce losses due to corn borer and stalk rot damage.

Weather conditions have pushed the corn and sorghum harvesting season up two to three weeks, meaning that harvest may start in September.

Dr. Thomas L. Thompson, professor of agricultural engineering at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, urges farmers to leave the grain in the field a few days longer, allowing it to dry naturally before harvest. September temperatures are warmer than the usual harvesting temperatures and may cause problems in low temperature and natural air drying systems. The warmer temperatures may cause some of the grain to spoil in the bin if the system is overloaded.

On the other hand, many Nebraska fields are severely infested with European corn borer due to the cool, moist conditions experienced during August. "First and second generation was heavy and an unusual third generation is underway," said Dr. David Keith, UN-L Extension entomologist. "If farmers allow the corn stand to dry down in the fields, corn borers cause more stalk breakage and ear droppage." If the ears fall, the combine cannot pick them up and the fallen ears are lost.

Keith advised farmers to go into the fields now and evaluate each of them, harvesting the most heavily infested fields first.

Chairman of UN-L's Department of Plant Pathology, Dr. Michael G. Boosalis, and Extension plant pathology assistant Jack Riesselman pointed out that Nebraska could suffer much stalk rot damage, which causes the decay of the inner part of the stem, starting low on the stalk and moving up. "This makes the plant very susceptible to wind damage," they said. "You run the risk of a higher incidence of stalk rot if you let it dry in the field, especially if you have high plant populations that favor stalk rot."

Riesselman suggested the short to mid-season grains be harvested first, as they are more susceptible to stalk rot. The long season, late-maturing grain should be harvested last.

Thompson had two recommendations for farmers in harvesting this year's crops: If possible let the grain dry more in the field. Don't fill the grain bins as full, allowing for more air for the amount of grain.

The agricultural engineer said that most natural air drying systems are designed for October and November temperatures, and that the warmer September temperatures will cause the grain to deteriorate much faster. The solution is to put more air on drier grain.

"The probability of grain deteriorating above an acceptable limit more than doubles with each 10-degree increase in the average daily temperature if you don't have enough air flow," Thompson said.

A good rule of thumb is: for each two per cent increase in moisture, the dry matter decomposition doubles. There is twice as much spoilage, or twice as much air flow is required. If harvest is accomplished 15 days earlier, the air flow must be doubled," Thompson said.

He said farmers may also have difficulties if they decide to take their grain to an elevator for drying. "If the farmer has a load of grain harvested at the end of the day and waits until the next morning to take it to the elevator, there can be some grain deterioration caused by sitting in the truck overnight."

There is a bright spot, however. "If a farmer could put two to three feet of grain in his bin, then let the top dry to 18 per cent moisture, then put another two to three feet on top, his chances of doing a good job without excessive spoilage are higher," he said. "The higher temperature, the slower he should go. It will take about two to five days to dry, depending on the conditions."

An energy-saving alternative to drying the grain in an air flow drier totally would be drying it to 20 per cent in a propane high speed dryer, then putting the grain in the bin and finishing with natural air drying, Thompson said. "The farmer would increase the capacity of his high temperature drier and use less fuel." The specialist pointed out that natural air drying takes more management, but less fuel.

An emergency procedure if drying and bin capacity is unavailable is to pile the grain on the ground. Continuous aeration is required to maintain grain quality.

"Last fall we stored 5,000 bushels of 18 per cent corn in an outside pile with no reduction in grain quality. The pile was unloaded in late February."

He stressed that these measures should only be used in feed grains for livestock.

Boosalis expressed concern for Nebraska's grain storage situation, noting that an outcome of piling grain on the ground will be moldy grain, given Nebraska's warm and moist conditions. These grains may be toxic and can be harmful to livestock.

Vaccine —
administer the shot, according to Dr. Norman Kruse, state veterinarian.

"In my position as state veterinarian, I don't recommend anyone's vaccine," he said, "but use of a vaccine in outbreaks or dangerous areas will certainly cut down the incidences of the disease in the state."

Dr. E.A. Butler, state veterinarian in Iowa, said the vaccine is recommended for use only in endemic areas or farms where stock come near infected animals.

"I certainly don't recommend the vaccination of feeder pigs at this point, although we might in the future," he said.

But in Indiana, state veterinarian Dr. Lowell Hinchman said a new regulation that probably will take effect Sept. 15 will require that all imported feeder pigs be vaccinated within seven days after arrival.

Since there is no provision in Indiana for importation of vaccinated pigs, he said, the state's feeder pig buyers and dealers will pay the approximately $1 million vaccination bill on the 700,000 feeder pigs entering the state annually.

Hinchman said the regulation was adopted to "curtail the small islands" of infection and "reduce the amount of pseudorabies virus" present in the state. He said seven states have been "indicated" with selling pseudorabies-infected stock to Indiana producers.

In a letter submitted recently to APHIS acting deputy administrator Dr. G.V. Peacock, Norden proposed new definitions for exposed and affected livestock.

Lidolph said the new terminology would classify exposed livestock as those that have been in contact with an infected animal or were located on a pseudorabies-infected farm. Affected livestock would be those animals that have been diagnosed as having the disease by a veterinarian, as well as any non-vaccinated swine eight weeks or older that has reacted positive to an official blood test or from which the pseudorabies virus has been isolated.

In addition, he said, Norden proposed a definition of vaccinated swine as any unexposed or unaffected pig that has been inoculated according to label instructions with a USDA-licensed pseudorabies vaccine.

Under the proposal, swine in the vaccinated category would be permitted to be transported across state lines, Lidolph said.

As originally proposed, Lidolph said, the rules would restrict movement of breeding swine, but not of feeder pigs.

"The (original) regulation is inconsistent because it places no restriction on movement of feeder pigs, but requires that swine for breeding be (tested) serologically negative prior to movement," he said. "It imposes requirements that are inconsistent and ultimately ineffective for interstate movement or unexposed or unaffected livestock."

Lidolph said "unrestricted" movement of feeder pigs allegedly allowed in the original rules could contaminate breeding swine and mute another section of the regulations that requires serological testing of breeding stock 60 days prior to shipment.

"Since clinically normal feer pigs can be moved without restriction under (the original rules), it is apparent that there is ample opportunity for disease to be introduced during the 60-day interim between testing and shipment," he said.

To correct the alleged defect, he said Norden is recommending that the new proposed rule state that each animal be vaccinated not more than six months or less than two weeks before interstate shipment.

"This will provide an alternative that will permit the producer to ship unexposed or unaffected swine at considerably less expense than that required for serologic testing, and will provide a greater degree of assurance that the swine are not infected with pseudorabies at the time of movement," Lidolph said.

Thurber said statistical evidence backs up the company's request for a less stringent definition of exposed and affected animals.

In field tests on more than 3,400 pigs in 20 Indiana and Nebraska herds, the vaccine "significantly reduced" morbidity and mortality in swine already infected with pseudorabies, he said.

"These results indicated that within a four-day period, vaccinated swine develop active immunity that protects them from contact exposure, and that vaccination effectively limits an active outbreak of pseudorabies," Thurber said.

Further, he said, the tests showed that the vaccine virus was not transmitted from vaccinated to nonvaccinated animals because it is administered intramuscularly. There were no reports of adverse reactions or side effects as a result of the shots in any of the field trial herds, he said.

However, he said, the vaccine did not prevent pigs receiving the shot from being infected by the virulent virus for up to four days after challenge.

Intensive vaccination of swine could help "form a large number of protected populations that can starve out hotbeds of field infection," said Lidolph.
