Lowering the age of majority to 19 in Nebraska has contributed to juvenile drinking. Penterick said. High school age youngsters are more likely to have friends 19 who are willing to purchase liquor for them than they are to have friends 21 who will do the same.

The lowered age of majority also makes it tougher for liquor retailers to judge who is old enough without checking everyone's identification, he said.

In addition, it is tough to bring a case to court and congict someone for purchasing liquor See JUVENILE, page 10

Dick Glandt of Nortolk Livestock Market Inc. took an optimistic look at the coming year and said "1978 will be a better year for the cattle feeder than the past three or four years."

"How we handle-abe cheap feed situation will determine the upcoming year." he said. Although there are four per cent more cattle on feed in a seven-state area, Glandt doesn't believe that factor will hurt the beef market. "We have the lowest calf crop since 1970 which should help," he added.

A meeting Monday afternoon failed to close an apparent chasm in the ranks of Wayne senior citizens.

The meeting was scheduled in part to air possible complaints about Senior Citizens Center director Jociell Bull, but only one member of a so called opposition group attended and he offered little comment.

Dick Horton, who has previously appeared at city council meetings to complain about Mrs. Bull. said about 15 people feel they don't want to return to the center and instead meet twice weekly at a local cafe to play cards.

"In other words, we have a spiti in the center," city councilman Jimmie Thomas said. Thomas, assigned as liaison representative between the center advisory board and the council, added, "That is the quickest way to end the center."

He said he wants to know about complaints but pointed out that the Monday meeting had been publicized in The Wayne Herald and on KTCH radio, yet only one person attended the meeting to make known any grievances.

Horton said members of the splinter group "feel like they're treated like a bunch of kids who must behave."

Auxiliary member Mrs. Lyle Skov said there is an urgent need for volunteers to serve on these committees. Members and friends of the auxiliary are asked to contact the appropriate committee chairman if they would like to serve.

Mrs. Skov said there is still a need for items for the gift fable. Persons who would like to contribute articles, or furnish materials for others to work on, are asked to contact Mrs. Jean Benthack or Mrs. Carl Lentz. She added that new ideas for the gift table would be appreciated.

Three drawings will be held the day of the bazaar for a tree skirt, pillow, and crewel picture.

The last minute heroics' concocked by the Wayne State Wild-cats Saturday night were not quite enough to salvage a win as Dekota State hung on for a 7-6 verdict at Madison, S.D.
Caach Del Stotlenberg's team rambled 95 yards for their only score in the waning minutes after blowing previous scoring opportunities throughout the contest.
The big play in the touchdown drive was a 41-yard pass from freshman quarterback Rick Lade to Jeff Ingrum with 14 seconds left that set up a one-yard plunge by Bob Barry on the next play. A pass interference call-against Dakota State kept the Wayne drive alive and a 26-yard lob from Ingrum to Mark Johnson was also instrumental.

off.

"There was no doubt that we would go for two," said Stotenberg. "The fake extra point-play would have had a good chance of working had the centersnap been on target." The Wildcats earlier missed on opportunity to score when Kirk Gardner lumbled at the Trojan one-yard-line and the ball went through the end zone for a touchback. A Lade aerial that was intercepted in the end or a touchback. A Lade aerial hat was intercepted in the end cone was another costly error. Dakota State scored its touch-lown with about three minutes down with about three minutes left in the second quarter of 27-yard pass play from Chaffle Bliss to Marcus Willard. Bliss to Marcus Willard. Bliss was a dangerous force in the Trolan offense completing 13 of 26 passes for 190 yards.

The pass was the only type of offense that the Trojans could generate as Wayne's man-eating defensive linemen who held.

Stottenberg did not put the blame on the secondary people, however. "Secondary is one of the hardest positions to play and using the shotgun-like Dakota State did makes it even harder. The quarterback has more time to throw the ball and he can see his receivers better."
Barry rushed for 119 yards to boost his fourth-best conference total in that category. Ingrum nabbed five passes for 112 yards, helping Lade to 170 yards Augustana College Vikings held on for a 21-16 win over the Antelopes.

The South Dakota team jumped into a 14-8 lead early in the second quarter and the Antelopes had to play catch-up ball the rest of the game. Augustana scored on the last play of the first quarter after driving 46 yards in elight plays as quarter-back Dee Jay Donlin plunged the final yard for the TD. Kearney fumbled on the next play and it took the hosts just six plays later scored on a four yard run by O'Connor.

Kearney drove 73 yards in 15 plays as quarterback Kevin Roach lunged into the end zone. Paul Waggoner's extra point kick was good. Kearney recovered a Viking fumble on the Aug 24 and 36 before the half, but could not score.

A missed field goal was Kearney's third quarter scoring opportunity. The hosts took advantage of an 80-yard punt to put the Antelopes in a deep hole. A short Kearney punt gave up

A series later found the Anteiopes scoring an apparent touchdown on a 70 yard punt treturn by Fred Napple, but it was nullified when a teammate was called for blocking below the walst. The Anteiopes, however, rebounded and Roach found split end Steven Rohren wide open and hit him with a 44-yard pass on the second play of the last quarter.

Kearney kept the pressure on in the remainder of the game, but couldn't score. In the final minute of play, the Vikings took a safety and then had a free kick to keep the Anteiopes from blocking a punt.

IF THE requests for Wayne High thletic schedules is any indication of the umber of Blue Devil followers, then this ear should be a bumper crop for the Wayne High school principal Don Zeiss last week stopped in the Herald to pick up his third box of schedules printed by the backshop. Zeiss figures that he's ordered about 2,000 so far ... and the requests for more schedules keep coming in.

nave a whate of a reputation," Cline noted.

After Wayne unloaded a 14-0 win over Hartington Cedar Catholic last week and tied Blair 14-14 the week before, the coach felt that his team is on its way to showing fans just what kind of club Wayne really is. "I don't feel that we've even come close to showing what kind of potential these kids have," Cline pointed out.

THINGS looked better for prep pickers this past week. I and the dueling duo of Dave and Ray were right on the money picking all three winners in last week's abbreviated schedule of games for area teams.

With a 42-1 record over two weeks, Dave and Ray will go with these selec-tions: Waithill over Laurel, 14-6; Washer-Pilger past Wayne, 20-6; Allen blasting Ponca, 24-6; Cand Winside nipping Harting-field, 20-12, and Winside nipping Hartingtion, 14-12.

WAYNE STATE'S defense is sporting a new look, at least in the coaching ranks.
Defensive coordinator Raiph Barclay for sometime has displayed his handle-bar mustache, which has drawn a lot of, attention both from his players and fans who watch the burley flat-lopped coach pace up and down the sidelines while he shouts at his troops. Now his assistant, Doug Ratdke, has taken on a similar look by grooming his facial hair in the same-manner.

Why did Radike do it? "No real reason," the first-year grad assistant pointed out. "Just guess it's part of the lob," he added.

One good thing about growing it, though, it had Raiph's approval.

Mr. Ron Wecker Rt. 1 — Allen

Mr. Wecker was correct on 18 of 20 picks and predicted Dakota State 20 to 17 over Wayne State with the actual score 7 to 6. Ron's only miscues were Indiana's upset of Missouri and Idw's win over lows State.

The overall scored this week were much improved over the first contest (13 of 20 was tops last week!) Jim Winch of Winside was close behind with 17 of 20 correct and six entries had (16 of 20), nine had (15 of 20) and ten had (14 of 20).

The Missouri contest was missed by all but one entry, lowa State on all but three and Oklahoma State's loss to Arkansas was close behind. Nebraska was chosen on about 50 per cent of the entries.

Wayne Lass Wins Prize

Twenty two year old Deb Mrsny is the latest winner in the weekly Birthday Bucks promo-

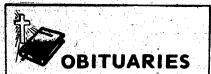

Mrsny is the tatest withen in meweekly Birthday Bucks promotion.

The young Wayne lass won the $25 consolation award last week after it was found out that her birth date was the closest to the winning date. Her birthday is April 19, 1955: the winning date was May 11, 1955.

Bill Richardson of The Morning Shopper drew the date at random. Deb was at Fredrickson's Oil at the time of the drawing. Had ther birth date been the same as the winning date, she would have won the $750 grand prize.

Birthday Bucks can be spent just like cash in any participating Wayne business. No purchases or registration are necessary to be a winner.

Another drawing will' be held tonight (Thursday) and the winning date announced at 8:15.

Petition Drive Succeeds

State Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus was in a good mood the day Secretary of State Allen Beermann announced offi-clally that the petition campaign to place the 1977 state aid to schools law before the voters was successful. Dworak, who helped spearhead the petition drive, said the number of names needed to place the issue on the ballot in-next year's general election was consi-derably higher than required. The successful effort to satisfy statu-tory requirements for getting the ques-tion before the volptes means the law will be suspended until after the citizens have had an opportunity to make their wishes known.

Nown.
One of the persons who worked hardest to have the aid law passed said money for the higher state funding must be collected, even if it can't be spent. Ross Rasmussen, executive director of the Nebraska State School Boards Association, said the petition drive dealt only with distribution of the money.

with distribution of the money.

He said he believes the extra $20 million the law would have given to schools must still be raised, even though it cannot be distributed. This means, Rasmussen added, the sales tax rate could not be reduced "because it is still necessary by statue to raise the $20 million."

The State Board of Equitization upped the sales tax one-half per cent to generate the extra funding required by the aid law.

But he said determination of who was responsible for the deficiencies would be "particularly difficult, if not impossible, since the work was completed more than a year ago." Rufledge did recommend to the Appropriations Committee that when a construction project runs into serious problems, someone higher in the administration should intervene to straighten out the matter.

He suggested a person with "a lot of clout," even the governor if necessary. The York facility was supposed to have some maximum security quarters but is suitable only as a minimum security building.

Sen. Sfeve Fowler of Lincoln, long a booster of "bottle bill" legislation said he may sponsor it again next year. But he said he would wait to see how the petition campaign is going before making a firm decision

He said he would also visit first with other senators who helped him sponsor the legislation in past years.

Lie Detector Tests

Two state senators have voiced objections to the proposed use of voluntary lie detector tests for witnesses who will testify before the special committee investigating operations of the State Patrol's criminal and drug divisions.

Sen. Jack Mills of Big Springs says he doubts That Legislature should get involved in such activities. He also wondered whether refusal to take the test would diminish the credibility of a witness.

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, a lawyer, said giving such tests would be better-if left in the hands of the executive branch of the government, specifically with the State Justice Department.

Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln sald no one would be forced to take the test. But he acknowledged testimony would pro-bably be given more weight if supported by favorable test results.

'Regulatory agencies endangering farms'

The plague of federal government regulatory agencies is endangering the famed production of U.S. agriculture and has become a major element of discouragement to this nation's farmers and ranchers.

In many cases, the intent of Congress is passing various and sundry enabling laws bears little relationship to the vast volumes of implementing regulations turned out by government lawyers and professional bureaucrars anxious to justify their positions and with little practical knowledge of the workings of the industry for which they are writing the rules.

A prime example is the current action in Congress to amend the Federal Insecticide. Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) which authorizes the Environmental protection Agency (EPA) to regulate the registration and use of agricultural chemicals. In late July, the Senate passed S. 1678 designed to make it even more difficult for farmers and ranchers to use agricultural people are well. aware of that the EPA has been capricious and arbitrary in its rulings, banning the use of long-established pesticide products with little consideration as to whether adequate substitutes are available or whether research had indicated a real need for the restrictions imposed. Meantime, tarmers see products on which they have relied for years suddenly removed from the market with no alternative product in sight. Bottles mar visit

Norfolk

Dear Editor:

Last Saturday afternoon and evening, we were first-time visitors on your beautiful Wayne State Campus. To say the least, we were favorably impressed with the City of Wayne, Wayne State College and the hospitality.

However, we were not impressed with the student section at the football game that evening. We were very disappointed to see bottles of liquor being openly passed around. I am sure this is a small segment of your student body and realize it is probably a difficult situation to control, but if did not enhance our image of the college and disrupted our enjoyment of the exciting game and the fine performance by the Crimson Cadets at half time. We have been on many other small campuses and this is controlled, at least partially, by campus police in the stadium and with "ino alcoholic beverages permitted" posted visibly.

I hope if will be your policy to attempt to correct this matter for the good of the college, fans and the students themselves before it gets ouy of hand and develops into serious troulle.

Yes, I am an "old fashioned" grandmother but many at the "chie" younger fans in our section expressed similar sentiments.

Thakk you for allowing me to "air my views."

Name withfield upon request.

Too many thumbs down prevent solutions placed on our institutions have carried our society — and the world — beyond the reach of human manageability.\(^1\)

World-wide inflation, food and energy shortages and the nuclear arms race are only a few of the problems they cite. I'm not prepared to accept the assertion that the world has become unmanageable. But if you think about it, and then observe this incredibly complex nation operation within a system that is often almost crippled by surreptitious pressures and arrangements, it's bound to send a chill up your spine.

And the chill up your spine will not to send a chill up your spine.

And the chill up your spine will not diminish as you observe the manner in which the nation has dealt with two great and imminent dangers that it faces today: the energy crisis and the economy. If you're a historian you may be led to recall the letter which the elder Henry Cabot Lodge sent to Tedd Roosevelt during the coal strike of 1902, in which he said. "Isn't there something we could appear to be doing."

But finally we have to face the fact that the paralysis of leadership is due in part to the unseen grip of the special interests. When you think of a top policy maker trying to solve one or another of these problems, you might think of a man trying to win a game of checkers. Someone leans over his shoulder and pulse a thumb on one checker, saying "Go right-ahead-and-play.—Just don't move this checker." Someone else leans over the other shoulder and does the same with another checker. A third person walks up and immobilizes another checker. And so on. Pretty soon it's all thumbs, no moves.

Think of the thumb as the special interests that come to play in almost every major government decision. The only unrealistic thing about the comparison is that in real life the thumbs are invisible. The owners of the thumbs don't really want to paralyze the whole process. Each just wants to immobilize one checker. But collectively they prevent a solution.

Is this really a sensible way to run

When the policital process becomes the play-thing of the special interests operating invisibly, the consequences fall upon virtually all citizens, consumers, taxpayers. Great problems go unsolved and no one can say why. Money leaks out of the pockets of the taxpayers, and we don't know where it goes. We elect people on promises and can't hold them to account. And we are the ones — citizens, consumers, taxpayers — who ultimately toot the bill for graft and corruption. Corruption, backroom fixes, secret deals — guite aside from their moral repulsiveness — finally create government that just doesn't work. Finally the "insiders" can't even save themselves. The intricately rigged system falls to serve even those who rigged it. The new Congress, which is generally thought to have a mandate to clean up our political system, has floated into office on a flood of special interest money. So there's still a grain of truth in the old saying that Congress operates by the Golden Rute: "He who has the gold makes the rules."

Congress is going to have to do some tough thinso. Considering the source of makes the rules."

Congress is going to have to do some tough things. Considering the source of campaign funds, one can see the difficulty Congress faces in doing any tough thing that offends the special inferests. —
John Gardner, Common Cause.

Business leader is against FTC proposal

Many of the government regulations under which business labors are subject to differing interpretation. That is, they're hard to understand. A rule will often appear to mean one thing to Congress, which passed the law delegating the rule-making power, another thing to the regulator agency which wrote it, something else to the business manager who has to comply with it, and still something else to the business manager who has to comply with it, and still another thing to the court which eventually hears an appeal on it.

Consequently, the process of clarifying the meaning of new-rules, or new interpretations of old rules, provides a lot of business for lawyers and eats up a lof time and money. It is not an ideal, system, but it works after a fashion. As long as the regulators are conscientiously trying to serve "the public interest," rather than indulging a desire to harass business, the costs to society remain within bounds.

But suppose a new player enters the game. Suppose any citizen gains the right to sue any business for violation of any one of the thousands of obscure government rules. And further, suppose the vigilante is empowered to collect damages not only for himself, but for everyone who has allegedly been harmed by the violation of the rule.

If three million consumers can be shown to have suffered "damages" of sleach, that is $3 million in damages.

Of course, no individual "victor" in this hypothetical case would recover more than $1. But, the lawyer acting for all of these affected consumers (called a "class") could make a bundle. And the company concerned would have to spend a bundle defending itself, whether it won or lost. Confronted with such a no-win situation, many, companies will choose to settle out of court, even when they aren't guilty of anything.

Such suits — called "class actions" — are possible now, but there are certain legal formalities that discourage abuse, of the system to harass a business.

Unfortunately, the Federal Trade Commission wants to eliminate these legal asfeguards and make class action suits easier. The Commission is asking Concerned for possible now, but there are certain supposition that house and $1.288 in the barte. The two bills in shelf the battle in Washington). In more formal terms, this legislation which would lead to an avalanche of real cases like the hypothetical one I have just described.

The bill is called the "FTC Improve

What I fear about the FTP proposal is that it would actually create a new class of shady operator — those who rip off legitimate businesses by filing frivolous suits against them, hoping to blackmail the business into a f

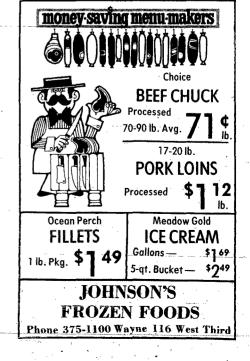

It is not difficult to find grounds for accusing an honest company of violating one rule or another, because the rules are often so complex that no on understands precisely what obeying them means. Let me give you a real example of the kinds of situation I'm talking about:

According to the Conference Board, the FTC has accused Borden, Inc., of having "monopoly power" over the market for reconstituted lemon juice, because Borden's brand, "ReaLemon," accounted for 75.3 per cent of such juice sold in 1974 (down from 88.7 per cent in 1969). Borden replies: that it does indeed have competition and the competition is gaining, as the figures show: and that fresh lemon juice competes with reconstituted lemon juice, and Borden has only 8.7 per cent of the market for all lemon juice, however derived.

Does a company in Borden's position deserve to have to pay damages to everyone who has ever bought one of its products? Should some clever lawyer have the right to make a quick fortune by collecting a fee based on a percentage of such damages? Can all consumers — as a class — afford to pay the increased cost of doing business that such suits would generate.

These are the real issues underlying the FTC's push to make class action suits easier. You be the judge. — Richard Lesher, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Thought for Today By Rowan Wiltse

"The communist, seeing the fine home of the rich man, says 'No man should have so much.' The capitalist, seeing the same thing, says 'All men should have as much'. ... 'Phelejs Adams Adams has captured the essence of the struggle of ideologies in the world today. Somehow, if seems easier to take away from the wealthy than to provide for all. Yet, if all the nation's wealth were distributed equally, we would not all be rich. ..merely unitornly poor.

This truth is recognized in the Soivet Union Where there is a greater difference in the earnings of labor and management than in America.

"Price forecasters seem to think that there is a good chance that slaughter cattle prices will be higher in 1978 than they have been this year — possibly in the $42 to $45 a hundredweight range," he said.

"Prices of feed grains and high protein feeds are almost certain to be lower than they were last winter." he added. "And a low corn price tends to favor the feeding of calves or lighter weight animals."

Henderson said if corn is priced at $1.75 a bushel, soybean meal remains at its current $150 a ton level, and slaughter cattle prices are about $42.50 a hundredweight, producers can afford to pay $46.35 a hundredweight for a 500-pound feeder call compared to $42.05 for a 700-pound steer.

Those break-even prices would permit feeders a $4 an hour return for labor and enough to cover fixed costs on lots and equipment used for cattle feedraska Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

As executive director, Kreuscher will be responsible for carrying out policies of the U.S. Deparlment of Agriculture in Nebraska's state and county ASCS offices.

Kreuscher has served as Nebraska's State Director of Agriculture since 1971, chairman of the Midwest Governor's Agricultural Committee, president of the Midwest Governor's Agricultural Trade Council, and has been active in marketing Nebraska agricultural products to both domestic and foreign markets. He also worked as farm editor of the Lincoln Journal-Star for 12 years, as a field representative for the American Polled Hereford Association for nine years, as fieldman and editor of the Polled Hereford World Magazine, and as an office manager for the Red Poll Cattle Club.

Kreuscher is a member of the Nebraska Hall of Agricultural Achievement, and has received the Medical Association's Distinguished Service Award, Future Farmers of America. He is a member of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America.

FIELD BINDWEED DESCRIPTION — F

FIELD BINDWEED
DESCRIPTION — Field bindweed is a perennial, reproducing by seed and underground rootstocks. The plant produces underground rootstocks which spread in every direction from the plant.
The true roots penetrate to depths of twenty-five to thirty feet. The stems are stender, two to seven feet in length, and have a prostrate or twining habit of growth. The leaves are ovate oblong, with acute basal lobes.
The flowers are white or pink, funnel shaped about an inch across. The capsules bear one to four dark-brown, coarsely-roughened seeds, which usually have one convex and two flattened sides.
CONTROL — In areas other than tropland, use one quarter 2.4-D plus one pint Banvel during vigorous fall growth or bud stage in spring. Avoid fillage five weeks before and one week after application. Plan to treat for several consecutive years.
In crops such as corn, bind-tive years. In crops such as corn, bind-weed can be treated at the bud stage in early summer with half a pint of 2,40 ester, plus a half pint of Banvel per acre. If corn is removed for sileage, a fall application of one quart 2.4-D plus a half pint Banvel per acre should be effective. Field bindweed can also be fall treated after rémoval of soybeans.

SPECIAL REMARKS — Roundup can also be used on field bindweed in the fall after row crop harvest on noncropland. In some tests, Roundup has been no better than 2.40 plus Banvel for field bindweek control.

Economists to Survey State

Two University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural economists will be conducting Nebraska's first annual farm real estate survey market in February 1978. Dr. Bruce Johnson explained that he and Dr. Ron Hanson will that he and Dr. Ron Hanson will survey farm real estate brokers, rural land appraisers and other individuals who are knowledge-able about the rural land market throughout the state.

Johnson said that Nebraska previously has had little to go on with regard to farm land value. "Twice a year the Department of Agriculture releases rural land value estimates but there is so much variation within the state that a general average for the state hat a general average for the state hat a general average to the state hat a general average to said.

Johnson added that in his and Hanson's survey, it is hoped that the estimates will be much more specific with regard to dryland, irrigated land and pasture land for the various regions in the state.

for the various regions in the state.

"We are patterning methods of survey after those that have been used in Minnesota and lowa with success for years. Minnesota has a vary lengthy questionnaire that measures land characteristics along with land values. However, lowa's questionnaire is much more brief, asking only basic information, but releasing it very quickly," Johnson expalined. He added that Nebraska's survey will be a "hybrid" of the two—more comprehensive thanlowa's but less lengthy than Minnesota's.

Johnson noted that since a

Johnson' noted that since a survey such as this will be dependent on the speed, with which results can be released, he hopes the figures: will be ready by around April 1.

"I hope that those who are asked to answer a questionnaire form will be degectentious about returning it as gürckly as possible. The survey will be successful only if people take the time to answer the form and send it back to us," he explained.

Dixon Belles

The Dixon Belles 4-H Club held its achievement meeting the evening of Sept. 12 at the Northeast Station in Concord.

Carolyn George led the games. The girls answered roll call by summarizing their year's activities in 4-H. They were reminded that record books should be furned in by Oct. 1.

It was announced that Anna Borg would be conducting a workshop Sept. 17 at the Station for 4-H members in Dixon County who wish to apply for county awards.

Nine quilts and the art of quilting were displayed and discussed. Cindy Garvin showed her graduation quilt, which received a purple ribbon at the Nebraska State Fair. Cindy and Adel Kessinger were recognized upon completion of their 4-H years.

The club will hold their organizational meeting Nov. 14 at 8 p.m. in the Sterling Borg home. Adel Kessinger served refreshments for the Sept. 12 meeting.

DON C. SPITZE

WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Wayne County is one of the five counties in Nebraska designated to take three or four 4-H leatlers to the North Central 4-H Leaders Forum session near Ames, Iowa. in the middle of November.

The purpose of the training is to provide knowledge on working with young people that can be taken back to the other 143 4-H leaders in Wayne County. We are fortunate in having an extremely large number of very capable 4-H leaders in the county, but additional training is always welcome and desirable.

4-H LEADERS

many counties compete in the event and competition is tough. Mike Finn of Carroll had an excellent junior leaders to the swine lessons to the 4-H'ers in the gave them a quiz on what the county, but additional training is always welcome and desirable.

This is an example of some good junior leader work.

Nov. 7 is the date of the annual 4H Leaders Banquet in Wayne County. This year the speaker is Dr. Wes Wingett of Norfolk. Dr. Wingett is in charge of the Northern Nebras-ka Cooperative Health Services. I became acquainted with Wes when I was county agent in Thurston County and he judged our 4H speech contest. Wes was a very active 4H'er when he was in Thurston County. He was on a 4-H soil judging team that won state honors and went on to compete in the national contest. We has long had a strong in-contest.

We has long had a strong interest in 4-H and should present a very interesting talk at the Dawn gave a demonstration on Dawn gave a demonstration on care, grooming and saddling a horse and received one of the few purple ribbons given in this division. The judge was especially impressed that a 12 year old could be as poised and confident as she was. MORE STATE FAIR

Dwight Anderson, member of Wayne County's State Fair 4-H dairy judging team, asked me before the State Fair contest if Wayne County had a chance to win. My reply was that everyone always hás a "chance," but I didn't really believe it. They didn't win, but came in third, only eight points out of first place. Other members included Jay Langemeier. Kita Wittler and Kurt Wittler.

is guess there was a lot of excitement in the Combination Kids Song Group at State Fair when they found out they would be on television. Their names weren't drawn out of a lot — but they had, to audition for a chance to appear on the program. Only seven of 50 song groups auditioned were chosen and the Combination Kids were one of them. They also received a purple ribbon in the State Fair—song contest.

When heart attack occurs, the feart stops beating and breathing ceases. The victim is clinically dead.

This is where CPR can save a life. If "cardiopulmonary resuctiation" (CPR) is applied-immediately, it is possible in many cases to re-establish both blood circulation and breathing, thus sustaining the victim until thus sustaining the victim until medical assistance can be ob tained.

CPR has proven itself in thou CPR has proven itself in thousands of documented cases. Many persons are alive today because of the ability of someone to administer CPR. Thousands more will die needlessly unless more people learn the CPR technique.

Any intelessed personsof approximately 14 years of age or older who is of sufficient physical size and ability can learn the CPR technique. The skill is learned on a life-size manikin.
