Youth Shaken but Okay

Mike Luff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Luff, was supposed to provide chills and thrills at a Halloween party Sunday night, but ended up having a frightening experience himself which left him, according to his mother, white as a ghost.

His younger brother, Tod, 10, planned a party for his fifth grade friends, and 14-year-old Mike agreed to handle the sound effects for a "spook house" set up in the basement of the Luff home, northeast of Wayne.

Hiding behind the furnace, Mike was all set to rattle chains and make other spooky sounds. A brilliant flash of white light illuminated the darkened basement and an explosion hurled him across the room.

It was determined later that he had been hit by lightning which apparently struck a power pole near the Luff home, traveled through the wiring into the house and burned out circuits in both the furnace and water heater.

The bolt burned a hole in the back of Mike's shirt, and left two tiny round burn marks, one on the shoulder and one on the stomach, where Mrs. Luff said the lightning is believed to have entered and left his body.

Although left pale and badly shaken by the accident, the youth appeared to have suffered only minor burns and was not hospitalized, Mrs. Luff said, adding that she did receive a scare from one of the Halloween props.

Immediately following the accident, it appeared that Mike's hand was covered with blood, Mrs. Luff said, but she was relieved to discover it was only red gelatin, prepared by Mike and Tod to simulate blood for their Halloween spook house.

At Nebraska Marching Festival

Wayne Band Rated Superior

The Blue Devil marching Band made it six in a row Saturday by claiming another superior award at the Nebraska Marching Band Festival at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

Under the direction of Ron Dalton, the Wayne High band marched before a packed house at the auditorium, competing with 14 other Class B schools for top rating.

Five Class B bands rated superior. Fifteen bands in all four divisions, which included more than 4,500 musicians from 68 high schools, achieved the top rating.

Comments from "good, very fine to excellent" were jotted down by two of the three judges who rated the bands during the day-long activity.

Byron Havlicek of Nevada, Ia., wrote on the judge's sheet that the playing performance of Wayne's band was very fine. He also labeled the band's marching performance as very fine and singled out the students' showmanship and general interest as excellent.

Clayton Tiede of Mankato State University praised the band's style and ability to change from one to another, and pointed out the group's fine execution.

The superior rating comes on the heels of another superior award the band received a week ago while competing at Wisner-Pilger Marching Band Festival.

All division winners, including Wayne, will appear on separate broadcasts on Nebraska ETV. The first program will be televised on Nov. 23 at 8 p.m. and the second will be aired the following day at 1 o'clock.

County ARC Is Planning Honey Sale

Nov. 13 won't be the first Honey Sunday sale in Wayne County, but it will be the first for the county chapter of the Nebraska Association of Retarded Citizens.

Chairman Mrs. Kenneth Sitzman explained that past sales have been under the auspices of the Northeast Nebraska ARC. Local members decided a county chapter could be more effective in helping local handicapped people and about a year ago formed the Wayne County ARC which will conduct this year's drive.

Volunteers throughout the county will be going door to door on Honey Sunday, hoping to sell 1,800 jars of honey. Proceeds from the sale will help support county and state programs for the mentally retarded.

Singer-composer Paul Williams has agreed to be state chairman for Honey Sunday and Nebraska's First Lady, Mrs. J.J. Exon, is co-chairman.

Mrs. Carl Haas is county co-chairman with Mrs. Sitzman. Mrs. Owen Hartmann is chairman for the sale in Winside and Mrs. Merlin Kenny is Carroll chairman.

No chairman has been named for Hoskins. Mrs. Sitzman said tentative plans are to conduct the drive there on Saturday, Nov. 12, from 10 a.m. until noon. She said, however, that anyone wishing to chair the drive in Hoskins and make arrangements for the sale there should call her at 375-1206.

Mrs. Hartmann said volunteers for the Winside drive should meet at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at 1:30 p.m. on Nov. 13. The church youth league will be assisting with the Honey Sunday sale in Winside, and other volunteers are welcome.

Carroll Honey Sunday volunteers should meet at the fire hall there at 1 p.m. The Carrolliners See HONEY, page 7

County Zoning Plan Nearing Completion

Wayne County joint planning commission members Tuesday night received a preliminary draft of zoning regulations for the county, and state planning consultant Dave Wright said he could be ready for a public hearing on a revised copy within a month, although commission members indicated it would probably be February or March before they would be ready to take that step.

The preliminary draft of the zoning code is 62 pages long. Wright, a planner with the State Department of Economic Development, said the revised version will probably contain about 50 pages.

The planning commission has spent about a year working on the plan, reviewing model zoning regulations, rejecting some and modifying others to fit what they perceive as best suited for Wayne County.

The preliminary document contains regulations listed under major articles with headings including General Provisions; Application of Regulations; Construction and Definitions; Establishment and Designation of Districts; Agriculture Districts; Exclusive Agricultural Districts; Special, Modified, and Appended Districts; Sign Regulations; Nonconforming Uses; Conditional Uses Permitted by Special Review; Administrative Procedures and Enforcement, and Legal Status Provisions.

The planning commission Tuesday night decided to set a $5 fee for a certification of having met zoning requirements which will be required for most buildings constructed in rural districts if the zoning code is adopted.

Buildings won't be inspected during construction as are structures built in municipalities which have a building permit system, but a zoning administrator designated by the county commissioners will ensure that rural buildings comply with setback and other zoning regulations.

Before the code can be finally adopted, however, the public will have a chance to review it and comment on it at a couple of public hearings.

The planning commission before recommending the zoning regulations to the county commissioners must conduct a public hearing, advertising its time and place and notifying all school districts affected. Copies of the proposed code will be made available for public inspection.

After the planning commission conducts the hearing, it must pass a resolution before forwarding its recommendation to the county commissioners.

'Kidnap' Caper Revealed, Toys Are Ransom Price

Presidents of several city and college organizations will be "snatched" tonight (Thursday) in exchange for good used toys.

The Wayne State College Phi Mu fraternity is holding its annual "president snatch" tonight at the city auditorium to collect used toys which will be used as Christmas presents for orphan children in Nebraska.

Presidents of participating organizations will be kidnapped between 7 and 8 p.m. and held at the city auditorium until fellow club members bail them out with donations of used toys. Gifts of used toys will also be accepted from individuals. They should be taken to the auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Mary Woehler, a Phi Mu alumna adviser, said this is the first year the social fraternity has included city organizations in their quest for toys. Local organizations which have been contacted to take part are Newcomers Club, the Wayne County Fair board, Lions Club, Jaycees, volunteer fire department, Izaak Walton League and Chamber of Commerce. College organizations include Wayne State Faculty Wives and Women and all campus fraternities and sororities.

Persons who have questions concerning tonight's "snatch" should call the Phi Mu house at 375-2003.

Six children of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Roth of Waterbury were taken to the Wakefield Community Hospital following an auto accident near Allen Tuesday morning.

A Dixon County sheriff's department spokesman said the Roth auto, driven by Charlene Roth, 16, was westbound on the county road about three-fourths of a mile east of Allen when it collided with an eastbound county road maintainer driven by Kenneth Dawling of Allen.

According to the sheriff's department report, warning lights on the maintainer were in operation when the accident occurred.

Two of the Roth children, Kelly, 14, and Scott, 9, were treated and released at the Wakefield hospital.

Zone Change Requires Six Votes

The Wayne city council in special session Tuesday approved awarding a $29,464 contract to State Contracting of Slayton, Minn., for extension of a water line to serve the Wayne industrial park and anticipated development to the east of the city.

The Minnesota firm submitted the lowest of six bids opened at the last regular council meeting, and tentative approval was given for the contract pending a favorable recommendation by city engineering consulting firm, Bruce Gilmore and Associates.

The council Tuesday also approved setting of 33 Continental Western Industries bonds discovered in the city clerk's safe.

Clerk Bruce Mordhorst said the city apparently was insured by the company at one time and received the bonds as a dividend.

City attorney Kem Swarts informed the council a tentative agreement has been worked out for a city-county project to pave a portion of Grandland Road.

Swarts said in an interview it is his opinion a three-fourths vote of the council will be required to pass an ordinance to change from A-1 to R-2 a tract of land located at the west end of Third Street.

Mrs. Anna Swinney, owner of the property, has requested the zoning change which would allow construction of apartment buildings. Fairbury realtor George Newton plans to purchase part of the four-acre tract to construct a 24-unit apartment complex.

Homeowners in two adjacent subdivisions have opposed the R-2 zoning, saying they would prefer that the area be zoned R-1, which would allow only single and two-family dwellings.

The question of the number of council votes required to pass an ordinance to grant the rezoning request was raised at the last council meeting, because of the number of names on a petition opposing the change.

Report Indicates Parents Differ in Raising Children

Two different kinds of parents seem to be emerging today, the new breed and the old breed, each with their own ideas about how to raise children, according to an Extension family life specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Dr. Ron Daly, citing results from the General Mills American Family Report for 1977, says most parents (57 per cent) still follow traditional values in raising their children, but a new breed of parents is emerging who are less child-oriented and more self-oriented.

The study, based on interviews with over 2,000 families nationwide, reported that the new group of parents, representing 43 per cent of parents with children under 13 years of age, are rejecting many of the traditional values by which they have been raised.

Among these are marriage as an institution, the importance of religion, saving and thrift, patriotism and hard work for its own sake, says Daly.

Such parents, he adds, who tend to be better educated and more affluent than their traditional counterparts, also are adopting a new set of attitudes towards children and parenting, he says. For example, they question the idea of sacrificing in order to give their children the best of everything and they are firm believers in the equal rights of children and parents.

"They regard having children not as a social obligation, but as one available option which they have freely chosen," he says.

Other characteristics of this group include: they don't push their children to achieve, they feel children should be free to make their own decisions, they believe boys and girls should be raised alike, and they don't feel their children have any future obligation to them.

In contrast, traditional-minded parents have very different sets of beliefs. The study identified strongly-held values among this group as being: marriage as an institution, religion, saving money, hard work and financial security.

Traditionalists tend to be stricter disciplinarians than new breed parents and are more demanding of their children, says Daly. They are ready to sacrifice for their children, they want their children to be outstanding and they believe parents should make decisions for their children.

These parents also believe in old-fashioned upbringing, with boys and girls being raised differently. In addition, they are not permissive with their children and have a strong respect for authority, according to the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist.

Even with very different beliefs separating traditionalists from the new breed of parents, there are however, some things they agree on, notes the report. Both groups agree, for instance, that parents should not stay together just for the sake of the children.

A solid majority of both groups also agree that parents should have their own lives even if that means spending less time with their children, he says. But they do not think a woman with small children should go to work unless the money is really needed.

Both groups also teach their children some of the most basic American traditional values, according to the study. They agree duty should come before pleasure, "my country right or wrong," that the only way to get ahead is through hard work, and that everybody should save money even if it means doing without something right now.

Consider Onions!

With onions plentiful and reasonably priced this fall, now is a good time to think about serving onions as a vegetable, says Teresa Shaffer, Extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"Globe onions have a strong flavor and commonly are used for seasoning, but the milder-flavored Spanish onions may be used for soups, salads or slicing," Shaffer says. Onions also may be stuffed, creamed, baked, broiled, glazed, smothered or French fried, she adds.

Both Spanish and globe onions can be stored in the home for several months in a cool, dry place, says the Extension specialist.

Shaffer recommends the following easy-to-make recipe for baked onions as a tasty vegetable accompaniment to fall and winter meals:

Peel two pounds of medium-size onions and cut in half crosswise. Arrange with cut side up in a greased 1 1/2-quart casserole. Add just enough water to cover the bottom of the casserole and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover and bake for 30 minutes at 375 degrees. Top with one cup buttered bread crumbs and bake uncovered 15 to 20 minutes longer, or until cubes are brown and onions are tender. Makes six servings.

Second-Half Rally Nails Cats' Sixth Win

A pass interference call with just 6:38 left in the ball game and 113 yards rushing by running back Bob Barry Saturday lifted the Wayne State Wildcats to a 21-17 victory over Fort Hays State.

The Wildcats, 4-1 in Central Conference play and 6-2 overall, were down 17-7 at the half, but came out fighting in the second half, scoring two touchdowns. Barry carried the ball 21 times in the afternoon performance, upping his season yardage to 810 for an average of 101 per game.

Wayne's conference leading defense allowed Hays only 208 yards rushing for the day, two more than the Wildcats usual performances. Dave Carlson gave the Tiger offense a rough time all afternoon, making nine solo tackles, three assists and batting down one pass. Hays'

Barry Now Leads In Rushing

Sophomore Bob Barry gained one little but lost another in this week's NAIA District 11 football report.

The Wayne State standout leads the district in rushing with 810 yards on 186 carries for a 101-yard average. However, the Battle Creek griddler lost his hold as the scoring leader to Midland's Tim Tolbert. Tolbert has scored 60 points, 10 more than Barry.

In other individual departments, Mark Johnson is tied with Bruce Batt of Doane for first in kick off returns with about a 30-yard average; Mark Erhart is fifth in punt returns with seven yards; Rick Lade is seventh in passing, completing 39 of 104 for 527 yards and a 65-yard average; Jeff Ingram is seventh in pass catches with 14 for 240 yards and a 30-yard average; Tim Thomas is seventh in punting with a 32 yard average.

As a team, Wayne is first in defense among the eight other schools reporting, giving up 266 yards a game. The Wildcats are seventh on offense, averaging 250 yards.

passing attack was stopped several key times by Wayne's Ray Wagner, who intercepted two Hays passes and batted down three.

The Wildcats started the scoring on a 14-yard run by Barry. Bart Emanuel booted the extra point, making it 7-0 in favor of the Wildcats.

That lead was short-lived, however, as Wayne State fumbled on a quarterback pitch. Barry fell on the fumble in the Wildcat end zone for a Hays' safety. Three plays later, Hays quarterback Mike Lybarger hit wide receiver Rick Bennett with a 47-yard pass for a touchdown, with Lybarger keeping the ball for a two-point conversion making it 10-7 Hays.

The final Tiger score came in the second quarter when the Wildcats fumbled in a punt attempt near their end zone. A Hays' defender jumped on the ball for a quick TD and a 17-7 Hays halftime lead.

In the second half it was all Wildcats. Rick Lade came out with a 33-yard pass to split end Jeff Ingram for a quick score with less than four minutes gone. Marc Waggoner took the ball in for a Wildcat two-point conversion, but Hays State still lead 17-15.

The winning score was set up by a quarterback pitch to Wildcat Bob Barry, who tossed the ball from the Wayne State 47 to the Hays 13 yard line. Pass interference was called against Hays, putting the ball on the Tigers 13. Wildcat fullback Kirk Gardner took the ball in five plays later for the lead.

CSIC Roundup Lopers Hold Off Late Lions' Surge, 27-24

Taking advantage of Missouri Southern miscues, Kearney State raced to a 27-3 margin and held on as the host Lions regrouped to score three touchdowns and throw a scare at the Antelopes, 27-23, Saturday afternoon at Joplin.

The win enabled Kearney to stay atop the Central States Conference race with a 5-0 mark, as Wayne State keeps in close contention with a 4-1 record. The Cats' only loss was to Kearney.

Southern scored first on a 20-yard field goal by Harvey Derrick. Kearney scored on the next possession as Dan Stramer caught a 49-yard pass from Kevin Roach. Mike Cherry rammed into the end zone with five seconds left in the second quarter to give Kearney a 14-3 halftime lead.

Roach, the Antelope's starting quarterback, was injured early in the second quarter and did not return to action. Kearney scored twice within a minute in the third quarter as Steve Rohren caught a 21-yard pass and Jay Schmidt caught a 33-yard aerial, both thrown by quarterback Steve Smidt. The Lions stormed back on the See LOPERS, page 5

Defensive Players Garner Awards

Coach Del Stoltenberg named Ray Wagner and Dave Carlson the "Players of the Week" for their performances in Wayne State's 21-17 victory over Fort Hays State Saturday at Wayne.

fensive players were outstanding in the victory.

Carlson, a 6-1, 225 pound senior from Hooper, lead the defense.

Playing on the artificial surface and in 80-degree temperature caused Antelope players trouble. The game was hard-hitting with several players from both teams being helped from the field.

fense with nine solo tackles and three assists. He also was intimidating on pass plays, baffling down one pass.

Stoltenberg said Carlson has become one of the strongest defensive players on the team in recent weeks and has improved throughout the year. "Dave has just made a 'ton' of improvement," Stoltenberg said.

Wagner, a 5-9, 180 pound senior from West Point, added to the defensive effort with two key interceptions; three batted passes and four tackles in the defensive backfield.

Coach Stoltenberg said Wagner has also developed into a fine ball player for the Wildcats. "Ray had those two interceptions that really helped," Stoltenberg said.

Wayne's defense is the best in the Central State Conference, allowing an average of about 206 yards per game. Saturday's defensive efforts allowed only 204 total yards rushing, 170 of that in the air. Fort Hays State had averaged 31 points per game this year in previous action this year.

Favored Wakefield Stages Comeback Over Winside Gals in Last 2 Sets

It took three sets and a big scare before Wakefield spikers put their game together Monday night in the first round of Class C-10 district volleyball action at Wayne High School.

The big scare came in the first and last sets where the Trojanettes' opponent, Winside, chalked up one win and was on the road to another.

Winside broke away from a 6-6 deadlock in the first set for a 15-8 decision to pave the way for a big upset, by coach Kathy O'Connor's girls.

Wakefield settled down after a talk by coach Ernie Kovar, who pointed out to his girls that it was up to them if they wanted to win.

The talk seemed to help in the next set where Wakefield coasted to a 15-6 effort. However, Winside didn't lay back in the final set. The Wildcats jumped off to a 7-0 lead and appeared to be headed for the semi-finals bout against first-round winner Laurel. But Wakefield took control behind the serving of Karen Johansen to take over 12-7 and eek out a 16-14 win, the Trojanettes' ninth in 13 outings.

"Winside played very well," Kovar noted, adding that "we were lucky to win. We had some things go our way and we're glad for that."

Looking back at the first-set loss, Kovar pointed out that mistakes and the strong spiking of Winside's Paula Hoemann hurt Wakefield's games.

Senior Robin Mills led Wakefield scoring with 12 points while Gloria Hansen had nine. Top spiker was Johansen with nine unreturnable hits. Mills also led setters. No information available about Winside's leaders.

Wakefield was scheduled Wednesday night at 7:30 to play Laurel for the right to go to the finals.

The Bears of coach Dwight Iversen, who are seeded second in the tournament, had to battle back from a 15-13 loss at the hands of Ponca to win 15-6 and 15-9.

In other action Monday night, Emerson downed Homer and Pender pounced Walthill to advance to the semis.

Allen Sophomore Powers Eagles in District Play

Sophomore Lisa Wood came off the bench Tuesday night to serve up four big points and a batch of spikes to aid her Allen volleyball team to a three-set victory over Coleridge in the Class D tournament at Wayne State's Rice Auditorium.

Trailing 10-4 in the last set, Allen started to show a slump, in its playing until coach Gary Troth call on Wood who seemed to put new life in the Eagles. "I have to give credit to her for the win. She really sparked our team to the win," Troth said.

Allen took the first set 15-7 after jumping off to a 9-1 lead on the serving of Pam Brownell. The second set was all Coleridge's as the Bulldogs waltzed to a 15-3 win.

Allen, now 7-4, was scheduled to take on top-seeded Beemer Wednesday night at 7.

Backstop/Bob Bartlett

USUALLY DON'T like to borrow too many clippings from other newspapers in Nebraska but I thought coaches might want to tack this clipping from a column by the World-Herald's Wally Provost. It's written by a UNL student, Ron Ahrens of Omaha, about a football players kneeling in a campus chapel.

"First, I must talk to You about my sins, Lord. Forgive me for that fumble. I tried to hold on to what is Yours, but the ball slipped from my hands and into the devil's."

"Thank you for Your apostles, who guide our team. They certainly are the best coaches in the Big Eight Conference. Please be with them, and help them to dream up new trick plays to use later in the season."

"Please teach me the fakes that Moses used on the Egyptians. Help me to read the blocks and see the kingdom of Your end zone several times during the game."

QUICK REMINDER: Coaches, now that the season is over (at least for four of the five area teams), how about sending me the final season statistics? Ditto for volleyball coaches.

"WE'LL BURN you in basketball" vowed Dave Diediker Monday morning when I ventured to the backstop to inform Dave and his partner Ray Murray that they fell four games behind me in picking winners in prep football.

The pair picked Bancroft over Allen, which was right Friday night but went with Winside to beat Osmond, afraid not. The loss coupled with the one win made their record thus far 22 wins, 13 losses and a tie with one game left - Laurel at Hartington High, a mid-season addition to the schedules for both clubs.

The pair are going with Laurel, 8-6, but I'm going to stick with Hartington, 14-3.

This whole business of comparing records started the second week of the season when those two wagged that they could do a better job of picking winners than I. Being a gambling sort of guy, I took them on. Oh, my record? 26-10. Friday night I went with Bancroft and Osmond.

What happened to picking teams on Wednesday night, you say? Well I shy away from mid-week games because it's pretty tough to pick a winner when two clubs play two games in less than a week.

Family Finances

brought to you by Pat Gross

Q. I've got a good job but I can't seem to get ahead financially. In fact, in recent months I can't even pay all my bills. I don't know where the money goes! How can you manage money if you don't have any left over to manage? It's all spent before I get it.

A. If you really don't know where your money is going it's time you found out. Put all of your income in your checking account and pay all your bills by check. For cash needs like lunches, car fare, etc., have each member of the family write down expected needs for the next week and write one check on the same day each week for your total cash needs. At the end of the month you'll have a reliable record of where your money is going. At the end of three months you'll have a pretty good average as a guideline.

Then make a list of everything you spend money for each month and how much. Next mark the list, No. 1 for most important to you, No. 2 for next most, and on down to the least important. Then consider giving up some of those on the bottom of your list. Cut till you get the monthly figure well under your monthly income. If you have too many monthly payments for credit purchases, consider consolidation to lower the monthly payments — and stop using credit till it's paid off. There is just so much money — you decide what you want it to buy for you. Don't leave it to chance.

Four Share Bingo Prize

Four Wayne people took home $100 each in Birthday Bucks Wednesday morning as a result of being the first winners in the Wayne Herald's "Newso" bingo contest.

Mrs. Clarence Apking, Mrs. Bill Kemp, Lori Sturm and Mrs. Gary Wilkinson all turned in their winning cards to share the jackpot which jumped to $400. Two of the winners, Mrs. Apking and Mrs. Wilkinson, were shopping at McDonald's when they picked up their winning cards. Mrs. Kemp was at Annie's and Lori picked hers up at Triangle Finance.

"We're happy to have some winners, and hope to give away more money if there's a winner next week," said Herald business manager Jim Marsh.

The total went up to $400 after no one turned in a winning card during the first three weeks of the contest. Now the four winners will divide the money.

Next week the winning amount drops down to $100. Any person who fills his bingo card with the numbers inside this week's paper can win that amount by turning in his card at the Herald office before 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday.

THIS WEEK'S BINGO CARD IS GREEN

BUSINESS proprietors awarded prizes Wednesday morning to winners in the "Newso" bingo contest. Pat Gross (below) of Triangle Finance, checks the winning card received at his business by Lori Sturm. Mrs. Bill Kemp (above) received her card at Annie's and received her prize from owner Arnie Rea. The two winners who received their cards at J.M. McDonald Co., shown with store manager Dale Boyle, are Mrs. Clarence Apking and Mrs. Gary Wilkinson.

Thurston Man Wins $25 Prize

A Thurston man is the latest winner in the weekly Birthday Bucks promotion sponsored by participating Wayne businesses.

Justin Wagner was shopping in Bill's G.W. last Thursday night when the winning date was announced. He was born on July 18, 1917, seven days away from the winning date of July 25.

As a result, Wagner won the $25 consolation award. Had his birth date matched the winning date, he would have won the grand prize of $750.

Birthday Bucks may be spent just like cash in any participating store. No purchases or registration are necessary to be a winner. However, a shopper must be present to win.

Again tonight (Thursday) another drawing will be held. Drawing the winning date last week was Chuck Surber, of Surber's Clothing.

Thought for Today

By Brian McBride

"We are not at our best perched at the summit; we are climbers, at our best when the way is steep."

John W. Gardner

Most of us spend all our lives chasing the elusive phantom we call "success," whatever form it takes. We try to amass more wealth, power, prestige or whatever goal we set. We dream about the day we will achieve the goal. It may be fortunate that few of us actually reach our goals. Those who do succeed in a spectacular way are seldom happy people. Their biographies tell us that their satisfaction came in the struggle, not in the actual achievement. Gardner's observation should comfort those of us who try so hard yet never reach the summit.

Families of any faith may call on us with confidence. We can provide a comforting memorial service within the means of any family.

Student Recipients
Should Report
Enrollment Status

Full time students 18-22 who get Social Security checks have several things to keep in mind this time of the year according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

One of the most important things to remember is their school enrollment status, Branch said. Most of these young men and women have been getting checks during the summer vacation period because they planned to continue their education this fall. They should report to Social Security if their plans have changed and they did not return to full time attendance, so they can avoid being overpaid.

On the other side of the coin, Branch continued, those students who told Social Security last spring they did not plan to return to school this fall, but who have returned to school or college, they can have their checks restarted.

There is a third group that should contact social security. These are the young people between 18 and 22 who became eligible for Social Security student benefits because an insured parent started getting Social Security retirement or disability benefits, or died during the summer. Their benefits can start with the month they begin attending a school, college, or university on a full time basis, if they are unmarried and under 22.

There are other items students getting benefit checks should report, Branch stated.

The first applies to those students who have been working for someone or for themselves and earning money. They should check their total earnings for the year to make sure they have not yet, nor will soon, go over the annual earnings test exempt amount. This is $3,000 for 1977. If their earnings are over this amount or they expect to go over it before the end of the year, they should report this immediately to social security. This way they can avoid or minimize any possible overpayment, which would have to be paid back.

The final reminder item concerns marital status. Students can get social security checks only if they are unmarried. They should report a marriage immediately.

Proper Management Can Help Profits

There is a forest management tool that can help increase profits and pleasure from trees, according to district forester assistant Ed Bushman.

This tool is called Timber Stand Improvement, or more simply known as T.S.I. It can be applied to shelter belts as well as other forested lands.

T.S.I. is used to identify various management practices designed to improve the growth rate and overall quality of an existing stand of trees, Bushman explained. The chief aim of T.S.I. is to make forest and shelterbelt management more profitable through sustained production of more and better quality trees for timber and protection. T.S.I., together with other improvement practices, provides some of the most effective ways for a forest landowner to realize a better return from all of his forest resources.

Is there a need for T.S.I. to improve the forest resources? The demand for wood and wood products to supply the needs of our growing population alone, are expected to increase by about 133 per cent by the year 2020, Bushman noted. "We also face increasing demands for other benefits from our woodlands: water, wildlife, wind protection, recreation, forage and natural beauty," he added.

More and more landowners have adopted a multiple-use objective on their wooded lands, he said. Under multiple-use management, the potentials for various uses are considered and evaluated. This makes it possible for a professional forester to draw up a plan that will best meet the needs and desires of the owner as well as utilize this land as best as possible. T.S.I. is often the key tool in achieving these objectives.

What types of practices are involved in doing T.S.I. and how can landowners do it? Just as an untended field or garden seldom produces bumper crops, so does a neglected woodlot seldom produce large quantities of high-value timber or maximum wind break protection, the forester said.

Some of these "gardening" techniques can be used to improve timber production and wind protection:

- Weeding young stands to remove unwanted tree species and make more room for higher value trees.
 - Thinning, to relieve overcrowding and increase the growth rate potential trees for removing some of the larger overmature trees.
 - Releasing of vigorous young potential trees for more extended windbreak protection or better quality and faster growth by removing some of the larger overmature trees.
 - Sanitation cuttings to remove trees that harbor insects or disease to keep them from infecting the remaining trees in the area.
 - Cull tree removal to make available growing space that is otherwise occupied by deformed or defective trees that are not marketable or providing adequate protection.
 - Pruning the lower trunk of selected timber trees to produce knot-free timber for sawlogs, veneer and other products.
- The following related practices are not included in the traditional T.S.I. concept, Bushman said, but are essential for the improvement of forest land and benefit property value and

Although there is no indication of a serious energy shortage this winter, increased fuel prices may make it worthwhile to conserve energy, according to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural engineering department chairman.

Dr. William Splinter said that it appears there will be ample supplies of electricity and diesel and propane fuels.

"The general thrust from the federal government, major oil companies and the Oil Producing-Exporting Countries (OPEC) seems to be toward the increase of prices, for energy," Splinter explained.

He noted that grain-drying facilities, major users of propane, will be operating full force this year due to the bumper wheat and corn crops.

Grain bin manufacturers are operating at capacity and still aren't meeting demand, according to Splinter.

"Grain can be piled outdoors if ventilation is provided and the timber production:

- Harvesting timber crops in ways that will provide for natural regeneration, stimulated growth and quality, or lessen the danger of insect and disease outbreaks.
- Site preparation for seedling planting, or natural regeneration to obtain better survival of young seedlings.
- Seeding or planting to improve the number of trees needed in an area or to reforest cut-over or idle lands for either timber production or windbreak protection.

These practices help to promote better multiple use of forested areas, thus giving more profit and pleasure, Bushman said. T.S.I. can benefit wildlife by promoting more herbs other than grass and understorey growth for better food and cover. Tree litter aids in the penetration and storage of snow and rain, acting like a sponge helping to replenish the ground water supply. Trees help to minimize water runoff so less water erosion and pollution occur. By doing T.S.I. work, the See PROPER, page 5 crop is reasonably dry. Under those conditions, a minor amount of air circulation can keep grain in condition."

He pointed out that low prices for grain seriously have curtailed economic activity.

"Farmers are not willing to risk resources to buy things like center pivots, tractors, combines and other major pieces of equipment," he said.

"However, if a person had the economic capability, it's a good time to make purchases because of the buyer's market, as opposed to a seller's market."

Splinter suggested cutting back on heavy field tillage operations as one method of conserving energy.

"Surprisingly, pickups are large consumers of fuel. It might do farmers good to look at the type of pickup they have and see if a smaller model might do. Decreasing the amount of trips also would aid in conservation, since pickups just do not get good mileage," he explained.

Unless strawberries are mulched, fluctuations in winter temperatures may kill fruit buds, injure roots and cause crown damage of strawberry plants. Strawberry plants should be mulched after the plants have been exposed to several light frosts and growth has ceased. Plants should be mulched before a heavy frost is expected.

Straw, free of weed seeds, makes a good mulch. Baled straw should be thoroughly torn apart and scattered to a depth of three inches.

The main benefit of this mulch is to aid in winter protection. Next spring this mulch can provide protection against late spring frosts, improve fruit quality, control weeds and improve plant vigor. Remove the mulch from around the plants as they begin spring growth. Remove the mulch gradually, exposing leaves before they turn yellow. A mulch can be left around the plant for summer weed control, moisture conservation and cleaner berries.

Stop Iris Borers

Now is the time to begin iris borer prevention for 1978. This insect winters in the egg stage on dead iris leaves. By removing the leaves this fall and winter as they dry, many eggs can be destroyed. Old leaves should be burned or placed in the garbage for disposal or buried.

Next spring, spray iris leaves when the fans are about six inches high, and repeat every 10 days for two additional applications using dimethoate in water or a malathion dust.

African Violets

There are two ways African violets may be increased without buying new plants:

- Older African violets frequently develop crowns which you can separate with roots still attached. Using a sharp knife, cut straight down between the section and through the root system. The separated crowns are then ready to be re-potted.
- Start new African violets with leaf cuttings from healthy plants. Remove a matured leaf from the crown of the plant. Then root the leaf by placing it in water, sand, or a 50-50 mixture of sand and peat moss. The leaf blade should not

Temperature Critical to Poultry

Several inexpensive management practices can keep hobby flocks healthy and their owners in an abundant supply of fresh eggs during the winter, according to Dr. Earl Gleaves, Extension poultryman at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Between 1.5 million and 2 million laying hens in the state area being raised as hobby flocks which range in size from five to 100 birds, he said.

Gleaves said the biggest problem faced by owners of hobby flocks is keeping the birds warm enough to survive and still produce eggs. If hens are required to stay in environments where temperatures are below freezing for more than eight hours a day, they said, egg production can suffer.

"The birds can live under severe stress, but they sure won't lay many eggs if they're uncomfortable," he said. "The constant cold temperature can hurt, but the fluctuations in temperature we can live with."

Gleaves said several methods are available to keep birds comfortable.

If electricity or some form of power is available in the chickenhouse, he said, the drinking water should be heated to keep it from freezing. If a warm water source is not available, Gleaves said, producers should supply hens with fresh water two or three times daily during freezing weather.

"If you can keep the water from freezing, the hens usually are warm enough that they'll do all right too," he said.

Gleaves said hens should be given unlimited access to feed during the winter.

"Don't restrict it in any way," he said. "Let them eat all they want. It's a good idea if this can be a high energy feed with high levels of corn because they'll use this feed to help keep themselves warm and it will help the egg production picture."

Housing enough birds together also will help keep them warm, he said.

"You should never have more than one bird per square foot in the chickenhouse," Gleaves said. "But the more birds you have in there, the more heat the birds themselves will generate."

A partition may be used to crowd the birds into a smaller area if the house is too big for See POULTRY, page 5

Speaker: Farmers Neglected, Complacent

American farmers are the most neglected group of people in the world, radio commentator Eddie Nelson said Saturday night in Wayne, but they are guilty of complacency and don't have anyone to blame but themselves.

The provocative white-haired beef market expert told the audience at the Wayne Chamber of Commerce Farmers Appreciation Night Dinner that American farmers produce the greatest product ever—beef—but they don't do anything to promote it.

"Of all the great producers in here," Collins said, eyeing the audience, "there isn't one who has sold anything to the American consumer."

The American farmer can't bend himself enough to go to the American public and say, "Hey, I've got a great product," Collins said.

The top men on the National Livestock and Meat Board represent packing companies, Collins noted. "The leaders in the meat industry don't represent farmers. Farmers don't have time to get involved."

The government doesn't do much for the farmer, either, he said, adding it operates a horrible system in which "a blabbermouth USDA releases daily slaughter figures which become international news to the detriment of the American farmer."

Farmers have traditionally been "nice guys" Collins continued, and the consumer doesn't have any reason to deal with nice guys.

A survey taken in New York proved that the consumers there know nothing about American beef producers, he said, so they buy lean imported beef because they are told to buy lean meat by USDA home economists.

Farmers need to start promoting their own product, Collins said, "but you're always afraid it's going to cost you more than your neighbor."

The beef referendum was touted as enhanced in its overall beauty and effectiveness.

The information above suggests some of the options of resource management open to you as a woodland owner," Bushman said.

You may benefit immensely if a professional forester helps you determine, analyze and evaluate the potentials of your forestlands and shelterbelts. You can then decide what you want from your trees. The forester can help prepare a management plan, which includes T.S.I. and related practices most feasible and useful to you in achieving your objectives.

You may even qualify for cost-sharing through the local ASCS offices.

the size of the flock." Gleaves said steps also should be taken to properly insulate chickenhouses and prevent drafts from falling upon the hens.

"I've seen people go to the expense of heating their poultry houses, and this turns out to be an expensive way to do it" he said. "The birds certainly will be comfortable and they'll lay eggs, but it usually isn't necessary."

No particular poultry diseases are especially prevalent during the winter except coryza, a bad cold that can be averted by keeping the birds warm, he said.

"Any time we have severe stress due to cold or hot weather, for that matter, we're opening the door and making the hen susceptible to about any disease that comes along."

ed for seven years as a measure that would save the beef industry, he said. It didn't pass, and it wouldn't have saved the industry anyway, according to Collins.

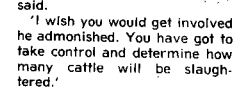

He said what is needed is a strong leader who can go to big chain stores and demand practices advantageous to the farmer. The meat market has nothing to do with supply and demand, he said, it is a matter of timing. "They know everything you're going to do, and you know nothing about what they are going to do," he said.

"We need somebody strong enough to say to the chains, 'If you don't treat the cattlemen right, we'll cut off your supply in 10 days,'" Collins said. Cattlemen must have someone strong enough to command national attention, he added, and if it costs a half million dollars a year, it's worth it.

There isn't really a major problem in the farming industry except farmers themselves, he said.

"I wish you would get involved he admonished. You have got to take control and determine how many cattle will be slaughtered."

HARVEST FAVORITE

Heaped high on vegetable stands lining the countryside and colorfully displayed on supermarket produce shelves are the beautiful vegetables of autumn.

Squash, in its many varieties, is a favorite to many appetites. Best known winter varieties to us are the smooth-skinned beige butternut, cylindrical in shape with a bulbous base, the mottled green-skinned buttercup which has a turbanlike formation at the blossom end, and the smooth, dark green, widely ribbed acorn. All yield a rich golden flesh which is high in vitamin A content but low in calories.

For today's homemaker — busy as always — the preparation of squash is quick and easy. Bake it in serving size portions wrapped in foil along with other foods for dinner.

Wash; cut small squash such as acorn into halves, cut larger squash into individual servings; remove the seeds and stringy fibers. Dot each portion with a generous pat of butter of brush with bacon or ham drippings. Season with salt, pepper and one or more of these spices: mace, nutmeg, cardamon and ginger. Honey or brown sugar may also be added. Wrap in foil or place in a covered baking dish. Bake at 300 degrees F. for 1 and one-fourth hours or at 400 degrees F. for 30 to 60 minutes until tender. Time varies according to size and type of squash. Test for doneness by squeezing gently. Some prefer uncovering the squash during the last 15 minutes of baking.

Squash may also be baked uncovered in a shallow greased pan. Place cut side down for first half of the baking period to allow it to steam. Turn up, brush with butter and season. Allow longer baking time when using this method.

But don't stop with using squash as a vegetable! Its flavor is scrumptious in pies too — some consider it better than pumpkin. Use the foil baking method, minus butter and spices, to prepare it. No need to put buttercup or butternut squash through a sieve. It has little fiber content and can be whipped up in the electric mixer. Many squash pie recipes are similar to pumpkin pie recipes with perhaps the only difference being a bit more sugar sometimes added to the squash.

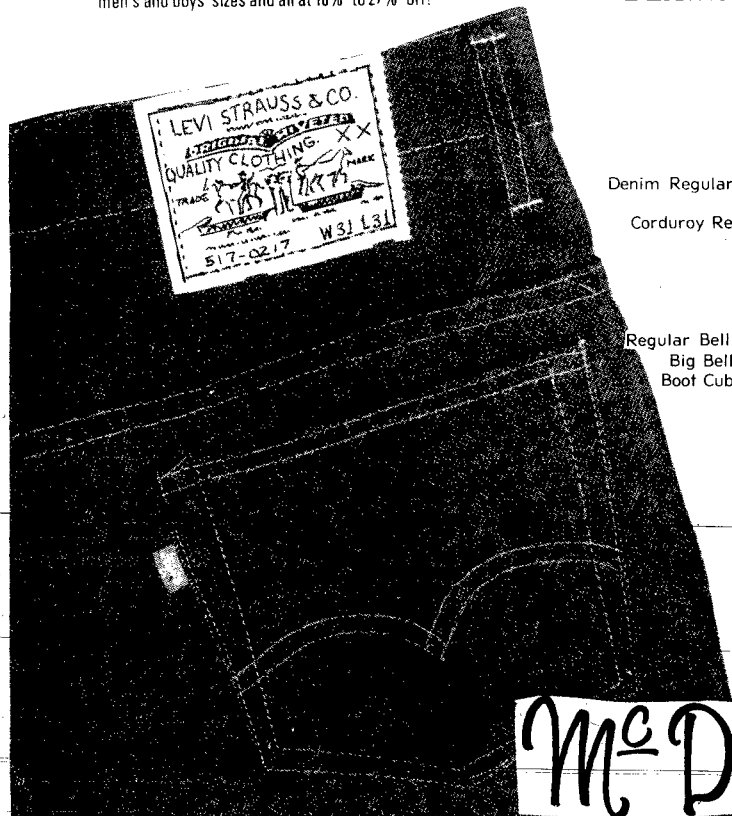

Try winter squash during its peak season — from October to December.

Report Indicates Nebraskans Concerned About Environment

The majority of Nebraskans are aware of environmental problems and they show most concern over water shortages, soil quality and water pollution.

Sensitivities of Nebraskans to environmental issues are spelled out in the fourth in a series of reports analyzing data gathered in the first Nebraska Annual Social Indicators Survey conducted by the Bureau of Sociological Research at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The report on environmental issues was prepared by Susan Welch, professor and chairman of the UN-L department of political science, and Alan Booth, professor and chairman of the department of sociology.

Welch and Booth found Nebraskans aware of the five environmental issues studied in the survey. Substantial majorities were concerned about water shortages, soil quality and water pollution, while only a bare majority were aware of air pollution and natural resource limitations.

Recognition of these issues as problems seemed linked to the location in which the survey participant lived. People in Omaha and Lincoln believed air pollution, water pollution and natural resource depletion to be much more of a problem than did other residents of the state.

People in all areas except Omaha thought water shortages to be a problem and people in all areas saw soil quality as a local problem.

People who were most aware of environmental problems tended to be younger, better educated, politically active and to have children at home to a greater extent than individuals who were less aware of these constraints.

"The fact that those aware of these problems are the younger, more active and educated citizens of the state means the environmental issue will receive more much needed attention in the future," Welch and Booth concluded.

"While knowledge that a problem exists is the first step to solving it, obtaining agreement among Nebraskans for solutions to these environmental problems will be a difficult task," they added.

Here's how Nebraskans perceived five environmental issues:

—Air pollution: Overall 46 percent of Nebraskans felt this was no problem. In Omaha, however, it was considered a local problem by 60 percent.

—Water pollution: Water pollution was seen as a local problem by 39 percent of all Nebraskans and as a state problem by 27 percent more. Perceptions of local water pollution were most frequent in Omaha and Lincoln, although substantial minorities of rural residents also viewed this as a local hazard.

—Water shortage: More than two-thirds of the sample believed water shortages a problem (it should be noted that the survey was taken before the wet summer in most parts of Nebraska). Lincolnites, 59 percent were most likely to see this as a local problem. Farmers and other rural people were next most likely to perceive the problem of water shortage. Only 29 percent of Omahans expressed concern.

—Soil quality: This was recognized as a local problem by 43 percent of all Nebraskans, and as a problem somewhere in the state by another 27 percent. There was little difference in perception of this problem between Lincolnites, Omahans, other urban dwellers and rural residents.

—Natural resource shortage: Despite national publicity, 48 percent of Nebraskans believe natural resources are not limited, 35 percent say they are limited in their locale and 17 percent say resources are limited somewhere in the state. Lincolnites (50 percent) and Omahans (42 percent) agreed resources were limited, while only a quarter to a third of Nebraskans in other parts of the state believe resources are limited in their area.
