Council Disapproves Request for Rezoning

Knolls and Oak Ridge subdivision property owners were successful in blocking a proposed apartment complex in their neighborhood. The Wayne city council Tuesday night failed to pass an ordinance which would have granted the zoning necessary to build the 24-unit complex.

Mrs. Anna Swinney had asked that the four-acre tract located west of Ashley Park at the west end of Third Street be rezoned from A-1 (agricultural) to R-2, a residential designation permitting multiple family dwellings.

Commission OKs Industrial Zoning

The City of Wayne planning commission Monday night agreed to recommend in favor of a request for industrial zoning east of the city limits.

Rod Tompkins, owner of Tompkins Construction of Norfolk and Sioux City, requested that zoning of 10 acres located between the Department of Roads maintenance yard and a county road to the east be rezoned from A-1 (agricultural) to I-1 (industrial) to clear the way for a manufacturing plant which he intends to build.

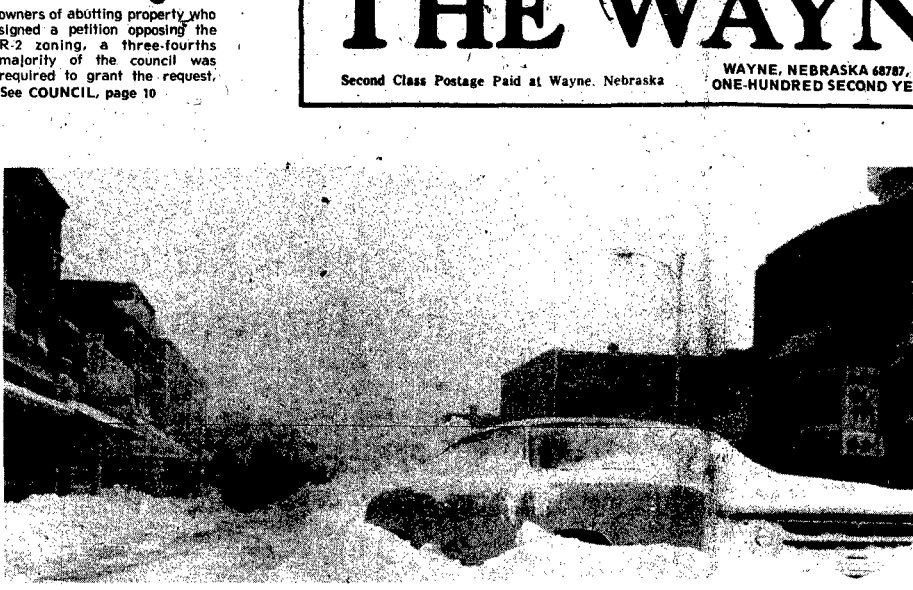

The property is not contiguous to the city limits and is bounded on three sides by property zoned for commercial or industrial use, and on the north by land zoned for agriculture.

The planning commission's unanimous recommendation will be forwarded to the city council which has scheduled a hearing on the request at a special meeting to begin at 4 p.m. on Nov. 17.

Youth Injured

A 17-year-old Hoskins youth is in satisfactory condition at a Norfolk hospital with fractured legs following a car-motorcycle accident Monday evening.

Mark Luhr was riding his cycle southbound on Hoskins' main street about 6:15 when he struck the rear end of a car operated by Donald Anderson also of Hoskins, according to the Nebraska State Patrol. Anderson was making a left-hand turn into his driveway when he was struck from behind.

DRIFTING SNOW clogged streets and roads in Northeast Nebraska, as this scene on Wayne's Main Street Wednesday morning illustrates. Average wind speed during the storm was 45 mph. Wayne received an estimated six inches of snow.

Farmers Organizing for Power Line Fight

About 70 farmers took the first step Tuesday night to organize against the proposed NPPD power line that will stretch across a wide section of Northeast Nebraska.

The farmers, who traveled from as far as Pender to Altona despite strong blowing winds and heavy rains, banded together to inform other farmers in their area of their rights if the line goes through their land.

Don Thies of Wayne told the group that "you aren't going to stop it (the line) or change it, but you have to find out what your rights are and this is a good way of doing it."

Thies outlined several steps farmers should take once they are notified by NPPD that their land will be crossed by the power line.

The most important thing that can be done is for farmers to stick together, he repeated over and over again. Thies emphasized "to get a damn good attorney. You can't stop it so there's no use in getting mad. Best thing you can do is to learn all the facts from both sides and fight 'em that way."

He cautioned the group to keep in mind the kind of people farmers will be dealing with. "They will lie right to your face — that's the way they operate," Thies said.

During a meeting with NPPD officials last month, farmers were informed that they would be notified by registered mail between Nov. 20-Dec. 2 if their land would be involved. When farmers receive those letters, Thies went on, that's the time to take action.

Thies advised farmers to take pictures of the land which will be crossed by the line in case they have to go to court to settle. Also, farmers should check sale prices of land to find out what property is selling for with and without the line. "Devaluation of property is the big thing," Thies said.

The attempt to organize, chaired by Bernard Bareman of Altona and Thies, drew opposition from Edwin Vahlkamp of Winside who said that the problem of the power line's right of way is up to the individual farmer and not an organized group.

"Just know what your neighbor is doing," he said, is the main way to settle with NPPD officials.

Any organized effort will do more than individual effort, fortified Albert Nelson of Wakefield, before the group unanimously voted to organize in predicts to keep informed about the power line.

Elected captains in their precincts were: Clark Kai, Leslie Precinct; Melvin Stuthman, See POWER LINE, page 10

Dec. 11 Is Date For Open House At Wakefield High

Open house for Wakefield's new high school was scheduled for Dec. 11 during a school board meeting Monday night.

Superintendent Dr. Gary Bennerotte said the building should be completed about Dec. 1. More information on the open house will be released later.

The board Monday also appointed a committee including sponsors, coaches, students, and administrators to review rules for the Pep Club and cheerleaders. A report is expected in January.

A curriculum review was also continued at the board meeting. Bennerotte said teacher committees are reviewing the curriculum for grades 7-12 in a series of five meetings, with a final report expected in the spring.

The vocational trades department curriculum is receiving special attention, he said, with consideration for the possibility of adding a second teacher in that area, with a background in agriculture.

Northeast Nebraska Socked in by Storm

Gusting winds and blowing snow early Wednesday morning dropped visibility to near zero in many locations and drifted across roads, bottling up Northeast Nebraska.

According to the National Weather Service office in Norfolk, temperatures Tuesday night were around the freezing point, before dropping to about 28 degrees after midnight.

Average wind speed during the winter storm which swept across Northeast Nebraska was 45 mph with gusts considerably higher. The Norfolk office recorded a peak wind velocity of 84 mph at 11:46 p.m. Tuesday.

Precipitation, rain later turning to snow, varied from .81 of an inch at Randolph to 2.28 inches at Nickerson.

Snowfall, ranged from three inches at Ewing to eight inches at Plainville and Pilger, with Norfolk recording seven inches and Wayne accumulating an estimated six inches.

The forecast for today (Thursday) includes some sunshine with high temperatures in the 40s and breezy conditions. The outlook for Friday is partly cloudy with temperatures generally in the 40s and overnight lows in the teens and 20s.

There is a chance for more rain or snow on Saturday, with warmer temperatures possible — in the mid 40s to low 50s.

The mercury should rise into the 50-degree range on Sunday, with partly cloudy skies.

The State Patrol district office in Norfolk Wednesday morning said highways in the Wayne vicinity were closed and visibility was nearly zero because of blowing snow. They were recommending that everyone "sit tight" until the wind subsided.

A county roads department spokesman Wednesday morning reported considerable drifting on rural roads and said clearing operations would have to wait until the wind lessened.

Harold Murray of the State Roads Department office in Wayne also reported poor visibility and said the drifting snow was heavy and difficult to move. Roads were drifting shut after they were cleared in many cases, Murray said, and removal equipment was having difficulty moving west of Wayne. A Roads Department loader and truck became stuck in the drifts across Highway 35 near the Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne.

City of Wayne street crews began battling the storm around 3 a.m. Wednesday and at mid-morning were working to keep emergency routes open.

Wayne County Public Power District manager Cal Comstock Wednesday morning said the electric system was in pretty good shape, but said virtually every customer had power interrupted at some time during the night.

Substations at both Wayne and Winside were out of operation at about 4 a.m. Wednesday, but had been repaired by about 9. One repair crew was forced to seek shelter for the night with a nearby farm family, Comstock said.

Hamilton: Farming Still Prime Issue in First District Election

By JIM STRAYER

Representing farmers and farm interests must be the prime concern of the person elected to the House of Representatives from Nebraska's First Congressional District, according to H. Bruce Hamilton, seeking the Democratic Party nomination in the district.

The 35-year-old Lancaster County commissioner and Lincoln attorney said, however, that voters in the past have sent Representatives to Washington who don't want to listen to the problems of urban Congressmen.

He believes that is a mistake because Congressmen from rural districts are in a minority. He said he thinks he can be a champion for the farmer and still be responsive to urban problems. The candidate said that should enable him to a better job of forming the coalitions necessary to pass needed farm legislation, and he thinks he can better represent farmers than "some of the Republican-type Congressmen" previously elected in the First District.

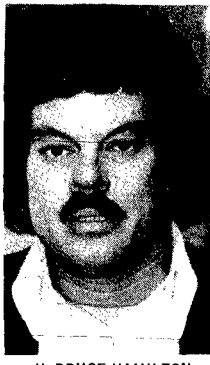

Admitting his lack of background in agriculture, Hamilton said during a visit in Wayne Saturday afternoon that he has been spending a considerable amount of time getting out into rural areas and talking to farmers.

Their major concern now is prices, Hamilton said. Farmers aren't just concerned about getting higher prices for their products, but also want lower prices for the things they must buy to operate.

Farmers are sensitive to inflationary trends, he said. "They understand that if we are going to fight inflation, we must all make some sacrifices."

But they feel they are making more of a sacrifice than most, and not without some justification.

"The second key issue in the election will be fiscal policy, Hamilton said, and he thinks his See HAMILTON, page 10

Volunteers Will Be Busy As Bees on Honey Sunday

Volunteer workers Sunday will be canvassing Wayne County communities, selling jars of honey to help mentally handicapped persons both locally and at the state level.

The Wayne County Association of Retarded Citizens will be conducting the annual Honey Sunday sale in Wayne County this year.

The local sale previously has been conducted under the auspices of the Northeast Nebraska ARC but Wayne County members about a year ago formed a county chapter with the goal of better serving local needs.

Proceeds from sales of the jars of honey, priced at $1.25, will help support local projects for the mentally retarded, with a portion also supporting projects at the state level.

County drive chairman Mrs. Kenneth Sitzman said the local chapter hopes to sell 1,800 jars in Wayne County.

The chairman and other volunteers will conduct the drive in Hoskins on Saturday, from 10 a.m. until noon. Sales in other communities will be conducted on Sunday.

Mrs. Owen Hartmann is drive chairman for Winside, where volunteers will meet at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at 1:30 p.m. to pick up their jars of honey.

Mrs. Merlin Kenny is Carroll chairman. Volunteers should meet at the fire hall there at 1 p.m.

Wayne workers will meet at the Region IV adult development center at 206 Logan Street. The drive is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. and conclude about 5.

In Dixon County, the honey sale in Allen is scheduled for both Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Icabods Late Rally Halts Wildcats

By RUSS HERMAN
Wayne State SID
Wayne State's Central States Conference title hopes came to an abrupt halt Saturday night in Topeka, Kan., as Washburn University used a last minute drive to clip the Cats 24-17.
Del Stoltenberg's gridders suffered their third loss of the year against six victories to drop Wayne's league mark to 4-2. Meanwhile, Kearney clinched the title with a 26-6 beating of Fort Hays to remain unscathed in conference play.
The Icabods drew first blood, marching for a touchdown on a 12-play, 71 yard drive climaxed by a 20 yard pass from Mike Grogan to Mike Keeley.

Wayne got a break early in the second quarter that enabled the Wildcats to tie the score. A

Brent Cripps punt was blocked by the Cats to set up a 31-yard scoring march. Seven plays later Rick Lade hit Stan Simpson with a 25-yard TD aerial. Simpson, who replaced injured

Mark Johnson at wingback, had his best day of the season grabbing eight passes for 67 yards.
The Icabods were not stunned by the Cat comeback, however. They took the ensuing kickoff and marched 79 yards before they were stopped and had to settle for a 27-yard field goal by Mike Cassin to round out first half scoring.

Washburn exploded for another touchdown on its first possession of the second half. Clarence Taylor capped a six play drive by cradling a Grogan pass and running 48 yards to paydirt.

The Wildcats, who found themselves down by 17-7 two weeks ago against Fort Hays and came back to win, began a similar comeback late in the period. Bob Barry burst for a 43 yard touchdown run with around five minutes left to bring the Cats to within three points.

Barry, who is second in the district in scoring with 56 points, enjoyed his best rushing day of the year, gaining 147 yards in 20 carries. Barry is just 33 yards shy of becoming the second Wayne State player to gain 1,000 yards in a season in 20 years. Sam Singleton holds the school record with 1,111 yards in 1970.

Another blocked punt early in the fourth quarter provided the Cats with an opportunity to tie the game again. Bart Emanuel booted a 28 yard field goal after the Icabods seven yard line for a 17-17 ball game.

Washburn's winning drive began on their 28-yard line. It was culminated with a 19 yard pass from Grogan to Mayo Schmidt with just 30 seconds left in the game.

Wayne will close the 1977 season at home against Emporia State Saturday with kickoff at 1:30. The Hornets are 3-6 overall and 2-3 in conference standings after losing to Pittsburg, 48-25, last week. Scouting reports say Emporia's strength lies in its passing game.

2 Gridders Are First In District

Two Wayne State gridders hold down the top spots in their categories, according to the latest figures released by NAIA District 11 office.

Mark Johnson is first in kick off returns with a 30-yard average and Bob Barry is tops in rushing, picking up 157 last week against Washburn to push his average to 107 per game.

Barry, who for the second time this season has been named to shake NAIA player of the week award, slipped to second in scoring with 56 points. The sophomore trails Tim Tolbert of Midland who has 72 points. Tolbert and Chadron quarterback Brad Futs also were named for the player of the week honors.

In other individual statistics, Mark Erhart is fourth in punt returns with an eight-yard average; quarterback Rick Lade is sixth in passing with a 71-yard average per game; Tim Thomas is eighth in punting with a 33-yard average, and Jeff Ingram is 10th in pass receiving with 14 catches for 240 yards and a 26-yard average.

As a team, the Wildcats again rank first in total defense, giving up 219 yards a game.

Standouts Barry, Carlson Earn Players Of Week Honors for Second Time

Wayne State coach Del Stoltenberg named three "Players of the Week" for their performances Saturday despite the 24-17 loss to Washburn University.

Bob Barry and Duane Carlson are repeats for the honor and Al Koski completed the list. Stoltenberg said the players "did a super job under the conditions."
Barry, a 6-3, 195 pound sophomore from Battle Creek, lead the offense for a career high of 157 yards in 20 carries for one touchdown. That performance topped his total yardage to 967 yards for an average of 107.4 per game. Barry also caught one pass against Washburn, good for 29 yards.

Stoltenberg said he was pleased with Barry's performance on the wet Topeka turf. "It was the best offensive output of the year as far as any individual is concerned," he said, "and it puts Bob a little closer to that 1,000 yard mark."

Al Koski, a 6-0, 230 pound senior from Thurston, was the second offensive player named this week. Stoltenberg said Kos-

CSIC Roundup

Kearney Claims Crown

Kearney State won the Central States Conference football championship Saturday night. The Antelopes dumped Fort Hays State 26-6 while Washburn edged Wayne State 24-17 to give Kearney the title outright.

Turnovers played a big part in the game. Kearney lost three fumbles, one on the Tigers' six-yard line. Fort Hays lost three fumbles, one on the two-yard line, and three pass interceptions.
The Antelopes scored in each quarter. Kevin Roach ran 23 yards midway in the first quarter to open scoring. Paul Waggoner, who kicked the extra points, kicked a 21-yard field goal on the next to last play of the first half.

Kearney scored in the third quarter as it took the opening kickoff and drove 80 yards. Gregg Baker scored the TD on a one-yard run. The Antelopes next scored on the first play of the fourth quarter as Dan Stro-

Bees Stop LH Spikers

A tall and talented Bloomfield team overpowered Laurel spikers Saturday night to win a berth in the state Class C high school volleyball tournament.

The Bees stopped coach Dwight Iversen's Bears in regional play at Randolph with a pair of 15-4 sets by using their height to spike the ball over the net.

After suffering a first set loss, Laurel came back in the second set to win 15-8 on the leadership of Cheryl Abts with seven points and Cindy Schaefer with six spikes. "Eventually, their (Bloomfield) height just got to us," Iversen admitted.

Abts, who is a prime candidate for all-state honors, scored five points in the Laurel win. The coach also jabbed Elaine Guern for her net play.

Laurel (12-7) earned the right to play in regional action last week when the area club captured the district title at Wayne High by beating Ponca, Wakefield and Emerson-Hubbard.

Allen's Chase Repeats As L-C All-Loop Player

Allen High senior Brent Chase was named for the second year in a row to the defensive unit of the East division of the Lewis and Clark all-conference football team.

The 5-9, 165-pounder lead Coach Cliff Jorgensen's Eagles with 115 solo tackles and 48 assists during his team's 4-5 campaign. Chase, who was selected by division coaches for honorable mention on an offense during a loop meeting last week at Homer, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Chase of Allen.

The Eagles also landed three other players on the honorable mention teams. Of offense Rick Smith and Bart Gotch were named as linemen, and on defense Lin Smith was picked also as a lineman.

are proof of that. Seniors Julie Brinkman, Julie Jones, Connie Kunzman, Lori Langel, Peg Yockey, and sophomores Cathy Buryanek, Tammy Compton, Peggy Langel and Peg Peterson return from a 25-7 record last season.

Wayne starts out its season Saturday, Nov. 19, at 2 p.m. when the Wildcats host Tarkio — a team which beat Wayne in the regional finals last year.

The Tarkio rematch is one of 13 home games on Wayne's 30-game slate. The coach is hoping that his team will draw the support from area fans when Wayne takes to the court, especially when the Wildcats display more of a pressure defense and a running offense — a slight change from the style of former head coach G.I. Willoughby.

COACHES and student trainers who want to learn more about how to care for ankle injuries will have a chance to do so Saturday when Wayne State trainer Regg Swanson holds a taping session in the basement of Rice Auditorium.

Swanson will show how he evaluates the kinds of injuries, what types of treatment can help, rehabilitation and taping techniques. The program will run from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and will include taping of WS gridders about 10:30, prior to the afternoon game with Emporia St.

An extra bonus: Those attending will be issued free passes to the Wildcat football game.

SATURDAY also is Parents Day at Wayne State where parents of football players will be honored at the game. After the contest, parents as well as families of the players are welcomed to a chili feed at Wayne County Club, hosted by members of the Second Guessers.

Wayne State felt the brunt of the excellence of Central States Conference runners Saturday as the local harriers finished fifth in the conference cross country meet at Wayne.

Fort Hays, one of the top cross country schools in the nation, won the event with 33 points followed by Pittsburg, 45; Emporia, 71; Kearney, 76 and Wayne, 143.

Pittsburg furnished the top two winners in the meet, Mark Robuse and Bob McCleod, who finished with a time of 24:54, a course record.

The best that coach LeRoy Simpson's men could do was a 25th place showing by Andy Myrtue, who completed the course in 28:01.

Education about death is proceeding in some communities throughout the country, with this stated objective: "To help people understand their feelings and attitudes toward death and dying so that death will be less fearful, and living more enjoyable." Books are also being written on the subject. Death is a subject that has been taboo too long.

WSC Offering Classes at Norfolk Tech College

The Wayne State College extended campus division is offering two new workshops in November at Northeast Technical Community College.

One course will examine the effects of WW II on American culture and the other will look at the background of Asian peoples.

"World War Two and the Home Front: American Culture at the Crossroads" is the title of a two-credit history class offered Nov. 11, 12, 13, 18 and 19 in Room 121 of NTCC. The workshop will take an in-depth look at the change the war brought to traditional American values.

Instructor for the history workshop is Dr. Michael Blayney, author of "Herbert Pell, War Crimes and the Jews." The class will consist of lectures, discussions and multi-media presentations.

"Asian Religions and Cultures" is the second workshop offered 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Nov. 19 and 20 in Room 121 NTCC. The one-credit class will provide background information for teachers in junior and senior high schools and others interested in Asian cultures. The workshop will focus on Asian values, life styles, family life, religion and general cultures. Participants will also be able to choose a separate session to meet specific areas of interest. Registration deadline for this class is Nov. 11. Dr. Zafer Ahmad Khan, who is working at Chadron State College as Consultant Studies under a Fulbright-Hays Grant, will be the instructor for the Asian peoples workshop. He has been Department Chairman of Area Studies at the University of Islamabad and Department Chairman of Geography at the University of the Punjab, Pakistan.

Resident tuition for the classes is $17.50 per credit hour and $29.50 for non-residents. A $10 matriculation fee is required for "first-time" WSC students. Those interested should mail their name, address and fees to Don Keck, Extended Campus Division, WSC, Wayne, Neb. 68787, or call 375-2200.

Allen Sponsors Benefit Show

GARY TROTH hammed it up as Groucho Marx, while June Stapleton and Darcy Harder seemed to have gotten into another fine mess as Laurel and Hardy — they couldn't keep their trousers up. The skits were part of a March of Dimes benefit fashion show Friday night at Allen High School. Cheryl Koch, Nebraska FHA March of Dimes representative, was hostess for a portion of the show which featured a film about the March of Dimes organization. Clarice Blohm, owner of the Country Girl Bridal Salon and dress shop, coordinated the show. The Allen swing choir furnished music and the FHA chapter worked with Dixon County March of Dimes co-chairmen Mrs. Loren Carr and Mrs. Gary Schroeder of Wakefield in organizing the show.

GREAT MOMENTS IN SPORTS IN A NUTSHELL

Brief Stories Of Long-Remembered Triumphs

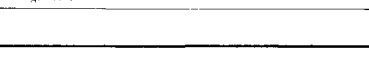

A great moment in sports occurred in 1966 when Onni Savi of Finland completed the longest non-stop overland skiing marathon on record. It lasted 48 hours and covered 190.1 miles.

A great moment in sports occurred in June, 1944 when Cincinnati pitcher Joe Nuxhall, age 15 years 10 months and 11 days, became the youngest major league baseball player of all time.

A great moment in sports occurred in 1973 when Stanley Smith and Erik Von Dillen of the United States beat Jaime Filitiol and Pat Cornejo of Chile in a Davis Cup record-breaking 122 tennis games.

Duane Carlson, a 6-1, 220 pound senior from Hooper, set the pace on defense by blocking several punts and leading the Wildcats in tackles. Carlson's brother Dave was the Wildcat defensive player of the week last week.

"Duane has been a good steady ball player for us," Stoltenberg said. "He has been a real leader this year and he showed it Saturday night."

Wayne State, 42 in Central States Conference play and 63 overall, will host Emporia State Saturday at 1:30 p.m. for "Parents Day" at Wayne State, the last game of the 1977 season.

Keglers Can

'Strike Out'

Next Weekend

Keglers will have a chance to "strike out" for the underprivileged on the weekend of Nov. 19 when Phi Mu Sorority sponsors "Bow for Hope" at Melodee Lanes.

The idea is for bowlers to contact sponsors who will pledge a specified amount per pin. All the proceeds then will go toward Project Hope, a non-profit organization aimed at helping persons from underdeveloped nations.

Bowlers will register for an hour to bowl and will pay a $1 registration fee which goes to pay for the games, shoes and pins for Hope.

Quail Season Opens Saturday

Nebraska's upland game bird hunting picture will be complete on Saturday with the opening of the bobwhite quail season throughout the state.

Opportunity for the scatter-gun-and-bird dog set will be at its peak, since the season on pheasants will also be open. The ringneck season got under way last Saturday, one week earlier than that on quail.

Prospects appear improved over last year's season. The prime quail range in the south east is consistently the best bobwhite population from year to year, and 1977 is no exception. The real improvement should be noted in marginal quail range outside the southeast, where bobwhite populations are staging a comeback from a couple of hard winters.

Limits on quail are six per day and 18 in possession, and the pheasant limits are two cocks per day and six in possession. Shooting hours are 15 minutes before sunrise to sunset. Saturday also sees the opening of the state's firearm deer season. More than 24,000 permits were issued for deer, and most of the hunters should be in the field at one time or another during the nine-day season. Prospects are good, although a slight decline is anticipated in the whitetail population. Shooting hours for deer are 30 minutes before sunrise to 30 minutes after sunset.

REMOVING HOLIDAY STAINS
It soon will be the season for cranberry-stained tablecloths and eggnog spills on the living room carpet.

Protein-based stains (blood, milk, egg, eggnog, chocolate, ice cream) and food coloring can be removed by pretreating the garment with an enzyme presoak. Wash as usual.

Greasy stains (butter, gravy, grease, oil, salad dressings) can be removed by pretreating with a prewash spot treatment, paste or spray. Wash as usual.

Wine, cranberry, and other fruit stains can be removed with an enzyme presoak. If stain remains, use an all-fabric bleach. When treating carpeting, add small amounts of detergent solution, rug shampoo, spot lifter, or dry-cleaning fluid to the soiled area. Blot the liquid and continue until the stain is removed.

Instead of frustration and elbow grease, why not try some of the many laundry aids on the market. The following list will help you in removing most common holiday stains from washable fabrics.

Candlewax stains will disappear by placing the stain between clean white blotters or several layers of tissue and pressing with a warm iron.

Felt tip pen and ink can be removed by soaking in rubbing alcohol for at least thirty minutes. Be sure to test in an inconspicuous area of the fabric first. Wash as usual.

Thought for Today

By Rowan Wiltse

"God's goodness has been great to thee. Let never day nor night unhalloved pass but still remember what the Lord hath done..." Shakespeare

Perhaps it was always this way but it seems that in today's frantic "rat-race" existence, many of us are so busy trying to get more of everything that we fail to be thankful for what God has already seen fit to give us.

There is peace, contentment and satisfaction in the mere act of giving thanks. Enumerating the things for which we should be thankful brings a realization of well-being. Realization of our unworthiness should bring a great humility.

We are happy to join this week with our many good friends and neighbors in giving, with great humility, our thanks to the Almighty.

Artist Receives Award

DOUG PIERSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Pierson of Wayne, works on another painting. Pierson was selected by the Wayne High Class of 1941 to receive $55 in supplies from Ben's Paint Store. John Berry, an art department faculty member at Valley College in San Bernardino, president of the Class of '41, was unable to attend the last reunion but sent three of his paintings to be sold. With proceeds to be donated to a promising art student at Wayne High School.

Hamilton

experience on the Lancaster County board of commissioners will be valuable to him.

When he was elected in 1974, many people probably thought he was a "wild-eyed" liberal who would be loose with the purse strings, Hamilton reflected. However, he said, Lancaster County, like many Nebraska counties, has had to operate within fiscal limits defined by its property tax base and the statutory ceiling on the mill levy for counties.

"You can't be a county commissioner and be a spendthrift," Hamilton said, adding that he has learned through the county budgetary process the importance of setting fiscal priorities and sticking to them.

In the candidate's view, the third big issue of the 1978 House race will be energy and he said that for the most part, he supports President Carter's energy plan.

Over the next 10 to 20 years, Hamilton said, there will be a reversal of roles in Congress regarding energy. Previously it has been a matter of distributing plenty, he said. Now the United States is faced with the prospect of distributing scanty energy resources.

Hamilton said energy development alternatives are important, but potential is limited, and he thinks Americans must gradually adopt a life style that emphasizes quality rather than quantity. Sweden, he said, has a higher standard of living than the United States, but consumes only half the energy per person.

One of the biggest challenges facing Representatives, particularly where energy policy is concerned, Hamilton said, is to represent the home district, and at the same time act in the best interests of the nation as a whole.

Asked if he would become Senator Ed Zorinsky's counterpart in the House, Hamilton said he agrees with almost everything the former Omaha mayor has said in chastising the Senate for the manner in which they operate, but added, "What is he going to do about it?"

Hamilton said the Omaha Senator has carried a good thing too far. Zorinsky isn't effective in the Senate, Hamilton said, because he hasn't developed any coalitions necessary to build support for legislation which he favors.

Commenting on his chances of gaining the Democratic Party nomination, Hamilton said there probably isn't a great deal of difference between his views and those of the two men who will most likely oppose him, Hess Dyas and National Committeeman Allen O'Donnell of Wayne.

Dyas recently said he expects to announce his candidacy soon. O'Donnell, a Wayne State College political science professor, said he will probably announce a decision regarding his candidacy after the Christmas holidays.

State senator Douglas Bereuter of Uica is the only Republican to have announced his candidacy so far.

Hamilton said Dyas is better known throughout the district because of previous bids for seats in the House and Senate, but that might be a liability if Democrats decide they want to see a fresh face. He added that Dyas will be tough to beat in Lancaster county. Both Hamilton and Dyas are Lincoln natives.

Ponca; Merlin Reinhardt, Brenna; Don Langenberg, Hancock and Raymond "Bud" Walker Hoskins.

Any persons with questions about the power line should contact their precinct captain, who is responsible for setting up meetings in his own area. Once all farmers are notified about the line, another major meeting between precincts is scheduled.

Weather

until about 8:30 Wednesday morning.

Electric service in the western portion of Wayne was interrupted at about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday due to a malfunctioning disconnect circuit, according to power department supervisor Bill Mellor.

Workers repaired the circuit, but the city's interconnect line with the Nebraska Public Power District went out at about 4 a.m. Wednesday. Mellor said, and city electric department workers walked to the city generating plant to provide power for the city.

A few home service lines were knocked down by tree limbs, Mellor said, but no major lines in the city distribution went out because of the storm.

Schools throughout Northeast Nebraska, including The Wayne Public Schools, St. Mary's Catholic School, and Wayne State College, were closed on Wednesday.

Council

according to the city zoning ordinance. Only three council members, Sam Hapburn, Leo Hansen, and Vernon Russell, voted in favor. Keith Mosley, Carolyn Filter, Darrel Fuelberth, and Larry Johnson voted against it, and Jimmie Thomas abstained.

Wayne merchants will be advised to remove items displayed on sidewalks. Under the mayor's direction, the police department had not been issuing citations for obstructing sidewalks, pending completion of the downtown improvement project. Mayor Freeman Decker Tuesday night said it was time to make a decision on the matter. City attorney Ken Swarts previously had informed the council staff law prohibits blocking sidewalks with merchandise or other obstructions.

Police chief Vern Fairchild was directed to issue warnings to merchants now displaying items on sidewalks, before issuing citations.

Swarts was directed to prepare an opinion regarding enforcement of city parking regulations. Fairchild told the council many parking violation cases have been contested and the prosecutor apparently believes the violations can't be proven. Swarts said he is working on a recommendation which could possibly allow parking tickets to be paid at the police station, rather than through county court.

The council also passed a resolution which moves the city one step closer to a proposed storm sewer project in the Roosevelt Park area. No property owners affected attended the meeting to register opposition.

An ordinance to create the storm sewer district is expected to be on the agenda for the next council meeting.

The council also discussed but took no action regarding the administration of the Senior Citizens Center, who is the council's liaison with the center, recommended that the center advisory board be dissolved and the center operate as a city department under council control.

Wes Plueger, chairman of the advisory board, told the council attendance has dwindled at the center during the past year because of dissention. He recommended that rather than retaining director Joceli Bull, coordinators be hired for three to six months at a time on a rotating basis, and that a host or hostess, rotated daily, assist the coordinator.

He said he has heard complaints that Mrs. Bull is absent from the center too often, and that activities are too structured. Volunteer hosts and hosesses eventually could end the need for a paid director, he said. Thomas agreed that Mrs. Bull is too busy with outside activities and said she should be directed to confine her activities to the Senior Citizens Center, but added that a full time director is needed and said it would be hard to replace Mrs. Bull in that capacity.

Russell said he is concerned that the center is not being used to its fullest extent and said he thinks Mrs. Bull may have to be replaced in order to restore harmony. He added that he thinks the council and city administrator and clerk are too busy to be involved in operation of the center and favors a system in which the senior citizens would operate the center themselves.

No action was taken regarding bids to haul refuse from the city compactor station under construction, pending an attorney's opinion regarding legality of the bids.

Dakota Sanitation of Sioux City bid $2.45 a cubic yard, and Community Refuse Disposal of Fremont bid $1.78 a cubic yard to haul refuse from the compactor station.

Formal bid letting procedures were not followed, however, and there is a question regarding legality of the bids because of the potential amount of money involved. Bids are required by state law for items costing more than $5,000.

The council also agreed to consider naming as a street a paved alley owned by Wayne State College. Four homes have their front entrance facing the alley, running from 10th to 14th Streets adjacent to Walnut Street. Homeowners have asked that a street name be designated to simplify their home addresses.

WSC president Lyle Seymour asked that the college be given time to conduct a contest among students to come up with a recommendation for a name. The council agreed and will take the matter up at its next meeting.

State Output Declined in July

Real output in Nebraska declined in July according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Business Research, at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The Bureau's index of physical volume for the state recorded a 0.5 per cent drop for the month, following a 2.8 per cent increase in June.

Sen. McGovern Speaks Tonight

Sen. George McGovern will deliver an address at 8 o'clock tonight (Thursday) at Rice Auditorium on the Wayne State College campus. McGovern will speak on "Perspectives on American Security." The event is open to the public.

The July drop in economic activity in the state was centered in the agricultural sector, which registered a 2.3 per cent decline for the month. Writing in "Business in Nebraska," William Gerdes noted that a monthly decline of this magnitude is not uncommon for the agricultural sector, given the volatility of measures of output for this sector.

Nevertheless, according to Gerdes, recent trends in agricultural output and prices indicate that the Nebraska agricultural sector has provided little stimulus to the rest of the state economy in 1977. Since December, seasonally adjusted agricultural output has declined 2.2 per cent. Compounding this problem were lower prices for agricultural products. White prices received by Nebraska farmers were up slightly in July (0.6 per cent), they were 12.8 per cent below levels of last July.

Real construction activity, down 7.8 per cent, also contributed to lower state output in July. Despite this sharp drop, the construction sector remains the principal source of strength in the Nebraska economy this year. With the exception of the upward revised figure for June construction activity, construction in July exceeded levels recorded for every other month in the current economic expansion. For the first seven months of the year, price-adjusted activity for this sector was 36.8 per cent above year earlier levels.

Two of the remaining three sectors in the Bureau's physical index for the state registered increases in July. They were the distributive sector (up 0.7 per cent) and manufacturing (up 0.3 per cent). Both sectors have shown renewed economic strength of late, following a slow start in 1977. Output in the third sector, government, was down 2.0 per cent in July.

The Bureau's city business indexes reflected the performance of the state economy in July, with only 11 of 25 reporting cities showing improvement relative to July of last year. For the second consecutive month, Nebraska City posted the largest gain (up 12.0 per cent from last July). Other Nebraska cities registering increases of five per cent or more were Bellevue, Fremont, and Blair.

Gov. Exon will ask board for cut in sales and income taxes

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN — Nebraska's sales and income tax rates, which have been fluctuating in recent years, probably will go down next year.

During a recent press conference, Gov. J. James Exon said he will ask the State Board of Equalization on Nov. 15 to trim the sales tax from 3.5 to 3 percent, and the state income tax from 19 to "at least" 17 percent, and possibly 16 percent of a taxpayer's federal income tax liability.

Saying that he wants to give the taxpayer "every break he can," the governor noted the state's economy is in better shape than anticipated and that tax revenues have been higher than expected.

When Exon made his announcement during a news conference, the state had nearly $2 million in the bank.

He and State Tax Commissioner William Peters had both earlier said there was a chance the tax rates would go down.

The reductions could not go into effect until January.

If the rates Exon talked about go into operation, Nebraskans would pay $25 million less into the state treasury during the first six months of next year.

Exon said two factors would allow the decreases. The first, he said, was the successful petition drive that suspended implementation of the 1977 state aid to schools law. The second was the higher-than-expected revenues flowing into the state treasury during the first quarter of this fiscal year.

The governor said October's receipts are expected to be $5 million to $6 million more than had been projected.

He said the Revenue Department may have been too conservative when it estimated receipts. But he added that Nebraska's economy "just responded better than we thought it would" in the face of serious problems in agriculture.

Exon said low grain prices were expected to have more impact than they did.

He said the new federal farm bill isn't the best that could have been devised but that it is helping bring some grain prices up.

In response to a question, the governor said money collected since July at the current tax rates won't be squirreled away for potential funding of state aid, even if citizens approve higher state aid when they ballot in the 1978 general election.

If that happens, Exon said, a special legislative session would probably have to be called to make provisions for the funding the increase would make necessary.

During the press conference, Exon said he was "feeling fine" after recuperating from surgery on his parathyroid glands.

He also reiterated that he will announce his future political plans "some time between now and the end of the year."

The governor is expected to seek the U.S. Senate nomination on the Democratic ticket.

Johnson in Race

State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson says he will be a candidate for the U.S. Senate on the Republican ticket.

He confirmed he will be among a potentially large field of Republicans seeking the nomination in the May 1978 primary.

Johnson, 54, is in his seventh year as auditor. He is a graduate of Creighton University and is a certified public accountant.

He said he will make his formal announcement soon and that he had been encouraged by many Republicans across the state to get into the race.

Johnson said he expects Gov. J. James Exon to be the Democratic nominee but added he doesn't believe the governor will have an easy time transferring his high popularity as the state's chief executive to the senate race.

He said he is sure Don Shasteen, administrative aide to Sen. Carl Curtis, will be in the field of GOP primary election candidates.

Johnson said he discussed his plans with Shasteen to let him know of his own plans.

Others whose names have been mentioned as possible Republican candidates for the seat Curtis will vacate include State Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus and Attorney General Paul Douglas.

Johnson says a campaign against Exon "would be tough but I think it could be won."

New President

A man who says he enjoys being a college administrator will take over Dec. 1 as president of Peru State College.

He's Larry Tangeman, Chadron State's academic vice president, who was recently tabbed for the Peru State post by the Board of Trustees for State Colleges.

Tangeman was among a field of more than 100 persons who were nominated or applied for the job of heading Nebraska's oldest and smallest state college.

Immediately after he was given the job, he said Peru State has a long history of faculty, student and alumni support — perhaps better than any in the state.

Tangeman said he won't be making wholesale changes at Peru and acknowledged he is no expert on the college's problems.

One of them has been low enrollment. That trend continued this fall, although the freshman class was up 16.8 percent — largest in the state.

Tangeman stressed that Peru is academically sound and noted that it recently won reaccreditation from the North Central Association of Colleges and the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

He would like to get enrollment up to 1,000. It currently is about 745.

Tangeman has spent much of his career at Chadron State where he has been academic vice president since 1961. He served a stint as acting Chadron State president while Dr. Edwin Nelson, the president, spent some time in the four state colleges' office at Lincoln.

Gasohol Conference

About 150 persons from 24 states and Canada came to Lincoln recently to get information on Nebraska's Gasohol program.

Many of them said they were impressed by various presentations. "But they heard a word of warning from Eugene Ecklund, a federal energy official who said the main problem with alcohol fuels is one of economics.

Gasohol is a blend of 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent grain alcohol and has been strongly promoted by Nebraska as a fuel extender that could also put to good use mountains of surplus grain.

William Scheller, a University of Nebraska faculty member who serves as technical advisor to the Nebraska Gasohol Committee, said the blended fuel is up to five percent more efficient in miles per gallon than unleaded gasoline and that there are indications protein in the left over grain in the alcohol production process could be sold as a human food supplement.

Terry Klopsenstein, another University of Nebraska professor, said experiments have indicated the by-products probably have good potential as livestock feed.

Gov. J. James Exon said a feasibility study being made should help answer the question of what grain and fuel prices would make Gasohol profitable.

Don Shasteen, aide to Sen. Carl Curtis told the conference the question of economic feasibility will be answered if Congress approves a four cents per gallon tax break for Gasohol. He predicted the tax advantage would be okayed.

Nebraska Marriages

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln Bureau of Sociological Research showed Nebraskans are more apt to stay married than the national population.

Three percent of Nebraskans over the age of 18 are divorced, compared with five percent nationally.

The report attributed the influence of religion as one possible factor affecting Nebraska's lower divorce rate.

According to the report, 20 percent of Nebraskans with no religious affiliation have been divorced, compared with 11 percent of the Protestants and 8.5 percent of the Catholics.

Another finding in the survey was that those living in urban areas are three times more likely to have been divorced than rural residents.

Age was cited as another factor. Persons who marry at 17 or younger are five times more apt to get divorced than those who marry after age 24. The survey showed.

OBSERVATIONS

Don't forget Honey Sunday

The Wayne County Association of Retarded Citizens will be offering local residents a sweet deal Sunday afternoon; a chance to buy a jar of honey, with the proceeds helping support local and state programs for the mentally retarded.

Although Honey Sunday sales will be conducted this year in much the same manner as previously, there is a difference. The sale in this area before was conducted under the auspices of the Northeast Nebraska ARC. Wayne County members of the regional organization about a year ago decided they could do more to help local people by forming a county chapter, and the Wayne County ARC is the result.

Part of the money resulting from the honey sale helps support state programs for the mentally retarded, but now, the portion dedicated for local projects will be used in Wayne County. Honey purchasers can be assured that a healthy portion of the $1.25 they spend for a jar of honey will be used to help Wayne County residents. It's a honey of a deal — one you shouldn't pass by. — Jim Strayer.

Farm interest costs increasing

Farmers and ranchers are spending $203 in 1977 for production items that could be obtained for $100 in 1967 and a sizable hunk of those increased costs is for the interest on the extra money they have to borrow to finance their operations.

A Nebraska farmer and cattle feeder recently cited the interest burden that he and most other farmers and ranchers are carrying today as compared to a decade ago. He explained, "It isn't that interest rates are so much higher, because they are not. It is simply that we are having to borrow so much more money than we used to need."

Since production costs have more than doubled in the past 10 years, it means that farmers and ranchers are borrowing much more money and paying more interest than they did before. Growth of the farm debt has been on the alarming side in the past couple of years. The Cooperative Farm Credit System loaned more than $37 billion to farmers and their cooperatives in the year ended June 30, and had more than $40 billion in loans outstanding on that day. The volume of money loaned by the system was up nearly 14 per cent from the year before and the amount outstanding, up 15.6 per cent.

A recent survey of 400 bankers in a nine-state area including Nebraska revealed that a one-third of the farm operators borrowing from banks in the area have run into trouble repaying their loans. As of last March 31, total dollar volume of bank loans in the nine states was 17 per cent higher than a year earlier. Agricultural loans not secured by real estate were up 19 per cent. At the same time, total deposits in those banks had risen only 11 per cent and nearly half of the bankers indicated that their banks had more outstanding loans than desired in relation to total deposits.

USA "balance sheet" for the "average farm" in the United States published recently indicated that the increase in the value of farm real estate is the main reason that the average farm has remained in a position of equity.

The USDA figures showed that the financial assets of the average farm rose from $51,464 in 1960 to $103,669 in 1970 and by 1977 had jumped to $230,473. Of this total, the real estate value had climbed from $32,945 in 1960 to $70,026 in 1970, and then to $167,642 in 1977.

On the debt side, the average farm's liabilities had climbed from $6,252 in 1960 to $17,951 in 1970 and then to $36,994 in 1977. What this means is that the average farmer in the U.S. in 1960 was paying interest on $6,252 of borrowed money whereas in 1977 he was paying interest on $36,994. Considering that interest rates are considerably higher in 1977 than in 1960, it is safe to assume that the average farm operator's interest burden is about six times more than it was 17 years ago.

Inflation is a major culprit of course, for the biggest debt increase have taken place since 1970 and particularly since 1974, a year of drought and the year the bottom fell out of the cattle market. The USDA's "average farm" balance sheet indicated that in 1960, the average farmer owed $2,909 in non-real estate debt but by 1977 this non-real estate debt total had increased to $16,247, which means that the interest burden on operational debt had increased at least five-fold.

Readily available credit is an absolute necessity to farm and ranch operations. The rate at which the farm debt has been growing raises serious questions about how long the depressed farm economy can manage the interest load and remain solvent. — M.M. VanKirk, Farm Bureau Federation.

WAY BACK WHEN

30 years ago
Nov. 13, 1947: The first snow storm of the season struck this section Thursday night. It followed considerable rain and motoring was hazardous with a coating of ice. Ted Mildner, son of Johanna Mildner, Wayne, last week joined the local Brown-McDonald store as manager of the men's department. Hans Lund, superintendent of the Winside Light plant, resigned his position effective Nov. 4. M.H. Brugger, Wayne, will inspect the Winside plant at certain intervals.

25 years ago
Nov. 6, 1952: Robert Boutling, Winside, who has operated a garage and auto repair business for the past 12 years, sold the business to John Gallop this week who took possession immediately. Paul Fenske, Hoskins, left last Wednesday to join other delegates to the World Conference of Christian Youth being held in Travençare, India, in December. A farewell service for Rev. Wallace Wolff and family was held Sunday at Trinity Lutheran Church, Winside. Rev. Wolff and family will leave Dec. 6 for British Guiana in South America, where he will serve as a missionary.

15 years ago
Nov. 8, 1962: A change has been made this year regarding the annual Business-Education dinner sponsored by Wayne Chamber of Commerce. In the past, Chamber members have taken teachers in the Wayne school system as their guests to a special dinner. This year, at least one representative from each business place will receive an invitation from one of the teachers in the schools to be his or her guest on one day during National Education Week — Nov. 12 to 16. Lauren Boeckenhauer, 16, son of the Robert Boeckenhauers, Wayne, has won a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress with his 4-H boy's record project. He is one of 32 Nebraska 4-H Club members named as delegates to the Congress at Chicago, Nov. 25-29.

10 years ago
Nov. 9, 1967: Linda Dendinger, Laurel, and Bob Pierson, Sioux City, won the titles of Best Dressed Woman and Man at Wayne State College. A student-faculty panel of judges selected them Saturday from 16 contestants on the basis of their clothing and poise. Three new directors have been elected to the board of directors of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

The tax reform game: how to keep score

In his iconoclastic book "Plagues and Peoples," author William H. McNeill divides the critters that prey on man into two classes: microparasites and macroparasites.

The former are the viruses, bacteria, etc. The latter are governments. In either case, McNeill points out, the most successful of these parasites are those that maintain themselves at the least expense to their hosts. That is, if you expect to live off the milk from your cow, it makes sense to take good care of the cow.

Conversely, diseases — and governments — that treat their hosts harshly threaten their own ability to survive. A disease that kills too quickly wipes out all the available hosts in a short space of time and then has nowhere else to go. A government that takes too much from its subjects reduces their ability to earn future income, with which to pay future taxes.

All of which is a long way to back into an essay on tax reform. There is, obviously, a point somewhere between zero taxation and 100 per cent taxation at which incentive is sufficiently penalized that the total tax take of the government begins to decline, even with higher tax rates. An enlightened society will see that the tax burden remains below that point. Within this limit, whatever it is (and some experts think we may already have reached it), there are innumerable ways to jiggle the figures. And juggling the figures is often what tax "reform" comes down to.

The game is not an easy one to play, even for the most dedicated and conscientious. There are tradeoffs everywhere. Here are just a few examples:

—Simplifying the language. Sounds like a good idea. But a tax code that is easier for the layman to understand may also be less precise. And the lack of precision may make tax evasion easier for the sharpies.

—Ending "loopholes" that most benefit the rich. Charitable contributions and tax-free state and municipal bonds are usually included in this category. Trouble is, they benefit a lot of people, not just the rich. The local governments and the charities need the money. If they don't get it from "the rich," they will have to get it from you.

—Taxing capital gains as ordinary income. Capital is the money that makes money. Taking it away is like taxing the cow's feed rather than her milk.

—What kind of reform would I favor? First — and above all — it's time for an across-the-board tax cut. Such a move would help businesses and individuals to save a buck. From these savings would come the capital to invest in new or expanded enterprises. And from that investment would come more jobs, increased productivity (which is anti-inflationary), and ultimately, higher tax revenues from a bigger economy.

There are several other changes that would promote savings and investment. A more liberal depreciation allowance and a 12 per cent investment tax credit would encourage business to modernize and expand. Elimination of the double tax on corporate dividends would help, too.

Some of these suggestions are rumored to be included in the Carter Administration's "tax reform" package. To that extent, I can support it.

But there are other rumors about what's in the package that sound dangerous, petty, inequitable, or a combination of all three. One of these is the proposal to put a ceiling on the deduction for mortgage interest and other interest on personal loans. The ceiling would be a high one at first. That's the sugar coating on the pill. But don't think it won't affect you eventually. If housing prices continue to rise at the current rate (thanks to inflation and other causes), it won't be long before the "high" ceiling becomes uncomfortably low for most people.

Then there's the plan to withhold taxes from the interest on savings accounts and dividends, at a rate of 20 per cent. This would be a severe blow to retired people who need the income from their savings to live on. Even if they owed no tax, they would have to wait until the end of the year to get their money back.

Finally, there are the proposals to tax health insurance and other "fringe benefits." Can you believe it? The very same people who fret about the high cost of health care want to make it still more expensive for you.

How will it all come out? It's too early to tell. But there's one thing you can count on: Don't expect much tax relief if you're in that broad "middle income" range. That's where the money is, in this country. And the tax "reformers" know it. There's only one route to a significant, lasting tax cut: Cut government spending. — Richard Leshar, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Whiskers notebook

Teeth tell the story!

I wish the artist that draws me would show me smiling more often. Being a vole, I'm quite proud of my front teeth. You see, the kind of teeth a mammal has gives a good clue to what it is and how it lives. Carnivores have long, sharp-pointed front teeth for catching and tearing. Their back teeth are a little like grindstones for chewing their food after it's caught. Check your dog's teeth... he's a carnivore. We voles are herbivores. My front teeth have very sharp edges for biting off grass and other plants, but they're not pointed at the ends. Being a rodent, my front teeth are long and chisel-like for gnawing. They wear down from heavy use, but will keep growing back to make up for the wear. Can you identify these herbivores and carnivores from the clues in their names?

Crime Prevention

Is Class Topic

The Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and criminal justice department of Northeast Technical Community College will host a workshop entitled "Crime Prevention for Business and Industry" on Wednesday.
The workshop will be held in the Community Services room of NTC from 1 to 5 p.m.
Subjects which will come under discussion include those dealing with internal theft (inventory control, cash control and customer service) and external theft (shoplifting, robbery and bad checks). Also covered will be burglary and fire prevention and safety requirements.
Instructor for the course will be Patrick Ormeier, who received his bachelor's and master's degrees in criminal justice from the University of Nebraska-Omaha. He has five years experience in retail management, three years of which were in retail security. He is licensed as a plain clothes investigator in Nebraska and is a reserve deputy with the Douglas County sheriff's department.
Ormeier is a member of several professional criminal justice and security organizations and is the director of the Private Security Program at Metropolitan Technical Community College in Omaha.
The registration cost per person will be $2. Anyone interested in attending should register in advance by telephone or in person at the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce.

Support Data Vital in Filing Claims for SSI

People who plan to apply for supplemental security income (SSI) payments can help speed the processing of their claim, Dale Branch, Social Security district manager in Norfolk, said today.

SSI payments are made to people who are age 65 and over, or blind, or disabled and who don't own much property or have much income. SSI is administered by Social Security.

They can help, Branch continued, by getting together material to support their claim before they contact a Social Security office to apply.

Branch suggested that people get the following kinds of information together first: proof of age, even if the person already gets social security benefits; the person's latest tax bill or assessment notice if the person owns real property other than his or her own home; name of any persons who help support the applicant and the amount of money provided; bank books, stock certificates, bonds, and checking account statements; motor vehicle registration; proof of pensions and annuities; a copy of the person's most recent tax return if self-employed; if blind or disabled, a list of the doctors, hospitals, or clinics where treated.

A person can apply for SSI payments at any Social Security office. The basic federal SSI payment is $177.80 a month for an individual and $266.70 for an eligible couple. Not everyone gets this much, however, because most other income causes the SSI payment to be reduced. The value of a person's real and personal property may have an effect on eligibility. Not all property counts, though. A person's home doesn't count and neither does a car of reasonable value, nor small life insurance policies.

Property that does count includes savings accounts, stocks, bonds, jewelry, and other valuables. If the value of this kind of property is more than $1,500 for an individual or $2,250 for a couple, SSI payments cannot be made.

Three Wayne County Leaders Mark 10 Years of 4-H Service

Three Wayne County 4-H leaders were singled out for their 10 years of service Monday night during the annual leaders banquet.

They were Wallace Anderson of Laurel, Mrs. Melvin Dowling of Randolph and Herb Niemann of Carroll. Anderson is in charge of the Deer Creek Valley club. Mrs. Dowling directs the Sholes Kountry Kids and Niemann is the leader for the Pleasant Valley Livestock Club.

Those three plus 38 other leaders in Wayne County were honored for their years of service during a dinner at the Student Center on the Wayne State campus.

Guest speaker Wes Wingett of the Northern Nebraska Mental Health Center in Norfolk applauded the efforts of the leaders saying their leadership in 4-H club's is helping to fulfill the challenge of today's youth.

Through 4-H children are given responsibility to do things and challenges to improve. He told a group of about 130 at the Birch Room.

Wingett encouraged leaders to "let the kids do things for themselves" by offering them the training needed to get the job done. Training and giving encouragement are two important areas both parents and leaders should concentrate on to help youths to establish self-confidence and an atmosphere of responsibility, he said.

When a child asks about how you feel about his project, Wingett advised that the parents or leader reverse the question and ask the child to evaluate the situation. That way a child learns to evaluate for himself and gain confidence, he said.

Prior to Wingett's talk, two other 4-H'ers presented their speeches as a part of the newly formed 4-H Ambassador club. Blaine Johs, a member of the Wayne County Peppy Pals, discussed "Why think Metric?," focusing his talk on the new metric measuring system. Judy Bauermeister of the Southside Dairy Club gave a speech on "Good Ole Dairy."

Leaders who received pins: Two Years: Mrs. John Anderson, Waldron Bull, Mrs. Richard Baier, Mrs. Leon Daum, Mrs. Robert Fleming, Mrs. B.J. Hirt, Mrs. Dennis Janke, Walter Jager, Merlin Kenny, Mrs. John Melena, Mrs. Pat Gross, Mrs. Karl Oite, Mrs. Robert Porter, Mrs. Larry Willers, Mrs. Wayne Wessell, all of Wayne; Robert Anderson, Steve Davids, Mrs. Melvin Meierhenry, all of Hoskins; Kermit Benschoff, Martin Hansen, both of Carroll; Mrs. Donovan Leighton, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mundil, Mrs. Allen Schluter, all of Winside; Roger Luft, Albert Nelson, Connie Roberts, all of Wakefield.

Five Years — Mrs. Waldron Bull, Mrs. Robert Foote, Mrs. Lester Hansen, Cyrill Hansen, Mrs. Russell Lindsay Jr., Mrs. Dwayne Rethwisch, Mrs. John Vakoc, all of Wayne; Mrs. Ed Gnrk, Dennis Puls, Mrs. Kenard Woodckman, all of Hoskins; Mrs. Neil Sandahl of Wakefield.

Two Selected For Golden Yield Awards

Ted and Mike Rewinkel, both of Wakefield are receiving a high yield awards from Golden Harvest hybrids for his yield in the 1977 Golden Yields Achievement, a project studying corn growers who are striving for higher yields.

Ted's entry yield was 166.5 bushels per acre made with Golden Harvest H-2500. His field was planted on May 8 in 40 inch rows. Final plant population was 24,750 per acre. When the field was harvested on Oct. 12, the moisture had reached 26.5 percent.

Mike's entry yield was 168.5 bushels per acre made with Golden Harvest H-2500. His field was planted on May 8 in 40 inch rows. Final plant population was 24,500 per acre. When the field was harvested on Oct. 12, the moisture had reached 26.5 percent.

Farmers all over the cornbelt who are taking part in the Golden Yields Achievement project this year must machine harvest a minimum of one acre from adjacent rows running the length of the field. A witness' presence is required during harvest. All yields are converted to No. 2 corn.

Wayne Winner Girls

The Wayne Winners Girls 4-H Club held their regular meeting at the Lutheran Church in Wayne the evening of Nov. 3. Eight members, five mothers, new member Jennifer Moore and one guest were present.

Roll call was answered with plans for Thanksgiving Day. Anne and Lori Sorensen gave the lesson on 4-H peanutbutter drop cookies and later served them for lunch.

Members made Christmas ornaments and plans were made for a Christmas party with a grab-bag gift exchange.

The next meeting will be Dec. 6 in the home of Mrs. Kenny Hamer at 7 p.m.

UN-L Economists Report On Energy and Irrigation

A 50 percent increase in the price of energy (fuels or electricity) would allow many Nebraska irrigation systems to continue operating at tolerable cost of production levels, but some marginal systems would become too uneconomical to operate.

This is one of the conclusions in a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Agricultural Economics report by Dr. Bruce Johnson and Dr. Philip Henderson.

However, the Author's statement that "under certain circumstances rather substantial (energy) price increases could take place before major alteration in irrigated agriculture would occur," is hedged by the future market prices of farm commodities, such as corn.

The economists analyze that with higher crop prices, higher energy costs could be absorbed by producers with no major incentive for changing irrigation and other farming practices. They cite the economic truism that "so long as returns would remain above the costs of production, further irrigation development would likely take place."

Johnson and Henderson estimate that a 50 percent rise above current energy levels would raise per unit production costs for corn from 7 to 15 percent. At this higher level, they say, many systems would continue to operate with costs of production comparable to today's figures under more costly systems.

Long term trends toward lower commodity prices would be "the straw that breaks the camel's back" for marginal irrigation operations — those with lower crop yield potential or higher energy demands.

Actually, the UN-L economists reason, "the rising energy price levels would likely provide for the majority of irrigation farmers the economic incentive for better management." They pointed to Nebraska research showing that irrigators can save nearly one-half their irrigation water and one-half the energy by following recommended irrigation practices.

Application rates of 30 or more inches of water annually would no longer be economical, the report states. To survive, irrigators would need to apply to their enterprises water monitoring technology, irrigation scheduling, improved crop selections and better crop management. Especially needed are more answers through research on benefits (yield response) from each additional acre-inch of water in order to "compare against its marginal costs, the economists explain.

Johnson and Henderson in their report suggest these broad implications for irrigated agriculture if energy costs were to increase substantially:

— Possible curtailment of further irrigation development as energy price increases reduce the relative profitability of irrigation over dryland production practices.

— Increased difficulty in justifying economically the substitution of capital for labor when land is shifted from gravity to center pivot irrigation.

— An erosion of Nebraska's relative competitive position with other major corn-growing states. One study shows that energy cost averaged 12 percent of variable costs of cash-grain production in central Iowa and northern Illinois compared to 17 percent for irrigated corn in Nebraska. A relatively greater cost increase for Nebraska irrigated corn producers resulting from higher energy costs, coupled with commodity prices, could result in crop production from one part of the region to another.

In an introduction to the publication, "Energy Price Levels and the Economics of Irrigation," the authors report that corn raised under a typical center-pivot irrigation system in the state requires an average of 87 gallons of diesel fuel (or energy equivalent) per acre, of which 53 gallons is for irrigation. Gravity type (gated pipe or siphon) irrigation systems use roughly 60 percent as much energy as the center pivot system.

Emphasizing that a number of variables makes energy consumption unique for each individual irrigation situation, the economists generalize that the impact of rising energy prices would be most severe for those units which currently are high-cost systems. Units tending to be relatively more vulnerable to higher price levels for energy would be center pivot operations with high annual pumping rates or deep pumping depths.

To illustrate the effect of a possible 50 percent increase in energy costs, the authors used as irrigated cash grain corn See REPORT, page 7

Feed Grain Loan Date Extended

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that 1976-crop feed grain loans due to mature before Jan. 31, 1978 may be extended at the option of the producer to that date.

USDA officials on Aug. 15 had announced that feed grain loans maturing prior to Oct. 31 could be extended to Oct. 31. These loans may also be extended to Jan. 31. Feed grains include barley, corn, oats and sorghum.

With the later loan maturity date, farmers have the option of continuing to hold their grain for the feed grain reserve program authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977. Details of this program will be announced soon by USDA and will be made available to feed grain producers through Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) County Offices.

Under Commodity Loan Programs, producers borrow money from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), offering their crops as collateral. The loans are "nonrecourse" which means that when the loan matures, producers either repay the loan plus interest or forfeit the commodity to CCC.

CCC loans are administered by ASCS. Farmers who wish to extend the maturity date of their loans should contact their county ASCS office.

The loan extension was in response to the State ASC Committee request that producers be provided additional time on 1976 corn and feed grain loans.

Grain Show Schedules Set

There's still time for 4-H and FFA members carrying a crop project to submit grain entries in one of the four grain shows to be held around the state in December.

According to Duane Foote, Extension agronomist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, grains other than wheat are due no later than Nov. 18 and must contain five pounds of grain. Classes in the show are provided for corn, grain sorghum, soybeans and wheat. Barley and oat samples will be entered in a single class.

The grain show schedule is as follows:
 —Dec. 7 Northeast Community College, Norfolk, 9:30 a.m.
 —Dec. 9 Gateway Auditorium, Lincoln, 9:30 a.m.
 —Dec. 14, 4-H Building, Clay Center, 9:30 a.m.
 —Dec. 15, North Platte Station, North Platte, 9:30 a.m.

"Bags and tags for submitting grain entries for the grain show are available from county Extension agents or vocational agriculture instructors, who in turn request them from the office of the Nebraska Grain Improvement Association," said Foote.

The crops judging contest for FFA members will be held at each of the four locations where the grain shows are being held. "These contests include crop and weed seed identification, seed analysis and grain grading. A similar contest was held for 4-H members at the Nebraska State Fair," Foote said.

The Crop Production Contest deadline for entries has passed.

Foote said, but those 4-H and FFA members who have entered must follow some special guidelines to complete the requirements for the contest, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

"The 4-H and FFA members must weigh the grain from the contest area and secure a reading of the moisture content of the sample taken from the lot of grain. Samples do not have to be submitted in this event. Contestant and harvest reports for the fall-harvested crops must be submitted to county Extension agents and vo-ag instructors as soon after harvest as possible but no later than Dec. 1," he said.

Extension agronomists J.D. Furrer and Alex Martin said the program format for the one-day clinics will be similar to that of previous years. Two separate sessions—one for weed science and a joint one for entomology and plant pathology—will be held concurrently throughout the day at each location except at Valentine and Curtis.

The schedule: Jan. 16, The Knolls, Lincoln; 17—Valley View Country Club, Fremont; 18—Legion Club, Auburn; 19—4-H Building, Fairgrounds, Fairbury; 20—The Garden, Hastings; 24—Panhandle Station, Scottsbluff; 25—Holiday Inn, Ogallala; 26—Elks Club, Cozad; 27—Ramada Inn, Kearney; 30—Legion Club, St. Paul; 31—St. Nicholas Parish Hall, Valentine.

February 1—Legion Club, O'Neill; 2—Villa Inn, Norfolk; 17—UN-L School of Technical Agriculture, Curtis.

WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

A frost does not signal the end of the season for effective use of 2,4 D, Dandelion and Tordan. Weeds that are still green and appear healthy after a frost can still be treated if the weather is favorable. Warm days with temperatures in the 50s or above are needed for best results.

Plants such as dandelions, musk thistle, plumless thistle, Canada thistle and field bindweed will normally tolerate a frost. Pennycress, tansy mustard and other winter annual broadleaf weeds can also be sprayed after a frost. The key is to examine the weeds. If they survived the frost with normal leaf color it is not too late to spray.

PROTECTING CONCRETE

Air-entrained cement should be used for exposed concrete. Salts, fertilizer, milk, manure and silage acids, plus continued exposure, all can cause rapid wear on concrete. Driveways, sidewalks, feeding slabs, alleyways, waterer platforms and milkhouse and barn floors are examples. In addition to the use of air-entrained cement, a low surface treatment will seal and protect the concrete from deterioration. This is especially important for concrete poured in cool fall weather.

CONCRETE TREATMENTS

A 50-50 mixture of boiled linseed oil and turpentine provides an economical surface treatment. Boiled oil dries more rapidly than raw oil. A second coat of linseed oil over this further extends the life of the treatment, which should protect the concrete for about three years. Another treatment recommended by the Portland Cement is a 50-50 mixture of SAE No. 5 oil and Stoddard's Solvent.

Concrete poured during the fall must be protected against freezing. To develop near maximum strength, conventional concrete must be cured for at least 28 days at temperatures of about 70 degrees Fahrenheit. With temperatures near the freezing mark, it takes considerably longer for concrete to reach maximum strength. An outdoor concrete feeding slab poured in cool fall weather would not attain full strength until perhaps a year later.

It is most important to keep a concrete slab surface damp for a minimum of one week. This permits the concrete to cure and prevents a too rapid water movement out of the concrete, which results in weak concrete. Be sure to keep floors damp or covered with plastic if a heater is used to keep a building warm for construction. The heater dries out the air which causes the fresh concrete to dry and become dusty and weak.

Corn Production Up One Percent

Corn production is forecast at a record 6,303 million bushels based on conditions as of Oct. 1, up one percent (74 million bushels) from the Sept. 1 forecast and one percent above 1976.

Sorghum grain production is forecast at 771 million bushels, down two percent (15 million bushels) from Sept. 1 but seven percent above last year.

Feed grain production (corn, sorghum, oats and barley combined) is forecast at a record high 200 million metric tons, four percent more than a year ago.

Soybean production, forecast at a record 1,647 million bushels, is up fractionally (three million bushels) from a month earlier and 30 percent above last year.

All wheat production is indicated at 2,027 million bushels, six percent less than last year's crop.

Food grain output (wheat, rye, and rice combined) is expected to total 60 million metric tons, six percent less than last year.

Carroll Farmer Is 'Yieldmaster'

Glen Loberg of Carroll was recently named a member of the DeKalb Yieldmasters Club for producing 179.07 bushels of corn per acre in 1977 from a selected area.

His yield, based on 15.5 percent moisture, was mechanically harvested from a solid block measuring 1.413 acres. A reliable third party verified the high yield which was recorded from a field of DeKalb XL-64a.

Loberg planted the crop on May 12 in 30 inch rows and harvested an estimated stand of 24,000 plants per acre on October 18.

Planting, fertilizer and chemical application rates vary with conditions. However, his fertilizer program included 196 pounds of nitrogen, 68 pounds of phosphate and 38 pounds of potash. Loberg controlled weeds with Lasso 4 at two quarts per acre and Bladex was used at 1.5 pounds per acre. Dyfonate was used at 11 pounds per acre for insect control. An estimated 14 inches of rain fell on the crop from planting to harvest. Another six inches of water was applied through irrigation.

Chickadees and nuthatches are two kinds of birds that are very fond of peanut butter.

Report

 enterprise in central Nebraska using a representative farm budget. Under a diesel powered gravity irrigation system, with a total head of 145 feet and pumping 20 inches of water annually, total irrigation costs (fixed plus operating costs) at current energy price levels are $57.94 per acre. Total production costs are $277.23 per acre, making the cost of production $2.13 a bushel on an average yield of 130 bushels per acre. Corn sold at $2.13 per bushel would yield sufficient revenue to cover all costs, and include a return to the producer's management and labor; a selling price of more than $2.13 a bushel would yield a true profit.

If energy prices were to increase 50 percent, total irrigation costs for the same irrigation enterprise would increase to $66.14 per acre. Fertilizer costs from fossil fuel sources would also go up an estimated 25 percent, along with increased costs for machinery and grain drying, making total production costs $295.78 per acre, or equal to $2.28 a bushel.

Thus, a 50 percent increase in energy prices added 15 cents to the per bushel cost of production, which would require an additional 15 cents of revenue per bushel to cover all costs of the enterprise," Johnson and Henderson calculate.

For systems already in operation, they say, operators will be faced with the challenge of protecting their investment by continuing to operate on the basis of minimizing losses. Un less resources could be allocated to a more economical alternative, irrigation would continue if returns above out-of-pocket costs are greater than those which would be realized by reverting to dryland production.

The economists stressed that minimizing of losses can be only a short-run strategy, and ultimately adjustments must be made so that all costs are covered by crop revenues. If this is not accomplished, reversion to dryland farming of liquidation must take place.

They suggested several types of adjustment in irrigation operations to retrench in the face of spiraling production costs:

— Because irrigation is energy intensive, applying less water could be one response to the energy price rise. If fewer inches of water could be applied annually, and yields could be maintained through improved management, the drop in per acre production costs would compensate for the energy price rise and keep the operation in the profit column.

Effective installation and management of reuse (tail-water) systems on surface irrigation systems also could help to mitigate energy price increases. An estimated 25 to 40 percent of irrigation water can be saved by using reuse systems.

— Shift to different crops, such as from corn to sorghum, to trim irrigation demands.

In the end, the authors return to the theme that the price received by farmers for crops will greatly influence the impact of any energy price increases on the economics of irrigation. In the case of the central Nebraska irrigation enterprise used as an example, a corn selling price of $3 per bushel, with a 50 percent energy price increase, would simply reduce the producer's margin (return above all costs) from 87 cents a bushel to 72 cents a bushel.

"Unless there was an obvious opportunity to reduce costs, the producer would not be likely to alter this enterprise or his methods of irrigation in response to an energy price increase," they conclude.

The Ernest Carlsons spent Oct. 27-31 in the Carroll Holmes home, Grand Island, the Merrill Bailey home, Central City, and the Harold McDonald home, Neligh.

The Carlsons were Friday supper guests in the Jim Erwin home to help J.J. celebrate his second birthday.

15 Day Trip
 The George Bingham returned home Nov. 1 from a 15-day trip in the South to visit relatives in El Campo and Houston, both in Texas, and the home, library and museum of the late President Lyndon Johnson at Johnson City.

Oct. 30 they attended the Texas-SMU football game at College Station. On their return home they were overnight guests in the home of Rev. H.K. Nierman, Perry, Okla.

WCTU To Meet
 The Friendship Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet Nov. 15 at 2 p.m. at the Dixon United Methodist Church.

Best Ever
 The Best Ever Club met the afternoon of Nov. 3 in the home of Mrs. Newell Stanley. Eight members answered roll call.

Mrs. Gerald Stanley was a visitor. Cards were played and Mrs. Soren Hansen received the door prize.

Mrs. Dave Abts will be the Dec. 7 hostess.

Missionary Guests
 Mildred Nelson, missionary to the Philippines, and Mavis Jansma, missionary to the Con-
