A survey of income levels and income distribution, covering all areas of the country, shows that in Wayne County, appreciable gains were made by most families in the past few years. The progress is altfoluted, largely, to the fact that more married women are working, brining home second paychecks. Part of the added cash, however, went to meet the steadily rising cost of living. With the increase in family earnings, there has been a gradual movement into higher income brackets. Some families, who had been at the $5,000 to $10,000 to before. have graduated to the $10,000 to have graduated to the $10,000 to spot. Others have climbed still

Show apon oncome the farther. The upward shift has been taking place across the board, with the result that the proportion of local families remaining in the very low income groups is now smaller than ever. The facts and figures are brought out in a new report issued by the Marketing Economics. Institute. It indicates how in-come is distributed in each area.

In Wayne County, it shows, some 60.6 percent of the households had incomes of $8,000 or more in the past year. That was a larger proportion than was found in many parts of the country. What the study sought to provide was a better understanding of the buying power in each community, beyond that revealed by its average income figure alone.

I shows whether that average com-prises a small proportion of families with very big incomes compensating for a larger proportion with low incomes, or whether earnings are better distributed. The breakdown figures for Wayne County indicate what the spread is in the area and where local families stand on the income laddar.

Listed with income radian. Listed with incomes of $8,000 to $10,000 are 11.5 percent of the households. Between $10.00 and $15,00 are 21.1 per-cent. Those earning $15,000 to $25,000 constitute 16.8 percent of the households. Some 11.1 percent have incomes: in ex-cess of $25,000. The rest are below $8,000.

Millions of Americans use non-prescrip-tion or over-the-counter drugs to get relief from minor problems such as headache, indigestion, constipation, mild aches and pains, and skin irritations. "There are thousands of over-the-coun-ter (OTC) drugs most persons can use safety and with beneficial results to re-lieve minor symptoms," says Tama Krause, area extension agent at the Northeast Station, near Concord. Even though OTC drugs can be bough time. They should not be used all the time. They can never "cure" disease, only relieve symptoms, and if problems persist, an appointment should be made with a physician. Mrs. Krause advises persons to read labels carefully before buying any drug product to make sure the drug is the right one for their particular symptoms. "Do not expect a miracle core." she says. "Sometimes advertising for over-he counter drugs exagerates the need for a drug, or creates a problem that doesn't even exist, or promises more results than can be expected." Advertising of OTC drugs is regulated by the Federal Trade Commission, which takes action to set That drug advertising is honest and gives the product's risks as vell as benefits. Consumers are advised to view advertisements of OTC drugs carefully so that they will not be persuad-ed to buy something they do not aeed. "No drug can make you look younger, lose weight or even relieve a headache in an instant," Mrs. Krause reminds. According to law, labels of OTC drugs must provide all the directions for use needed by the average person. This includes the conditions under which the drug should not be taken. However, no amount of labeling is beneficial if direc-tions are not read and followed, says Mrs. Krause. THE CONCEPT of togetherness again will play an important part in the outcome of basketball this year at Wayne State College. Head coach Jim Seward has been

Outcome of basketoaii this year ai mayne State College. Head coach Jim Seward has been putting more emphasis on his players being together this school year more so off the court than on. Reason: "Ever since I've been here basketball teams have been brand new," he reflected about incoming transfers who make the team. As a result, the coach wants his men to know each other better.

This summer Seward has taken his troops on a cance trip down the Niobrara, painted houses and met Friday mor-nings for breakfasts. The whole idea of the meetings, both on and off the court, is o promote learn unity, the coakh added. Unity will be the deciding factor, Seward admits, as his Cats progress through the season. If the club is divided, then the chaqces for a wimming season won't materialize.

"We don't have the individual talent and size to be a successful team, so we have to have a team effort. And to have that effort we have to stick together," Seward said.

Last year Wayne State played awfully well together during its 18-12 campaign, the coach went on. "We played a chailenging schedule and set a single game scoring record," he added. ed a single

Board of Equalization tax reduction no surprise

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN — If didn't come as a sur-prise when the State Board of Equaliza-tion approved lower sales and income tax rates for the next calendar year. Gov. J.J. Exon served advance notice several weeks previously that he would recommend reduced rates because the state's overall economy was in better-than-antic/pated condition. When if came time to act, the five-miember board volged 3.2 for cutting the sales fax from 3.5 to 3 per cent and molividual taxpayer's federal income tax liability.

Man and State Treasurer Frank Marsh, both Republicans. Johnson, who has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate, said his vote was not dictated by politics, but by his con-viction that the balance in the state treasury is such that a reduction is in reder rder. Exon and Peters presented projections indicating the rates adopted will leave the treasury with a balance of about $27 million by the end of the fiscal year next June 30. Several times during the discussion preceding the vote, Exon stressed there was a six per cent overlevy in the figures presented to hedge against mistakes in the estimated figures. He maintained budgef surpluses should be returned to the people "in the form of tax reduc-tions."

bugger surprises should be reducted to the people 'in the form of fax reduc-tions.'' The governor also disagreed with those who said a farmers' strike could sericus-ly affect revenues flowing to the state. The whole point of the proposed strike, be said, is to boost farm prices. If the farmers' activity is successful, there should be more money coming into the treasury. Exon said. Among those commenting on the pos-sible adverse effects on state revenues if the strike becomes a widespread reality was Lincoln businessman Bill Harris, who is frequenity referred to as a "watchdog" over state spending. He said he reductions could cause the state some cash shortages by this spring, and certainly by June. Harris emphasized the State Revenue is up five per cent this year is in sharp contrast to a major East Coast bank which figures farm income is down nine per cent.

Asking the board to take into consid-eration the possibility there well may be a more in the next Legislature to hold "in escrow" $20 million for local school districts was Ross Rasmussen, executive director of the State School Boards Association. The $20 million is the amount that would have been paid out to local school districts this year if the 1977 state aid to schools bill had not been suspended. It was that bill that received most of the blane when the equivalization board upped tax rates tas June. Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly said the new tax rates stemmed from political motives.

motives. He said if the revenue projections fall below expectations, and the rates have to be revised upward again next June, the Legislature will be blamed for spending Legislative will be obtained and to march. Warner said he will sponsor a bill to put the $20 million in state aid aside, pending the results of the referendum on it in the 1978 general election.

Religion Doing Well A recent report from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln indicates organized Peligion is doing well in the state. Sociology professor Hugh J. Whitt developed the report from information collected in the 1977 Nebraska Annual Social Indicators Survey.

During an average week, Whitt said, 55.3 per cent of the state's population attends religious services. That compares with an average of 42 per cent revealed in a 1976 national Gallup Poll.

in a 1976 national Gallup Poll. ... Whith said that comparison is not exact because different questions were asked. He said Nebraska's higher attendance stems from its traditionally stronger lies to religion, since nearly all population groups in Nebraska have attendance rates exceeding the national average. Just about all, of the Nebraskans inter-viewed were affiliated with a religious faith. Only 5.3 per cent reported no attended to the state of the state of the term of the state of the state of the state of the term of the state state of the state of the state of the state of the state the state of the state of the state of the state of the state the state of the state

The largest consisted of Lutherans with 20.1 per cent, followed by Methodists, 16.8 per cent, Presbyterians, 7.9 per cent, and Baptists, 5.9 per cent. According to The storvey, Catholics were more likely than Protestants to attend services. Among the Protestants arceap tart. while Methodists were low in comparison to other denominations... Mandatory Refirement There are a lot of older Nebraskans who would like to see and to manda-tory refirement systems. Some of them showed up at a hearing called by the Legislature's Refirement Systems Committee. They also had the support of a high school gerontology class trom Fairmont High School. Becky McCoy, spokesman for the support of a high school gerontology class trom Fairmont High School. Becky McCoy, spokesman for the should not be forced on anyone, if he or she is able to do the lob. Miss McCoy noted young Nebraskans are aware they probably will live longer than today's refirees and therefore will themselves face a longer period of refirement. Mer comments were applauded by the older persons at the hearing. They argued mandstory refirement is discri-minatory and forces financial hardships on the elderly for an extended period. This is especially true during a time of inflation when people are suddenly forced to live on half their income or less, the committee was told. John Lynch of Lincoln said the Nebras-kas State Education Association finds no south with the current refirement laws but has taken no official position on mandatory refirement proposits. Lynch suggested the committee wait and see what the federal government and the Congress will do about the matter.

A representative of the Nebraska Association of Public Employees, Roger Schultz, said that organization is against any increase in the retirement age. State workers may retire at 65 but ca continue on the job until 72, if the employer and employee agree to the arrangement.

Sunshine Law Changes The Political Accountability and Dis-closure Commission will suggest several amendments to the state's sunshine law.

One recommendation will be that anonymous donations of $25 or less be permitted. The law now provides that a candidate or political committee give anonymous donations to charity except money received through fund-raising ticket sales.

Another suggestion that will be given to the Legislature would remove the report-ing requirement for corporate contribu-tions of less than $50 or the same value in time spent by company or union officials in behalf of political candidates.

Also recommended was that non-income producing property be exempted from the personal financial reports required of office-holders and some state employees.

Carter energy plan 'taxes the woodpile

President Carter's Nov. 8 comments on the energy problem were much more moderate in tone than those he made on Oct. 13, which is certainly a move in the right direction. But he's still trying to self the sizzle, not the steak. The President says he wants to reduce our energy comsumption, shift away from oil and natural gas to other energy sources, and encourage production of energy in the United States. We are in complete agreement with those objec-tives. The trouble is, the energy plan he has proposed will not attain them, and he has not suggested any improvements.

has proposed will not attain them, and he has not suggested any improvements. If all energy price controls were removed and the government got out of the energy business, three things would happen: We would reduce our energy consumption. We would shift away from oil and natural gas to other energy sources. Production of energy in the United States would increase. Sound familiar?

Ground breaking ceremonies for Heri-tage Homes of Nebraska, Inc., scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, symbolize the beginning of a new industry in Wayne, and much more. Provident Carter is atraid to propose this course of action because there would also be a fourth effect: The owners of domestic American energy resources would make more money. Consequently, the president has designed an expensive, complicated, bureaucracy-loaded, inel-ficient energy plan that will have two major consequences. First, it will inhibit ful development of our own energy resources. And second, H will insure that foreign oil producers will always make more money than American oil produc-ers. The fact that we are willing to con-spire unwittingly to enrich foreign oil producers at the expense of our own is a measure of the blind prejudice many Americans have against the oil industry: a prejudice that is easily and skillfully exploited by politicians anxious to langer their own empire.

In spite of his problems, he will continue his experiment but will use three well-timed sprays at the most critical times to try to beat the insect problem. With all he restraints on the chemical companies, he fears they will simply quit making chemicals for rela-tively small crops like apples. He belaves from an economic standpoint producers will have to look more at organic-type farming. His candid conclusion was, "I do think we still need chemicals. There is room for chemicals. But in the future if we use hem a little more wisely, we'll all be happier."

Industrial development efforts are not always highly visible, but the work is constant and demands dedication. Wayne Development, Wayne Industries, and numerous other groups and individuals have continued to work to show industrial prospects that Wayne is a community on the move. We think Heritage Homes is proof of that, and we certaily want to take this opportunity to welcome them to the community. — Jim Strayer.

Thought for Today By Rowan Wiltse

"He who is the most slow in making a promise is the most faithful in the performance of it. . ." Pousseau

Promises are sometimes made too quickly, too glibly, and with insufficient regard for the moral obligations usually attached to them. A promise can be made with little effort, keeping it may be another matter. A consciencious person, aware of the duties and obliga-tions of his promises, may lend to make them more slowly. Once made, however, such promises carry a guarantee that they will be dependably performed. We are fully aware of our duties and obligations to yo when you come to us for help. Our policy is to be first of all your friend and secondarily your funeral director.

Around the home of the deceased, many tasks can be graciously handled by rela tives and friends. Some can answer the phone and the door to receive visitors, relay messages, accept gifts of food, etc. These helpful persons can spare the family from many concerns, yet make each caller welcome. A list of visitors and gifts should be kept for the family's later expressions of appreciation.
