Dr. Hargrave received a doctorate this year from the University of Northern Colorado in college student Personnel Administration. She previously received a master's degree from George Washington University, and a bachelor's degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

She has had a wide variety of job experiences; she was employed as a ski lodge manager in Aspen, Colo., a professional recreation specialist for the U.S. Army Special Services in Europe; worked in college recruitment for VISTA in Wash. D.C.; served as an education services officer for the U.S. Army in Worms, Germany; worked as the coordinator of high school college relations for Colorado Mountain College and served as the evening registrar at Aims Community College in Greeley, Colo.

As dean, Dr. Hargrave will be responsible for various areas of student services provided at WSC.

Lyle Seymour, WSC president, said Miss Hargrave will be a fine addition to WSC.

"We are pleased to have someone with the qualifications of Dr. Hargrave," he said. "We think she will make a fine contribution to Wayne State."

Brother Helped Form Nazi Party

Americans say "It can't happen here," but an Adolph Hitler could rise to power in any country under the right circumstances, the Rev. Bernard Strasser told an audience at Wayne State College Thursday night.

Strasser, chaplain at St. Joseph Nursing Home in Norfolk, bases that observation on first hand experience. "His brother, Gregor, helped organize the Nazi Party in Germany following WWI and was the No. 2 man in the organization before seeing the direction Hitler's leadership was taking the country he loved.

Gregor left the party in 1932. He was imprisoned in Berlin in 1934 and shortly thereafter was executed. Reinhard Heydrich, later appointed governor over Czechoslovakia when it was under Third Reich domination, was one of the executioners, Strasser said.

Another brother, Otto, was in the Nazi Party briefly but left in 1930 to organize his own national socialist organization, the Black Front.

Otto left Germany in 1933 after Hitler seized power and banned the Strasser brother's movement. Otto was pursued by the Gestapo with a million mark price on his head through Austria, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, and France before finally being saved by the British intelligence service, which helped him reach Portugal and finally Bermuda and Canada.

Following the war Otto returned to Germany where he was forced to fight in court for reinstatement of his citizenship and two doctorates which had been revoked by Hitler.

A third brother, Anton, was reported missing in action and presumed dead in 1943.

Gregor's two sons who also served with the German Army, also died during the war, one almost certainly a Gestapo victim, Strasser said.

A sister, Olga, lives near Munich with her husband, a retired army colonel.

Strasser himself was forced to flee his homeland in 1935, the year following Gregor's death.

"I knew too much," the 83-year-old chaplain said. "Also, I was a fighter against the Hitler youth movement in my college." Strasser had been a professor at the College of Metten in Lower Bavaria.

He went to Austria, then to Switzerland and was in Paris when it was bombed. He lived in Luxemborg and Belgium before coming to the United States in 1940 as a French and German language professor at St. John's College in Collegeville, Minn.

He came to Nebraska in 1950 and was pastor at Primrose and then at St. Henry near Howells.

In 1968 he became chaplain at St. Joseph Nursing Home in Norfolk.

"To understand how it was possible for Hitler to come to power, it is necessary to understand conditions in Germany following the Treaty of Versailles which ended World War I, Strasser said.

He and Otto and Gregor had all been artillery officers with the German Army during the war. Strasser was an observer in a balloon and later became a battery commander.

The treaty of Versailles was devastating to the German people, Strasser said. Imperial government was ended and with it a thousand years of tradition, and a way of life.

Germany was plunged into a vast economic depression, Strasser said. Two million soldiers returned to their homeland and had no way to earn a living. Unemployment was rampant. Germany was forced to make reparations for the war, causing unbelievable inflation, Strasser said, making the mark nearly worthless. Prices increased hourly and the middle class, the backbone of any society, Strasser said, was destroyed.

As an example of the value of German money, Strasser said that when he was ordained in Munich in 1923, a dinner for 60 people commemorating the occasion was paid for with three American dollars. An American cousin had sent him some money.

Economic depression, destruction of the middle class and an end of national tradition, Strasser said, left the German people bereft of elements of security, without faith.

"The German people were hungry in body and soul, totally uncertain and dissatisfied," Strasser said. Only under such conditions could Hitler have risen to power, he added, and Hitler was perfectly suited to take advantage of the conditions.

His personality was a unique combination of traits, Strasser said. He had an uncanny intuition which allowed him to sense the weaknesses in individuals or situations and take advantage of them.

"He knew all the weaknesses and vices of people," Strasser said. "He sensed them and used them for his own purposes."

Hitler also had a tremendous will power, Strasser said. "That was something I admired in him. He could force people to do a great many things by sheer force of will."

Hitler was amoral, Strasser said. He had no sense of good and bad, right and wrong, justice and injustice. His followers were immoral, Strasser added. They knew what was wrong and did it anyway. But the Fuehrer believed that what came to be considered justice was only the outcome of force.

Strasser was personally acquainted with Heinrich Himmler who became Gestapo chief. "I played cards with him many times."

Himmler was a man who replaced his lack of intelligence with brutality, Strasser said. "He was only happy when people were cowering before him in fear."

A man possessing an inferiority complex, particularly toward the Strasser brother, he See HITLER, page 10

Volunteers Wanted for 'Returnables' Drive

Anyone interested in helping with a drive to obtain legislation requiring that all beverage containers sold in Nebraska be returnable is invited to attend a meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Farm Bureau office at 100 S. Pearl Street in Wayne.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation is spearheading an initiative petition drive aimed at placing an issue on the ballot for the Nov. 7, 1978 general election, which, if successful, will require implementation of an "Oregon Plan" litter bill.

The law would require that a five-cent refundable deposit be placed on all beverage containers sold in the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Ring are heading the "Nebraskans for Returnable Containers" effort in Wayne County. State-wide goal of the drive is to obtain 50,000 signatures by Jan. 14, the day the Unicameral convenes. Wayne County's proportionate share is 312 signatures.

Ring said the proposed returnable container legislation was initially tried in Oregon and has since proved effective in Vermont, Michigan and Maine. Other states are in the process of doing the same.

Ring said that in Oregon, after several years experience with returnable container legislation, it has been found that 96 percent of the residents cooperate, their beverages cost no more than in surrounding states, no jobs were lost, recycling centers have increased in number, and a significant amount of energy has been saved.

The text of the proposed act states that every beverage (milk beverages including beer, mineral waters, soda water and similar carbonated soft drinks) container would have a refund value of at least five cents and dealers would be required to pay a refund for any container of the brands which they sell. Distributors would be required to refund the deposit to dealers.

Tom Prenger, owner of Wayne Cold Storage, a beer distributorship, previously has said he opposes the Oregon Plan, saying handling returnable containers would double his cost.

Prenger said the State of Washington Plan would be more equitable because all businesses which contribute to the litter See RETURNABLES, page 10

Carroll Native Is Farm Editor

Mary Pat Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick C. Finn of rural Carroll, has been named farm editor and area news reporter for the Norfolk Daily News.

Miss Finn, formerly on the Livestock Market Digest staff, succeeds Vicki Miller, who has accepted a position as northern sub-area coordinator for the Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency, with an office on the Norfolk Regional Center grounds.

Miss Finn is a graduate of Laurel-Concord High School and of Wayne State College where she received her bachelor of arts degree in education, graduating magna cum laude (with high honors). Her majors were broadcasting and journalism.

She has been working with the Livestock Market Digest, produced in the Daily News plant, since March 1973. She is secretary of the Norfolk branch of the American Association of University Women, is a member of the Sacred Heart-St. Mary's Catholic parish, and assists in editing the "Parish Profile" newspaper.

Special Meeting Slated

A special Wayne city council meeting is scheduled for 4 p.m. Tuesday at the Wayne city hall.

The council reportedly will be asked to reconsider a proposed project to build a sewer interceptor line to serve anticipated development east of the city.

Also on the agenda are a resolution for the Roosevelt Park storm sewer project, and consideration of a request for a sign permit for the Chrysler dealership located at Seventh and Main Streets.

Education Roles Hearing Set

A public hearing of the Nebraska Legislature's Postsecondary Education Advisory Committee on the "Role and Mission" of the Nebraska colleges and universities will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, at the Norfolk Public School administration building.

The Advisory Committee includes Senators Jerome Warner, Frank Lewis, Douglas Bereuter, Samuel Cullen, Gerald Koch, Richard Marvell, John Murphy and Tom Fitzgerald.

The committee was formed by the state legislature to define the purpose of degree granting institutions in Nebraska.

Tuesday's meeting will be a public review of recommendations as drafted by the committee for the legislature.

The drafted recommendations define the four state colleges including Wayne State primarily as institutions granting baccalaureate degrees in general academic, occupational, professional and education areas.

The college's second instructional priority, as drafted by the Advisory Committee, would be master's programs in education; third priority would be continuation and development of applied research and public service activities and fourth priority would be awarding specialist degrees in education administration in colleges now offering the degree (Kearney and Chadron).

State colleges, under the draft, would not be allowed to award

Choices for Planters Raising Questions

Displays showing type and location of trees proposed for planters in downtown Wayne went on display Friday in the State National Bank and First National Bank but just what type of foliage will eventually grace the planters is yet to be decided.

The improvement committee had pretty much selected the type of trees to be used, which they hoped would be provided by private donation. A letter presented at the city council meeting Tuesday night, however, suggested that flowers might be a better choice.

Reasons for objecting to trees included initial and replacement costs, problems with leaves, possible problems with birds roosting in the trees, and roots which would be cut if utilities under the sidewalks have to be worked on.

The council agreed to place discussion of the matter on the agenda for its next regular meeting.

Roger Nelson, improvement committee co-chairman, said the committee is willing to be objective and listen to arguments for flowers but indicated the committee's plans and intentions still give prime consideration to trees.

Mrs. Gail Korn of Wayne, a representative of Marshall Nurseries of Arlington, assisted the committee in selecting five types of trees to be placed in the 40 planters.

Those types and their characteristics are:

- Thornless honeylocust. Mature heights is 40 to 50 feet, with an oval shape while young, becoming somewhat irregular with age. The leaves are tiny, cast a light shade, and become yellow in the fall. It has a medium to fast rate of growth, gaining from one to three feet a year.
- Marshall seedless ash. Mature height is 40 to 60 feet. It has a round shape and a medium rate of growth, one to two feet per year. Fall color is yellow to gold. It produces no seeds.
- Emerald ash. An improvement on the Marshall seedless ash, it grows to about 35 feet in height. The bark is more deeply fissured and the leaf stems are velvety. Growth rate and shape are the same as the Marshall ash.
- Redmond linden. Mature height is 40 to 60 feet. The rate of growth is one to three feet a year. Heart shaped leaves are densely populated on the tree. In June the tree blooms with small cream colored, fragrant flowers.
- Hick's yew. An evergreen shrub, it will be kept pruned to no higher than five feet. The foliage consists of small, soft, dark green needles. It is columnar in shape, about two feet wide at maturity.

Wakefield Open House Rescheduled

Open house at the new Wakefield High School, originally scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 11, has been rescheduled for Jan. 8, superintendent Gary Bennerotte announced Friday.

Bennerotte said the move into the new building probably won't begin until Wednesday, not allowing enough time to properly prepare for open house on Sunday.

The open house will begin with tours from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., followed by formal dedication ceremonies. Tours will resume after the ceremonies and will continue until 5 p.m.

Information regarding the dedication program will be released later, Bennerotte said. He added that invitations will be sent to individuals instrumental in construction of the new building.

Planning Group Will Meet Tuesday

The Wayne County joint planning commission's regular monthly meeting is scheduled to begin Tuesday night at 8 p.m. at the courthouse.

Agenda items include review of subdivision regulations, study of a rough proposed draft of zoning regulation, and a report by state planning consultant David Wright on meetings scheduled at Carroll and Winside.

Dixon County Health Committee Member Named

Mrs. Jacque Hatcher has been selected as Dixon county's representative on the northern subarea committee of the Greater Nebraska Health Systems Agency.

Mrs. Hatcher, administrator of the Elms Nursing Home in Ponca, was elected to represent Dixon County during a subarea committee meeting Nov. 28. Her selection is expected to be ratified by the GNHSA governing board during a meeting Thursday at the Holiday Inn in Norfolk.

The GNHSA, operating in 71 counties in Nebraska, is responsible for coordinating health care services in its area. The agency's governing board during its meeting will discuss a five-year plan being developed which analyzes health needs and resources, and will make recommendations for improving health care services. The plan must be completed and approved by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare before the GNHSA can receive final designation.

Santa to Visit Winside School

Santa Claus will be in Winside Dec. 22 from 10:45 a.m. until 2 p.m., under the sponsorship of the Community Club.

Youngsters who want a chance to chat with the jolly old gent and get in those last minute Christmas orders can see him at the Winside Elementary School. Pre-school aged children are invited to stop in at the school and see Santa.

The Community Club, meeting Nov. 28, in addition to deciding to invite Santa to visit Winside also discussed the club's summer program.

STRAY Thoughts

By Jim Strayer

I thought a comment made by Democratic congressional hopeful Hess Dyas during a stop in Wayne last week was interesting. According to Dyas, a survey taken recently shows that on the average, a farmer who doesn't plant anything this spring and "just sits in the kitchen" next year stands to lose $6,500. But those who plant stand to lose on the average $28,000 based on current costs of production and commodity prices.

The last issue of The Wayne Herald carried an editorial by yours truly about the farm strike now being organized. I'm not familiar with the survey Dyas cited, but if those figures are accurate, it certainly gives you something to think about, doesn't it?

Price Increase

Natural gas prices increased again. The cost rise of 1.126 cents per 100 cubic feet will amount to about $18 a year for the typical residential customer, according to Peoples Natural Gas manager Keith Mosley.

Trees in Question

Apparently there is some question as to whether or not the downtown improvement committee will be able to follow through with its plans to put trees in the new sidewalk planters.

Mr. Charles Meier has suggested that flowers would be a better choice than trees, and the council has agreed to put the item on the agenda for the next council meeting.

I've been sold on the idea of trees but the suggestion for flowers may have some merit, and it doesn't do any harm to discuss things before a final commitment is made.

Whatever the final outcome, the downtown improvement committee has done a good job continuing to plan for the betterment of the district.

Is This How It's Done?

I understand there is a new toy out now — a cow that you can milk just like the real thing.

That reminded me of one of my first toys, also a cow that you could milk. Only instead of the normal way like this new fangled one is supposed to work, you operated the tail like a pump handle.

I have to confess, I've never milked a cow, but I've at least seen it done on my relatives' farms and know how things are supposed to work. I always wondered if any big city kids who had the same toy cow I did thought that is how you are really supposed to do things. Bet they got a big surprise if they ever got a chance to try it.

Now We Know

George Gallup sort of settled a running argument we've had around here. In a recent poll it was revealed that of 20 professions, the public rates journalist seventh when asked: "How would you rate the honesty and ethical standards in these different fields — very high, high, average, low, or very low?" Advertising practitioners came in 19th. Guess that shows the guys on the other side of the room? (Just kidding, gentlemen, just kidding.)

According to a news release from the Kidney Foundation of Nebraska, a 4-H club in the state spent months collecting more than 20,000 flip tops with hopes of buying time on a dialysis machine for a kidney patient. Kidney foundation executive director Franklin Williams said the club, like many others in the state, is the victim of a hoax.

Williams said the Kidney Foundation constantly is asked where accumulated aluminum flip tops will buy and beer cans should be sent. "The answer is, we don't know." After six months of inquiry, the foundation's staff has been unable to trace the source of the erroneous information. People have been led to believe that one pound of aluminum flip tops will buy a patient one hour on the dialysis machine. In the past, there were instances where aluminum was saved, taken to the recycling centers, and the proceeds used by dialysis patients. However, Williams noted, in these instances there usually was a special arrangement before all concerned. Those cases were before 1972. Since then, Medicare and the state renal disease program has picked up most costs for dialysis patients.

According to Williams, similar questions have been asked regarding cigarette coupons and computer codes on grocery items.

"As far as can be determined," he said, "there is no such program in Nebraska or nationally at this time."

Weekly gleanings...

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

THE Pilger Community Club is currently undertaking the project of collecting newspapers for a money-raising project for the tennis courts in Pilger. The date of the first drive was Dec. 3.

DECEMBER 6 is the date of the special municipal election when voters of Laurel will decide a bond issue to construct a new nursing home. The proposed facility, if approved, would be located on the south edge of Laurel. The home, planned to take care of 50 residents, would be a brick with wood frame roof structure and dry wall interior walls.

FINAL plans are being made for the open house and dedication of the new junior-senior high school building at Wakefield. Guest speaker for the Dec. 11 ceremonies will be Gary Lund from the Nebraska Department of Education. Lund is a former resident of Wakefield and a graduate of Wakefield High School.

AT A reconvened session of the Randolph City Council Nov. 22, a bid of $17,732.00 was accepted from Smeal Fire Equipment of Snyder for a new ambulance for the Randolph area. Added to the bid is $565 for GSA medical equipment to bring the total to $18,297 for the entire package. The residents of Randolph will split the cost with their rural fire district neighbors after a $5000 federal grant is used to purchase the new ambulance.

ONE of several balloons sent up by elementary students at Thurston on 18, signaling the end to a three-day reading contest, was found by a 6th grader at Keystone State Park, located in western Pennsylvania. Twelve-year-old Dave Murray found the balloon as he was out hunting with his dad and brother. The Pennsylvania youth sent a message back to the Thurston students asking more information about the balloon project.

THE Pierce county commissioner recently voted to discontinue the Pierce county superintendent office until the completion of the current term, which expires Jan. 1, 1978. The office will continue to exist, however, on a part-time basis.

NEWCASTLE Superintendent Schools Ray Lange was present at a meeting of the Newcastle City Club to present the first public announcement of the proposed new addition. The plans came about as a result of an inspection by the State Fire Marshal in 1974 and the deficiencies cited in the report.

VOTERS of School District No. 1 Madison County will go to the polls to vote for or against a proposal for a $2.1 million in bonds for the purpose of building a new high school.

OBSERVATIONS

Persistence pays off

It appears a new storm sewer project in the Roosevelt Park area will become a reality, with the passage of two pertinent ordinances by the Wayne city council.

The project has long been discussed, with the existing open drainage ditch generally conceded to be a health and safety hazard.

That hazard will eventually be eliminated. The project has been kicked around long enough that the actual execution will probably be anticlimactic. But those city officials whose persistence resulted in approval of the project should be proud of their accomplishment.

So far, the existing situation has not resulted in a tragedy, and now that risk will be eliminated. When completed, it may not be one of the most noticeable projects the city has completed, but it is an important one. — Jim Strayer.

Santa Ready for Mail!
The Wayne Herald talked last week with a jolly ole' gentleman at the North Pole who said his name was Santa Claus. He asked us if we would collect his letters from children in the Wayne area again this year.
Mr. Claus informed us that he would read each youngster's letter carefully and do his best to make everyone happy on Christmas Eve. He also asked that children print or write plainly so that he knows exactly what each youngster hopes to find under the tree.
We told Santa we would be happy to collect his mail for him, and to make sure he sees all the letters, we will print them in the newspaper from now until Christmas.
Mail to Santa should be addressed to: Santa Claus, The Wayne Herald, 114 Main Street, Wayne, Nebr., 68787.

NTCC Registration Open

Early registration for second semester credit classes began Nov. 28 at Northeast Technical Community College, and will be held through Dec. 23. It has been announced by Will Meadow, dean of student services.

According to Meadow, students register early to make sure of a place in the classes of their choice, as well as to avoid the registration lines on the formal registration day of January 4, 1978. The early registration period also allows NTCC to offer classes according to the demand by students.

Any student currently attending NTCC, as well as high school seniors finishing at mid-term, and others planning to attend second semester classes may register early. Credit classes are scheduled to begin January 5, 1978.

For the first time, two technical programs will be accepting new incoming students at the beginning of second semester. Usually the NTCC technical programs have fall starting dates only. Accepting new students in January are the masonry and the welding-machinist programs. According to Gene Hart, admissions director, several openings exist in both programs.

A wide range of evening, as well as daytime, credit classes are also planned for second semester. Evening classes include: photography, biology, accounting, real estate, an expanded evening program in criminal justice, and many others.

For further information on the day or evening credit classes, or to register early, interested persons should contact NTCC admissions, 371-2020, Ext. 223.

never succeeded at any endeavor until he became a Hitler follower, the Norfolk chaplain said. He was one of Hitler's most loyal henchmen until he eventually betrayed him.
Heydrich is another example of how Hitler played on weakness, Strasser said. His brother at one time caught Heydrich stealing party money and wanted to oust him. Hitler, instead, promoted him, because knowledge of the theft gave him control over the man.
The disparate economic and social strata of the German people, found themselves in, and Hitler's unique traits, his ability to mesmerize and manipulate people, finally led to his rise of power, Strasser said. "Hitler was finally accepted as a straw clutching by a drowning man."
He offered new hope to a desperate people, Strasser said. The people are not to blame for the "monster," he added. They were victims of a situation, and anyone would have responded in the same way under similar circumstances.
Once in power, he gained total control over minds. Only "people's radios" tuned exclusively to Nazi propaganda broadcasts were allowed, and foreign newspapers were banned. Children were made to believe it a duty to report their parents if they dissented against the regime, and uniforms were used to destroy individuality.
"Differences in people, I think, are made by God," Strasser said. "God likes individuality and differences. The unification of mankind must come from harmonizing."
