

THREE APPOINTEES to the Wayne County Unit of the American Cancer society, talk over the county crusade. They are (left to right): Wayne Mayor Freeman Decker, special gifts chairman; Mrs. Steve Schumacher, special events chairperson and Wayne Marsh, business crusade chairman.

New Cancer Unit Appointees

Several special appointments to the Wayne County Unit of the American Cancer society have been announced by county president, Mrs. Lester Hansen.

Taking responsibility for the service program will be Mrs. Wilbur Giese. Persons with inquiries about services provided by the American Cancer society and where to obtain them should contact Mrs. Giese.

A very important service comes in the area of rehabilitation, including programs for mastectomy, ostomy and laryngectomy patients. The service provided for mastectomy patients, called Reach to Recovery, is nationwide. Wayne's Reach to Recovery volunteer is Mrs. Werner Janke.

Also appointed is a Special Gifts Chairman, Mayor Freeman Decker. He will be calling on persons who may wish to join a growing number of people who provide extra impetus to the society's fight against cancer in the areas of research, education and service.

A new area for Wayne county is the Special Events program which will be headed by Mrs. Steve Schumacher. This program provides a combination of fun and cooperation with distribution of educational materials and fund-raising.

The business crusade will be headed this year by Wayne Marsh. He will organize Wayne's business area for the fund drive to be held the last part of March, just ahead of the residential crusade.

"These people each have a very important responsibility, but will need the cooperation and interest of every resident of the county," emphasized Mrs. Hansen. Last year about 370,000 Americans died of cancer, but the toll need not have been so high, for more than 113,000 people might have been saved with earlier diagnosis and treatment.

"Each of us has the power to help cut the cancer toll in Wayne county," said Mrs. Hansen. We can do this by taking precautions known as the Seven Safeguards Against Cancer. The first three you do for yourself. Protect your lungs by not smoking. Don't get too much sun. If you're a woman, do breast self-examination

How the Program Works

The extension agent will bring a portable scale to the farm to weigh calves, at or near, weaning time. Cows and calves must be tagged, along with birth date of calves and approximate age of cow. Weaning weights are then all adjusted to 205 day weights with special adjustments for sex of calf and age of dam. All 205 day weights are ranked according to the average weaning weight of the herd being weighed. Cows then may be culled by the producer according to these calf weights (see story). No charge is made for this program.

Emergency Number

Use of '911' Increases

The number of legitimate emergency phone calls dialed through the 911 emergency telephone system in Wayne continues to increase for the third year.

Police records show that during 1977, 544 calls were registered at the police station, and of that amount, 264 emergency calls, said police chief Vern Fairchild.

Other calls made through the 911 system not considered emergency call involved persons asking for road conditions, lost animals and so forth, Fairchild explained.

The system was first installed at the police department in August of 1975. During that first year, there were 101 calls, 58 of which were actual emergencies. During the 12-month period ending in December of 1976, records show that there were 340 calls. The number of legitimate calls was 192.

When it was first installed, the 911 system cost the City of Wayne an estimated $1,800. Fairchild estimates that the cost has risen slightly each year due to inflation.

A detailed outline of the annual police report will be given during the city council meeting Tuesday night at city hall.

Izaak Walton Club

Sirens to Wail

Receives Recognition Friday, Jan. 27

The Wayne Izaak Walton chapter has been awarded a special Certificate of Recognition by the National Shooting Sports foundation for its role in promoting conservation and education in the Wayne schools.

The club recently paid for and donated a three-part filmstrip series which examines man's relationship to wildlife and wildlife conservation.

The nation's wildlife has become the subject of increasing interest for many Americans, and particularly for school-aged youngsters; and it is for that reason that the Wayne Izaak Walton chapter decided to provide local schools with these educational materials.

The "Man and Wildlife" filmstrip series consists of three filmstrips narrated by well-known actor Robert Fuller. Subjects include:

"Wildlife Management: Principles and Practices" — examines the modern scientific effort to conserve wildlife. In the process, it exposes many of the popular myths concerning wildlife survival.

"Endangered Species: How and Why" — focuses on past and present factors involved in the decline and disappearance of certain birds and mammals. It also deals in an honest, unemotional fashion with prospects for returning endangered wildlife to healthy population levels.

"Man, The Hunter" — explores the age-old human urge to hunt and the role of hunting in modern wildlife management. All statistics and statements in the series have been verified for accuracy by the Wildlife Management Institute, Washington, D.C.

According to the National Shooting Sports foundation, many sportsmen's clubs nationwide have purchased the educational series for local schools in an effort to promote conservation education among young people.

The Wayne Defense alert sirens will be tested at 1 p.m., Friday, Jan. 27, according to Vern D. Fairchild, assistant Wayne and Wayne county Civil Defense director.

The sirens will be allowed to run only one minute with a three minute pause between each siren test.

The sirens will be tested in the following sequence: Alert (used for tornado or other natural disaster warning) — both high and low siren on for one minute. Pause (three minutes). Attack — both high and low on for ten seconds, off for ten seconds, continuing for one minute.

Normal time sequence for each of the sirens will be a full three minutes.

Selection and Execution All-Important

Power Plays for Maximum Beef Profit

Long-Time Wayne

Businessman Dies

Funeral services for long-time Wayne businessman, W. Leland Ellis, were held Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the United Methodist Church, Wayne, with the Rev. Kenneth Edmonds officiating. Burial was in the Greenwood Cemetery, Wayne.

Mr. Ellis, 73, was the former owner of the Wayne creamery. He more recently was employed by the State National Bank and Trust Company.

Don C. Spitze

Wayne County Extension Agent

In order to be a winner you have to set up goals and then figure out how to reach them. Is this a football coach talking to his players at halftime? No, it's Jim Gosey, University of Nebraska extension beef specialist, discussing goals with a group of Wayne county farmers who have been participating in a Beef Improvement program.

What has goals got to do with beef improvement? It's easiest to explain by using a football analogy. The goal of football team is to put more points on the scoreboard than their opponent. But in order to do this the team must produce touchdown plays to win the game.

And it's the same with beef producers. Their goal is to increase their profit, but in order to do this they must have some touchdown plays that will win the game for them.

Gosey pointed out, by way of example, how the wrong touchdown plays can keep a farmer from achieving his goal. A western Nebraska beef producer started out by crossing his Hereford cows with Angus bulls.

He was satisfied when he produced a crop of good, heavy calves. But he continued to use Angus bulls on succeeding generations of females and eventually ended up with a herd that was 15-16ths Angus, and produc-

How to Win the Game

A farmer should choose as many of the following touchdown plays as he thinks are important to him in the next five years for efficient development of his herd, and winning the game. There are no right or wrong answers. Each touchdown play is briefly discussed by Jim Gosey, extension beef specialist.

Small herd 50 cows and under; Medium size herd 50-100 cows; Large herd 100 cows and over. Size of herd makes a difference in what type of breeding program will be followed. A small herd owner should not use over two breeds in his breeding program. If either labor or pasture is short it might be cheaper to buy replacements. It's difficult to do much sire evaluation with small and even medium size herds.

60 day calving period: Gosey stressed that a 60 day calving period is very important. One way this can be done is selling cows who calf later in the season and always

The La Leche League of Coleridge is inviting all interested parents to an informal get-together Tuesday evening, Jan. 31, at 7:30 in the Henry Foxhoven home in Coleridge.

Tuesday evening's meeting is the first in a new series of four meetings. The first topic to be discussed will be "Advantages of Breastfeeding."

LLL was formed by a group of mothers interested in sharing information, support, and encouragement regarding "natural mothering."

Stress May Be More Dangerous Than Germs

A mother-in-law can be more instrumental in bringing on a cold than the common cold germ, says Dr. Thomas Holmes, professor of psychiatry at the University of Washington in Seattle.

According to the Health Insurance Institute, behaviorists believe many major ailments such as heart disease, cancer, high blood pressure, diabetes and peptic ulcers frequently are caused by a cluster of "life-change" events occurring within a short time.

Even in diseases caused by germs, behaviorists say the germs, which are always present, attack only after the victim has weakened himself.

A mother-in-law's visit, an event which the average person finds difficult to cope with, is a "life-change" that may trigger resistance. When a person is unable to deal with several stress situations at once, his resistance falters and he becomes susceptible to diseases caused by germs, such as tuberculosis and viral infections.

Working with neurologist Harold Wolff of Cornell University Medical College and New York Hospital, the team examined the life events that preceded the illnesses of more than 5,000 patients. They reported a wide range of events including death of a spouse, mother-in-law's visit, a change of job, a divorce or the birth of a child.

Holmes says the team also discovered that events of ordinary life such as marriage, a vacation or a new job, could help trigger illness "because the effort required to cope with these events weakens resistance."

The findings challenge the ideas about disease and about the roles that psychology and sociology play in health. It may be that effective treatment of disease requires analysis of choices and actions along with medical therapies.

Holmes and his associates have developed a "Social Readjustment Rating Scale" assigning a value to each life-change event. The more change you have, the more likely you are to get sick, they say.

If a person's score exceeds 300 points in a year, it increases the likelihood of serious illness within the next future by almost 90 percent. Holmes says he can accurately predict that about 50 percent of those with 150 to 299 Life Change Units will get sick, while those with less than 150 LCU's have only a 30 percent chance of disease.

If no new life crisis intervenes, the risk declines sharply after about two years.

Following are the top 20 events on the Social Readjustment Rating Scale, with the point count for each:

- Death of spouse — 100 points.
- Divorce — 73 points.
- Marital separation — 65 points.
- Jail Term — 63 points.
- Death of close family member — 63 points.
- Personal injury or illness — 53 points.
- Marriage — 50 points.
- Fired at work — 47 points.
- Marital reconciliation — 45 points.
- Retirement — 45 points.
- Change in health of family member — 44 points.
- Pregnancy — 40 points.
- Sex difficulties — 39 points.
- Gain of new family member — 39 points.
- Business readjustment — 39 points.
- Change in financial state — 38 points.
- Death of close friend — 37 points.
- Change to different line of work — 36 points.
- Change in number of arguments with spouse — 35 points.
- Mortgage over $10,000 — 31 points.

Cagers Score Nine Points in Less than a Minute

Wildcats Stomp Invading Doane for Ninth Win

By RUSS HERMAN
Wayne State 51D
Wayne State took advantage of a rare nine-point play in the second half to demolish Doane, 97-69 Tuesday night at Wayne.

Wayne led 78-57 with 4:24 left in the game when Wildcat Mark Olsen was fouled by Conrad Slusarski of Doane as he went for the rebound. The Tiger bench protested vehemently, resulting in three technical fouls charged to coach Bob Erickson. Erickson then was ejected from the game.

Olsen hit the two free throws coming from the foul and Joe Peitzmeier potted five of the six technical shots. The Wildcats then got the ball out of bounds and Bob Reeson hit a short jumper to complete the play.

The outburst was part of a 15-0 spurt the Cats ran off in a period of 1:04, and Wayne blistered the Tigers 30-6 in the space of just over five minutes.

Wayne led narrowly throughout much of the first half, but Lennie Adams scored seven points in two minutes to give the Cats a 33-18 lead with six minutes to go in the first half.

Doane cut the lead to 50-45 with 14:07 left in the game on a jumper by Dave Karlhauser, but Olsen and Reeson combined for nine quick points to put the Wildcats safely in front.

Olsen led Wayne with 21 points while Joe Curl pulled down 30 rebounds to lead the team. All but two players figured into the scoring for the Cats.

Bob Eubanks was the high point man for Doane, now 4-11 on the season.

The Wildcats, now 9-8, face a mammoth weekend as conference rivals Fort Hays State and Kearney State roll into town Friday and Saturday night. Friday's activity will be in the form of a men's-women's double-header, the ladies starting at 5:15 and the men at 7:30 p.m.

On Saturday a wrestling meet, involving Wayne State, Kearney State and South Dakota State initiates the action at 1 p.m. with the men's and women's games to follow.

Wildcats Drop 2 CSIC Games
Two Central States Conference losses last weekend dropped the Wildcats league record to 1-3.

Wayne State lost to Missouri Southern Friday night at Joplin, 100-83, then fell to Pittsburg

State, 83-76 Saturday night at Pittsburg.

Against Missouri Southern, the Wildcats shot 50 percent from the field in the first half, but the host Lions shot 66 percent.

Wayne played even ball with the taller Lions for 11 minutes of the first half, but Missouri Southern expanded a 32-32 tie with a 20-4 outburst in the next five minutes to take command and head into the locker room with a 62-42 halftime lead.

The shooting fell off for both sides in the second half, but the large deficit was too much for the Cats to overcome.

Shelvy Brown was the main thorn in the side of the Wildcats. Brown scored 28 points, 24 of them coming in the second half.

Russell Bland, Southern's 6-10 center, who scored 38 points against the Cats in Wayne last year, added 20 points.

Mark Olsen, Gary Billings and Wayne Ibarolle led the Wildcats with 13 points each.

Wayne led Pittsburg by 10 twice in the first half, but saw the lead disappear in the second half as Pittsburg's shooting game picked up and the Wildcats began committing turnovers, 14 in all in the second half.

Wayne shot 51 percent in the first half to take a 43-35 edge at halftime, but the Gorillas' Greg Wolf, the game's leading scorer with 27 points, got hot in the second half. He tied the game twice with baskets before teammate Steve Portz hit a shot with 14 minutes to play to give Pittsburg their first lead since early in the game, 55-53.

The Gorillas built the lead to nine points, then the Cats put on a rally, Gary Billings stealing the ball with 2:05 left and converting into a lay-up to cut the lead to 78-76. Wolf hit two free throws with 25 seconds left to sew up the win after the Wildcats missed two opportunities to tie the score.

Billings and Dale Meyer led Wayne with 14 points each and Olsen added 12.

Walz' Shot Saves Cards Win Streak

Tim Walz hit a jumper with less than eight seconds left Tuesday night to keep his Randolph team undefeated with a narrow 54-52 win over host Laurel.

Randolph, now 12-0, had to play catchup ball after trailing 17-10 in the first quarter. The Cardinals managed to do just that behind the 15 points of Dan Billerbeck to make the second half a tight ball game all the way.

Although the Cards had one more field goal than the Bears, the difference in the game was turnovers, said coach Joel Parks, pointing out that his club committed eight more than Randolph.

Summing up Laurel's fifth loss against nine wins, Parks said that he hasn't pinpointed the reason for the Bears' slump which has resulted in two losses in the last three outings.

In the Bears' loss to Creighton Friday night, Parks said "we just didn't play well." Against Randolph, he pointed out that "we played well in spurts, but had difficulty sustaining it... it's a tough game to figure out right now."

The Bears shot 50 percent from the field, converting 22 of 44 tries as three players scored in double figures. Steve Anderson led with 15 while Mike Martin had 14 and Bob Dahlquist had 10.

Seward Calls It Quits As Wildcats Cage Boss

After four seasons as head basketball coach at Wayne State, Jim Seward is calling it quits.

Seward made it official Monday by handing in his resignation to college president Lyle Seymour, ending speculation that he intended to make this season his last as the Wildcats' mentor.

"Basically, I've been here four years and I think that it's time to go," Seward explained as his reason for leaving.

Seward came to Wayne State from Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk in July of 1974 and guided his teams to records of 15-9, 14-11, 18-12, and as of Tuesday, 8-9 for a career total of 55 wins and 41 losses.

Wayne State's entry into the Central State Intercollegiate Conference has improved the Cats' schedule, Seward pointed out, noting that at the same time the schedule has been one of the toughest his teams have faced.

"We're playing the most difficult schedule in the past two years, especially since we've joined the Central State Intercollegiate Conference," Seward said.

Seward said he decided to hand in his resignation now to give college officials time to search for a new head coach. He added that he would like to stay in coaching.

Before going to Northeast Tech, Seward coached at the University of Nebraska-Omaha for three years as an assistant and graduate assistant.

Future plans are indefinite for Seward and his wife, Ellie, who is principal at St. Mary's grade school.

Seward's resignation is subject to formal approval of the Nebraska State College's Board of Trustees. If accepted, his resignation will go into effect in May.

Springfield Makes It Three in a Row South Dakota Grapplers Win WS Round Robin

South Dakota at Springfield won the Wayne State Round Robin Wrestling Tournament Saturday for the third year in a row and for the third year in a row they did it without losing a dual.

Westmar finished second with a 4-1 record. Wayne took third with a 3-2 mark while the rest of the field went Midland 2-3, Northeast Tech 1-4 and Peru State 0-5.

USDS finished the meet with 168 total points to 151 for Westmar. The points were the sum total of the scores of the team's five duals. Each team wrestled each team in the field.

The championship dual, as it turned out, was the Westmar-Springfield matchup which took place Friday night. USDS won it 23-18.

Wayne State and USDS took 2-0 records going into the final day of action Saturday, but after beating Peru, 35-8, the Wildcat grapplers fell to Westmar, 28-18 and USDS, 28-12.

USDS had four individual weight class champions and Westmar had three. Midland, Northeast Tech and Peru State each had one tiltist.

Although no Wayne State wrestler won individual honors, five of them gained runner-up spots.

The Most Valuable Wrestler award was shared by Ron Schaulis, Midland's 118-pound wrestler, and Doug Shald, 150 pounds from Northeast Tech.

Tim Amsden of USDS received a trophy for having the least accumulated time for pins. The tiebreaking system was used because four wrestlers tied with three pins.

Coming in second place for Wayne were Dan Fernau at 118 pounds, Bill Gubbels at 150 pounds, Kirk Hansen at 167 pounds, Todd Porter at 177 pounds and Dave Ulrich at 190 pounds.

Gubbels lost to Shald, 2-1 to come the closest of the three to winning the individual title.

Porter lost to champion Thorpe, 4-2 and Ulrich lost to Amsden, 3-0.

THE NUMBER of personal fouls called by two officials in two separate high school games last week might be enough to discourage a number of backers who think that using three officials in one game is the answer to stopping fouls.

At Ogallala, for instance, the home team was assessed 29 personals while the visiting Sidney quint was tagged with 41. Total: 70. That's not the most however. During Arapahoe's 72-62 victory over Lexington St. Ann's Friday, 77 fouls were called.

How do area coaches and game officials feel about adding a third official? For some answers, I contacted local and area coaches, as well as several officials from Wayne. First, the officials.

Duane Blomenkamp: I really haven't seen that many games which use three officials. A third official might make a few more calls, including some which might help away from the ball. Most important thing, though, is that each official knows the mechanics of the game — what area he is to cover so that the various assignments won't overlap.

Mike Mallette: If you can take an official and put him in the furthest seat in the back section for the best angle, it might be all right to have a third official. Around here it doesn't make that much difference in the way the game is called to have a third man. You're bound to miss some of the calls because of the closeness of the action — the number of bodies involved in a play. The same can be said of football — you just can't be in the proper place all the time to make the right call. Besides, the added expense to schools wouldn't be popular or successful.

Jim Paige: I don't think you'll have everyone doing it of the secondary level because of the crunch on money. If you have two competent people, an extra person won't do a much better job.

Paige, whose been working college games the past 10 seasons and before eight years of high school ball, noted that the smaller colleges likely will stay with using two officials simply because of the extra finances.

A NUMBER of high school coaches go along with the idea that additional costs, to hire another official will prohibit high schools from seeking extra help. Here are some of their comments.

Bill Sharpe, Wayne High: When I was in Kansas we used three officials in our league, and there were some good and bad points. I think it's all right if the mechanics are worked out so each knows where he is to work. That way there will be better coverage away from the ball and on the fast breaks. Using three officials also will keep the older officials in the game longer because they won't have to keep running up and down the court on fast breaks. Their experience, too, could help new officials working the games.

The bad points involve not knowing the mechanics of the game, and costs. A third official could be a waste of money if he isn't working a full game. That is, two officials continually call the game while the third is doing nothing.

Sam Colvin, Winside: It isn't necessary to have a third official in high school. Ninety percent of the game isn't fast enough to require a third man. If we (the school) would have to pay for three officials, chances are they (school administrators and boards) would have to cut something else out of the sports program to pay for it.

Joe Coble, Wakefield: I don't see any need for it in high school ball. I kinda go by what the Big 10 coaches say — it leads to more whistles and slows the game down. I'm basically conservative and I like to leave the game the way it is. I hate to see any major changes. I love it like it is and want to keep it that way.

Curt Frye, Wayne High girls: To me there's always three officials on the floor — two working the game and me on the bench. Seriously, even with three officials there still would be a lot of missed calls. It's just part of basketball. Officials miss as many calls for one side as for the other.

FRESHMAN Steph Dorsey is one of two top defensive performers on this year's women's basketball team at Briar Cliff College in Sioux City. The 5-11/2 point guard has snared 22 caroms and is right behind leader junior Roxanne Larson with 29 rebounds, as the 6-6 Chargeettes approach the halfway mark of the season.

Steph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dorsey of rural Wayne, is a 1977 graduate of Wayne High School.

Kittens Take 2 In CSIC Action For 13-4 Mark

Wayne State's Wildkitten basketball team racked a pair of wins in Central States Conference play last weekend to remain unbeaten in league play. The Kittens downed Missouri Southern, 76-57 Friday night at Joplin, then damped Pittsburg State, 66-57 Saturday night in Pittsburg, Kan.

The Missouri Southern game pitted the Kittens against a former coach, G.I. Willoughby. Willoughby coached at Wayne State from 1968 to 1977 and then moved south to take the Lady Lions' job. The loss was the first in conference play for Southern and dropped its record to 9-4 overall. Wayne State stands at 13-4.

Wayne made only 11 turnovers while the Lady Lions coughed the ball up 28 times, paving the way for an early 20-point lead for the Kittens. Wayne led 47-26 at halftime.

Julie Brinkmann led Wayne with 21 points while Lori Erwin, Lori Langell and Connie Kunzmann each contributed double figures scoring to the Wildkitten cause. Patty Killian, the CSIC's leading scorer, paced the Lady Lions with 14 markers.

The Pittsburg-Wayne matchup was a sloppy one with both teams committing 30 turnovers. The Gorillas stayed with the Kittens in the first-half trailing 31-25 at halftime, but the Kittens maintained control of the second half to post the win.

Brinkman once again led the Kittens, scoring 22 points. Kunzmann added 18, her highest output in several games since she suffered a knee injury in a Christmas Holiday Tournament.

Barb Bettin had a fine game coming off the bench with 12 points.

Terri Hosney led the Gorillas, winless in eight games this year, with 18 points. Joyce Thomas added 16.

Wayne State puts its 18-1 conference record over the last two years on the line this coming weekend as conference foes Fort Hays State and Kearney State come to town. The Kittens host Fort Hays Friday night and Kearney State Saturday evening. Both games get underway at 5:15 p.m.

Koester, Erwin Combine For 34 As Eagles Tounce Ponca, 55-21

Sophomore Stacee Koester poured in 18 points and freshman Lisa Erwin hit 16 Monday night as Allen girls boosted their record to 8-1 with a 55-21 beating of invading Ponca.

Both girls finished the game with 58 percent shooting from the field to pace Allen in its 25 of 50 field goal performance in an East Lewis and Clark division tilt. Although the game didn't have any meaning as far as Allen's bid for a division title, coach Steve McManigal pointed out that the victory "should put us in a positive note going into the Walthill game Thursday night."

The Eagles host the Blue Jays in the final conference match to decide if McManigal's girls win the division title outright and earn a trip to the conference playoffs against West division winner Wynot.

McManigal feels that if his girls can play the way they have in recent ball games, they could be a winner.

"I'm impressed with the way the team is moving the ball around," he said.

Balanced score in Allen's team effort over Ponca got a shot in the arm with senior June Stapleton's nine points.

Pam Brownell controlled the boards for Allen with 10 of the team's 41 caroms.

LEE REMER

Allen Board Fires Remer

Assistant basketball coach Clifford Jorgensen has been named to replace first-year head coach Lee Remer at Allen High School, superintendent Robert Heckathorne announced Tuesday.

Remer, who was hired as the Eagles cage coach at the beginning of the school year, was relieved of his coaching duties following a special school board meeting Monday night. By a 5-0 vote, board members agreed to have Remer step down and still receive his coaching salary.

The board cited general dissatisfaction with the team's performance and discipline as the reason for letting Remer go. Under Remer, the Eagles have won two games and lost eight. Not present for the meeting was board member Harlan Mattes.

Wakefield Losing Streak Comes to an End, 72-54

Brad Jones ripped the nets for 26 points Tuesday night to help Wakefield snapped a five-game losing streak, 72-54 over invading Wynot.

The Trojans of coach Joe Coble broke away from a 16-8 first quarter lead with a torrid second quarter shooting to all but put the game away. Wakefield made 11 of 15 attempts from the field for 22 points and a 38-24 halftime command.

Leading the Trojans' efforts in the second quarter was Todd Swigart who came off the bench to fire up the Trojans, said coach Coble.

Wakefield made 48 percent from the field and pulled down 35 rebounds. Val Johnson was the leader with 10 caroms.

How —

choosing replacement heifers that were born early in the season.

Buy bulls on basis of confirmation, breed, proven genetic ability and price: Bulls, points out Mr. Gosey, are the quickest way to make genetic improvement in a herd. Buy bulls that have superior rate of gain as compared to other large number of bulls of the same breed fed the same feed, at the same ranch or bull test station. Choose bulls from a dam that calves without missing a year. The bull should walk well, not be overly fat and be a good breeder. Because of the difficulty of evaluating a bull's performance in a farm herd where several bulls are used in the same pasture, it's most important that a bull be purchased from a breeder that has good records on the performance of the prospective bull. The rate of gain should be due to its genetic ability and not to over feeding.

Produce own replacement heifers: Select sound, oldest heifers, that are not overly fat and have a higher than average 205 day weight ratio.

Buy replacement heifers: If either labor or pasture is short it might be cheaper to buy replacements.

Produce 205-day calf weights that are 50 per cent of dam-weights: Jim Gosey says that this is a goal of many producers, but some recognition must be made of the fact that it's easier for a light weight cow to do this than it is for a heavier one.

Produce choice slaughter steers in as short of time as practical and efficient: The most important thing is to produce fast gaining cattle and sell them when they are proper grade for the type of cattle being fed. The biggest mistake is to either sell them when they are over or under finished according to Gosey.

The 205 day records for basis of culling cows to increase weaning weights 15-20 per cent in five years: Each year cull 5 per cent of cows that produced the lowest calf weaning weight, plus 5 per cent of the cows for other reasons, such as calving difficulty, poor quality calves, etc.

Develop a good cross breeding system: If a two breed cross breeding system is being used (especially desirable for small herds), always breed the heifers to a different breed than their sire. First cross of two breeds produce the greatest hybrid vigor.

A crossbreeding program has a potential of an 18 per cent improvement over straight breeds. Most of the advantage is due to crossbred mothers due to increased milking ability and fertility and a small amount due to increased genetic ability of the calf to gain. In other words most of the advantage of crossbreeding is produced by weaning time of the calf. Crossbred vigor has little effect on feedlot cattle, although the combining of two different breeds may produce traits that are very desirable in the feedlot according to Gosey.

ed calves that were fit as heavy as he had started out with because he had lost most of the advantage of hybrid vigor.

He lost the game by not using the right touchdown plays.

Vernon Krause, extension beef specialist and Don C. Spitzer, Wayne county agent, have devised a set of possible touchdown plays (see story this page) that a producer can choose from to achieve his goal of maximum profit.

So in many ways, the beef improvement program is like a football game: if the farmer picks the right plays and executes them well, he can reach his goal of maximum profits.

monthly. For the rest, go to the doctor or clinic regularly so that if a cancer is found, it can be treated early when it's more easily cured.

Also important is supporting the ASC in its work. This year's county goal is $4,225, an increase of $340 over the $3,885 raised in the county last year. An area workshop will be held Feb. 16 and all key people are urged to attend. More information on this will be forthcoming as it is made available. Anyone interested in helping fight against cancer is urged to contact Mrs. Hansen or one of the unit officers.

Smoking catches lawmakers eyes

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

LINCOLN — If enough of Nebraska's lawmakers stick to their guns, it won't be only the cigarette smokers who will be kicking into a building fund that furnishes the money for some of the fancy state buildings that have been erected in recent years.

Cigarette smokers, many of them at least, are quick to point out that their expensive, unhealthy and occasionally smelly habit has one good thing going for it — generating dollars for construction of facilities like the new State Office Building and the plush new sports arena on the State Fairgrounds.

The legislators recently incorporated into a bill a provision that other users of tobacco products would also be taxed to provide more building money, primarily for the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission's recreational improvement projects.

In its original form, the bill that was amended called for a tax on soda pop as a revenue source for the commission. The measure was revised to divert to the commission the proceeds from one penny of the five-cent proceeding tax on cigarettes. The idea of taxing soft drinks was abandoned.

After that was done, some of the legislators, led by Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett, won approval for another amendment calling for a 15 percent wholesale tax on snuff, chewing tobacco, cigars and pipe tobacco with the proceeds being earmarked for the Game and Commission and the Capital Construction fund. Barnett estimated the new tax would produce about $2 million annually, a figure hotly disputed by several opponents of his amendment.

Even though Barnett's proposal won support from 28 lawmakers, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, doubted it would even become law.

Warner predicted "an avalanche of lobbyists" will be buttonholing the legislators in their fight against the amendment. "I'll be very surprised if the wholesale tax stays in the bill," he added.

Sen. Barry Reitzel of Fremont, a pipe smoker and one of the sponsors of the soda pop tax, argued that six states which had taxes on tobacco products other than cigarettes repealed the levy because it didn't generate much money and was difficult to administer. He said Kansas collected only $763,000 on a 10 percent wholesale tobacco tax last year.

Big Springs Sen. Jack Mills sponsored the amendment that calls for placing one cent of the state's cigarette tax in the Nebraska Outdoor Recreational Development Act fund, starting in fiscal 1980-81. He estimated that would give the game commission $1.8 million that could be matched with federal money.

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, who helped steer to passage the extra nickel a pack cigarette tax some years ago, said he wanted to include other tobacco products at that time. But he said he couldn't get the job done because of the makeup of the committee which reported the bill to the floor.

City Sales Tax Bill

At the urging mainly of Omaha officials, Sen. Nelson Merz of Falls City sponsored a bill that would allow any city to impose a sales tax of up to 1.5 percent without a vote of the people.

Under his bill, the higher tax in the four cities that already have a sales tax would expire on October 1, 1980, when the levy would revert to what it was before his bill went into effect.

Only Omaha, Lincoln, Bellevue and North Platte have municipal sales taxes. Omaha officials, led by Mayor Al Veys, have been lobbying intensively to get permission to increase their tax to 1.5 percent because of what they said are pressing financial needs.

Merz said the bill he introduced was the way Omaha city officials wanted it. Responding to a question, the Falls City lawmaker said he was not asked by his hometown to sponsor the legislation. The inclusion of Lincoln in the Merz measure didn't sit well with several of the Capital City senators.

Sen. Wally Barnett said that was directly contrary to his wish. "They just lost me on the bill," he said.

Speaker Roland Luedtke took the same view. He noted Lincoln officials had not sought the additional taxing authority. Merz said representatives of the Nebraska League of Municipalities did not help write his bill but did support it.

On the same day his proposal was submitted, the Legislature beat down an attempt to kill another bill that provides for a vote of the people before a municipal sales tax could be imposed. Excepted from the bill, sponsored by Sen. Howard Lamb of Anselmo were the four cities which already have the tax.

Recall Bill Studied

Members of the Legislature's Urban Affairs committee have under consideration a bill that would provide procedures for removing certain elected officials from office.

Senators on the committee agreed the measure, introduced by Sen. Carl Carsten of Avoca has merit but probably needed revision before being reported to the full Unicameral.

The bill would authorize second class city councils and village boards to adopt ordinances setting out rules and regulations for removing elected officials. Carsten explained the purpose of his legislation was "to help village boards and small city councils if elected officials lose interest and won't resign."

His bill would provide for removal for misconduct, neglect of public business, abuse of power or a wrongful act. An appeal process for the elected official being challenged would also be provided.

Several committee members said if the bill is necessary, perhaps it should specifically outline the abuses that must take place before an elected official could be removed.

Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston suggested a recall election or censure might be better than the ordinance approach.

Dave Chambers, executive director of the Nebraska League of Municipalities, favored the bill. He said he had received several calls from persons asking what they could do to remove an elected official from office.

He said Nebraska statutes provide recall procedures only for city manager and commission forms of government.

Advises Against Major Changes

Gov. J. James Exon believes the legislature should forego passage of bills involving major changes in water statutes.

During an address before Nebraska water leaders, the governor said there should be no new laws dealing with groundwater ownership or diversion of water from one river basin to another.

What the state needs, he said, is development of a total state water management plan before the lawmakers act in those areas.

Exon said the state water plan framework of some ten years ago is a good start but must be updated continually.

He also urged close surveillance of Carter administration plans to make major changes in national water policy.

Lid Bill Introduced

A bill has been introduced for the governor, who has been advocating a spending lid on local government budgets.

Sens. Donald Dworak of Columbus and Orval Keyes of Springfield sponsored the measure at the governor's request.

Under the Exon proposal, a local government subdivision would have to receive voter approval before increasing its budget above the statutory limit.

Current law permits a taxing district to increase its budget above the statutory ceiling after the district conducts a public hearing during which the proposed increase is explained.

The bill would allow school districts to hike their budgets by a percentage equal to the anticipated enrollment increase for the following school year. If the anticipated student numbers did not materialize, the district would be prohibited from spending the additional revenue.

Undraping political veneer

James L. Kilpatrick is one of our favorite people. He is one of several conservative columnists who keep tabs on the in-fighting by the elected populace of the Bagdad of the Potomac. . . more commonly known as Washington, D.C.

His role as a creditable "watchdog" of the government has served to aid citizens in general about specific particulars of what Washington is all about. Sometimes it's difficult to tell the "good guys" from the "bad guys" in politics. Kilpatrick separates the chaff from the grain through factual, probing reporting backed up by a keen sense of what is not so evident. His comments are American as apple pie.

Kilpatrick does not "bad-mouth" members of our representative government just for the sake of readership. He is quick to give credit when it is warranted. He touched on this Monday evening when he told some 1,000 persons attending the first 1978 ABC Breakfast series sponsored by the University of Nebraska at Omaha, their elected representatives "are mostly good men and women."

He advised giving these representatives "some of our confidence, but not all of it." He developed three themes in his Monday night talk — history is mostly biographical, power is the most necessary tool of public policy as well as the most dangerous and eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

The syndicated columnist whose works go into some 400 newspapers, said President Jimmy Carter is not, as we were led to believe during his campaign, a "smiling, good old boy from Georgia." He cast Brother Billy in the role as being the "good, old boy." He commented that Carter is going to do some things or not do some things because of the nature of the man.

We appreciate this candor in undraping the political veneer from our leaders in government. The people of our country are not so naive as to be taken in by rhetoric or wholesome looks. They want to know the real issues facing the nation and the real solutions which will shape the policies of our country.

They are able to accept and to cope with the problems of our country so long as they are not being led down a garden path. They admire truth, even when it is not popular and a sincere directness by our elected representatives. They want their story to be represented in policy making. And they don't want a gifted edge in this representation.

We support openness by our representatives. We shun that which is being said because it is popular or because the person saying it wants to be re-elected. While one is hard to achieve and the other difficult to discard, they are both worth consideration.

And we further admire Kilpatrick for his head-to-head battles with a female counterpart on the prestigious "60 Minutes." This alone should warrant the journalism "Medal of Valour." — Chuck Barnes.

Wayne Man Wins
$25 Bucks Prize

The grand prize in this week's Birthday Bucks contest will be worth $50 tonight (Thursday) to the lucky shopper who matches his birth date with the winning date drawn at random.

A local merchant or employe will draw the lucky date and it will be announced at 8:15 p.m. in all participating stores.

Last week a Wayne man, Rodney Schwanke, won the $25 consolation award when it was learned that his birth date of Dec. 29, 1944 was the closest to the winning date of Jan. 2, 1945. Had his date matched, Schwanke would have won the top prize valued at $25.

Schwanke was at Coryell Derby after Mrs. Charles Kudrna of Charlie's Refrigeration and Appliance Service drew the date.

The Midland View Time, Water Have Limits

Statistics from the Nebraska Department of Water Resources show continued large increases in the number of water wells drilled during 1977 and raise the question as to how long such development can continue without serious harm to the state's underground water resources.

The total number of wells registered is listed at 61,382, an increase of 5,176 during the year, compared with 5,635 in 1976. Most of the registered wells are for irrigation purposes.

Expand 4-H Facilities

Nebraskans who participate in 4-H Leader Forums and Citizenship Short courses at the National 4-H center in Washington, D.C., will benefit from better conference facilities and more living space resulting from the addition of three buildings to the center.

Dr. William Caldwell, assistant director, 4-H and Youth Development at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said the center is important in giving volunteer leaders and 4-H members an opportunity for improved educational programming. A good representation of the state's leaders and member attend various programs at the center over the years, Caldwell said.

The three buildings — J.C. Penny hall, W.K. Kellogg hall and McCormick hall, complete the expansion and development of the center, an effort which began in 1969. The facilities help serve the needs of nearly six million 4-H'ers in the U.S.

The J.C. Penny hall serves as the main administration building for the National 4-H center, Caldwell said, containing conference rooms, a library, an assembly hall and dormitory facilities. Mrs. Caroline A. Penny has given a chapel in honor of her husband.

W.K. Kellogg hall recognizes the contributions of the W.K. Kellogg foundation to the 4-H program, Caldwell said. "The Kellogg foundation is the largest single private sector contributor to the 4-H center expansion," he said. The Kellogg hall serves as a residential and conference facility.

"More than half a century of support for the 4-H program by International Harvester company is reflected in the dedication of McCormick hall," Caldwell said. It includes conference rooms overlooking a sunken courtyard, as well as residence rooms.

As recently as 1970, Nebraska had around 4 million acres under irrigation of which 1,100,000 acres were irrigated from surface sources of streams and rivers and about 2.9 million acres from pumps tapping the underground resources.

In the space of just 7 years, the pump irrigated acreage has climbed dramatically and total acreage under irrigation is around 6 million acres. It is interesting that the Nebraska State Water Plan Framework Study published in 1971, projected a total development potential for ground water irrigation of 4,700,000 acres. Apparently, rapid development during the drought years of the 1970's has brought the state virtually to that projected potential right now.

One of the most recent estimates on the state's vast underground water supply put it at about 1.9 billion acre feet but that figure is white encouraging can also be misleading. The average water-level change between the fall of 1974 and the fall of 1975 was downward in 82 of Nebraska's 93 counties. According to University of Nebraska survey statistics on groundwater levels, large-scale use of ground-water for irrigation has caused significant water-level declines in some critical water-short areas where recharge is very slow. This has given rise to discussion on the need for transbasin diversion of water to recharge and maintain depleted underground supplies. This is not a new controversy. The great Tri-County project which depended on creation of Lake McCaughy nearly founded on that emotional point and the State Supreme Court decision of 1936 produced a directive that water from the Platte not be permitted to cross over into the Republican watershed.

It has been obvious that Nebraska lawmakers have long been hesitant about tacking this issue head-on and this is understandable. It is only one phase of the complicated maze of water laws and precedents which eventually the Legislature must untangle by its very nature it could delay needed and less controversial reforms and solutions if given precedence.

Anyone who thinks that discussion and concern about the state's groundwater resources is of recent origin should consider the following statement: "Groundwater is now recognized as a leading natural resource. Its wastage and near exhaustion at places during periods of drought have caused widespread alarm in regard to the permanence of this water supply. Present conditions call for a close, factual investigation of groundwater and the measures which should be inaugurated for its conservation."

That statement was written in 1935 by H.A. Waite for Groundwater Level survey in Nebraska: Nebraska Geological survey paper 7, page 3. A vast store of survey material has been accumulated and continue to accumulate on Nebraska's water resources and the effects of tremendous development during the past 30 years. There are trouble areas where interior soils were unwisely put under crop production to the detriment of other more suitable cropland.

Farmers and ranchers as well as the state's legislators have to face up to the fact that time and water have their limits.

CONTRIVERSIAL THEORY
Perhaps the U.S. farmer could solve his economic problems by concentrating on "efficiency," reducing the size of his production.

In effect that is what Ken Monfort, the very successful Colorado cattle feeder and meat packer recently told the National Beef Congress meeting in Kansas City. It is a startling theory and coming from someone other than Monfort who regularly makes controversial statements and advances unusual theories about his industry, it would hardly create a ripple.

A couple of years ago Monfort was one of the first to suggest that cattle people should concentrate on supplying the beef quality that consumers are buying rather than what producers had traditionally provided them. The trouble with Monfort's theories is that they so frequently turn out to be about right, as is the case with most successful innovators.

What Monfort said was that a ban on additives and antibiotics in feed would benefit the livestock producers. He reasons that per capita beef consumption must be lowered from the present 128 pounds to about 110 pounds to make all segments of the industry profitable. He says that cattle producers could sell 110 pounds of meat per capita. See TIME, page 5

Area Swine Days Feature Contrast

The American Swine industry will be contrasted with its Soviet counterpart during the 18th annual Area Swine days to be held at three Nebraska sites this week.

Robert D. Fritschen, district Extension swine specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Northeast Station at Concord, will close each of the programs with a report on his recent 37-day fact-finding mission to the Soviet Union.

The one-day programs, which will start at 10 a.m. and last until mid-afternoon, were conducted Tuesday at the 4-H building in Beatrice and Wednesday at the Elks club in Ord. There is one today (Thursday) at the City auditorium in West Point.

Fritschen, who discusses the large Russian swine complexes that he viewed, said that the Soviet governments pledge in the early 1970s to industrialize the livestock industry has had profound effects. In swine production, he said, it has resulted in massive state farm confinement complexes where pigs are thrust into virtually an assembly line schedule from farrow to finish.

"We learned early that you could not separate the politics from the pigs," Fritschen said. "There were a lot of similarities between stops, and some were identical except for the management. In each of them, production was dependent upon each laborer doing his or her job in a prescribed manner every day." During his visit as part of a research team sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Foreign Agricultural Service, Fritschen said he was able to view several types of Soviet swine operations, most of which are located west of the Ural mountains between the Baltic and Black seas near such heavy population centers as Moscow, Leningrad and Khar'kov.

Among topics to be discussed during Fritschen's slide show are building construction and design, the network of confinement systems, breeding practices, nutrition programs and waste control. Each of the area programs began with tips on containing

Attend Ag Conference

MR. AND MRS. Jim Nuernberger of Wakefield (right) are greeted by Roger Sandman (left) director of the state department of agriculture, at the Nebraska Agricultural Progress conference held last week in Lincoln. The conference, sponsored by the state department of agriculture, featured Gov. J. James Exon at the opening Nebraska Agricultural Commodities banquet. Don Muhm, Des Moines Register farm editor, addressed the participants on agriculture's image in the news and Tom Hughes from the USDA Agricultural Service, stressed the importance of international marketing to today's agriculturalist. Other areas discussed were water, estate planning, energy, animal health, the Farm Bill and current legislation.

Families Find 'Time' Shortage

Today's families are face with many problems, including the dilemma of trying to find time for each other. Impact '77 — Enriching Family Relationships, involved more than 46,000 Nebraskans last year, helping them bring the family closer through special activities.

Details on Impact '77 are in the Winter 1978 issue of the Farm, Ranch and Home Quarterly, off the press this week.

Other articles in the magazine are about prose millet row spacing; a quarter century mark in the life of the Quarterly; a look at farm corporations; grain sorghum residue; tracking animals through radiotelemetry; and coydogs (a coyote and dog hybrid) in Nebraska's wilds.

for more total dollars than they can sell.

He says that without the feed additive, more grain would be required to produce less beef which would sell at higher prices. Consumption, he said, is equal to domestic production plus imports. Monfort said he would tell a Congressional committee that it won't hurt a single person if producers continue to use food additives.

Monfort said that consumers would some day rebel at the loss of agricultural production tools that have enabled the population to be fed "on a smaller percentage of income that any society in history." He said some day food producers are going to start questioning whether it is worthwhile to use all the scientific advancements, at great cost, to produce a surplus of food at prices under the cost of production.

He said rather than striking, if the farmers of America quit using 80 percent of the commercial fertilizer they now use, they'd have all sorts of higher prices, lower costs and be better off economically. And food, he said, would cost the consumer a bunch more.

Now everything that Monfort says is not gospel and some of it is said undoubtedly for effect but it is worth considering. If wheat growers had produced 1 1/2 billion bushels of wheat (instead of 2 billion) each of the last two years, the price would be much nearer $5 per bushel than it is now. If corn producers had produced a 5-billion bushel crop of corn this year rather than a record 6.3 billion bushels, the price of corn probably would be nearer $3 per bushel.

Cattle producers have been reducing the size of their herds for several years and their outlook is improving. Hog producers have increased the size of their farrowings the last couple of quarters and economists have started predicting a drop to $30 per cwt. by the end of next year.

Under Monfort's theory, farmers could profit by some other practices besides cutting fertilizer use. Irrigators could save on fuel costs by reducing the amount of water they use by 50 percent and settle for 110 or 115 bushels per acre corn rather than trying for 150 or 160 bushels. They could reduce their costs for weed killers and insecticides by returning to more tillage and rotation. They could reduce acreage and cut capital and interest costs by going back to smaller and less expensive field equipment. If the "compact" car is the answer in automotive transportation, why not the "compact" tractor, combine, planter, etc.?

In other words, instead of being able to brag about every farmer producing enough to feed 56 or 57 other people, why not produce enough to feed 50 other people and do it profitably? It's something to think about.

DON C. SPITZE
WAYNE COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Welcome sunshine! I'm not speaking about the sun of which we have seen so little of lately, but of a newly organized 4-H club — the Sunshine Kids 4-H Club. The club's organizational leader is Dan Sukup and they have six members. All of the members live south of Wayne.

The club was organized several months ago, but a name wasn't decided upon until their last meeting. With the kind of weather we have had this winter I'd vote for a name like Sunshine too!

COFFEE
Pops Partners and Pals and Partners of Dixon county and Coon Creek and Leslie Livewires 4-H clubs of Wayne county had a free coffee and cookies for businessmen of the Wakefield area Saturday, Jan. 21. It was their way of saying thanks to the Wakefield businessmen for the support they have given to the 4-H club program in their area. These businessmen appreciation coffees aren't new to Wayne county as we have also had similar coffees in Wayne, Winside and Carroll.

NEW IDEAS
I visited with Connie Roberts, organizational leader of the Coon Creek 4-H club while attending the Wakefield Business Appreciation coffee. Connie is a member of the 4-H council and is chairman of a committee to improve attendance at 4-H events. She and her committee have a number of ideas on how to improve attendance at speech contests, judging contests and the 4-H Challenge program. One of the committees ideas is to survey all 4-H families and find out how participation can be improved. Connie will present the ideas of her committee at the next meeting and if adopted the 4-H council will help initiate this program. I think Connie and her committee are on the right track and I wish them luck.

4-H COUNCIL
Speaking of the 4-H council I'd like to mention that one of their major projects this year is 4-H leader training. The 4-H council have already helped defray costs of sending four 4-H leaders to North Central 4-H Leaders forum near Ames, Iowa in November. In December, Penny Roberts, Anita Sandahl, Mrs. Dennis Greunke, Mrs. Hilbert Johs, Anna Marie Kreifels and myself attended another leader training session in Norfolk.

The people that attended these two sessions will combine into a committee under the leadership of Sam Schroeder, 4-H council president to plan an extensive Leader Training program in the county. You will be hearing more of this soon.

LEARN BY DOING
What is 4-H all about? Marlin Strate of the Spring Branch 4-H club in the Hoskins area puts it this way: "To me being a 4-H member enables me to 'learn by doing.' When I joined 4-H I was nine years old and enrolled in three projects. I would look forward to the monthly meetings as a time for friends and as a time for fun. As I grew in my 4-H experience, I discovered that 4-H meant more than just having fun. Along with fun and friendship, there is learning and planning. The members join together for cooperation and responsibility in club and community projects."

Then Marlin goes on and relates some of his experiences in project work and how they have helped him. He concludes by saying "I can truly say that I learned by doing." Well said Marlin.

AGRI-SCOPE is produced by the University of Nebraska Television special projects unit and the Department of Agricultural Communications, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Thought for Today
By Brian McBride
"Advice is seldom welcome; those who need it most like it least."
Samuel Johnson
Advice is given to those who need it because of some trouble they are having. Who would be so bold as to try to advise a successful, talented person for whom everything was going great? What does such a person need of advice?
The poor wretch who has a great deal of misfortune... gets advice from everyone, qualified or not. Much of this advice is worthless. No wonder those who need advice are seldom receptive. It's best to save our advice until we are asked for it.
We are no "standard" service. We believe that each memorial ceremony should be unique, to meet exactly the needs and desires of each family.

H&R Block doesn't make many mistakes. Our people are trained not to. But if we should make an error that costs you additional tax, you pay only the tax. Block pays any penalty and interest. We stand behind our work. That's Reason No. 14 why H&R Block should do your taxes.

- 2 pounds Ground Beef
- 2 medium Onions, chopped
- 1 medium Green Pepper, chopped
- 2 tablespoons Flour
- 1 (1 lb. 12 oz.) can Tomatoes
- 2 tablespoons Chili Con Carne Seasoning

Cook noodles as directed on package; drain. Sauté beef, onion and green pepper in a large frying pan until beef is lightly browned and vegetables are tender. Drain off fat; add flour and stir.
