For Irrigation

Concerned About County Water

Officials of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Water Resources district in Norfolk expressed concern about broad base use of underground water for agricultural purposes.

Steve Oltmans, general manager of the district, said his office is keeping a concerned eye on Wayne county because of the limited number of aquifers.

"They are presently 108 registered irrigation wells in Wayne county, and just about the same number of aquifers," Oltmans pointed out. He said there might come a time when a control will have to be put on the withdrawal of water for agricultural use.

"We are concerned the irrigation wells will drain off water which normally would be used for domestic purposes," Oltmans stated. He said Wayne county farmers who are contemplating irrigation should put down a number of test holes to make certain the water he is seeking isn't the same as that being used for domestic purposes.

Oltmans said a landmark decision by the Nebraska Supreme court was handed down last Thursday which held an irrigator liable for draining off a water supply that was being used for domestic purposes.

He said although the case decided by the supreme court is an isolated one, it still sets precedent for further court actions regarding domestic and irrigation waters.

The court decided a farmer who pumps so much groundwater for irrigation that he causes other landowners' domestic wells to run dry is liable for damages.

Oltmans said the domestic-agriculture water issue brought before the high court and its subsequent decision clearly defines the priorities of water use.

Domestic ranks at the top of priorities with agricultural and industrial in the second and third spots, depending upon who is deciding the placings. However, there is no nudging "domestic use" from the first of the list.

"Domestic" use is defined by law as that required for human needs, relating to health, fire control and sanitation as well as for domestic livestock in normal ranch and farm operations.

The court said the required ruling in the current case was "obvious" but it might have been different if two farmers had been at odds over the issue.

The case was brought by three Madison county landowners against a farmer who had an irrigation system. The farmer began pumping water at the rate of 650 gallons per minute for his irrigation system. Within a few days, the domestic water wells of the three land owners were dry.

The court awarded $5,346 to the plaintiffs to be used for deepening their domestic wells. The court also specified that the irrigator could not deepen his well.

Oltmans said he testified in the case and can see far-reaching consequences for the decision. "An irrigator will have to take into consideration of being liable for his neighbor's domestic well."

Dick (Skip) Kahler, assistant manager, said his office is collecting data that will be useful if a control is ever needed for agricultural water usage. He explained that he had been monitoring a representative number of wells within the district since 1976.

"We take a reading in early spring before farmwork begins and then we take another reading in late fall, following the farm work. We can then tell how much the aquifer is lowered in the "check" wells during the growing season."

Oltmans said he looks for irrigation to continue to be another sort of "insurance" for the dry-land farmer. He said the advent of the center pivot irrigation system will allow farmers who farm glaciated land such as that in Wayne county, to irrigate the rolling terrain.

NPPD Discusses Power Pact

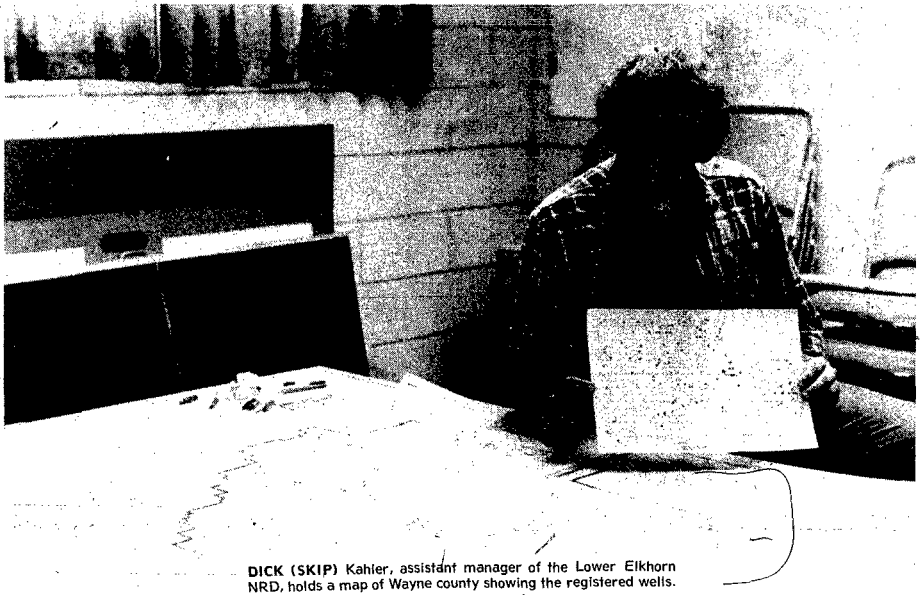

The City of Wayne was represented at a meeting conducted by the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) in Columbus concerning towns now being served or considering being served under terms of a capacity purchase agreement.

City Administrator Fred Brink was among area mayors and other city officials attending the meeting which served as a base for discussing provisions of the purchase agreement.

NPPD has a capacity agreement with the City of Wayne. Under terms of the agreement, the municipalities buy their total electrical requirements from NPPD as a wholesale customer and in turn, NPPD leases the municipality's power generating facility as a reserve source of power.

The agreement calls for NPPD to pay the municipality a monthly capacity statement whether or not the plant produces power for the district's system.

Also attending the meeting was Wakefield Mayor Alfred B. Benson.

DICK (SKIP) Kahler, assistant manager of the Lower Elkhorn NRD, holds a map of Wayne county showing the registered wells.

Needed Nutrients

Supplementary Feeding Program

A program to provide needed nutrients to pregnant and nursing women, infants and children under five years of age, will be introduced in this area this week.

Pat Chippen WIC director of Goldenrod Hills Community Action agency, said the supplemental feeding program will be made available Wednesday.

He said a child's first few years are critical for growth and development. For example, he said 90 percent of all post-natal brain growth occurs during the first three years of life.

"If children's diets are inadequate through this crucial time, they may suffer irreversible brain damage."

WIC has been created to wipe out this unnecessary hazard to the future well-being of area youth. The program is operated by the department of agriculture at the federal level. The state health department is responsible for the development of the program and the disperse-ment of funds in Nebraska. At the local level, Goldenrod Hills Action agency operates the program.

Participants include pregnant women, new mothers (for six months), nursing mothers (for one year), infants and children up to the age of five. Crippen said they must be certified nutrition risks at the WIC clinic to be held at the Women's Club room, city auditorium, Wayne, Thursday (Feb. 9) from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

He said rather than serving a total feeding program, WIC provides food rich in protein, iron, calcium and vitamins A and G — those nutrients most likely to be inadequate. In addition, WIC grants include money for nutrition education, clinic costs and program administration.

The food package is tailored to individual needs. An infant is eligible to receive iron-fortified formula, juice, iron-fortified cereal. His mother receives See SUPPLEMENTARY, page 10

Chamber Exec Attends Meeting

Gary Van Meter, Wayne Chamber of Commerce executive vice president, last weekend attended a meeting in Lincoln of Nebraska Chamber of Commerce executives.

Van Meter said his primary reason for attending the meeting was to meet with those departments and personnel which the Wayne Chamber will be utilizing and working with throughout the year, particularly the department of economic development.

He also visited with other Nebraska Chamber executives to learn about their programs and activities. He said he concentrated on their work in retail activities to create interest in downtown business and the means by which they stimulate activity in retail promotion projects.

Van Meter said he got a chance to examine their programs to involve the area farming community in their community's growth and development.

William C. Schilling, manager, urban-rural affairs, Chamber of Commerce United States, was one of the featured speakers. His topic was "Latest Office Management Techniques."

Two More File for Office

Joanne Ostrander, county clerk of court, has filed for reelection, according to Norris Weible, county clerk.

Other filings include Leon F. Meyer, incumbent county treasurer.

Weible said his office was left out of the list of offices up for election this year. He also said qualifications for those wanting to file for elective office are that the person must be a registered voter and he must pay a fee of one percent of the yearly salary for the office he is seeking.

Weible said April 28 is the deadline for registering to vote in the May primary.

School Boards Meet Monday

The Wayne-Carroll Community school board of education will meet tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Wayne high library.

The Wakefield board will also meet tonight at the new high school building. The meeting is set for 8 p.m.

The 30-day weather forecast is calling for above normal temperatures, hopefully into the upper 30's. The mild temperatures, compared to the recent sub-zero weather, are reason enough for a lot of Northeast Nebraskans to be happy. One Wayne State coed, DeAnn Feagan, took the idea of warming weather a bit further Friday by donning a bikini and braving the below-freezing weather to warm the hearts of many. DeAnn is a freshman from Bellevue.

Troop 175 Court of Honor

Some 28 awards and prizes were presented at a Boy Scout Troop 175 Court of Honor Monday, Jan. 30.

Two scouts were inducted into the troop preceding the Court of Honor. They are David Phelps, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Phelps and Tom Malin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tiegs.

Annual Report

Chief Tags 1977 As "A Great Year"

Wayne Police Chief Vern D. Fairchild said his department had a "great year" in 1977.

He cited a "first" in that the department was able to go through the entire year without any turnover of full-time personnel.

More experience, better training and more patrol time were the deterring factors in a marked decrease in the number of criminal cases reported.

He pointed out that Wayne should once again be a contender for the lowest crime rate in first class cities throughout the state. He said Wayne had the lowest rate in 1975 but was nosed out of that position in 1976 by Falls City.

"Even though the data has not been released by the State Crime Commission, I feel we certainly have the lowest in 1977."

"And what's more," he said, "we intend to keep that rating in 1978."

Chief touched on traffic accidents in 1977, noting there was an eight percent increase during the past year as compared with 1976. He said after checking with other communities in the area and taking into consideration some of the weather conditions during the first part of 1977, "I am not at all unhappy with the final tally in this category."

Chief Fairchild once again touched on the '911' telephone system. He said the emergency number continues to get more use.

"This is a great piece of emergency equipment for our community and the surrounding area; that is covered by our telephone exchange," the Wayne chief stated.

He said his department does have a problem convincing the public that this (911) is an emergency number only and is not "just a fast way to check on road conditions to Omaha during a snow storm or to report the neighbors' dog running loose."

In looking over the breakdown for 1977, Chief Fairchild called See CHIEF, page 10

MARVIN KOHOUT of the Nebraska Highway Safety Program, center, demonstrates to Wayne police officers the new radar unit the city received Thursday to help locate drivers who are speeding. The device allows officers to calculate and record speeds of motorists in any direction while the police cruiser is moving. Before, officers had to be stationary while using their radar gun. In previous tests, the new system has proven nearly 100 percent accurate in its readings. The radar was made available to the Wayne department free of charge for two years through the safety program.

Earning the rank of Tenderfoot was Matthew Baier.

Bennett Cattle was presented with a Patrol Leader patch. Earning the Emergency Preparedness Merit badge were Bennett Cattle, Mark Doring, Jim Fairchild, Richard Glass and Ravi Johar.

Matthew Baier was presented with the Space Exploration Merit badge. Earning Recruiter patches for recruiting new scouts were Mike Doring, Bob Fairchild, Jim Fairchild, Richard Glass, Ravi Johar and Rod Koch.

Presented with patches for attending the winter camporee were Matthew Baier, Darrin Barner, Bennett Cattle, Jim Fairchild, Richard Glass, Kevin McDonnell, Tom Malin, David Phelps, Rodney Porter, Scoutmaster Vern Fairchild and Assistant Scoutmaster Don Cattle.

Prizes were presented to three scouts for selling the most tickets to the Troop Chili supper. They were Darrin Barner, first place, 80 tickets, Kevin McDonnell, second place, 67 tickets; Kory Lesberg, third place, 32 tickets.

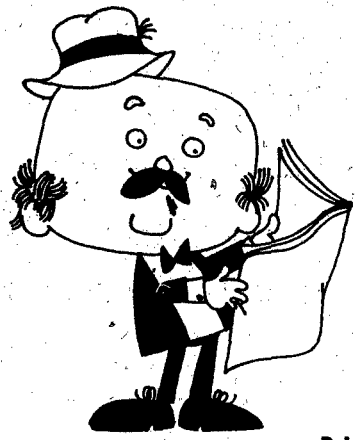

The Troop auxiliary held a meeting following the Court of Honor and discussed a canoe trip to be held on the Republican river.

Music Festival Set for Feb. 18

About 150 high school music students from Northeast Nebraska will perform in concert at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 18, in Ramsey Theatre, as part of the 4th Annual Wayne State College High School Orchestra Festival.
The students will perform music on a "slight reading" basis for the concert. The music will be practiced the day of the performance, with a special 11:15 a.m. performance by the Lincoln High School orchestra of Sioux Falls, S.D. The concerts are open free to the public.
WSC music instructor Michael Palumbo said the day's events are designed to allow orchestra students to learn from each other.
"It will give the students who do not ordinarily get together in a large group a chance to interact and learn from other students," Palumbo said.
Participating high schools will include Blair, Columbus, Norfolk, Wayne, Wakefield, Stouxs City and Yankton, S.D.

 Chief Fairchild summed up by stating, "Overall, I am very pleased and proud of the showing made by members of the Wayne Police department during 1977. There is no doubt in anyone's mind that demand for police service will increase in 1978, nor is there any doubt in my mind that the Wayne Police department will be able to meet those demands."

What's your C.A.Q.?

(Crime Awareness Quotient)

Can you answer these trouble-saving, money-saving, PERHAPS LIFE-SAVING questions?

- What precautions should you take when you leave on a trip?
- What kind of locks should you have on your doors and windows?
- What should you do if a stranger wants to use your phone for an emergency call?
- What's the first thing you should do when you enter your automobile after dark?
- What's the last thing you should do when you leave your car parked and unattended?
- If you're a woman walking alone at night, what precautions should you take?
- What should children do when they are approached by strangers?
- How can your youngsters protect their bicycles from theft?
- How can you protect your youngsters from being "inadvertent criminals" — (when pranks or peer pressure turn fun to felony)?
- What simple precautions can protect you from "high rise crime"?
- How can a woman prevent her purse from being stolen as she shops?
- How can a man prevent his pockets from being picked?

AND MOST IMPORTANT OF ALL, DO YOU KNOW WHAT CRIMES ARE MOST FREQUENTLY COMMITTED IN YOUR COMMUNITY — AND HOW THEY CAN AFFECT YOU PERSONALLY?

If you can answer these questions, then your C.A.Q. is high! You can protect your family, your property and yourself.

Wayne State Teams Drop 2 at Washburn

Wayne State's basketball teams suffered a pair of losses at Washburn Friday night. The Wildcats were beaten by the Ichabods, 92-85, and the Wildkittens lost their first Central States Conference game of the season, falling to the Lady Blues of Washburn, 66-57.
 Mark Bonner ripped the nets for 36 points at Washburn, upped its season record to 13-5 and its league record to 4-2. The Wildcats fell to 11-10 and 3-4.
 The Ichabods led by eight points at halftime, but the Wildcats came out hot in the second half and tied the game 52-52 with 18 minutes to go. Washburn was able to maintain the edge the rest of the way, however, mostly on the fact that it connected on 56 percent of its shots from the field while the Cats could only hit 44 percent.
 Five Wayne players scored in double figures. Dale Meyer led with 15 points. Mark Olsen and

Hometown Flavor In Poet's Works

Midwestern poet Barton Sutter will present a free public reading at the Fine Arts Building at Wayne State College at 8 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 9.
 Sutter will appear at WSC Wednesday through Friday, Feb. 8-10, as part of a series of poet presentations arranged through a "Plains Writer's Circuit" agreement between area colleges. He will also make a series of presentations to high schools in Wayne and Wakefield through the WSC "Poet-in-the-Schools" program.
 Sutter has authored a number of works, including the book "Cedarhome." His work makes use of ordinary experiences from his life in small, midwestern towns.
 Jim Brummels, poet-in-resident at WSC, said Sutter is a poet that many can identify with.
 "His works speak assuredly from an experience common to all Midwesterners," he said. "Having grown up in small towns, having experienced that life, much of his work focuses on that experience and tries to make sense of that experience for us."
 Brummels said arrangements for free reading to groups can be made by phoning 375-2200.

Allen Clerk Has Forms

Pearl Snyder, Allen village clerk, this week announced she had forms on hand for filing for the Allen school board and for the Allen village board.
